Shaw on the Jews

Mr. Shaw tells the interviewer of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency very frankly that the trouble with the Jew is, not that he has an inferiority complex, but that he has a superiority complex. Mr. Shaw adds that he understands the malady very well, for he is an Irishman, and the Irish are even more arrogant racially than the Jew.

Like most of the things G. B. S. says, this is all right as a shocker, but you can't simplify the Jewish problem quite so facetiously.

If it is the Jews, who have the superiority complex, how will Mr. Shaw explain Mr. Houston Chamberlain's exaltation of the Teutonic genius above all others—his making even of Jesus into a Teuton to prove his point? How will he explain the whole Nordic school of superiority preachers?

And Mr. Shaw himself is not exactly a victim of the inferiority complex. By his own admission, the late Mr. Shakespeare was just a little hack writer in comparison to him. And yet, as far as I know, despite this superiority complex, there is no movement to keep Mr. Shaw out of country clubs or to deny him admission to Harvard University.

A Jewish

Trader Horn

I have just discovered a Jewish Trader Horn—discovered him at my elbow, so to speak. He is a colleague at the office of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency. A newspaperman by profession, every once in a while, he throws his pencils out of the window and hies away to distant parts to become metamorphosed into another being.

He was a farmer for about a year. He was in social work for some time. With the Jewish Legion in Palestine for the war period. But most interesting of all to me, was his three years trading among the natives of the South African interior.

Clubs and Packs

The majority of the traders in South Africa, he tells me, are Jews. We Jews, too, it appears, are imperialists of a sort. Was it Kipling who wrote about "civilizing them with a club." Well, it any rate, that is largely the modern way of bringing civilization to the primitives. Instead of the club, we Jews use the peddlers' pack.

I have been urging my friends to reduce his experiences to writing. He has a mint of material.

Your Character Quotient

One of the most interesting aspects of the South African native is the test which he puts the white man through, when he first comes among them. Talk about your modern intelligence tests! The universities have a lot to learn from the African dusksies.

When the trader first comes among them, I am told, he is exasperated to the point of desperation by the natives. They will do anything to rile you, to irritate you, to make you lose your temper.

Some of the traders will swear and shout, cursing their black ways. But happy the man who remains calm and placid. His fortune is made. For the natives were simply testing you. They want to know what sort you are. And they esteem above all other qualities—patience. If they find you are patient, the word is soon spread. There will be no more ordeals for you.

RABBI WISE LAUDS WORK OF AMERICAN DELEGATION, BASLE

Mrs. Archibald Silverman Is Named as One Who Did
Good Work at Congress

London, Aug. 7—(JTA)—An interview praising the activities of the American delegation to the Zionist Congress at Basle, was given to a representative of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency by Dr. Stephen S. Wise, one of the leaders of the delegation, upon his arrival in this city. Dr. Wise made special mention of the unanimous acceptance by the Congress of the American economic program and of the important part played by Judge Julian W. Mack, the leader of the American delegation, who, as one of the most effective members of the presidium, made his influence strongly felt in the political and permanent executive committees.

Dr. Wise further praised the activities of other members of the American group, including Robert Szold, Emanuel Neumann, Abraham Goldberg, Israel Brodie, Jacob de Haas, Abraham Tulin, Miss Pearl Franklin and Mrs. Archibald Silverman.

Dr. Wise mentioned as one of the major achievements of the American Zionist delegates their firm stand against a possible break with the Jewish Agency.

"It may be said," Dr. Wise summed up, "that the American economic program was accepted with unanimity. The political program of the American Zionist Organization, as announced some time ago, has become," he stated, "the political program of the Zionist Congress and of the new administration under Nahum Sokolow. The continuity of administration is assured by the election of Mr. Sokolow and Professor Selig Brodetsky of the old administration, and Emanuel Neumann, a man of high ability and distinguished service as American representative to the Executive."

FUNERAL SERVICE HELD ON THURSDAY FOR DR. FRANKEL

Fieser, Dr. C. E. A. Winslow, Dr. Livingston Farrand, Dr. Charles E. Willinsky, Miss Lilian D. Wald, Dr. Edward R. Baldwin, Dr. Richard C. Cabot, Dr. Milton Rosenau, Homer Folks, Adolph Lewisohn, Dr. Henry Isaacs, Dr. Louis I. Harris, Dr. Haven Emerson, John A. Kingsbury, Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Dr. William F. Snow, Harold A. Ley, Paul U. Kellogg, Frederick H. Ecker, Leroy A. Lincoln, Frances O. Ayres, James E. Kavanagh, Archibald F. C. Fiske, Ernest H. Wilkes, Henry W. George, Thomas H. Willard, Augustus S. Knight, Norman L. Burnette and William P. Shepherd.

Dr. Frankel's body arrived Tuesday on the Olympic.

DR. GORDON GETS DEGREE FROM UNIVERSITY OF ROME

Rome, Aug. 7—(JTA)—Adding still another academic degree to an earlier total of seven, Dr. Hirsch Loeb Gordon, formerly a lecturer at the Jewish Teachers' Seminary in New York, set a precedent at the University of Rome as the first foreigner to receive a degree in Roman archaeology.

Dr. Gordon's thesis, for which he was granted the degree of Doctor of Letters in Roman Archaeology, dealt with "The Oriental Origins of Classical Architecture."

ROSENWALD GIVES BERLIN CHILDREN'S DENTAL CLINIC

Noted Philanthropist Gives German City $1,000,000 Children's Clinic

Berlin, Aug. 7—(JTA)—Julius Rosenwald, American capitalist and philanthropist, whose philanthropies know neither race nor color, has given $1,000,000 for the erection of a children's dental clinic in the city of Berlin, according to announcement recently by Dr. Heinrich Sahn, Mayor of Berlin.

Mr. Rosenwald, who has given over $50,000,000 for educational, civic and charitable purposes, has in the past been a liberal contributor to various philanthropic and cultural causes in Europe, especially in Germany and Austria. The Technical Museum of Austria and the Deutsche Museum in Munich have been singled out by him for support. For his aid to the Technical Museum of Austria the Austrian government conferred the Grand Insignia of Honor upon him in 1929 while last year he received a gold ring from the Bavarian government for his services to the Deutsche Museum.

Similarly a valuable vase was presented to Mr. Rosenwald in May, 1930, as the gift of the German people in recognition of the aid he extended to German war widows and orphans and for his many endowments to German cultural projects.

Mr. Rosenwald also provided the funds for the building of the Rosenwald Library at Luxor, Egypt, which was opened in 1927.

SAMUEL BOMES HONORS MEMORY OF HIS MOTHER

Jewish Orphanage Receives Outstanding Gift From
Samuel Bomes

Through the interest of Mr. Benjamin W. Grossman, Second Vice President of the Jewish Orphanage, Mr. Samuel Bomes has donated a complete painting of the exterior woodwork, cornices, skylight and screens of the beautiful Orphanage Building at 164 Summit avenue, Providence.

Since the completion of the present edifice there has been no repainting completely, and it is essential to the proper upkeep of the building that this be done from time to time.

Mr. Bomes resides at 14 Miller avenue. He has undertaken this gift in honor of his mother, Mrs. Shaindel Bomes, who passed away last April. The fine Jewish spirit of Mrs. Bomes is bearing fruit in the interest of Mr. Bomes in this work at the Orphanage.

Because of the extreme economy that is being practiced in these times, this repainting would have been deferred, to the detriment of the property. Mr. Walter I. Sundlun, President of the Orphanage and the Board of Directors, feel that this gift of Mr. Bomes at this time is all the more valuable because without it there would have been considerable deterioration and discomfort to the children.

A tablet in memory of Mrs. Shaindel Bomes will be recommended by Dr. L. B. Wolfenson, the Executive Director, to be placed on the Memorial Board in the reception room of the orphanage.

DENY RUMORS OF IMPENDING HITLERITE MARCH ON BERLIN

Berlin, Aug. 7—(JTA)—From a highly reliable source, the Jewish Telegraphic Agency was informed recently that the numerous reports of a possible Hitlerite march on Berlin are baseless. It had been rumored that the extremists among the Nazis had made careful plans for a surprise march on the capital.

The Forwaerts, on the other hand, confirms the report that the Nazi leaders had sent out secret lists of Reichswehr officers who are sympathetic to a putsch. The Forwaerts adds, however, that no putsch is to be expected.

Masters of Music

By JOSHUA BENDON

Summer music is fast becoming a popular institution. The contribution of Jewish philanthropists in the two largest cities of the United States is the concerts are regularly given. Annually, too, Mr. Lewisohn, now grown old and white, is presented to the first night audience to whom he speaks a welcoming address.

The choice of Mr. Lewisohn is no more than just.

He has given generously for the continuation of these concerts. He has inspired many others to give. And he is a real music lover. There are few scenes as charming as Mr. Lewisohn at a Hunter College "sing" where he gains with young worshippers in adoration of the beauty of music and lifts his voice in glad participation in a chorus of old German lieder.

This year Mrs. Charles S. Guggenheimer is chairman of the Stadium Concerts Committee. To anyone whose eye roves over the list of sponsors it must quickly be apparent that the number of Jews on the list composes a considerable fraction of the whole. It is also worthy of note that by far the majority of Stadium visitors are religious descendants of the Twelve Tribe. If New York can boast of a series of summer symphonic concerts that are without equal anywhere else in the world, the credit for this condition is due largely to the efforts of men like Adolph Lewisohn and women like Mrs. Charles S. Guggenheimer.

Of lesser musical value but of even more striking popularity are the Goldman Band Concerts held each season on the Mall of New York's Central Park and on the campus of New York University.

The band is fortunate in its conductor. Edwin Franko Goldman is a band leader by tradition and training. In addition he possesses a fortunate combination of qualities which make him a good musician and a popular music teacher. The result is that a sum total of New Yorkers that runs into many figures has heard medleys and programs of good music to which they otherwise would be utter strangers.

Patrons of the Goldman Band Concerts are the members of the Guggenheim family, together with a committee of notable New Yorkers. The Guggenheims have continued year after year to make these concerts possible. Public endorsement of their civic generosity is made manifest every evening at one or the other of the band concert locations.

New York City, fortunate though it is in the possession of outdoor symphonic and popular band concerts, exercises no monopoly on the grants of Jewish music-patrons. Chicago has perhaps the greater distinction of the two. For in Chicago the outdoor music season takes the form of full grand opera at Ravinia. The backer of the colossal series of music fare is Louis Eckstein, who contributes annually $100,000 and more if need be, to defray the cost of the opera.

Of Eckstein and Ravinia, the Chicago correspondent M. W. Straus has written:

"All the management of the opera company is centralized in Mr. Eckstein. He hires the artists, selects the operas, arranges the seats, casts the performance, superintends the printing of the programs, drills the ushers, rehearse the electricians and pays the bills.

"Nightly during the ten-week season, an unusual audience assembles at Ravinia which calls itself the opera in the woods. Men in white flannels and plus fours sit next to men in dinner jackets and women in full dress. Dinner parties of the great and wealthy motor up from North Shore estates. Simultaneously come special railroad trains and trolley cars bearing residents of Chicago's slum district, known as Little Italy, who make a 30-mile trip to hear the music."

Thus Ravinia which furnishes the music and thus, too, Mr. Eckstein who furnishes the wherewithal.

In symphony programs, in band concerts and in opera, Jews have converted money into music. The chunk of gold liberally given by Jewish philanthropists contributes everywhere to the harmonies of good music. Ravinia, the Stadium Concerts and the Goldman Band season are only three of many instances of Jews as masters and makers of music.

EDWIN FRANKO GOLDMAN

typical of the civic service they are rendering everywhere. This article is written especially for the Jewish Telegraphic Agency and The Jewish Herald—Editor's Note.

This year, as in other years of the recent past, American tourists will include in their itineraries, visits to one or more of the music festivals regularly held in Europe during the summer season. But the stay-at-home Americans need not envy the travelers their good fortune. In the two largest cities of this hemisphere (and in many others as well) there are music festivals as high ranking, as worthy and even as popular as the best of the European music centers. In both cities the outdoor musicals are made possible by Jewish patrons of the art who vie with the countless Jewish music masters; the composers, conductors, pianists and violin virtuosos in their service to the goddess of music.

Chief of the summer concert centers is the series held during July and August at the Lewisohn Stadium of the College of the City of New York. There good music has been made popular.

The current season is the fourteenth of an annual series and promises, despite depression and the recurrent heat waves, to scale new heights in popular acclaim. Recently a writer in the New York Times paid the concerts an unusually high tribute: "The Stadium concerts have become in the fourteen years of their existence, not an ornament or a philanthropic experiment, but a firm part of the foundation of the music life of the city. They cost their sponsors a pretty penny, but they pay a thousandfold in benefit and inspiration to the community."

Foremost among the sponsor, on several counts, is the banker and industrialist, Adolph Lewisohn, a beloved old New Yorker, whose name is a signal for an enthusiastic reception everywhere.

It is in the Lewisohn Stadium that

SAN DIEGO JEW OFFERS CITY UNEMPLOYMENT AID

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 7—(JTA)—As his contribution to the relief of unemployment, H. S. Wolf, wealthy real estate owner, from whom the municipality has leased several of his properties, has offered to reduce his rental by 10 per cent.

Mr. Wolf has also indicated his readiness to accept a higher tax rate, if by his action, as well as because of the lowered rental, the city will not have to economize by dismissing a number of its employees.

Russia's Jewish Polar Expert

By I. BURROWS

The newspaper publicity that has surrounded the flight of the Graf Zeppelin has focussed attention once again upon Professor Rudolph L. Samoilovich, hero of the Krassin expedition of three years ago. This article is especially written for the Jewish Telegraphic Agency and The Jewish Herald—Editor's Note.

Hovering somewhere in the Arctic and Polar regions a week ago was the Graf Zeppelin, the giant dirigible that won the world's admiration at its successful crossings of the Atlantic ocean and its spectacular round-the-world flight.

Somewhere in the passenger quarters of the titan airboat, surrounded by German, American and lesser Russian scientists, was mustachioed Professor Rudolph (Reuben) L. Samoilovich, senior scientist of this air Polar expedition, Jew and revolutionist extraordinary.

This is not the first time Professor Samoilovich is in the public eye. Three years ago he achieved headline importance when he set out on the Soviet ice breaker Krassin to rescue the survivors of the ill-fated dirigible Italia, captained by General Umberto Nobile. The story of this spectacular and heroic rescue was spread throughout the world and later recorded in books published in numerous languages. In Russia he has become known in the years of the Red supremacy as one of the nation's outstanding scientists. Finally he is known in that country for a career no less heroic than his present ventures; a career as a revolutionary whose years were harassed by imprisonment, bureaucratic tyranny and even exile. That he emerged from his trials to achieve his pre-eminence is a signal salute to his exceptional character and abilities.

Professor Samoilovich was born 47 years ago in Azov, the son of an Orthodox Jewish merchant family. His first experience of consequence with Czaristic Russia was when he was prevented from studying in a Russian university because of the restrictions against Jewish students. He went to Germany instead, where he graduated as an engineer. In 1908 he returned to Russia.

His interest in scientific studies traces back to his early childhood.

David Lvovitch, prominent in the European Ort, was a schoolmate of his and he reveals the rapid success he achieved in his studies, especially in those of a scientific nature.

His interest in the far north began when he was sent by a private concern to investigate the coal deposits of a region in Northern Russia. His experiences on that mission decided him to specialize in the field. Some time before the war he was connected with the Petrograd office of the German General Electric Company.

During his student years and his early career as an engineer, Professor Samoilovich became associated with the revolutionary activities that at the time reached down throughout the fabric of Czaristic Russia. He was arrested on several occasions and either imprisoned or else sent into exile.

In 1908 he was banished to Archangel. In 1910 he was exiled once again, this time to Pinegu, in the far north. He utilized his months of exile as study periods and worked on a book that he later published on the mining riches of the frozen north. The book aroused great admiration among Arctic authorities. When finally he escaped from his exile, Professor Samoilovich had completed the full cycle of revolutionary activities.

When the revolution came Professor Samoilovich was automatically in the good graces of the new government. In 1918 he became a member of the Russian Academy of Science. As a further honor, especially for his rescue of the Nobile expedition, he was awarded some years ago with the Order of the Red Banner by the Soviet government.

Earlier he had founded the Russian Arctic Institute and accompanied the expedition to Spitzbergen that gave the club to immense natural resources in that region. In 1923, a year after he had achieved worldwide fame because of the Krassin adventure he headed a governmental expedition to Franz Josef Land where once again he made discoveries that were of incalculable value to his country and to science.

All in all, Professor Samoilovich, especially in his capacity as a leading figure of the Arctic institute has arranged for two hundred expeditions many of which have proved to be of great scientific value.

His present plan is to make an expedition into the furthest reaches of Northern Asia to investigate the delta of the Lena River and the Tchutcha Peninsula, which forms the extreme eastern part of the Asian continent. The trip will necessitate a 10,000 mile trip on the ice and frozen wastes and is expected to lead to some startling geological and mineral discoveries.

Of his further plans he has revealed that in 1932, the international Polar year, he will start aboard his famed ship, the Krassin, to attempt reaching the 85th degree latitude. He also hopes to make two trips to the North Pole via flying machine.

On the trip last week on the Graf Zeppelin, Professor Samoilovich divided commanding honors with Dr. Hugo Eckener. While the German Zeppelin expert was in charge of the maneuvers of the huge airboat, the Russian was in full charge of the scientific work for which the trip was undertaken.

The Zeppelinists were expected to cover approximately 7000 miles of Arctic area without, however, making for the North Pole itself. In addition to securing geographical and meteorological data, the expedition will attempt to determine as to whether a regular dirigible route across the North Pole region will be feasible.

It is worthy of mention in connection with the present exploits of the Russian scientist that on his Krassin rescue expedition he came too late to save Professor Aldo Pontremoli, one of Italy's leading Jewish scientists and a grandson of the illustrious Luigi Luzzatti. Professor Pontremoli was among the missing when the Krassin crew located the Nobile survivors. But he left records in his note books that are regarded as invaluable aids to the science of navigation and to our information of the Arctic region.

It is too early to forecast just what the scientific value of the present Zeppelin expedition will be. But, judged by the light of Professor Samoilovich's past achievements, the fact of his present leadership is a good augury.

Berry Spring Co. Celebrates Tenth Birthday at Outing

The tenth anniversary of the Berry Spring Mineral Water Company of Pawtucket was celebrated on Sunday by a gathering of nearly 100 members of the concern and employees with their families and guests at Jim Smith's Inn, Pawtuxet. Mrs. Samuel Priest, whose husband was president of the company, and two daughters attended.

One of the features of the gathering was the presence of more than a dozen children, all of whom had been born within the past ten years that their fathers have been associated with the company.

A chowder luncheon was served at 1 o'clock, following which there were games and sports. The bake was served at 4:30 o'clock, at the conclusion of which a greeting was extended by General Manager Benjamin Levin, who served as toastmaster.

After reviewing the decade under his regime, he called upon Professor Franklin N. Strickland, State Chemist; Mrs. Ruth Hirschberg, who extended greetings on behalf of her mother, Mrs. Priest, and her sisters; Gen. John J. Richards and B. J. Machin of Boston, secretary of the Eastern Bottlers' Association.

Agassiz Hotel in Bethlehem, N. H., Is Very Attractive

Famous Hostelry Having Successful Season; Can Accommodate Over 300 Guests

The New Agassiz Hotel in Bethlehem, New Hampshire, is having one of its most successful seasons. A complete renovation of this famous hostelry places it today in the fore as one of the finest resort hotels in the country and new features inaugurated by the management will insure a most delightful rest and vacation to those who select the Agassiz for their 1931 vacation.

Situated in the heart of the famous mountain resort, the Agassiz, in both the main hotel and the Annex, is able to accommodate over 300 guests and the hotel boasts of hospitable lobbies, restful lounging rooms, sun parlors, quiet reading and writing rooms, indoor and outdoor card rooms, while each guest room is equipped with hot and cold water, private and adjoining bath rooms, newly regulated sanitary showers and steam heat during the cooler days.

Its social staff keeps things humming for the guests during the evening hours by arranging the merriest and gayest social events, including masquerades, revues, novelty parties, theatricals and concerts.

During the day the social staff arrange parties for every outdoor recreation, such as tennis, horseback riding, mountain climbing, baseball, basketball, golfing, swimming, canoeing, all with easy distance from the hotel. Tours of the scenic wonders of the White Mountains are arranged daily with guides acquainted with every nook and corner of the mountains in charge of each party.

Its greatest claim, however, to fame is in the magnificent, spacious dining room which has always been the main talking point of the Agassiz. Strictly adhering to the Jewish Dietary Laws, yet applying modern dietetic methods, provides a cuisine for its guests that is hard to duplicate anywhere in the world.

Another feature that is sure to appeal to folks who hesitate to come to the mountains because of children, is the well-equipped playground for the younger guests where, under the care of a trained governess, the kiddies are able to play undisturbed and undisturbing to the adult guests.

A visit to Agassiz will not be complete until one enters its elaborately equipped and modern kitchen. Arranged in two separate units for milk and meat dishes it contains the most modern dishwashing units for milk and meat. The kitchens have been enlarged to three times its previous size and with the engaging of a group of famous chefs, the guests are assured of culinary delights, well-balanced, well-made and well served. The managing proprietors of the New Agassiz, Messrs. Michnoff and Spiwack, will be glad to arrange for your vacation plans if you drop them a line and advise them of your date of arrival.

Miriam Hospital Treated Many Free Patients During July

Miriam Hospital gave more free treatments to patients in its dispensary in July than ever before in the history of the institution, according to figures supplied by Superintendent Hoffman.

The Miriam Hospital Dispensary consists of ten clinics, and the number of treatments given in each of these clinics during July were as follows:

Surgical, 79; Medical, 32; Ear, Nose and Throat, 71; Orthopedic, 16; Skin, 3; Gynecological, 19; Eye, 11; Sterility, 7; Pre-Natal, 41; Post-Natal, 8.

Tourneys Start at Jewish Center

Tournaments for boys and girls at the Jewish Community Center playground opened Monday morning with more than fifty entered in the boys' events and twenty-five in the events for girls. Contests will be carried out each day this week and will be concluded Friday.

Awards will be made to winners of the various contests at the conclusion of the tournament. The boys' events include horseshoe pitching, basketball, volley ball and checkers, while the girls will take part in ping pong, volley ball and checkers.

Nathan Pass is in charge of the boys' tournament and Miss Molly Fineman has charge of the girls.

More than 200 children have been present at the Center playground each day since it was opened early in the month. Various activities are provided to entertain the children at the recreation center, which is under the direction of Jacob I. Cohen, executive director.

Weds Jewess Thinking She Was Episcopalian

White Plains, N. Y., Aug. 7—(JTA)—Charging that his wife, Mrs. Clara Beatrice High, of Paris, had led him to marry her by claiming to be the widow of a Hungarian Episcopalian when she was in reality a Jewess, John Meeker High, Jr., member of a socially prominent New York family, was granted an annulment by Supreme Court Justice Frederick P. Close.

The annulment order was granted on charges of fraud.

IMMIGRATION FRAUD ANNULS THE MARRIAGE OF JEWESS

New York, Aug. 7—(JTA)—Supreme Court Justice Ernest E. L.

Hammer has granted an annulment to Mrs. Gussia Miller Rubman from Leibish Pesach Rubman on the ground that the defendant induced her to marry him in Cuba in order to enter this country outside the quota laws in December, 1929, and then after living with her a few weeks abandoned her and disappeared.

RUSSIAN SCHOOLS ARE BEING INFECTED WITH ANTI-SEMITISM

Moscow, Aug. 7 — (JTA) — The schools of Russia which have hitherto been free from anti-Semitism, are slowly being infected with it. From the city of Perm comes the latest story of an attack upon a Jewish school boy, who was a member of the Pioneer organization and who has recently been admitted to the Communist Youth League. The name of the boy is Zarkhin and he is a pupil in School No. 21 in Perm.

Entering his class room, Zarkhin found in his seat a post card with threatening sentiments and a lot of anti-Semitic vilification.

Arrest Schadchan Who Took Money But Found No Husbands

New York, Aug. 7 — (JTA) — Max Hozinsky of Brooklyn is a laundryman by trade and a schadchen by desire and this desire got him into trouble when he was arrested on charges of taking money from a number of husband-seeking women whom he failed to provide with mates.

One woman charges him with having taken $1300 on the promise to get her a husband, who failed to materialize. Six other women have made similar charges.

TREATS

Mr. Louis Mogelev, editor of the Pawtucket Times, generously treated the children of the Jewish Orphanage to ice cream on July 31st. A very liberal quantity was served the children on this occasion.

Other ice cream treats during the month were received from Mrs. David Bob of Brooklyn, N. Y., and from Mr. Archibald Silverman of Providence.

Mr. Benjamin W. Grossman, who is constantly attentive to the children of the Home in many other ways, also gave them an ice cream treat.

Mr. Walter I. Sundlun, President of the Orphanage, is very grateful for this interest in the children, as during these warm days ice cream is a most wholesome as well as pleasant form of treat.

CAMP

On Wednesday, Aug. 5th, four girls of the second group of smaller girls of the Orphanage, returned from the Council of Jewish Women Camp at Barrington, having gained from one to five pounds each, and generally improved in health and appearance.

Mr. Saul Rothschild, Chairman of the Council Camp, personally attended to the return of the children of the second group from camp.

Because of the efforts of Mr. Benjamin N. Kane, Chairman of the Entertainment Committee of the Orphanage, and Mr. Bernard M. Goldowsky, who has long been interested in scouting at the Orphanage, funds have been raised so that all the girls and boys who are scouts have had the benefit of a two weeks' stay at the Girls' and Boy Scout Camps, respectively.

This is not merely a vacation for the children, but gives them their first contact with others, so that they will be able to meet the problems of life without being segregated from others. It is an excellent training in independence as well as a body and health building opportunity.

Mr. Walter I. Sundlun, President of the Orphanage, has been greatly gratified that friends of the children and Orphanage have contributed the amount necessary to send the boys and girls to the Scout Camps, as these wholesome activities lessen the necessity for medical care in the Orphanage, and the independence gained by the children lessens the amount of after-care necessary when they leave the Home.

The efforts of the Executive Director, Dr. Louis B. Wolfson, have been directed toward prevention of illness and dependence, rather than their care after ills have accumulated.

Maplehurst Offers Many Happy Hours to the Vacationist

Rhode Islanders Enjoy Healthy Vacations at White Mountains

A hotel, located in the heart of the White Mountains, the "Switzerland of America," and yet having every facility and convenience of a modern big city hostelry, is Maplehurst, the beautiful hotel catering to Jewish people and located in Bethlehem, New Hampshire.

Maplehurst is owner-operated by the well-known Brenners of Woonsocket and they have tendered a special invitation to Rhode Islanders this season. Scores of Rhode Island people have made this hotel their vacation place. Located in the midst of scenic splendor and with health-giving air, with absolutely no humidity even during the humid and torrid days of last week, the vacationist at Maplehurst is certain of restful sleep. On Friday and Saturday nights of last week it was necessary to have extra blankets to keep warm, so it can be seen why the White Mountains are the magnet for so many people this season.

Maplehurst offers rooms with every convenience, running hot and cold water, private baths, large cheerful rooms, well furnished and well ventilated, with beautiful views of the mountain ranges from every window.

There are large lobbies, beautiful dining room, card rooms and playground for the kiddies, which is under the supervision of Miss Betty Helfand, a graduate of Emerson College of Oratory. Thus the kiddies are well taken care of and entertained and prove no burden to the parents who are left free to enjoy the pleasures of this vacation place.

The Brenners last season erected the most beautiful ballroom in Bethlehem at a cost of $20,000. There is dancing here every evening and other special entertainment on Sundays.

There are facilities at Maplehurst for every outdoor sport—horseback riding, tennis, golf, swimming, mountain climbing and sightseeing trips to Old Man of the Mountain, Mt. Washington and Lost River and other places.

Machines are leaving Woonsocket every week-end for Maplehurst. Those desiring accommodation should call Woonsocket 675.

"CANADIAN ORTHODOXY IS A PARADOXY," SAYS RABBI STERN

Seattle, Aug. 7 — (JTA) — Rabbi Harry J. Stern of Temple Emanu-El, Montreal, in an interview here on the completion of a tour, which he had made of the Western Canadian provinces for the purpose of intensive study of its Jewish communities, declared:

"Canadian Orthodoxy is a paradox. I say that they are a paradox, because for the most part they have broken with the Shulkan Arukh and they haven't found for themselves any liberal interpretations of Judaism. The old pattern does not work in the New World, and so we have Jews cleaving to Orthodoxy who observe the dietary laws only in the breach and who appear twice a year at the High Holy Days in the House of God. That the older generation of Western Canadian Jewry were trying to perpetuate 'Ghettoism' and not Judaism, is the contention of Rabbi Stern, who said that they have well established Talmud Torahs and Yiddish folk schools, but that they over-emphasize language study and fail to explain the beauties and ethics and history of Judaism.

DENY OFFICIALS BARRED FROM WEDDING PALESTINE WOMEN

Jerusalem, Aug. 7 — (JTA) — A sensational report in a recent issue of the Hebrew daily, "Doar Hayom," to the effect that senior British officials in Palestine had been secretly instructed not to marry Palestine women, turned to be the result of a misconception of a standing government order.

In replying to inquiries by the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, it was officially stated that the report was baseless. It appears that the "Doar Hayom" had misconstrued a standing order to Britishers joining the British section of the Palestine police who are obliged to agree not to bring their wives to Palestine nor to marry in Palestine because of the absence of adequate quarters for married officials.

Solly Joel Left $5,000,000 Estate

London, Aug. 7 — (JTA) — An estate, valued at $5,000,000, was left by the late Solly Joel, diamond magnate and racing enthusiast. Half of the residue after cash provisions to relatives and friends was left to his widow.

Sir Herbert Samuel Looms as Successor to Lloyd George

London, Aug. 7 — (JTA) — Sir Herbert Samuel, first High Commissioner of Palestine and one of the outstanding Liberal statesmen of England, today became the center of newspaper discussion as the possible next leader of the Liberal Party in view of the illness of Lloyd George.

While Lloyd George is now out of danger the press here is of the opinion that even if he can return to active political work Sir Herbert may be the only man who can maintain unity in the Liberal Party.

Terming Sir Herbert "a man of great ability" but admitting that he may perhaps lack the flair for party leadership, the papers point out that he is at the same time the only man who can hold the Liberal Party together, prevent it from splitting and yet continue co-operation with the present government.

The illness of Lloyd George has created even stronger differences of opinion than existed before among the Liberals, some of whom, it is felt, are likely to join the Conservatives if good leadership, such as that which Sir Herbert could furnish is not maintained, the papers assert.

Next to Lloyd George and perhaps Sir John Simon, Herbert Samuel is the outstanding figure in the Liberal Party with which he has been associated since his university days. He was returned to the House of Commons as a Liberal in 1902 and has long been regarded as the leading exponent of Liberalism. In 1905 he was Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with a seat in the Cabinet. He was Postmaster General in 1910 and Home Secretary in 1916.

In 1929 he resigned as chairman of the Liberal Party organization owing to the pressure of his parliamentary duties, but in May of this year he accepted the Presidency of the National Union of Liberal Clubs.

NAZIS CONTINUE BLOOD LIBEL ALLEGATIONS AGAINST JEWS

Berlin, Aug. 7 — (JTA) — The ridiculous lengths to which the Hitlerite leaders are prepared to go in arousing the German populace against the Jews, was again demonstrated this week when M. Ley, a Nazi member of the Reichstag, told a Hitlerite mass meeting at Cologne that Jews "use Christian blood not only for ritual purpose but also for their own racial preservation."

In formulating his highly inciting and new "theory," Deputy Ley divided the Jews into three categories, "economic parasites, vampires and attackers of Christian women."

France Seeks to Expel Alexander Berkman

Paris, Aug. 7 — (JTA) — Alexander Berkman, deported from the United States with Emma Goldman in 1919 for radical activities, faces expulsion from France after three months. The government has issued an order for his deportation, but has granted him a suspension in order to investigate his conduct more thoroughly. He has been living in Montparnasse for some time, while his former associate has been staying on the French Riviera.

He denied he had been dabbling in political affairs and insisted France had no reason to order him from the country.

A JEW IN LOVE

Ben Hecht's recent book, "A Jew In Love," together with his former novel, "Count Bruga," are purported to be damning portraits of other Jews connected with contemporary books. These are Horace Liveright, Jed Harris, Maxwell Bodenheim and Michael Gold. The latter, it will be remembered, wrote that vicious picture of the East Side in his "Jews Without Money." Now, in retaliation, Maxwell Bodenheim, well-known for his unrestrained eroticism, has published "Duke Herring," also purported to outline no other than Ben Hecht.

The personal animosities sketched above are only of passing interest. They have but little meaning for the student of contemporary literature, nor do they improve the calibre of the books themselves. On the other hand all the books, which use the name of our race, have a definite significance for us.

It is accepted that too many people misunderstand the Jews. It is also granted that few know the Jewish people outside of books and hearsay. Since this is the case, any writer who uses the name of Jew should feel a specific responsibility. He is bringing to hundreds of Gentiles a picture by which they may praise or condemn us.

Ben Hecht's book, "A Jew In Love," is an unsavory portrait of a man whom few of us should want to know. What is most important is the realization that he is not Jewish, either in mind or action. He has no nationality or racial character, as such, and he might belong to any group. Therefore, the use of the word Jew in the title is a gross injustice. It is not artistically necessary, and ethically, it is unfair.

Because we must watch our reputations as Jews, we must discourage the appearance in literature of untruths and exaggerations concerning us. Our own people, in this instance, in order to satisfy a personal grievance, are managing to hurt our status by their poisonous writing. If we could only forget ourselves in our work, applying the impersonal to our critical and creative art, we should certainly not find in the long run that defamatory literature, whether it be of a people or of a person or of a thing, has wisdom or necessity. Each race must guard against tactlessness. In these modern novelists, we have a case in point.

By the Way

Jewish Personalities

acter than the African blacks, my informant says. After they have marked you mentally, as to patience, they watch you for honesty—for dependability for keeping your word. And after they have summed up your Character Quotient, they give you a name on the basis of that appraisal.

I asked my newspaper friend what his nickname was. He rather blushed and hesitantly admitted, "The Square Man."

And if you know this Jewish Trader Horn you will agree that this was a pretty good appraisal.

Legalism Is Defended

At last, a good word is being said for "Jewish legalism." Years ago, it was the fashion in theology to decry Judaism as being a religion of justice, where Christianity emphasized a higher ideal, namely, love. Some of us drew consolation when Herbert Spencer came along in his Ethics and took the Jewish point of view, declaring that justice was the superior ideal. The fight raged. There was in it among others, such a redoubtable protagonist as Achad Haam. Only a few years ago, an American Rabbi, Maxwell Silver, brother of Abba Hillel Silver, of Cleveland, wrote a book on the thesis of Justice vs. Love.

Puritanism and Judaism

Along with this attack, the Jewish front was subjected to attack from another direction. Judaism was legalistic—it was the religion of "Thou shalt not," etc.

Puritanism, the spirit which really fashioned the warp and woof of our American civilization, was Hebraic in Origin. The Puritans, too, were always "thou shalt notting." The fact that after all, a great American civilization had been built up around this Puritanism did not matter. The fact that the Puritans could have chosen the New Testament, but did not, but instead chose the Old Testament for their guide did not matter.

Mr. Adams Speaks

Now there comes a defender to the "thou shalt not." And strangely enough, the defender is one of those apostles of that younger generation of libertarianism. He is none other than James Truslow Adams.

In that symposium, "Living Credo," which has just come off the press, Adams defends "Thou shalt not" philosophy from the very standpoint on which it is attacked. He declares that the "thou shalt not" attitude permits more, instead of less freedom.

"Negative commands in general, are far less limiting than positive ones."

He adds: This is equally true in the moral sphere. Consider the much abused Ten Commandments of the Jews. Is there not a much larger sphere of free action left to us by "Thou shalt not steal or bear false witness or commit adultery" than by Christ's, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself?"

You get the point, though Adams has an unfortunate way of putting it, for if I recall my Old Testament, the sentence, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself" first appears there.

Those Yankee Names

Mr. Adams is only typical in attributing something of Old Testament origin to the New Testament. Here is a similar case. I have here before me a copy of the New York American, which reviews a book, "All Alongshore," depicting Yankee life in New England. The reviewer is impressed by the Yankee names, which abound in the book and he gives a rather long list of these Yankee names. Here is the list: Benjamin Oaks, Gadiel Blodgett, Seth Gott, Jehiel Bena, Ahira Ellis, Salathiel Doane, Zephaniah Bloomer, Issachar Snow, Elanthan Snow and Obed Nickerson.

Do you see the same thing I do? Every one of these first names comes from the Old Testament. Yet they are pointed to as a marvelous collection of Yankee cognomens. They are that, in a sense, for the early Yankees esteemed the Old Testament, more than the modern Jew does, and borrowed them. But still I think some acknowledgment to the Hebrew origin should have been made.

Federation Sues Joseph Schonthal Heirs for Bequest

Columbus, O., Aug. 7.—(JTA)—Suit for $250,000 has been entered by the Jewish Welfare Federation of this city and Miss Rose Sugarman, its executive director, against Samuel Summers, executor, and other heirs of the late Joseph Schonthal, beloved philanthropist, who died here a year and a half ago. Summers is a son-in-law of the deceased and among Columbus' most prominent Jews.

The suit charges that the terms of the late Mr. Schonthal's will have not been complied with and bequests to various institutions under the direction of the federation have not been paid.

"Dad" Schonthal, as he was familiarly known by everyone in this community, was the founder of the Infants' Home of Ohio and the Schonthal Community Center, and in his will made generous bequests to both these institutions as well as numerous others throughout the state and nation. He also left $10,000 to Miss Sugarman which she alleges has never been paid to her.

The Schonthal heirs, it is said, have failed to meet the terms of the will because the estate at the time of his death had shrunk considerably from the time the will was made. A codicil to the will was also set aside on the ground that the heirs did not have to comply with its terms according to law because it had not been in effect a sufficient length of time.

E. J. Schanfarber, President of the United Jewish Fund of Columbus and prominent attorney, is representing the federation in their suit.

One Last Fling

By NINE KAYE

Leaning back in the green plush chair of the parlor car, Lillie Hyman beat an impatient tattoo on the luggage ledge with her exquisitely shod foot. How bored she was! And all because David had persuaded her to bring Ruth Pollack along.

If Ruth weren't there, in the next chair, looking as demure and unworldly as she really was, Lillie would not have had to confine herself to her own company and that of the prim little girl from the South, whose startled grey eyes seemed to disapprove of so many things that Lillie did.

If Ruth weren't there, Lillie had merely to put her left hand into the bag in her lap and gently slip her engagement ring from her fourth finger and draw her hand out again—free for whatever adventures might come.

Instead, she was to have Ruth beside her all summer. Oh, why had she yielded to David and brought Ruth along? He had been so insistent, arguing that the Adirondacks would do Ruth's pale cheeks good. David had taken quite a fancy to Ruth since she had come north on a visit to David's mother. But then, Ruth had never met any man except David. Small wonder she worshipped him. And small wonder David liked Ruth. Who could resist such hero worship?

Certainly he wasn't going to get it from her. Lillie smiled a crooked smile at the thought. In her smooth, urbane manner, Lillie let David see that she admired him, his brains, his looks and his position in the world. That was quite sufficient, nowadays, on which to base a marriage. Besides, they "went well together." Lillie Hyman and David Levy. Their wedding was to be one of the social events of the fall.

In the meantime, there was the whole summer for one last fling, one last affair, and Lillie wasn't going to let a simple little lamb like Ruth Pollack spoil anything for her.

Their hotel was a long, low rambling lodge on the edge of a great, black lake. Around the lake and on the other side, pine trees pointed heavenward with threatening fingers. Lillie had chosen this place, so she explained to David, that she might "get away from the crowd I'm always meeting. I'll see them for the rest of my life."

They came down to dinner the first evening. Lillie poised, her black hair parted in the center, drawn tightly behind her ears and spread fan-shape on her neck. She wore jade earrings and a dress of sheerest black velvet. In it she looked like a statue wrapped in stuff softer than marble. Ruth's short brown hair was caught back with a silver band. Her dress was white and her slippers silver. A ripple of excitement passed through the dining room as they followed the waiter to their table. Men raised their shoulders, women their heads.

There were many who sought to dance with them as the music started on the veranda after dinner. Ruth danced with one after another without noticing anyone in particular, until a bronze young giant swung her out onto the floor. While they danced he told her he was the swimming instructor at the hotel. Just out of college he had taken this summer job before looking around and settling down. She danced with him a second time and found herself wondering what David would think of him.

Then she was dancing with someone else and she saw the young swimming instructor dance by with Lillie in his arms.

Ruth did not give anyone the next dance. She hoped the instructor would come and ask her for another dance. But she did not see him nor Lillie.

With a sudden weariness she went up to their room, telling herself that she didn't feel the least bit disappointed. Lillie came in much later. Ruth watched her as she moved about in the dark with long, cat-like movements, undressing by the dim moonlight that filtered into the room. A lump in her throat kept Ruth from speaking.

The next morning Lillie said to Ruth, as they went about their dressing, "You know, my dear, you've made a killing already. Robert Freedman, the swimming instructor, told me he thinks you're lovely."

Ruth felt a flush of pleasure color her cheeks. "Really? He only danced with me twice."

"Yes, he told me you seem so fragile, something to worship from afar. I think he's already in love with you."

Ruth covered her embarrassment with a laugh.

Followed lazy summer days. And it really seemed that Rob was in love with her. At least, Lillie was always telling her so. And Rob was so considerate of her. He would not let her stay up late, but urged, with Lillie, that she run and get her beauty sleep. And then he would go to walk with Lillie and they would talk about her. When Lillie came in, she'd tell her all the things Rob had said about her. Ruth, her arm encircling the pillow, told herself she would have liked to have Rob tell them to her himself. But this was almost as good.

On the train back to the city, after Rob had stowed them in and seen that they were comfortable, Ruth turned her sorrowful eyes to Lillie. "Oh, he's gone without saying anything about seeing me in the city. Maybe he doesn't really care."

Lillie's eyes were almost black. "Little fool. Do you think summer flirtations mean anything at the end of the summer? The best thing you do is forget him."

At first the ache was so great Ruth thought that she could never get over it. But seeing David seemed to have a tonic effect. "If I could just tell him about it, I know I'd feel better. I know he'd understand," Ruth murmured to herself as her visit north drew to a close.

"Robert Freedman? Sure that was his name?" David asked, after she had told him the whole story, how he had told Lillie how much he liked her, how he and Lillie were always together, talking about his love for her. David repeated the name again, "Robert Freedman. Robert Freedman."

Then, before Ruth realized what was happening, he gathered her in his arms and kissed her. Ruth had the quick, guilty feeling that she could love David, if he weren't Lillie's.

"You don't love him, little Ruth," David whispered. "You just think you do because Lillie told you to. Yesterday she asked me to find a place in my office for Robert Freedman. Said she'd met him at the hotel and thought I could do something for him. I can release Lillie from her engagement, so she can marry him—if she wants to!"

Everybody was shocked when David Levy married the little girl from the South, the daughter of an old friend of his mother.

And Lillie? Still as poised and gorgeous as ever, she is unmarried.

Married

MRS. B. M. C. POULTEN

The former Miss Pauline Chorney who was married on August 1

Poulten-Chorney

A most charming wedding took place on Saturday evening, Aug. 1, at Zinn's Banquet Hall, when Miss Pauline Chorney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Chorney, of Olney street, was united in marriage with Ben M. C. Poulten, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cohen, of Pitman street. Rabbi Osher Werner and Rabbi Levine performed the nuptials.

A bower of white roses and lilies of the valley was the setting for the ceremony and the entire hall was decorated with roses and palms.

The bride wore a gown of white satin and Alencon lace with a cap shape veil of tulle and Alencon lace caught with orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet was of lilies of the valley and brides roses.

The attendants were Miss Sadie Chorney, maid of honor; bridesmaids, Miss Diane G. Chorney, sister of the bride, Miss Sarah Fleishman of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Miss Diane Covinsky, cousins of the bride, Miss I. Edythe Karp of Dorchester, Mass., and Miss Irene Babbitt of Worcester, Mass. The little flower girls were Dolores L. Fleishman of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Adelle Covinsky of this city.

Mr. Charles L. Cohen, the bridegroom's brother, was best man and the ushers were Norman L. Feinberg, Dr. Harold F. Klibanoff, Charles Gombert, Irving Ovrisky and Peter Feinstein.

The maid of honor wore a Vionnet model of peach crepe and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses. The bridesmaids wore gowns of pastel hue crepe and satin and carried bouquets of American beauties. The little flower girls were dressed in flesh colored chiffon and carried old fashioned bouquets of gladiolas.

Mrs. Chorney wore a gown of black chiffon and lace with a shoulder corsage of Talisman roses and the bridegroom's mother was gowned in printed chiffon and wore Talisman roses.

Upon their return from a motor trip to New Hampshire and Maine, Mr. and Mrs. Poulten will live at 16 Donelson street.

Council Women Launch Vocational Guidance Plans

New York City, Aug. 7—A total of 62 Sections of the National Council of Jewish Women are energetically at work, studying their local communities to ascertain their vocational guidance needs. In promoting their plans, they are conferring with the local Superintendent of Schools, librarians and heads of city and state bureaus, to determine the status of such work and the directions in which vocational guidance service should be enlarged.

In communities where vocational guidance activities are sponsored by the schools, the Council Sections are turning their attention to the hundreds of girls and boys who are not in school.

Under the direction of the Council's Department of Vocational Guidance and Employment, of which Mrs. Francis D. Pollak is chairman, and Miss Esther Ladewick, secretary, study groups are enabled to secure adequate training for service in this field.

District conferences have been held for the instruction of the Council Sections and their members, a recent one in Connecticut having been attended by more than 200 Council Sections representatives.

Jewish Home for Aged Association Plans Fall Meeting

The Jewish Home for the Aged Association is planning a "Good Will Luncheon" to be held at its opening fall meeting on Oct. 7.

Summer absences have in the past caused a falling off of dues, so that the organization began its work in the fall with a large deficit. The officers hope that the support given to the "Good Will Luncheon" will help to remove the handicap.

Mrs. J. Goldenberg Honored by Friends Before Trip Abroad

Mrs. Jonas Goldenberg, who is sailing for Europe with her daughter, Bella, on the S. S. George Washington, Aug. 26, was the guest of honor at a luncheon and bridge tendered her by friends at the Weber Duck Inn.

Three tables were in play and prizes were won at each table by Mrs. M. Golden, Mrs. M. Chusmir and Mrs. L. Wallman.

The guest of honor was presented with a corsage bouquet and a gift.

OLDEST JEWESS, POLAND, DEAD

Warsaw, Aug. 7—(JTA)—Mrs. Blime Goldstein, believed to be the oldest Jewess in Poland, died here Monday at the age of 111, as the result of an accident she suffered several months ago while traveling with her son who came to see her from America.

LEDGEMONT COUNTRY CLUB

Play in the qualifying round for the Governor's Trophies has started and will continue through Aug. 16th.

Newt Bellin has returned from his vacation and has been receiving many compliments on his "hole in one" at the Mt. Pleasant Country Club, Worcester.

Next Tuesday there will be a handicap tournament for ladies.

ANTWERP CELEBRATE OPENING OF HOME FOR THE AGED

Antwerp, Aug. 7—(JTA)—Celebrations were recently held in this city upon the occasion of the opening of a Home for the Aged. The home was largely the gift of the diamond merchant, Moses Finkelstein.

Recently, too, the city celebrated the opening of the Jewish Orphan Asylum.

Council of Jewish Women's Camp Doing Good Work

The Council of Jewish Women's Camp at Barrington, R. I., has as its Camp Committee Chairman, Mrs. Saul Rothschild. The second group of children is now at the Camp, 18 girls being there at a given time. The kiddies are enjoying their wholesome, plentiful meals to such an extent that they are gaining from two to nine pounds each during their stay at Camp. This is highly gratifying, especially as the great majority of the children who come to this Camp are undernourished and need out-of-door life.

The children enjoy their daily recreational program, with its games, dramatics, singing, hiking and swimming. The nearness to the beach of the Camp this year is proving to be a decided asset, as water stunts, swimming and just being on the beach always add greatly to the pleasure of the youngsters at Camp. Mrs. Leavitt is capably and amiably occupying the position of Camp Director.

While the raising of funds this year, and the getting of the Camp under way caused the Camp Committee many arduous days, yet the results thus far attained justify the effort. The total amount necessary to finance the Camp is not entirely on hand, and it is hoped that all friends of the Council who have not yet contributed toward the Camp fund, will send in their contributions at as early a time as possible.

Mrs. Lester Summerfield has been in charge of registration and transportation of the children, and this has assured effective and safe transfer of the children, as Mrs. Summerfield has personally accompanied groups to camp, besides arranging to have some member of the committee do so. Many others have freely helped to make possible this beneficial and splendid vacation for underprivileged children. Mrs. Milton M. Fuld is camp treasurer. Mrs. Saul Rothschild desires to thank all those who have so generously given of their time, as well as money, to make possible this undertaking. The splendid co-operation, which Mrs. Rothschild has received, is highly appreciated.

It is hoped that all those who have assisted or are otherwise interested in the Camp will make an opportunity to visit it, and see the happy little ones who are having this chance for building up and growing stronger.

Mrs. Gussie Nelson has worked for the Camp by soliciting food supplies and contributions.

Mrs. Meyer Tenenbaum is assisting Mrs. Lester Summerfield, chairman, in preparing the children for admittance to the camp.

The camp is caring for 19 children every two weeks.

MILESTONE NAMED LEADING DIRECTOR OF MOVIES IN U. S.

Jewish Movie Director Named by Critics of Country as Best in America

New York, Aug. 7—(JTA)—The best moving picture director in the United States for the year 1930-1931 is Lewis Milestone, whose greatest pictures were "All Quiet on the Western Front" and "The Front Page," according to 252 out of 300 critics who were polled by Film Daily. Milestone received 252 out of a possible 300 votes.

Milestone, who was born in Kishinev, Roumania, in 1898, came to the United States as a penniless immigrant lad, 16 years ago. He began his career as an itinerant street photographer. When the United States entered the World War he enlisted in the aviation corps where he met one of the Warner brothers, who gave Milestone a job as a photographer in the Warner Studios when the war was over.

When films depicting Russian life became the vogue, Milestone achieved considerable fame by his productions of such pictures. Later he joined the Universal Pictures Corporation and achieved world renown with the picture version of Remarque's great book.

The Book Case

Comments on Jewish Authors and Their Books
By FRIEDA R. BIENSTOCK

It has finally penetrated to even our somewhat occupied consciousness that the summer is upon us in full strength. Most of us, the more fortunate ones anyhow, are even now in the throes of hectic preparations for the so-called summer rest. And from all sides I hear the question: "What's a good book to take along to read on the train or in a hammock?" Now that's not an easy question. Most of us, though, incline toward the lighter and less wearing material for summer perusal. An interesting novel, a good detective story, a well-planned adventure tale all have a good market among vacation readers. And I have made up a list, a short one to be sure, of some of the volumes that readers of this column and myself have enjoyed on previous vacations or during illnesses. Some of the books are new and some are not so new. But all are easily procurable and moderately priced.

1001 Afternoons in Chicago, by Ben Hecht. A splendid collection of short stories dating back to the time when the now noted movie writer and novelist was a star reporter on a Chicago daily and did a column that was a column!

The Good Earth, by Pearl Buck. A fascinating novel based on a Chinese family.

Speakeasy Girl, by Bobbie Meredith. The low-down on a low-down type that has grown up with Prohibition. Shocking, but certainly interesting if true!

Duke Herring, by Maxwell Bodenheim. Review in this column.

Amok, by Stefan Zweig. A novellette by a master novelist.

Reader, I Married Him, by Anne Green.

Chelsea House (Poetry), by Horace Gregory.

Soldiers' Pay, by William Faulkner and Sanctuary by the same author. They're both better than most books that have been published in a month of Sundays!

Dawn, by Theodore Dreiser. A long portion of his autobiography. It's fascinating though.

The Glass Key, by Dashiell Hammett. Or any other of his several detective stories. They're every one better than—well anyhow read them and see!

About the Murder of the Clergyman's Mistress, by Anthony Abbott and About the Murder of Geraldine Foster, by the same author. Perfectly gorgeous, blood-curdling mysteries.

We will call it a day now. For further information about summer reading write us, phone or telegraph. We're not having any vacation, so we'll have plenty of time to think about what reading material you ought to take with you on your trip.

There's been Count Bruga by Ben Hecht and there's been A Jew in Love by Ben Hecht and rumor in the literary circles has it that a certain poet and author seemed to feel that the heroes of both these books were meant to be caricatures of him.

Now comes Duke Herring by Maxwell Bodenheim. We aren't saying a word but draw your own conclusions. It does look as though Mr. Bodenheim were having his revenge on someone! He's drawn a perfectly vicious but lifeless character of a writer whose efforts with women are ludicrous, whose work is destroying other people's characters and who deludes himself completely about his own character and desires. Ben Hecht might have been able to write this book and write it well. Corey Ford could have done a fine caricature of the hero. But Bodenheim, blinded by his evident malice, piles on the faults so heavily and ridicules so consistently that one is forced to admit the final effect is theatrical and most unconvincing. However, if you want to know how Mr. Bodenheim feels about Mr. Herring, read the book, which has been published by Liveright ($2). You'll be having a Maxwell Bodenheim peep into the private lives of a very well known author and his publisher!

It's a relief to get away from Bodenheim's intensity and inanity to a book about just gangsters and dope fiends and houses of ill-fame, such as form the background for Bobbie Meredith's Speakeasy Girl, published by Covici-Friede ($2). It's not high-brow and it isn't profound. But it rings very true and is a well told tale of what the publishers call "a new kind of girl in America . . . the speakeasy is her office just as the saloon was once her father's club. All men are her play-fellows, all women her enemies!"

Before we close our book pronouncements for the week one more should be added having to do with summer reading. We recommend whole-heartedly for those who have any interest in the gigantic experiment now going on in Russia a thin little volume packed with interest: "The New Russian Primer."

NOTES ABOUT AUTHORS

Harry Salpeter, formerly of the World, is spending some time at Yaddo, that haven for the writer who wants to get work done and is fortunate enough to get invited. . . . Despite the business depression, four new publishing houses have been optimistic enough to open their doors at a time when most other publishers are staggering around glassy-eyed to figure a sure best-seller.

Only TRUTHFUL TIRE ADVERTISING WINS!

WHEN we advertised the fact that Firestone was furnishing us complete lines of Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires that not only met the price but beat the quality and construction of every grade of special brand tires sold by mail order houses and others, the mail order houses made vigorous protests to Better Business Bureaus and made demands upon newspapers not to accept Firestone or our advertising.

We cannot blame them for they did not want car owners to know that they could get, at no more cost, a better tire made by a leading manufacturer, bearing his name and guarantee plus our guarantee and our service.

When car owners awakened to this fact, they came to us, compared the sections we had cut from Firestone Tires and special brand mail order tires, and were astounded at the Extra Values we were giving.

As a result, our business and that of other Firestone Dealers throughout the country, increased so fast that it has been necessary for Firestone to run their factories twenty-four hours a day and Firestone sold more tires in April, May and June than in any like period in the history of the company.

In our advertising we do not make comparisons involving laboratory tests which you cannot verify except in a laboratory—neither do we make comparisons of construction or price based on misleading classifications such as first line tire, second line tire or third line tire—we do not make comparisons to confuse and mislead you as to actual values and service—we only make statements and comparisons that you can verify for yourself in our store before you purchase the tire.

Come in today and get the greater safety, extra quality and extra values found only in Firestone Tires.

*When the National Better Business Bureau realized that their Bulletin No. 634 was being taken advantage of by some advertisers they issued a Bulletin dated July 10th as follows:

"In our Bulletin No. 634 entitled 'Definitions of Terms Used in the Tire Industry' we published definitions of First Line—Second Line—Third Line—Heavy Duty and Super Heavy Duty Tires.

"Our definitions pointed out, 'Although each manufacturer's or distributor's first line tire may represent his best standard size 4 or 6 ply tire, there is not necessarily any equality of competitive first line tires as to materials, workmanship or price.' This interpretation also applies to all lines of tires.

"We therefore recommend that advertising to the consumer shall avoid the use of these terms for the purpose of comparing competitive products."

*A "Special Brand" Tire is made by a manufacturer for distributors such as Mail Order houses, oil companies and others, under a name that does not identify the tire manufacturer to the public, usually because he builds his "best quality" tires under his own name. Firestone puts his name on every tire he makes.

Double Guarantee—Every tire manufactured by Firestone bears the name Firestone and carries Firestone's unlimited guarantee and ours. You are doubly protected.

Teachers' Federation Condemns Race Bias

Chicago, Aug. 7—(JTA)—Opposition to discrimination against teachers on religious or racial grounds was voiced in a resolution adopted at the annual convention of the American Federation of Teachers.

The Federation also went on record as opposing religious instruction in the public schools.

Schoolmaster Fools Sneering Politicians

Tarrytown, N. Y., Aug. 7—(JTA)—The sneers of Tarrytown's political bosses at Eugene H. Lehman, a school teacher, who has become Mayor of this town, are now things of the past.

The Schoolmaster Mayor has dropped his ruler and is wielding a mop over the town's speakeasies and has enlisted the public in a clean-up campaign, which is proving a real sensation.

SPORTING WORLD

NEWS WRITTEN FOR THE JEWISH HERALD by GEORGE JOEL

JOE JACOBS LEADING FIGHT MANAGER

Joe Jacobs, a young Jewish boy, has come up from nowhere and is now the biggest individual in the fight business. As manager of the heavyweight champion, Max Schmeling, he is easily the outstanding fight manager, and with him rests in great part the future of professional boxing in America.

Born on the West Side of New York City, Jacobs went through one of the public schools and from there attended Commercial High School from which he was graduated with scholastic honors.

His father ran a tailor shop on West 38th street. Joe was one of five children and was what is known as a good family boy. He had only one weakness—he liked to hang around prize fighters. As a kid he was a rabid follower of fistie affairs. Although not a fighter himself, he saw great possibilities in the game as a business, and even before he was out of high school he already had a few boxers on his pay roll. Joe had the fight game in his blood and he got more kick out of it than a drug addict does out of a good sniff.

As a small time fight manager he came to the attention of the late Tex Rickard, the great fight impresario, who adopted him—he was Tex's idea of a real fight manager. Joe Williams, the sports writer, said recently: "If Tex hadn't died you would have the interesting picture of this little Jewish boy and the swash-buckling taciturn Texan dominating the fight game of America."

Even without Tex, Jacobs will dominate the game. His first important fighter was Mike McTigue, the light-heavyweight. McTigue was a cautious boxer until he put himself in Jacobs' hands. The Jewish boy realizing what the public wanted made Mike over into a slugger and between them they cleaned up a fortune.

No one can deny that Jacobs made Schmeling a heavyweight champion. How he got Max away from his German manager is another story. He says that he was petitioned to take him, but there is the undeniable fact that Max was willing to be taken, and he seems to have fallen into very capable hands.

Jacobs has no background as backgrounds are measured today. Yet he has had more experiences and has done more by sheer smartness and daring, than most of the great fight managers whose exploits fill the papers these days.

NATIE BROWN BEATS MARTY FOX

On one of the scorching evenings of last week this column moved over to the Queensboro A. C. again and saw six of the best prize fights these unblinking eyes ever witnessed.

Natie Brown, the California Jewish heavyweight, the young man who is said to have outboxed Schmeling, was showing his wares against another Jewish heavyweight named Marty Fox. It was an eight-round battle and Natie won easily, but I failed to see any real possibilities in either fighter. Fox is clever and pretty to watch, but lacks a punch. Brown is strong, willing, and a heavy hitter, but lacks that unfathomable something that marks the potential champion.

WANTED JEWISH PROFESSIONAL FOOTBALL PLAYER

The departure of Benny Friedman, quarterback of the N. Y. Football Giants, to Yale as backfield coach, has upset Owner Mara. Benny had quite a Jewish following and Mara hates to see it go. So far the only Jewish football player Mara has been able to sign is Hammy Stein, one of Jack Curley's wrestlers. Stein is expected to furnish the attraction which was lost when Friedman deserted professional ranks.

Sammy Stein is a sandlot graduate, no college reputation proceeds him. He is one of the best ends in the circuit and his reckless play without a headgear made him a local favorite last season when he played with the Stapleton team.

Whenever he played at the Polo Grounds he had the crowd with him, and it is hoped that as a member of the Giants next season he will continue to draw the paying customers.

LONGWOOD CLUB NOT RITZY

I feel terrible. A few weeks ago I wrote a piece in this column about a couple of Jewish tennis players from Boston, members of the Franklin Field Tennis Club. To show my customers how well thought of they were, I mentioned the fact that the Longwood Cricket Club was even impressed with them. Up to that point everything was rosy, but then I slipped—I remarked that the Longwood Cricket Club was a "doggy and ritzy outfit" or orders to that effect.

According to Mr. Edward L. Weisberg of Boston, whose attention was called to my piece, I was wrong about the Longwood members, and as Mr. Weisberg says, "They are not ritzy people. In fact they are very broad-minded and desirous of helping the Franklin Field Tennis Club at all times."

Mr. Weisberg suggests that I print an apology. Here it is. The Longwood Cricket Club members are neither ritzy nor doggy. I am sorry I brought it up. I must say I never knew that the appellations mention were derogatory terms.

CHATTERINGS

Baroness Levi played Mrs. Moody, nee Helen Wills, in the Seabright Bowl Tourney. The Jewish girl got exactly one game in two sets, which gives you an idea of how far removed our Jewish girls are from the championship class.

Johnny Nogardy, the young junior tennis star, did beat Marco Hecht, the national indoor champion, in the semi-final round of the Long Island championships, but Johnny lost the finals to a Jewish boy named Friedman the very next day.

Fred Singleton, star tackle of last year's Alabama's football team, will coach at Duke University this fall. He and Rothstein of Georgia are the only Jewish coaches in the South.

Things have become so tough that they are even playing miniature tennis. Courts, about a quarter the size of the regulation, have sprung up all over New York.

Poland Moves to End Anti-Jewish Riots at Games

Government Has Sent Circulars to Sports Clubs With Regulations Providing for Safety to All

Warsaw, Aug. 7—(JTA)—The Polish Government last Saturday moved to prevent football games and other sporting events between Christian and Jewish teams from degenerating into anti-Semitic disturbances as they have done in the last six weeks in Zloczew, Radom, Lublin, Dombrowe and Sosnowitz.

The government this week circularized all sports clubs in the country with a series of regulations providing for safety at future athletic matches.

Simultaneously the Polish Association of Sports Clubs also decided to take strong measures against any possible repetition of anti-Jewish riots such as those that have marred games in five different cities during and after the games.

The executive of the association has worked out a plan providing for severe punishment for those of its members responsible for any such riots in the future.

An investigation into Thursday's report of last week that thirty Jews had been injured in Lublin after a football game between a Christian and a Jewish team today, established that no one had been injured and only a few Jews beaten up.

Bernard Silverman Heads Oakland Civil Service Board

Oakland, Cal., Aug. 7—(JTA)—Bernard Silverstein, who was recently appointed Civil Service Commissioner, has been elected President of the Civil Service Board.

Mr. Silverstein, who is an attorney, is President of the Oakland B'nai B'rith Lodge, Vice President of the Oakland Jewish Federation, Vice President of the United Jewish Welfare Fund of Oakland and Vice President of the Legal Aid Society.

His family were pioneers in Oakland.

APPROVE MERGER OF AMERICAN POALE ZION AND ZEIRE ZION

New York, Aug. 7—(JTA)—The union of the American Poale Zion party and the Hitachduth Zeire Zion has been approved by the Poale Zion world conference recently held in Vienna, according to a cablegram just received here at the headquarters of the American Poale Zion.

The Poale Zion world conference also adopted a resolution favoring a union of the two Jewish labor parties throughout the world.
