Charity That Availed Not

Now that the sale of the New York World is so much the subject of the moment, it may not be amiss to tell one of the most amusing Pulitzer anecdotes that have come to my ken.

Pulitzer, you remember, was inordinately sensitive to noise. His rooms were sound-proof as the science of his day could fashion, and much of his reason for spending so much of his time aboard his yacht was due to the desire to get all the quietness possible.

Well, this story is entirely authentic. Pulitzer one day at his New York home was being driven to desperation by an Italian hand organ player, who was giving a street concert in front of J. P.'s window.

Pulitzer sent out his secretary, bearing a gift of two dollars, but only on the condition that the Italian immediately would hie himself off with his music. The organ player took the money and left.

Thirty minutes later, a half dozen players lined up in front of Pulitzer's abode.

Where Did You Buy Those Apples Mr. Swope?

Touching upon the recent discussion of the dramatic things, people fail to say in those signal moments, which seem to lend themselves to drama, F. P. A., Jewish columnist of the recently demised World offers food for thought.

Heywood Brown tells about it. He was at the home of Herbert Bayard Swope, former executive editor of the World. There, too, were a number of other prominent World staff writers. Every minute, they were expecting a flash to announce the final sale of the World, which meant the loss to many of them of positions which they had held for ten and fifteen years.

Finally, the flash came; F. P. A. looked for the red apples glistening in the bowl on the table. "Mr. Swope," he said, "where do you buy your apples?"

And That's Usually the Way

And I think that is not uncharacteristic of the things said at the critical moments of life. When the heart is overfilled, we generally say something quite apart from the thing which at the time oppresses the mind. We are afraid to leg to on that subject.

Socrates was a great thinker—and his last sentence, I believe, as recorded by Plato, was something like this: "Crito, I owe a cock to Asclepius," or somebody or other, I forget whom.

The Jews Who Lose

The sale of the World throws many prominent Jewish newspapermen out of work; Harry Salpeter, literary reviewer; Samuel Chotzinoff, musical critic; Michelson, Sunday editor, among others. One or two who have contracts, which have not yet expired, may, however, profit by the termination, financially.

A large number of the World men are now planning to take opportunity of their enforced leisure by turning to less transitory writing such as magazine and book work.

What, with the bad situation as regards newspaper employment long existent, accentuated by the World debacle, I prophesy soon a deluge of books.

How Hellman Happened

But touching upon the statement made in the last item, that some of the men who have contracts will profit financially, there is an interesting story of Sam Hellman, the Saturday

POLAND ASKED TO ADJUST ATTITUDE TO EQUALIZE JEWS

Warburg Makes Request to Provide Opportunities for Jews as for Others

New York, Mar. 13—(JTA)—The present relationship between the Jews of Poland and the Polish government, the need to change that relationship and the mutual desire for a better understanding between all elements involved were thoroughly gone into at a gathering of representative men in the local Polish community and by a number of Jews affiliated with the American Jewish Congress, the Federation of Polish Jews in America and other organizations.

This discussion developed at the farewell evening arranged on the eve of Dr. Titus Zbyszewski's departure for Chicago, where he has just taken up residence as the Polish Consul.

Felix M. Warburg, noted philanthropist and outstanding Jewish leader, had been one of those invited to the gathering but, being unable to attend, wrote, expressing his regrets and at the same time touching on the Polish Jewish situation.

Stressing the fact that the recent industrial and economic policies of the Polish government have affected the Jewish community in Poland, Mr. Warburg has appealed to the Polish government to adjust its attitude in order that Jews may have equal opportunities with other sections of the Polish population.

PRESIDENT HOOVER F A V O R S NATHAN STRAUS MEMORIAL

Will be Erected Either in New York City or Washington; Committee to Decide

New York, Mar. 13—(JTA)—President Hoover is in favor of the project to erect a memorial to the late Nathan Straus, and will probably accept the honorary chairmanship of a committee which has been named for this purpose on Monday by the Broadway Association. In reply to a letter from August Janssen, one of the directors of the association, the President wrote from the White House on March 3rd, as follows:

"I always had the highest admiration for the late Nathan Straus and when plans for a suitable memorial to his memory reach the stage where all are agreed as to what it shall be, I shall be glad to help further that project."

The committee will decide what form the memorial shall take and whether it shall be erected in New York or in Washington. The manner of raising the necessary funds and the question as to whether the campaign shall be national or include other countries to which Mr. Straus' benefactions extended, will also be taken up by the committee.

Dr. John A. Harris, chairman of the board of the Broadway Association, is chairman of the Memorial Committee. Other members of the committee are: Lee J. Eastman, President of the Packard Motor Car Co.; Frederick T. Wood, President of the Fifth Avenue Coach Co.; S. E. Lester, of the New York Telephone Co.; Clarence L. Law, of the New York Edison Co.; James F. Nathan, of the Western Union, and Mr. Janssen.

USSISHKIN THANKS U. S. JEWRY FOR AIDING LAND DRIVE

Praises Jews for Realizing Land Redemption Problems in Spite of Own Difficulties

Paris, Mar. 13—(JTA)—A message of thanks to American Jewry for its assistance in helping to launch the land redemption campaign of the Jewish National Fund, was issued recently by Menachem Ussishkin, World President of the Jewish National Fund, through the Jewish Telegraphic Agency. Mr. Ussishkin arrived here on March 5 on his way back to Palestine after a three-month stay in the United States.

Mr. Ussishkin expressed his appreciation to American Jewry for realizing, in spite of their own present difficulties, the gravity of the land question in Palestine. He voiced the hope that they would continue the enthusiastic spirit with which they started the work of land redemption.

CHAIN COMPANIES MENACE JEWISH RESTAURANT IN N.Y.

Restaurant Owners Hold Mass Meeting at Mecca Temple; Explain Difficulties

New York, Mar. 13—(JTA)—Hundreds of Jewish restaurants in New York City are in danger of being forced to suspend business, according to statements made recently by speakers at a mass meeting of Jewish restaurant owners, held in Mecca Temple. The chain restaurants, most of whom are self-service places serving non-Kosher food, have of late years invaded the Jewish neighborhoods of New York and are making existence for the individual Kosher service restaurants extremely difficult, it was said.

Speakers pointed out that food and labor cost the Kosher restaurants much more than it does the chain places. Ways and means of saving the Kosher restaurants of New York from ruin were discussed at the Mecca Temple meeting.

HEBREW COURSE MAY BE GIVEN IN DETROIT SCHOOL

A. Louis Gordon, President of Synagogue, Makes Suggestion to Board of Education

Detroit, Mar. 13—(JTA)—A course in the Hebrew language may be given next year in the Central High School of this city, as a result of a correspondence between A. Louis Gordon, President of the Congregation Shaarey-Zedek, and Frank A. Gorman, members of the Detroit Board of Education. In his letter to Mr. Gordon, Mr. Gorman states that he will bring the matter up at the next meeting of the board and that he feels confident that it will meet with the approval of the majority of the board members.

"In line with your suggestions of introducing a course in Hebrew in our public schools," writes Mr. Gorman, "I am happy to assure you that I would be wholeheartedly in favor of such a course so long as there is a demand on the part of the public for it. Some of the world's greatest works of literature have their foundation in the Hebrew language, and it is only right that our younger generation should have an opportunity of studying this language if they so desire."

PROSECUTOR APPEALS AGAINST RELEASE OF ANTI-SEMITES

Bucharest, Mar. 13—(JTA)—An appeal against the release of Zelea Codreanu, Nicolai Totu and a score of their anti-Semitic followers, who were acquitted recently of a charge of fostering anti-Semitism and anarchy, was lodged by Procop Dumitrescu, public prosecutor. It is expected that the anti-Semitic leaders will receive a new trial some time this month.

HOTEL BARS JEWISH MEMBERS OF MAYOR THOMPSON'S PARTY

Mt. Clemens Hotel Allows "Gentile Guests Only;" Mayor Changes Hotels

Mt. Clemens, Mich., Mar. 13—(JTA)—Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago came to Mt. Clemens a few days ago for his health and in search of a cure for his rheumatism at this world-famed bath city. Instead he has received a dose of bigotry.

For five days Mayor Thompson stayed at the Colonial Hotel, and then he moved to the Park Hotel, which is Jewish-owned. Dr. Perssons at the Colonial Hotel had told the famous Chicago Mayor that he personally was welcome, but that certain members of his party were not because the rule of the hotel was to allow "Gentile guests only."

At the suggestion of Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit, Mayor Thompson went to the Park Hotel. Dr. Perssons declared that Mayor Thompson is welcome at his hotel at all times, but that he would not break the hotel's policy for any of the Mayor's companions.

Dr. Perssons would make no further statement except to issue the following written explanation: "Mayor Thompson was a guest at the Colonial for five days, but the policy of the Colonial could not permit the extension of its courtesies to his guests."

SAMUEL GOTTLIEB, OLDEST JEW IN MAINE, PASSES AT 104

Bangor, Mar. 13—(JTA)—Samuel Gottlieb, the oldest Jewish resident of this city, and probably of the entire state, is dead here at the age of 104. He is survived by three sons and two daughters, the oldest being 70; thirty grandchildren and thirty great-grandchildren.

Jewish Inhibitions and Intermarriage

An Interview With Fannie Hurst
By MEYER LEVIN

In Fannie Hurst's latest novel, "Back Street," the chief character, who is a Jew, wants to marry Ray Schmidt, a girl who is not a Jewess. He does not marry her. She remains in the "back street" of his life. Was it the "Jewish consciousness" that prevented this marriage, and was it well that the marriage did not take place? Meyer Levin, whose latest novel, "Yehuda," presents another aspect of Jewish consciousness, discussed this problem with Miss Hurst for the Jewish Telegraphic Agency—Editor's Note.

The pull-cord rang a bell that muffled behind the door, sounded like the evening bell of a tiny village church beyond a hill.

In answer there came a sound that might have been the raspy yip of a little dog, or the yowp of a parrot.

The studio room, entered, recalled the first sound, the church bell sound. Fannie Hurst gave the visitor a moment to settle down, waited for the slower rhythms of her ecclesiastic room to lap over the pounding of the New York street, the subway or the L. The visitor sat alone for that moment, and looked at the room, which was to speak as tellingly for cosmopolitanism as Miss Hurst's own eloquent words.

Fannie Hurst said, "Let's not discuss 'Back Street' as a book about the Jewish problem. Can't characters just be people? I know. We think we are people of the world, cosmopolitan. And then when we have gone just so far toward the breaking down of barracks, something happens, we are jerked back, and we realize that people still think in groups. The characters in Back Street were conceived as people."

"Yes, but the hero—may one say the hero, or is it the central male character?"

"The central male character," she said a bit grimly.

"Is a Jew. And your emphasis is that his being a Jew is not all of the story, his being a Jew is only one of the forces that determine his behavior. Whereas in a novel of the Jewish problem, the whole thing centers on the character's being a Jew."

"Exactly. You see, the man in this story liked a girl named Ray Schmidt. Ordinarily, he would have married her. The theme of the story demanded that there be some deciding force, some inhibition, that would keep him from marrying her, while he still liked her, perhaps loved her, while all his life, she remained in the back streets of his life. The man being a Jew, that circumstance created the inhibition. He couldn't quite break the barrier and marry her. You know what the Jewish family is like, or was like. It is a house, a fort; the outsider cannot possibly gain entrance. She must remain outside all her life. When he comes out, he can meet her. When he goes back into that enclosure, she is alone. She must wait for him to come out again."

"Of course, she can't even try to get in."

"No. And Ray Schmidt realizes that very early in their relationship. She doesn't try. She accepts. Later, the man marries another woman, one of his own kind. But Ray is still there, in the back streets of his life, and he keeps coming to her."

"It is of course in the back streets of the man's mind that there is situated the obscure dynamo that charges that him with the isolating current. He is a man of the world, the business world, cosmopolitan in every way, friends among every race, but—when it comes to marrying."

"Today," Fannie Hurst said, "it might be different with the man. The man I wrote of was of the marrying age in the 1890's. Each generation brings another crack in the walls of the fort. Today he might go so far as to marry the girl. I do not know what would happen afterward. Perhaps the marriage would not be a success. Perhaps it would. Perhaps in this generation it would not be a success, but in the next generation, in the third, the fourth, it would be a success. Each generation is a fainter carbon copy of the preceding. The characters wear off, eventually they disappear."

"But the fiber of the paper remains the same, doesn't it?" Both writers felt they were pursuing a faulty image. There would soon be an illusion to the acid that provokes a palimpsest, uncovering a previous writing on the ancient scroll. So both writers took refuge in people. One knew of a Jew who had married a Gentile girl. Two years after the marriage, things hadn't gone so well. The Jew, who had never before been interested in Jewish affairs, began to frequent Zionist meetings. His wife tried to follow his interest. But somehow he wanted to keep her away from his Zionism, as if she couldn't belong to it.

"Something like the case in Ludwig Lewisohn's 'Island Within,' wasn't that?"

But Miss Hurst said quickly, her elbow flinging outward and her shoulders lifting, "I don't agree with Lewisohn that the problem is so acute, that it is impossible of adjustment." Nor did she share Mr. Lewisohn's excited fear that the heart of Judaism might be lost, nor would she share his active quest in search of the elements that made that Jewishness, for the culture, and the law. The heart of Judaism would remain, she felt, forever.

"It's something in us. It's something biological. It's in our bones." Her mouth strained with the difficulty of finding expression for just what "it" was.

Fannie Hurst, cosmopolitan in belief, declaring herself for the breaking down of fences, for the growth of a world of people, instead of a world of Lutherans, Anglicans, Catholics, Agnostics, Jews, that very cosmopolitan young woman denied that the Jew would melt in among all the other peoples; "at least not in our time, or in generations to come."

But had she not said the man in her story, born forty years later, might have married the Gentile girl?

"The outer forms of his Jewishness may be destroyed, the barrier of the family may be broken by the shifting arrangement of modern social forces. But something of him that is Jewish will remain Jewish."

This was what Mr. Lewisohn himself had affirmed.

One said, "Is it not the wisest way for the Jew to understand and accept what he is, and to realize himself as a Jew; when he has fully accepted himself as a Jew, his relations with other peoples may be freer?"

She said, "Yes, that is a wisdom one learns. When I was a girl I could not understand my father's insistence on some such things. I thought he was narrow on that point; I thought I was of the new generation that belonged to the whole world, and that we new people would be utterly free and open in our ways and our thoughts, without bonds of creed or prejudice. Today, I realize my father had a good deal of wisdom. I'll tell you. I have a very good friend, a man much older than myself, a man whose understanding is deep, and whose mind is great. We have been friends for years—his wife, all his family, myself. He had guided my thoughts a great deal. Yet only recently something happened, a word—snap. That brought me back. That brought me back to the realization that all the time there existed those separate regions in us—"

"—the back streets of the mind?"

A smile. "There they were. One had to realize they existed. And accept them, and go on."

"Perhaps a community utterly Jewish would at last overcome that self-consciousness that creates a Jewish separateness in society. I mean, the young Jews of Palestine, for instance, have no Jewish problem. They are at home. They are where they belong."

"Do they really feel that they belong?" Was there, in her voice, the slightest and most distant note of longing?

"Yes, they belong."

"That is good."

But would that process of creating a "belonging" Jew in Palestine make the Jew, generally, a man who could readily penetrate into other social groups? Would his realization that his own Jewish group was firmly established, was at home somewhere, make him feel less on the defensive, make him act less with a consciousness of the necessity of preserving his clan, of keeping high the fences? Or was all that beside the point. Was the Jewish fence simply one of many fences.

She said, "Groups today are at their strongest. The Catholic Church is very strong. But don't you believe it is at the height of its strength, and that it will never be so great again?" Her hand was tightly closed. She looked at the tall tapers by the piano.

"You think the strength of all creeds will diminish?"

"They must!" affirmed the cosmopolitan Miss Hurst.

"Well, now that we've settled the Jewish problem . . ."

"You have beautiful things in this room. I see that you favor ecclesiastic art."

"Yes, they are things that I picked up here and there in my travels. Some of them I brought back from Russia . . . I feel the room is a refuge, the room is old and quiet, in the midst of a new city."

The circle of gold glowed dark around the head of the Byzantine madonna. The medieval cathedral room, asserting itself in the midst of a new city.

"Yes, that is true . . ."

New Home for Jewish Boys at R. I. State College

After a number of years of planning and seemingly futile hopes, the expectations of the Rho Chapter of the Alpha Epsilon Pi Fraternity have finally crystallized and taken on the shape of something real and definite in less than a month, actual construction of its new home will begin. It will be without doubt the finest looking building on the Rhode Island State College campus.

Plans and other details have already been drawn by Oresto Di Saia, the architect in charge of the work. The house will be set on a lot, one hundred by two hundred feet, and is located about two hundred yards from the quadrangle on which are the college buildings.

The exterior of the house is to be covered with a light brown rough hewn brick, which will extend upward to cover the first two stories. The third will be a paneled stucco affair.

The basement will house the chapter room, dining hall and kitchen, and an oil heating system. The first or ground floor will have accommodations for a house mother, or matron, a spacious library, a trophy room, an office for fraternity officers, and a large lounge room, equipped with a brick fireplace. These rooms will be furnished completely with new leather upholstered club divans and chairs. With the grand piano, radio, orthophonic victrola and other furnishings, it is expected that an exceedingly comfortable atmosphere will be produced. The floors of the large lounge room will be so constructed that the dancing at the occasional house dances will be effected with comparative ease.

The second floor will be entirely used for study purposes. There will be ten study rooms on this floor, with maximum capacity in each for four brothers. The desks in each room will be built-in, all uniform in appearance. On this floor, also, will be located a large shower room and lavatories.

The third floor will be the dormitory. All the sleeping quarters are on this floor. The maximum capacity for this floor is also four to each room, making a total of forty members who may be comfortably accommodated.

The final approval by the Board of Directors of the College to the fraternity's clamorings, bring to an end at least five years of effort by the brothers to attain this desired project. The committee in charge of the building program is Hyman M. Cokin, chairman, assisted by Harry Kelfer, Harry Prebluda, Morton Grossman and Samuel Stein.

Alpha Epsilon Pi Fraternity was founded as a local Beta Nu Epsilon, in 1921. It became national in April of 1928. A charter member of the group was Dr. Edwards, late President of the college, who helped the chapter a great deal in regard to the housing problem. There is a membership at present of thirty-five, of which twenty-five live in a house leased from the college. Most of these are from Providence while a large number comes from Boston.

The group is one of the most active on the campus in extra curricular activities and has been the highest ranking in scholarship for the past five years. It has a number of trophies which it has won in interfraternity competition, athletics and otherwise.

Its copartner in all its functions is the Providence Alumni Club, which meets regularly in Providence. Its aid to the chapter has been invaluable. At the head is Julius Zucker, who is also the alumni advisor to the active group.

The active members of the fraternity are: Jack Anhalt, Irving Blazar, Samuel Hochman, Joseph Strauss, Mitchell Gertz, Jack Goldman, Morton Grossman, M. Koppe, Maurice Karnowsky, Aaron Brosofsky, Jack Savran, Robert Krovitz, Philip Finkle, Bernard Jinsky, Abraham Bloom, all of Providence; Hyman Cokin and Jack Cokin, of Pawtucket; George Freedman, Harry Kelfer, Milton Hyson and Marcus Fleischer, of Boston; Ralph Belmont and Louis Friedman, of Newport; Harry Prebluda, Hyman Horvitz and Louis Horvitz, of Fall River; Theodore Markoff, Sidney Gordon and Joseph Gordon, of Westerly; Milton Basing of Bristol; Samuel Stein and Harold Golden, of Woonsocket; Samuel Myers, of Brockton, and Hyman Fine, of Attleboro, Mass.

New York, Mar. 13—(JTA)—Unity in American-Jewish life and ways and means of employing the various units of the synagogue as a means of strengthening general congregational activities will be the main topic of discussion at the 19th annual convention of the United Synagogue of America, which will be held at Atlantic City on April 26, 27 and 28.

This idea has already been advanced in concrete form by organizations affiliated with the United Synagogue. It is being undertaken by the national Synagogue body, through a committee of one thousand, which aims to intensify synagogue life as a whole. HEBREW DAY ASSEMBLY

Hebrew Day, or as it is known in Hebrew, Yom Ivri, was celebrated by the Temple Emanu-El Religious School on Sunday, March 8th. The program was presented by the Shomrai Tzion Club—the Hebrew Honor Society of Temple Emanu-El. Rabbi Goldman introduced the Chairman Theodore Sack, Nasi (President) of Shomrai Tzion.

In his introductory remarks the chairman told the assembly that the renaissance of our old-new language, Ivris, was being celebrated throughout the United States. Hebrew, he said, though it may have been a dead language in the past, is today a living medium of expression, spoken and written by thousands of Jews in Palestine, Europe and our own United States. Anita Percelay recited a poem, "Shir-Eres," by the greatest Hebrew poet of our day, Chaim Nachman Bialik. "Hebrew Reborn," an original sketch by Melvin Swartz, was presented by Saul Belilove, Maurice Beck and Melvin Swartz. Theodore Sack gave an interesting account of the romantic life of Eliezer ben Yehudah, known as the father of Modern Hebrew. Last on the program was a Hebrew song and drill exercise given by the first grade of the Hebrew School. The chairman appropriately closed the Yom Ivri program with the singing of "Hatikvah."

BAR-MITZVAH BROTHERHOOD HOLDS MONTHLY BREAKFAST

One of the best attended breakfasts in the history of the Bar-Mitzvah Brotherhood was held last Sunday morning in the Vestry of the Temple. This breakfast, as usual, took place after the early morning service in the chapel. There were about 30 boys present. The chairman of the hostesses was Mrs. Louis Kaufman.

Between the courses, the reports of the various committees of the club were given to Rabbi Goldman and to the members. One of the most interesting of these reports was the one given by the Vice President, Irving Strasmich. He mentioned that plans were being made for the formation of a B. M. B. debating team and for a chess and checker tournament.

JUSTICE HAHN

The Jews of Providence may well be proud of the honor that has been conferred on one of their most distinguished brethren and leaders. It is none the less an honor because it was so highly deserved, nor is Judge Hahn less to be esteemed because he has made the tribute a new offering to the glory of our Jewish citizenry throughout America. Rather is he to be placed in the illustrious crowd of men like Nathan Straus, men whose first thoughts were for public welfare and for their own particular duties as American citizens, and secondly for Judaism. Because the new justice has lived and worked with such an ideal before him, he has not narrowed his friendships nor has he limited the possibilities for service in his career.

It is not so significant that Justice Hahn is the first Jew to occupy such high office in Rhode Island. The legal powers of the Jewish race go back to Biblical times. In the Middle Ages the keen judicial powers of the Rabbis were further developed. Among themselves in their enforced isolation, the Jews developed a legal code as marvelous as it was practical for the tragic period of the Ghettos. It is true, however, that the great Hebrew books formed the basis of such codes, and it is equally true that much of the wisdom of our present common law has its source in the wisdom of the Hebrew people. It is therefore not significant that the Jew attains high positions in the legal world for his intellectuality. The names of great Jewish lawyers are well known; they are among the greatest in this country. Possibly it is significant when a Jew attains such positions because generally the petty political systems of some communities would bar him from them.

The election of J. Jerome Hahn, therefore, to the Supreme Court of Rhode Island proves the honest liberality of the community in which we live, because a man, a Jew and an American citizen, richly and completely worthy of the honor, had it conferred freely upon him.

Justice Hahn has done a signal deed in achieving prominence. He has not only gratified his Jewish friends, but he has been able to open an avenue of inspiration to his young Jewish colleagues. There are many young and brilliant Jewish lawyers in the state, young men who are endowed by heritage and by education with the qualities that make law a great and honorable profession. These young men are ambitious. Justice Hahn has shown them that a devotion to the best in legal practice, and unfailing courtesy to his fellow-men, and a living reverence for things Jewish, are the three basic principles for a successful legal career.

Tidbits and News of Jewish Personalities

By DAVID SCHWARTZ

Evening Post short story writer.

Hellman had been working on some St. Louis sheet, when all of a sudden, the paper was sold and put out of business. A few months before the sale, however, Hellman had fortunately been given a contract for three years at $10,000 per annum. In view of the cessation of the paper, the owner asked Hellman to accept a compromise settlement. But the paper had been sold for a nice juicy price and Hellman insisted upon holding them to the full contract.

Well, the owners decided they would be mean, too. They told Hellman they would pay the contracted sum, but they would also insist on the enforcement of the provision of the contract, which stipulated that during the life of the contract, Hellman was to write for no other paper.

What did Hellman do? He hired an office and for three years he spent his days there, writing fiction, but never sending out a single story. Meanwhile, he was drawing the $10,000 yearly.

When the time was up, he sent a story to the Saturday Evening Post. They liked it and asked if he could write another. He sent instead six more. They couldn't understand how he could write them that fast. They invited him to Philadelphia for a conference, and that's how Sam Hellman's connection with the Saturday Evening Post was inaugurated.

Joseph Pulitzer's Nose

Returning to the subject of Joseph Pulitzer, did you ever know that J. P. was very self-conscious about his long Jewish nose. Very sensitive about it, although he was on the whole, a very impressive looking man.

Another feature about which he was sensitive was his receding chin. He grew his beard largely to offset the weak chin.

Weak chins are supposed to signify weak-will, yet America has probably not produced a man stronger willed than J. P.

Likewise, long ears are supposed to be a sign of moronish assiduity, yet Abraham Lincoln had very big ears.

Fannie, Stop Writing, Said Editor

Fannie Hurst's "Back Street" is another best seller and thereby hangs a tale. Years ago, Miss Hurst, as a young girl, addressed herself to the editor of a St. Louis paper. She brought along some copies of some of her early scribbles.

The editor looked them over. "Miss Hurst," he said, very gravely, "I cannot hire you, and if you will take my advice, you will give up the idea of writing. It's not in you. Try to express yourself in art, sculpture or something like that. You'll never make a writer."

That's what the editor said. Editors are smart, but—well, figure the rest out for yourself.

Olitzki Succeeds Nagouchi

No disease has caused so much trouble in Palestine as Trachoma. Just before his death, the famous scientist, Dr. Hideyo Nagouchi, of the Rockefeller Institute, came nearest to learning the nature of this malady when he found a way by which he could artificially produce Trachoma with a certain germ.

Then shortly after, Dr. Nagouchi died, a victim of yellow fever, on whose study he was also then engaged. And the research work on Trachoma stopped simultaneously.

Well, all I wanted to say now is this—that the research work on Trachoma has now been resumed at the Rockefeller Institute by Dr. Olitzki, one of the Jewish members of the Rockefeller research organization.

This and That

Konrad Bercovici is said to be engaged on a work which will endeavor to show that the prevalent belief that Jews are, on the average, better off financially than their non-Jewish brethren, is erroneous.

Julius Klein, reporter for the St. Louis Star, was largely instrumental in solving recent mystery of kidnapping of the 14-year-old grandson of the late Anheuser-Busch.

David Dietz, science editor of the Scripps-Howard papers, and a Cleveland young man, is writing a "story of science" to be issued in book form.

Prof. Einstein Will Return to the U. S. Some Time in Fall

On Board S. S. Deutschland, Mar. 13—The early return of Prof. Albert Einstein to the United States in order to continue his uncompleted scientific research at the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena, California, was announced by the famous savant himself on board the S. S. Deutschland, which is carrying him back to his fatherland after a hectic three-months visit to America.

After two days of rest and quiet—probably the first of such he has enjoyed in the last three months without being sought out by zealous American newspapermen—Prof. Einstein appeared on deck. Bare-headed and with a shawl thrown over his shoulders and smoking one of his little cigars, the noted scientist strolled alone up and down the deck.

The well-known Einsteinian smile appeared on the Professor's face when the correspondent of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency put in an appearance. "A newspaperman again?" he laughingly asked. "You guessed it right, Herr Professor," the correspondent replied.

Chuckling, Dr. Einstein said: "Haven't I said enough while in America? What more can I say?" Asked how he liked America, the Professor said, "It is a beautiful country. Whether I would like to live in the United States permanently is something about which I have not thought for I consider Berlin as my permanent home."

"But you will come to America again?" the J. T. A.'s correspondent inquired. "Oh, yes, and even very soon," Dr. Einstein declared, "so soon that Americans will probably be surprised. I hope that they will not be disappointed with such an early return."

Rabbi Light Sends Greetings to His Providence Friends

Friends of Rabbi David G. Light will be delighted to learn that he has fully recovered his good health. It will be remembered that Rabbi Light was for many years a prominent resident of Providence and the spiritual leader of the Sons of Zion Congregation. Because of ill health, he was compelled to remove to Denver some two years ago.

In a letter dated March 5th, addressed to Charles M. Hoffman, Superintendent of the Miriam Hospital, Rabbi Light writes as follows:

"It is nearly two years since I was a patient in your worthy hospital, but it is still fresh in my mind—the wonderful service and hearty friendliness which had been liberally extended to me, as well as to all the patients, by yourself, your worthy nurses and doctors. I find it as my moral duty and pleasure to extend herewith my hearty appreciation to all of you. Your institution, as I observed, is small in quantity, but is really very large in quality, by its cordial care of its patients, without any discrimination between religion or race. I hope that the present financial crisis did not cause your worthy institution to reduce its good work for the good people of Rhode Island."

"Now about myself. I am happy to tell you, as well as to my many friends whom I left in Roger Williams' city, that I achieved, thanks to the Lord, a full recovery. My rest, combined with the marvelously good climate of the Mountain Regions, granted me health and strength, to an extent which I did not enjoy for many years before. Denver is blessed with sunshine practically every day in the year, with clear and dry air, and with snow-covered mountains. The refreshing cool breeze from the mountains, accompanying the intense sunshine, makes Denver's climate incomparable."

"I am not a poet so as to be able to give a vivid picture of the beauty of the Rocky Mountains. I can only join King David in his sacred exclamation: 'How Great Is Your Work, Oh God!'"

"In closing, may I greet my many friends in the community, and heartily commend them to the support which Miriam Hospital needs, and most certainly deserves."

Should any of Rabbi Light's Providence friends desire to communicate with him, they may do so by addressing him at 1412 Hooker street, Denver, Colorado.

JEWISH MEN LACK JEWISH BRIDES IN NEWFOUNDLAND

Capital Has But 22 Jewish Families; Recently Brought Rabbi From England

New York, Mar. 13—(JTA)—Several hundred Jews have during the past few years settled in the Dominion of Newfoundland and St. John's, the capital, has 22 Jewish families, or about 100 souls, according to a report by Zavel Zuber, a Newfoundland Jew, who is now in New York, to the Jewish Daily Forward.

The Jews of Newfoundland recently brought from England a Rabbi, who is also Cantor, Shochet, Mohel and Hebrew teacher, said Mr. Zuber. Other Newfoundland towns which contain Jews are Cornubek (ten families), Belle Isle and Grand Falls. The Jews of St. John's are planning to erect a Synagogue center. Most of the Newfoundland Jews came there from Eastern Europe and are in the dry goods business, in which they are doing well. There is a lack of Jewish brides for unmarried Jewish men in Newfoundland, Mr. Zuber stated.

13 JEWS ELECTED COUNCILLORS IN LONDON MUNICIPAL ELECTION

London, Mar. 13—(JTA)—Thirteen Jews were among the 124 elected councillors in a recent London municipal election. Six Jews represent the Labor Party, four the Conservatives and three the Liberals. In addition to the Jewish councillors elected from the densely populated Jewish districts, Sir Percy Simmons represents the city of London proper, and S. Gluckstein represents Westminster Abbey.

The decline in the Liberal vote is believed responsible for the reduction in the number of Jewish councillors. Among those who were defeated is Miss Nettie Adler, daughter of the late Chief Rabbi.

The Union of American Hebrew Congregations

Editor, The Jewish Herald,
Providence, R. I.

At the meeting of the Executive Board, held recently in Philadelphia, I called the attention of the leaders of our movement, whose names appear on this stationery, to the fine co-operation we have received from your paper.

During the last six months since we discontinued the publication of Union Tidings, we have been watching the effect of this step. We feel that we are engaged in something important. We have reason to believe that the Reform Jews of America, who have invested millions in Synagogues, who are maintaining them at a large outlay of funds—are interested in news about the progress of Judaism and its national institutions.

We are not trying to create news, but we are endeavoring to phrase our releases in a way to indicate their importance and general interest. In matters of form, frequency, size, illustrations, etc., we are anxious to accommodate ourselves to your convenience and we hope to have your sympathetic guidance. A large number of special articles have been prepared as a result of direct suggestions made by editors. So please don't hesitate to advise us.

Since the Philadelphia Council, I have been receiving clippings on the meeting which are a source of universal satisfaction to every one connected with our Union.

I sincerely hope you are not overlooking to secure a larger circle of readers of Reform tendencies, as the space you are giving to our news certainly deserves such patronage. It is not my purpose to spend time in idly distributing advice, but such spokesmanship deserves the attention of the advertising public which is always interested in value circulation.

I take pleasure in conveying to you the thanks of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations for your generous co-operation and in wishing you increasing success.

Very sincerely yours,
DAVID A. BROWN

RECIPROCITY

This is a word made famous a few years ago by a great political leader who made of it almost a platform. It is a good English word and according to the dictionary means "that relation or policy . . . under which special advantages are granted by one side in consideration of special advantages granted by the other."

THE JEWISH HERALD is exerting every effort to advance the interests of the Jewish people.

It is conservative and constructive in its policy and gives its services freely, without regard to sect, financial consideration or social standing, to every cause which it has reason to believe will advance the interests of the Jewish people.

Under the terms of reciprocity (or in the common vernacular "one good turn deserves another"), the Jewish community should appreciate these efforts and reciprocate by aiding the paper which is advancing their own interests, protecting the good name and standing of the Jewish people, aiding in Jewish education and philanthropy, and in every inspirational and uplift movement which affects the Jew.

THE MERCHANTS WHO ADVERTISE IN THE JEWISH HERALD DESIRE TO SHOW THEIR GOOD-WILL FOR THE JEWISH PEOPLE AND ARE HELPING TO SUPPORT, ADVANCE JEWISH INTERESTS IN THUS DOING. THEY ARE DESERVING OF RECIPROCITY.

Readers of THE JEWISH HERALD should give preference to "JEWISH HERALD" Advertisers and Should Make It a point to let those advertisers KNOW that they DO SO by telling them "I SAW IT IN THE JEWISH HERALD."

RELIGIOUS SCHOOL GIVES PURIM ENTERTAINMENT

On Sunday, March 8, the children of the Hebrew and Sunday School were invited to participate in a Purim celebration. The pupils, accompanied by their parents, responded in large number in spite of very bad weather. The school committee had provided an excellent program.

There were a number of recitations in Hebrew, delivered by Rose Lazarus, Joseph Weisman, Leonard Chaset and Martha Bernstein. Mr. Paul H. Sonderling staged a play in which the following children took part:

Herbert Ballon, Albert Salk, Morton Salk, Harold Roberts, Harvey Salk, Zelda Zisquit, Regina Schlossberg, Selma Brier, Selma Schlossberg, Adele Larnchick and Esther Rosenberg. The children of the Kindergarten added to the entertainment with songs, under the direction of Miss Clara Ernstof and Miss Miriam Bell.

Mrs. Lyon Marcus distributed Purim gifts to the teachers and the children present.

BAZAAR IS OFFICIALLY OPENED

The Sisterhood bazaar opened officially Monday evening, March 9. The Vestry of the Temple was a beautiful spectacle as Mr. Theodore Max spared no effort to arrange the booths in which merchandise was most tastefully displayed. Outstanding firms, such as Meiklejohn's, Coca-Cola Co. and Chesterfield Cigarette Co. had generously contributed and decorated the place in an extraordinarily beautiful manner.

Refreshments were provided in abundance again through the generosity of Harry's Delicatessen, Cohen's, Mr. and Mrs. Zinn and Zalkind's. A beautiful tea room invited the guest to sit down and rest from all the gaiety and noise which is involved in such an enterprise. Members of the congregation and of the Sisterhood worked tirelessly in their respective booths for many hours. The congregation is almost certain that this Bazaar will prove to be an excellent success. Saturday evening, March 14, will be the last night.

Mrs. Schon-Holsman Addresses Hadassah Members at Meeting

Tuesday afternoon saw a record attendance at the Hadassah meeting at Zinn's Banquet Hall in spite of the inclement weather. The guest speaker was Mrs. Augusta Schon-Holsman, leader and founder of the Women's Cultural League of Brookline, Mass., and well-known lecturer on cultural and Zionist subjects. Previous to the general meeting, the Executive Board had a meeting and luncheon at which Mrs. Holsman was also the guest speaker. Besides the Zionist subjects, which comprised the greater part of her talk, she spoke most favorably of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish conferences and meetings all over the country, as an important means of fighting anti-Semitism.

The price of the Hadassah Hospital Building Fund bricks were reduced in price from five dollars to two dollars, and the following women bought bricks in honor of some friend or relative:

Mrs. Samuel Michaelson, Mrs. J. D. Grossman, Mrs. Morris Feinberg, Mrs. Max Salk and Mrs. Harry Licht.

Mrs. Feinberg reported $150 as proceeds from the recent cake sale she held in the Outlet and takes this opportunity to thank publicly every woman who either contributed money or cakes or helped in any other way in this enterprise.

Mrs. Louis Rubin reported that 2200 garments were shipped to Palestine, which is most complimentary to the various active sewing groups. Mrs. J. D. Grossman was appointed chairman of the Parliamentary Law Committee to work in conjunction with the Women's League of this city in that project.

According to Mrs. Herman Swartz, the chairman of the annual strawberry festival and bridge, this event will take place on May 20th at the Plantations Auditorium.

MRS. CARRIE L. FIST

North, East, South and West radiate the bonds of affection linking Mrs. Carrie L. Mrs. Fist formerly lived in Quincy, Ill., and Muskogee, Okla.

Ladies' Auxiliary of Veterans to Hold Cake Sale Monday

Plans were made for a cake sale to be held Monday, March 16, at the Outlet Company at a meeting Thursday evening of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Jewish War Veterans, R. I. Post, No. 23, at Weinstein's Restaurant.

The committee in charge asks the co-operation of the Jewish public at this event.

An excellent report was read on the luncheon and bridge held last month at the St. Regis Restaurant. Mrs. Ruben Blumenthal was the chairman.

The National Council of Jewish Women, has appointed Mrs. Francis D. Pollak, National Chairman of its Department of Vocational Guidance and Employment, to serve as the delegate of the organization on the Executive Committee of the National Conference on Jewish Employment, and Mrs. Alexander Kohut, Honorary Vice President, as alternate. Mrs. Pollak and Miss Esther Ladewick, Supervisor of the Department of Vocational Guidance and Employment, attended the recent convention of the National Vocational Guidance Association in Detroit.

The National Council of Jewish Women was also represented by Mrs. Pollak at a conference of trustees of social agencies, called by the Welfare Council of New York, to discuss the unemployment question of New York City.

Support Asked for Ladies' Union Aid Mos Chitom Drive

The annual Mos Chitom Drive, sponsored by the Ladies' Union Aid Association, is in full swing and will continue throughout the next two weeks.

Each year the members of this organization solicit funds to buy matzo's and other Passover food for the hundreds of needy Jewish families in Providence. This year, especially, the organization has been besieged with requests for assistance, due to the unemployment situation.

Mrs. P. Uffer, who is chairman of the drive, asks the Jewish public that when they are approached for contributions to bear in mind the worthiness of this cause and to contribute generously. Mrs. Herman Swartz is the associate chairman.

Suggests Plan for Home for the Aged Building Pledge

A most interesting plan for raising funds was introduced by Mrs. Milton M. Fuld, to the Home for the Aged Association, when plans were discussed for raising the $2500 pledge made towards the Building Fund.

Mrs. Fuld has purchased fifteen hundred booklets, each containing 30 spaces for dimes, making a total of three dollars per booklet. Mrs. Fuld suggests that each family take at least one booklet and insert one dime a week, allowing 30 weeks for the spaces to be filled. It should then be sent to Mrs. Fuld with the name and address or it may be contributed in memory of a deceased member of the family. Mention will be made in The Jewish Herald of all booklets received in honor of some person.

The aim of the committee is to distribute the entire fifteen hundred booklets so that when the money comes in, not only will the Home for the Aged pledge be realized, but the additional two thousand dollars will aid in the upkeep of the Home, doing away with the various drives that have been necessary.

ST. JOHN'S JEWISH BASKETBALL TEAM WINS EASTERN TITLE

St. John's College, a Catholic institution, located in Brooklyn, and the possessor of a basketball team on which there are five Jewish boys, has proven to be the best college basketball team in the East. Playing its final game of the season against the undefeated Manhattan College team, the Jewish-Irish team won 30-16. The victory gave St. John's a total of 21 wins out of 22 for the year. It also was the 43rd victory out of 44 games played during the past two seasons. This record is the best turned in by any college team in the country. The only game lost by the "Red" team was to New York University, a team not particularly strong. It was just one of those upsets.

In the game against Manhattan, Coach Freeman used 12 of the players on his squad, but the entire scoring was done by the five Jewish boys—Marty Begovich, Kinsbrunner, Posnack, Schuckman and Gerson. These boys have been the strength of the team ever since it started its string of victories.

I don't know how many of these Jewish boys will be missing from the scene next season, but a glance at the lineup of the undefeated Freshman team at St. John's, shows that three Jewish boys—Poliskin, Mishler and Lazarowitz—are ready to graduate into Varsity ranks, and should be able to keep alive the fine basketball tradition started at St. John's by the Jews of New York City.

Among the other fine basketball teams in the East were, Columbia, with Captain Lou Bender, leading the scorers in the Intercollegiate League; Syracuse, with a full quota of Jews and C. C. N. Y., with an all Jewish team.

Columbia won the intercollegiate championship with no trouble. Bender's consistent scoring was the big factor. He displaced Horowitz of Yale, last year's leader, as high scorer. This year the Yale boy finished second.

I must not forget Pittsburgh—the team went through a highly successful season. Cohn of that college was a big factor in his team's play.

It is impossible to pass on to other sports without mentioning the name of Grossman of Rutgers—as a football player his exploits filled last fall's sports pages, but he has been neglected by the basketball writers. Grossman, playing on a woefully weak team, was the star of the squad. He was a reliable scorer and, with Adler, was just about the entire works. In the game against Princeton, which Rutgers lost 34-33, Grossman accounted for no less than 13 points. Another player deserving of recognition, is Rosenbaum of Princeton. He, too, was handicapped by having to play on a poor team, but despite that, managed to stand far above his teammates.

All in all, it was an unusually fine season for the Jewish boys. To my knowledge only one team—Manhattan—failed to put at least one Jewish boy in its lineup. One can hardly ask for more than that.

SID TERRIS TRIES COMEBACK

Sid Terris, the Jewish lightweight, who a few years ago was the outstanding contender for the title, is attempting to regain fistic heights. When he was in his prime he packed a kick in each mitt and was a popular figure with the fans. His quick downward flight was a disappointment. For a time he was absent from the ring, but the other night he bobbed up in Jersey City and gave battle to Teddy Watson, but alas Sid was unable to get nothing better than a draw and that after he had been floored in the second. It really does seem that they never come back!

Another old-timer, Louis Kid Kaplan, fought again. The Kid doesn't seem to get any older. He loves to fight and appears in the ring at least three times a month and he generally wins. His latest fight was against Tommy Crowley at Rochester. He gave the boy such a thorough trimming that the referee halted proceedings at the end of the sixth round and awarded Kaplan the fight on a technical knockout.

SIDNEY FRANKLIN BACK IN THE BULL RING

After a vaudeville tour, which was not exactly fraught with success, Sidney Franklin, the Jewish bull fighter, has returned to his bulls and is at present touring Mexico with no better purpose in mind than the dispatching with as much expediency as possible a large number of bulls. Fighting at Piedras Negras, Mexico, recently, Franklin thrilled a crowd of 7000 with his daring cape work and well placed sword thrusts despite that wounds in his leg, received at a previous fight, had not completely healed.

After killing his first bull, Sid started on another and almost got himself all tangled up in the roast-beef's horns. A gust of wind blew his red cape away and left him unprotected. The bull charged, Sid jumped and escaped by inches. The crowd was delighted.

When he finishes his Mexican tour Franklin will sail for Spain.

SOBEL BOOSTS WATER POLO RECORD

By scoring 21 points in his last game of the season on Saturday against Navy, Jess Sobel, C. C. N. Y. captain, boosted the all-time scoring record for water polo to 283 points. Sobel averaged 31.4 points a game for eight contests this year to shatter by a wide margin the former Intercollegiate Swimming Association record of 195 points, established by Emmett O'Beirne of the Navy in 1929.

Sobel is so far in the lead that no other player in the league has a chance to pass him for individual honors. The City College star leads in all departments of the game, having scored 47 touch goals, six thrown goals and 30 fouls. He is the first Jewish boy to gain this distinction.

CHATTERINGS

Ben Rosenberg, star of the James Monroe High School football and basketball team, will be graduated this June. He is going to Dartmouth and he won't be allowed to devote all his time to his studies as the athletic coaches at Hanover have had their eyes on Ben for some time.

Do you recall the days of the nickelodeon when your hero was William G. Anderson, the intrepid cowboy, who always arrived in the nick of time? Prepare to be disillusioned. Cowboy Bill was a Jewish fellow named Max Aaronson and he couldn't even ride a horse. When a part called for hard riding Maxie's double did the mousing.

Sid Cohen is being tried out by the New York Giants. He is a first baseman. At training camp the other day Sid put on a grand exhibition of fancy fielding for his brother Andy, who had dropped over to see the lad perform. Sid played in Arizona last year.

JOSE SANTA TO MEET RUGGIRELLO, MARCH 20

Matchmaker Sam Price of the Providence Auditorium has arranged a second match between Jose Santa, ponderous Portuguese heavyweight hope, and his recent conqueror, Salvatore Ruggirello of Italy, for a ten-round, to be staged at the Providence fight club on Friday evening, March 20th.

Ruggirello startled the many fans present last week when he sensationally kayoed the giant Portuguese in the second round. The latter's followers just couldn't believe their eyes.

Santa was knocked out of many lucrative offers by losing to the Italian, especially a proposed bout with Jack Sharkey at the Boston Garden. Now before he can again become eligible for the same offers he must first turn the tables on the hard-hitting Ruggirello, and the same will be a tea-party.

Matchmaker Price has promised the winner a bout with Jimmy Maloney, who has sprung back in the limelight by his two great fights with Primo Carnera. A banner crowd is expected to sit in to see the second tussle between Santa and Ruggirello, and Sam Price plans to have a brilliant supporting card underneath.

R. I. State College

Snowbound and quarantined! And twenty-five A. E. Pi men are under lock and key for one week, per order of the Rhode Island State Board of Health. Classes have been discontinued and all meals are brought directly to the fraternity house three times daily. The experience is proving rather interesting and the boys are not minding the forced leave from studies. Strange as it may seem studying is the last thing resorted to. The house has been turned into an indoor gymnasium. Crude ping-pong tables and basketball courts have been constructed and champions in each field are being acclaimed daily.

Jack Anhalt is teaching the boys how bridge should be played, while Hy Cokin is slowly becoming a poet of note. The forced hibernation is bringing genius to the front in every branch of science and fine arts. Dr. Jones promises to remove the quarantine by Wednesday if no person shows the symptoms of scarlet fever that so mildly attacked Harold Golden last Tuesday night.

At last Alpha Epsilon Pi is to have their own home. Ground for the beautiful new brick structure is to be broken early in April. The brothers of A. E. Pi have worked for many years to make this project a reality, and their work has been rewarded. The house will be, without a doubt, the finest on the State campus, and will relieve the congested conditions that the Jewish boys have lived under in the past.

The finals of the Interfraternity Basketball League takes place this week. A. E. Pi will no doubt play Lambda Chi Alpha for the cup, but until the series is over we will say nothing.

CATHOLIC CLERGY OF GERMANY LAUNCH ANTI-HITLERITE DRIVE

Berlin, Mar. 13—(JTA)—What is believed to be the beginning of a united campaign against the Hitlerites by the Catholic Church in Germany was launched recently with an announcement from the Provincial Archbishops warning Catholics against the teachings of Hitler and his followers because racial distinction is incompatible with Catholicism.

The action by the Provincial Bishops follow similar pronouncements by the Cardinals of Breslau, Munich and Cologne as well as the Catholic clergy of Bavaria forbidding Catholics from joining the Hitlerites. Dr. Kaas, leader of the Catholic Center Party, also denounced the Hitlerites in a recent address.

Sigma Pi Fellowship

SOCIAL

In one of the finest affairs of the year the Sigma Pi Fellowship Club held their third annual formal dinner dance at the Narragansett Hotel parlors on Tuesday evening, March 3.

On entering the rooms the members beheld a most beautiful sight. Floral displays were located around the table with candles, in the club colors of blue and gold, in the center. Corsages for the lady guests also contrasted with the floral pieces on the table.

Gifts, consisting of a vanity case in modernistic design with club initials, were given the guests.

The committee in charge, consisting of Milton Blazar, Milton Blettie and Arthur Rothman, with Milton Blazar acting as master of ceremonies, kept events moving rapidly. During dinner a most pleasant surprise was given by the committee in presenting Charlotte Sherer in a fine exhibition of dancing and singing.

The principal speaking of the evening were President Edward Goldberg and Harold Roth.

Al Marianone and his band furnished music for the affair.

The outstanding factor at this affair was the spirit of good fellowship which predominated throughout the evening. This spirit is one of the main factors of the club's success in its short existence.

SPORT

The Sigma Pi Fellowship Club defeated the O. H. C. bowling and basketball teams on successive nights. In one of the finest games of the year the Sigma Pi aggregation finally nosed out the O. H. C. in basketball by the close score of 20 to 17. In bowling, the Sigma Pi boys defeated the O. H. C. in two out of three games.

Zionist News

Charles Silverman to be Honored

In appreciation of the many years of service that Charles Silverman has given to Zionism, the local District will honor him with a banquet at Zinn's Banquet Hall on Sunday evening, March 15th, at which time Mr. Charles Smith will present the guest of honor with a Golden Book Certificate of the Jewish National Fund, one of the greatest honors that it is in the power of the Zionist Organization to bestow on its faithful workers. Because of Mr. Silverman's affiliations with almost all affairs of the city a record attendance is expected.

Dr. Ilie Berger will greet Mr. Silverman in behalf of the Zionist Region of Rhode Island.

Mr. Emanuel Neumann of New York, Chairman of J. N. F. of America, will be the guest speaker of the evening, and Mr. Joseph Smith, President of the local District, will act as toastmaster. A fine program of entertainment is being planned.
