Herman L. Goldberg

Name Herman Goldberg Executive Director Of Jewish Family Agency

Herman L. Goldberg, executive director of the Jewish Family Services of Richmond, Va., has resigned this position to become executive director of the Jewish Family and Children's Service in Providence.

Mr. Goldberg succeeds Nathan E. Sklar, former executive director of the agency, who resigned to become director of the Retarded Children's Society in Dade County, Fla.

A graduate of the School of Social Work of the University of Chicago, Mr. Goldberg came to the Richmond agency in 1958 from Chicago where he had been director of casework for the Traveler's Aid Society.

Mr. Goldberg is the author of several articles published by the Social Service Review, Journal of Criminal Law and Criminology, International Association of Pupil Personnel Workers Journal and Journal of Jewish Communal Service.

He is married to Naomi Spivel Goldberg and has two daughters, Rachel Ann, sophomore at Radford College, Virginia, and Susan Lynn, senior in junior high school and a member of the Richmond Civic Ballet Corps.

Form Loyal League Of Yiddish Sons Of Erin

NEW YORK — The Loyal League of the Yiddish Sons of Erin was born in New York City last week.

Thirty New Yorkers who possessed the two essential qualifications for membership organized the League as a "fraternal clan" of persons "who wish to observe and celebrate both the traditions of their faith and the land of their birth." The League's official song is "Erin Gro Gragh Shalom."

Two topics were discussed soberly at length at the initial meeting of the League. One was "Shall we request that the St. Patrick's Day Committee grant the Loyal League of Yiddish Sons of Erin permission to march in the Grand Parade up Fifth Avenue next March?" The other was: "Shall we charter a plane for a trip back to our native land, a 19-day tour that will take us on to Israel too?"

Scholar Asks All Religions To 'Uphold Each Other In Support Of Religious Values'

WASHINGTON — A leading Catholic scholar has called on Protestants, Catholics and Jews to "uphold each other in the support of religious values in a way that will confront the advancing sectarian order with a firm but fair opposition."

In an address before the first national institute on "The Responsibilities of Religious Freedom," sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John Tracy Ellis, professor of church history at the Catholic University of America, urged non-Catholics to "keep their minds attuned to the mounting sentiment in Catholic circles all over the world in favor of universal religious freedom."

He said, however, that the Catholic Church should be judged "by its record in the United States and not in Spain or Colombia or any other country where Catholics form a majority of the population."

Asserting that the principle of church-state separation was an integral part of Catholic thinking in this country, Msgr. Ellis declared: "In the world society as we find it today, nothing is more vital to the principle of religious freedom than that very separation."

Rabbi Bertram W. Korn of Philadelphia, prominent Jewish historian and spiritual leader of the Reform Congregation Kneseth Israel of Philadelphia, said that "Jews have been accorded a closer approximation of religious freedom in the United States than in any other country in the Western world at any time in history." He stated that this status had been achieved, not from the action of organized religious bodies but from the contribution of laymen.

Another speaker at the session was Dr. Franklin H. Littell, professor of church history at the Chicago Theological Seminary, who predicted that "with the tremendous manpower of Judaism, Catholicism and Protestantism in a situation primarily pluralistic and voluntaristic, the Golden Age of religion in America lies directly before us."

Controversies over the use of public funds for religious schools may be creating an impasse "which will affect adversely our national educational system and our religious intergroup relations," the First National Institute on the responsibilities of religious freedom was told here today. The Institute is being held here under the sponsorship of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

The Rev. Wendell S. Dietrich of Providence, in citing the danger, told the workshop that a Rhode Island debate over the provision of public funds for the purchase of parochial school textbooks in the Providence Catholic Diocese had "stimulated certain religious tensions."

The issue was discussed also by Dr. Lewis Webster Jones, NCCJ president, in his annual report. Dr. Jones said that a solution to such church-state problems could be brought about only "through patient and continuing conferences."

Rhode Island Delegates Attend UJA Annual National Conference

Mrs. Merrill L. Hassenfeld was elected today as a member of the Board of the National Women's Division of the United Jewish Appeal at the 25th UJA annual National Conference at the Americana Hotel in New York City.

Some 1,500 delegates from all parts of the country, including a large delegation from Rhode Island, are attending the three-day conference which opened today. The conference will set the 1963 fund-raising goal and officially launch the nationwide observances of the UJA's 25th anniversary year.

Mrs. Hassenfeld has been active for many years as a worker for the UJA which in Providence is conducted by the General Jewish Committee. She is a vice-president of the GJC Women's Division.

Representing the Rhode Island community at the conference are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Ress, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill L. Hassenfeld, Mr. and Mrs. Sol Koffler, Mr. and Mrs. Max Alperin, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Friedman, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Galkin, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Galkin, Nathan Temkin, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Grossman, Israel Resnick, Harris N. Rosen, Mrs. Raymond L. Cohen, Mrs. Robert

Israel's 'Days Of Pioneering' Not Yet Ended, Says Ben Gurion

TEL AVIV—Israel's "days of pioneering" have not yet ended, Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion asserted here last week at ceremonies dedicating Israel's latest "economic breakthrough," the official beginning of construction of Arad.

Standing on a bare hilltop in the Judean desert, with his back to the Dead Sea, the Prime Minister spoke of Arad the new town to rise on the site—which is expected to house 40,000 people. There are 50 families there now, but within the next year, according to Yosef Almogi, Minister of Development, 1,200 workers will be permanent residents.

Two thousand persons made their way to Arad through desert roads. The town, northeast of Beersheba is located on the site of Tel Arad, near the spot where the patriarch Abraham gazed across the desert toward Sodom and Gomorrah. A fortress stood there in those days. Now Arad, located near the Zohar gas fields, will be the first Israeli settlement to use gas for street lighting, cooking and heating.

Formal Negotiations Open To Link Israel, European Common Market

BRUSSELS—After preparations lasting more than a year, Israel and the European Economic Community last week opened formal and intricate negotiations for the establishment of a link between Israel and the six-nation European Common Market.

Levi Eshkol, Israel's Minister of Finance, heading a top-ranking delegation of 25 members, faced the EEC's Council of Ministers, the organization's highest body. In an address lasting an hour and a half, he put forth proposals for solving the economic problems facing Israel as a result of the Common Market pact to which France, Italy, West Germany, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg have adhered. He also proposed the general lines along which, in Israel's opinion, the talks should proceed.

Outlining Israel's historical and economic tasks, and Israel's close links with Western Europe, Mr. Eshkol requested "speedy" solution of the problems facing Israel since the creation of the EEC, in view of the fact that the EEC countries form a major part of the lands to which Israel directs its exports. He told the ministers Israel would prefer to see its problems treated on a "global basis," and not "item by item."

Jean Rey, the so-called "Foreign Minister" of the EEC, welcomed the Israel delegation to the meeting at the highest level, and was host at a luncheon tendered the Israelis after the morning session. Then the two sides, in the absence of both Mr. Eshkol and Mr. Rey, got down to a working session at which plans were mapped for further talks to get under way later.

It had previously been indicated that, if the proposed Israeli link were to be considered "item by item," a total of more than 100 separate items would have to be examined. The afternoon meeting decided to form several committees which will look into various phases of the overall problem. In the absence of Mr. Eshkol, the Israel delegation was to be headed by Amiel Najjar, Israel's Ambassador to both Belgium and the EEC. Mr. Eshkol was to return to Israel Wednesday.

The strength of Israel's delegation, and its all-encompassing character, was indicated by a breakdown showing that, among the members of the mission who come here with Mr. Eshkol, are ranking experts from Israel's Ministries of Finance, Commerce and Industry, Agriculture, and Foreign Affairs.

Prior to the morning meeting, Mr. Eshkol told a news conference that Israel would like an association with Euromark similar to that already granted to Greece. "We would press," he said, "for an arrangement that would enable us to sell our products and services in Western Europe. We do not exclude any possible association for reaching an arrangement with the Common Market."

REFLECTS PREJUDICE

GENEVA—The International Commission of Jurists declared it was convinced that the death sentences pronounced in recent months in the Soviet Union, many involving Russian Jews, undoubtedly related to problems of racial prejudice in that country. The commission also noted that "the number of Jews sentenced to death is abnormally high and, in general, the convictions affecting Jews are exceptionally hard."

To Determine 1963 Goal, Program

NEW YORK—Close to 1,500 delegates representing hundreds of organized Jewish communities throughout the 50 States will attend the 25th Annual National Conference of the United Jewish Appeal which opened today at the Americana Hotel, it has been announced here by Joseph Meyerhoff, general chairman of the UJA.

The three-day conference, Mr. Meyerhoff noted, will serve a two-fold purpose. It will determine the UJA's program and goals for its 1963 nationwide campaign, and inaugurate a year-long observance by America's Jewish communities of the Appeal's quarter of a century of activity in behalf of distressed and homeless Jews the world over.

Chief among the many reports to be submitted to the delegates will be a recommendation for a multi-million dollar Special Fund drive to supplement the Appeal's regular 1963 campaign.

The delegates will also hear reports spelling out the specific conditions and needs facing some 180,000 Jewish refugees in France, the majority recently arrived from Algeria, and the difficulties confronting the large number of immigrants who have come into Israel recently.

These reports will be made by Charles Jordan, overseas director general of the Joint Distribution Committee, and Aryeh L. Pincus of Jerusalem, treasurer of the Jewish Agency for Israel.

Founded in late November 1938 with January 2, 1939 as the effective date of its first nationwide drive, the United Jewish Appeal has helped to save and resettle 3,000,000 Jewish victims of war and oppression.

In its 24 annual campaigns to date, it has raised a total of $1,435,000,000 to finance the refugee aid, welfare and philanthropic programs of three organizations that have annually constituted the Appeal as their fund-raising agency.

The three constituents of the UJA are the United Israel Appeal-Jewish Agency, Inc., which allocates its share of funds from the UJA for programs of immigration and immigrant resettlement in Israel; the Joint Distribution Committee; and the New York Association for New Americans, which assists in the integration of refugee newcomers to the United States.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

Save on Taxes NOW

IF YOU SUPPORT PARENTS

From coast to coast, hundreds of thousands of you are contributing to the support of your parents who are 65 or over -- and it's more than likely that most of you are WASTING the tax-savings value of your contributions, particularly if your over-65 parents have medical expenses. Here, therefore, is an important year-end medical expense guideline for you.

You can deduct every dollar of medical expense you pay for a parent who is 65 or over from your income tax as long as you contribute more than half of your parent's support during the year. You need not waste a penny of the medical expenses you pay for them because of the general rule that medical expenses are deductible only in excess of 3 per cent of your adjusted gross income. This holds even if your parent doesn't qualify as a dependent because he or she has made $600 or more of gross income during the year.

So, instead of giving your parent cash and letting him pay his medical expenses, why not pay his medical bills directly so you can deduct on your return this contribution to him and save taxes?

Just to illustrate, say your 65-year-old father has had $700 of dividend and interest income this year and he needs $1,000 for dental work in coming weeks for which you expect to give him the money. If you give him the cash, you will get no deduction at all, and he will have a medical expense deduction that won't save any taxes for him either. But if, instead, you pay the $1,000 directly to the dentist for your father's dental work, you still will be contributing more than half your father's total support of $1,700.00 for the year and you'll be entitled to deduct the total $1,000 as a medical expense on your own return.

If your own adjusted gross income this year is $10,000, you normally would have to waste up to 3 per cent of that, or $300 of your own medical expenses, before you could deduct a single penny. But you don't waste a cent of what you pay for your father, because the 3 per cent rule does not apply to medical expenses paid for him. However, the rule on drugs and medicines -- that the cost of them can be included in medical expenses only above 1 per cent of adjusted gross income -- does apply to him. So any drugs or medicines you buy for him are a deduction on your return only to the extent that the costs top 1 per cent of your adjusted gross income.

If you are claiming a dependency deduction for your parents who are receiving social security, check this rule so you don't get fouled up on your deductions for 1962.

You must contribute more than half the total support during the year for each parent you claim as a dependent. While the social security payments your parents receive are not taxable income to them, they do count as part of the total support.

In countless thousands of instances, these social security payments are based entirely on your father's past work. And your mother isn't old enough to raise your father's payment. The Treasury says that in this case, the social security is support for your father, unless it can be shown the money was not spent for his support.

For instance, suppose your father and mother have no income other than $720 a year from social security entirely attributable to him. You also contribute $850 to their support; so their total support is $1,570, of which half -- $785 -- is considered to be spent for each. The Treasury says your father's social security covered $720 of his $785, so you contributed only $65 to him or less than half of his $785 and you, therefore, can take only your mother as a dependent.

This year the Tax Court ruled the Treasury is wrong. It said that if the $1,570 is to be divided equally between your parents, or $785 for each, then your $850 contribution also should be divided equally between them, or $425 for each, and therefore, since you have given more than half of the $785 support for each, you can claim both as dependents.

You now have your precedent for claiming both your parents as dependents and achieving significant tax savings, although you'll probably have to fight the Treasury on this.

WORKING WIVES, SICK CHILDREN

If you're a typical taxpayer in any income bracket -- low to highest -- you have found facts and guides in this series which will help you cut the federal income tax you'll owe on your 1962 earnings or help a member of your family or a friend save.

Just the urgent message to you that the time to cut your 1962 tax debt to the minimum is in these closing weeks before 1963 should be of major tax-saving value to you, and this fall the opportunities for tax savings are extraordinary because of the two new tax laws on our books, significant tax rulings in 1962, the stock market crash, the outlook for broad tax reductions next year. Now here is a final column for working wives, parents of sick children, etc.

WORKING WIVES: The law permits working widows, divorcees and widowers to deduct up to $600 a year which they must pay to others to care for their dependent children under 12, so they can have time to work. Wives who work also qualify for this deduction if the combined husband-wife gross income is not more than $5,100.

But what if the working woman pays her parents or some other relative to care for the child?

The Treasury has objected to this deduction under these circumstances, but now it agrees

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY A DAY WE DID NOT CELEBRATE

By Beryl Segal

On the twenty-ninth of November, we missed a celebration. On that day, fifteen years ago, the United Nations recognized Israel as an Independent State and admitted the Jewish state as a member nation.

We missed the celebration for many reasons.

The world is in a turmoil. We go from brink to brink, and we hold our breath every time we are confronted with one. The time is not ripe for celebrations. The Cuba crisis. The Berlin strife. The China-India affair. And Israel is still sitting on top of a volcano. Can we proclaim a festival in times like these?

Then again, Israel has no time for celebrations. Israel, in spite of everything, is growing and her eyes are trained on tomorrow. Israel has no time to look backwards, and neither did we notice the day of the birth of Israel.

But one man did, and I wish to quote from an article that appeared in the Jewish Daily Forward fifteen years ago and was reprinted again on the anniversary--the United Nations Israel Day. The writer of the article is the scholar Hayyim Liberman, who contributes a column to the Forward, and the name of the article is "The State of Israel." I will quote freely from this Yiddish column written in the style and the manner of the Prophets.

"It happened. The greatest thing has happened. The Jewish State in the Land of Israel was born. Can you look in the face of the sun and see her beauty, measure her greatness, and conceive of her strength? So it is with the State of Israel.

"A new sunrise appeared in the world. A Jewish sunrise. And one cannot look into its face, and cannot hope to understand the wonder and the mystery of it.

"Ask the Heavens and they will tell you, and ask the Earth and it will explain: Did ever such a wonder happen in the world? Did anyone see a people rise again from its grave after two thousand years? "Today I gave birth to you. Today my people were reborn again. It was not a political act and not a historical act. It was an act of Creation.

"It was a day like the day when the people of Israel came out of Egypt, out of Bondage. It was a day like the day when the Children of Israel stood at Mount Sinai and received the Ten Commandments. It was a day like the day when the Sun Stood Still in Gideon, when the sun did not set for the sake of Israel. Among those days, on a throne of glory, will this day take its place, the day when Israel arose from the dead.

"Comfort you, Comfort you, My People, said your God. Bid Jerusalem take heart, and proclaim unto her that her time of service is accomplished, and her guilt is paid off; that she has received of the hand of the Lord double for all her sins.

"If our eyes could see, what would they see? They would see our Fathers and our Mothers, our Prophets and our Sages of all generations rise up from their graves. They would see all our martyrs, the clean and the pure who have given their lives on the altars of all times, a great throng of them rise and come to wish us well.

"Mazel Tov, let it be a good omen, Jewish people!

"Wherever there is a Jewish house they came and wished us, the Jewish people, Mazel Tov.

"Because not with us alone did the wonder happen, but with those who are no longer with us and with those who are yet unborn. We have crossed the Red Sea again, and our lips sing again. A new Sabbath of Song has been given to us.

"Not only we alone have been redeemed today, but the whole world has redeemed itself with us. The nations of the world have been redeemed from the impurity of our

by Leonard Lyons

DYNASTY: Johnny Shubert's recent death at 53 brought to an end the dynasty controlling the largest legitimate theater chain in American history. Some collateral relatives may win the right to operate the chain, but the direct line of descended power is broken. At stake may be realty worth over $100 million all steeped in stormy tragedy.

Sam Shubert, who co-founded the empire, died in a train crash. His brothers Lee and J.J. were involved in constant litigation, including divorce and secret marriages revealed years afterwards. When Lee Shubert died, J.J. did not attend the funeral. The locks on the office doors were changed to thwart relatives, and to assure control of J.J.'s son Johnny.

During the depression, the Shuberts preserved the future of the American theater by refusing to sell any of their holdings, and assumed huge indebtedness to keep the showhouses intact. They kept their benevolences secret, preferring their image as tough business men.

They barred newspapermen whose writings displeased them. They had the legal right to refuse entry to a ticketholder, even if he'd purchased the ticket. They barred me for several years because of a joke I'd printed. It concerned the practice of saving the scenery cut from shows which were too long and then building a new show around the discarded sets.

I wrote that Fanny Brice's routine in which she bounced an apple in her hand was ordered cut from the show. Miss Brice held up the apple, and asked J.J., "What'll you do now -- produce 'William Tell'?"

In the fourth year of my ban from the Shubert Theaters, I was able to get a law passed by the State Legislature making it illegal for a theater owner or producer to bar a ticketholder from entering. We fought its constitutionality to the U.S. Supreme Court, where Lee and J.J. Shubert lost, and thereafter deemed me their mortal enemy.

Then Johnny Shubert started controlling the theaters, and helped alter the image of the dynasty. When Leo Kerz lacked funds, and a theater, for his production of "Rhinoceros," Johnny supplied both the money and a theater. And when, in the spring, Musicals' receipts sagged below the minimum, Johnny often waived the rent to keep the shows running through the summer.

There will be further litigation over the headless empire, and the tragedies continue. J.J. Shubert, now over 80 and bedridden, still doesn't know of his son's death.

TIPPING: One of America's most generous philanthropists gave a doorman who'd opened a taxi door a 50-cent tip and asked for 25 cents in change. He explained, "I make it a practice to tip not on my capacity to pay, but only on the worth of the services received."

CRITIQUE: George Jessel disapproved of a statue erected of a Broadway notable. He said, "The committee that chose this sculptor would choose a blind man to buy diamonds."

EDITOR: When Stanley Walker, who ended his life recently, was a city editor here, he received constant complaints from a minister for failing to report his sermons. Walker replied that if the minister would say or do something newsworthy, it would be reported. Then, one day, Walker read that the minister had been injured in a sledding accident.

The editor published the story this way: "The Rev.--, who in his sermon yesterday said" -- the sermon then was printed -- "was hospitalized last night after belly-whopping on a sled."

MEMOS: Gore Vidal, who is close to the Kennedys, will have an Esquire piece speculating on a Bobby Kennedy-Nelson Rockefeller contest for the Presidency in '68. . . . Martin Gabel will play the leading role in Irwin Shaw's new play. . . . When Patricia Medina was felled by pleurisy the other night, her role in "Calculated Risk" was played by Lucy Prentiss. She's the wife of the co-producer, Howard Erskine. . . . Ina Balin will be signed for "The Greatest Story Ever Told."

POSITION: Milton Biow, the retired advertising agency man, is writing his memoirs. He will state his opinion of the cautious ones; "The man who pulls in his horns too hard may wind up with two holes in his head."

The Old Man and his Sons

An old man was worried because his sons were constantly quarrelling. One day he asked each one in turn to break a bundle of sticks tied together by cord. No one could. Then the father gave each son a single stick. "Now try," he said. Each son broke his stick with the greatest of ease. "See, my sons," he said, "the power that is in unity. Alone you will surely fail."

Calls Meeting On Chased Schel Ames

Dear Editor,

In a recent issue of the Herald, there appeared a letter by Jacob J. Alprin, president of the Chased Schel Amess, in which he outlined the workings of the Association, and explained the reasons for some of the problems that exist at the Lincoln Park Cemetery.

In his letter, Mr. Alprin wrote, "Any individual or organization having an interest in the maintenance of the Lincoln Park Cemetery may appear before the Board of Directors at their monthly meeting, upon written or oral request to the Secretary."

The following week your paper published my answer to this letter which I ended with a request to the president and the entire Association for a hearing at the annual meeting, on December 2, for myself and a group of highly interested persons. I made the request through your paper in order that the Community might know what was transpiring. To date, no invitation has come forth, nor will it, for at this writing the meeting has already been held.

In order to combat this type of undemocratic and unilateral action, I have engaged a room at the East Side Community Center, for Monday evening, December 10, at 8 o'clock, and ask all those people who spoke, 'phoned or wrote to me, to be present.

The purpose of this meeting, will be, primarily, to determine what action we can take against a group of men who are servants of the Jewish Community, and not landowners at the cemetery; a group, whose sole duties, according to its charter, are to act as CARETAKERS of Lincoln Park Cemetery on behalf of R. I. Jewry.

The people whom the Association is supposedly representing, the people who pay the expense of maintaining the cemetery, are entitled to know why the cost of maintenance has suddenly risen. The Community is qualified to know whether the reason is simply that the necessary funds are not forthcoming, or whether the Chased Schel Amess has been making donations, from its treasury, to other charitable organizations. The people who support the Chased, have a right to know how the monies derived from perpetual care are being administered, or whether such a fund exists at all. The people who contacted me want to know why certain restrictions are enforced against some while the selfsame restrictions are abolished for others.

There is no question as to the honesty of the men who head the Association; however, the Chased Schel Amess is a public institution, better still, a Jewish institution that is supported solely by the Jewish people, and as such, is accountable to these people. To maintain the cemetery is one thing; but, to run a sub rosa organization and keep its supporters in the dark, is another.

Remember the place' and date: East Side Community Center, Monday, December 10, at 8 o'clock.

Sincerely,
Harry Albert

Bridge
Reaching the slam

by Revoke

Here are two hands which illustrate some typical problems of slam bidding:

- North
 ♠—A x
 ♥—A Q 10 x x x
 ♦—x x x
 ♣—x x
- South
 ♠—K Q x x x x
 ♥—K J x
 ♣—A K x x

South opened 1S and North replied correctly 2H. South's next bid is crucial. It is, of course, entirely wrong for him to content himself with a bid of 3H. This is an under-bid from which it is almost impossible to recover. A bid of 4H is also inadequate. North might well be worried about his three losers in diamonds and be afraid to explore any further possibilities.

South's correct bid, and the only way to get further information from his partner, is 3C. This bid gives North a chance of rebidding his heart suit or supporting spades or bidding 3NT according to his holding. In this case North would have replied with a 3H bid and on the next round South would bid 4H. On this sequence of bidding North will realize that his partner has a strong hand with good heart support. He must, therefore, be short in diamonds. The road is now clear to explore the slam.

This hand occurred in Beirut during the recent European championship. South's second bid was 3H, North raised him to 4H, and that is where they played it.

Soon afterwards another slam was missed. North held the following hand:

- ♠—A x x
 ♥—K x x
 ♦—A x x
 ♣—J 10 9 x

This was the sequence of bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 H	NB	2 C	2 D
3 H	NB	4 H	NB
NB	NB

North was wrong to bid 2C, but he could have corrected his mistake by bidding 4D over 3H. North's type of hand would have been much better explained by a 2NT response on the first round. South would then have had no difficulty in reaching the lay-down slam.

how to sell your husband a mink coat

Tell him, MINK IS WARM. Well, it is.

Tell him, MINK IS TEN COATS IN ONE. Don't sign a pledge, but just remind him what he'll save, when one natural dark mink does the work of a lamé coat, tweed coat, black coat, pink coat, short coat, long coat, travel coat, town coat, ad infinitum. (To be really blasé, wear it to the supermarket as well as the opera).

Tell him, MINK LASTS LONGER. What other coat looks beautiful for five, ten, umpteen years? (Again, sign nothing). Great Lakes natural dark ranch mink will stay in exquisite condition, keep its glorious color and lustre year after year —so really, what could be more economical? Tell him, MINK MEANS PRESTIGE. They can't see the extra HP's in his car, but oh, the passing power of a minked wife on his arm. Then watch him notice that the most distinguished men dress their wives in mink. Dark dark mink. Natural dark ranch mink. Magnificent Great Lakes mink.

Tell him, MINK HAS AN AMERICAN HERITAGE. That's why American mink has the edge on all the others. First born and bred in America, happiest and healthiest in this climate, Great Lakes mink is sought after in knowing international circles as the proudest, most gloriousty rich mink of them all. He couldn't do better than to hang an American mink on your family tree.

Tell him, MINK IS SO HUGGABLE. Pampered as it is on American ranches, accustomed to tender loving care and gourmet fare, Great Lakes mink has a deep soft pelt that's naturally more caressable. Just to prove the point—when at last he makes you close your eyes, and wraps you in that marvelous new mink (American, natural, dark and ranch), look wildly surprised. Then give him the thank-you hug of his life.

Former Rabbi Established As Comedian In TV, Night Clubs

by Leon Saperstein

Jackie Mason, who only five years ago was a rabbi, has established himself as a top comedian on television and night clubs. Last Sunday, Jackie completed a week's engagement at Caesar Tomagno's Monticello Restaurant at Framingham, Mass. This past week he has been seen on the TV program, "Password."

Both Jackie Mason and his act are interesting to observe. So far as Mason's performance is concerned, it is a specialized brand of humor, delivered in rapid-fire style with the situations built up very skillfully. He employs an East Side New York, Anglo-Jewish accent and gesticulations which break up the audience. Jackie touched lightly on such subjects as President Kennedy, Dr. Kinsey's findings, the manly art of self defense, income taxes and the "real" Jackie Mason.

In the audience, a week ago Thursday night, was Al Weintraub, the genial proprietor of Beacon Records, who thoroughly enjoyed the entertainment.

Meeting Jackie Mason in person was enlightening. Here is a friendly, highly intelligent young man, unlike the brash person he depicts before the footlights and television cameras.

The first question was why he had forsaken the rabbinate to pursue a career in show business. His reply was, "I never wanted to be a rabbi . . . But, I didn't want to hurt my father. My father and three brothers are rabbis . . . I served as a Conservative rabbi for one year in a small town in North Carolina . . . But, it was not for me."

Mason began his comedy routine five years ago in the Borscht Circuit, appearing frequently at Grossingers and the Concord. However, it took almost three years before Jackie became a solid hit.

Appearing at the Slate Brothers Club, off La Cienega Boulevard in Los Angeles, his performances attracted certain show business personalities who were impressed by his off-beat routine. They mentioned this to Steve Allen who booked Mason on his show. From that moment Jackie was on his way up the shaky ladder of stardom. Since then he has guested on leading TV programs such as the Ed Sullivan, Garry Moore, Perry Como and Jack Paar shows.

Becoming a star has created new problems for Mason. His biggest is the need for creating new material. Jackie writes his own comedy and the medium of television is a great devourer of routines.

To the question of how he is appreciated by New England audiences, Mason said, "The same as in all metropolitan areas. I do have a problem when I visit the hinterlands where they don't seem to understand me."

Jackie Mason seemed concerned about audience reaction to his comedy. He need not fear however, not with his large assortment of brief monologues like this closing remark from his act.

"I would like to leave you with the words of my grandfather who said, 'Don't guard your money. Guard your health!' While I was guarding my health, somebody stole my money. I think it was my grandfather."

Beloved husband and father, JOSEPH GREENE, by Mrs. Joseph Greene, Mrs. Harold Hirsch.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED PHILADELPHIA — Jewish communities in this country and in Canada were urged here by the General Assembly of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds to strengthen Jewish education in quality and effectiveness. They were also urged to make larger contributions to the National Foundation for Jewish Culture.

A resolution adopted by the Assembly stated, "While the forms and procedures vary from city to city in Jewish education as in other services, the problems are pervasive. They require the most energetic and imaginative national and local attention; re-appraisal of the various forms of Jewish education and the role of federations in relation to them—weekday, week-end and all-day schools; cooperation among the various types of schools, and particularly between synagogues and federations; and concerted measures to deal with community-wide responsibilities. We commend the communities which have carried forward such a re-appraisal and planning; we urge those communities which have not yet done so to undertake it."

There are some 4,500 educational institutions of all types in Israel. About 65 per cent of them are of the kindergarten or primary school level.

Center To Conduct 'Teen Quiz Bowl'

Six of the Jewish Community Center's teenage boys and girls organizations will match intellectuals at the "Teen Quiz Bowl" to be conducted at the East Side Center building Sunday at 7 P.M.

Patterned after the TV "College Bowl" program, the Quiz Bowl is sponsored by the Center Youth Council as one of its Honor Club Programs.

Youth Council President, James Levitt, and program chairman, Mrs. Abraham Adelman, announced that the groups who will be competitors for the evening are Robert Arthur Lavan BBG, vs Judy Ann Leven BBG, Little Rhody AZA, vs Alpha Lambda Sorority, Dodeem BBG, vs Narragansett AZA, Falcons, vs Einstein BBG.

Moderator for the evening will be Max Millman, principal of Nathan Bishop Junior High School. Questions for the contests have been prepared by Matthew Millman, faculty member at Hope High School.

"Quiz Bowl" finals will be conducted at the Center on Monday Dec. 24, at 7 P.M.

All teenagers and parents are invited to attend Sunday evening's program.

Engaged — Mr. and Mrs. Julius Fisher of 61 Sunset Terrace, Cranston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Dana Faye, to William Salsburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Salsburg of Shillington, Pa.

Miss Fisher is a graduate of Cranston High School and Bryant College. Mr. Salsburg was graduated from Shillington High School and Albright College. A June 30 wedding is planned.

Mrs. Sheldon David Heller

A wedding trip to Jamaica, W.I., followed the wedding on Sunday, Dec. 2, of Miss Janice S. Finn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Finn of Ferry Street, Malden, Mass., to Sheldon D. Heller, son of Mrs. Abe Heller of Lancaster Street, and the late Abe Heller.

Rabbi Alexander M. Goldstein of Temple Shalom and Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen of Temple Emanu-El officiated at the 6 P.M. ceremony which took place at Temple Shalom in Medford, Mass.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white bouquet taffeta, fashioned with a scalloped neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. Appliques of re-embroidered alencon lace highlighted the princess style bodice and the softly belled skirt which then swept into a chapel length train. Her fingertip French illusion veil fell from a matching pillbox. She carried a cascade of white Fiji mums and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Sumner Finn, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. She was gowned in blue iridescent chiffon with a sequin bodice. She wore a matching blue velvet bow as a headpiece and carried a cascade of Fiji mums.

The mother of the bride was dressed in periwinkle blue peau de soie with a beaded lace bodice. The bridegroom's mother wore a blue chiffon, draped bodice dress. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages.

Irving Silverman was best man. Ushers were Sumner Finn, brother of the bride; Kenneth Halpern, Louis Millen, brothers-in-law of the bridegroom; Dr. Edward Spindell, Henry Epstein and Arthur Flink. Junior ushers were Ronald and Andrew Millen, nephews of the bridegroom.

A reception was held at Temple Shalom following the wedding.

Upon their return from the wedding trip, the couple will reside at 966C Hope Street.

In Hollywood . . .

By Barney Glazer

HOLLYWOOD, CALIFORNIA-- Joseph E. Levine has purposely omitted the screen-writing credit of the Ely Landau film production, "Long Day's Journey Into Night." If anyone should be credited for the writing chore, it is Eugene O'Neill himself. In transferring the Pulitzer Prize-winning play to the screen, director Sidney Lumet used O'Neill's script virtually intact as his scenario, which is the first time since talkies began that a stage work has been presented on celluloid without credit to an adaptor or screen writer.

PRODUCER Arthur Hoffer handled the switchboard of New York's Mercury Theater 20 years ago. Whenever he needed a replacement, Hoffer used a young lady named Judy Tuvim. She was an actress but had to work to eat. Today, two decades later, Hoffer is a producer and young Miss Tuvim will star in his film "The Great Sebastians." You know her now as Judy Holliday. How did she acquire her stage name? In Hebrew, Tuvim means holiday.

film spectacular "Mutiny on the Bounty" for a magnificent job.

city basketball tournament. Teenagers from the Springfield Mass. JCC will be hosts for the inter-city program.

CHANUKAH FAIR

The Children's Activities Committee of the Jewish Community Center will conduct a "Children's Jewish Book Fair and Chanukah Gift Sale" at the East Side Center building on Sunday Dec. 16, from 1:30 to 4:30 P.M.

Program chairman, Mrs. Clinton Zacks, announces that Jewish books for children, Chanukah candles, children's and Israeli gift items, Chanukah decorations, menorahs, and Chanukah gift wrappings will be among the many items displayed for sale. The general public is invited.

RHODE ISLAND SELFHELP

Rhode Island Selfhelp will hold a Gala Dance on Saturday at 8:30 P.M. at the meeting hall of Temple Emanu-El.

There will be a buffet supper and cocktails. Dancing will be to the music of the Tommy Masso orchestra.

True, you may not accept Marlon Brando with the same feeling of sympathy inspired by Clark Gable's original performance of the same "Mr. Christian" role. Neither may you hate Trevor Howard as intensely as you despised Charles Laughton in the Captain Bligh part.

However, the film is breathtaking in its photographed splendor and natural color and Aaron Rosenberg will be forgiven by MGM Studios for his copious budget extensions.

It seems like only yesterday when this column, as a sports writer for a Jewish syndicate, worked with Irv Kupcinet, of Chicago, and handed Rosenberg a trophy as a member of our all-Jewish all-America football team of 1932. He won similar honors in every all-America poll. His was an unanimous choice.

Rosenberg played running guard on the University of Southern California squad.

UNIVERSITY of Judaism's television series is one of the most imaginative I've ever witnessed. There are at least six programs on the air now with more coming. Local and network channels are so enthused over the Los Angeles Jewish university's idea that they have opened their beams wide to air them proudly.

Caliber of the shows is top level with important Jewish stars such as Theodore Bikel, Herschel Bernardi, composer Ernest Gold, and conductor Roger Wagner begging to offer their assistance. What is most surprising is that the programs are self-sustaining. Not a penny has been appropriated by the University of Judaism.

Credit for negotiations and arrangements goes to Saul Rubin, who is being recognized as a quiet-spoken, unhurried man of genius.

WHEN you see Stanley Kramer's new movie, "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World," pay particular attention to the telephone voice of Spencer Tracy's wife. It's Selma Diamond, the New York character actress, whom you've seen often on Jack Paar's show. Selma worked in the film for five days and her chief regret is understandable. She won't be seen.

EDUCATOR SUCCUMBS
NEW YORK—Dr. Emanuel Gamoran, for 36 years, director of the Commission on Jewish Education of Reform Judaism, died at his home recently of a heart attack. He was born in Belz, Russia, in 1895, and came to the United States in 1907.

Your Money's Worth

 with a court decision that if the child care expenses meet all the necessary tests, the expenses are deductible -- even when the money is paid to a relative.
 The identical payment also counts in determining whether the wife or widow has contributed more than half of the child's support and thus is entitled to the $600 dependency credit.

This development can help many who really need to save every penny in taxes possible. If these circumstances apply to you or to a friend, check on your status at once.
HOME IMPROVEMENTS FOR MEDICAL REASONS: If you already have made this year or are considering making improvements to your home for medical reasons, you should be aware of an important concession made to you by the Treasury in 1962. Previously, the Treasury had agreed that your cost of installing such permanent improvements as stairway elevators, swimming pools, etc., for necessary medical reasons could qualify as deductible medical expenses if the improvements did not raise the value of your property -- but this rule was interpreted in an exceedingly strict way.

For instance, if you had spent

$2,000 for a medically necessary improvement to your home in 1961 which had raised the market value of your home by only $500, the Treasury said that as long as the value of your home went up, you weren't entitled to any part of the $2,000 you spent as a medical deduction.

Several courts argued the Treasury was wrong and held that the homeowner could treat as medical expense the amount of his expense above the increase in his home's value -- which would have been $1,500 in the above example. The Treasury finally has agreed this is just.

If you already have made such improvements to your home in 1962 or do so before the end of this year, you'll be entitled to the medical expense deduction, assuming you meet the stated requirements.

SICK CHILDREN: If your child is away from home for medical reasons, you can deduct as a medical expense the cost of visiting him, if the visit is necessary for the child's therapy and medical cure. But what if your visit is designed to help your child's morale as well as cure his mental and physical ailment? Can you deduct the costs of this trip as a medical expense?
 The problem came up when parents in Tennessee were advised by their son's psychologist to help his morale and psychological condition by visiting him at the Arizona school which he had to attend because of his severe asthmatic condition.

The Treasury now has agreed with the court that this type of trip is a deductible medical expense for the parents. It is doubtful, though, that the Treasury would allow you a deduction for a trip this Christmas which helped only the morale of your sick child without also helping to alleviate his physical or mental ailment.

A LOOK AT SPORTS

by LEON SAPERSTEIN

National Basketball Association fans are being treated to more diversity so far this season. Generally there is as much suspense in the NBA, so far as the pennant races are concerned, as in a situation comedy on television.

However, there are two surprises in the league that will help to keep attendances from dipping too low. In the eastern sector, the Syracuse Nationals have managed to stay close to the Boston Celtics and have split even in four games with the NBA Champions. Although I feel that the Celtics will steadily pull away from the rest of their division and win by at least eight games, the early success of the Nats is a good thing for pro basketball.

Boston fans may not agree or care, but the partisans of the other NBA teams are a little tired and frustrated after the past five years of Boston domination. Like the Yankees in the American League, the Celtics have made enemies by their consistent triumphs. And unlike baseball the home grounds usually means an automatic win for most of the local teams. Therefore, the majority of fans, even the Boston enthusiasts, do not flock to the basketball arenas too often to watch their heroes in action.

Over in the western division, the Los Angeles Lakers, heavily favored to win a second consecutive title, have come to the top after a slow start. Here is a squad which may replace the Celtics as the champions of the National Basketball Association. In Elgin Baylor and Jerry West, Los Angeles has the best one-two punch in the league. Whether these two stalwarts can carry the Lakers all the way will be answered come playoff time.

A disappointment last year, the St. Louis Hawks have rebounded this year to battle the Lakers for division supremacy. Bob Pettit has been immense as usual but the big surprise has been Barnhill, a fast forward, who has averaged close to fifteen points a game and has sparked the Hawks' fast break. Len Wilkens has aided the St. Louis cause. Only the presence of the Lakers will keep the Hawks from the top rung.

A bitter shock to San Francisco fans has been the state of affairs that has plagued their Warriors. Despite the prolific scoring of Wilt Chamberlain, the Warriors are battling to stay ahead of the fourth place Chicago Zephyrs. Not only that, but the San Franciscans are finding it difficult to win in their own court, a situation most unusual in the NBA. My prediction calls for the Warriors to start a surge next month which should bring about a frantic struggle for the number two position in the west. But, Chamberlain will need help to accomplish this mission.

But, when the regular season is ended, we shall again see the familiar Boston Celtics and the Los Angeles Lakers comfortably at the heads of their sections. Now that I have settled the races, I can't wait for the playoffs in late March.

BASEBALL BRIEFS . . . The baseball trading mart showed no sign of decline last week as the Milwaukee Braves shipped their powerhitting first baseman, Joe Adcock to the Cleveland Indians. Adcock is the fourth first baseman to be involved in a trade the past month—the other three were Dick Stuart, Pete Runnels and Bill Skowron. . . . We shall have to wait for the smoke to clear before examining who's who in baseball for 1963. . . . Look for the Yankees to make a deal shortly. They are still searching for another pitcher.

FOOTBALL FACTS . . . The stage is being prepared for a second meeting between the participants of 1961's National Football League championship. New York is set and Green Bay should make it past the 49ers and hapless Rams. I am busy polishing my crystal ball for this one. A very tough one to figure right now—but the decision will be made.

The Giants have more ten year and five year men on their squad than any other NFL club. Seven are veterans of ten seasons and seventeen have seen the dust of five campaigns. The ten year men are:

Y.A. Tittle, Andy Robustelli, Frank Gifford, Dick Modzelewski, Tom Scott, Jack Stroud and Ray Wietecha.

These seven have made possible the Giants' victory in the East. As in all sports, experience is a good weapon to have available.

Pollster Quayle Talks At Institute

WASHINGTON—Jewish voters may have provided the narrow margin of victory in the 1960 election for President John F. Kennedy, pollster Oliver A. Quayle told an institute convened here by the National Conference of Christians and Jews. Mr. Quayle is vice-president of Louis Harris & Associates, the firm that conducted the private polls for President Kennedy during the 1960 campaign. He said Jews were cool to Mr. Kennedy at the start of the 1960 campaign but later fell solidly behind him "because he was a Catholic and deserved support of a minority group, even though another minority." He indicated that both Catholic and Protestant support of Mr. Kennedy dropped in the last weeks of the campaign and "he may have been saved by the increase in the Jewish vote."

ORGANIZATION NEWS

CRANSTON JEWISH CENTER

Joseph Postar was elected first president of the newly organized Men's Club of the Cranston Jewish Center at a meeting Sunday, Dec. 2, in the Center Social Hall.

Other officers are Oscar I. Cohen, first vice president; Samuel Primack, second vice president; Joseph Block, third vice president; Richard Barber, secretary, and Raymond Cohen, treasurer.

Elected to the executive committee are John Berger, David Buckler, Edward Feinberg, Samuel Greene, Fred Kafrisen, Harold Levine, Irving Levine, Warren Pulner and Stanley Zier.

A Men's Club breakfast will be held Sunday morning in the Center social hall with Dr. Banice Feinberg, Providence pediatrician, as the speaker. Dr. Feinberg recently returned from Algeria where he and a group of physicians met the medical needs of the local population.

HADASSAH TO MEET

The Providence Chapter of Hadassah will hold its next meeting on Tuesday at the Rhode Island Historical Society, 52 Power Street. The meeting will honor all paid-up members, and new Life members will receive special recognition. Coffee will be served at 1 P.M. and the meeting will start at 1:30 P.M.

Dr. Earl Hollier Tomlin, guest speaker who has recently returned from his tenth trip to Israel, will speak on "Israel—Progress and Perils Unlimited." He will be presented by Mrs. Jerrold Franklin, program chairman.

Mrs. Benjamin Glasser has announced that a meeting of donor workers will be held at 12 noon.

BOARD TO MEET

A regular meeting of the board of directors of the Bureau of Jewish Education will be held at Temple Beth David on Tuesday at 8 P.M.

A salary study of the School Council, headed by Seymour Krieger, is conducting meetings now to study prevailing salary practices in local Hebrew schools with an eye toward stabilizing salary schedules and offering guide lines to the various schools.

TRI-SISTERHOOD MEETING

A Tri-Sisterhood meeting, including the women of Temple Sinai, the Cranston Jewish Center and Temple Beth Am of Warwick, will be held on Tuesday at Temple Sinai at 8:15 P.M.

Mrs. Milton Genser of Temple Sinai, Mrs. Frederick Kafrisen of the Cranston Jewish Center and Mrs. Myer Jarcho of Temple Beth Am are co-chairmen.

Assisting in the program are Mesdames Edward Bender, Nelson Gandelman, Stanley Pellitz, Morton Berkowitz, Jay Dayan, Alan Arlow, Maurice Siegel and Robert Levy, hospitality; Arthur Elman, Junius Gertz, William Wexler and Saul Feinstein, entertainment.

SEEKONK SWIMMING CLUB

Joseph Gladstone was elected president of the Seekonk Swimming Club at its Annual Meeting held on Nov. 19.

Other officers elected for the 1963 season are Bernard Gladstone, executive vice-president; Simon Feldman, Jerome Tesler, vice-presidents; Matthew Millman, secretary; Isadore Dworin, treasurer; Henry Rotenberg, clerk. Members of the board of directors are Samuel Bomes, Leonard Holland, Eli Portman, Joseph Cohen, Abraham Greenberg, Abraham Israel, Herbert Kaster, Irving Shechtman, Everett Sugarman and Marcus Weinberg.

Mr. Gladstone appointed several committee chairmen. They are Samuel Bomes, house and grounds; Ruth Kahn, membership; Ernest Newman, finance;

Irving Shechtman, snack bar; Marcus Weinberg, social; Aaron Caslowitz, guest fees; Abraham Israel, new construction and Joseph Abelson, swimming activities.

Renovation of the ladies' lockerroom and construction of an all weather recreation area were approved for the coming season.

News Appears About Biro-Bidjan In USSR

NEW YORK — After a long brek in the flow of news from Biro-Bidjan, the two-page issue of the Yiddish "Biro-Bidjaner Stern" contains interesting and valuable information about Jewish life in that remote part of the world, officially known as the Jewish Autonomous Region in the U.S.S.R.

It gives a picture of the intensity of Jewish life in the agricultural, industrial and cultural spheres.

In the newly constructed electrical transformer works, now one of the biggest in the area, Jews are reported to be making an important contribution to the development of this new industry. The chief technical engineer is a Jewess, Mela Yakovlevna Lamina. Under her supervision the annual plan has been "fulfilled" by 100 percent.

Abram Yutal and Jacob Kiselhof were said to be responsible for the development and progress of the television and radio departments in the engineering works.

The textile industry in the area, first established in 1934, is also said to have made very rapid progress, thanks to the efforts of many Jewish craftsmen. Much prominence is given to the role Jews have played and are playing in the organization of agriculture. Jews are also taking a leading part as educators.
