Group Budgeting For Hospital Care

Each year many families attempt to budget their annual household and other personal expenses. They know exactly the amount for rent, automobiles, taxes, life insurance and numerous other items. But, how much shall be budgeted for that important necessity — hospital services — is often neglected.

A family cannot predict what amount will be necessary for hospital service bills, because they cannot predict what and when hospital services will be necessary. With the rich, who can afford emergency bills, and with the poor, to whom clinics are available, this is not a problem. But, with the members of the great Middle Class, an unexpected hospital bill may be the "last straw" in a load of financial burdens. For this reason many self supporting people are forced to seek care in tax-supported hospitals at a time of illness.

The uncertainty of hospital bills can be removed therefore by a "group budgeting," — that is, by having individuals or families in a group make equal and regular payments into a common fund, to be used in providing hospital services for individuals requiring such care. Some would require no hospital services; others will require a great deal.

The feeling of uncertainty for each person is replaced, by this procedure, by a feeling of security. Families participating in the plan are assured of receiving hospital services, and hospitals are assured of payment for rendering these services.

Group budgeting of hospitals is not merely an idea. More than 300 hospitals at present are participating in these plans. Group hospitalization does not interfere with the services of the family doctor, and responsibility for the latter's fee rests upon the patient.

When the Rhode Island plan is presented to the legislature, and if it is approved (which is likely) it should receive the whole-hearted support of the community. For, it makes available one common objective — to enable people of moderate means to put hospital care in the family or individual budget by means of group payment.

McCoy and Hague

Mayor McCoy's victory in Pawtucket is reminiscent of the absolute rule of Mayor Hague in Jersey City. Both employ similar tactics to oil their political machines.

Regardless of what political creed one advocates there is no doubt that the policies of such an administration tend to destroy the privilege of Pawtucket citizenry to vote and to decide who shall administer their government. Procedures such as were reported from Pawtucket recall methods employed by dictators in securing and maintaining power.

If possible, all legal methods should be combed to determine what can be done to uphold civil rights of Pawtucket residents.

Now, for the first time in Rhode Island, the hero himself will narrate all the details of his exploit before members of the Temple Beth-Israel Men's Club, Wednesday evening, Nov. 16, in the vestry of the Temple. Nazi Screen Star Here to Show Film

BERLIN. — Leni Riefinstahl, a plumber's daughter who became Germany's film queen and who has been considered one of Adolf Hitler's few woman friends, was said by friends today to have left Saturday for New York to launch her film of the 1936 Olympics.

The friends said they tried to dissuade her, on the grounds of unfavorable feeling in the United States against Germany, but she said she was convinced the film would speak for itself.

Frisch Call Rabbis Obstacle in Education

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Calling the rabbis the biggest obstacle to the success of Jewish education in America, Daniel Frisch, of Indianapolis, told the East Central States Conference here that by placing the stamp of approval on a Sunday-School education, the rabbis relieved their congregation from further interest in a real Jewish education.

Mr. Frisch said he approved of Congregational Religious Schools only when they are under the supervision of the Bureau of Jewish Education, since the rabbis are inclined to give precedence to other Synagogue activities over the education of their young people. He said that the future of Jewish education in the United States rested in the hands of the lay leaders.

Group Hospitalization Plan Suggested for Rhode Island

Legislation for a group hospitalization plan for Rhode Island will be recommended by committee representatives of Rhode Island's ten general hospitals, shortly, it was announced this week by Major Charles M. Hoffman, superintendent of the Miriam Hospital.

The proposed Rhode Island plan, details of which will be made public after a meeting of the Steering Committee, are similar to those in effect in Massachusetts. It is expected that individual membership will cost between $8 and $12 a year; husband and wife membership, between $15 and $18, and family membership between $20 and $25. In general, the plan will provide for semi-private accommodations for members in member-hospitals and in any hospital in or outside the State in case of accident or emergency.

Non-Profit Operation

The legislation to be sought would authorize the organization of the hospitalization plan as a non-profit group, subject to supervision by the State Insurance Division, and the State Department of Public Welfare.

In discussing the proposed plan, Major Hoffman said, "Sickness costs have been a problem to those of the middle class. In the care of sickness, the hospital bill has been a large part of the costs. The rich, of course can easily pay for the services they require, and the poor have many facilities made available to them in our hospitals. But the average-salaried man finds that he can meet his hospital bill with the greatest difficulty, or not at all."

Costs Not Excessive

"It is not that the hospital costs are excessive," Mr. Hoffman (Continued on page 6)

NEW YORK. — Federal request for the immediate recall of Dr. Hans Borchers, German Consul General in New York City, was urged on Secretary of State Cordell Hull, this week by the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League, 20 West 47th Street, City. Coincidentally, in a telegram to Dr. Borchers, the League denounced his "impudent violation of diplomatic courtesy" by criticizing America's free press and freedom of worship during an address before a Nazi mass meeting in Yorkville last night.

Heifetz Says They Can't Make Actor Out of Violinist

Jascha Heifetz was in town this week, boasting that neither Sam Goldwyn nor any of his minions could make an actor out of Heifetz, even if Heifetz did go to Hollywood and play the role of Heifetz for a picture . . .

"Before going to Hollywood, I told them that I wouldn't act," said Heifetz proudly, "and I didn't."

It seems that Goldwyn, the movie mogul, had been on the trail of Heifetz for a long time . . . When Heifetz wanted four times as much money as Goldwyn first offered, Goldwyn tried to make the violinist ashamed by appealing to his nobler self . . . "Listen, there are other things to consider besides money," said Goldwyn in a fatherly way . . . "This picture will make you famous."

After that Heifetz thought it would serve Goldwyn right if he, Heifetz did agree to appear in a movie as a great concert violinist. Because he knew that he was not the type for a violinist . . . For years people have been likening him to Buddha because of his calm detachment his heavy-lidded eyes, his moonlike impassivity . . . So Sam Goldwyn thought he could make a movie violinist out of him! . . . How did they go was re-elected governor of New York by a narrow margin, it brings to the front Mayor LaGuardia's statement concerning religious prejudice, which was distilled into the campaign. Mr. LaGuardia said, "I resent with all the bitterness that I can muster, any attempt against the candidate's religion and belief."

"God help this country when candidates will be selected on the phonetics of their names, instead of on their private characteristics, and competency and loyalty to the country, and their devotion to duty."

Election is a fertile occasion in which to spread the germ of racial prejudice. Candidate Dewey, although defeated, should be commended for his denunciation of the attempt to prejudice voters because of religion.

Heifetz Recalls Film Experience

Heifetz toss his head, look soulful, roll his eyes and lean ecstatically on his $40,000 fiddle? . . .

"No, I suppose they thought it would not be a good policy to ask me to change my facial expression," the violinist replied . . . He said that he merely walked across the stage, stood still, and played the fiddle.

For years other violinists have been saying that Heifetz is the complete master, that his technique is flawless and that his playing has so matured and improved that surely he can go no farther . . . But he is not of that opinion . . .

"Yes, I should like to be conductor," he said when the question was raised, "but I know that I am not good enough . . . I still have a lot to learn about the violin . . . Why should I drop that?"

Menuhin Tangles with Union Tibbett Hits Violinist Stand

LOS GATOS, Cal. — The American Guild of Musical Artists waived a stipulation in its contract with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra this week and Yehudi Menuhin, the violinist, will appear with it next week although he is not a guild member.

This agreement came after a criticism of the violinist's attitude by Lawrence Tibbett, of the guild.

The trouble began when the orchestra informed Mr. Menuhin that it had signed a contract with the guild which not only required members of the orchestra to be guild members but artists appearing with the orchestras also. Because of this the orchestra asked Mr. Menuhin to join the guild.

Avoids "Degrading" Move

Mr. Menuhin replied he wouldn't because he believed to join would be "degrading," that it would be "just as if you demanded that husbands and wives have union cards and regulations to govern their hours together."

In Chicago Mr. Tibbett announced that the union waived its contract stipulation against non-union concert artists.

"Every great conductor in the country belongs to the guild," he said, "Does Menuhin not remember that the very members of the Los Angeles Orchestra belong? Does he think that they have lost their artistic integrity by their membership?"

LaGuardia Veils Crack at Hitler In Palestine Talk

NEW YORK. — Mayor LaGuardia took another crack at Adolf Hitler last week during a speech at a mass meeting of the Emergency Committee on Palestine. Though he didn't mention Hitler by name, as he did in the "Chamber of Horrors" speech there seemed no doubt whom the Mayor meant when he said:—

"As I have stated so many times Secretary Hull and I have an agreement. He attends to foreign affairs and I attend to cleaning the streets of New York. And when it concerns the relations with a certain gentleman in Europe we're both dealing with the same commodity."

Nazi Sidle Into Pro-American Rally

Tickets Obtained Thru Members

NEW YORK. — Charges that the German-American Bund backed the Pro-American Rally held at the Hotel Commodore on the afternoon of Sunday, October 30, were investigated by the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League this week.

The League learned that the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the National Women's Republican Club and the League for Constitutional Government, although announced as co-operating in the meeting were not sponsors. Later a statement was obtained from Allen Zoll, chairman of arrangements for the meet, stating that "organizations sponsoring this rally are unequivocally opposed to the purposes of the German American Bund."

Late this week, the Bund, through its local organ Deutscher Weckruf und Beobachter, announced that the New York County division of the Bund will participate as a unit at the meeting. Mr. Zoll admitted that a block of tickets had been obtained through individual Bund members.

Beth-Israel Men To Hear Bronx Vet

Isador Gennett Talks Wednesday

Isador J. Gennett of Bronx, N. Y. will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Men's Club of Temple Beth Israel, to be held next Wednesday evening in the vestry of Temple Beth Israel, at which time members of the R. I. Post No. 23, Jewish War Veterans and their wives, will be invited guests.

Mr. Gennett is the man who shocked Berlin, when he laid a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in October. He's the man who secured a military guard of honor from the commander of the Berlin garrison and marched with his German troop up Unter den Linden to the Tomb; then he placed his wreath next to Il Duce's, and recited the Kaddish (might not the Unknown German soldier have been a Jew) while his guard and the audience stood at rigid attention.

Dorothy Thompson has called that "The Perfect Gesture." "Mr. Gennett believes in peace among nations, and with that simple gesture, he threw, for one moment, into a clear white light, the issues of peace and war."

Mr. Gennett will speak on his experiences abroad, when he visits next Wednesday. Only members will be allowed to attend.

Twenty Years After

BY ZWEE BEN YAHUDI

When "Der Tag" finally came and that German "steam roller" came rolling over little Belgium, crushing everything in its path, we on this side of the Atlantic at once began to sing: "I haven't brought up my son to be a soldier," and eagerly watched events on the other side. But when it became apparent that the German "steam roller" would eventually also crush those two great democratic countries, England and France, and when at the same time a German submarine so unexpectedly popped up in our own waters, only to pay us a friendly visit, we began to fear for our own safety and quickly decided to go over there "to stop the Uhlans from coming here." And "over there" we, foreigners and sons, grandsons and great-grandsons of foreigners went, all singing: "The Yanks are coming — The Yanks are coming."

Among the "yank's of our town to answer the draft was Jacob Kelman, a foreign young man of twenty two, a carpenter by trade, the son of a poor fruit and vegetable peddler, and one of the only two children in the family, the other a girl two years younger.

At first his sister, Rachel, urged him very strongly to try for exemption. She could not see what sort of Democracy President Wilson meant when he said that we must fight for it alongside so cruel and so barbarous a country as Czarist Russia. But when it was pointed out to her that a German victory would spell the end of whatever Democracy and freedom there was in the other European countries and that would not take very long before we too would be made to sing "Die Wacht am Rhine" and do the goose step, then Rachel immediately invested all her savings in liberty bonds and wished that she too could join the ranks of the expeditionary forces.

Father and Mother Kelman were also made to feel proud of their soldier boy, yet all waited with bated breath for news from France and spent sleepless nights after they had learned that Jake was in the trenches.

Jake had hardly been in the front lines a week when he, with several others, volunteered to "go over" to put a certain machine gun nest out of existence.

Snake-like, on their bellies, our boys crept cautiously in the direction of that machine gun nest, and when only a few yards from their objective they rose to their feet and rushed the enemy.

Although taken by surprise, the enemy offered resistance, only to be annihilated.

"Did we get them?" asked Jake between gasps for breath as he lay mortally wounded on the ground, his head resting on the arm of one of his buddies.

"Yes, Jake, we killed them all," said his buddy, but Jake did not hear the answer — he was dead.

The daring and bravery of our boys on the battlefield was too much for the Germans at that late hour of the war. And when it became apparent to them that to continue the war they would have to retreat and fight on their own soil, when they saw that come, they wasted no time but shouted: "Kamerad! — Let's have an armistice."

"An armistice!?" — and Lloyd George, Clemenceau and Wilson quickly got into a huddle and gave it to them, thinking they had made the world "safe for Democracy." That was a great day, the day of the armistice. Everybody went wild with joy — everybody except the mothers and fathers of those boys who were "sleeping" their eternal sleep in the blood-soaked ground of France.

"My boy, my darling boy," sobbed mother Kelman convulsively anew when told that the war was over.

"But you have me Mother," Rachel tried to console her.

"Yes, my child, I have you, thank God for that; but, oh, how it hurts to think that my boy is no more," said Mother Kelman.

When the question of bringing the remains of their son back to the States arose, father Kelman claimed that it was against his religion to move the body of his son from where it was first buried; but Mother Kelman wanted her son, though a dead son, back here. She had her wish, but pined herself into her own grave before the arrival of the sealed casket with the remains of her boy.

That was twenty years ago; twenty years ago that Jake Kelman died that Democracy might endure; twenty years ago that his former buddies gave him a military funeral here and marked his

100,000 Czech Jews Ceded to Hungary

PRAGUE. — Approximately 100,000 Jews — nearly one-third of the Jewish population of Czechoslovakia — are included in the territory ceded to Hungary by the terms of the Italo-German arbitration award announced in Vienna, it was estimated this week.

Many Ruthenian towns have large Jewish populations. Ungvar and Munkacs, two of the towns turned over to Hungary, are about 13 per cent Jewish. They are expected now to be subjected to the Hungarian law limiting Jews to 20 per cent participation in economic life.

Luise Rainer is Reunited With Odets Through "Ruse"

Guess who are in love again. Luise Rainer and Clifford Odets. Some Dan Cupiding hatched and executed by a Broadway lawyer has reconciled the shy little Austrian brunette actress and the left-wing playwright. And Luise's divorce action against Odets is off — so Luise now insists, anyway.

The lawyer with the ways of a matchmaker is Louis Nizer and his reconciliation stunt was in the Hollywood manner.

Nizer, Odets' lawyer telephoned Miss Rainer at her hotel.

"I want you to meet a friend of mine—a swell guy named Billikoff," Nizer said.

Miss Rainer, twice winner of the Motion Picture Academy Award for acting, said she would be glad to meet thees Meester Beeleekoff, and accepted.

Some time later Miss Rainer and her escort entered Sard's Restaurant and went to an upstairs dining room to meet the man named Billikoff.

And standing right there in the dining room was — whee — Clifford Odets, alias Billikoff.

For an angry wife, Miss Rainer behaved oddly. She rushed over and kissed Mr. Billikoff and he returned the embrace with a broad smile. This went on for quite a while and then, disentangling herself, Miss Rainer issued a statement.

"I love him very much, even if he is very, very stubborn," she said.

Nazis Forbid Jews To Employ Jews

VIENNA. — The last economic bulwark of Vienna's stricken employment of Jewish-owned establishments, was swept away this week when authorities issued a decree forbidding Jewish firms to employ Jews.

Effect of this decree is to add tens of thousands to the ranks of Jewish unemployed, which already include Jews dismissed by non-Jewish firms, Jews who have already been ousted from the civil service and Jewish lawyers, doctors, teachers, writers, engineers and other professional excluded from practicing their professions.

4 Dead, 3 Insane On Polish Border

Deportees Held Without Shelter

WARSAW. — The Jewish Relief Committee asserted this week that four persons have died and three have gone insane among 5,000 Polish Jews held along the Polish-German frontier.

The committee said that the Jews were being held without shelter. They were taken to the frontier from the interior of Germany, awaiting deportation to Poland because of a dispute regarding Poland's new citizenship laws.

Nine thousand Jews, practically without money, clothes or food, who crossed the frontier into Poland before Germany suspended its deportation order Saturday, have been transported into the interior of Poland, it was estimated.

Jewish reports indicated that only a few have found friends or relatives and that most were being cared for by the Jewish Community and the Polish Red Cross.

Most of them were quartered in grave with a small marker bearing the initials "Y-D," and who have since visited his resting place once every year, on Memorial Day, there again to sound taps, again to fire a gun and again to place a fresh wreath on his slowly sinking narrow mound.

That was twenty years ago—twenty years ago that Rachel paid with the life of her only brother that all the other Kelmans might share in the freedom and privileges of this country. And once every year since, before the high holidays, Rachel could be seen at her brother's grave, there again to shed a tear, there again to say a prayer for the repose of the dead.

This year when Rachel visited her soldier brother's grave she neither wept nor prayed there, but in a voice that could be heard far, beyond that place of sorrow she shouted down to him: "Brother, you died in vain — those Uhlans have not been stopped — they are back they're here — they're already in Detroit."

Rabbi, Noted as Prodigy, Arrested as Auto Thief

NEW YORK. — Rabbi William Margolis, twenty-nine, director of the United Synagogues of Ottawa, Canada, and formerly head of one of the oldest congregations in New York, was under arrest last Tuesday as an automobile thief.

Widely hailed as a theological prodigy after his graduation from New York University and the Yeshiva College a few years ago, Rabbi Margolis was seized Monday at First Avenue and Fifty-second Street in a $1,200 sedan allegedly stolen from the Amorosi Auto Rental Company.

Frank Spiro of 447 East Seventy-eighth Street, chauffeur for company, said the rabbi was the man he picked up at Polyclinic Hospital August 23 and drove to an address in Long Island. There, he said, the rabbi sent him out of the car on an errand and drove off.

Rabbi Margolis, however, said he came down from Canada only last Thursday.

He is a grandson-in-law of Mrs. Regina Margareten, seventy-six, head of the Margareten matzoh concern. His $2,500 bail, imposed in Night Court was posted by Jacob Margareten of 1200 Fifth Avenue, his father-in-law, and he was released from Police Headquarters shortly after midnight.

Repertory Play To Aid Hadassah

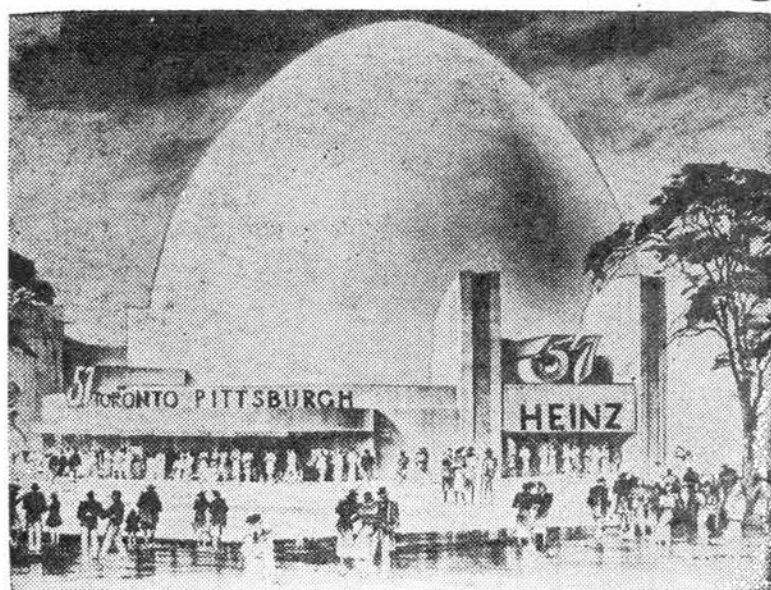

Repertory Players present, next Monday and Tuesday evenings at Barker Playhouse, Benefit street, "Stage Door," under the direction of Theodore Sweet, assisted by Ben Victor.

Of significant importance, is the fact that Repertory will contribute seventy-five per cent. of the proceeds derived from the production to Hadassah, in helping to maintain the latter's project — Youth Aliyah. By attending, therefore, each person will not only have evening of fine entertainment, but will also be contributing seventy-five per cent. of his admission charge to a worthy cause.

In rehearsal for weeks, this play by Edna Ferber and George Kaufman enjoyed much success on Broadway and in the films. It tells of the lives and loves of a group of stage girls, and their untiring struggle for recognition in the theatre. The four leading roles are taken by Jerry Pulver, Frankie Pritsker, Boris Pritcher and Arthur Kaplan, assisted by a cast of twenty-seven, the names of which were published in last week's herald.

According to advance reports by Jules Goldsmith, ticket chairman, a capacity attendance is anticipated for both evenings. It is urged that tickets be purchased early from Mr. Goldsmith, from Mrs. Walter Strauss, or from any member of the cast.

Fair Honors Heinz Building

Nazi Envoy Shot By Jewish Youth

PARIS. — A seventeen-year-old Polish Jew, declaring he had come to avenge his countrymen who have been expelled from Germany, this week shot and gravely wounded a secretary of the Germany Embassy.

The secretary, Ernst von Rath, was taken to a hospital, where he underwent an operation for removal of bullets from his abdomen and one shoulder.

Lived in Germany

The assailant, who gave his name as Herschel Grynszpan, formerly of Hanover, Germany, was captured by Embassy attaches after a brief scuffle and handed over to the French police.

NEW YORK. — Flags of many nations were raised over the New York World's Fair when the first of the exhibitors' buildings were completed. It is a huge dome, towering 90 feet and 150 feet in diameter, and will be occupied by H. J. Heinz Company.

Grover Whalen, president of the Fair Corporation, members of his staff and others were the guests of Howard Heinz at a luncheon at the Terrace Club, Fair Grounds, after the party had inspected the building.

"We enlarged our plans when we reached the conclusion that this would be the greatest fair in history," Mr. Heinz said in an informal address, "and we agree with Mr. Whalen in anticipating an attendance of at least 60,000,000."

Heinz dome, resembling a bee hive, is in harmony with the theme architecture of the Fair buildings. Startling lighting effects have been devised. Twenty thousand square feet of floor space are crowned by the dome. Part of the building will be air-conditioned.

The Heinz people will sample many of the famous 57 varieties to visitors, including several of the Heinz products which bear the symbol of approval of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America.

Group Hospitalization Proposal Offered

(Continued from page 1) continued, "for the services rendered are far beyond the charges made. It is rather that the average person is unable to anticipate his hospital needs, and make provision for them.

"Under the group hospitalization plan, now in operation in most large cities throughout the country, a subscriber may be hospitalized only upon the recommendation of a private physician, selected by himself. The subscriber may pay his own physician's fee, but he may receive, without charge, as much as twenty-one day's free care in the hospital. There is a twelve-month waiting period for obstetrical cases. There is no physical examination or salary limitation."

Hospitals Represented

Hospitals represented in the membership of the General Committee, to which the recommendations will be made, are Rhode Island, Homeopathic, St. Joseph's, Lying-In and the Miriam in Providence; Newport, South County, Westerly, Memorial in Pawtucket, and the Woonsocket Hospital. A trustee and the superintendent or director of each of these hospitals are members of the General Committee.

One of the problems of the conference will be to reach an agreement on future Jewish immigration. The declaration of the wartime Foreign Minister Lord Balfour for a "Jewish national home" in Palestine was incorporated in the League mandate.

Any policy settled upon at the conference will be submitted for the approval of Parliament and the League of Nations, and may also be referred to the United States Government.
