Tidbits and News of Jewish Personalities
By DAVID SCHWARTZ

He Wouldn't Give

There is one business man in Chicago who would probably be interested in this Rosenwald story. But he'll never know it.
But maybe—who knows—he may have suspected it himself.
Well, anyway, this business man, whom we shall call X, was a problem for the Jewish Charities of Chicago. They had asked him for a contribution of a thousand dollars. But he could say no in all kinds of languages to a charity appeal.
Mr. Rosenwald, it will be remembered, not only gave heavily to the Jewish Charities of Chicago, but took an active interest in getting others to give. When Rosenwald heard of X's refusal, he said: "Let me handle X."

But a Trap Is Set

One day, Rosenwald ran into X at a club. "Ran in" is not exactly the word, for on Rosenwald's part, it had been premeditated. "Hello, Mr. X," said Rosenwald.
X was plainly excited by Rosenwald giving him such a generous greeting.
"How is business?" asked Rosenwald.
The truth is that business was then pretty good with X, but to Rosenwald, he described it as even much better than it actually was. X went into raptures in his description of how the money was flowing in.
"Glad to hear it, indeed," said Rosenwald. "And, by the way, have you thought of your contribution to the Jewish Charities. I am on the committee this year and would like to bring it in. I was going to ask you for a three thousand dollar contribution, but from what you tell me about your business, I think you ought to make it five thousand."
"Well, no—three thousand is enough," replied X. "I have to help out, you know, my wife's mishpacha."
And so it was three thousand. "And they only asked me first for a thousand," X must have mused to himself as Rosenwald left.

A Lithuanian Outrage

I don't know whether the Federation of Lithuanian Jews is still existing or not. But if it is and Mr. Henry Hurwitz is still its President, I call upon Mr. Hurwitz to summon the Lithuanians in solemn convocation. For a great issue impends. I dare say the Lithuanians have never faced a more challenging one.
It is nothing less than that herring has gone Al Caponish. The national dish of the Litvacks, I am told, is now as much in the province of Gangsterdom as beer and laundries.
It seems a little silly to think of anyone being put on the spot for attempting to muscle in selling herring to dealers, but this, I am told, by authentic sources, is just what happens.
There you sit, beloved reader—in your home on the Jersey meadows or perchance far out on the plains of Nebraska or the mountains of Colorado partaking in all innocence of your herring and kartofel. You think you are a good Jew—and maybe a good Litvak. But do you know that for that quiet munch of yours, men in New York are being taken for a ride?
Oh, for an Edward Robinson to appear in some cinema, which shall adequately depict the great herring outrages,—shall show the gangster mercilessly devouring men with his machine gun as you devour the salty herring.

Two O'Clock In the Morning

One does not feel like listening to new proposals for religious peace at two in the morning. But what can you do, when you are sitting in a Sec-

LOUIS UNTERMAYER TO LECTURE SUNDAY AT JEWISH CENTER

One of America's Greatest Poets and Critics to Talk on "The Glory of the Common Place"

Called by the late Amy Lowell "the most versatile genius in America," Louis Untermeyer, poet, critic and anthologist and the third star in the Jewish Center All-Star Course, will speak before the members of the Jewish Community Center on "The Glory of the Common Place," Sunday evening, Jan. 17th, at 8:30 o'clock.

Mr. Untermeyer's most widely known works in verse includes "Challenge," "Roast Leviathan," "These Times," "The New Adam," "Parodies" and "Yesterday and Today" and the recently published "Burning Bush," which has been hailed as his most mature and brilliant collection. A novel, "Moses," published this past year, was followed by "Blue Rhine and Black Forest," which is one of Mr. Untermeyer's outstanding contributions to literature. His anthologies are in popular use throughout the country as college text-books, and his poems, essays and criticisms appear on the shelves of every important university library.

His record of achievement in the field of poetry, parody and criticism are almost without parallel. He is America's most widely read poet; abroad, and his collections and anthologies have sold by the hundreds of thousands. At home, he is generally recognized as the most brilliant poet of his generation.

As a critic, Mr. Untermeyer has long been noted for his curious blend of the assassin removed Lincoln, the son of Augusta Hammerslough Rosenwald was not yet five years old. Yet Lincoln though dead must have been a vital factor in the formative years of Rosenwald's youth. His father and mother had known personally many of the friends of the great "rail splitter president" and Rosenwald himself had listened to stories about Honest Abe from some of the Springfield pioneers, who had known him.

But there are more than the ties of geography and atmosphere to remind one of Lincoln in the personality of Julius Rosenwald. There was a kinship in their philosophies and in their ways of living.

Lincoln was the statesman of the masses. "God," he said, "must have loved the common people, or he would not have made so many of them." His Gettysburg address reaches its highest in the declaration that this is a government of the people, by the people and for the people. Always Lincoln saw the great masses.

Likewise Rosenwald in his business and philanthropies seemed almost unable to think unless it was in terms of the great masses. The business in which he achieved his great success—the mail order business—is essentially a democratic one. Probably no book except the Bible ever achieved so widespread a distribution as the Sears-Roebuck catalog.

Similarly in his philanthropies, Rosenwald was always thinking of the average man, rather than the select few. While some philanthropists were buying with their millions rare bits of art work, which they presented to museums—while other philanthropists were giving their money for the erection of beautiful stadiums and university halls named after the givers, Rosenwald went down to the very bottom of the ladder and sought out the most neglected of peoples.

Lincoln thought that a negro was entitled to freedom as much as the white. Rosenwald similarly thought that a negro was entitled to education as much as the white. Today, thanks to the gifts and influence of Julius Rosenwald, there are some five thousand Rosenwald schools in the South, in which the colored child is given instruction in home making, simple farming, elementary and mechanical education. More than a half million of colored children are thus getting an education, which but for Rosenwald, they would not receive. Julius Rosenwald was the greatest friend the negro had since Abraham Lincoln.

It is not that Julius Rosenwald was interested in negroes more than in other peoples. Thomas Paine once remarked: "Where liberty is not, there is my country." Paine, of course, did not mean that he preferred the liberty-less country personally. What he did mean was that it was his duty to live in the land where the need for him was greatest.

So Rosenwald might have said: "Where the need is greatest, I go." And where the need was greatest, he gave the most, irrespective of color and creed.
Yet Rosenwald never forget the people from which he sprang. Probably no man in modern times has given so much to Jewish philanthropy since the days of Baron de Hirsch than Julius Rosenwald. His gift of six millions to the Agro-Joint for Jews in Russia is one of the high marks of Jewish philanthropy.

Here, too, it will be noted that Rosenwald was thinking—just as he thought in his mail order business—in terms of the multitude.

Obviously, one may stretch this democratic note in Rosenwald's philanthropic endeavors to the point of distortion. To say that Rosenwald was primarily interested in his philanthropies, in the average man, is by no means to imply that only the average man interested him. For the fact is, of course, that now and then, Rosenwald did give and then generously for more specialized purposes. He was, for example, a generous contributor of several millions to the University of Chicago—and he gave to a hundred different enterprises of a smaller dimension. But these smaller enterprises generally were not without some mass significance.

Campaign for the Joint Distribution Committee To Begin Here, Jan. 25

Henry Hassenfeld Leads Group of Prominent Men Who Have Pledged Support to Vital Cause

At a meeting and luncheon held Monday at the Narragansett Hotel, sponsored by Rabbi Samuel M. Gup, Rabbi Israel M. Goldman and Rabbi Maurice Mazure, and attended by a group of prominent Providence Jews, plans were outlined for the participation of Providence Jews in the 17th annual national appeal of the Joint Distribution Committee for the relief of millions of destitute Jews in Central and Eastern Europe. The national quota has been set at two and one-half million dollars and it was decided the local quota would be left open with every effort being made to raise as large a sum as possible.

Henry Hassenfeld accepted the chairmanship for Providence and it was decided to open the campaign on Jan. 25th. A group of volunteer workers will be recruited for the purpose of personally soliciting a selected list of contributors. Surrounding Mr. Hassenfeld in the direction of the effort are the following officers:

Adolph Meller and Harry Rosen, Vice Chairmen; Milton Sulzberger, Treasurer, and Dr. Joseph Smith, Secretary.

Declaring that man's highest function is his willingness to help his fellow-man in distress, and stating that while charity may rightfully begin at home it does not necessarily end there, Mr. Hassenfeld sounded the keynote of the campaign:

"I have assumed the chairmanship of the local Joint Distribution Committee Campaign in these trying economic days, owing to the fact that the knowledge of the sad and deplorable condition of millions of my fellow Jews in Eastern and Central Europe, and their ghastly plight has affected me deeply. I felt that in the face of the wholesale poverty, sickness and starvation of my fellow Jews, I could not refuse the tender to do my part to raise funds in Providence. And I feel encouraged in my undertaking by the offer of support which numerous others have extended to me."

The work of this organization has been proclaimed by world leaders, of all faiths, as the greatest achievement in human welfare in the history of the world. It would be a calamity if it were to stop now due to indifference caused by the temporary depression in our own land. The complete collapse of their orphanages, hospitals, health farms, free loan bureaus and other agencies of self-help would be the pathetic and direful result.

"As Senator William E. Borah remarked in the course of his lengthy address," said Mr. Hassenfeld, "signaling the launching of the campaign in New York at Carnegie Hall, 'Nowhere in all the world are conditions more distressing, more appealing than in that great region which we know as Central Europe. There are to be found literally millions left in almost utter hopeless ruin. In this country we have a vast population of Jews. It seems like a task largely for the Jewish people. Bravely and wisely and with great courage they have accepted the call. They are doing a great noble service. It must be carried on.'"

Local headquarters, the use of which has been donated by Mr. Thomas A. O'Gorman, are being established at room 208, O'Gorman building, 93 Eddy street, where the workers will make their reports after the campaign gets under way. All of the following, many of whom attended Monday's meeting, have been invited to serve on the Executive Committee:

- Rabbi Samuel M. Gup, Rabbi Israel M. Goldman, Rabbi Maurice M. Mazure, Joshua Bell, Dr. Ilie Berger, Robert Bernstein, Herman Bernstein, Rabbi Isaac Bick, Rabbi H. D. Bachrach, Alter Boyman, Ben Brier, Charles Brown, Charles C. Brown, Morris Bliss, Hon. Charles Brown, Henry Burt, Jonas Goldenberg, Jack Edelstein, Jacob Ernestof, C. stein, Vice President; Harry Blazer, Treasurer; Jacob Weiss, Financial Secretary; Abner Rosenberg, Recording Secretary; Harry Zuckerman, First Trustee; Adolph Brown, Second Trustee, and Jacob Silberman, Third Trustee.

with which they were affiliated in succession for the past twenty-four years.

A noteworthy feature of the association is the establishment of the old age fund and many members who have reached the age of 60 benefit by this arrangement.

The Louis Feiner Benevolent Association besides doing its full share of duty to its members in every form of benefit, is also liberally contributing to every worthy city institution and to many other charitable Jewish organizations throughout the country.

The Old, Old Story

By BERNARD M. GOLDOWSKY

"What have the Zionists accomplished in Palestine?"

That is the eternal question that non-Zionists ask. But what will avail one to come back to them with the question, "What have you as a Jew done to help accomplishing anything?"

The answer is as old as the question and neither has borne fruit thus far.

In 1917 the famous Balfour Declaration was given to the World Jewry. Who strenuously objected to it? Some Arabs and some Jews who are proud to be known as anti-Zionists. What mission anti-Zionists have in this world I have as yet been unable to learn; but that is their privilege.

In the fourteen years gone by, Jews have poured in millions and millions of dollars in lands outside of Palestine where Jews for centuries have been and still are Gayrim. What outstanding accomplishments, pray, are noted there?

Compare the two and what do you find?

On one hand, the Jew, who was helped to locate where he rightfully belongs, namely, Palestine, to whom the panorama of Jewish life was unrolled and who has since become Baal Habayis. On the other hand, the Jew in Eastern Europe, who received relief and was left there to be tossed to and fro like a ship on the waves of life's sea, and who is still a Mayvokaish Lochem. Is it or is it not a picture true to life?

Lest there is a misunderstanding this statement was not made with malice for the purpose of injuring any worthy cause for the relief of suffering. I am simply citing undisputable facts in answer to the question, "What have Zionists accomplished in Palestine?"

If those who ask that question are solicitous for their brethren in Palestine, why not join the Zionist Organization and take an active interest? And, by the way, the Zionist District of Providence is at this writing in the midst of a Membership Campaign.

There is a splendid assortment of yearly membership dues to choose from that will suit the most fastidious Jew, namely:

Sustaining.....$25.00
Associate.....10.00
Active.....6.00

Applications accompanied by checks will be gratefully received and highly appreciated by those who work untiringly for the upbuilding of Eretz Israel for Zionists or non-Zionists.

UPHOLDS LABOR DEPT. RIGHT TO BAR ALIEN RE-ENTRY

Washington, Jan. 15—(JTA)—The right of the Secretary of Labor to bar from re-entry into this country aliens who have been absent on protracted visits to their fatherland, was upheld by the Supreme Court.

The court's ruling was made in the case of Aspasia and Antigone Polymeris, natives of Greece, who visited their fathers in their native land in 1923. Previously they had lived in Brooklyn for 14 years. The father died recently and the couple tried to re-enter the United States. The Secretary of Labor excluded them and asked for a court ruling.

The Old, Old Story

By BERNARD M. GOLDOWSKY

"What have the Zionists accomplished in Palestine?"

That is the eternal question that non-Zionists ask. But what will avail one to come back to them with the question, "What have you as a Jew done to help accomplishing anything?"

The answer is as old as the question and neither has borne fruit thus far.

In 1917 the famous Balfour Declaration was given to the World Jewry. Who strenuously objected to it? Some Arabs and some Jews who are proud to be known as anti-Zionists. What mission anti-Zionists have in this world I have as yet been unable to learn; but that is their privilege.

In the fourteen years gone by, Jews have poured in millions and millions of dollars in lands outside of Palestine where Jews for centuries have been and still are Gayrim. What outstanding accomplishments, pray, are noted there?

Compare the two and what do you find?

On one hand, the Jew, who was helped to locate where he rightfully belongs, namely, Palestine, to whom the panorama of Jewish life was unrolled and who has since become Baal Habayis. On the other hand, the Jew in Eastern Europe, who received relief and was left there to be tossed to and fro like a ship on the waves of life's sea, and who is still a Mayvokaish Lochem. Is it or is it not a picture true to life?

Lest there is a misunderstanding this statement was not made with malice for the purpose of injuring any worthy cause for the relief of suffering. I am simply citing undisputable facts in answer to the question, "What have Zionists accomplished in Palestine?"

If those who ask that question are solicitous for their brethren in Palestine, why not join the Zionist Organization and take an active interest? And, by the way, the Zionist District of Providence is at this writing in the midst of a Membership Campaign.

There is a splendid assortment of yearly membership dues to choose from that will suit the most fastidious Jew, namely:

Sustaining.....$25.00
Associate..... 10.00
Active..... 6.00

Applications accompanied by checks will be gratefully received and highly appreciated by those who work untiringly for the upbuilding of Eretz Israel for Zionists or non-Zionists.

WHAT IS THE JOINT DISTRIBUTION COMMITTEE CAMPAIGN?

Rhode Island Jewry will be called upon beginning January 25th, to contribute to the Joint Distribution Committee Campaign. Because there has been no campaign in Rhode Island for eight years for relief of Jews in Eastern Europe, possibly many of our people are unfamiliar with its purposes and scope.

Starting in 1914 as a temporary war relief measure, the organization has evolved into the greatest general relief agency in Jewish history. It has meant the physical saving of millions of Eastern European Jews, and is working valiantly towards the work of the reconstruction of millions, through proper training and financial assistance so that they may learn useful trades and become self-supporting.

During the course of its sixteen years of existence, the Joint Distribution Committee has engaged in activities in over forty countries, its total expenditures having exceeded $80,000,000. President Hoover, intimately familiar with its work, has called it "the greatest feat of human engineering in history."

An emergency situation exists today, and if we think that we are going through hard-times here in this country, be assured that they are heavenly compared to their sad plight in Eastern and Central Europe.

The efforts of the Joint Distribution Committee for relief of the Jews in Europe should meet with our wholehearted response. Any person who is at all sensitive to human misery cannot fail to be shocked by the conditions depicted by actual observers of the scene in that hectic section of this so-called civilized world.

The Jews of Eastern Europe desperately need our help, and The Jewish Herald solicits the co-operation of every Jew, worthy of that name, in Rhode Island.

PRINCE OF PHILANTHROPISTS

The passing of Julius Rosenwald of Chicago marks the end of a man's life, but not of his great work. The greatest of modern philanthropists, we see in him a creative genius of imagination and heart, one who used not music or literature or science to bring him his wreath of fame but intelligent charity. In the final philosophy of living, such a creative genius fulfills the purpose which is demanded of every real artist: so to interpret life that it may be made enduring at worst and pleasurable at best. And thus exactly did Julius Rosenwald see his objective in life. He was determined to make the lives of others better and happier.

His tools were tangible ones, but the most difficult ones man is called upon to handle: American dollars. Each one uses these tools throughout the years of his work, but there are but few who become artists with them. The art of spending has attracted but few scholars for as a modern science, it is still in its infancy; as an art, it is practically unknown. Money has a habit of becoming unwieldy. Julius Rosenwald, however, was conscious of his wealth as a social responsibility. He understood deeply the social philosophy which Jews have carried in their hearts for centuries, and which makes them the greatest philanthropists of all times in every age. He was not selfish in his riches; he wanted to help the divine plan that shapes our ends.

He saw the broad fields of Soviet Russia, and he helped the Jews to colonize them. He saw the need for Jewish social workers in the New York tenements, and he built a school to train them. He gave generously to the support of universities from Chicago to Syria; and he helped to develop museums. He saw the needs of the sick, and he established a Medical Foundation. In every act, this man has demonstrated his ability to understand the needs of others, beyond his circle, outside his experience, but never beyond his horizon. In definitely expressing his wish that his philanthropies be continued by his children in the form of the Rosenwald Family Association, he has also expressed his faith that the fine motives that prompted him in the use of his wealth will also influence them. The greatest work that this man will have done belongs to the future.

The children of the prince of philanthropists have an even greater responsibility than their father had. He has set them an example which they must not only equal, but should attempt to surpass. Here was a father who gloried in anticipating the blessings which he could confer upon all the world. His duties were performed beautifully. The greatest tribute that will be said of this man in the future may be this: that his children were filled with the same greatness of soul as their father, and carried his art another step in their lives.

ond avenue cafe, and it's pouring cats, dogs and rattle snakes outside. So until the rain subsides, we listen. Besides, the apostle of religious peace has a queer look and we are a little afraid of him.

We think of the Ancient Mariner at once, and in our mind there begins to rotate: "By thy long gray beard and glittering eye," etc. Not that he had a long gray beard. He had merely the stubs of one—a face that looked like it had needed a shave for about three days. But the glittering eye is there.

Mezuzas and Harmony

"You are a writer," he said, "and I have a plan for bringing about a great fusion of Catholics and Jews. If you help, we can both win immortality." "I would be more interested," I replied, "if I could win less immortality and more cash. You may have heard that there are hard times."

The apostle continued unmoved, with his glittering eye focussed on me. "Men," he said, "live by symbols. Men give up their lives in war for a flag—a symbol. It was not slavery, but the firing at the flag at Fort Sumter, which brought on the Civil War."

A couple of tables from me, a pretty young woman had just given a good-bye kiss to a man—maybe it was her brother, fiancée—I don't know who. The stranger pointed to that. "You see, she kissed him. The kiss is a symbol."

"I wish," I remarked, "she would come over to this table and do a little symboling."

The stranger went on as grimly sober as before. "Men live by symbols. What the world needs for religious harmony is some symbol to unite the various creeds. I have such a one."

"Yes?" I asked. "I have such a symbol," he repeated, fixing his eye on me with a stare even more grim.

"Would you care to whisper it to me?" I asked.

He bent over. "I will. Let us combine the mezuzah with the crucifix—and make a mezuzafix."

With that, he suddenly upped and left me.

I still don't know whether he was a practical joker or an obsessed maniac.

More Jewish Columnists

Harry Hershfield's contract with the Hearst papers is up, and I understand, Hershfield is now negotiating with the New York Daily News. But not only for a comic strip, but for a daily column as well.

To the new columnist, we say in the language of your forefathers, "Baruch Haba." There is also a new Jewish columnist on the Sunday Mirror—a young man by the name of Adlerman.

Another newcomer to the field is Bernard Bergman, at one time editor of the late Jewish Tribune, who conducted a very good column in that paper when he was its editor. Bergman edits the anonymous column of the New Yorker, which is captioned: "Talk About Town." After leaving the Jewish Tribune, Bergman, who is a Columbus, O., boy, became publicity man for Benjamin Winter. Con-

Providence, R. I.

Dear Miss Chorney:

You will be glad to hear that our Miriam Hospital shower was the most successful of any we have ever had, both socially and financially, and this we naturally attribute to the wonderful co-operation of the several newspapers, the outstanding one being, of course, our own Jewish Herald, with you, as Women's News Editor, giving us all the space we could use.

May I thank you and our good friend, Mr. Finkle, again for your kind co-operation and pray for a great success in our next big mutual undertaking (The Jewish Food Show), of which committee I also am a part. Here's to a successful year.

Yours in sincerity,

LITTLE STORIES from REAL LIFE

Wonderful with Babies! Smart with Money, Too

Twenty years a trained nurse and for the last ten specializing in the care of babies . . . that is the story of Sarah C. Of course she loves her work . . . she does it so quietly and well that she is a favorite with patients and doctors alike.

But that is not all of the story. For fifteen years Miss C. has been a regular visitor at Old Colony. Every month she adds to her substantial investment in Old Colony shares. She likes the feeling of having money working for her. She likes the liberal dividends paid by Old Colony.

Whenever Miss C. wants a vacation she takes one. Two years ago she spent the summer traveling in England, France, and Ireland. She says she may go again soon. She knows the money is ready and waiting for her at Old Colony. That's a great source of satisfaction, too.

Her life-work is congenial, her life-plan is sound—no wonder she's so capable and contented!

Satisfactory Results at Miriam Hospital Sterility Clinic

The Sterility Clinic at the Miriam Hospital has now been functioning for six months. The results obtained have been very satisfactory. Each patient has received personal attention from the staff and the benefit of frequent consultations with other departments when necessary. The co-operation of the patients on the other hand has been very gratifying to the staff.

It has been observed at the Miriam Hospital clinic that the longer the duration of the sterility beyond three years and the older the couple is beyond a certain age the less are the chances of obtaining satisfactory results.

The completeness of the examination carried out has led to the discovery of contributing factors to the sterility of the patients which had never before been suspected. By the correction of these the general health of the patients has also been improved.

Due to the nature of the examination the work in the Sterility Clinic is by appointment. The husband and the wife of an infertile couple are both examined. Any factors which may contribute to inability to bear children are corrected. Appointments may be made by communicating with Mr. Charles M. Hoffman, Superintendent of the hospital.

DR. WOLFENSON RENDERS REPORT

Following is an abstract of a report of Executive Director Dr. Louis B. Wolfenson, presented at the Board of Directors' meeting of the Jewish Orphanage on Wednesday, Jan. 6, 1932:

The month of December, concluding the fiscal year of 1932, was an unusually busy one, because of the large number of repairs and purchasing that had still to be done in the year 1931.

As far as the life of the children during the month was concerned, we had several treats and a theatre party, as well as the vacation from school activities. The outstanding treat of this time was the Chanukah party, arranged by Mrs. Louis M. Grant, which was complete and perfect in all details. Mrs. Grant personally presented the Orphanage with a Chanukah Menorah.

The health of the children has continued to be very good, and I am pleased to state that in the large amount of illness prevalent in the city, we have had not more than one cold, and that not serious.

In this connection I report to the Board that Dr. H. I. Goldman, foot specialist, of 76 Dorrance street, has offered to examine all our children and treat the feet of those that need it. There are two or three cases that need this treatment very much, and a complete examination would really be invaluable along these lines.

During the month of December our basketball team, organized and trained by Mr. George Katz, the boys' supervisor, has played a weekly game with some outside team, in our gymnasium, as well as held practices several nights a week, and the result of these contests has been a victory in every case but one. The gentlemanliness and order of the teams visiting us has been good, and I have seen to it that not only are the teams properly matched physically, but the right kind of boys only come to us.

Our Girl Scouts have now completed two courses,—one in sewing and one in handwork, under the direction of the State Scout Headquarters, and this work is most beneficial to them. We will take advantage of other courses which are offered again in the spring of 1932, at the Scout House. Meantime the girls attend their scout troop meetings, and our boys attend various clubs at the Community Center. Mr. Jacob Cohen, Executive Director of the Center, has been most helpful in looking after our boys, and has offered to accommodate our older girls as well, as soon as they are of an age to attend club meetings in the evening.

A meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary was held on Dec. 29th, at which Mrs. Benjamin N. Kane was elected President, and the other officers re-elected. The installation of the new officers is planned for a meeting in the Home on Jan. 26th, which is to take the form of a complimentary bridge, and our girls have been asked to serve at this meeting. We are lending every assistance to the Auxiliary to make the meeting a success.

As Mr. Benjamin W. Grossman, Chairman of the Admission Committee, has reported to you, I have investigated and reported to the Admission committee two cases.

During December, I co-operated with our President Mr. Sundlun, and Mr. Morris Espo, in completing arrangements for a meeting at Pawtucket. However, on account of conditions there, Mr. Espo has requested that the meeting be postponed until the spring.

I have also sought further addresses of those members of the Board who passed away while members, and will soon be in communication with the families of all of them.

At the present time I am making every effort to arrange for the annual meeting at the Home on January 31st.

Again thanking all the officers and members of the Board for their continued helpfulness in many different directions,

Respectfully submitted,
DR. LOUIS B. WOLFENSON,
Executive Director.

MR. AND MRS BEN BRIER GIVE "TREAT"

A custom of giving a "treat" to the children of the Orphanage on the occasion of the birthdays of their children, was enlarged by Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Brier of 15 Upton avenue, with the second birthday of their little daughter, Dorothy Ann, on Thursday, Jan. 7th. Gifts of jewelry novelties were also presented to the boys and girls by the Briers. Ice cream and cake were served the children.

The Orphanage wishes the Briers every joy in life, and trust that these fine children of theirs will live to a ripe old age, and emulate the fine Jewish spirit of their parents.

SPORTING WORLD

NEWS WRITTEN FOR THE JEWISH HERALD BY GEORGE JOEL

Time for Jewish Olympics Draws Near

With the new year already galloping towards oblivion it won't be long before the Jewish Olympics, scheduled for March 27, will be underway. From present indications these Jewish games, sponsored by the Maccabee World Union will undoubtedly, be successful. At least they will focus the attention of the world on the prowess of our Jewish youth.

Despite the numerous technical difficulties which confronted the leaders of the Maccabean movement they have managed to gather entries from nearly 2000 athletes from all parts of the world, who will participate at Tel Aviv. Dr. Alexander Rosenfeld, Vice President of the Maccabee World Union, who is now in the United States working diligently to raise funds for the erection of a stadium at Tel Aviv to house the games, reports that numerous internationally famous athletes have signified their intentions of appearing.

Among the stars will be Daniel Prenn, former captain of the German Davis Cup tennis team; Dr. Ivan Osier, Danish Olympic fencing champion; Ely Katz, Finland's Olympic member, and the Messrs. Hecht, Soyker, Klein and Gottesman, championship tennis quartet of Czechoslovakia. America will contribute her quota, but the personnel of the team has not yet been decided. Try-outs are being held all over the country and if you are interested, watch out for local announcements informing you of the trials. The Maccabee organization of Poland plans to send a team of over a hundred men. Germany, England, Australia and Egypt will also be represented.

The idea of the Jewish games seems to have aroused the Jews of Palestine to a high pitch of enthusiasm. A committee, consisting of the most prominent Jews in the Homeland, have been formed. They will be in charge of the games.

To give you an idea of just how aroused the Jews all over the world are about the coming Olympiads it has been reported that a group of motor cyclists, members of the Berlin Maccabee, are going to drive to Tel Aviv so that they can witness the games. One young man, Berthold Vasonek of the Brim Maccabee, Czechoslovakia, being without artificial means of locomotion, decided to walk to the games. He started out afoot from his native city last August with Tel Aviv as his objective. He is travelling through Europe, to Italy then to Tripoli, through the Sahara and Egypt to Tel Aviv. When he arrives I pity anyone who suggests a short walk to him.

A number of novelties not usually found at athletic meets will be offered to the spectators at Tel Aviv. There will be a huge Boy Scout Jamboree of Jewish Boy Scouts from all countries; a horse-back riding exhibition by the Maccabee Organization of Palestine and a Marathon race to be run around the city of Tel Aviv by Palestinian Jewish athletes. Music will be furnished by an orchestra consisting of Jews from the colony of Chederah, who will do their music making while riding horses.

Dr. Rosenfeld believes that the Jewish games are important apart from their athletic significance. He says: "The Jewish games will have a distinct moral and psychological value. In the first place they will show to the world a new type of Jewish youth, a youth who has thrown off the hideous shackles of the Ghetto and has emerged physically fit and morally capable of assuming an important part in the reconstruction of the Jewish National Homeland. The games will also demonstrate the Jewish youth of the world, through his various Maccabee organizations, stands squarely behind the Jewish youth of Palestine in their struggle for a national existence. Another favorable feature of these games will be the attracting to Palestine of hundreds of Jewish tourists who will come to Eretz Israel for the Jewish games and will not only stimulate business, but will show that they are vitally interested in Palestine."

How to Get to Palestine

Now that you have decided to sell the rest of that stock and make the Palestine trek, I thought you might like some information about getting there. The Maccabee Association has arranged with the Palestine and Oriental Tours for a special excursion to Palestine in connection with the Jewish games. The Maccabee party, which is expected to include the team representing the United States, will leave New York on the night of March 5th aboard the very commodious S. S. Acquitania and will proceed directly to the Homeland. It is a Cunard line boat and an unusually low rate round trip ticket is available. Hundreds of Jews from the United States and Canada will be in the party. The entire trip will take but forty-three days and you will be back in time to greet prosperity. For further information write to Maccabee Association of America, 799 Broadway, New York City. Not about "Prosperity" but the trip.

Marco Hecht Wins Indoor Title Again

Marco Hecht, junior tennis star of New York City, repeated his performance of last year by winning the Junior National Indoor Singles Tennis Championship at Baltimore last week. The young man experienced little difficulty in gaining the crown and on his way to the title eliminated young Friedman of Philadelphia.

Hecht's win was certainly not surprising. The "big spot" in the tourney to me was the fine showing made by John Nogrady, young Astoria player who appeared in this tilt for the first time. Nogrady, tutored by Julie Tavaline, his cousin, reached the semi-finals. He is only 17 and in the last year has come out of the ranks. As a kid he was an indolent player with a careless swing, but he seems to have taken things seriously and should make his mark. He now attends C. C. N. Y. and is, of course, playing on the team.

Chatterings

Basketball—C. C. N. Y. after winning its first six starts dropped a game to Temple University. The C. C. N. Y. boys did not want for Jewish opponents as Goldberger, Liebensperger and Lipschutts contributed to their downfall as Temple players. In Detroit the five Abdoos brothers have formed a basketball team.

Boxing—Sam Greene of the Detroit News picks the following all Jewish all-time professional boxing team: Bantamweight, Abe Goldstein; Featherweight, Abe Attell; Lightweight, Benny Leonard; Welterweight, Ted Lewis; Middleweight, Al McCoy (yes, he is one of us); Light-heavyweight, Battling Levinsky; Heavyweight, Joe Choyinski. A rather imposing array of fistic talent. Al McCoy, the suspicious sounding one, was in his private life, Al Rudolph. It is true that he wasn't one of the world's great middleweights, but he did hold the title.

Wrestling—Sammy Stein continues to hold them down. A one-armed gentleman named Harry Kaplan made application for a wrestling license. He offered to prove his worth, but the commission refused the chance.

itinerary, which includes only the larger cities in the United States. Throughout the years Rosenblatt has enchanted audiences of every description. Audiences enamored of his tenor voice have craved to hear him; churches invited him to sing. The opera has fought vainly for his services, with offers of stellar roles and fabulous retainers, but during all these years he has never made a single concession to Mammon, nor violated the precepts of the synagogue. Rosenblatt has mastered a stupendous repertoire in six languages, in addition to Hebrew and Yiddish. English, German, French, Italian, Spanish and Russian are no terror for him and countless audiences have heard him, entranced, as he sang compositions, both popular and obscure, from this great range of musical work.

Undoubtedly the appearance of Rosenblatt in Providence will be the high-light of the current season and it is expected that Jew and Gentile will welcome this only opportunity to hear one of the great singers of the present day.

Jewish leaders, interested in Jewish culture, are forming a reception committee to welcome the noted tenor.

In a description of the "China Express," by the General Federation of Women's Clubs of New York, it was said:

"It is a tense, stark film, constantly stimulating. It is marvelously cast, stirring, acted, excellently photographed and directed. It shows three classes of passengers thundering through the night, each ignorant of the other, until the unleashed emotions of the Chinese are given expression and they stage their futile battle for recognition."

The Jewish public is urged to attend these most interesting productions.
