

Chapter To Pay Tribute To Mrs. Joseph Sefer

By Brenda Slack

On Monday, May 28, the Roger Williams Chapter of B'nai B'rith Women will pay tribute to Mrs. Joseph Sefer — an energetic community leader who, twenty-five years ago, founded the largest and oldest chapter of B'nai B'rith Women in Rhode Island.

Mrs. Sefer . . . faithfully 'pushing the cart' every Friday morning at the Miriam Hospital, has in her lifetime, become well known in numerous organizations for her untiring efforts in their behalf.

A member of the Board of Directors of the Jewish Community Center, Mrs. Sefer was Secretary of the Center for fifteen years. Since the year of its founding she was secretary for ten years to the Rhode Island Refuge Service. A President of the Miriam Hospital Women's Association for five years, Mrs. Sefer is a life member of the Jewish Home for the Aged and the Brandeis Women's Association.

This Annual Quota Dinner will be attended by some five or six hundred . . . a quarter of a century ago it was attended by only 45 or 50 at the most. In the beginning the Chapter had to hold turkey raffles in conjunction with the Men's Lodge in order to raise money. Because they wanted to be "a little different" they began their Quota Dinner instead of 'Donor Dinner' along

Mrs. Raymond L. Cohen will be installed as the third president of the Women's Division of the General Jewish Committee at the group's fifth annual meeting on Thursday at 12:30 P.M. at the Temple Beth-El meeting Hall. Joseph W. Ress, president of the GJC, will be installing officer.

An active worker in the GJC Women's Division, Mrs. Cohen has served three years as vice president and two years as chairman of the annual Women's Division campaign. She also is a member of the GJC board of directors.

Other officers nominated for the 1962-63 year and to be presented to the annual meeting for approval are Mrs. Stanley Grossman, vice president; Mrs. Merrill L. Hassenfeld, vice president; Mrs. Sol Koffler, vice president; Mrs. Irving M. Leven, recording secretary, and Mrs. Bertram L. Bernhardt, honorary president.

The nominating committee is headed by Mrs. Abraham M. Percelay. Serving on the committee with Mrs. Percelay are

New York — The number of negative references to Jews in Protestant Sunday School texts has declined considerably in the last few years, a continuing study at Union Theological Seminary has indicated.

The study found that Protestant writers had far more difficulty in dealing positively with Roman Catholics.

"With few exceptions," Dr. Bernhard E. Olson, its director, said in an interview, "Jews are more advantageously presented by Protestant educators than are other religious groups."

This does not mean that all

Protestant denominations present Jews and Judaism in a favorable light, he added. The lessons of many conservative Fundamentalist groups that refer to Jews could be rated generally negative, he explained.

They are less negative, however, than lessons referring to Catholics, other Protestants and other faith groups, he said.

Image in Child Minds

For a number of years, Dr. Olson pointed out, sociologists have been saying that seeds of anti-Semitism might possibly exist in the Christian message, especially if it is carelessly presented.

The root charge has been that religious texts sometimes give the simplistic idea that "the Jews killed Christ" without regard to the Roman role in the Crucifixion or the fact that Jesus was a Jew.

The Christian child, it has served, is likely to connect the ancient Jews depicted negatively in the denomination's Bible literature with the Jewish children who live next door to him.

The new thing that Dr. Olson has found is that church editors have become increasingly concerned about the images of the Jews that they are presenting. And from that, he said, many have extended their concern to racial groups and other religious minorities.

The major problems arise where other groups are mentioned incidentally, or by way of application, in stating the denomination's beliefs.

One writer, Dr. Olson said, wanted to make the point that it was good to avoid situations that provoke temptation.

To Chair Annual Meeting — Walter Adler, president of Temple Beth El, has appointed Bertram L. Bernhardt as chairman of the annual meeting of the Temple which will be held on Sunday, May 20. The business meeting at 8 P.M. will be preceded by a buffet supper to be held at 6 P.M.

Arthur J. Levy, chairman of the nominating committee will present his report. Members of the annual meeting committee include, Mr. Adler, Dr. Samuel Pritzker, Nathan Alterman, Joseph M. Finkle, Mrs. Robert Hochberg, Harry D. Jagolinzer and Matthew E. Segool.

Says Link Exists Between Israel Arab Conflict And Mistreatment Of Jews By Soviet Union

NEW YORK — Rep. Herbert Zelenko (D.N.Y.) asserted last week that there was a direct link between the Israel-Arab conflict in the Middle East and the current Soviet mistreatment of Russian Jews.

Speaking at an emergency conference called by the Jewish Labor Committee to protest the recent Soviet manifestations of anti-Semitism, Zelenko declared that "the present attack upon Jews and Jewish life in Russia" was motivated by Soviet "aggressive designs in the Middle East and North Africa," a cheap way to curry the favor of the Arab nationalists.

Zelenko condemned the recent United States action in backing and voting for a Security Council resolution condemning Israel for its March 17 reprisal raid on Syrian gunposts in the Lake Tiberias area. He said the resolution would simply "whet the Arab appetite," and if such actions were not stopped, "the ultimate result would be 'to offer up to utter extinction all Russian Jews on the altar of catering to the Arab capacity for making trouble' in the Middle East.

He urged that all unions, community groups, religious organizations and interfaith groups be asked to crystallize public opinion against the Soviet mistreatment of its Jews, conduct rallies "and by every means express their indignation toward the Soviets on the question of religious persecution."

Wants Stevenson to Appear

WASHINGTON — Rep. Leonard Farbstein (D., N.Y.), last week asked the chairman of the Near East Subcommittee to invite United Nations Ambassador Adlai Stevenson "or the official in the Department of State most responsible" for U.S. Middle Eastern foreign policy, to testify before the House unit on "the motivations" of the United States sponsored resolution in the UN Security Council, censuring Israel, last month.

Farbstein, a member of the subcommittee, said he was making his request because he, "along with other of my colleagues have become increasingly disturbed by the conduct of our affairs in the United Nations" with respect to the Middle East. He said U.S. votes in the UN during the past four months appear "on the face" to be "in harmony with the views of Israel's sworn enemies."

In addition to U.S. sponsorship of the UN Security Council resolution, he cited the American UN delegation's efforts in the General Assembly last December, to defeat a 16-nation proposal for direct Israel-Arab peace talks which, he said, "caused widespread concern in Congress."

Producer Jerry Wald writes: "Your statement in your Jewish papers really isn't true. I didn't have a serious heart attack. I did have bleeding ulcers, then pneumonia when blood transfusions backfired and, finally, after I was released from the hospital the first time, a recurrent attack of what was diagnosed as sciatica from a supposed slipped disc."

"I have in fact been in constant and intense pain for many months, then I got another diagnosis and was operated on a couple of weeks ago for a small benign tumor on my spinal column. I'm now free from pain and feel like I was re-born."

Ouch! Perhaps, Jerry, a "serious heart attack" might have been better after all?

EDDIE Cantor writes: "I've been walking a mile-and-one-half every day and doing very nicely. Gives me a chance to walk with some of my very good friends like George Jessel, Harry Ruby and Johnny Rapp. With all good wishes for your continued good health."

Thank you, Eddie, and with all good wishes for YOUR good health! Later, I phoned the beloved actor-singer and we discussed the situation where a Jewish actor may deny he is Jewish in order, according to him, to protect his job.

Said Cantor: "We should be militant Jews. We should hold ourselves erect at every opportunity and say proudly for all to hear: 'I am a Jew'."

Cantor related that he has always been proud to make it known that he is a Jew. "It most certainly did not hurt my career," he pointed out.

He continued: "There is only a handful of us left in this world."

Our millions have been reduced tragically. Christians boast of their religion and they think better of us when we do."

THANK YOU, Milton Berle, for introducing this chronicler at the Coconut Grove following the opening showing of Meredith Willson's "The Music Man" starring Van Johnson. Others introduced included Jack Benny, Phil Silvers, George Burns, Gracie Allen, Rosalind Russell, Janet Leigh and Keenan Wynn.

Phil Silvers spouted at the press party later: "Wasn't Benny Baker terrific?" They're old buddies.

KEEP ears and eyes open in your city if and when Hank Levine, my favorite arranger-composer, visits your local disc jockeys. Hank is promoting his new Dolton single record, "The Theme from Dr. Kildare." He arranged it and Gerald Goldsmith composed it.

Young Mr. Levine is hoping to reach Pittsburgh on May 16 when his beloved parents, Meyer and Rose Levine will celebrate their fourtieth wedding anniversary. Mazeltov!

LOVE, just love Billy Glason's story in his recent Fun-Master Monthly, the "Comedian," about the woman who came into a psychiatrist's office with a white duck under her arm. "What can I do for you?" asked the doctor. "Oh, not for me," exclaimed the woman, holding the duck out. "For my husband here. He thinks he's a duck."

Organized Jewish Libraries

Observations On Their Status In America

By Sidney Galfand

Provision for storage in a Genizah and burial with appropriate ritual, rather than destruction of worn out or damaged religious books in one indication of the high regard Jews have always had for books. Add to this the fact that the label "People of the Book" was not self-chosen, but bestowed on the Jews, by (of all peoples) the Mohammedans, and you begin to understand the place of the books in Jewish culture.

A mere glance at any well documented history of the Jews will indicate that in every age and in every country where there were Jews they had their own community libraries. And mention of such names as Lewisohn, Flexner, Bloch and Tauber is sufficient to indicate the intense interest Jews have had in libraries and librarianship.

The amazing thing about the status of Jewish libraries in the United States, therefore, is not that they are widespread, but that they are not older and better established than they are.

There is an endless variety, ranging from a few books in the rabbi's study or the educational director's office to a large well stocked, professionally serviced library such as the one in The Temple in Cleveland.

library such as the one in The Temple in Cleveland.

Public libraries have not neglected Judaica, and many of the collections are noteworthy, especially those in the New York Public Library and the Sutro Library in San Francisco to name but two. Historically these collections are well established. The Library of Congress, major universities, such as Yale, Harvard and Columbia, and even some organized in 1949 has not yet achieved widespread national acceptance. The present officers of this organization are Abraham Berger, of the New York Public Library, and Max Celnik of the Stern College of Yeshiva University.

Cleveland's ALA convention of 1961 marks another attempt to organize Jewish librarians on a nation-wide basis. Miss Miriam Leikind, librarian of The Temple in Cleveland, invited a group of Jewish librarians attending ALA to her home on July 11, where the group organized provisionally, pending the results of a questionnaire to be sent to all known Jewish librarians. This group, headed by Miss Leikind, Mrs. Rebecca Guth of Keneseth Israel in Elkins Park, Penna. and Miss Phyllis Mandell of Cleveland, Ohio, plans to organize an active national association either within ALA or independently, depending on the results of the questionnaire. Any librarians or interested persons who do not hear from this group should communicate with one of the above mentioned persons for further information.

The stated purpose of this association is to disseminate and share news of current developments, such as standards and citations provided nationally by the Jewish Book Council, and on the local level by such organizations as the Jewish Library Association of Greater Philadelphia; the invaluable Periodical Index developed by Miss Leikind of Cleveland; and the Weine Classification System of Philadelphia, to mention just a few. The Association will act as a clearing-house for the discussion of problems peculiar to Jewish libraries and attempt their solution. Cooperation on a nation-wide scale will take a great deal of planning

Mr. Galfand is Supervisor of Central Cataloging, School District of Philadelphia, and Past President of the Jewish Library Association. (now in its 19th edition), which contains in addition to essays on appropriate topics a comprehensive series of bibliographies of books of Jewish interest, fiction and nonfiction, adult and juvenile, published during the current year in English, Hebrew and Yiddish.

2. "The Jewish Library in School, Center and Synagogue," by Jacob S. Golub (Librarian-Consultant of the Jewish Education Committee of New York). This is an excellent and practical manual on how to organize and operate a Jewish library.

One of the Jewish Book Council's greatest contributions to the development of Jewish libraries is its "Citation." This citation is awarded, upon application, to any library that meets certain requirements:

1. The library must have been organized for a least one year.
2. There must be at least one room set aside exclusively for the library.
3. The library must have a librarian either part or full time.
4. The library must have a fixed budget.
5. The library must have a minimum of 1000 books of Jewish interest regardless of language.
6. The library must have added a minimum of 100 books of Jewish interest during the previous year.
7. The library must maintain an accessible catalog.
8. The library must be open at least ten hours a week.
9. The library must participate actively in Jewish Book Month activities and render various services for the enrichment of Jewish programs.
10. The library should create a Jewish atmosphere within it through the predominance of Jewish motifs, Jewish art, ceremonial objects, posters, and mottoes.

Any library able to measure up to these criteria must of necessity have a significant influence on its community. The influence these standards can add to the efforts of an interested group to get its synagogue or center to establish a library can be readily seen. To date over 125 libraries have qualified for a "Citation."

The Library Service Bureau of the United Synagogue of America, 3080 Broadway, New York 27, New York, has as its library consultant Mr. Max Celnik who is the librarian of Stern College of Yeshiva University. Mr. Celnik has issued a manual similar to Mr. Golub's, entitled "The Synagogue Library, Organization, Administration." He has also prepared a "Basic Book List for the Synagogue Library" and offers consultation service to members of the United Synagogue.

Local effort at organized pooling of information and resources is, due to the greater ease of communication, somewhat more advanced than the national movements.

Cleveland, Ohio, offers a shining example of how one excellent library with a dedicated librarian can influence the entire community. Miss Leikind, librarian of The Temple, has done an excellent job of organizing the Jewish libraries of Cleveland and establishing a working relationship with the Cleveland Public Library System. Between them they have made Jewish Book Month each year an event of major community importance.

colleges have well established Judaica departments. It is, of course, to be expected that theological institutions such as the Jewish Theological Seminary, Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, and Yeshiva University would have the excellent libraries which they do.

The newest and least developed link in the chain of Jewish libraries is the Synagogue or Community Center library. This relative newcomer to the field in America is growing so rapidly that it is impossible at the present time to determine with any degree of accuracy how many and how well developed they are. Some slight indication may be gleaned from the fact the Jewish Book Council has issued citations (which will be described later) to more than 125 libraries.

Even more recent than the establishment of Synagogue and Community libraries is the growing awareness of Jewish librarians of the vital need to associate and share their experiences. The Jewish Book Council, one of the best established and most active proponents of reading and library service, has yet to celebrate its twenty-fifth birthday, and an association of Jewish librarians and organizing, but now that the first steps have been taken, there are hopes for a successful organization.

Two groups located in New York City that are actively engaged in promoting library service on a nation-wide scale are the Jewish Book Council and the Library Service Bureau of the United Synagogue of America. The Jewish Book Council is a subsidiary of the National Jewish Welfare Board, 145 East 32nd Street, New York 16, N.Y.

Jewish Book Month, founded by a Boston librarian, Miss Fanny Goldstein, is celebrated at Hanukkah time each year and is the Jewish Book Council's major project. This project is widely supported even by synagogues and centers which do not have libraries. The Council issues posters, bookmarks and other promotional materials, the most valuable of which are the many excellent booklists included in their portfolio. Anyone who has not seen these valuable aids, should write to the Council for its price list. (Many items are free and all are inexpensive.)

Two publications of particular value issued by the Council are:

URGES 'VIGOROUS STEPS'

BOSTON — Rep. Laurence Curtis (R., Mass.), a member of the House of Representatives Committee on Foreign Affairs, urged here that the Federal Government "take vigorous steps to protect American citizens against discrimination" by foreign governments. He referred to bias practiced against American Jews by Arab states in general and, specifically, by Saudi Arabia, pointing out that "a certain country" is not permitting the entry of "persons of a certain minority group."

Vera Eichmann Visits Husband

TEL AVIV — Vera Eichmann left Israel Monday after visiting her husband Adolf Eichmann, who is in Ramleh prison awaiting the outcome of an appeal from his death sentence. Mrs. Eichmann, who arrived here in cognito from Zurich, was immediately taken to Ramleh prison where she met with her husband and spoke with him through a glass partition via earphones for 90 minutes. She met with him again toward midnight for 15 minutes, bidding him "auf wiedersehen" as she left.

Preparations for Mrs. Eichmann's visit had been conducted with the utmost secrecy and although it was known here that she was due to arrive, the first news of the visit was made known only after her departure. All formalities in connection with the visit, including the issuance of the visa and customs procedures, were apparently handled outside routine channels by the Israeli Security Services.

Mrs. Rose S. Jaffa, have recently moved from 187 Northampton Street, Warwick to 12 Carpenter Lane, Bloomfield, Conn.

Commemorate Heroes Of Warsaw's Ghetto

NEW YORK — Times Square, known as the "crossroads of the world," this week was renamed Warsaw Ghetto Square in commemoration of the 19th anniversary of the Warsaw Ghetto uprising in which close to 60,000 Jews, men, women and children comprising the entire population of the beleaguered ghetto, were massacred by the nazis.

An overflow audience attended a memorial meeting sponsored by the Manhattan Region of the Zionist Organization of America, at which Justice Michael A. Musmanno was the principal speaker. Justic Musmanno, who was among the United States prosecutors during the Nuremberg war crimes trials, and who testified on behalf of the State of Israel trial of Adolf Eichmann, lauded Israel for "advancing the law of civilization" by placing Eichmann on trial. He said Israel "has added effectiveness to the precedent established at Nuremberg, namely, that those who kill thousands and millions will be punished as surely as those who kill a single person." He voiced strong opposition against pleas that Eichmann's death sentence be commuted.

Memory Honored in Israel
JERUSTLEM — Holocaust and Heroism Remembrance Day, commemorating the martyred victims of nazi persecution, opened here this week with a youth rally on Har Hazikaron and with rallies and services throughout the country. Movie houses and other entertainment places were closed. Tuesday morning a blast of sirens marked the beginning of five minutes of silence in memory of the dead.

In the afternoon, a memorial service was held in Martyrs Forest in the Jerusalem Corridor and another service took place at Kibbutz Maaleh Hachamishah in the presence of President Ben Zvi, Prime Minister Ben Gurion, Chief Rabbi Yitzhak Nissim, Jerusalem Mayor Mordechai Ish-Shalom, Cabinet Ministers, members of the Jewish Agency executive and the Diplomatic Corps. All mail was postmarked with a special Memorial Day stamp.

Alliance Readjusts To 'New Realities'

MONTREAL — The Alliance Israelite Universelle, which has had to face difficulties in its activities in North Africa, "is winning the battle of adjustment to the new realities in North Africa and in other areas," Marcel Franco, one of the organization's world leaders, told the annual dinner of the Canadian Friends of Alliance here last week. Franco is vice-president of the Alliance, which has its headquarters in Paris, and is also president of the American Friends of Alliance.

Franco paid tribute to "the highest Moroccan authorities—under the guidance of the young energetic and wise King" for the progress of the Alliance during the period of transition. He disclosed that the Alliance, while continuing to help elementary education in the future will concentrate its efforts mainly on secondary education.

He also said that the Normal School of the Alliance in Paris will not only continue to train teachers for the alliance network but will also become an important center of higher Jewish education for the future Jewish intelligentsia of Western Europe.

Justice Harry Batshaw, president of the Canadian Friends of the Alliance, was presented with a medal from the French Government for his efforts in furthering French-Canadian cultural relations. Is the brother of Manve G. Batshaw, executive director of the Jewish community Center of Essex County.

ual, the Jewish community here commemorated the Warsaw Ghetto rebellion. Over the week-end, special sermons were preached in all of Turkey's synagogues on the theme of memorializing the 6,000,000 Jews killed during the nazi regime and the heroism of the nearly 60,000 Jews in the Warsaw Ghetto who fought suicidally against the might of the nazi armies in 1943.

Argentine Observance
BUENOS AIRES — With 2,000 persons filling the Astral Theatre here to capacity, as six huge candles illumined the scene, the Jewish community of Buenos Aires paid solemn tribute to the memories of the heroes of the Warsaw Ghetto rebellion and the rest of Europe's 6,000,000 Jews mass-murdered during the nazi regime.

The meeting was arranged by RAIA, central representative body of Argentine Jewry, and the Buenos Aires Jewish Community. Among the principal participants and speakers were Dr. Isaac Goldenberg, president of DAIA; Israel Ambassador Yosef Avidar; Chief Rabbi Jacob Fink; and Mark Turkow, representative of the World Jewish Congress.

Finish Secret Talks Reportedly Aimed At Securing U. S. Funds

WASHINGTON — Egyptian Economics Minister Kaissouny was preparing this week for his return trip to Cairo following a week-long round of official talks reportedly aimed at securing additional U.S. loan funds.

With the specifics of his visit here still clouded in secrecy, State Department spokesmen conceded that Kaissouny had talked with State Department and U.S. Agency for International Development officials about the possibility of a loan. The discussions were coincidental to the major reason for his trip — to obtain additional funds from the non-U.S. International Monetary Fund to help stabilize the Egyptian economy.

While declining to elaborate in detail on any aspect of the loan discussions, the State Department spokesmen said that Kaissouny had talked about "a number of specific industrialization programs" for which he is seeking U.S. financial backing. They indicated that one possible factor which would determine the U.S. decision was the stability of Egypt's economy, implying that the decision hinged on the outcome of the negotiations with the International Monetary Fund. The spokesmen said that a U.S. loan to Egypt for "an economically feasible" project was "certainly a possibility."

Says Big Powers Could Push Talks

UNITED NATION, — Acting Secretary-General U Thant implied here last week that it was up to the Big Powers to bring about peace negotiations between Israel and the Arab states, if such an achievement were to be accomplished.

At a luncheon tendered in his honor by the United Nations Correspondents' Association, Thant was asked to comment on criticisms that the recent sessions of the Security Council, which voted condemnation of Israel for its action against Syrian military provocations, "evaded the need for a peace treaty between Israel and the Arab states."

"If we accept the premise that the UN evaded that issue," he replied, "then it is correct to blame the Security Council — which, of course, means the Big Powers."

2ND JEWISH GENERAL

RIO DE JANEIRO — For the second time in a fortnight, the Brazilian Army last week promoted a Jewish officer to the rank of general. The officer is the former Col. Aaron Benschimol, an active member of the Sephardic community, who was made a brigadier general.

Voice Of Jerusalem The Central Zionist Archives (327)

The history of Zionism and the history of Palestine in the last hundred years are appropriately mirrored in the documents found in the Central Zionist Archives in Jerusalem. The archives contain files from Central Zionist Offices and institutions as well as printed matter, such as proclamations and placards, newspapers, books, photos, films, records and sound films.

The archives contain as well the files of the Vaad Leumi (National Council) — Jewish self-governing body in Mandatory Palestine) of Palestinian Jewry, the archives of the Bnei Moshe Association (founded by Ahad Ha'am) the archives of Herzl, Moses Hess, Nahum Sokolow, Henrietta Zold and part of the archives of Izhak Ben-Zvi, president of the State of Israel.

The various documents found in the Zionist Archives are available to the general public and scholars who reconstruct with their help the many events in the history of Zionism, The Yishuv and the Jewish people.

The Zionist Archives are preparing for publication all Herzl's writings and publish a bulletin of new books on Zionism and Palestine. It likewise holds from time to time exhibitions on personalities and important events.

The Zionist Archives are the largest Jewish archives in the world. It is therefore the duty of every Zionist to ensure that files, books, booklets, letters and circulars with a bearing on any sort of Zionist activity should reach the care of the archives.

Youth Orchestra Prepares For Concert

By Cella Zucherberg

To fill the need for those young men and women who are interested in music and are between the high school orchestra and a real symphony orchestra, there is the Rhode Island Philharmonic Youth Orchestra. The members of this orchestra are musicians; many of them intend to go on into music as a profession; the others are truly interested in music. There are teen-agers like William Piacitelli, a bass player, who intends to continue in music professionally; or Francee Rakatansky who plays the cello and intends to continue in Pembroke with the study of music. There are members such as Herbert Allen, who was the first chair in the cello section, and who is now studying at the Juilliard School of Music in New York.

Form Committee

A committee was formed in 1954 to provide some opportunity for those who wished to play music above the high school level and to prepare for genuine symphonic training. Headed by Miss Irene Mulick, then president of the Rhode Island Philharmonic Orchestra, this group included as members Francis Madeira and Ralph Burgard, conductor and manager of the R. I. Philharmonic as well as Joseph Conte, present conductor of the Youth Orchestra.

The first rehearsal of the group was held on Nov. 5, 1955 with approximately 40 members attending. Through the cooperation of the Providence Journal Company, the group has been able to rehearse in the Providence Journal auditorium. The first concert was played on June 20, 1956 at the R. I. School of Design Auditorium.

Now 79 Members

There are now 79 members in the Youth Orchestra and they come from Cranston, Newport, Providence, Warwick, Barrington, Woonsocket, West Warwick, Cumberland, Kingston, Saunderson, Johnston, Greenville, Smithfield, East Greenwich, Westerly, Pawtucket — there is no area in Rhode Island which is not represented. And the members turn up regularly every Saturday morning for a 3 hour rehearsal.

Members of the Youth Orchestra have been placed with the R. I. Philharmonic and with others symphony orchestras such as those in Birmingham, Kansas City and Nashville. At least one member has joined the Boston Symphony Orchestra and one, Arthur Fiedler's Boston Pops Orchestra. There are many former members attending Boston University, New England Conservatory of Music, Juilliard and the Curtis Institute, on scholarships.

Since February 1961, while still associated with the parent orchestra, the activities of the Youth Orchestra have been managed by a group of parents of orchestra members, known as the Friends of the R. I. Philharmonic Orchestra Association. This organization, which has assumed the financial responsibility of the Youth Orchestra, as well as the managerial details of concerts, auditions and other activities, started with no money — except what the members themselves donated. Although since then their only financial means have come from sale of concert tickets and donations given by friends of the orchestra, they are in the black, according to Mrs. Nathan Rakatansky, one of the parents interested in the orchestra.

Things To Do

However, there are many things that the Youth Orchestra would like to do. They have been invited to attend the workshop in Boston—but with no extra funds to take care of transportation and expenses in Boston, and without funds to provide return hospitality to the Boston group, they can do nothing. In the future they would like to help in the formation and participate in an Atlantic Sea Coast Workshop. They would like to be able to have more teachers for the orchestra—it all requires money.

It was in 1961 that the Rhode Island Philharmonic Orchestra voted that because of lack of funds it could not give any financial aid or support to the Youth Orchestra—it would have to go out on its own. And with the help of the parents, and other interested people it has managed.

Joseph Conte Conducts

Joseph Conte, well-known musician, is conductor of the Youth Orchestra, and he has worked hard and faithfully with the young musicians in making a musical organization which is a credit not only to the teen-agers themselves, but to the parents and teachers and conductors who have worked so hard to bring it about. Working with

Mr. Conte are Frank Marinaccio, administrative assistant, and Joseph Spaziano, librarian, musicians who also help direct the teen-agers when they are split into groups to rehearse more thoroughly.

Public Appearances

The Orchestra has made several public appearances and has also appeared with the R. I. Philharmonic. Their spring concert will be held on May 23 at the Rhode Island School of Design, and they rehearse diligently every Saturday mornings as well as attending several extra rehearsals.

Officers and members of the board of directors of the Friends of the Youth Orchestra are almost all parents of the musicians.

Howard D. Silverman is president, Mrs. Walter Nelson, vice-president, Mrs. C. Edward Franklin is recording secretary; Mrs. Sanford Reffkin, corresponding secretary, and John T. McCarthy, treasurer.

Members of the board of directors are Joseph Andrade, Walter Axelrod, Mrs. Joseph Conte, Mrs. Barbara H. Einarsen, Henry M. Hill Dr. N. S. Rakatansky, Mrs. Joseph M. Ricci and Salvatore A. Toro.

Brandeis Women

Shown is the Annual meeting of the Brandeis University National Women's Committee which was held on Friday, May 4, at the Ledgemont Country Club. Francis Madeira, conductor of the Rhode Island Philharmonic, spoke to the group on "The Adventures of a Conductor".

Annual Meeting

Cleveland is also one of the strongholds of the present attempts to organize Jewish libraries on a nation-wide basis. Other strong movements are under way in such important Jewish centers as Chicago, Los Angeles, Boston and Baltimore, which are bestirring themselves to bring the advantages of organized and coordinated library service to the Jews of their communities. Philadelphia's situation is one in which the writer is directly involved and, therefore, qualified to describe in some detail.

Messrs. Joseph Yenish (who was president for two years) and Yaakov Levin of the Council of Jewish Education issued a call five years ago which resulted in the formation of the Jewish Library Association of Greater Philadelphia, with Sidney Galfand as its first president. Mrs. Mae Weine is the present incumbent. This Philadelphia group has up to now accomplished the following:

1. Edited and issued an excellent "Classification Scheme for Jewish Libraries," which was prepared by Mrs. Mae Weine with the help of her husband, Rabbi Max Weine of Camden, N.J.

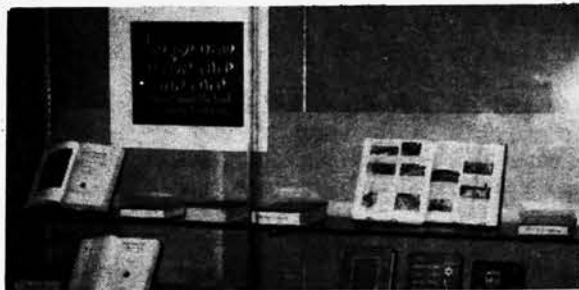

2. Established a set of standards similar to those of the Jewish Book Council and issued "Citations" to ten libraries in the Greater Philadelphia area which have met these standards. Mrs. Rebecca Guth, librarian of Keneseth Israel, is chairman of this committee.

3. Co-sponsored with other city-wide Jewish agencies such as Gratz College and the Y.M.H.A. four highly successful Jewish Book Month programs. These have included meetings addressed by such national figures as Harry Golden, Dr. Nelson Glueck, Maurice Samuel and Marie Syrkin, and a dramatization of Mrs. Byrd Salop's famous juvenile book, "The Kiddush Cup Who Hated Wine."

4. Conducted a book fair in conjunction with each of the above mentioned Jewish Book Month programs.

5. Sponsored a series of instructional seminars in cooperation with the Graduate School of Library Science, Drexel Institute of Technology, at which nonprofessional people who were interested in learning how to run a Jewish library were given instruction by professionally trained members of the association in such vital topics as book selection; classification and cataloging; mechanical processing; circulation, reference and publicity.

Some individual research papers of value to the field of Jewish librarianship are gradually finding their way into the literature of the field. Mrs. Mae Weine (President of the Jewish Library Association of Greater Philadelphia) wrote as her Master's thesis for Drexel a study of the condition of Jewish libraries in Philadelphia. One of her most significant findings was that it was detrimental to the avowed purpose of a Jewish library to stock books that have no Jewish value. Her recommendation was that Jewish libraries should concentrate their limited funds on the acquisition of a Judaica collection and not compete with the excellent public library system in the field of general literature. Her findings proved conclusively that a Jewish library that stocked non-Jewish materials, not only failed to achieve the ends for which it was established, but actually competed with itself for the interest of its readers.

Mrs. Joel Schwartz of Indiana University is presently working on a survey of Jewish libraries and it is to be hoped that her findings will soon be available nationally.

It is obvious from this sketchy summary of the Jewish library situation in the United States today that there is a movement toward a strong Jewish library organization both locally and nationally. Much more remains to be done and all persons interested in the development of Jewish libraries in the United States, should rouse themselves and join with the many other persons who are so valiantly trying to achieve the goal of well established Jewish libraries professionally staffed, open full time and serving the entire community. Only when this goal has been achieved can we even relax our efforts to the extent of asking "What can we do now to increase our service to the community?"

"BIKE OUTING"

The Jewish Community Center will sponsor an all-day "Bike Outing" for children and adults on Memorial Day, Wednesday, May 30, it was announced this week by Richard King, Center physical education director.

Participants in the program will leave the East Side Center building with their bicycles at 9 A.M. on Wednesday morning. They will travel by motorcade and truck to an undisclosed traffic-free area for the day's Participation in the program program, returning to the Center open to Center members and their friends. All children under 12 must be accompanied by adult. Participants must furnish their own lunches and beverages.

Advance registration will be required for the program and the program and the number of enrollments will be limited. To register Mr. King at UN 1-2674 maybe called.

To Install Officers Of Women's Council

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

HOW TO TELL THE 'TRUTH IN LENDING'

The "Truth In Lending" bill -- under which all lenders would be required by Federal law to tell you, the borrower, what you are being charged for credit in terms of dollars and cents and a simple annual percentage rate on your unpaid balance -- is apparently to stay bottled up in a Senate subcommittee for the rest of this session of Congress. So, you'll have to continue to police your own credit deals and see to it that you don't pay a lot more interest than you need to or suspect on your on-the-cuff purchases.

Most Americans think they know what they're paying in interest when they borrow to buy anything ranging from a toaster to a car or house; few do, and their own ignorance often costs them utterly unnecessary and startlingly big sums. Most claim to understand that nothing-down-take-a-lifetime-to-pay transactions are expensive; few do understand just how expensive this way of financing is.

The Truth In Lending bill isn't dead and, in fact, public hearings began in Washington on May 8. Originally proposed by Illinois' Democratic Senator Paul Douglas, the bill received a powerful push last month when President Kennedy included a plea for its passage in his catch-all "Protect the Consumer" message to Congress.

But the Douglas subcommittee is itself badly split over the bill, and opposition to it is acute among a broad cross-section of businessmen and financiers. No one publicly disagrees with the principle of full disclosure of what consumers are charged when they borrow. (Who would dare oppose truth in lending?) But opponents insist that in some types of instalment loans, it's impossible to express the charge in terms of a simple annual rate and many retailers couldn't comply with the law. They forecast that instead of helping consumers to shop more wisely for credit, it would confuse them more, for retailers would bury the charges in the prices of goods and services. With this sort of opposition, the odds are against this bill now.

Since, therefore, you'll probably have to be your own sleuth, here's a short guide through the bewildering maze of loans available to you today and the rates charged.

If you borrow $100 for a full year at 6 per cent and pay back $106, at the end of 12 months, your interest is what it seems to be -- a simple 6 per cent. You've had the use of the full $100 for 12 months, you pay your $6 at the end, the 6 per cent is the true rate.

If you borrow $100 for a year at 6 per cent, pay the $6 in advance and pay off the loan in 12 monthly instalments, your rate is roughly double the figure quoted. You pay off half your loan in six months, you have the use of an average of around $50, not $100, for the full year and you paid the $6 in advance. Your true rate of interest is a bit more than 11 1/2 per cent.

If in addition to the $6 you pay in advance on the above loan you pay a $2 investigation fee, your true rate is higher. You get $92, you pay back 12 monthly amounts of $8.33, your rate of interest over the year is 15.7 per cent.

If you borrow under one of the popular "11 1/2 per cent a month" arrangements -- or 2 or 2 1/2 or 3 per cent -- your interest is considerably higher. For 11 1/2 per cent a month multiplied by 12 months works out to 18 per cent a year, 2 per cent a month works out to 24 per cent a year, 2 1/2 per cent comes to 30 per cent and 3 per cent comes to 36 per cent over the year. And don't kid yourself on this.

Almost half of America's families use instalment credit, and this type of borrowing alone totals close to $43 billion. The invention of instalment financing has been one of the greatest contributions of our century to our high living standard and economic prosperity. Its benefits far outweigh its costs to consumers.

But, of course, there's no justification for your having to pay unnecessarily high rates for the privilege, no reason for you to be ignorant of what you're paying. Shop for credit with the care you shop for the car or TV set you buy with the credit. Compare costs on various types of loans before you sign a contract. You'll save plenty.

St. Louis Aims For Unprecedented Goal

ST. LOUIS — The board of directors of the Jewish Federation of St. Louis has established its campaign goal for 1962, calling for a fund-raising drive with an unprecedented goal of $1,815,000. At the same time, the board has elected Milton Frank as president of the federation. The goal will provide funds for nine local constituent agencies as well as for the United Jewish Appeal.

Frank, for years an active member of the Jewish Federation of St. Louis, was most recently a vice-president of the organization. He succeeds Saul A. Dubinsky, who has been elected as an honorary life member of the federation's board of directors. Irving Edison, chairman of the board of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, was elected to a vice-presidency of the federation.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY JEWS DO NOT GIVE ENOUGH?

By Beryl Segal

Recent studies in American Philanthropy in general, and in Jewish responses to appeals for works of mercy, reveal some interesting angles. I will share them with you. The studies, I might add, were made by a sober group. It is entirely without bias, and is not given to exaggerations. Furthermore, the group making the study had no axe to grind, and was utterly objective.

Here are some of the facts revealed in this study. Americans give annually to all types of appeals the sum of EIGHT BILLION DOLLARS.

The Jewish share in this sum is estimated to be about FOUR HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS.

Now, the Jews are about three percent of the general population. They give, therefore, about five percent of the moneys as compared to the American people.

Americans in general give only two percent of their annual income to all funds raised annually in the country. The Jews, on the other hand, give two and one-half percent of their income. That is a little bit higher than the general population's generosity.

However, just in case you might have pride in the philanthropy of the Jews, there is one thing in the survey that will deflate your ego somewhat. Jews are in business and in better paid professions. They are in a higher income bracket, and their percentage of giving should be higher than two-and-a-half percent.

We do not give enough to appeals for funds.

More facts came to light in the study.

Three groups are concerned with philanthropy and works of charity -- Protestants, Catholics, and Jews. They differ in their responses to appeals even more than they differ in their beliefs. And they are arranged according to their generosity.

Protestants are the big givers. They give to charities and give to cultural institutions. The Protestants were the sponsors of all our great Universities and they are still the main supporters of these Colleges and Universities. Furthermore, the Protestants have opened libraries and museums everywhere and are the chief patrons of them. They have shaped the face of our cultural life in America, and have paid for it.

But their philanthropy is one-sided. One cannot say that the philanthropic work is really done by all Protestants. Rather is it the work of Protestants who were rich, who are rich, and who carry on the tradition of philanthropy their fathers and grandfathers have started. The mass of Protestants are almost untouched by this enormous giving.

On the other hand, the Catholics give almost entirely through their church. The church is responsible for the collection and the distribution of funds. The schools, the universities, and all other works of philanthropy are in the hands of the church who manages them for the benefit of all Catholics. Very few Catholics who are rich give large sums of money to philanthropy, but very few, indeed, are the Catholics who do not give something, no matter how small the sum may be. Charity is the duty of every Catholic.

Now, the Jews do not give their money to any Temple or Synagogue for distribution. The days of personal and religious charity are long gone. Jews give primarily to social institutions to support the needy, for relief to Jewish needy overseas, and to Israel. On the other hand, Jewish philanthropy does not concern itself with cultural matters. We have only three Higher Institutions of Learning, and they are recent. We have founded no libraries, no museums, no orchestras, and only recently are we in the schools business to any great extent at all.

One other fact came to light in this study. The Catholic church has an enormous reservoir of voluntary workers. The Jews, on the other hand, have a negligible number of voluntary help. Most of their work is done by directors and officials. We have very little cause to be proud of our achievements in philanthropy. We do not give enough, and not all of us give anything altogether. There are thousands upon thousands of Jews who do not give to any appeals and fund collecting efforts, or who give only token contributions, far below their ability to give.

This is hard to take, but it is true. The study, as I said, was made by impartial people, and the results hurt somewhat, but they may also open our eyes, and perhaps our hearts too.

(Mr. Segal's opinions are his own. His views are not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

The Lyons Den

by Leonard Lyons

THE CAPTURE: Jack Hemingway was in N.Y. recently on a business trip from San Francisco, where he now is a stockbroker. We were at the Stork Club talking about his children and his father and the story, never told before, of his capture by the Germans.

It happened at St. Die, where Lt. Jack Hemingway and two French enlisted men reached what they thought would be their rendezvous point. Suddenly, they were hit by bullets. One man was killed. Hemingway and the other were wounded. The Nazi troops surrounded them, and their commander, an Austrian officer, approached.

The officer knelt to examine the wounded American officer. He reached for Hemingway's dog-tag and read the name. "Were you ever in Schrunz?" The Austrian asked, about his home town. Hemingway nodded. . . . Many years before, Ernest Hemingway had worked as a ski instructor in Schrunz, and his son Jack lived there with him for a while.

"Oh, yes, I remember you," said the Austrian officer. He ordered the wounded American taken to a hospital, and spared him the Nazi "examination" an OSS officer would get.

THE ATHLETES: They were gathered at one table in Shor's -- four great names in sports, all now retired: Eddie Arcaro and Sammy Renick, the jockeys; Ralph Kiner, the home-run slugger; and Charlie Conerly, the quarterback. It was Conerly who posed the question, regarding a famed golfer named "athlete of the year": "Is a golfer an athlete?"

Conerly said no golfer should be deemed an athlete: "I know there's pressure, but he plays alone and can take his time and rest whenever he wants to. A golfer is no more an athlete than a bowler is."

The others dissented, Kiner, as a batting star, felt a kinship toward any man who makes a living by hitting a ball with a stick. . . . Arcaro and Renick said that no athlete trains as much or as steadily as jockeys do. Sometimes as often as six races a day, six days a week, 52 weeks a year, battling with arms, legs and bodies.

THE SIMPLE LIFE: In the Bob Hope-Bing Crosby film, "Road to Hong Kong," Zsa Zsa Gabor appears briefly, in the role of a nurse. The director instructed Miss Gabor to dress simply. Zsa Zsa complied: The only accessories she wore were a $25,000 pair of earrings.

THE CHAMPION: Bobby Fischer, the chess champion, visited Norman Cousins of the Saturday Review, who asked if the youngster planned to go to college. "Nah," said Fischer. . . . "Why not?" Cousins asked. . . . Fischer shrugged: "I don't wanna do no homework." . . . Cousins continued: "But if you go to college, you'll get the chance to find out who you are." . . . "Oh, I KNOW who I am," said the brash young chess champion.

THE COMPETITORS: Herb Gardner, author of the new comedy hit, "A Thousand Clowns," refuses to show his new scripts to other authors: "A writer asking another writer for criticism is like an ingenu asking another ingenu. . . ."

MEMOS: The Hemingway manuscript selected by his widow for Fredric March to read at the White House dinner for Nobel Prize winners was from a sea story. Mrs. Hemingway chose it because of JFK's association with the sea. . . . The Cotillion Room's "8th Lively Art," a delight, was written by Eva Franklin. . . . Olivia de Havilland has written a charming first book about her life in Paris, "Every Frenchman Has One". . . . And Inez Robb's "Don't" (Continued on Page 10)

Charity Fund Launches Annual Campaign

Joseph W. Ress, on behalf of the General Jewish Committee, wished success to the Catholic Charity Fund of Rhode Island in a letter to Bishop Russell J. McVinney.

Bishop McVinney replied with the following letter:

Dear Mr. Ress:

It was good and generous of you as a friend and President of the General Jewish Committee of Providence, Inc. to send me your hearty endorsement of our current Catholic Charity Fund Appeal.

With you I rejoice to see the response of so many good Jewish friends who contribute to our annual Catholic appeal. With this kind of sympathetic cooperation, who shall say that our community is rent asunder by a grand canyon of ideological differences. A more correct appraisal of our plural society of Rhode Island would be a quotation from Saint Augustine: "In necessary things unity, in doubtful things liberty, in all things charity."

Again, a thousand thanks for your goodness, and very good wishes.

Sincerely yours,

Mrs. Seefor, along with every other past president, is active with the Chapter even now Mrs. Seefor has the chapter as her first love and relates how far they have progressed with their work with Hillel at Brown... where they sponsor monthly brunches for the students and on high holidays the women do hostessing work there. During this past Passover Holiday the women went over to Hillel and served the youngsters. When they are permanently in the new Hillel House the Chapter will serve as hostess to the students on a continuing basis.

Proud that the Chapter she founded also sparked the first Women's Intergroup Conference in 1960 which was held to "Promote Better Rhode Island Community Relations", Mrs. Seefor, is proud of the organizations she is a part of... she beams over the fun she had working for the Red Cross during the war and of the many poems that she has written throughout the years concerning all phases of her life it seems only appropriate to present one of her poems as an example of her feelings:

WHAT IS B'NAI B'RITH?

By C. Minnie Seefor

We of B'nai B'rith have a message to give
To all world Jewry wherever they live
A century of service to the young and the old
The needy, the sick, the homeless, the cold,
Founded in Manhattan by twelve liberal minded Jews
Serving all humanity were their unselfish views,
Philanthropy and Harmony 'twas their aim to instill
And expound the principles of tolerance and good will
Our program is vast and broad in scope
To unite our brethren is our everlasting hope,
There are Hillel Foundations and the A Z A
And our B'nai B'rith Girls serving the youth of today
There's Anti-Defamation our agency of defense
Conference of Christians and Jews — our recompense,
Our creedless giving, particularly Red Cross
In every disaster we ease victims' loss,
Our veterans support is most openhanded
And our assistance to refugees wherever they are landed,
The Hospitals we sponsor — tubercular and rheumatic
Our contributions to Israel are ever emphatic,
Home for Aged and Orphanages too
At the Mayo Clinic a great service we do,
To all underprivileged we extend aid forthwith

"Right there, you get the stereotype of a Negro as being prone to succumb to temptation, prone to be more immoral than the rest of us, and prone to eat watermelon."

Fortunately, he commented, this kind of example is rare.

Often, Dr. Olson said, a conservative Protestant author will use the Reformation dispute with the Roman Catholic Church as a staging area from which to attack the Catholic Church of today. From the curriculum surveyed, he said, "the Roman Catholic Church presents to the Protestants the greatest threat to the values and doctrines that Protestants cherish."

Observing that an editor could not be asked to eliminate everything that would be objectionable to another faith group, Dr. Olson said:

"Protestant teachings that have to be reconciled with a given Roman Catholic view of the Reformation or with a Jewish position concerning the New Testament would be an aban-

Do You Realize...

... that there are many ways in which payment of life insurance dollars can be arranged to meet particular needs? For instance, a policy bought for the protection of the family might be used to supplement retirement income if the children are grown up and the policy is no longer needed for its original purpose.

TO DECIDE ALLOCATIONS

A meeting of the Board of Directors of the General Jewish Committee will be held on the evening of May 15 at the GJC headquarters, 203 Strand Building.

On the agenda for the meeting commendations of the Allocations Committee. The Allocations Committee, under the chairmanship of GJC president Joseph W. Ress, has been working for the past several months studying the requests of the beneficiary agencies of the GJC.

A work book of 250 pages prepared by Joseph Galkin, executive director, and the staff of the General Jewish Committee was used to provide factual data concerning the needs and budgets of the various agencies. Some of this information was obtained from the budget digests of the Council of Jewish Federation and Welfare Funds, directly from the organizations seeking GJC support and from GJC records of experience with these organizations.
