Audrey Goldis Graduates Hope With Outstanding Honors

by Brenda Slack

Among many successful students who graduated from Hope High School on January 22, one very attractive young graduate was exceptionally outstanding. Audrey Goldis, who reaped a harvest of honor awards, has accomplished striking successes during her years at Hope.

University Receives Rare Manuscript From Hungarian Library

NEW YORK — A collection of rare manuscripts, some dating to the eleventh century, has been received by the New York University Library of Hebraica and Judaica from the Oriental Library of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences, according to a report by the New York Times.

Included in the collection are manuscripts pertaining to the Bible, commentaries on Hebrew literature, documents relating to Talmudic scholarship and religious laws, works on liturgy, mathematics, astronomy, medicine, theology and philosophy and historical articles.

Although most of the manuscripts are in Hebrew several are in Arabic and Italian.

The manuscripts, which have not previously been available to the Western world, were collected and microfilmed by Prof. Abraham I. Katsch, curator of the Judaica library, with support from the Rockefeller Foundation and the American Council of Learned Societies.

The collection is the second half of the David Kaufmann collection. The first half was received by N. Y. U. last July.

Dr. Kaufmann, who died in 1899, was a professor at the Jewish Theological Seminary of Hungary and a world-famous authority on Jewish history, culture and religious philosophy.

Ranking high scholastically, Audrey was named recipient of the Dennis Award for Girls, was winner of the Anthony Medal contest and received the American Legion Award for the graduating class.

An avid French enthusiast, Audrey was also awarded a special medal for excellence in French. Miss Rose Presel, head of the modern language department was quoted recently as saying that "Audrey was one of the most brilliant students of French that Hope High School has ever had. She has covered four years of high school French and the advanced college French. Her accent is almost a native one and she speaks French very fluently and has extraordinary comprehension."

Aside from her many scholastic achievements Audrey was chairman of the French club and was a delegate to the Junior Alliance Francaise. She has belonged to the Art Service group and the Hostess Corps. She had a major role in the class play, "Meet Me In St. Louis," and has found time to be homeroom president for two semesters and class president for three semesters and has served on the Student Council.

Outside of a busy school schedule Audrey has many diversified interests which include painting and sketching; being a volunteer for the Red Cross and the Miriam Hospital and is a member of the B'nai B'rith Girls. Audrey has taken piano lessons for nine years and in 1959 gave a recital at Froebel Hall.

Audrey's unusual capabilities are coupled with extreme modesty and she hesitates to speak of her many accomplishments but to her teachers and friends she has quietly attained respect and admiration from all around her.

Although her interests are many and varied, Audrey hopes to attend Pembroke College in the Fall and become a teacher of foreign languages.

U.S. Mission In Israel To Wind Up Activities After Eleven Years

TEL AVIV — The U. S. Operation Mission in Israel, which started in this country in 1951, will wind up its activities on June 30, at the same time as those in Greece and Lebanon, it was authoritatively learned. Since its beginning $850,000,000 in economic aid and technical assistance has poured in.

This included $264,000,000 in grants as well as several loans to finance development programs in agriculture, irrigation and road building. American surplus shipments to Israel — mainly of fodder and food grain — were valued at about $375,000,000.

This enabled 660 Israelis to take courses in the U. S. while 380 experts, mostly Americans, came to Israel as advisers and instructors.

Princeton Students Establish First Kosher Table At University

PRINCETON, N. J. — With the aid of Dr. Irving M. Levey, the Jewish chaplain at Princeton University, a group of ten Princeton students has established the first kosher table in the university's history.

The group has leased a six-room house one block from the campus and has hired a cook who specializes in Jewish food. The result is Yevneh House, where the students take all their meals, observing the dietary laws of Orthodox Judaism.

Yevneh House has been operating since September, Rabbi Levey said, "with enormous success." Before the kosher kitchen

Miriam Hospital Opens $5 Million Campaign

Funds To Finance Building Program

Organization of the fund raising campaign to help finance the $5,000,000 building program at Miriam Hospital got under way with the announcement today by Alexander Rumppler, campaign chairman, of the enlistment of four business leaders of the community who will help head the effort.

Max L. Grant, Providence businessman and first president of the hospital; Benjamin N. Kane, another businessman of this city; and Samuel Rapaport, Jr., president of S. Rapaport and Company, jewelry manufacturers of Attleboro, Mass. were named honorary co-chairmen of the Building Fund and Joseph W. Rens, president-treasurer of E. A. Adams and Son, Inc., was announced as associate campaign chairman.

The campaign for the Miriam Hospital Building Fund will be conducted this spring and support will be sought from households throughout the state and from business and industrial firms in the Providence area, the chairman noted.

Mr. Rumppler, who was enlisted last year as campaign chairman of the Miriam Hospital Building Fund after he had completed five years as president of the hospital, reviewed plans for the new construction.

A large new building of ultra-modern design will be erected adjoining the rear of the present hospital and extending across what is now Sixth Street over as far as Seventh Street and back toward Highland Avenue.

The structure will contain a new pavilion for private patients on the top floor and a full floor of semi-private rooms, bringing the capacity of Miriam Hospital up to 270 patients.

Plans for the new building include also a complete diagnostic center, where large x-ray and laboratory departments will function side by side, and a nearby surgical department described as "one of the best equipped to be installed in any hospital in the country".

The freeing of space in the existing Miriam Hospital will permit major expansion in the present building of the heavily burdened emergency department and outpatient clinic, and a new intensive care section for surgical and medical patients requiring specialized attention around the clock will be installed on the present third floor.

While Miriam Hospital is operated under Jewish auspices, some 75 per cent of the patients served are not Jewish and approximately half of the professional staff members are of other faiths, Mr. Rumppler said.

Plans for the new building and remodeling of the existing building at Miriam Hospital are being designed by Sidney L. Katz, Joseph Blumenbranz and Associates, architects. Dr. I. Herbert Scheffer, executive director of Miriam Hospital is serving as consultant.

Plan for Miriam Hospital — Shown above is the proposed plan for expanding the Miriam Hospital. From the Highland Avenue view at the rear, the great expanse topped by an outdoor terrace and air conditioning pond will house a floor of completely new surgical, laboratory, x-ray, pharmacy and administrative departments many times larger than those presently available, and of the latest design. New dietary, power plant and laundry facilities are also included in the plans. The bed count will be increased to 270 accommodations for patients.

Excellent opportunities are in the Herald's Classified ads.

Hate Campaigner Put on Probation

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — A 34-year-old Connecticut artist and confessed mailer of anti-Semitic material was under concurrent two and three-year terms of probation this week after paying fines totaling $700 for his two-year hate campaign.

Alan S. Moyler had previously pleaded guilty in Westport, Conn. court and in the United States District court here to a variety of charges growing out of his sending hate material to Jews in the Westport-Weston area. The mail included dead rats and bats. It took postal authorities, Connecticut police and local officials more than two years to track the artist down.

Moyler told Federal judge Robert P. Anderson he was sorry for what he had done. Judge Anderson suspended imposition of sentence for his Federal offenses and placed the artist on three years' probation.

In Norwalk Circuit court, Judge George Wise fined him $700 on four charges, suspended a jail sentence totaling 210 days and placed him on two years' probation. The charges included five counts of breach of the peace, one count of willful injury to a public service company, two counts of willful injury to private property.

Blum's Family Sues Publisher For Libel

PARIS — The family of the late Leon Blum, twice Premier of France, was told last week that a judgment would be rendered on Feb. 24 on its 10,000,000 franc ($2,000,000) suit alleging libel of the memory of the late French leader.

The defendant was the publisher of the Larousse French Encyclopedia. The suit charged that the current edition sought to perpetuate the ancient canard that Blum was not a Frenchman but a "foreign Jew." The article alleged Blum's "real name" had been Leon Kerkunkelstein.

The publisher's defense was that the article had been written by "a young and inexperienced graduate," who had since been fired. Attorneys for the plaintiff replied that there were also many expressions "defamatory to Jews in general" in the current edition.

lucrative entertainment business, $750 a week is small change indeed. The German authorities are unable to crack down against the offenders and order their expulsion. Expelling Jews from Germany smacks too much of the Hitler era, and even a single forcible-expulsion case would bring back a mighty wave of neo-Nazism, authorities fear.

The only thing that could bring all Israeli expatriates back to Zion would be withdrawal of American troops from West Germany. Without the dollar-happy GIs, the entire Israeli-controlled entertainment business would collapse overnight. But things don't point that way yet. Israel is now making superhuman efforts to gain genuine German goodwill and build up friendship and understanding among the young post-war generation, especially among students and intellectuals.

Israeli passenger liners disembark groups of invited German youths, professors, teachers and writers, who tour the country at the Israeli Government's expense. Some of them study Hebrew, work in showcase kibbutz settlements, join desert outpost collectives and are given lectures on Zionism and Israel's development.

During the summer vacation months of 1960, there was hardly a kibbutz in Israel without a group of invited German guests. This costly scheme was undertaken by the Israeli Government to prove to Germany's future leaders that the 2,000 Israelis in Germany are not representative of the 2,000,000 Israelis in the Holy Land. "They are just flotsam and jetsam, and should be regarded as such, but they spoil our reputation and ruin our good name just the same," an official complained.

What 20,000 Israelis Are Doing In Germany

By Leo Heiman

Sixteen years after the collapse of the Nazi regime in Germany, thousands of Israeli Jews are flocking back to the former Reich to make quick fortunes and damage the cordial relations between the Bonn Government and the State of Israel.

The Israeli Government is now considering administrative measures to revoke the citizenship and cancel the passports of those Israelis who make themselves, obnoxious in West Germany, either by overstaying their welcome or by participating in unsavory get-rich-quick deals.

In 1941, Germany was the evil headquarters of the world's most diabolical plan to exterminate the Jewish people. In 1961, West Germany is the most popular place for Jewish emigrants from Israel.

Even those Israelis who think there may be practical reasons for emigration, agree that there is something repulsive about an Israeli Jew who leaves his own country to resettle in Germany. Yet, over 20,000 Israelis have so far established residence in West Germany, besides the many thousands of Israeli tourists and businessmen who flock there every month.

Despite ominous anti-Semitic rumblings along the Rhine and the Elbe, many Israelis find Germany a happy place to live. A senior official of the Israeli Mission in Germany was quite outspoken about it: "It is a sad, despicable fact that most Israelis settle in Germany for no other reason than monetary gain."

Quite a few Israeli emigres get into trouble with the law: 85 per cent of all emigres are going into what is called the "entertainment business." While some run legitimate theaters, cinemas, shows and restaurants, the vast majority strike it rich by operating brothels, honkytonks, dives, strip joints and gambling places. They have few customers among the local Germans who prefer to patronize their own establishments. The big money comes from the American GIs, as well as from the British, French and Canadian troops stationed in West Germany within the NATO pact framework.

Only 15 per cent of all Israelis who go back to Germany are not connected in any way with the "entertainment business," according to Israeli Mission sources. The number of Israeli citizens in Germany is variously estimated at from 15,000 to 30,000. It is impossible to get the exact figure, because many emigres have acquired German or Austrian passports, but still cling to their Israeli citizenship, as insurance in case of unexpected trouble.

They would be hit by the proposed administrative regulations which will invalidate all Israeli passports, unless their holders in Germany present themselves personally for renewal at the Israeli Mission offices in Cologne by a certain deadline date. Those who apply for renewal will be given an additional 90 days in which to pack up and go back to Israel. Those who refuse, together with those who do not register at all, will lose their passports and citizenship.

Worried by the rush of Israelis who make a beeline for German honkytonks, the Foreign Ministry in Jerusalem has quietly requested the Bonn Government to slow-pedal the granting of entry visas to holders of Israeli passports. Applicants for a travel permit to West Germany must first get releases, permits or documents from the Israeli army, police, income tax and immigration authorities, Ministry of Interior, Jewish Agency and other bodies, and pay a prohibitive travel tax, passport tax and exit permit fee; only then are they able to clear the next hurdle at the German Consulate.

There, they must provide an official invitation from someone in West Germany, with a bank guarantee to make sure they won't stay more than three months.

But despite all these obstacles and difficulties, thousands of Israelis travel to Germany. Official invitations and bank guarantees are fixed for as little as $100. And most Israeli emigres prefer to forfeit the required $750 bank guarantee and stay in Germany after their permit runs out. In the

Group Tours Half Million Dollar Hebrew Day School

Rabbi Akiva Egozi, director of the Providence Hebrew Day School, says that the school is making a definite contribution to the Jewish community of Rhode Island.

He told some fifty community leaders at a breakfast meeting recently that the Hebrew Day School is carrying on the tradition of a positive view toward the need of an adequate and intensive Jewish education by Jews themselves.

The breakfast meeting of the Building Fund Campaign Committee of the new Hebrew Day School was held at the home of Judge Frank Licht, 640 Elmgrove Avenue. Judge Licht reviewed the development of the Hebrew Day School.

Jacob N. Temkin is co-chairman of the Dedication Ceremony and Dinner to be held on April 1.

Jerome Feinstein, chairman, said that the new half-million dollar structure on Elmgrove Avenue is nearing completion and all major construction will be completed within the next few weeks.

Thomas W. Pearlman, 1961 chairman of the Building Fund, reported that since June 30, 1961, more than $25,000 of building pledges and memorials were committed as further evidence of community-wide support.

Following the meeting, a large group of supporters toured the new half-million dollar structure. Shown above are, left to right, Dr. Harry Elkin, director of the Jewish Bureau of Education; Rabbi Akiva Egozi, school director; Louis Korn, school treasurer; Judge Frank Licht, honorary chairman of the Building Committee; Joseph Dubin, school president; Thomas W. Pearlman, 1961 chairman of the Building Fund, and Archie Smith, chairman of the Education Committee. Jerome Feinstein, Building Committee chairman, was not present when the photograph was taken.

Industrial National To Appoint Advisory Comm.

Shareholders of the Industrial National Bank of Rhode Island at their annual meeting heard John Simmen, President, stress the "need for understanding the basic principles on which this country was founded".

"We need to apply these principles at home before we attempt to discuss their values abroad as a medium to achieve human dignity and freedom from bondage. Let me express this statement of need another way: We must get away from the idea that there is justification for public and private groups to rise to power for material advantages; we must understand that the material benefits of this country have only been gained through our spiritual, moral and political concepts".

President Simmen informed shareholders that the Board of Directors would authorize appointment of a "Women's Advisory Committee", consisting of outstanding women in the community who will function in an advisory capacity only. It will develop our program of public relations, thereby improving relationships with customers and maintaining the highest degree of good will in the community.

Miss Olga Miga, Assistant Cashier of the Bank, will serve as a member of this committee ex officio and will act as liaison between its members and senior management of the Bank. Mr. Simmen indicated it would take several months before appointments could be made and the committee begin to function.

To Visit Colleges

WASHINGTON — Shabtai Teveth, a prominent political journalist in Israel, begins a three-month lecture tour of U.S. college campuses this month under the joint sponsorship of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundations and the United Jewish Appeal.

Mr. Teveth, 37, is on the editorial staff of Haaretz, Israel's largest morning daily.

His coast-to-coast tour starts Feb. 6 at George Washington University in Washington, D.C. He will visit 35 colleges and universities, including Harvard, Brandeis, Princeton and Hebrew Union College. He will address students on the political, social and economic problems of Israel.

A native of Israel, Mr. Teveth received his early newspaper training during a visit to the United States in 1946. He was a reporter with the York (Pa.) Gazette and the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

He returned to Israel in 1948 to serve in the armed forces. He joined Haaretz in 1950 and four years later became a roving correspondent in Europe.

Mr. Teveth is the author of two collections of short stories, a book on the Sinai campaign and another on the 50th anniversary of Tel Aviv. A radio play of his was chosen as Israel's entry at the 1959 Prix Italia world competition.

Mr. Korb Honored By President Kennedy

L. David Korb, a Providence native and son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Korb of 125 Abbott Street, was honored recently in Washington, D.C.

A member of President Kennedy's task force on employee-management relations, he was given the pen with which the President finished signing the bill that put task force recommendations into law. That presentation took place in the White House on Jan. 17.

A day earlier, he had received a citation for his part in the development of the program for employee-management relations at a Civil Service awards ceremony at which Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson was the principal speaker.

The citation was signed by Commissioners Frederick J. Lawton and Robert E. Hampton and by John W. Macy, Jr., chairman of the civil service commission.

Mr. Korb, a graduate of Brown University in 1939 and Boston University, where he received a masters degree, is a personnel management specialist in the Bureau of Programs and Standards in Washington. The civil service awards ceremony, at which he received the citation, is held yearly in the nation's capital and formally recognizes outstanding achievements by government employees.

He is married to the former Ruth Aden of Providence, and along with their four children, now reside in Bethesda, Md.

Editor's Mailbox

Gentlemen:

In his admirable survey "Is Israel planning a bomb?" Leonard Beaton suggests that the answer must be in the negative, if only to prevent the delivery of nuclear weapons by Russia to Egypt. In discussing the significance of the small Israeli reactor projected for 1964, he made three important omissions on which his comments would have been invaluable.

(1) Nuclear reactors are usually sited near large rivers or coastlines—for cooling; the Dimona one is in the middle of a desert.

(2) The Russians have already completed a reactor in Egypt. If the resulting plutonium is not sent back to Russia, who stockpiles it and for what purpose?

(3) Industry and agriculture depend on oil, and importation of the latter is bound up with politics and economics. Consequently, after Suez, Britain embarked on an extravagant program of atomic reactors, not because she wanted to increase her supply of plutonium but in order to safeguard her motive power. Such considerations must apply even more to Israel—a country with almost no oil and no coal.

David Preisel.

Israeli Books On Exhibition In N. Y.

NEW YORK — A book fair featuring a wide variety of Hebrew and English books published in Israel, was opened here last week in the Jewish Agency building.

Books on exhibit range from modern textbooks for the study of the Hebrew language and collections of modern Hebrew poetry through works on Jewish history and philosophy to pictorial encyclopedias of the Bible and writings on the latest archeological findings in the Middle East.

American Trials

The North American team has now been chosen for the Bermuda Cup by the American Bridge League after trials at Houston, Texas. They are Charles Coon (Boston) and Eric R. Murray (Toronto), G. Robert Nail and Mervin Key (Houston); Lewis Mathe (Los Angeles) and Ron von der Porten (California).

Here is a hand from the trials:

North		East
♠—J		♠—Q 10 9 2

North	East	South	West
(Stone)	(Key)	(Roth)	(Nail)
Pass	1NT	Pass	3NT
Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass

Roth and Stone are one of the strongest pairs in the United States, but Key endplayed them to make 4NT. Roth led the five of spades and declarer won this trick with the queen. He then led a diamond to dummy's queen, which was not taken by North. Declarer then returned with a diamond to his own hand. North played small in the hope that declarer was missing the jack of diamonds and would be on a guess. Key now cashed the ace, king of clubs and led the 10 of spades. Stone had no choice but to discard a heart. Key then won three heart tricks. He now had a complete count of the hand and could safely throw Stone in, thus making his two winning clubs in dummy for 10 tricks.

At love all, with North the dealer, the bidding went:

The Year 1961 In Jewish Life -- A Brief Review

By Dr. Nehemiah Robinson

The year just passed was, in a general sense, a period of anxieties and conflicts. These happenings cast deep shadows on the Jewish situation which, in addition, experienced a considerable number of events unrelated to the general world scene but which were as ominous as the consequences of the world-wide tension and stress.

GE 8-6921

1961 was dominated by the Eichmann trial.

The fears expressed in many Jewish quarters about an upsurge of anti-Jewish action in the wake of the trial were generally unfounded. The number of incidents was comparatively small, involving mostly threatening letters, slogans, and so forth. A larger volume of such manifestations occurred in a number of Latin American countries shortly before and during the sentencing, but elsewhere no concentrated pro-Eichmann and anti-Jewish acts were recorded. The general feeling was that the trial was fair and served well the purpose of portraying the Nazi horrors against the Jews.

In general, 1961 witnessed a number of anti-Jewish acts in many countries, taking serious forms (tar-bombing, etc.) in some places, such as Argentina. Compared with 1960, the number was small: in the entire United States, for example, 158 incidents were registered compared with 814 in 1960. The proportion was even smaller in other lands.

The prosecution of war criminals, in particular in West Germany, continued. Arrests, trials and condemnations were frequent in the Federal Republic of Germany, where at the end of the year about 150 Nazis were under arrest and about 1,000 cases were pending. Some action was also taken in Austria, in the wake of the Eichmann trial, but other countries noted few instances of prosecution.

Neo-Nazi and neo-Fascist movements continued their activities with some meetings taking place on an international and local basis. An expansion of these activities was particularly noticeable in Austria, where, late in the year, a wide-ranging organization, stretching into Germany and also involving assaults in South Tyrol, was uncovered by the police. A number of arrests followed.

On a country by country basis, Algeria takes first place insofar as the seriousness of the Jewish situation is concerned. The rebellion in Algeria produced in its early years (1954-1956) no visible change in the Jewish situation. However, as of 1957, acts directed against Jews became part of the general violence and lawlessness and the Jews started feeling the squeeze from the two opposing groups: the Moslems and the French rightists. The situation worsened early in 1960 when serious rebel threats and acts became more or less the order of the day. Nonetheless, it was not until 1961 that the situation deteriorated to such an extent that the previous mood of "sticking it out" in Algeria changed to considerations of eventual large-scale emigration.

Community Undermined

The year 1961 abounded in attacks, frequently fatal, on Jews in various cities and regions. Particularly grave incidents occurred in Oran, where, however, the Jews adopted some retaliatory measures against the Moslem terrorists, but in Constantine the attacks so seriously undermined the Jewish position that within a year the community was reduced from 18,000 to about 6,000. Schools lost most of their pupils; the cultural center closed; a number of rabbis and leaders of Jewish organizations left. There were similar occurrences in neighboring towns. In Batna, for instance, the Jewish population was reduced from 1,500 to 800. Setif, which in 1954 numbered 2,400 Jews, has now only about 700. Some Jews moved to the cities less endangered (mostly Algiers) but a considerable number emigrated to France and in part to Israel. Within the first seven months of 1961, more Algerian Jews immigrated to Israel than in the years 1956-1960.

The tribulations of the neighboring Jewish community of Morocco were almost as grave, although of a different nature. Basically, it was the problem of emigration and of Jewish status in the country which made life difficult in 1961. The year witnessed a number of arrests, trials and sentences of Jews for "illegal" emigration and, in particular, for so-called "Zionist activities," i.e., organization of emigration. The official attitude differed at various echelon levels, the upper grades being more liberal. In the second part of the year passports began to be issued freely in Casablanca and some other cities, a fact of which some Jews took considerable advantage. This led to political attacks on the regime and, after about 2,000 had left within three weeks, a stoppage of group emigration was ordered in December. On the other hand, the semi-official newspaper AL-ALAM demanded reconsideration of the Jewish problem because the Jews allegedly do not want to be regarded as all other Moroccan citizens, and "serve Zionism" rather than their country. The Jews were also attacked for having participated in the Geneva meeting of the Executive of the World Jewish Congress. At the same time, certain Moroccan Jews were appointed to high offices by the Government.

The third North-African region, Tunisia, experienced somewhat less trouble during the year. The Bizerte incident between Tunisia and France created a difficult situation for the Jews who were accused of not showing sufficient support for Tunisia. Arrests of Jews without apparent reason, somewhat arbitrary condemnations and forced collections for the Bizerte fund took place. Demonstrations by students against Jews also occurred. The Jews responded with large contributions which were, apparently, an important factor in the improvement which took place in September. The incidents and the uncertainties led to increased emigration, involving several thousands. Postal communications with Israel were severed.

The Jewish community of Egypt which, since the turbulence of the Sinai campaign, had lived more or less unmolested in small numbers (5,000 to 6,000), received an economic shock by the recent Nasser sequestration measures. It is estimated that of the about 850 sequestration orders, some 350 concerned Jews. In other words, while the sequestrations were primarily a general measure, Jews (and other minorities and foreigners) became the prime target. Since those whose property is sequestered are practically excluded from any gainful occupation and restricted in their emigration, the measure had a profound impact on the remnants of Egyptian Jewry. Communal life also suffered through the increase in Jewish institutions, and so on.

A dormant situation in Libya and Syria also changed for the worse in the last years. The clandestine (but apparently tolerated) postal communications between Libya's Jews and their Israeli relatives were severed and arrests (of Jews and non-Jews) ensued. Some new discriminatory measures against Libyan Jews were also reported. In Syria, the last vestige of civil status, the right to vote, was reportedly denied to Jews in the elections which followed the breaking up of the United Arab Republic later in the year. Life in Lebanon appears to have followed the same pattern of relative non-discrimination, except for some arrests for alleged assistance in emigration to Israel and participation in an "espionage net."

The Jewish position in Turkey underwent a certain deterioration, mostly on account of the general anti-minorities and religious policies of the Government. The basic difficulties arose from a Government order providing that each synagogue and institution be conducted as a separate foundation, the members of the governing councils be submitted to Government control, etc. This measure would, in effect, make nation or even city-wide religious, welfare and cultural activity impossible. Although five Jews stood for election to the new Parliament, none was returned. Towards the end of the year, there was an intensified anti-Semitic campaign in the press.

Situation in the Soviet Union

The usual pattern in the Soviet Union showed in the year 1961, on the one hand, a few signs of relaxation by permission to publish a bi-monthly journal and some other works in Yiddish. However, the arrest, trial and stiff penalty imposed on the former head of the Leningrad (religious) Community, Pechersky, and two others for alleged espionage in favor of Israel, denied both by Pechersky and Israel; the dismissal of heads of communities in large cities; the continued closing down of synagogues, not to mention the conviction of persons with Jewish sounding names on charges of currency speculations, more than offset any "progress." There was no response to appeals by the World Jewish Congress and other Jewish organizations to Khrushchev to ease the situation.

In the People's Democracies events were uneven. In Poland, the decrease of communal life was due to emigration, which in the first part of the year was still quite considerable, but later diminished. The total number of Jews in Poland is about 22,000 to 25,000. Rumania relaxed her emigration ban and the number of registrants for Israel soared, some of them suffering certain economic hardships. In Hungary no changes could be perceived, but in Bulgaria the Chief Rabbi was arrested and sentenced for alleged illicit currency dealings. Czechoslovakia released, in 1961, a number of Jews who had been imprisoned for years; otherwise the situation remained as it was.

In the western world no particular events were noticeable. In Europe there was increased co-operation among the communities of the various countries in welfare and similar fields. France became more than before, the haven for North African emigrants, and the community reached a practically record total. In particular in Marseilles, the gateway from the south, the number of Jews rose to 40,000, compared with some 8,000 in 1950. The financial burden on the community grew considerably. In Italy, a priest, who defamed the Jews as "God killers," was acquitted, creating an uproar in the Jewish community. Otherwise, normal activities in the communal, education, welfare, etc., fields were maintained and, in certain instances, increased. The needs of Israel, due mainly to increased immigration, grew and a special $35 million emergency campaign was lodged in the USA.

Governing Rules Of Planning Committee

1. There shall be a standing Community Planning Committee of General Jewish Committee of Providence, Inc. whose purpose shall be to carry out the community planning purposes of General Jewish Committee as set forth in its Articles of Association and By-Laws. The Committee shall consist of a Chairman and fourteen members who shall be appointed by the President, with the approval of the Board of Directors, annually as soon as may be after the annual meeting, together with the President and Executive Director of General Jewish Committee, ex officio, who shall serve until the next annual meeting and until the appointment and approval of their successors. The Executive Director shall be the Secretary of the Committee. Vacancies in the Committee shall be filled by the President.

2. The Community Planning Committee may carry on work as it shall determine from time to time directly or through subcommittees which shall be selected, as the Community Planning Committee shall determine. Subcommittee members need not be members of the Community Planning Committee or members of the Board of Directors of the General Jewish Committee, but may include any individuals, within or outside the community, as the Community Planning Committee considers will best serve its purposes.

3. These governing rules shall become effective upon their adoption by a vote of the Board of Directors of the General Jewish Committee of Providence, Inc.,

House Of Seagram Announces Divisional Consolidation

NEW YORK — In a series of moves designed to increase the flexibility of the House of Seagram sales organization, enabling it to meet more effectively the sales challenges of heightened competition throughout the liquor industry, The House of Seagram, Inc., announced the consolidation of its various organizational divisions and a realignment of executive responsibilities at the top levels of the company, effective immediately.

Francis M. Fitzmaurice was appointed executive vice president of Seagram-Distillers Company, succeeding Herbert W. Evenson, executive vice president of the company since 1955. Seagram-Distillers Company markets Seagram's V.O. Canadian Whisky, Seagram's 7 Crown Whiskey, and Seagram's Extra Dry Gin. Mr. Evenson, who is retiring under the company's mandatory retirement program, has been elected a member of the Board of Directors of Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Inc., the House of Seagram's parent company.

At the same time, the company announced that the Kessler Distillers Company has been merged into the Four Roses Distillers Company. Appointed as executive vice president is Jack Wishny, formerly executive vice president of the Kessler Distillers Company. A. C. Flecher, who has been vice president and national sales manager of the Four Roses Distillers Company. Jack Kaduson is vice president in charge of advertising and sales promotion.

'Concentrated Attack' On Jews Now In Progress

WASHINGTON — The charge made by the Moscow newspaper Trud that Israeli diplomats in Russia are spying for the United States Central Intelligence Agency appears to be further evidence of the Soviet Union's "concentrated attack on its Jewish population," a State Department spokesman told the Jewish Telegraphic Agency last week.

The spokesman scoffed at the charge, asserting that the CIA has long been a favorite target of Soviet propagandists. He speculated that the newest charge against the CIA — recruiting Israeli diplomats for espionage work in Russia — which he described as "a two-in-one shot," was aimed at discrediting both the U.S. intelligence arm and Russian Jews.

Meanwhile, two Democratic members of Congress from New York, William F. Ryan and Herbert Zelenko, requested that the United States delegation at the United Nations introduce a resolution at the UN condemning Russia for persecuting Jews.

Ryan also sent a telegram to President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk, warning of "terrifying dangers facing Soviet Jews." He stated in his wires that "like the opening step of nazi pogroms," the Soviet accusations against Israeli diplomats are "obviously calculated to open the way for full persecution, imprisonment or death for Soviet Jews."

In addition, it was announced that Leroux and Company "has been merged into the General Wine and Spirits Company with Jerome A. Newman as vice president.

The company also announced the formation of a new House of Seagram organization to market all of the company's straight whiskeys—the Kentucky Straight Whiskey Company. This new company will be headed by Roy I. Flint, vice president, formerly national sales manager for Henry McKenna Hand Made Whiskey. Joseph E. Flick, formerly national sales manager for Antique Kentucky Straight Bourbon, will be general sales manager of the company. The advertising and sales promotion for this company will be directed by Jack Kaduson.

Swastika Painters Win Court Appeal

NORWALK, Conn. — The two men who painted black swastikas on the Beth Israel Synagogue in Norwalk on Feb. 1, 1960, recently won a legal battle to appeal a Superior court ruling of guilt.

A hearing was held in Superior Court of New Haven county on a motion to correct an error on a point of law in the June, 1960 trial of Harold Fahy and William Arnold. The hearing cleared the way for an appeal.

The Connecticut State Attorneys office said the appeal would be heard in the State Supreme Court of Errors in Hartford. The defendants are free on bail pending the appeal.

Fahy, a Norwalk resident, and Arnold, a German national awaiting action on his application for American citizenship, were arraigned originally in Norwalk court. They were charged with conspiracy, breach of the peace, defacing a private building and injury to public property. Because of the gravity of the vandalism, the then State Attorney Lorin W. Willis obtained a warrant for Superior Court action.

CRANSTON JEWISH CENTER

This evening at 8:30 P.M. the Cranston Jewish Center will hold a Boy Scout Sabbath. Rabbi Saul Leeman will officiate and Cantor Jack Smith will chant the liturgy. Mrs. Ellis Rosenthal will be organist.

There will be a presentation of the Ner Tamid Award to Michael Miller and Robert Weisman and an Oneg Shabbat will follow the services.

House Holds Hearings On Fair Employment

WASHINGTON — Enactment in this session of Congress of an enforceable Fair Employment Practice law was urged separately by the American Jewish Committee and by the National Community Relations Advisory Council in testimony before a special House sub-committee on labor which is holding hearings on proposed fair employment legislation.

Lewis H. Weinstein, chairman of the National Community Relations Advisory Council, testified on behalf of the six national Jewish organizations and 60 Jewish Community Relations Councils throughout the United States affiliated with the NCRAC. The six national organizations for whom he spoke are: American Jewish Congress, Jewish Labor Committee, Jewish War Veterans of the U. S., Union of American Hebrew Congregations, Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America and the United Synagogue of America. Dr. Joachim Prinz, president of the American Jewish Congress, is scheduled to appear separately before the subcommittee.

Pointing to the "thousands of pages of testimony" submitted by "hundreds of witnesses" that have testified at Congressional hearings on fair employment practice bills since 1944, Mr. Weinstein declared, "The question before this committee would seem to be not why should such legislation be enacted by the present Congress, but what possible reasons can there be for not enacting it."

The NCRAC leader pointed out that the Republican party platform as early as 1944 pledged "establishment by Federal legislation of a fair employment practice commission" and that as late as 1960, the Democratic party platform contained a similar pledge. He charged widespread and often subtly disguised job discrimination against Jews. The discrimination is outweighed by discrimination against Negroes, he added, and he said that Jewish organizations he represented would be concerned even if there were no anti-Jewish discrimination in employment.

"As Jews," said Mr. Weinstein, "we are committed by immemorial tradition to a deep regard for the sanctity and inviolability of the individual person.

From this tradition we derive a special concern for the preservation of human rights. This concern is to us an expression of faith and of a venerable cultural heritage. Even if Jews enjoyed full equality, therefore, we would still be concerned about discrimination against any group on grounds of race, color, religion or origin."

The American Jewish Committee submitted to the hearings a statement saying that federal action is made necessary, despite legislation on the books of many states, by the fact that "every study undertaken since World War II has found that discrimination in employment is widespread."

The statement was signed by Ely M. Aaron, chairman of the American Jewish Committee on Civil Rights and Civil Liberties committee.

Mr. Aaron's statement pointed out that 28 states now have Anti-Bias Public Accommodations laws, nine states have barred discrimination in the sale or rental of private houses and 20 states have fair employment practices laws.

Bias 'In Shadow' Of New York Temple

NEW YORK — Apartment houses in the very shadow of Temple Emanuel discriminate against Jewish occupancy, Alfred R. Bachrach, president of the Reform temple, charged here last week at a dinner at which he was awarded the annual temple Men's club award.

According to Bachrach, "there are clusters of multiple dwellings" within a few square miles of the temple "in which people of the Jewish faith, regardless of their lowliness or loftiness, are not allowed to live." Later, in an interview, he said there has been at least one specific case of discrimination against a member of the congregation in a cooperative "a short distance from the temple."

The Traveling Playhouse will present the Hans Christian Anderson story, "The Emperor's New Clothes", as the second in this season's Children's Theatre Series, sponsored by the Jewish Center, on Sunday, Feb. 11, at 2 and 4 P.M. in the Nathan Bishop Junior High School auditorium.

JCC To Form Music Council

Dr. Bernard Carp, executive director of the Jewish Community Center, this week announced the formation of a new committee to organize a permanent Jewish Music Council for Rhode Island and the nearby New England area.

Members of the organizing committee include Cantor Harold Dworkin, Temple Beth El, Dr. Morton Gold, conductor of the Center's Civic Orchestra and choral director at Temple Emanuel, Cantor Jacob Hohenemser, Temple Emanuel, and Cantor Louis Blumenthal, Temple Beth Israel.

Dr. Carp is the original founder of the National Jewish Council, sponsored by the National Jewish Welfare Board. This national group now includes representation from more than 80 national and local Jewish member organizations.

Purposes of the local Jewish Music Council would be similar to those of the national body, including the following:

1. To promote performances and participation in Jewish music.
2. To coordinate Jewish music activities in this area.
3. To stimulate composition, production of recordings, research and publication.
4. To plan programs for Jewish Music Festival and year-round musical activities.
5. To encourage community-wide planning and participation in Jewish music activities through the combined efforts of all interested individuals and organizations.

One of the first projects of the local group is the calendar of Jewish Music Festival events.

Canada Students Win Yivo Prizes

NEW YORK — Two Jewish medical students at McGill University, Montreal, were the winners recently of the 13th annual awards for the outstanding scientific essays on American Jewish life, given by the Yivo Institute for Jewish Research.

The winners, announced at Yivo's 36th annual conference, are Moses Anisfeld, receiving the first prize of $200, had written an essay on the relations of American Jewish youth to Jewish national life. Boga, awarded the second prize, of $100, wrote a monograph on the relations of the American community toward persons who speak English with an accent.

Establish Chair Of Intergroup Relations

LOS ANGELES — A Catholic sponsored university in Rome and the American Jewish Committee have created jointly the first Chair of Intergroup Relations at a European institution of higher learning. Instruction in the courses will begin this month.

Ralph Friedman, a member of the Committee's National Executive Board, announced here that the intergroup relations chair has been established at the Catholic sponsored Pro Deo University for Social Studies which was founded in 1945 to promote the concept of democracy under God. The intergroup curriculum, developed and endowed by the American Jewish Committee, will deal with the problems of cooperation and understanding among religious and racial groups in a democratic society.

Among the general subjects to be covered at Pro Deo are The Root Causes of Group Tensions and Antagonisms. Under this heading discussion will center on prejudice, as it operates to separate one group from another; the roots of discrimination and persecution; the influence of economics on prejudice.

Another concern will be an examination of the Existing Spiritual and Social Forces Fostering Group Cooperation. In this area the course will probe the influence of religion, education and law and the impact of democratic values and practices as well as voluntary social action.

Other subjects to be covered by the course include: Negroes and group integration in America; intergroup relations in the satellite countries; the situations in Africa and Asia; the status of nationalities in the Soviet Union; anti-Semitism as the international prototype of group hostility.

Through these and other subjects, Mr. Friedman said, "the course will stress the need for interreligious cooperation in a world where the promotion of the concept of the inherent dignity of man is essential to the survival of civilization and Western values."

Establishment of the chair, Mr. Friedman said, is in line with the Committee's long held policy that "each religious group, while maintaining its distinct character and name, should seek areas of cooperation with other groups to advance the welfare of the community as a whole." Consequently, when the opportunity at Pro Deo emerged, "the Committee welcomed the chance to extend its philosophy and program into the areas of interreligious cooperation on an international basis."

In 1947, an American Council for the promotion of Pro Deo was established. The Council's board is made up of 40 percent Catholics, 40 percent Protestants and 20 percent Jews.

Pro Deo has always relied heavily on United States methods of research and teaching materials. Its seminars in economics and business administration have adopted many methods of the Harvard Business School. Technical and industrial relations findings of many American corporations serve as a basis for courses at the University's Institute of Industrial Labor Relations.

As part of its fundamental democracy program, Pro Deo has devised research units — study-action teams — which attend courses and engage in work projects and joint research in problem areas. Each includes a full time monitor on the doctoral level and a professor advisor to supervise research planning and guidance. At the end of the academic year, the teams tour Europe accompanied by their professors, visiting places and persons important to their studies.

Since its inception, Pro Deo has won wide acceptance as a training ground for leaders for the free world. In 1953, former Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi, became the first director of Pro Deo's European Institute. Four years later a grant from the Brazilian government enabled the university to initiate a Latin American Institute.

Subsequently, extension programs were opened in Peru, Brazil, Columbia and the Dominican Republic. These centers accent management, economics, politics and mass media techniques.

Founded in 1906, the American Jewish Committee is a pioneer human relations agency in this country, combating bigotry, protecting the civil and religious rights of Jews and advancing the cause of human rights everywhere.

Denies Synagogue Is Now A Museum

JERUSALEM — Bulgaria's Chief Rabbi Asher Hannanel last week told an Israeli rabbi, in a telephone conversation between Jerusalem and Sofia, that the great synagogue at Sofia has not been converted in to a museum, as previously reported.

Rabbi Hannanel, who has been convicted by a Bulgarian court and sentenced to four years' imprisonment on allegations of "smuggling and speculating" in currency, is at his home in Sofia, having been released on bail for reasons of health.

Recently Zvi Harkavi, a Jerusalem rabbi, wrote to the Bulgarian legation in Israel, asking for clarification of conflicting reports about the fate of the great synagogue in Sofia. The Bulgarian mission advised Rabbi Harkavi to telephone Rabbi Hannanel and ask the latter. In the conversation Rabbi Hannanel denied the reports that the synagogue has been converted by the Bulgarian authorities into a museum.

YOUR MONEY'S

ARDEN'S MONEY LOSER—'MAINE CHANCE'

Phoenix, Ariz. -- No health-beauty-reducing resort in the world has a reputation for being as spectacularly expensive as "Arizona Maine Chance" -- and the understandable impression is that its sole owner, Elizabeth Arden, makes a mint of money from the fees paid here.

The general impression is 100 per cent wrong.

Not in the 15 years that Elizabeth Arden has had this resort in Arizona (the original in Maine is 30 years old) has she made it pay. Her annual losses have been shrinking recently, but they're still losses. The plain fact is she can't operate here at a profit under today's setup.

What's more, a probing examination of this operation shouts a warning to any of you who dream or plan to go into the increasingly popular "reducing farm" business that your chances of survival are exceedingly slim. You may be able to absorb the red ink on your resort if you have something else to promote in connection with it -- as, for instance, Arden has via her line of cosmetics. Even so, you'd be wise not even to consider this business unless you have a hefty nest egg of cash to invest, sympathetic creditors, a trained and faithful staff, years of know-how and a generous allotment of good luck.

I have just spent two weeks at Maine Chance -- a spot which has been catapulted into international fame by Mamie Eisenhower's publicized visits of the past few years. As a paying client, I've found out exactly what one gets for the fee; as a reporter specializing in finance, I've asked questions no one cared or dared to ask before. Here goes, therefore, with a tale of Arden hitherto untold.

It may seem incredible that Arden loses money year after year on a resort charging from $65 to over $100 per day per women -- with alcoholic beverages forbidden and modicum of entertainment. But read on.

First, there's the background -- four houses on 45 cultivated acres in the heart of the desert which can accommodate a maximum of 35 clients at a time, and the season runs only from November to April 15.

Against this tough background, consider what a woman gets for her fee: a daily hairdo, daily manicure or pedicure, daily massage and heat treatments, daily skin and facial care, daily series of exercises in and out of a warmed pool supervised by professionals, a half-dozen other luxurious health services.

Any woman who ever has had a fraction of "the works" at a beauty salon easily can add up what THIS costs -- and so can any man who has paid the bills. (I counted 11 separate experts working on and for me per day; at 1962's pay scales, they take a giant slice of the fee.) Add on the superb meals prepared by a French chef, served in a magnificent dining room. Add room and bath, housemaids. Add on all the other expenses hidden in any resort -- and the incredible become credible.

"Has Arden ever made money here?" I asked our hostess one evening. In a startled voice she replied, "With the labor costs, overhead costs, premium food, how could she, unless the place were changed so much it wouldn't be Arden's?"

"Everyone thinks she makes a fortune," I said.

"And as a result, many try to imitate her and lose their shirts," was her quick retort.

This leads to the second point -- the warning to would-be entrants into the reducing field, already estimated at running close to $1 billion a year. This whole industry is exploding now.

But the bankruptcy rate is exploding too, because the hopefuls do not have enough cash to carry them through the initial trial periods, they don't realize how much the services cost, they can't hold the skilled workers essential to the success of this type of resort, they don't have the sidelines to absorb and justify the losses.

Incidentally, the professions say there's no comparable retreat catering solely to men -- and Maine Chance may explain why. Probably only a woman with an earned fortune in the bank plus romance in her soul would persistently lose money on so grand a scale in pursuit of beauty for others.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY
THE HOME
IN 1962

By Beryl Segal

The Medical Sciences have added years to our life. The life span of man has increased by approximately 15 years in the past fifty years. It is not rare at all to meet a man of 75 or more, while in the past a man of 60 was considered far advanced in years. The Economic and Social Sciences, unfortunately, have not kept pace with the increase in the life span. A man of 60, unless he is self-employed, is looked upon as a liability in most industries and services. They count the days when he is due for retirement. And the social organizations have altogether turned away from the man of 60. They do not plan for him. He is relegated to the Golden Agers.

At any rate a man reaching the retiring age does not look to a life of leisure and comfort and freedom, but he looks with alarm at the prospect of the pay check stopping, and sickness a reality, and the bills piling up on him.

No wonder that medical care for the elderly was a cardinal point in President Kennedy's speech to the Congress, and a bill providing for that medical care has a good chance of passing this year.

Our Home for the Aged reflects this trend very well.

A few short years ago we built the new wing at the home and we thought that we had built for at least 25 years. Not ten years have passed and there is a waiting list already. The full capacity of the home is 135 guests. The daily count today is 137.

With the increase in guests comes also an increase in expenditures. Many of the residents are sick. They have to be spoon fed. There are 15 residents in that condition. That means greater expenses for nurses and aids. They cost considerable money.

If you are interested in figures, here are a few. I found them extremely interesting and instructive. From the figures at our Home for the Aged, one can deduce figures for the national in general.

In the year 1940-41 the budget of the Home was $23,000. That was the year when Mr. Max Alexander arrived and took over the affairs of the Home.

In 1950-51 the budget was $105,000.

In 1960-61, the year just passed, the budget was $280,000.

The increase is unbelievable. Were it not for the record of the years, I would not believe it either.

True enough, the Home does not stand still. There are new improvements every year. Greater comfort for the residents. More nurses and aids for the sick. New methods of rehabilitation for the handicapped. Increased ways of keeping the guests busy, creating things, doing useful work.

All this raises the cost of running the Home. It is worth every penny it costs to make a single resident happier for a single moment. The budget can be expected to increase this year. As a matter of fact the projected budget for the current year will be a round $300,000.

And we will have to provide the sum.

The Home looks forward to a membership that will pay $50,000 in annual donations for the Home.

The Home looks forward to the Ladies' Association to do even better this year than they did last year. The Ladies' Association is traditionally the backbone of the Home. Not only do they provide funds, but they personally act as daughters and sisters to the residents. They entertain them. They take them for rides and to their homes. They just talk to them, and what a blessing that is to the lonely resident. They will do their utmost this year as in previous years.

The Home looks forward to increased gifts from individuals for the various funds of the Home for the Aged. Memorial Funds. Endowment Funds. Building Funds.

Yes, building funds. The Home is already planning an expansion. The Home cannot say to those applying for admission:

"Go somewhere else. We are already filled up."

The Home cannot say to the aged applicants:

"Wait until we have room for you."

The residents want a home now. They cannot wait until later. "Later" is such a relative term. It means many things to many people. And to the people of 70 it may mean now or never.

And so in 1962 we are called upon to boost the membership of the Home, to pay more dues, to donate more, and to expect a building program soon.

(Mr. Segal's opinions are his own. His views are not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

The Lyons
Den

by Leonard Lyons

CRITIC: Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., the President's aide, is the movie critic for Show magazine. He received JFK's permission to accept this job. President Kennedy imposed only one condition -- that Schlesinger refrain from attacking any movie starring JFK's brother-in-law, Peter Lawford, lest readers assume that this is the official White House attitude.

LESSONS: Ethel Merman tells of her first meeting with Arthur Murray, soon after she had made her sensational Broadway debut in Gershwin's "Girl Crazy." Murray said he'd seen her in the show, and urged her to take singing lessons -- to fulfill her shining promise. George Gershwin, she replied, had advised her NOT to take singing lessons. "If you advised me to take dancing lessons, I'd listen," said Merman. "But on singing, I'll listen to Gershwin."

COLD: Miss Merman just finished her tour in "Gypsy." In New York recently she told her mother: "Ma, I think I'm catching a cold." Her mother replied: "Why should you care about a cold now? You're not working."

COMPARISON: Truman Capote, now in California, asked a friend in whose car he was riding to stop at the local library. Capote went in, obtained the information he sought, and returned beaming. He had the library's statistics on the number of check-outs of books by Gore Vidal, Tennessee Williams and Capote -- the authors in whom he's most interested.

QUESTION: Prof. Alfred Ayer of Oxford lectured on philosophy to a group of Cabinet members and their wives in Washington. The professor seemed to stir resentment. One of the women asked him: "And what about God?" Her husband snapped: "Aw, stop it."

GREETING: Never in New York history has there been such an outpouring of politicians gathered in the Sert Room on Sunday. The reception was in honor of Albert Blinder, the illustrious lawyer, and his bride, the daughter of Sen. Joseph Zaretzki. Because Zaretzki, the host, is minority leader in Albany, the leaders of both parties came -- Gov. Rockefeller, Mayor Wagner, Sen. Walter Mahoney and 500 others.

The groom's sister-in-law, Miriam Blinder, solved the problem of how to greet so many men who were strangers to her: "I addressed them either as Senator, Judge -- or Irving."

DISPUTE: The battle for the tenancy of the Mark Hellinger Theater continues. The current occupant, "My Fair Lady," cannot be ousted unless its weekly receipts drop below $35,000 for two successive weeks. Last week the gross was $44,229. The landlord has leased the theater as of March 1, to Richard Rodgers' "No Strings." When Herman Levin, producer of "My Fair Lady," saw the "No Strings," ad, he said: "It'll be awfully crowded in that theater, come March, with two musicals playing there."

TOURIST: Harry Hershfield, who recently celebrated his 75th birthday, returned from a trip to Paris and sighed: "Oh, if only I'd gone to Paris 50 years ago".... "You mean," he was asked, "when Paris was Paris?".... "No," he said, "I mean when Hershfield was Hershfield."

MEMOS: Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson and ex-Ambassador Chip Bohlen may swap posts.... George Jessel, who was given a testimonial dinner by the Friars in Hollywood, said: "This comes as a complete surprise to me. I didn't know anything about it until last June."

EXPLOITATION: Lou Brecker, owner of Roseland, discussed his various ad campaigns over the past 40 years. His smallest ad was written on the head of a pin; his largest was a Roseland float in the Miss America pageant in Atlantic City.

MESSAGE: Sydney Chaplin, star of "Subways Are for Sleeping," phoned his father, Charles Chaplin, about the run-through of a new show he'd just seen. "They're in trouble," said Sydney.... His father replied: "Is there any message in it? Are they trying to say something? Yes? Then have 'em throw the message out. I never said anything, although other people said I said something. As soon as I tried making a film with a message, I flopped at it."

INSPIRATION: Chaplin revealed that his memorable comedy, "The Gold Rush," came after he read a book about people trapped in the snow in a mountain pass. Some practiced cannibalism to stay alive.... Chaplin kept thinking of that, and wondering what they'd do after they ran out of people to eat. He thought: "They'd eat their shoes".... Thus came the first scene, the cooking of his shoe. He thought of other bits, and had "The Gold Rush."

VISIT: Harpo Marx was in the rotunda of the U.S. Supreme Court Building the other day when he heard a passerby greet him casually, "Hello, Harpo," then walk on. It was Chief Justice Warren.... Harpo lunched with Justice Frankfurter, who had a telegram Harpo had sent him 23 years ago, shortly before his appointment to the bench. It read: "Tentative congratulations."

TAXI DEPT.: Justice William O. Douglas took a cab to the Waldorf for the dinner for the Rev. James H. Robinson of Operations Crossroads Africa. The cab driver asked the justice if he knew the meaning of the phrase, "The Past Is All Prologue." Douglas pretended he didn't know. The cabbie said: "It means 'You Ain't Seen Nothin' Yet.'"

Israel Beer Sentenced To Ten Years For Espionage

TEL AVIV — Lt. Col. Israel Beer, former personal military adviser to Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, and professor of military history at Tel Aviv University, was found guilty recently by three District Court judges on three charges of espionage. He was sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment for passing secret information to a foreign agent "with the intention of injuring the security of the State."

Beer, who could have received life imprisonment as being convicted on the espionage charges, said he would appeal against both the verdict and the sentence. "I had no intention of injuring the security of the State, nor have I injured it," he declared.

Just before he entered the court room, Beer revealed that the court had denied his request—"because of technical reasons"—to call nine witnesses, among whom he listed Prime Minister Ben-Gurion, Deputy Defense Minister Shimon Peres; Israel Galili, a high official of the Defense Ministry; and Captain Liddell Hart, famous military analyst.

In announcing the verdict, the court stated it "tends to believe" that, among other factors that prompted Beer to maintain connections with a foreign agent, was "a true anxiety" for the welfare of the State of Israel. They found that Beer "did not act for money."

Lt. Col. Beer, who was one of the keenest military analysts for the Israeli press, was arrested at 2 p.m. last March 31 at his home on the outskirts of Tel Aviv. Some 65 pounds of documents were removed from his home by the arresting officers, reportedly only a few hours after his last contact with a foreign agent for a Communist country.

It was alleged that Beer was one of a very small handful of Israelis who knew all the plans of the 1956 Sinai Campaign in advance. He was charged with having passed on these plans to a Communist country which, in turn, transmitted the Sinai campaign plans to Egyptian agents. The Egyptians, however, disregarded the information, thinking it was false.

Among the documents confiscated in Beer's home were excerpts from Mr. Ben-Gurion's personal diaries. The Premier, who was shocked by the arrest last year, had personally seen to the appointment of Beer in 1952 as official historian of Israel's War of Liberation. In this capacity he had access to all secret military documents of Israel.

Beer and Moshe Sneh, Israeli Communist leader, were close colleagues in the Mapam Party, until Mr. Sneh split from Mapam to form a "left movement."

Engaged — Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Mesuse of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, announce the engagement of their daughter, Charlotte Rochelle, to Lt. Harold M. Woolf, USAF, son of Mrs. Abraham Woolf of Bartlett Avenue, Cranston, and the late Bartlett Woolf.

Miss Mesuse is a junior at the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, Mass., and Lt. Woolf received his B.S. and M.S. degrees from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where his fraternity was Zeta Beta Tau. Lt. Woolf is presently stationed at Westover Air Force Base.

St. Paul Closing Law Is Protested

MINNEAPOLIS — Passage by the St. Paul City Council of a Sunday closing law touched off a barrage of protests last week, including a denunciation of the measure by the Minneapolis Star.

Similar legislation is slated for consideration by the Minneapolis City council at a public hearing on Tuesday. The St. Paul measure originally included an option to exclude Jews, Seventh Day Adventists and others observing a day other than Sunday as their Sabbath.

Most Twin City rabbis opposed the measure. One of them, Rabbi Bernard S. Raskas, said the "state has no right to designate an official day of rest" but he also added that "when the Jewish community asks a special provision because it observes the Sabbath on Saturday, it is a myth. Very few Jews observe Saturday as a day of rest."

Rabbi Raskas said he challenged anyone "to find more than two Jewish businesses in St. Paul that are closed on Saturday because of the Sabbath tradition other than the kosher butcher shops." He explained that it was a "source of great embarrassment" for him as a rabbi to speak for a Jewish community "that does not respect its own tradition" and that, for this reason, he had not opposed the measure at a public hearing earlier this month.

The option measure was deleted on legal counsel that it would provide the basis for a constitutional challenge to religious legislation.

Young Jewish Pianist To Tour Soviet Union

PHILADELPHIA — Responding to pleas from the State Department and the Institute of International Education of New York, 19-year-old Susan Starr agreed to represent the United States in the Moscow Tchaikovsky Piano Competition April 2 to May 7.

Miss Starr placed third and won $1,500 in the recent Dimitri Mitropoulos International Music Competition in New York. She was the youngest of the finalists in that competition. Miss Starr will be accompanied to Moscow by her mother, with the State Department paying travel expenses for both.

The sensational young pianist also has been invited by Gian-Carlo Menotti to appear at the Spoleto Festival in Italy in June.

Time Inc. was so impressed with her performance in the New York contest that it made a documentary film about her to show the daily life of a contestant. She has been signed by the National Concert Artists Corporation for a South American tour in October.

She is the youngest guest soloist ever to appear with the Philadelphia Orchestra.

To Hold Program For Jewish Music Month

The Rhode Island Chapter of the American Guild of Organists, with Mrs. Alice Liffmann in charge of arrangements, will present an evening in recognition of Jewish Music Month on Feb. 8 at 8:15 P.M. at Alumnae Hall, Pembroke College.

The program will open with a brief explanation of "What is Jewish Music?" by Herbert Fromm, music director and organist at Temple Israel in Boston and a well-known composer.

Other composers who will be represented include Julius Chajes, Ernest Bloch and Heinrich Schalit, well known here. Herbert Fromm will be heard as composer with Dr. Jacob Hohenemser, Cantor of Temple Emanuel, singing his "Messiah Song," and a chorus of singers from Brown University directed by Prof. William Dinneen with Frank Bartlett, music director at Central Congregational Church at the organ will sing "R'tsey."

In addition to Mrs. Liffmann with organ and piano, Joseph Conte, violinist, will play; George Tinker, tenor, and Prof. David Laurent of Brown University, baritone, will sing appropriate groups of songs.

There will be a reception for Herbert Fromm following the program at the Crystal Room in Alumnae Hall.

ONE LESS JEW

Urges Senate Keep Pledge On Arab Bias

WASHINGTON — Sen Joseph S. Clark (D., Pa.) reminded the Senate last week that American Jews and Jewish-owned businesses continue to have difficulties in travel and trade relations with Arab countries.

"It is a sad fact that Americans of the Jewish faith," Clark said, "are barred from visiting Jordan even though U.S. tax dollars underwrite half of the budget of that nation and Jordan can ill afford to turn away potential earnings from tourism." He urged that "full force and effect" be given a 1960 Democratic platform pledge which asked "protection of rights of American citizens to travel, to pursue lawful trade and to engage in other lawful activities abroad without distinction to race or religion."

Clark said that "we must neither at home nor abroad let any of our citizens be relegated to a second-class status." He declared, "For the U.S. government to be a party to such distinctions by not effectively opposing them is not only contrary to some of the oldest traditions of this nation but in effect serves to negate the efforts to strengthen the concepts of freedom and democracy throughout the world on which we are now expending so much of our national effort and treasure."

He referred to an article on the entire matter written by Thomas E. Morgan, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, in the November, 1961 issue of the Committee Reporter, monthly organ of the American Jewish Committee, and asked that it be inserted in the Congressional Record.

No Guns Resold Says Ben-Gurion

JERUSALEM — No Israeli-made weapons which were sold to foreign governments have been resold to any third party, Prime Minister Ben-Gurion reassured the Cabinet here last week. He told the Cabinet that authoritative statements to this effect have been received by Israel from "the governments concerned."

Ben-Gurion reiterated this assurance as a result of recurring press reports alleging that Israel-made Uzzi submachine guns were being used by the Portuguese to help repress independence rebels in Angola, Africa.

Replies To Sharett On Jewish Agency

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister Ben-Gurion last week assured former Premier Moshe Sharett, chairman of the Jewish Agency executive, that he was fully aware of the importance of the Jewish Agency's activities in the fields of immigration, absorption and settlement and that his statement last week in Parliament — for which Sharett criticized him — had been misinterpreted.

That was the essence of the Premier's reply to a letter published this week by Sharett in which the latter took Ben-Gurion to task for expressing "ignorance" of the Agency's work. Sharett had referred to Ben-Gurion's reply to a question in Parliament about the arrival after the onset of the Sabbath, of an El Al plane, bringing a group of Bar Mitzvah boys from Argentina. Ben-Gurion said in the reply that the government tourist corporation had no part in arranging the tour, adding that "the government is not the proprietor of the Jewish Agency. I don't know what it does."

In his letter to Sharett, Ben-Gurion said he was referring to a particular incident only and not to the Agency's activities generally. It is understood that Ben-Gurion's letter was worded in cordial terms and that with this reply the issue was believed to be closed.

In Hollywood . . .

By Barney Glazer

HOLLYWOOD, CALIFORNIA-- Attention, Rod Serling, producer of the TV series "Twilight Zone!"
You are about to enter the twilight zone of your career because I just learned that your segment "On the Side of the Angels" was written especially for Jesse White, one of my favorite stars.

I understand further, Rod, that you are not a member of B'nai B'rith and somehow you weren't tipped off by the CIA that this yaktor Jesse White only happens to have taken a crash course in the gentle art of signing new B'nai B'rith members and is now accredited as the hustlingest producer this side of the Berlin wall.

Strictly on the prediction dopesheet, Mr. Serling, may I make so bold as to welcome you to the Beverly Hills B'nai B'rith Lodge?

If perchance my ability to foreshadow the future bears more shadow than future, and Jesse White failed to lead you into the fold, then your next "Twilight Zone" segment should be a natural.

It should concern itself with the biggest switch in Jewish history, how you not only made a complete mockery and shambles of Jesse's highly vaunted reputation by withstanding the tremen-

Scandinavians To Use Israeli Data

JERUSALEM — The Scandinavian countries will probably draw upon Israel's experiences in the field of aid to Afro-Asian countries, Denmark's Prime Minister Viggo Kampmann has declared!

Pointing out that the Nordic States Council will discuss, at its meeting in March, the establishment of a Scandinavian pool for helping Afro-Asian lands, Kampmann said one of the purposes of his visit to Israel was to study Israel's program in that field. He declared that the Nordic States Council might profit from the dous onslaught of his membership impetus but how you also outwitted, outmaneuvered, and outflanked Jesse, the master, by convincing him to quit B'nai B'rith!

But as they say among the Apaches and Chiriquis: "Bite your tongue, and that will be the day."

I admit that I'm an enthusiast and I've even been known on occasion to applaud an airline hostess' landing instructions, so I can scarcely restrain myself until I credit Jesse White with a recent amazing feat.

As you may remember, a testimonial dinner was staged in his behalf by the Beverly Hills Lodge to pay tribute to this man who singlehandedly has accounted for more new members than television has commercials.

Invitees were limited strictly to those who wished to join B'nai B'rith. Setting a new U.S. national record as the largest number of members signed in any one night, exactly 152 able-bodied and mentally-alert men proceeded to buy tickets with the single purpose of joining.

This makes the Beverly Hills Lodge the fourth largest in the United States. With Jesse White rattling around in the closets of our best families, meanwhile muttering occult incantations, the best advice I can offer up to Numbers 1, 2 and 3 is to move over or get run down.

This mensch White has the winningest stretch drive you ever did see with his surging 315-horsepower, fuel-injection, high-lift-cam, membership-shpiel.

"valuable data and experience" in the area of Afro-Asian aid acquired by the Afro-Asian Institute at Tel Aviv.

Welcome to good Cooking!

For 50 Years, Miss Dutton's has catered to the discriminate diner, dedicated to courteous service and providing home-cooked meals fit for a king. But so sensibly priced!

Times change, but Miss Dutton's does not. Perhaps a new face here and there, but most of us have been here long enough to feel the sense of dedication Miss Dutton felt toward gracious, home-like dining. Since 1912 we have brought the finest foods prepared in the best American tradition.

From breakfast time to dinner, Miss Dutton's has been the home away from home for thousands of Rhode Islanders—a place to relax in a hurry-up age, a place where friends and families gather, where ambitious men and women can break the pace of a rocketing work-a-day world to enjoy moments of good eating and quiet talk.

In our kitchens plump potatoes are baking. Smell the fresh odors of baked oatmeal bread; the bran and blueberry muffins; the pungent spices of Indian pudding; the sizzling steaks and chops. Taste our beef pies, fit to be eaten to the last morsel of the crisp flaky crust.

Everything made here in our own kitchens. A full course lunch at $1.10. Our festive dinner only $3.25.

And on Saturdays, the treat of all treats, our candlelight buffet from 5 to 8 P.M.
... featuring lobster newburg, baked chicken, barbecued beef, stuffed peppers, assorted cold cuts, tossed green salad with home-made Russian, French or Roquefort dressing, King's ransom desserts.

These and much more for only $1.95.

And always on our menu, your favorite cocktail.

The culinary skills of Miss Dutton and the courteous service of our personnel are a Rhode Island tradition.

We dedicate ourselves to perpetuating this tradition.
