Rhode Island Jewish Historical Notes

PREFACE

In what way does the story of the Jew in America differ from the story of the Jew in other lands? In one important respect. In America, unlike other lands, the Jew was present at the very beginning of things. An Asser Levy in New Amsterdam, a Mordecai Campanall in Rhode Island, an Adolph Sutro arriving in a covered wagon in San Francisco. The number involved is not important. It is important that the Jew was there. It is important that he must be counted as one of the melange of peoples who began the building of America.

In Providence, 1854 marks a dual anniversary: the centennial of the first Jewish congregation in Providence and the Tercentenary of Jews in the United States. We observe these events—in part, at least—in order to remind our neighbors of our early presence in this land; and to remind ourselves that religious concernments stimulated the first organized endeavor by Jews in this land—whether it was a synagogue, an all-day school or a cemetery, the concernment was religious.

And in the years ahead it is my prayer that the religious concernments of our forerunners will become ours, that we shall strive for depth and genuineness of feeling, that we shall encourage Jewish learning and cultivate music and the arts, that we shall indeed reach out for the life of the spirit. It is my prayer that in this land of ours there be a famine—'not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord.'

RABBI WILLIAM G. BRAUDE, PH.D.

INTRODUCTION

The celebration of the Tercentenary of the settlement of Jews in the United States will serve more than one purpose.

Primarily this celebration will make us aware of our past in this land, and of our part in the growth and development of the country.

But the year of jubilee will also stimulate us to gather material and to write the history of our own community. This history is long overdue. The building blocks for such a history are waiting to be picked up, and to be rescued from oblivion. The task is not an easy one. It is by no means a simple one. Material is scarce. People were not careful of preserving records. The material that is available must be examined and evaluated. Truth must be separated from fiction. Facts must be sifted out from mere rumors. Personal impressions must not be allowed to replace historical judgment.

The task of gathering material for a history of our community is not always as exciting as it may seem. It involves hard labor and painstaking searching. It may take hours of reading, long distance correspondence, and months of waiting to establish one minute detail that will take up no more than a single phrase in the history of an organization, an institution, a personality, or an event that took place in our city.

As an example of the task of the historian, consider this work by Mr. David C. Adelman:

In order to obtain the names listed here he spent hundreds of hours in the libraries of the city and in the archives of the courts. The result is a solid contribution to the history of the settlement of Jews in Providence. The historian will welcome the hard facts contained in this work. The layman will be interested in the human side of the record. They will be thrilled to find records of ancestors, of relatives, of familiar names. When did they come? Where did they come from? What did they do?

The research of Mr. Adelman gives us a scheme upon which the history of the Jews of Providence will have to be constructed.

1. The period before 1840. Individual Jews came and went in and out of Providence in Colonial times. For the most part they were the merchants of Newport and their agents. Witness the court records of Providence from 1739 to 1860.
2. The period between 1840 to 1877. Congregations were already in existence. The Jewish population in Providence and Pawtucket consisted of about 150 families. The beginning of a community life is evident. Witness the records of the mass meeting of 1877. This meeting may well be called the first community-wide gathering, and it was a turning point in the life of the community. It will make an interesting chapter in the story of our community.

3. The period between 1877 to the end of the century. These were the years of great changes in the face of our community. New immigrants came every day by the ship loads. They were in the main from Eastern Europe (Poland, Roumania, Galicia, Ukraine). Examine the records of over 1230 naturalization records copied by Mr. Adelman. Look at the dates of entry and the birthplaces of those who came after 1875. The data are very revealing. This is the period when all our present-day communal agencies and institutions had their origin. Even the latest agency can be traced to a forerunner during these 25 years.
4. The period between 1900 and the end of World War I.
5. The period between the two World Wars to the present. These 50 years yield more recorded material, and most of the events in our community are within the memory of many of us. We have with us a goodly number of people who helped shape the history of our community. From them must come the building material for the story of our community during this century.

This invaluable work by David C. Adelman, President of the Jewish Historical Association of Rhode Island, is the first published effort of the association. Others will follow in the course of this year of the Tercentenary. This will be our contribution to the greater history of the Jews of America.

BERYL SEGAL

Opening remarks of David C. Adelman, President of the Rhode Island Jewish Historical Association, before the first formal meeting, held at the John Brown House (Rhode Island Historical Society), 52 Power Street, Providence, Rhode Island, February 12, 1953.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

It is my great pleasure and privilege to welcome you to the first formal meeting of the Rhode Island Jewish Historical Association.

This occasion is for me the fruition of a seed casually planted in my youth when I began to collect books. Eager but inexperienced, I had no goal and proceeded like a grasshopper. Trial and error proved to be painful financially and compelled me to concentrate. I chose to collect Rhode Island Americana and at first, subconsciously, but later deliberately, searched for Jewish historical items. This search extended over many years and disclosed that the history of the Jews of Newport had been minutely examined by many Jewish historians who contributed to the publications of the American Jewish Historical Society. Errors had been made and were being perpetuated by repetition such as the exaggeration of the Jewish population of colonial Newport, the statement that Abraham Campanall had been made a freeman and that the Jew, James Lucena, had been made a citizen while Aaron Lopez had been denied naturalization a year later. The incontrovertible facts show that the Jewish population of colonial Newport never exceeded, if it ever reached two hundred, that Abraham Campanall was not made a freeman but was given a license to conduct a tavern and that James Lucena represented himself as a Portugese and took the oath "upon the true laith of a Christian".

In another connection, John Mason, dramatic critic, writes:

> "There is no good reason why history should become a series of myths when the truth is accessible. Unfortunately, all too many of us tend to approach history as victims of prejudice, repeaters of hearsay and readers of headlines rather than small type. Not having the time or inclination to do research we are apt to believe what we would like to believe and to take it for truth . . . due to the pressure of our own living we reduce lives to anecdotes (true or false) to a few dramatic moments, or to single famous statements so that, even when the facts are available, most people seem to prefer the legend and refuse to believe the truth when it in any way dislodges the myth."

Rhode Island historians have paid little attention to the Jewish community of Providence. In Field's History of Rhode Island, published in three volumes in 1902, the Jewish community was dismissed in three lines and as late as 1909, a professor of Brown University published a derogatory description of the Jewish community of Providence, which, if true, applied only to a small segment of the community. Over the years historical material, such as old letters, photographs and organization records have been destroyed or disappeared. Students who seek to write papers upon the Jews of Providence in connection with their school courses, are frustrated in their efforts when they find that there is no material available. As we approach the three hundredth anniversary of the settlement of the Jews in the United States and the hundredth anniversary of the Congregation Sons of Israel and David, this situation presents a challenge.

A little over three years ago, at the suggestion of Rabbi Braude, I undertook to write a history of the Congregation of the Sons of Israel and David, not realizing at the time that the records of the congregation from 1854 to 1879 had been destroyed by fire, necessitating a search of public records. While such a search is soul satisfying, it imposes a great tax upon the time and resources of the individual and so when Beryl Segal, early in 1951, published his essay in the Jewish Herald, entitled "Anniversary of a Failure", I resolved that the time had come to repair the damage of the past and to lay a solid foundation for the future. One of the first persons whom I consulted was Mr. Roelker,

Director of the Rhode Island Historical Society, in whose quarters we are now meeting, and received such enthusiastic encouragement that I then discussed the project at different times with Rabbi William G. Braude, Mr. Beryl Segal, Mr. Arthur J. Levy, Miss Matilda Pincus, Mr. Alter Boyman and Professor Israel J. Kapstein, with the result that we obtained a charter on September 11, 1951, for the following purposes:

> "To procure, collect, and preserve books, records, pamphlets, letters, manuscripts, prints, photographs, paintings, and any other historical material relating to the history of the Jews of Rhode Island: to encourage and promote the study of such history by lectures and otherwise; and to publish and diffuse information as to such history."

The question of headquarters became a problem because we required a place to work and hold our meetings and also a cabinet where we could deposit and preserve historical material. The Jewish Community Center did not have a room available but could furnish us with cabinet space. I discussed the situation in a casual conversation with Mr. Roelker and he thought that we might be able to make arrangements to meet here. We came to an agreement upon a temporary basis and the first meeting of the incorporators was held on November 20, 1951.

The high quality of the administration of justice in the colony may be observed in the travel of the case of John Merritt versus Jacob Isaacks. This litigation started in New York in 1744 and lasted for a period of twelve years, during which it was heard once in New York, twice in the Inferior Court of Common Pleas of the State of Rhode Island, once on appeal to the General Assembly of Rhode Island and twice by the Superior Court of Judicature, once in New York and five times in Rhode Island. The law laid down in this case is still good law today, to wit, that an administrator is only liable for the debts of the deceased to the extent that there are assets in his hands out of which to satisfy them. However, justice was not blind when politics was involved as in the matter of the petitions for naturalization of Aaron Lopez and Isaac Elizer, wherein the Court perverted the principles upon which the colony was voted and rendered a decision which was universally condemned. (Newport)

Moses Michael Hayes was summoned as defendant in three cases, which he defended and which were decided in his favor.

Naturalization Lists

Public records do not disclose religious affiliations. The selection of the following names is based upon the compiler's knowledge of the local Jewish historical background, the birthplace, date of entry of, and names of witnesses for, the applicant.

The lists were compiled from indexes in the United States Court for the District of Rhode Island, the Supreme Court of the State of Rhode Island and the Superior Court for Providence and Bristol Counties for the years ending 1906. Obvious misspelling of names have not been corrected in copying, except to make for uniformity in a few cases.
