

Assembly Deplores Competitive Efforts In Aiding Soviet Jews

NEW YORK — An end to the "chaotic, conflicting and competitive efforts" on the part of American Jewish organizations concerning the Jews in the Soviet Union, and an attempt to make contact with them strictly on a religious basis, is asked in a statement issued by the Rabbinical Assembly, central body of Conservative rabbis.

Acts Shocking

"It is shocking how every national Jewish organization acts on its own, issuing pronouncements sometimes contradicting one another, confusing everyone and helping no one" Rabbi Edward Sandrow, president of the Assembly, said. He drew attention to a call he made during last year's convention of the Rabbinical Assembly requesting the Soviet Government to permit the establishment of formal fraternal relationships between Jewish religious communities in Russia and similar communities in other countries, similar to the relationships which have been recently established between some of the Christian churches in Russia and the World Council of Churches.

Urges Delegation

The statement of the Rabbinical Assembly urged that the American Jewish religious community request the Russian Government to invite an official delegation "representing the Synagogue Council of America to meet with the religious leaders of the Russian Jewish community, paralleling the several visits by leaders of the National Council of Churches with their Christian counterparts in the Soviet Union." The Synagogue Council is the rabbinical and congregational organization of the Orthodox, Conservative and Reform movements in America.

Makes Suggestions

Rabbi Sandrow suggested that the Synagogue Council of America take the initiative; that it invite representatives of all major Jewish organizations who are concerned with the Russian Jewish community to meet informally, and without fanfare, "to discuss on a regular basis all developments and incidents affecting the Russian Jewish community, and what would be best to do or refrain from doing, under the circumstances."

He said he was not ready to enter into the controversy whether public protests are helpful to the Russian Jewish community, his own opinion is that they are not. But this has nothing to do with his thesis, he said — that "we ought to make a concerted effort to establish more communication between world Jewry and the Russian Jews on the basis of our common religious traditions. The public outcries have not done this so far; perhaps this other way might turn the trick. There is precedent for it in the recent contacts between the Christian communities. Perhaps there also can be between us and our brothers in the Soviet Union."

European Council Delays Decision

BRUSSELS — The European Economic Community's Council of Ministers has decided not to take up at the current session Israel's request for the immediate opening of negotiations that would lead to a link between Israel and the European Common Market.

The delay was voted in spite of high hopes in Israeli circles and repeated pledges from statesmen representing the six-nation EEC that Israel's case would be taken up at the Council of Ministers session which opened here last week.

The Council decided instead, not to examine Israel's request, in view of the complex situation still prevailing as to the EEC's general philosophy. It is understood that the Council will not act on Israel's request until a final decision is taken on the admission of Britain to the Euromart. Only after the case of Britain has been disposed of will the Council examine cases of other countries such as Israel. It was hoped that Israel's case may be considered by the Council as its next session, scheduled for April.

Professor Walter Hallstein of West Germany, president of the EEC executive committee, conferred with Levi Eshkol, Israel's Finance Minister. The latter has held a series of top-level conferences here and in Paris.

(From Washington it was reported that information reaching there from Cairo indicated that the Arab countries are determined to exercise maximum pressure on the European countries affiliated with the Common Market to prevent any EEC arrangement with Israel.)

Settlers Stop Police Attempt To Arrest Komemiut Rabbi

TEL AVIV — Attempts by police to arrest the rabbi of Komemiut settlement, near here were thwarted last week by the settlers who blocked the road to the rabbi's home. Orders for the arrest of the rabbi were countermanded after the Minister for Religious Affairs, Zorach Warhaftig, intervened with the police authorities.

The rabbi was sought in connection with all-out efforts by the police to locate Yossele Schuhmacher, who was kidnapped from his parents two years ago by his grandfather, Nachman Shtarkes, because the latter feared he would not be brought up in a religious manner. Nine persons were arrested in various parts of the country in connection with the case.

Providence Hebrew Day School Plans Dedication For April

Rabbi Norman Lamm, associate rabbi of the Jewish Center in New York City and Jewish philosophy teacher at Yeshiva University's Teachers Institute, will be the guest speaker at the Dedication Ceremony and Dinner of the new Providence Hebrew Day School on Sunday evening, April 1, at the school auditorium.

Thomas W. Pearlman and Jacob N. Temkin, co-chairmen of the Dedication Dinner, said a great deal of interest is being manifested throughout the state.

A native of Brooklyn, Rabbi Lamm graduated summa cum laude from Yeshiva College in 1949. He also attended Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn and was ordained by Yeshiva University. After his graduation, he served as rabbi at Congregation Kehillath Jeshurun in New York City, and later at Congregation Kodimoh in Springfield, Massachusetts. Since 1958, he has been serving as associate rabbi of the Jewish Center in New York City.

Catholic University Honors Israel

DETROIT — Avraham Harman, Israel's Ambassador to the United States, and the State of Israel were honored here at a series of events crowded into one day and evening, when the University of Detroit, the largest Catholic institution of its kind in the country, paid homage to Israel.

Father Laurence V. Britt, president of the university, said the events were "eminently fitting" at this time, when Detroit is celebrating the 200th anniversary of the settling here of the first Jewish family in Michigan, as well as the hundredth anniversary of the formation of the first Jewish contingent from this area to fight on behalf of the Union during the Civil War.

In the day's principal address, delivered by Ambassador Harman, the Israeli envoy told the large audience of Israel's devotion to the principle of "fundamental equality" among all peoples in the Jewish State, including not only Jews but also Moslems, Christians, Druzes and members of other religious communities.

Mr. Harman emphasized the need of peace in the Middle East, telling the assemblage: "My country is not an anti-Arab country. We do not believe there is incompatibility between Arabs and Israelis. We do not believe the world must choose between Israel and the Arabs. We believe the world must accept both." Among the prominent personalities who greeted the Israeli Ambassador was Mayor Jerome P. Cavanaugh.

Meanwhile in Chicago, the board of directors of a Catholic

Israel Proposes Widening Curbs On Newspapers

JERUSALEM (Israeli Sector) — The Israeli Government is proposing legislation that would extensively widen its restrictions on Domestic newspapers and on representatives of the foreign press, it was reported by Lawrence Fellows in the New York Times.

Under the draft anti-defamation law, which the Government offered in the Knesset (Parliament) last week, a newspaper could be closed if it was found guilty of publishing two libelous statements in the course of two years.

Any citizen or foreign resident of Israel who publishes libelous information abroad about the state would be held criminally liable in Israel. The bill provides for imprisonment for one year but does not provide a definition of libel against the state.

Further, the proceedings of libel action would be made public only with the permission of the court, which could prohibit publication even of its judgment.

No Privileged Matter

Should the bill become law, a newspaper could be found guilty of libel if it should repeat the libelous words of anyone, even though reporting the words in his name.

A Knesset member, for instance, might make a libelous statement in the house in the heat of an election campaign and be protected by his parliamentary immunity. The protection would not national organization adopted a resolution denouncing as "morally wrong" all discriminations because of race or religion practiced by club or fraternities.

The board, representing the National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice, declared that no ethical grounds exist for the exclusion from membership of any citizens on the ground of race or religion. Americans, stated the board, are embarrassed at segregation and discriminations, showing "increasing moral sensitivity" to this problem.

Israel Proposes To Restrict Location Of Pig-Breeding Farms

TEL AVIV, Israel — Israel is moving toward confining pig farms to Nazareth and some cantons in Galilee.

It is expected that a law prohibiting pig breeding elsewhere in the country will be adopted soon. The bill passed its first reading in the Knesset (Parliament) last week. The laws of some religions, Moslem and Druze as well as Jewish, forbid the consumption of pork products. Nevertheless, 49,500 pigs were slaughtered in the country during the last Hebrew calendar year, and 4,950 tons of pork were marketed.

Attempts to restrict pork consumption through zoning laws have been largely ineffective. Most city and village authorities have passed measures restricting the raising of pigs and the sale of their meat, but dealers have circumvented the restrictions by establishing pig farms outside city limits and opening butcher shops on the highways.

Feeling Runs Strong

This has outraged many Israelis and Jewish tourists. Socialist members of the Knesset have joined rabbis in demanding action to terminate it. Many tourists, who acknowledge that they eat pork products at home, have expressed shock that pork is available in Israel.

The depth of feeling on the subject stems from countless stories and legends about Jewish martyrs from the period of the First Temple in Jerusalem to that of the Russian Czars who preferred dying in agony to touching swine flesh. Pig farming in Israel makes a mockery of such martyrdom, advocates of the anti-swine law assert.

Opponents of the bill argue with equal conviction that legislation enforcing a 3,000-year-old dietary law would make a mockery of the Knesset and would constitute religious compulsion.

Supporters counter that their motives are not religious but nationalist. "The 'Shulchan Aruch' (Code of Jewish Laws) does not require Knesset ratification," proclaimed Israel Yeshayahu-Sherabi of the Mapai party in the general debate last week.

Had the motives been religious compulsion, other Knesset members asserted, curbs also would have been proposed on horses, rabbits, camels and other animals whose flesh is not "kosher."

Ancient Tortures Recalled

Scriptures say "And the swine . . . of their flesh ye shall not eat," but that is not why the Knesset law has been proposed, declared Mrs. Esther Razielaor of the Herut party. The reason was the pig's role in Jewish history, she said.

Alluding to Antiochus Ediphanes, who attempted to enforce worship of Greek gods in Jerusalem in the Second Century B.C. and who tortured Jews who refused to eat swine flesh, she said: "Perhaps, if he or one of his soldiers had thought of forcing Jews to eat camel meat in order to subjugate them, the camel would occupy a place in the national consciousness of the Jewish people. But it happened with the pig."

Antiochus and other tormentors of the Jewish people had been aware that abhorrence of the swine was more deep-rooted in Jewish consciousness than anything else and the animal became their instrument of humiliation, degradation and subjugation, other speakers said.

There is a strong demand in the Knesset for a sweeping measure that would prohibit the raising and sale of pigs. It is improbable that a majority can be mustered for such an amendment to the proposed law. However, Premier David Ben-Gurion has committed his Mapai party to secure the passage of a measure that would restrict pig breeding to areas inhabited mainly by Christians. That was one of his concessions in the political bargaining last year with the National Religious Front and the Agudat Israel Workers on the formation of the present Government.

An unexpected problem cropped up in the Knesset when Arabs noted that there were considerable Moslem and Druze populations in the area where it has been proposed to allow pig breeding, and that pigs are repugnant to those religions as well. This problem is to be studied in the parliamentary committee that is preparing the draft for its final reading.

Seminary Medal Given To Hodges

MIAMI BEACH — Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges last week was awarded the Seminary Medal at a special convocation here of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. The only other recipient of the award to date has been Israel's Prime Minister Ben Gurion.

The award cited Hodges for exemplifying "the human potentiality to develop in the market place and in the councils of government the ethical and moral principles of mankind." More than 1,000 educators, scholars, public officials and business leaders attended the ceremonies.

Ask Court To Call New Witnesses

JERUSALEM — West German attorney Robert Servatius, defense counsel for Adolf Eichmann, has asked the Supreme Court to call 15 new witnesses, including Israeli Justice Minister Dov Joseph, Jewish Agency chairman Moshe Sharett, Israeli diplomat Ehud Avriel and Joel Brand, for the hearing beginning March 22 on the appeal against the death sentence handed down against Eichmann last December by the Jerusalem District Court.

The appeal brief covering 60 typewritten pages, challenges various aspects of documents introduced in the trial by Attorney General Gideon Hausner and again questions the right of Israel to try Eichmann in view of his abduction.

Report On Work Of Youth Aliyah

NEW YORK — Youth Aliyah, which is supported partly by Hadasah and Pioneer Women in the United States, absorbed in Israel 3,500 youngsters from North African and European countries during 1961, it was reported here last week at the annual Youth Aliyah conference of the Hadasah.

The work of the Youth Aliyah in absorbing Jewish immigrant children in Israel was highly praised at the conference by Leonard W. Mayo, president of the International Union for Child Welfare. Mayo said, "The record of Youth Aliyah over the last 10 years is not only outstanding, it has blazed a trail in creative work. It is a program designed to prepare them for full participation in a new world."

Enjoy Traditional Holiday Fare At Purim

Purim, a Jewish holiday that is spirited and gay, rather than spiritual and solemn, this year will be celebrated on March 20.

The festival commemorates Queen Esther's triumph over Haman, wicked prime minister of ancient Persia. Haman had issued a decree calling for the destruction of all of Persia's Jews. Queen Esther, a Jewess, saved her people by bravely interceding. Her husband, King Ahasuerus, rescinded the order, Haman's plot was exposed, and he was executed. Jews have commemorated the struggle ever since as an expression of faith that all tyrants will be overcome.

As with all traditional occasions, there are many interesting facts to be learned about Purim. The word, itself, for example, means "lots," because Haman drew lots to decide on which day he would carry out the destruction he had planned.

Observance begins on the eve of Purim, when the Book of Esther is read in synagogues and temples. Whenever Haman's name is spoken, the children rattle noisemakers--like boing the villain in silent movies. It is the only time noise is ever permitted during services. Afterward, gifts are exchanged among friends and charity distributed to the poor... Jew and non-Jew alike.

Essentially a woman's holiday because it honors a heroine, the evening's merrymaking begins with a delicious traditional meal. Purim wouldn't be Purim without a hamantasch (Haman's pocket)--a three-cornered pastry filled with poppy seed and honey or prune butter. A favorite main dish is verenikes--hearty dough half-moons filled with tasty meats, potato or cheese. Crisp poppy seed cookies are usually placed on the table. The table setting is customarily red and gold.

For a delicious and authentic Purim meal, try these kosher recipes adapted and modernized from traditional favorites in test kitchens in Rochester, N.Y.

Anti-Semitic Film Seized By Court

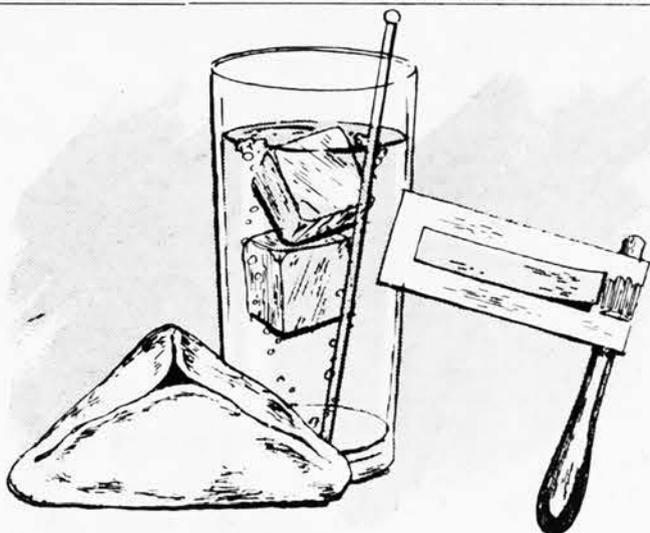

KARLSRUHE — The Federal court here ordered the seizure of all remaining copies of the notorious anti-Semitic film Jud Sues. While most of the copies of the film, which was made during the Hitler regime, had been confiscated after the World War 2, several have turned up since then. The court order also bans showing the film in German theaters.

Judge K. Ehrich, who handed down the decision, declared in his judgment that the picture was an anti-Semitic production which destroys the honor of the Jewish people and at the same time endangers the image of the German people in foreign countries.

Back Marriage With Indian Jews

JERUSALEM — President Ben Zvi came out vigorously last week in support of the recent Chief Rabbinate's decision permitting marriages with the Bene Israel immigrants from India. He declared that the decision should be welcomed by all leaders and members of the Bene Israel community in Israel.

The President made his statement in a comment on criticism of recent directives given by the rabbinates to marriage registrars concerning inquiry into the Jewishness of parents and grandparents of Bene Israel marriage applicants. He hailed the decision recognizing Bene Israel members as full Jews, and expressed the hope that the directives would not be misinterpreted to the extent that such criticism might negate the decision.

The President also said that he felt that the leaders of the Bene Israel community had no justification for objecting to the questions since rabbis had a complete right to question all marriage applicants concerning such Jewish matters. His statement was expected to soothe the controversy and serve as a cue for moderation both for rabbis performing such marriages and for Bene Israel members.

TO PAINT PORTRAITS

Young artists of the R. I. School of Design will paint pastel portraits of children on Sunday at the Dedication Purim Carnival at the Cranston Jewish Center.

Jerome Herman and Carl Adler are co-chairmen of the committee working with the faculty of the religious school on the afternoon carnival.

The dedication committee, headed by Sheldon Sollosy, chairman, and Harold Tregar co-chairman, have announced that special events will be held each week until Passover to celebrate the completion of the center. The Youth Activities Committee under Sherman Kauffman chairman, has been assigned March 25 for a program to depict the various activities of the young people.

May I also add for the benefit of my Massachusetts and Maryland editors that Cantor Michael and Cantor Saul advise that my column has a solid readership in their hometown papers? Why, thankee, gentlemen. You came to the right person with the right message.

BUMPED INTO Bert Gordon, the Mad Russian of radio days, at Sidney Linden's Lucey's restaurant, meeting place of the stars. First thing I said to the old-time favorite was the natural thing to say: "How do you do?".... Did you know that Mae Questel played the same role in "Majority of One" both in the movie and on the stage but she played under two different stars--Gertrude Berg on Broadway and Rosalind Russell in films?

PRODUCER Jerry Wald is up and around following his serious heart attack. Good health, Jerry, and slow down. The world will wait for your movies.... Mazeltov to Stuart Whitman for winning an Academy Award nomination. Didn't we tell you? Now if Charles Boyer, Paul Newman, Maximilian Schell and Spencer Tracy can fight it out bitterly and split the vote, then Whitman can romp home as a surprise winner. The voting will be a surprise; his acting wasn't. He'll deserve it.

Also mazeltov to Piper Laurie for winning a nomination for her work in "The Hustler" and don't think she didn't earn it! Piper's family name is Jacobs and she was recently married here in Long Beach by my good friend Rabbi Abraham Maron to New York newsman Joseph Morgenstern. Here, too, Piper's competition is real rough -- Audrey Hepburn, Sophia Loren, Geraldine Page and Natalie Wood.

PETER FALK represents Jewry in the Best Supporting Actor category and wasn't he fabulous in "Pocketful of Miracles?" He played a cross-eyed character, whereas in real life he has only one eye. He lost it when he was three years old as the result of an illness. In 1960, Falk won another nomination for a supporting role in "Murder, Inc." but lost out to Peter Ustinov. Another Jewish lad, Jack Kruschen, also lost out the same year in the same category. He played the doctor in "The Apartment," an exciting portrayal.

GOOD LUCK also to other nominees whose efforts were the real McKosher: Robert Rossen, Stanley Kramer, Robert Wise and Jerome Robbins, all in the directing category.... And to my very good lahntzman Dimitri Tiomkin in best music score of a dramatic or comedy picture, who competes with other Jewish nominees Elmer Bernstein and Harry Sukman. The latter won last year with Morris Stoloff for scoring "Song without End" while Ernest Gold was another winner for Jewry in the scoring category for his work on "Exodus."

WE'RE keeping fingers crossed for Dimitri Tiomkin (his second nomination) and Ned Washington for best song "Town Without Pity" which competes with "Pocketful of Miracles," a tune written by James Van Heusen and Sammy Cahn who is always being mistaken for an oriental named Sammy Chan.

Sue New York State For Morgue Identification Error

NEW YORK — A court of claims took under advisement last week a suit by relatives of a Jewish and a Roman Catholic woman who each received the religious services of the other's faith because of an error in morgue identification.

The relatives filed suit for $50,000 in damages, each family asking the State of New York for $25,000 for "mental anguish and suffering" caused by the switch.

Michael Tumminelli filed one of the suits. Frank Lott filed the other. Attorneys told Claims Judge Melvin Osterman that Mrs. Mary Tumminelli, 87, a life-long Roman Catholic, and Mrs. Rose Lott, 66, a Jewess, died the same day in Brooklyn State Hospital. An error in identifying the bodies caused them to be sent to the wrong mortuaries, the plaintiffs asserted.

As a consequence, Mrs. Lott was embalmed and placed in a casket with rosary beads, a crucifix in her hands and the sign of the cross on her bier. Mrs. Tumminelli was placed on the Taharah board and wrapped in the traditional white shrouds under a black cloth bearing a Star of David.

The attorneys said the mistake was discovered when the families visited the morgues. Assistant Attorney General Robert Schwartz representing the state, disclaimed any liability for the error.

A Seder In Moscow . . . A Different Night Over The Kremlin

By Leonard Lyons

Our host arose, patted the white silk yarmulka into place on the back of his head, and began the service: "Blessed art Thou, Lord, our God, King of the Universe." His eyes darted around the festive table as he spoke, and the ancient Hebrew words came from him not in tones of solemn prayer, but as if in simple declaration.

"And Thou hast given us, Lord, our God, with love, Seasons for Gladness. . ."

There were forty of us in the room in Moscow, women and children and men wearing yarmulkas. We had come from many lands, but we picked up the recital and chanted in unison: "Seasons for Gladness, Holidays and times for rejoicing, this day of the Holiday of Matzah." This was a Passover Seder, the oldest continually-observed religious service in the history of the world.

We heard our host's youngest child begin the four Kashes by asking, "Wherefore is this night different from all other nights?" One difference was that now Sylvia was using her seventh language in one day: The Haggadah, in Hebrew; English, to our Intourist Guide; German to a clerk at the G U M department store; French to an actress backstage at the Puppet Theater; Yiddish at the synagogue; Italian to the Roman servants in our host's household; and Russian to the driver who'd brought us to this home where the Star of David fluttered in the breeze, above the two uniformed Red guards.

Yes, this night certainly was different from all other nights: For this was a Seder at the home of Arieh Harell, a one-time lawyer in Germany and then the Israeli Ambassador to Moscow.

But what was I doing in Moscow this Passover? I'll tell you what I was doing.

My parents came from the villages of Zxinyetchka and Hori-denka, near the city of Czerka, near the city of Czernowicz in the province of Bukowina, on the shifting border between Austria, Hungary and Rumania. I have this on the word of my sister, Rose Specter may she live to be a hundred and twenty.

My parent's native villages were the booty in many wars and were annexed to several nations, but their prime allegiance must have been to Austria-Hungary. I base this assumption on the fact that my earliest recollection of an art-work on the walls of our New York apartment is of a picture of a bearded gentleman I thought was my grandfather -- because my mother, may she rest in peace, always referred to him as Der Heiliger, "The Holy One." He was Emperor Franz Josef.

Austria-Hungary, Rumania or Poland, it doesn't matter now, for Bukowina has been absorbed by the Soviet Union. My sister Rose, the sole survivor of that journey now, tells me that it took them 24 days to make the migration to New York. And I made the return trip, via Sabena's first direct jet-flight from New York to the Soviet Union, in less than ten flying hours.

"This bitter herb which we eat, what reason has it?" Ambassador Harell read. These very words were being recited this night by countless Jews among the 2,200,000 remaining in Russia, the only nation where citizens' passports still are stamped "Jew" after the question of nationality.

I had hoped to be invited to a Seder at the home of Soviet Jews, and inquired about such a possibility at the Friday night services in the synagogue. But the man had frowned, and suggested: "Come here, to the Pesach services, and then we will see." I suspected that

Warn of Danger In Slaughter Bill

NEW YORK — Jewish groups charged last week that the Conklin humane slaughter bill, now pending in the New York State Senate, would prevent Jewish ritual slaughter in the state by forbidding shackling and hoisting of meat animals prior to slaughter.

The Jewish Community Relations Committee of Utica said that the Conklin bill — and a companion Calli bill in the state Assembly — specifically exempt shechita as a humane method of killing. The committee added, however, that since there are not now any means of pre-handling available to New York abattoirs, other than shackling and hoisting,

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

I VISITED THE HEBREW DAY SCHOOL

By Beryl Segal

The boy came with his father to the Rabbi's house. The father came first and the boy followed. The Rabbi noticed that the boy always kept a respectful distance behind the father. The Rabbi pointed to two chairs and invited them to sit down. The boy watched the father, and not until the father was seated did the boy take his place at the table. During the conversation, the boy never once interrupted, neither the Rabbi nor his father in the midst of their speech. He did not speak until asked by the Rabbi.

And I want you to know that the reason for the boy's coming to see the Rabbi was of great concern to him personally. It was a matter of Bitul Torah, or Honor your Father and Mother. Which of them came first?

Now Bitul Torah is a concept developed by the scholars of the Talmud and to this day, students at the Yeshivos, as well as older Jews of learning, are avoiding it with all their might.

Bitul Torah is anything that distracts from the pursuit of study. Anything that is not of the nature of study is Bitul Torah and is to be shunned.

But what if the will of the parents is in conflict with that which to you is Bitul Torah? What then?

This was the problem. What the Rabbi advised is not important at the moment. But what is important is the behavior of the boy, a lad of High School age, now a student at a Yeshiva.

Bitul Torah, wasting time when you can study and acquire knowledge, is the greatest of sins. This is ingrained in the heart of the Yeshiva students. And this same spirit is in the air as you enter the Hebrew Day school in Providence.

You go from room to room and you are aware that here is a place where important things are being done and where the study of Torah is being pursued seriously. Where Jewish studies are not forced but is part of your life, of your growing up.

Come with me into the second grade. Little tots of six or seven. This is their second year in school. Keep this in mind, because you could not tell it from what you see and hear in that second grade. Children talk Hebrew as naturally as they talk English. They put aside the story of Purim which they are now studying, and they talk.

Do you know Proverbs? Hebrew Proverbs, of course.

Yes, they know. And hands are going up, and each child recites a Proverb that would put to shame older people than they are. Good wonderful proverbs and sayings that should hang on the walls of every Jewish home.

Come with me to a fourth grade. They are in the hands of an English teacher now. But the principal is here and the teacher is kind enough to relinquish the class. Entirely unprepared, the children answer questions from the Bible they are studying, and --wonder over wonder -- the children know the entire Song of Deborah by heart. The Song of Deborah which she sang on the victory of the Jewish tribes over their adversary Sisra King of the Canaanites many thousand of years ago. It is a stirring song of thirty-one stanzas. They knew it by heart and understood the obscure passages in the song.

Come with me to the fifth grade. Children learn the laws of Innocence and Guilt. What is a man, who is innocent, to do to escape the wrath of the relatives of the dead man. Where shall he escape, and for how long. The children ask questions and argue over the laws as if it concerns them today.

Come with me into the sixth grade and hear the children review what they have learned during the season. Hear them remember where and when and under what circumstances a certain phrase occurs in the Bible. It is the kind of thing that is asked of scholars in the Jerusalem Bible Contests, or of students on the College Quiz. Phrases that you and I have forgotten come back to life in the mouths of these youngsters.

And think that only five years and ten years ago we all thought that this was impossible. That you cannot teach American children this kind of thing. It was all right for Eastern Europe, but not here. The children will not understand it. The parents will not stand for it.

I asked the principal, Rabbi Akiva Egozi:

"Tell me, please, do these children come from homes where Hebrew is understood, where Jewish knowledge is the order of the day, where at least one parent can study with them, encourage them, teach them?"

And the Rabbi answered: "I wish it were true. Most of the children come from homes where neither father nor mother know the image of an Aleph. But they want their children to know what was denied to them. As a result we have about two hundred children, and we expect to have at least three hundred children when we come into our own home."

"Are you going to do something for the parents, too?" I asked.

"Oh, yes," was the positive reply. "We are going to have courses for adults in our new home which we will dedicate soon."

And I thought to myself as I walked home from my visit to the Hebrew Day school, my head still swimming in the sea of learning which prevails there:

How great are the parents of these children who are not ashamed to say, "We have been neglected, but we are not allowing our children to go in our footsteps. Let them know what is meant by the phrase of being a Jew, let the books of Jews not be a closed world to them." And how blessed are the children who learn with such eagerness and seriousness that never shall it be said that they are guilty of Bitul Torah.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

HOW MUCH IS YOUR DOLLAR WORTH?

How much is your dollar worth in terms of the goods and services it buys for you today as against what it could buy yesterday?

It's worth only 46 cents if you compare it with the dollar you or older members of your family were earning and spending in 1939.

To put it more specifically: When you consider increases in the consumer price index--the yardstick we use to measure increases in our cost of living--the dollar which would have bought 100 cents of the goods and services in a typical city family's marketbasket in 1939 will buy only 46 cents of similar goods and services in 1962.

But your dollar is worth 96 cents if you compare it with the money you were earning and spending in 1958. It's worth 80 cents if you compare it with the dollar you were earning and spending in 1948.

Obviously, your dollar has continued to lose buying power as the prices of goods and services you need or want have climbed but just as obviously, the pace of loss has been slower and slower. The decline in its value comes to only 4 cents since 1958, a drop of a bit more than a penny per dollar per year.

This loss hasn't hurt the vast majority of workers. On the contrary, most workers in occupations running across the board have added much more than a penny to each dollar of earnings. They're way ahead.

How you rate the worth of your dollar today depends on the year you choose with which to compare its worth. For instance, if you compare 1962's dollar with that earned in 1920, it's worth 67 cents in the market place--meaning the annual loss over the 42-year period works out to a modest 1 per cent. If you compare 1962's dollar with that earned in 1939, though, it has lost more than half its purchasing power and that's no comfort to any one of us.

This point about comparison years is fundamental and it's appallingly underestimated. Let's spell it out by comparing today's dollar against the dollar in previous major base years.

The base years selected are: 1913, because this marked the introduction of the consumer price index; 1920, because this marked the peak of the post-World War I inflation; 1926, because this marked the mid-point in the decade of tinsel prosperity; 1929, because this marked the collapse of the stock market; 1933, because this marked the bottom of the great depression; 1939, because this marked the last year before World War II; 1948, because this marked the close of the violent inflation of World War II and the postwar period; 1955 and 1958, because these marked the gradual change to a more "normal" economy. Here goes....

The dollar which was "worth" 100 cents in	Today is "worth"
1962	100 cents
1958	96 cents
1955	89 cents
1948	80 cents
1939	46 cents
1933	43 cents
1929	57 cents
1926	59 cents
1920	67 cents
1913	33 cents

While 1939 is the popular year for comparisons, there's actually less reason to choose it than 1929. For 1939 ended a decade of depression and faltering recovery and goods were generally underpriced then; price increases since are bound to appear exaggerated. In contrast, 1929 ended a decade of prosperity and high living; price increases since should be a more reliable gauge of trends.

The fundamental fact to be read here is that the pace of decline in your dollar's purchasing power has been perceptibly slowing.

Because we lived through an age of inflation in the wartime 1940s-early 1950s is no basis for anticipating we'll live through another age of inflation in the 1960s. The evidence is clear: Your dollar, in terms of what it buys, is more stable than it has been in a long time.

The Lyons Den
by Leonard Lyons

Kirk Douglas just returned from Nairobi to help exploit his latest film, "Only the Brave." His wife went to Idlewild to welcome him. Then they entered a taxi, and Douglas told the driver: "Four seventy-five Park Ave., please." The cabbie started driving in circles. Douglas repeated the address--"Four seventy-five Park Ave." The driver stopped the cab. Douglas shouted, and the driver turned around: It was Tony Curtis.

Mrs. Gary Cooper has moved her permanent quarters to New York. She's rented an apartment on Park Ave. . . Jackie Gleason wants Audrey Meadows, who played his wife in "The Honeymooners" TV series, to work with him again. Miss Meadows, now Mrs. Robert Six, is willing-- but not on a weekly basis.

Because of Bette Davis' illness her standby, Madeleine Sherwood, has been playing her co-starring role in "The Night of the Iguana." Miss Sherwood was dissatisfied

Seeks Endorsement Of Request For Intervention

WASHINGTON — A resolution calling on the House to unanimously endorse a request for direct intervention by President Kennedy with the Soviet Government against anti-Jewish discriminations practiced in Russia was introduced last week in the House of Representatives by Rep. Charles Buckley (D., N. Y.).

The resolution asks President Kennedy "to convey to the Soviet Union an expression of the grave concern of the people of the United States over growing anti-Semitism, and to seek assurances that prompt and appropriate action be taken to stop all forms of bigotry and race hatred against the Jewish people now living in the Soviet Union."

At the same time, Buckley asked the President to prevail upon Soviet authorities to permit Russian Jews "who desire to do so" to leave and seek haven "in Israel and other free lands." The resolution also asked that the President "take all possible immediate steps through the United States delegation to the United Nations" to bring to world attention the facts about "the cruel mistreatment of the Jewish people living within the Soviet Union to the end that such mistreatment should cease."

In introducing his resolution, Buckley said that although Jews "are not being executed or shipped off to Siberia," Russian anti-Jewish activities are taking "a subtle but vicious form prevalent in many parts of the Soviet Union today." He said that Soviet behavior toward Jews "makes it quite clear the Moscow terror has for its real target the eradication of religion itself."

Find Strong Anti-Semitism In Germany

ROME — Anti-Semitic forces are increasingly active in efforts to undermine the democratic system in West Germany and other countries, members of the European executive of the World Jewish Congress agreed last week.

Meeting at Milan, the executive called attention to the continuing growth of nazi anti-Semitic elements conducting open large-scale propaganda. In a strong resolution, the executive members fully endorsed the recent warning issued by the Central Council of Jews in Germany concerning the dangers involved in the freedom with which nazi organizations in West Germany were able to disseminate propaganda to poison the minds of Germans, particularly German youth, against Jews.

The resolution cited slanderous attacks keyed to the argument that the nazis did not murder 6,000,000 European Jewish men, women and children during World War 2. It called on the West German Federal Government to take immediate steps to eradicate nazi influence by applying "sternly" and effectively legal and administrative measures available for that purpose.

Israel To Publish Poems From Soviet

TEL AVIV — Jewish poems composed by a political prisoner in a coal mine in the Soviet Arctic have reached Israel and will be published.

They were smuggled out of a prison at Vorguta near the Barents Sea in 1954 or 1955 and were brought here a few years later.

The identity of the poet is being kept secret to protect him. He has since been released and restored to membership in the Communist party.

The works reflect the reawakening of national consciousness in a Russian Jew who was a teen-ager at the time of the Bolshevik Revolution. The poet had thrown himself heart and soul into the revolution, which he had viewed as the salvation of mankind. His Jewish background was a dim memory until he was cast into prison.

His poems express pride in Jewish history and a longing for Israel. They were copied by hand and circulated by Jewish prisoners in the coal pits at considerable risk.

Return From Trip

Mrs. Benjamin Hayman and daughter, April Ann, have recently returned from Houston, Tex., where they visited with relatives and friends.

Launch Campaign Against Israel

TORONTO — A group calling itself "The Canadian Friends of the Middle East" with headquarters in London, Ontario, has launched a vicious campaign against Israel and against Jews, it was reported here recently.

The first pamphlet issued by the group makes a mockery of the nazi wartime slaughter of 6,000,000 European Jewish men, women and children and even questions the number of Jewish victims, declaring that "the whole story of the 6,000,000 dead Jews is a pure fiction."

The aim of the pamphlet appeared to be to support the Arab claim to Israel. Experts identified claims in the pamphlet as copied from propaganda material being disseminated from Cairo by the anti-Jewish bureau headed by the former nazi Johannes von Leers.

Kidnapper Of Jewish Girl Gets Pardon

AMSTERDAM—Queen Juliana was disclosed last week to have pardoned Elizabeth van Moors, Catholic foster mother of Anneke Beekman, after she served four months of a six-month sentence for kidnapping the Jewish child.

The 61-year-old Catholic woman was one of four sisters to whom Anneke's Jewish parents entrusted their child before their deportation to a nazi death camp in 1943. She was pardoned as a result of Anneke's intervention.

Dutch Jews opened a fight after the war to regain Anneke. The Moors sisters refused to return her because they planned to raise the child as a Catholic despite her father's last plea that if he did not return, he wanted his daughter to be raised as a Jew. While the Amsterdam Jewish Children's Welfare Committee was seeking to obtain custody of the child, the sisters had Anneke baptized.

After a Dutch court officially turned the child over to the committee, officers at the committee went to a Catholic home in Hilversum where Elizabeth and Gertrude Moors lived with the child, but they had fled, taking Anneke with them. They remained in hiding with Anneke for 12 years.

In 1956 a Dutch court sentenced Elizabeth Moors to six months' imprisonment in absentia. Gertrude Moors served a three-month sentence but the girl remained hidden. Last December Anneke, now 21, returned to Holland, professing her complete loyalty to the four sisters.

El Al Planes Grounded In Dispute With Pilots

TEL AVIV — El Al Israel National Airlines grounded all planes in a dispute with pilots who refused to fly more than eight hours per trip instead of the contractually set 12 hours.

A spokesman for the airline said it regarded the demand for a cut in hours and the delaying of a plane in Chicago as a wild-cat strike. All planes and crews in airports abroad were ordered to return immediately to Israel.

The airline said it was taking all steps necessary to assure that passengers would not suffer because of the dispute, explaining that this included arrangements with other airlines.

The union of the crews reportedly demanded overtime pay for flight time over eight hours. The Histadrut announced it was opposed to the demands particularly after a committee for the crews rejected a proposal to arbitrate the dispute.

In a report from New York, the El Al management made it clear that it finds it impossible to provide service on an economic basis over the routes of its system according to the restrictions imposed by the air crews committee which called for refusal to carry out any flight requiring more than eight hours flying time.

Moshe Carmel, a member of the Knesset and chairman of the board of directors of El Al, stated that the board as well as the Histadrut fully support the decision of management.

El Al is making every effort to carry out its schedule of flights, according to the present timetable by transferring passengers to regular flights of other airlines and chartering aircraft from other airlines.

The company has made all possible arrangements for the convenience of the passengers. Tourist liaison offices have been set up in major hotels in Israel and a round the clock special information and reservation service is being maintained.

All sales activities and reservations for future flights throughout the company's worldwide system of branch offices continue.

Engaged — Dr. and Mrs. Evans H. Nelson, of 7 Alton Road, announce the engagement of their daughter, Valerie Carol, to Harold L. Solomon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Solomon of 31 David Avenue, Albany, N.Y.

The couple plan to be married on Sept. 2.

Free Physicians After Sentencing

MUNSTER, W. Germany — Two former nazi camp doctors were sentenced to eight and three years, respectively, last week and then notified the sentences would be regarded as served. They were immediately freed.

Dr. Heinz Baumkeotter, 50, a doctor at the Sachsenhausen concentration camp from 1942 to 1945, was sentenced to eight years for aiding two cases of murder of camp inmates and 14 cases of manslaughter. He also was accused of participating in the murder of at least 77 other inmates.

Dr. Alois Gaberle, 54, was given three years. The court said that the two sentenced men acted like "real doctors wherever they could" and that one had served 10 years in a Russian jail and the other had been interned for three years.

Argentina Stops Hate Broadcasts

BUENOS AIRES — After vigorous protests by representatives of DATA, the central organization of Argentine Jews, and by the Jewish press, a series of anti-Semitic broadcasts over the Buenos Aires municipal radio and television stations was halted by the city and federal authorities here last week.

The privileges of broadcasts by all recognized political groupings had been granted by the municipal broadcasting facility. Taking advantage of that policy, the Union Civica Nacionalista broadcast several programs which, according to Jewish leaders here, were "outright neo-nazi and fascist in content."

Escorra Uriburu, leader of the neo-nazi UCN, denounced Argentine Jews as collaborators with "Zionist imperialism," and sharply criticized the Federal government for implementing democratic principles.

Jewish leaders complained to the authorities in charge of the municipal broadcasting facilities as well as to Dr. Alfredo R. Vitala, Minister of the Interior. An order was issued subsequently denying further use of the broadcast facilities to the UCN and its leaders.

RIGHT TO PASSPORTS

CASABLANCA — Allal el Fassi, Moroccan Minister for Islamic Affairs, told a conference of students this week that Moroccan Jews "have the same right to obtain passports as other citizens."

The Lyons Den

with her own first performance. It was due, she felt, to being over-awed by Miss Davis' reputation. She found a way to solve it... The stagehands saw her, before the curtain rose, standing onstage and shouting: "Damn it all, this is MY role, MINE, not Bette Davis'. My role, mine..."

Raoul Levy, the French producer who turned from Brigitte Bardot movies to a film on Marco Polo, will do the China sequences in Nepal... Ginger Rogers and her husband, William Marshall, are forming their own movie production company. Marshall plans to direct... Harry Weinberg, head of the strike-bound Fifth Avenue Coach Lines, planned to bring in an outsider to run the lines. The man is Dale Barrett, head of Eastern Massachusetts Transit.

In Albany recently, Mayor Wagner submitted legislation for seizing the bus lines. Dora Cohn, mother of Roy Cohn--counsel to the firm--became indignant. She phoned a mutual friend and asked: "When there was a milk strike here, did the Mayor seize the cows?"

Bob Hope demonstrated his version of the twist for Arthur Murray, and said: "The only way I can describe the twist is--did you ever see a dog after he got out of the water?"... Sophia Loren does a twist number in her next movie, "The Third Dimension"... Beach Haven Inlet, off central New Jersey, which was swept by a 12-foot tide last week is where the late Moss Hart owned a summer home... Groucho Marx may make his nightclub debut in Las Vegas.

George Jessel, now at the International, has a project to film the life story of Samuel Gompers, founder of the AFL. Jessel wants Ben Hecht to write the screenplay, and approached Jimmy Hoffa about financing it... This week Jessel outlined the story: "It opens in Atlantic City. Lillian Russell is being married, and a boy on the same vaudeville bill with her--that's me--weeps, 'But you promised to wait for me, Miss Russell'."

Hecht asked what all this had to do with Samuel Gompers. Jessel explained: "It's in Atlantic City, see? That's where the AFL held its first conventions."

Ex-President Kubitschek of Brazil, addressing the Overseas Press Club, spoke in English--the first time he's ever tried a speech in our language. He said: "Everybody was so friendly, I thought I'd try it"... When the scenery collapsed at "A Family Affair," Shelley Berman ad libbed for five minutes... With his earnings from "Survival," Frankie Avalon bought Anne Baxter's Hollywood home. It was designed by her grandfather, Frank Lloyd Wright.

Antonio Ordenez, the bullfighter, rarely answers letters, for he cares little about correspondence. A. E. Hotchner, adapter of Hemingway's "Mountain of the Moon," wrote to Ordenez to find a place where they could buy a matador's costume for the bullfighter in the play... Hotchner never received a replying letter. But two weeks later a package arrived for him at Customs. It was from Ordenez and contained two of his matador's costumes.

The management at Basin St. East is in negotiations with Arthur Godfrey for a starring date there... Gregory Peck may play the role of the alcoholic Nobel Prize author in the film version of Iring Wallace's new novel: "The Prize"... At the Pen & Pencil the other night, Henny Youngman said "West Side Story" has had a decided affect on our culture: "Oh, they still mug you in Central Park--but now they first do a pirouette."

Diahann Carroll, star of Richard Rodgers' "No Strings," is the musical comedy prize he's sought for years. In casting "The Flower Drum Song," Rogers spent $1,000 on makeup tests to see if she could look Chinese... The new painting on John Mills' dressing room wall at "Ross" is by his daughter Hayley... Ralph Bunche flew to Denmark on Thursday, at the government's invitation, just to make a four-minute speech in Copenhagen.

Joe Mankiewicz, who is writing and directing "Cleopatra," discussed its many delays, including those caused by Elizabeth Taylor's ailments: "From now on, when I work with a top star, I'll insist that her salary be based only on per-hours of actual filming."

extend to the newspaper that gave a verbatim report of his speech.

It would not be sufficient defense to plead that the allegedly libelous matter was true. The defendant must be able to show that even before he published it he had reasonable grounds for believing it to be true. He must also show that publication was in the "public interest."

The anti-defamation bill will probably not come up for its first reading in the Knesset for several months because of the long budget debate ahead. Several Israeli newspapers have not waited to criticize the bill as striking at the very roots of press freedom.

Severe Curbs Foreseen

Haaretz, an independent daily, contended that if the bill became law, "even the publication of the truth about a person, an event or a public accident will be largely forbidden."

"Severe new restrictions are proposed on newspaper publication," it added. "The clause about a court ban on a paper's appearance undermines the very existence of the press."

Recently, in a second editorial, Haaretz criticized that section that would threaten to make foreign correspondents, some of them foreign citizens, criminally liable for writing about aspects of life in Israel "which the fund-raising propagandists generally do not tell."

Haboker, the organ of the Liberal party, said that "in the opinion of broad sections of the public, the proposals injure several principles of the freedom of expression, both written and oral, and considerably limit the freedom of the press."

Davar, the organ of Histadrut, the general labor federation maintained that the existing slander law as inadequate but said that, though the bill would do much to correct this, it also would hamper the press.

A Seder In Moscow

That's when Sylvia telephoned the Israeli Embassy. "Of course you may come to our Seder," said Ambassador Harell. "And bring your friends."

We took turns in reciting the story of the Exodus: The monocled Belgian lawyer, the travel agent from New York, the businessman from Cleveland. And then the Second Secretary of the Embassy moved to a seat beside me. He heard my wife pronounce, in perfect Hebrew, "One kid, one kid that father bought for two zuzim," then decided to extend the Seder by having her sing with him the Yiddish song, "Uffen Pripitchock." He somehow lost the lyric, and I sang the correct words.

"Havah Nagillah!" we all sang, swirling and circling in the dance celebrating the freedom from the dictator's yoke, in the room ten minutes distant from the Red Star glowing in this different night over the Kremlin.

Against 3NT West led a diamond, and if the declarer had played correctly to this first trick the contract should have been made. South should take the trick in his own hand and play the ace of spades. On learning of the void on his left he can now see that nine tricks are there if the ace of hearts is right, because, the king of hearts will serve both as a second entry to dummy and as his ninth trick. At trick three, therefore, he must enter dummy with the ace of diamonds and finesse a spade. He then enters dummy again by playing West for the ace of hearts. A spade is again finessed and nine tricks are made. In fact South took the first trick in dummy. He then played a small spade to his king and now the contract cannot be made.

In the other room 4S was bid and made. Here, again, a diamond was led. South won the first trick correctly in her own hand, and played the king of spades. She then played a heart, and when West played small entered dummy with the king of hearts. A spade was played and finessed, dummy was entered again with the ace of diamonds, another spade was played and finessed, trumps were then drawn, and so declarer came to 10 tricks — five spades, two hearts, and three diamonds.
