Blame Bunche for Egypt Rule in Gaza

WASHINGTON — The charge that Dr. Ralph Bunche, undersecretary of the United Nations, is largely responsible for Egypt's abrupt resumption of rule in the Gaza Strip, has been made before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

This was reported in the New York Post by columnist Robert S. Allen last week. Allen stated that the "unexpected and highly explosive crisis was precipitated to a considerable degree by Bunche's exceeding his instructions during his Cairo talks."

The correspondent said that the committee has a report detailing how Egyptian President Nasser "Either by wheedling or bluffing or both, induced Bunche to agree to stripping the UN police force of all authority in Gaza and to allow Egypt to again seize control there."

The reinstitution of rule in Gaza by Egypt is given by Allen as the reason for Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold's suddenly changing his plans to fly to Jerusalem, Allen reported.

The columnist stated that the committee, although it can not interrogate Bunche directly since he is a UN official, will quiz Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and other U. S. authorities about Bunche's role in Mid-East negotiations.

The Senators are reported by Allen to be particularly disturbed over the fact that Nasser seemed to show more willingness to compromise before he saw Bunche than he was after his conferences with the UN representative.

ACLU Scores Screening Process

WASHINGTON — The annual report of the American Civil Liberties Union Monday sharply criticized the U. S. Government policy of screening U. S. citizens to bar Jews from service at the U. S. airbase at Dharhan, Saudi Arabia.

The ACLU declared that the government is in violation of the principle of separation of church and state.

Establish Nelson Award in Music

Friends of the late Walter J. Nelson have established a Walter J. Nelson Award in Music at Brown University.

Award winners will be selected from Brown and Pembroke students by the Music Department of the University on the basis of musical interests and talents. These interests might be expressed through performance, composition, general musical studies or work in musical organizations. $100 per year will be awarded until the fund is exhausted.

Irving M. Leven of the committee which set up the award has stated, "It is the belief of the committee which considered this matter that Walter would have liked such a memorial because of his keen interest in music and, particularly, in the encouragement of young musical talent."

Professor Coolidge of the Brown University Music Department has told Mr. Leven that the University will insure that the awards will be given in accordance with the wishes of the committee, and will take care of publicity through the catalogue, general Brown publications, etc.

Catholics Hit Anti-Semitism

NEW YORK — The Catholic Church in Poland has thrown its influence into the fight against anti-Semitism in that country, the New York Times reported this week.

This is the first evidence of public Catholic action against anti-Semitism which is costing many Jews their jobs in government and industry and has brought on a new wave of emigration.

In a Warsaw dispatch, the Times said that the Catholic weekly Tygodnik Powszechny, which is recognized as representing the views of the Catholic Primate of Poland, declared, "It must be stated explicitly that anti-Semitism cannot be reconciled with Catholicism. Anti-Semitism is completely pagan in essence."

The Catholic weekly stated, "The Jews have their rights as equals whether there are 3,000,000 or 100,000 of them."

Speaker At Meeting — Dr. James G. Heller, chairman of Community Relations for the State of Israel Bond Organization will come to Providence to address an Israel Bond leadership meeting which will be held on Tuesday at 8 P. M., it was announced today by Judge Frank Licht, general chairman, at whose home the meeting will be held.

Award Winner Says Soviet Menace Rising

NEW YORK—The Soviet Union "is closing the gap in the relative balance of power" between it and the free world, Ogden R. Reid, president and editor of the New York Herald Tribune, said last Sunday night.

"Nevertheless," he said, "we have time to act. The United States and the free world still have the resources to deal with the problem." To the United States, he said, the challenge provides " a call to leadership never before given in such magnitude to a sovereign republic."

Strengthen Planning Agencies

An important move in maintaining this country's position in the world balance, however, would be strengthening of the nation's top planning agencies, Mr. Reid said, to insure that America is prepared to cope with the threat of communism in all its military, economic, moral and political factors.

"It seems increasingly obvious," he said, "that we need a strengthened National Security Council and Operations Co-ordinating Board."

Mr. Reid spoke at the second annual Eternal Light Award Dinner given in his honor in the Waldorf-Astoria by the Jewish Theological Seminary of America.

Ben Gurion Trusted Ike . . .

So Israel Agreed to Withdraw

WASHINGTON — Premier Ben Gurion's decision to withdraw from the Gaza Strip was based in a large part on his confidence in President Eisenhower, according to Brig. Gen. Thomas R. Phillips, military analyst of the St. Louis Post Dispatch.

Phillips last week wrote, "Ben Gurion's first contact with Eisenhowet was after the war when Gen. Eisenhower was in command of the U. S. forces in Germany. Ben Gurion came to see Eisenhower about the behavior of Jewish refugees there. Some were deeply involved in black marketing and other illegal activities.

The Post Dispatch columnist continued, "Ben Gurion found a profound understanding and sympathy on the part of the general, who said he was easily able to understand their actions in the light of what they had gone through and their long life in German prison camps."

Phillips related this incident to Ben Gurion's acceptance of Eisenhower's word in the Gaza situation. He said that "Ben Gurion has told the story to his intimates many times and has never lost confidence in the President."

Thus far, Phillips asserted, Egypt's taking over the civil administration of the Gaza Strip has been contrary to the assumptions on which Israel based her withdrawal.

A complication that is making it difficult for the U. S. to live up to the assurances it gave Israel, he said, is the sudden action of Saudi Arabia in moving to join Egypt in blocking the Gulf of Aqaba to Israeli shipping.

Since President Eisenhower's recent conference with King Saud of Saudi Arabia was supposed to have resulted in Saudi Arabia becoming this country's staunchest Arab ally, these developments present a problem for U. S. leadership, he pointed out.

Phillips wrote, "The U. S. can easily turn its newly-won friend King Saud into an enemy by becoming involved in this argument — as it now appears it is obliged to do if Washington's word is to be trusted."

The Post Dispatch writer concluded, "Israel has now given up all the advantages it gained by the invasion of Egypt, mostly under U. S. pressure. It remains to be seen whether the U. S. can apply enough pressure on Egypt to force it to renounce its belligerent rights in the Gulf of Aqaba and the Suez Canal and to stop the Egyptian terrorist raids into Israel.

"If the U.S. is unable to do this, Israel will feel that it has been betrayed and will be under strong temptation to resort to arms again.

Miriam Hospital Women to Hold Linen and Equipment Event

Mrs. Ray Friedman heads the annual linen and equipment event of the Miriam Hospital Women's Association to be held Monday, April 8, at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel at 12:15 P.M. This year the proceeds from the affair will be used to purchase initial equipment for a new radio-isotope laboratory to be used in the treatment and diagnosis of cancer at the hospital.

Jack Russell, who for many years appeared in Max Liebman's TV "Show of Shows" will be the featured entertainer.

A new seating policy is being inaugurated this year at the luncheon with all seats reserved in advance. Mrs. J. Sidney Shepard is chairman of reservations with Mrs. Raymond Laurans, Mrs. Seebert Goldowsky, Mrs. Samuel Brown and Mrs. William Cohen as assistants. There will be a drawing of valuable gifts.

Mrs. Friedman is assisted by the following committee chairmen: Mesdames Sumner Raphael, John Lury and Abraham Horvitz, patronesses; treasurer, Murray Botvin; secretaries, Edward Seltzer, chairman; I. Herbert Scheffer, Benjamin Schoolsky, and Stanley Loebenberg, assistants; luncheon, Irwin Silverstein; printing, Jerome Corwin; hostesses, Mrs. Cyril Berkelhammer; decorations, Bernard Symonds, David Kaplan; retention, Miles Sydney; Murray Trinkle; contributions, David Pollock; Providence co-chairmen, Henry Mason, Elisha Scoliard, Joslin Berry, Joseph Levine, Oscar Klemer, Albert Geffner, Robert Riesman, Eugene Nelson; outlying districts, Miles Shein, Milton Brier;

Israeli Economy Weathers War

TEL AVIV, Israel — The Bank of Israel said today the nation's economy weathered the costly Sinai campaign against Egypt last fall in sound shape.

A survey for the second half of 1956 said prices remained more or less stable and a run on banks which developed in the first days of the campaign died out within a few weeks.

The bank said the main ground for concern was the effect of the invasion on foreign currency reserves which dropped to the $50,000,000 level of 1955 despite the fact that 1956 was one of Israel's best years in terms of foreign cash earnings.

Eli Wallach Ambitious To Play Classical Roles, Especially Iago

Eli Wallach is a dark, lean, young actor with the easy-going demeanor of a troubadour with plenty of pennies in his pocket. He's the kind of fellow that nonchalantly trots his baby daughter on his knee and serenades her with "Yes Sir, That's My Baby" while being interviewed. The kind of a father who takes over bathing and feeding chores on the nursemaid's day off—builds a tent and scrambles on the floor in make-believe Foreign Legion warfare with his son.

The kind of a husband who still inspires sighs from his red-headed wife of nearly a decade and a whispered, behind-the-back, tribute to his first starring movie performance — "He's terribly SEXY in it."

Eli's a versatile actor whose roles in three Broadway hits, "Teahouse of the August Moon," "Mr. Roberts," and "The Rose Tattoo," have developed a fine comic talent. But his ambition, he admits, is to play the classics, especially Iago.

Incidentally, Eli reveals, he's terribly superstitious about goats. All the hits had a goat in them. His first movie, the Elia Kazan production of "Baby Doll," based on a Tennessee Williams one-actor, is now playing on Broadway. Careful scrutiny will reveal a goat in the background. The exception is Shaw's "Major Barbara," in which he's currently playing on Broadway. No goat.

His wife, Annie, professionally known as Anne Jackson, also is an actress of stature. Annie confesses she has "terrible guilt feelings about working when I have kids." She left her latest success, "Middle of the Night" with Edward G. Robinson last summer for that very reason.

Then there's Roberta, a solemn-faced brunette doll of 15 months, and Peter's a strawberry blonde like his mama, who sees eye-to-eye with daddy.

"I think like a child," Eli says, "Peter and I have a great time together."

The four live in a large airy apartment on Riverside Dr., seldom missing sitting down to the dinner table at 6 p.m. together, and plainly have, not only one love, but respect, for one another.

Eli's eyes followed Annie out of the living room during the interview and he said fondly, "Annie left 'Middle of the Night' so we could be together. But I've never put my foot down and said 'No career' for her."

Family has always been important to Eli Wallach. He spoke of his early family life in Red Hook, a tough section of Brooklyn, where he played stickball on the streets and went to settlement houses for recreation and to charity camps for sunshine in the summer.

His Dad, Abraham, ran a candy store named Bertha's (for Eli's mother) at the foot of Union Street on the waterfront.

It wasn't a so-called "privileged" up-bringing but Eli and his sisters and brother were surrounded by love and the good example of their hard-working parents. The rest, all with Phi Beta Kappa brains, became teachers. Eli got his degrees, too, and then he raced off to the Neighborhood Playhouse and the Actors Studio to learn the acting art.

After Erasmus Hall High School, the fledgling thespian (who played a 65-year-old cynic at age 12) took off for the University of Texas because it was depression time and tuition, at $30, was cheap in the Lone Star State.

For his sophomore year he hitch-hiked back down to Austin ("took me a week, averaged 300 miles a day") only to receive a

In presenting the Eternal Light Award to Mr. Reid, Dr. Louis Finkelstein, chancellor of the seminary, cited him as an editor who has "contributed generously to the ideal of a democratic society which is of such vital importance to all of us."

The award is a symbolic representation of the Eternal Light set in a triangular silver arch. Each year it is given to a community leader whose activities reflect the moral and spiritual values dramatized by the Eternal Light radio program, produced weekly by the seminary through the facilities of the National Broadcasting Co.

Council Sponsors Seder Celebration

Moishe Rivlen, Israel Consul in New York, and Isaac Hamlin will be guest speakers at the 31st annual Third Seder Celebration on Wednesday evening, April 17 at 7 o'clock at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel. Guest artist will be Mrs. Emma Schaver, internationally known soprano, who will be accompanied by Arthur Einstein.

Mr. Rivlen served in the Israel army during Israel's war of liberation, and now heads the Yiddish Department of the Israel Office of Information.

Mrs. Schaver has appeared several times with the Detroit Symphony and has toured Israel where she appeared with the Haifa Symphony Orchestra and over radio with the Kol Zion L'Gola and Kol Yisroel Symphony Orchestra.

The Seder celebration is sponsored by the Labor Zionist Council.

TRAVEL CONSULTANT

Mrs. Zelda Kouffman, travel consultant, will speak at the next meeting of the Miriam Hospital Junior Auxiliary which will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock in the hospital auditorium.

To Deliver Lecture—Professor Irving Howe of Brandeis University, Waltham, Mass., will deliver the Passover Festival lecture of the Cranston Jewish Center's Adult Education committee on Wednesday at 8:30 P. M. at the Center building in Cranston.

Professor Howe, who teaches English Literature at Brandeis University, was twice commissioned by the board of editors of the American Men of Letters to write critical studies of American authors. These books on Sherwood Anderson and William Faulkner, plus a book of essays, "Politics And The Novel", are among his works. He is a co-editor of "A Treasury of Yiddish Stories."

THE TRUTH OF THE MATTER!

MAX PIERCE'S
KOSHER MEAT MARKET

14 DOUGLAS AVE. DExter 1-5278

Calls your attention to the advertisement of the Waad Hakashrus in this paper, withdrawing recognition of us.

PLEASE NOTE . . .

Whatever else that ad says, MAX PIERCE is confident of one thing it will NOT say . . . It will Not say that Pierce's is Not Kosher. THE WAAD HAKASHRUS KNOWS BETTER THAN THAT.

The disagreement between us is not the kashrus of my meat and poultry. It is, instead, a matter of my insistence on purchasing kosher poultry that is slaughtered outside of Providence.

This is a now familiar story in this city. PIERCE'S KOSHER MEAT MARKET is not the first to prefer the poultry it can buy at the BROADWAY POULTRY COMPANY OF BOSTON to the local sources of supply which the Waad recognizes.

PIERCE'S BUYS ALL ITS POULTRY FROM THIS FIRM, which is under the strict supervision of the Agudas Hashochtim of Greater Boston and guaranteed to be kosher. I have a letter signed by a rabbi from this organization as proof of that.

AND SPEAKING OF RECOGNITION . . .

The Waad Hakashrus itself permits meat which is slaughtered by members of the Agudas Hashochtim to be sold as kosher in Providence. YET IT FORBIDS PROVIDENCE BUTCHERS TO BRING IN POULTRY THAT IS EQUALLY AS KOSHER!

THAT IS THE STORY IN A NUTSHELL . . .

Pierce has finally joined the growing ranks of Kosher Butchers who dare to speak up and defy such a ridiculous regulation.

WHY DOES PIERCE PREFER TO BUY POULTRY FROM BOSTON?

The answer lies mostly with my Customers. I have sold far more poultry, and gained many more satisfied poultry customers, since I changed suppliers. Every single fowl is of such a consistently high quality that I have more confidence in buying it and my customers have more confidence in buying from me. And both parties save money in the bargain!

MY OFFER . . .

I am aware that my purchasing from Boston results in loss of revenue to the Waad Hakashrus and its Shochtim. I have offered to make good this difference to the Waad. This offer has not been accepted.

IT ALL BOILS DOWN . . .

To my refusal to abide by an unfair regulation that has nothing whatsoever to do with Kashrus.

In my opinion, this is similar to a previous regulation against a Kosher slaughterer in Worcester. The Waad Hakashrus would not sanction meat from this house until about a year and a half ago, when an agreement was made to pay the Waad Hakashrus on a poundage basis. Then the forbidden meat suddenly became fit for Providence Jews to eat.

No Wonder The Waad Hakashrus Will Not Accuse Pierce's of Not Being Kosher

MAX PIERCE IS SATISFIED . . .

I am willing (and able) at all times to provide proof of the origin and Kashrus of all my meat and poultry.

Therefore, while I am reluctant to be forced into a public dispute, I feel duty bound to continue to purchase for my customers the very finest of strictly Kosher meats and poultry that I can buy — with or without the approval of the Waad Hakrashrus.

I invite the continued patronage of my loyal customers, who may be assured of always finding the highest quality Kosher products in this market, as they have throughout my 35 years as a kosher butcher in Providence.

Eli Wallach Wants To Act In Classics

shock. The registrar informed him that tuition for out-of-state students had been raised to $200.

"But I've only got $30," Eli informed him in his gentle, yet jaunty manner. So they rustled him up a job doing typing for the National Youth Administartion and let him stay.

After acting with the Curtain Club, a campus dramatic society, and receiving his sheepskin, Eli came home still wanting to be an actor. But Dad wanted all his kids to be professional men and women, so Eli went to City College to prepare to teach. Happily for him he flunked his exams and the theater won.

Then he enrolled in the Neighborhood Playhouse School of the Theatre where Gregory Peck and Elia Kazan were fellow students and was just getting along when the war came along. He entered the Army as a private, came out five years later as a captain.

"Dad was pretty proud of me for that," he admits thoughtfully. And Dad was proud, too, when Eli played before the Queen of England as Sakani, the star of "Teahouse," and sent the Royal Command Performance program back home to Red Hook.

After the Army, Eli came back to New York, met Anne Jackson when both were playing (for peanuts) in an Equity Library Theater production in the Village. They were wed in 1947. He won a part with Katharine Cornell in "Antony and Cleopatra" and started eating again.

But his star really began to shine when he auditioned for Josh Logan, captivated him with a rendition of "I'll be Down to Get You in a Taxi, Honey" and wound up as one of the sassy sailors in "Mr. Roberts."

In 1951, in "The Rose Tattoo," he won about every award including an Antoinette Perry Tony, the Donaldson Award, and the Critics Award for best featured actor.

After that came equally lyrical notices for a not-so-successful Williams play, "Camino Real," and a Theater de Lys production of "The Scarecrow."

After that he created the role of Sakini, the interpreter, in the London company of "Teahouse of the August Moon" and later replaced David Wayne in the New York cast.

I've been a widow like this in the evenings for a long time," remarked Annie, "But thank God, he's really had a spell of work."

He took leave from "Teahouse" to make Kazan's "Baby Doll" last winter and Kazan has already stated flatly: "Eli Wallach will be the screen's most exciting actor."

What do the Wallachs do for fun?

"Go to the theater," they reply.

Eli likes to work with his hands — and goes in for painting in water colors and woodwork. He's an avid baseball and football fan and indulges in tennis and swimming himself.

The kids fit right into their parents late-rising "matinee" schedule. Peter goes to nursery school in the afternoons and even Roberta is amenable to letting her dolls sleep late.

Being a parent is a natural role to Eli, who worked during summers at school as a playground director in Brooklyn parks fathering 200 to 30 kids at one time.

"I love kids," he says, with affection.

The Rapidity of Events

Events since the conclusion of World War II have been rapid indeed. The establishment of new international alliances, the deterioration of former friendships, can tend to make us forget just what that war was about and who were its presumable victors.

For those who care to refresh their memories, we did battle against Hitler totalitarianism, and we came out on top.

A dozen years after the conclusion of World War II, Europe shows us that vanquished Germany—even though divided roughly in half among former allies — is the most prosperous nation on the continent. A dozen years ago, Western leaders were seriously considering such proposals as "plowing Germany under" for one hundred years.

It comes as all the more shock then, that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization recently appointed Liet. Gen. Hans Speidel commander of NATO ground forces. Speidel was Adolf Hitler's wartime chief of staff in France.

A former Nazi butcher is now giving miltary orders to his erstwhile enemies. Recalling Bergen-Belsen, Dachau, Oswiechem, Buna-Monowitz and other concentration camps, we can hardly help wondering what Speidel's most secret feelings are toward his new, non-Aryan command.

Teddy Nadler Finally Lands the Big Deal

Teddy Nadler, the talking encyclopedia of '$64,000 Challenge," has turned author, publisher and baseball statistician in a series of deals which may make his $120,000 TV winnings look like petty cash.

The quiz whiz, still on the payroll of a St. Louis Army depot as a $70-a-week freight loader, has taken on a business associate, Jerry Jacobs, in the hope of cashing in on his TV fame.

Jacobs disclosed the details of their new ventures as the 47-year-old Nadler climbed to the $32,000 level on TV last Sunday night, in his geography contest with Mrs. Lowell Thomas Jr., toward still another possible $64,000 prize.

"Teddy has joined us as a vice president in the Jersam Co., at 381 Fourth Ave.," said Jacobs, 37, president of the publishing firm.

"His book, 'The Secret of My Million-Dollar Memory,' is in manuscript form, undergoing final editing, and will be published by the firm soon.

"We've sold the distribution rights to the American News Co. for $500,000, which is one of the largest pre-publication transactions of its kind yet."

In addition, said Jacobs, he and Nadler are negotiating a contract which will put the quiz whiz on the air this summer as a baseball announcer, with built-in statistics.

"We can't say yet what home team will be involved," said Jacobs, "but Teddy will quote stuff every time a man comes to bat and, of course, he won't have to look it up in a book."

Both Nadler and Jacobs had hoped to keep their business deal under cover until Nadler completed his current contest with Mrs. Thomas.

"You can understand the tremendous loyalty he has for the 'Challenge' show and everybody connected with it for all they've done for him," Jacobs said.

Since starting out on the show last fall, Nadler has moved his wife and three sons out of their crowded St. Louis railroad flat into a new $15,000 suburban home, as well as purchased a new set of store teeth and new clothes.

As recently as February, however, he complained that his fantastic memory hadn't reaped a single job offer which would warrant leaving St. Louis.

"I'm a laborer," he said, "that's all. I work like a dog."

But as his winnings piled up week after week, the job offers began to come in. He's had several worthy ones from insurance companies, stock brokerages and other firms.

The most unusual, he said, was from Mike Todd, producer of "Around the World in 80 Days," who wants him to do reference work on his next film, "Don Quixote."

Nadler's book will tell the story of how he began stocking up his warehouse memory in the library of an orphanage where he was placed as a boy with his brothers and sisters.

"It's an association memory," said Jacobs. "It's a question of retention. His retention is close to 100 per cent."

Nadler, returning to his hotel room last Sunday after his TV appearance, modestly shrugged off his new career as an author.

"I don't know why anybody would want to read a book about me," he said.

Steve Carlin, executive producer of "Challenge," which bills Nadler as its "champion on everything," said a return match is in the works for him with Dr. Richard Gore, music professor at Wooster College in Ohio, the only man yet to better him.

Dr. Gore walked off with $8,000 a few weeks ago when Nadler committed a "slip of the tongue" in identifying the key of Beethoven's Fourth Symphony as "B-flat minor."

Dr. Gore said he asked for the rematch because he felt the previous contest hadn't been a proper test.

"Nadler knew as well as I did that no symphony was ever written in B-flat minor," said Gore. "I thought we ought to start from scratch and do it over."

Nadler, who has grown accustomed to his place in the isolation booth, is more than willing, of course.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Providence In Miami

By BERYL SEGAL

Max Richter has a street named after him in Providence. Richter Street runs between Chalkstone Avenue and Smith Street, in the North End of the city. In Miami he took us for a ride on an avenue named after another Landsman. In that fabulous city there is a Benjamin Kane Concourse, and it was thrilling to come upon a name so familiar in a distant place far from home.

Because we were total strangers to Miami, and Mr. Richter knows every street and alley, he took us on a guided tour in his car. The tour was well laid out. We began at the beginning. The beginning of Miami Beach as it was, and where it was twenty years ago. And this is not so simple. Miami Beach grows by leaps and bounds, and it also grows overnight.

And so we began at the Dog Tracks. There at the high fence is the border of Miami Beach. The guard at the entrance thought that we were early customers for the races and told us that we would have a long wait. We did not want to disappoint him and said that we were sincerely sorry, and we turned around in the spacious grounds to start our tour of the Beach hotel belt.

And a real belt it is! A narrow strip of land, not more than two streets wide, studded with hotels. It is said that Miami has three thousand hotels, motels, and other living accommodations for guests. This long narrow strip of land is bounded by the sea on one side and by a river on the other side. It can grow only in length, by stretching. And it does stretch along an avenue, Collins Avenue, that runs on for miles and miles.

And as we drive along the Hotel Avenue, we are told bits of anecdotes about each of them. This hotel was once The Hotel, and is now a third rate place. You look at the building and it seems big enough and impressive enough to be a show-place in any other city. In any other city, but not here. Within one year a new hotel springs up, and the loyalty of the patrons is immediately transferred to the newcomer. It is almost an obsession with the Miami Beach patrons to flock to the newest and the latest. Why, there is talk now that the days of the fabulous Fountainbleau are numbered! The Eden Rock is the latest rave. The Americana is the fashionable hostelry. And the Fountainbleau is only two seasons old!

We stop at a traffic light and are told to look at a hotel on the right. This hotel was once restricted. Restricted to what? You know. To Jews, of course. It is now a "Strictly Kosher" hotel.

We come to a place that was the end of Miami Beach only ten years ago. Up to here land was available. From now on the approach to the golden shores of the sea was barred by the high stone walls of private estates. The walls were high, as if the inhabitants inside would rather not know of the goings-on on the other side. But slowly the walls were crumbling. The prices offered for every inch of land were irresistible. And one by one the playground of a few became happy teeming resorts for thousands.

And the end is not in sight! As the hotel belt reaches out along Collins Avenue, the private mansions break up camp at fabulous prices, of course, and new hotels, each more dazzling than the one next door, spring up within a year.

The guided tour came to an end in Providence Court. There, in a palm-fringed quadrangle, Rose and Max Richter have their cozy, compact, but comfortably appointed apartment. Next to them live Mr. and Mrs. Israel Resnick, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pansy of Pawtucket. The three neighbors came in for a cup of tea and the most delicious Homan-tashen.

We were told of a half dozen other Providence families living in the same neighborhood. These are the semi-permanent settlers, those who have come year after year and who are entitled to give their addresses in the society pages as hailing from Providence and Miami. The "green" Rhode Islanders, like ourselves, who pay the hotels for every breath of air, are too numerous to mention.

Bessie Shatkin lives in a beautiful home in Coral Gables, in the shadow of Miami University. This university, like everything else in Miami, is bursting at the seams. It grows and grows and nobody knows where it will stop. Only a few years ago it was an unknown school. Mrs. Shatkin bubbles with enthusiasm when she speaks of Miami. Always socially minded, she took us to show off the public beaches, and playgrounds, and picnic spaces put up by the city and state for the use of the worker and the wage earner who cannot afford to pay every time he parks his car or goes swimming.

And there, at Coral Gables, you hear the same story. Only a year ago this was primeval jungle—now look at the roads, see the homes, watch the swamps being filled in. Take a good look. Next year, if you do come back, you will not find this patch of Mangrove wilderness. It will be a new suburb or shopping center!

What is now the Benjamin Kane Concourse, a wide busy thoroughfare in North Miami, was once a Mangrove wilderness. A dense growth of tropical trees, a crisscross of roots and branches which in turn became roots for new trees, penetrable only by crocodiles and inhabited by tropical birds and insects. These Mangrove forests are mowed down by giant bulldozers and left where they fall. The area is filled with sand and soil and new neighborhoods spring up on top of the reclaimed wilderness. This is the story of Miami Beach and this is the story of the Kane development.

Peretz and Becky Fine look with amusement at the whole affair. They have lived in Miami a good many years now, and may be considered natives. But like the houses here, built without cellars and lacking solid foundations, so are the inhabitants here not deeply rooted, no matter how long they have been living in Miami. So philosophise the Fines. People still talk of "back home" in New York, New Jersey, or Rhode Island. The Fines, by the way, still subscribe to the Herald for "home" news, and belong to Providence organizations.

And as if to confirm the strong ties Miamians have with back "home", let me tell this incident. As the car drove up to the hotel to pick us up for the ride over Miami the doorman ran up to open the door for us in his most formal manner. Then he noticed the Rhode Island license plate and his face lit up in a smile.

"Pawtucket?" he asked.

"What do you know about Pawtucket," we were surprised.

"I am from Olneyville." And the young man lost his doorman's stiffness and we were very "heimish" all through our stay at the hotel, as if we were long lost relatives.

Israel Extracts Needed Uranium

TEL AVIV—Israel is extracting a "fair amount" of uranium needed for atomic research in this country from her own phosphates, Mordecai Ben Tov, Minister for Development, revealed here at the 12-day session in Jerusalem of the 16-member technical advisory board of the Ministry.

Since Israel's uranium is extracted as a by-product of phosphate production, the process is economical, he declared.

Youth to Attend NEFTY Convention

More than 400 teen agers from Montreal and New England will attend the eighth annual convention of the New England Federation of Temple Youth which will will be held on April 5, 6 and 7 at Temple Beth El.

Rabbi Samuel Cook, national director of the Federation, will give the sermon at Sabbath services. Cantor Harry Sebran, youth director of Congregation Mishkan Tefilah of New Haven, will be the soloist.

Miss Eleanor Schwartz, associate director of the Federation, will lead the special NEFTY program from 1 to 4 P.M. on Saturday, and there will be a dinner-dance in the evening at 6:45 o'clock.

Mrs. Archibald Silverman will speak at Sunday brunch at 11 A.M. and there will be a presentation by the Chorale Society of Temple Beth El.

Co-chairmen for the convention are Abbye Zitserman and William Berman.

Suppose you had servants instead of electricity...
If you did, it would cost you about $50,000 more each year!
That's because in the average American home electricity does jobs equal to the manual labor of more than 30 servants working a 40-hour week. Multiply that by 75 cents or $1.00 an hour, and the figures skyrocket.
Next time you look at your electric bill, think of it as your payroll for 30 servants. Mighty low wages—don't you agree?

Red Cross Receives Records of Victims

LONDON—Gaps in the records of the International Red Cross' tracing service on the fate of more than 1,500,000 Jewish victims of Nazi persecution will be partly closed because of information loaned by the World Jewish Congress.

K. Baum, director of the World Jewish Congress European Tracing Office, said such clarification was of vital importance both to prospective claimants under the compensation laws of the West German Republic and to thousands of survivors applying to the ITS. Such applications are made for information about relatives.

Soviet Ambassador To Return to Post

TEL AVIV — A Soviet embassy source this week confirmed reports that Soviet Ambassador A. N. Abramov would return to his post in the near future.

Abramov was recalled to Moscow last November as "a warning to Israel in connection with military operations against Egypt."

The Communist newspaper Kol Haam said Abramov was coming back now that Israeli forces had evacuated Egyptian territory.

According to the Soviet embassy source here, Abramov is expected to be here within a week.

Press reports here said talks about resumption of Soviet oil supplies to Israel were under way. Oil shipments under contract were suspended shortly after the start of the Israeli Sinai operations.

The decision to send Abramov back was believed to be a countermove to the Eisenhower Doctrine and a hint to Arab rulers that Soviet support might have its limits.

Cantor To Speak On Radio Program

Eddie Cantor, entertainer and philanthropist, will be the guest speaker on the Eternal Light radio program on Sunday, which is being presented in observance of World Jewish Child's Day.

The play, "Children of Liberty," which relates the story of Youth Aliyah, will be heard from 12:30 to 1 P.M. on station WJAR.

Present 'Hechsher' To Manischewitz

In a traditional ceremony which is observed prior to Passover, Rabbi Eliezer Silver presented the "Hechsher", certificate of Kashruth, to Bernard Manischewitz, president of B. Manischewitz Company.

This certificate attests to the fact that all matzo bakeries, the winery and all food processing plants of the company are operated in strict conformity with the requirements of kashruth.

Passover Greetings will be printed in next week's Herald. Why not yours! Call UN 1-3709.

Engaged — Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Bromberg of Burlington Street announce the engagement of their daughter, Iris R., to Ensign Ronald F. Kingsbury, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kingsbury of Milton, Mass.

Miss Bromberg, a graduate of Hope High, will be graduated from the College of General Education at Boston University in June. Ensign Kingsbury is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts, class of 1956, where he was a member of Alpha Epsilon Pi. He received his commission from Officer Candidate School and is currently serving in the U. S. Navy, stationed at Newport. A September wedding is planned.

Baseball Program To Start April 28

Opening date for the Jewish Community Center's community-wide spring baseball program has been set for Sunday afternoon, April 28, it was announced today by Leo Borenstein, chairman of the JCC Health and Physical Education Committee.

Registrations are still being accepted for seven league programs ranging from 8 and 9 year old boys through Young Adults and Adult Men. It is expected that enrollment in all leagues will be closed by April 15.

Hadassah To Hear Guest Speaker

Mrs. J. Leonard Weiss of Irvington, N. J. will speak on "Hadassah's Part in the Current Crisis in the Middle East," at the meeting of the Evening Group of Hadassah. The meeting will be held at the American Association of University Women's Club on Tuesday at 8:15 P.M.

Mrs. Weiss is National Youth Activities chairman and a member of the National Board of Hadassah.

Beth David Club To Hold Meeting

The Temple Beth David Men's Club will hold its next meeting Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Temple vestry instead of Sunday morning.

The carnival committee headed by Mr. Jesse Edenbaum will submit a progress report to the body. The Men's Club Carnival will be held at the Temple May 8, 9, 11 and 12.

The Herald Press offers the finest in all types of printing.

FATHERS TO MEET

Mr. Herman Rosenberg, chairman of the South Side Health and Physical Educational committee, announces that there will be a meeting of the fathers of boys who are now participating in the South Side Basketball League program, this Sunday morning, at 10:30 o'clock at the South Side Branch building.

The Herald's news deadline is Tuesday noon. We cannot guarantee to insert copy received later.

Top General Wants to Be A Farmer!

TEL AVIV—Gen. Moshe Dayan, the one-eyed commander-in-chief of Israel's military forces, wants to go back to the farm when he retires from his army command.

This unwarlike ambition of one of the world's top desert tacticians has led friends of Gen. Dayan to dub him "Israel's Cincinnatus" after the legendary Roman dictator who resumed his soil tilling after licking all enemies in sight.

In 1948, Moshe Dayan was living and working on one of Israel's collective farms. A reservist, he was called up for participation in the Israeli-Arab fighting with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Wife Backs Idea

He rose in rank to general and was made commander-in-chief of the Jewish state's armed forces. Now, at 41, he has led the campaign against Egypt that conquered the Sinai peninsula.

Gen. Dayan's desire to get back to farming is shared and encouraged by his pretty brunette wife, Ruth, who is 39 and the mother of his two daughters and son.

Moshe Dayan's military career began in the 1930s when the young schoolteacher joined the so-called night commandos, a British-sponsored force of Jewish irregulars organized by Capt. Charles Wingate of Britain's Intelligence Service.

Gen. Moshe Dayan

Principal activities of this group were guerrilla warfare against Arab enemies and the defense of Jewish agricultural settlements against raiders.

Young Dayan's valor and resourcefulness made such an impression on Capt. Wingate that he made the young man second in command.

In 1938, the British government recalled Capt. Wingate and adopted an anti-Jewish policy. Col. Dayan now took charge of the Jewish guerrilla forces, which the British soon outlawed. This caused the young commandant and his men to go underground.

Secret Trysts

At this time, Moshe fell in love with the girl he married. Ruth Dayan is the daughter of a prominent attorney of Jerusalem.

After the marriage, Ruth continued to live with her parents in the Arab-held part of the Holy City. To meet his bride, Moshe risked his life and liberty by sneaking past Arab sentries and British patrols and secret service men. Ten of these visits were successful. On the 11th try, the young commando leader was arrested by British police. Col. Dayan, by then father of two girls, was jailed in the age-old prison of Acre, where he spent three years.

After his liberation, Col. Dayan promptly resumed his activities as commandant of his people's clandestine army, and his fame began to spread far beyond the Holy Land. During World War II the British put their former prisoner at the head of the "Palmakh" a well-organized force of Jewish partisans backed by Britain and later also by the Free French.

This Jewish army fought the Nazis and the troops of Marshal Petain's pro-Nazi Vichy government in Syria.

During the campaign against Vichy's troops and their native auxiliaries, a sniper's bullet deprived the general of his left eye. He wears a black patch over the socket.

Desert Warfare Expert

Gen. Dayan is regarded as an expert on desert warfare, and he was the author of the world's fastest-working military mobilization machinery. Observers credit Israel's lightning occupation of the Sinai peninsula in large measure to his amazingly effective plan for blitz mobilization of the Jewish state's armed forces.

VISIT NAVAL HOSPITAL

The Roger Williams Chapter of the B'nai B'rith visited the Newport Naval Hospital on March 26. Mrs. Morris Ratush, chairman, was assisted by Mesdames Maurice Kramer, Louis Cohen, and Frank P. Queen. Prizes and refreshments were distributed.

The traditional way to make a Seder

1 CANDLES are lighted by the mother of the house to usher in the festival of Passover. The benediction which she pronounces over the candles gives a religious meaning to this simple act. An abundance of light symbolizes joy and festivity, and the soft candle-glow adds an aura of spirituality to the Seder table.

2 A CUP OF WINE is placed at each table setting. The sanctification of the Holiday is pronounced over the first cup. Three additional cups are drunk during the course of the Seder, making a total of four, to symbolize the four expressions of the Lord's promise to redeem the children of Israel and deliver them from bondage.

3 THE HAGGADAH (literally "the telling") contains the complete Seder ceremonies in their prescribed order (seder). The first part of the book, concerned mainly with the story of the Jews' deliverance from Egypt, is read before the meal. After dinner follows the second portion consisting of prayers of praise and thanks to the Almighty.

4 MATZOH represents the "bread of affliction" eaten by the Jews in Egypt, and also the bread that had to be baked during their hasty flight when there was no time for leavening. Three matzot are placed in the Seder tray. Half the middle matzoh, saved for the Afikomon (dessert), is playfully "stolen" by a child and ransomed for a prize.

5 THE Z'ROAH, a roasted shank bone, is placed on the Seder tray. It represents the ancient sacrifice of the Paschal lamb (Pesach) which had to be eaten roasted. Pesach, the Hebrew name for Passover, also refers to the Lord's passing over (posach) the Jewish homes during the plague visited upon the Egyptian firstborn.

6 THE BEITZAH, a roasted egg placed left of the Z'roah, symbolizes the required offering brought on all festivals in the Temple. The egg, while not itself sacrificed, is used in the Seder as it is the Jewish symbol of mourning (in this case for the loss of the Temple where the sacrifices were brought).

7 THE MAROR or "bitter herbs" (usually horseradish) is placed in the middle of the tray and symbolizes the Jews' bitter suffering under the Egyptian yoke. Directly below is the Chazereth, another piece of bitter herbs, commemorating the custom of eating Maror sandwiched between two pieces of Matzoh.

8 THE CHAROSET, placed beneath the Z'roah, is a mixture of chopped apple, nuts, cinnamon, and wine designed to look like the mortar used by the Jews in building the palaces and pyramids of Egypt during centuries of forced labor. Before the Maror is eaten, it is dipped into the Charoset.

9 THE KARPAS, a piece of parsley or lettuce placed to the left of the Charoset, symbolizes the meager diet of the Jews in Egyptian bondage. It is dipped into salt water in remembrance of the tears they shed in their misery. The Karpas also signifies Springtime, the season of Passover.

10 THE CUP OF ELIJAH, filled with wine, is kept on the table throughout the Seder in the hope that the Prophet Elijah may appear as a messenger of the Almighty and announce the coming of the Messiah. Thus, in the midst of their memories of the past, the Jews look forward to the day of universal peace, love, and brotherhood.

Temple To Conduct School Seder

The annual School Seder of Temple Emanuel will be held in the Temple vestry on Thursday, at 4:00 P.M. All the functions involved in the conduct of the Seder will be carried out by pupils from the various classes.

The preparation of the Seder, the setting of the tables, and the provision of the materials is being planned by a mothers' committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Jacob S. Temkin.

The Seder will be conducted by Dr. Aaron Klein and the faculty of the Religious School. Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen will explain the significance of the occasion to the School.

Beth El Officers To Hold Meeting

An evening of prayer, dining and business is planned for the officers and board of directors of the Brotherhood of Temple Beth El Tuesday.

The men will attend the 5:45 P.M. prayer service in the Temple chapel, then will have dinner in the meeting hall. A business meeting, at which Hyman S. Goodwin will preside, will conclude the evening.

Plans will be completed for a Brotherhood breakfast-meeting, April 14, and Albert I. Gordon, program chairman, will report to the board on arrangements.

BETH AM MEETING

Cantor Jacob Hohenemser presented several Israeli, Yiddish and English selections at the regular meeting of Temple Beth Am-Jewish Community Association which was held recently. Sheila Troob accompanied him on the piano.

The next meeting will be held at the Hoxsie Community Hall on April 8.

Men's Club Appoints Carnival Chairmen

Permanent chairmen for the forthcoming Carnival and Bazaar on April 30, May 1, 2 and 4, were appointed at a meeting of the Temple Beth Sholom Men's Club last Sunday morning. Ben Rabinowitz and Richard Sondler are co-chairmen of the raffle ticket committee, and Irving "Tex" Rabinowitz and Bert Kiefer are co-chairmen of the Carnival.

Temple Beth David Plans Model Seder

Mrs. Joseph Bram, holiday chairman, announced at the last meeting of the School Board of Temple Beth David, that a children's model Seder will be held in the Temple on Sunday morning, April 14, for the children of the Hebrew School, Pre-Hebrew, and all other children in the community. Mrs. Bram appointed the following committee: Mesdames Charles Kilberg, Jesse Edenbaum, Jordan Reuter and Albert Miller to assist her.

Rabbi Abraham I. Jacobson announced that a fund has been established for a Children's Library.

The meeting date of the Religious School board of Temple Beth David has been changed from the 3rd Monday of the month to the 2nd Monday.

Plans are being made by Mrs. Bram for the celebration of Lag B'Omer on May 19 which will include an all day outing and trip to Newport to visit the Touro Synagogue.

PRESENT MASQUERADE

The Temple Beth David Junior Congregation will present the "Mish-Mosh Masquerade" on Saturday from 8 to 11 P.M. Prizes will be awarded for the most original costume. There will be dancing and games.

Spring Fever?

I can't understand it!

Spring fever never did this to me before.

It's an incredible turn of events, made even more ridiculous because the realization of what is happening doesn't seem to give me any strength to fight back.

Try as I will to resist, I just feel like saying some kind words about the Red Sox!

Nobody else has said them, even though they deserve to be said; and since this column has felt free to criticize the Boston club on occasion after occasion, it is fitting that kind words emanate in this space, too.

A year ago I looked with scorn at those who insisted that the Sox had improved over the previous season. The best I could see then was a possible third place finish, if Chicago's White Sox folded up. The forecast was quite accurate. The Sox had not improved. They were a sorry club all season long.

Now the situation is reversed, and I look with scorn at those who would consign the Sox to the American League's scrap heap. Boston is not at all bad enough to be regarded a second division club. I do not concede, either, that the Tigers will move past the Red Hose.

Admitting that the stupid front office (ah, the patient is beginning to feel better!) has done nothing to strengthen the team, there is still certain evidence which, when analyzed and sifted thoroughly, seems to indicate a better season for the Bosox.

First is the pitching. Improvement should be general all along the line, with the exception of Parnell and Nixon. Mel cannot be depended on because of his trouble-some arm. Will the Yankee Killer because there are insufficient Yankee teams in the league, and he just can't be bothered to get fired up for any minor, insignificant reason such as winning a pennant.

But the rest of the staff is good and deep, or, to get the proper meaning into it, deep and good. Brewer and Sullivan should win 20 each, and they should both break through the Yankee jinx this season. Sisler, Susce, Delock — all three should be OK; and I am basing much of my optimism on Porterfield.

That's right! Porterfield — the colossal disappointment of 1956; Porterfield — probably the biggest disappointment in big league baseball since he was brought up prematurely in 1948. I don't say Bob will win 20 games, but then again, if he starts off on the right foot, I don't say that he won't either.

Let's face it . . . Bob doesn't have to improve very much to better his record of last season; and it wouldn't take too much improvement to help the Sox cement a spot in the first division and even start moving up toward second place. And Porterfield still has the stuff to be a winner.

Bob's entire career to date has been a disappointment. He couldn't win with the Yankees. His teammates during those years with New York said that he would be a big winner if only he learned to use his head out on the mound. They insisted he was wasting his wonderful arm and superb stuff with rather dumb thinking.

Even the coaching of Jim Turner failed to help him. The pitcher refused to try to master the variety of Turner-taught curves that made stars out of Vic Raschi and Allie Reynolds, who were every bit as fast as he. Porterfield only insisted on fogging in his fast ball, a la Dizzy Dean. Invariably, in the important games he pitched for New York, he was licked by home runs — off the fast ball.

With Washington, after being salvaged from the minor leagues, Porterfield caught fire and became a big winner — with the use of the curve which he disdained to throw as a Yankee. But when Charley Dressen came to the Senators and offered a few suggestions meant to help him, Bob blew up and lost his effectiveness. He wasn't letting any former infielder show him how to pitch.

The former infielder — Dressen—is justly credited with contributing greatly to the success of many big league star hurlers (Johnny Podres is the latest).

Injuries, of course, have plagued the right hander throughout his career and have contributed to his troubles. They must not be overlooked in this saga.

Well, maybe now, with the realization that the mere donning of a Red Sox uniform failed to make him a winner, and with the spectre of being returned to the minor leagues, as were Tommy Hurd and Leo Kiely, staring him in the face, Bob Porterfield will wake up and use his God-given talents to their fullest. If that should happen, he could easily be the toast of Red Sox fandom, and the ace of the staff.

I am counting, somehow, on an improved Porterfield to spark the pitching renaissance.

Another major improvement in Boston fortunes is predicted on the return to shortstop of Billy Klaus. Manager Mike Higgins doesn't like Billy at short, and maybe Mike is right. But facts are facts, and in 1955 Klaus sparked the entire team to within a game and a half of first place as late as August, and therefore he must be considered a good enough shortstop to give the club a needed shot in the arm.

Frankie Malzone, who was not ready last year, might very well be the crackerjack third baseman he was deemed capable of being last spring. Jackie Jensen, too, should be better. He started last season with a mental block because of the booing he got at Fenway. But Jackie proved himself, had a good year, and should now be a confident star. I also look for Ted Williams to hold his own in 1957, which will be good enough.

Now, if only the Bosox had a real, bona fide, honest-to-goodness, crackerjack second baseman! Man, that might be a ball club! Many, many fans have agreed with me in recent months that it would be wonderful to see Billy Goodman reinstalled at first base, where he belongs, and where he can do a job. But . . . you can't have everything.

Gee, this column got out of hand. I had intended to speak kindly of Tom Yawkey and Joe Cronin. Maybe next week.

Vandals Damage Synagogues

NEW YORK — Two bricks crashed through the skylight of a synagogue at 622 E. Fifth St. last week, narrowly missing 20 elderly men gathered for Shochris, morning prayer.

Members of the Kolboshower Teitelbaum Congregation said several pews were damaged and debris was scattered through the front part of the synagogue. The bricks apparently had been thrown from the roof of a six-story tenement at 626 E. Fifth St., two doors away.

The vandal attack was one more in a long series of similar desecrations. Three skylights in the roof of the three-story building show many patches. Five of them cover holes made last week when five bricks were thrown during Mincha, evening prayer service.

Kolboshower Teitelbaum Congregation is not the only victim of vandalism in the neighborhood. Four doors away, the building at 632 E. Fifth St. houses the Khai Chareidim Congregation and the United Talmudical Academy Torah Veyirate.

Two years ago, vandals broke into the synagogue and started a fire which destroyed seven valuable Torahs.

The Herald's news deadline is Tuesday noon.
