All-Day High School For Jewish Girls

AN ALL-DAY JEWISH HIGH school for girls will be opened in Philadelphia in time to enroll students for the next academic year, according to an announcement by Bernard Levy, president of Beth Jacob Schools. The organization now conducts three other all-day, secular-religious schools in this city.

The Beth Jacob All-Day High School for Girls will be conducted at the Philadelphia YM-YWHA Building here. In addition to teaching courses prescribed by State and City educational regulations, the school will also provide traditional Orthodox religious training, including intensive courses in Hebrew studies, the Bible, Prophets, and Jewish laws and customs.

Additionally, there will be emphasis on physical education. Out-of-town girls will be accepted as students, and all prospective students will have to pass special entrance examinations, Mr. Levy said.

Women's Councils Find Jobs For Aged

COMMITTEES WHICH FIND jobs for older people are part of the programs of the National Council of Jewish Women in Cleveland, Detroit and Atlanta.

The Cleveland committee works closely with the Cleveland Jewish Vocational Service with 30 volunteers visiting the offices of businesses throughout the city to find out about job openings to sell employers on hiring people over 50. Since the Cleveland committee was set up in 1955, it has made 1,000 placements.

The JVS professional staff backs up the volunteer efforts by screening lists of employers interviewing and testing older people for job qualifications and doing job analyses for employers.

Toronto Rabbinical Fellowship Formed

FORMATION OF THE Toronto Rabbinical Fellowship for Community Affairs was announced by Rabbi Jerald Bobrow, Secretary of the new organization.

Members of the Orthodox, Conservative and Reform rabbinic have joined as charter members of the group whose announced purpose is "to establish close personal contact between the members to afford them opportunities for the exchange of views and to make it possible to act together in areas of communal concern." The organization does not purport to be a Bet Din. Co-chairmen for the first year are Rabbis W. Gunther Plaut, Stuart E. Rosenberg and Walter S. Wurzburger.

Jeffrey Berger Gives Outline For Future Legislative Program

By Celia Zuckerberg

"To stimulate Rhode Island's economic growth; to modernize the state government; and to promote the welfare of all Rhode Islanders," are the purposes behind Jeffrey Berger's "Eight Point Legislative Program."

Becoming interested in the legislative program of the assembly after he saw "the bad job the General Assembly did," Jeffrey, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Berger of Westwood Avenue in Cranston, drew up a list of points (originally there were seven, which he expanded to eight when he included the idea of a city-state) which he thought would be of help to the people and the state of Rhode Island.

After he had called George McDonald, news reporter of the Journal-Bulletin, about his Voice of Young Rhode Island program, and after investigating the past record of the General Assembly, he became quite enthused about the idea and has received encouragement from many people.

Although he believes in the policies of the Democratic Party, and approves of those in office nationally, locally he says he would probably have to call himself a progressive, because even though he doesn't go along with the Democrats locally he still does not believe in the Republican policies and so cannot be called a Republican.

Of the local Democrats, Jeffrey says, "They may be leaning to the policies of their party, but they don't do anything once they get in. All they do is bring in a group of political demagogues, and sit around with their private expense accounts.

The program says—"A productive legislature should fully consider the following:

1. Establishment of a Rhode Island Industrial Growth Commission under the Rhode Island Development Council. The functions of such a temporary Commission would include: a) productive national advertising campaign carried on in a massive scale; b) surveys of new industries located in Rhode Island to find their exact reasons for locating here; c) surveys of businesses leaving Rhode Island and of businesses previously considering Rhode Island for location but deciding against this state (these surveys to be the basis of policy revision); d) surveys of industrial states with rapid growth. The results of all surveys would be forwarded to the RIIGC itself for study. Later, (preferably no more than six months after the start of the RIIGC operations) specific recommendations on legislative action would be sent to the governor and to the members of the General Assembly. The ultimate aim of the RIIGC is to promote a rapid increase in industrial growth in Rhode Island by adding many new incentives to business location here.

2. A supplemental state appropriation for worker-retraining.

3. First, passing a statute denoting when males and females are physically fit. Second and primarily, making it mandatory that legally physically fit males and females (the latter without family responsibilities) on relief roles work at minor state jobs for the privilege of receiving welfare money. This measure would stop featherbedding claimants from taking welfare

Leaders Show Optimism On Jewish Life

CINCINNATI — A ringing affirmation of faith in the future of American Jewry was offered here by two American Jewish leaders in replies before the plenary session of the National Community Relations Advisory Council to utterances of Prime Minister Ben Gurion of Israel.

"American Jewish life has never been more visible, more viable and more vibrant than it is today," Rabbi Maurice Eisendrath, president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations told the delegates. "This is our best answer to those prophets of doom such as the Prime Minister of Israel and others who negate the American Jewish future."

"These negotiators of the diaspora misread both American democracy and the American Jew," he said. "While the people of the State of Israel and American Jewry are indissolubly linked as an historic people, recent highly publicized misunderstandings demonstrate that we have a long way to go in building the kind of reciprocal cultural, religious and spiritual bridge which is essential to our mutual survival."

TEL AVIV — The Near East International Fair that opened last week in Tel Aviv is by far the most spectacular we have been given to see here so far.

The last Near East Fair was held in Tel Aviv — on the same grounds — 26 years ago. It then coincided with the outbreak of the Arab hostilities which continued for three full years. Then came World War II, followed by the Yishuv's struggle against the restrictions imposed by the Mandatory regime on Jewish Immigration and land purchase. Then came partition and the War of Liberation.

One may wonder why it took 14 years since the establishment of the State until the Near East Fair was brought back to life. However, judging by the effort and amount of work that preceded the opening of the present Fair, one can appreciate the reasons behind the delay. Moreover, one is glad there was no haste, but instead a mature approach guided by the realization that producing the exhibits comes before producing a show.

The Israeli part of the Fair makes for an impressive display

Aquit Orthodox Jews In Kidnapping Charge

JERUSALEM — Rabbi Benjamin Mendelsohn and three other Orthodox Jews were acquitted in District Court here last week of charges of complicity in the 1959 kidnapping of Yossele Schumacher, when the prosecutor repudiated the testimony of his chief witness as completely false.

Yossele, who is now about 10, was abducted allegedly by ultra-Orthodox persons who feared that his parents may not give him a religious education. He has been missing since 1959, although Israeli authorities have been searching for him on three continents.

The embarrassed prosecutor, Ezra Hadaya, asked for and received dismissal of the charges against the four members of the Agudat Israel collective village, Karmemut. He said his witness, Yitzhak Kugler, had called him and confessed that his testimony against the rabbi and the others was "a connection of fact and fancy." The court promptly ordered that Kugler, a former member of Karmemut, be tried for perjury. The prosecutor conceded that his case had been based mainly on the testimony of Kugler.

The prosecutor told the court he also would ask cancellation of the proceedings against Rabbi Mendelsohn on a separate charge of kidnapping and holding another youth, Yisrael Vinik. The rabbi had testified that the boy was brought to Karmemut after his divorced mother and her common-law husband had reached an agreement to try to obtain a loan for housing from Orthodox sources with a threat to enter the child in a Christian mission.

Members of the Agudat executive told the press that a Parliamentary probe would be sought because of the "unusual zeal" evinced by police in arresting the four Karmemut members "on the flimsiest evidence."

Near East International Fair Opens In Tel Aviv

of strides made by Israel's economy. There is unveiled an industry of wide and varied range of products, from the kitchenware to complex electronics, from simple tools to heavy machinery. Over 600 Israeli enterprises are participating in the Fair, covering every field of industry.

Nowhere before was one so able to see at a glance the achievements of the past 14 years. Indeed, the Israeli visitor at the Fair appears no less impressed than is the visitor from outside — as if he saw it all for the first time.

The daring constructions, the dazzling lighting effects, the hovering cableway, the amphitheater, the giant ferris wheel of the Luna Park — it all makes the Fair grounds a place unmatched in the short history of the State and one that can stand its ground in the exhibition world.

But surely the most spectacular aspect of the Fair is the number of participating countries from abroad — 32 countries, including the U. S., France, Britain, The Netherlands, Swe-

Ask Action On Nazi Violence In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES — The DAIA, the representative organization of Argentine Jewry, this week sent an appeal to President Jose Maria Guido asking him to take "immediate and effective repressive and preventive action" against "nazi-fascist bands" responsible for recent anti-Jewish violence which culminated last weekend in a brutal attack on a Jewish girl by neo-nazi hoodlums who carved a swastika on her breast with a razor.

The DAIA cited the incident as an example of police laxity in a mounting number of cases of violence against Jews in Argentina. The girl, who was identified as Graciela Narcisa Sirota, 19, a student at the science faculty of Buenos Aires University, was accosted last week by three hoodlums who stepped from an automobile and knocked her unconscious.

When she regained consciousness, she said, she was forced to lie on a table in an unfamiliar room where the hoodlums removed her clothes and carved the swastika on her right breast with a razor. The ruffians also inflicted severe burns on her body with the ends of lighted cigarettes, and told her: "For your guilt, Eichmann was killed."

Miss Sirota, who fainted from the pain of the ordeal, said she later awoke in the street in a suburb of the city. The girl's parents immediately notified the police, but their complaint was not accepted until two days later when a police physician corroborated her story.

In its protest telegram to Guido, the DAIA declared, "We beg to denounce to Your Excellency this fact of unheard-of brutality which follows a series of earlier attacks which were not punished. On the same day, a Jewish restaurant was machine-gunned for the second time. Earlier acts of vandalism are evidence of the total and intolerable lack of protection" suffered by the Jewish community.

"We request immediate and effective repressive and preventive action against the nazi-fascist bands which offend freely human dignity and attempt to destroy democracy and injure irreparably Argentine prestige," the telegram concluded.

den, Turkey, Brazil, Finland, Yugoslavia, Poland, Italy, Belgium, Japan, Norway, plus 10 African states.

Arab Skulduggery

Rightly Finance Minister Levi Eshkol stressed the significance of exhibition of Israel's young industry among the products of veteran nations (adding quite correctly that the Fair should, before all, help Israel take stock of its achievements and serve as a spur to greater efficiency.)

It is no secret that the Arab League has been hard at work to prevent many of the countries from participating in the Fair. Both persuasion and threats were used, threats of reprisal and economic boycott. The pressure was directed at powers great and small, and with special force at Asian and African states.

It failed. From among the pressured countries, only Ghana and Burma yielded, after having announced their intention to participate. Regrettably as this may be, the fact remains that the vast majority did not bow to the Arab blackmail. It is an encouraging omen.

More than 75 per cent of all persons killed in automobile accidents last year were in cars traveling in a straight direction, states the Automobile Legal Association.

Catholic Views Draw Criticism From Bostonians

BOSTON — Two prominent Jewish spiritual leaders, Rabbi Joseph S. Shubow and Rabbi Samuel J. Fox, took sharp issue with an editorial in The Pilot, official organ of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Boston, on a proposed Sunday law amendment that would permit Sabbath observers, Jews and Seventh Day Adventists to do business on Sunday.

The Catholic organ charged that approval of the amendment by the Massachusetts Senate had been in response to "pressure that will destroy the Sunday observance in favor of those—principally Jews and Adventists—who worship on Saturday." At the same time the publication noted that the amendment was "both unjust and offensive" and that it would "leave it to others to say how a carefully organized minority has done its work to destroy the Sunday."

The editorial said the amendment "clearly gives commercial advantages to one minority in the community while it penalizes another." On the opposite page The Pilot carried "for the interest of our readers, the names of those who so unwisely supported the bill."

Rabbi Shubow, spiritual leader of Temple B'nai Moshe, said he was "aghast at the harsh tone of The Pilot's statement." Rabbi Fox, chairman of the Social Action Commission of the Massachusetts Council of Rabbis, termed the amendment an act of "freedom and equality to every religious belief." Sabbatarians, he declared, "are certainly owed the privilege of opening six days a week instead of restricting them to a four-and-one-half economy." He rejected the claim that professional lobbyists had been working for the amendment.

Center Camp Season Opens

The Jewish Community Center of will opened its 1962 summer day camp season on Monday morning with an overflow registration, it was announced this week by Joseph Gladstone chairman of the JCC Camping Committee.

Nearly 300 boys and girls, ranging from kindergarten age 13 years arrived at the Camp Centerland grounds, at 10 A.M. on Monday.

A staff of more than sixty counselors and specialists were on hand to greet the youngsters and start them immediately on a round of camp activities. Heading the staff are Mark Forman, camp director and Mrs. Evelyn Zisserson assistant director and division head for Camp Jaycee.

Enrollments for Camp Jaycee, the Center's junior day camp and Centerland, for second graders through 11 years, are completely filled for both July and August. Late registrants are being placed on a waiting list and will be accepted only if openings occur during the month of August. Camp Adventure, the Center's senior day camping program, also has a substantial near-capacity registration and is expected to be completely filled for the month of August.

The Center camp season includes two-four week periods beginning Monday and ending on Monday, July 30. The camp week is Monday through Friday with a daily program from 10 A.M. until 4 P.M.

Extensive renovations have been made at the camp property and preparation for the overflow registration. New indoor areas have been developed and renovated to take care of rainy day programming. The crafts department and nature areas have been expanded to accommodate the overflow reg-

Jews Complain Of Conversions

CASABLANCA — The voice of the organized Moroccan Jewish community, complained in a special issue here this week that many young Jews have been forced to conversion to Islam. David Amar, one of the top leaders of the Jewish community, demanded in an article that the rabbinate take a firm stand on the issue, and press Government authorities to prohibit the forcible conversion of Jewish youth.

The Deputy Minister of Health of the Moroccan Government demonstrated the Government's official friendship for the Jewish community by presiding at a meeting held here by OSE, the Organization for the Protection of the Health of Jews. Among those present was the Governor of Casablanca.

All three of the Center's day camp programs are fully accredited by the American Camping Association on the basis of their high standards of staff, program, facilities, and administration.

Although no visitors are permitted at the camp grounds during the regular camping season, two special "Parents' Day" will be scheduled during the year.

Parents interested in obtaining more information about the Center's summer day camps may call Mr. Eisenstein at UN-10264.

Children Play While the Sun Shines

Little children think only of today. They play outside if the sun shines. They don't plan what they will do tomorrow if it rains. Today is enough for children to think about but you have to think of their tomorrow, to plan and protect it for them.

You can protect your children's tomorrow with a Sun Life Junior Adjustable insurance plan. Specially designed for children, the insurance under this plan increases at age 21 to five times its original amount with no increase in premium.

Let me tell you about this worth while policy at your convenience.

Contributions by employees of Miriam Hospital, including nurses, technicians and other personnel, to the Miriam Hospital Building Fund has reached a total of $14,089, bringing the amount subscribed in the current fund raising campaign to $2,062,675. The employee figure represents gifts from 249 members of the hospital personnel for an average of $57 per contribution. Bernard Segal, hospital pharmacist and chairman of the employee division, checks over results to date with committee members Mrs. Selma S. Newman, Mrs. Adelaide R. Lewis, and Frank Viara, all of whom work at Miriam Hospital and are conducting the solicitation among their fellow employees. Alexander Rumpler, general chairman of the over-all fund raising effort for the Miriam Hospital Building Fund, expressed gratification at the response from workers at the hospital. "It is heartwarming and significant that the hospital family thinks so highly of the plans for the building program at Miriam that they are giving at a sacrificial level to translate these fine plans into reality," Mr. Rumpler said. "These men and women are helping to set an example which will be an important factor in eventually reaching our $5,000,000 ultimate goal." Mrs. Ida E. Steele, Assistant Director of Nursing Service, was not present when the picture was taken.

House Unit "Disturbed" Over Bias

WASHINGTON—The House Foreign Affairs Committee has taken vigorous exception to official Administration tolerance of Arab discrimination against American Jews, publication of the report of the Committee's Foreign Assistance Bill showed last week.

"The Committee was deeply disturbed to receive, during its consideration of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1962, evidence that certain foreign nations to make distinctions between American citizens because of color, religion or race in the granting of personal or commercial access and in the exercise of other rights available to American citizens," the report stated. It labeled such discrimination totally unwarranted and repugnant to our principles."

The report characterized as a "strong expression" the amendment by Rep. Leonard Farbstein (D., N.Y.) which the Committee wrote into the bill. The amendment, which was included in the measure as cleared by the House Rules Committee of House debate, reiterates Congressional opposition to Arab discrimination and calls for adherence to the principle of equal rights for all Americans in U.S. negotiations with foreign powers under terms of the aid bill. The amendment provides also for the filing of regular annual reports by the Secretary of State to Congress on steps being taken to counter Arab discrimination.

Rep. Emanuel Celler (D.-N.Y.) told the House of Representatives that a majority of its members—232—have now attached their names to a resolution he sponsored last month congratulating Israel on its 14th anniversary and calling for an Arab-Israel peace.

Celler told the House that an additional 61 members signed the statement subsequent to its original sponsorship by 171 members. He placed in the record the full list of the names of all the signatories who represented every section of the nation.

U. S. To Probe Nazi "Killer"

WASHINGTON — U. S. Immigration authorities will make a "routine check" into the case of A. L. Impulavichus, former Lithuanian Army officer charged with collaboration in Nazi mass murders, who now resides in Philadelphia. State Department sources indicated today.

The Soviet Union has asked for his extradition.

In the State Department's view the Soviet motive in requesting the extradition was to agitate propaganda designed to embarrass the United States while diverting public opinion from Russia's own recent manifestations of anti-Semitism.

The department doubted that Impulavichus was guilty as charged but a routine re-investigation may be held by immigration officers. However, department sources said, even if he turns out to be a Nazi who killed many Jews United States policy would prevent his return to Russia because he might not receive a fair trial.

Washington would then face the problem of what to do with him. Authorities said it was doubtful that the United States would try him itself because of jurisdictional technicalities. Only the Soviet Union has applied for his extradition.

The Soviet Union has accused the former Lithuanian army officer of directing the shooting of several thousand Jews during World War II.

The extradition of Impulavichus was asked in a note handed to the United States Embassy in Moscow. The note said that an investigation had established that in the 1941-43 period, Impulavichus had supervised mass shootings of Soviet citizens, including the Jews who were shot in the former Kaunas fortress in Lithuania.

In Philadelphia, a daughter, asked about the charges said that all she knew about her father's past was that he had been a major in the Lithuanian army.

Jewish Life In Vilna Dwindles For 15,000

VILNA — Little Jewish life is left in Vilna, once the center of Jewish culture in Eastern Europe, the New York Times reported from the Lithuanian capital.

Yiddish is still widely spoken and Jews may be found in high places. Genrikas O. Zimanas, editor of the Lithuanian language newspaper of the Republic's Communist Party, is one of the few Soviet Jews in such a high party post.

He said there was "very little left" of Jewish life in Vilna "compared with pre-war days." It had 80,000 Jews, about 40 per cent of its total population, before their extermination in World War II by the Germans.

Few Former Residents

Only 1,000 of the city's Jewish population of 15,000 are former Vilna residents. Others come from elsewhere in Lithuania and the Soviet Union.

In contrast to the pre-war period, when Vilna was part of Poland, there are no Yiddish newspapers, no Yiddish-instruction schools left. Mr. Zimanas, who taught in a Yiddish school in Kaunas before World War II, said the small number of Jews left in Lithuania did not justify re-establishment of such institutions. He added that Jews in general preferred the mainstream of Soviet life to their former cultural isolation.

Zimanas told the New York Times that the Yiddish literary bi-monthly "Sovietish Heimland," which began publication in Moscow last year, helped to fill the need for a medium of cultural expression for Yiddish-speaking Jews in the Soviet Union.

Yiddish Preserved

Zimanas discounted fears that Yiddish culture would gradually disappear in the Soviet in the absence of Yiddish schools. "Yiddish culture will not disappear. The weight of its tradition is too great for that."

The talk turned to anti-Semitism and publicity given to recent trials of Jewish speculators. Zimanas denied that there is any connection between the two. "Jews traditionally have

"In general, all this talk about anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union does not bother me, because we know that there is no official anti-Semitism."

Aid To Israel For '61

WASHINGTON — United States development fund loans to Israel for fiscal 1961 totaled $16,000,000—an increase of $1,000,000 over the previous year—President Kennedy reported to Congress this week.

But the President reported that U.S. technical assistance to Israel was reduced in fiscal 1961 to $1,000,000 as compared with $1,400,000 the previous year. The reduction in technical assistance, the President said, was the result of "the growth of technical competence in Israel."

President Kennedy's references to Israel were contained in his annual report to Congress on the U. S. Mutual Security Program. The lawmakers were also told that in addition to U.S. agricultural commodities for Israel totaling $25,900,000 during the last fiscal year, U.S. advisers and technicians continue to serve in Israel on highway and railway projects, as well as on programs for mineral and industrial development.

The report showed no U.S. military aid was provided to Israel in fiscal 1961, although four of her Arab neighbors—Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Lebanon and Iraq—did receive such aid. Lebanon received $172,000 worth of military aid from the U.S.A. in fiscal year 1961, and was allocated $107,000 in that category for fiscal 1962. Jordan got military aid valued at $3,470,000 for fiscal 1961, and $1,511,000 for fiscal 1962. Iraq's share was $32,000 in fiscal 1961, and $40,000 for fiscal 1962.

No figure for military aid to Saudi Arabia was mentioned in the President's report. Defense Department circles said they did not know why such a figure was omitted, but thought it was possible that Saudi Arabia's military aid share had been in the form of purchases, rather than in grants as applied to the other Arab neighbors of Israel.

Tried To Get Razor Blade To Eichmann

TEL AVIV — Former Nazis had tried twice to smuggle a razor blade to the late Adolf Eichmann while he awaited hanging at Ramleh Prison, it was revealed here last week by Attorney General Gideon Hausner, chief prosecutor of the Eichmann trial.

In one case, Hausner disclosed, Germans now in Australia who lived formerly in the Palestinian colonies of Sarona and Wilhelma, sent Eichmann a postcard advising him to interest himself in philately, and to be sure to examine the stamp on the card. The Israeli security officers followed the advice — examining the stamp and finding a thin blade under the postage.

Another effort was made to get a blade to Eichmann by inserting the thin-edged metal between the wrappings of a box of matches. The senders had apparently hoped Eichmann would kill himself with the blade to avoid hanging.

One of Eichmann's fictions, which was exposed as false after his arrest, was that he had been born at the Sarona settlement in pre-Israel Palestine. The Germans who had settled both Sarona and Wilhelma left the country immediately after Israel was established in 1948, most of them moving en masse to Australia.

Soviet Organ
Hits Johnson
As Pro-Israel

WASHINGTON — Dr. Joseph E. Johnson, the United Nations Palestine Conciliation Commission's special envoy to the Middle East, who is seeking to ease the Arab-Israeli impasse over the Arab refugee problem, is virtually a representative of the U.S. State Department and a "traveling salesman for the ruling Israeli circles," according to an official Soviet publication disseminated here this week by Soviet diplomats.

The charges against Dr. Johnson, who returned last month from his second visit to the Middle East capitals, were printed in New Times, an official Soviet propaganda organ published at Moscow in eight languages, including Russian and English.

In its article, New Times set forth as its own the Arab version of the refugee problem, by stating that the UN General Assembly had adopted a resolution favoring the "repatriation of the Arab refugees to Israel." (New Times, like the Arab spokesmen, ignored the fact that the resolution—adopted in 1948—also mentioned resettlement of the Arab refugees as an alternative to "repatriation.")

Points to Repatriation

"The are General Assembly decisions," the Soviet organ declared, "which foresee repatriation of the Arab refugees to their native places. However, the Government of Israel, supported by the United States, stubbornly refuses to carry out these decisions."

The Palestine Conciliation Commission, composed of representatives of the United States, France and Turkey, wants to impose upon the Arab countries a solution of the problem which is clearly contrary to the decisions of the General Assembly.

Johnson is attempting to influence the Arabs against complying with the General Assembly decisions. However, his efforts during the last year have failed. This time, the Arabs did not overlook the fact that Johnson visited Israel first on his trip. Johnson is not only carrying out a mission for the American State Department, whose weakness for Israel is very well known, but he virtually assumes the role of an unofficial traveling salesman for the Israeli ruling circles by acting in their interest. Although Johnson makes optimistic statements, there is no basis whatsoever, so far, for such statements."

Unsurfaced roads in the United States total 28 per cent of the total roads, or slightly under one million miles of all streets and roads in the U. S., states the Automobile Legal Association.

Jerusalem Border Sees Flare Up

JERUSALEM — New incidents were reported on Israel's long-tranquill borders, including a sudden shooting affray in the non-man's-land near Jerusalem in which Jordanian troops killed one Israeli and wounded three. The other incident was a renewal of Syrian shooting at a worker near that border.

The shooting near the Mandelbaum Gate separating new from old Jerusalem was the first in four years. It was considered an isolated incident. Israel charged, in a complaint to the Mixed Armistice Commission, that Jordanians shot first. Jordan said Israeli patrol troops opened fire.

Syrians opened fire on an Israeli tractor working on a land project in the Huleh area for the second time in two weeks. Israeli forces returned the fire and the tractor driver continued work.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

HOW TO SPUR BUSINESS PROTECT U. S. DOLLAR TOO

Never before have the U.S. Government's financial policy-makers had to face these two awesome problems simultaneously:

How to help spur a sluggish economy at home through bold actions which would deliberately create big budget deficits and, at the same time, make it clear that we are not pursuing financially irresponsible programs so our foreign creditors will not withdraw the enormous totals of short-term funds they hold in our markets and by so doing, undermine the U.S. dollar.

Every one of us is going to be affected by the decisions made on how to solve these problems and you cannot shrug off this story as too "technical." Your job, your paycheck, your cost of living, the value of your savings nestegg -- all these and other matters of closest bread-and-butter interest to you are at stake in what the Administration, Congress and the Federal Reserve System decide is wisest to do.

Here is a new, hitherto untried approach being intensively studied at the highest levels in Washington now. It well may be the shape of the future.

(1) To spur our economy at home, vote across-the-board tax cuts for both individuals and corporations, try to offset the tax losses through some "loophole closing" but acknowledge the tax slashes will add heavily to the budget deficit in the 1963 fiscal year which began July 1.

(2) To protect the U.S. dollar by preventing a devastating outflow of the "hot money" foreign creditors hold in our markets, follow credit policies that the world's central bankers recognize as traditional and appropriate in a period of major budget deficits. Specifically, as the tax cuts created larger deficits, the Federal Reserve System would adopt increasingly restrictive credit policies, "easy money" would fade into "tighter money," interest rates would rise.

This would not only reassure our foreign creditors who hold a massive $23-$24 billion of short-term funds in our markets that we're following orthodox money policies in a period of budget deficits. It also would make them want to keep their funds here to earn the attractive interest rates that would be offered on short-term obligations of the U.S. Government.

In even simpler terms, this is what would be involved:

Fiscal policy would take over as the key stimulant to the economy -- meaning tax cuts, budget deficits, far more money being poured into the economy by the government than is being taken out in taxes.

Monetary policy would simultaneously take over as the key guardian of the U.S. dollar -- meaning that while credit would be available to take care of the needs of our businessmen, homebuilders, consumers, etc., the cost of the borrowing would rise moderately and interest rates on the highly priced short-term securities of the U.S. Government would be high enough to hold "hot money" in the United States.

These are the policies the world's central bankers are telling our officials to follow to solve our problems. Say they to us, in effect, "We don't worry about budget deficits you cause by tax reductions to give incentives to your businessmen and consumers to spend. We have done this ourselves and found it works. Nor do we worry about a new inflation spiral in your country's environment now. What we worry about much more is another U.S. recession which would make your dollar's position intolerable and drag us all down. But if you go in for aggressive stimulation of your economy by fiscal (tax) policy, you also must go in for more restrictive monetary (credit) policy. You can't run huge deficits, keep money easy too and maintain the world's confidence in the U.S. dollar."

These are about the only significant policies we haven't tried to date to solve our problems. We've not used tax cuts to spur the economy. We've not permitted money to tighten in a time of sluggish business; on the contrary, easy money has been a major way we've tried to spur business.

These are the policies which could be answers to both faster economic growth and a stable dollar -- if those in charge of the policies can explain them plainly enough at home and abroad so that their aims are not thwarted at the start by misunderstanding and misinterpretation.

Youth Can't View Films on Nazis

BREMEN — West Germans are forbidding their children to watch television or films which depict the facts of German history under the Nazi regime, according to a survey held here.

The study showed that many young Germans, between 10 and 15 years old, were ordered by their parents not to watch the series of 14 TV programs, aired last year, entitled "The Third Reich."

The Bremen broadcasting authority added that German television and film coverage of the Adolf Eichmann trial in Israel had also been "verboten."

The Lyons Den

by Leonard Lyons

BIRTHDAY NOTE: Recently New York really was a Summer Festival: Richard Rodgers' 60th birthday was celebrated with special fetes by ASCAP, Juilliard, Columbia University and the Philharmonic Symphony Society. He's the most performed songwriter in the nation.

At the beginning of his career his impatient mother said, "Dick, why don't you write something like 'Yes, We Have No Bananas'?" The composer patiently replied, "It takes a very special talent to write 'Yes, We Have No Bananas.' Only the men who wrote it could have written it. I couldn't."

Every Rodgers musical since "Oklahoma!" has opened with an advance sale of over $1,000,000. "It's nice and necessary these days," he says, "but I have a different dream -- to open without a dime advance, win rave notices and THEN be swamped with millions in ticket orders."

When he started, Rodgers considered changing his name to "Rogers." His father objected, and the songwriter said, "But the pronunciation would be the same. It's just that Rodgers is an uncommon way of spelling it".... His father replied, "Dick, I expect you to become so famous that 'Rogers' will become the uncommon way of spelling it."

He spelled his name differently only once: Producer Dwight Wiman held a contest for a title for his Rodgers and Hart musical. Wiman announced that the winning title, "Higher and Higher," had been submitted by a young Hindu student, "Sregord Drahcir."

Deems Taylor helped get Rodgers elected to the American Institute of Arts and Letters. Although Rodgers was the first composer to have four shows running on Broadway simultaneously, a classicist opposed his election because Rodgers didn't orchestrate his own works. Taylor said, "By that measure, Stephen Foster would have been barred."

Oscar Hammerstein II was elected to membership before Rodgers was. Taylor voted for Hammerstein, then told the Institute, "In England they reversed it -- Sullivan was knighted before Gilbert."

In describing the difference between Rodgers and Hart, and Rodgers and Hammerstein, the composer said, "With Larry, the music was written first. With Oscar, the lyrics were written first".... Rodgers added, "When I was with Larry Hart, people would

HOLLYWOOD, CALIFORNIA-- Mazeltof to the biggest Wolfe in Hollywood -- songwriter L. Wolfe Gilbert -- and his beloved wife, Rose, on the recent arrival of their grandson, Steven Mark Fainaru. Child's mother is Ellen. Father is Robert, a junior accountant. This is their first youngster.

Known to his best friends as "Wolfie," Mr. Gilbert wrote one of the most interesting Tin Pan Alley books of all times, "Without Rhyme or Reason" (Vantage). In it you learn such interesting items as:

Carrie Jacobs Bond, despite the beautiful songs she wrote, earned little. Eddie Cantor always wanted to improve. His pet expression was: "That's swell, but . . ." Beginner Gilbert quoted Al

Jolson $7 for three parodies, but Jolie said he could buy parodies for $1.50 a piece.

Producer Winnie Sheehan described a young performer who sang one of Gilbert's songs as "bloody awful" but Wolfe predicted the lad would be a star one day. The vocalist's name: Dick Powell.

If you're not familiar with tunes written by Wolfe Gilbert, they include: "Waiting for the Robert E. Lee," "I Miss My Swiss," "Oh, Katharina," "The Peanut Vendor," "Ramona," "My Mother's Eyes," "Jeannine, I Dream of Lilac Time," and others, many, many others.

NOW TO OTHER CHATTER MATTER . . . Don Trenner, Les Brown's pianist for 8 years and Bob Hope's accompanist on all his international trips, will baton an orchestra for the new "Steve Allen Show" on television. Trenner's parents, Florence and Henry, live in New Haven where they are members of the Mishkan

LOST AND FOUND: Sam and Bella Spewick, the playwrights, gave a party last week which was attended by Joseph Hirsch, the painter. They wanted the other guests to see a copy of TIME from four weeks ago listing Hirsch among America's top five painters. . . . The problem: Where to find, quickly, the magazine? . . . Mrs. Spewick merely dropped in at the office of the nearest doctor and there it was.

SPORTS NOTE: Charles Conery, the veteran Giant quarterback who retired, was in town recently. Admirers asked him if he'd return to pro football. "I'm through playing," said Conery. "Never again will a man hit me on purpose -- except in a bar, maybe."

BOOK DEPT.: Frederic Morton, author of the book about the Rothschilds, is in Austria. The other day, he learned that his book was No. 1 on TIME'S best-seller list. He searched for ways to celebrate. A champagne party? Hire a Viennese orchestra? . . . Then he remembered an old Rothschild dictum: If you receive good news, don't do anything ostentatious -- just get word to the rest of the family. . . . Morton wired the news to his parents, then went to bed.

PERSONALS: No matter the economic or diplomatic trend, one eminent Democrat and one eminent Republican definitely are not depressed. The Democrat is Anna Rosenberg, civic leader and former assistant secretary of defense. The Republican is Paul Hoffman, formerly of Studebaker and the Ford Foundation. They will make their joyous optimism clear and unequivocal by a joint announcement July 19.

Dear Sir,

On behalf of the members of my Association and myself I wish to place on record the pleasure we all experienced at a recent visit of one of your readers, Dr. Carl Jagolinzer, the optometrist of East Providence R. I. to Tel Aviv.

He addressed us on the work being done in your State on the prevention of road accidents through better vision and also donated several screening instruments to the Chairman of the National Road Safety Board who was present at this meeting.

Oscar Hammerstein II was elected to membership before Rodgers was. Taylor voted for Hammerstein, then told the Institute, "In England they reversed it -- Sullivan was knighted before Gilbert."

In describing the difference between Rodgers and Hart, and Rodgers and Hammerstein, the composer said, "With Larry, the music was written first. With Oscar, the lyrics were written first".... Rodgers added, "When I was with Larry Hart, people would when they don't need it and would be an extra incentive to them to find work. The job would provide no pay in addition to that supplied by relief. Men refusing to work (as well as women) would be refused all relief. (Similar program already tried at Newburgh, New York, where relief payments soon dropped sharply.) Also: a) a complete overhaul of the DES and tighter requirements and more thorough investigations into claims by the DES before welfare or relief is furnished; b) job security for state house employees to insure their positions against political actions of an incoming executive; c) eliminate all superfluous employees.

4. An emergency appropriation for immediate completion of the Circumferential Highway. Plans should be made, bids submitted and accepted and land condemned no later than June, 1963. This program must cease being sat upon by stubborn old ladies in tennis shoes.

5. Immediate action on a four year term for Governor. No governor can do anybody any good in two years, since the first six months are spent getting used to the office, the next twelve for making excuses for the last elapsed six in which nothing was done, and the last six in blasting opponents with propaganda shotguns in trying to get re-elected.

6. Immediate total repeal of the State Sales Tax and enactment of an Income Tax similar to the federal tax, this to supply the funds mandatory for carrying on a useful government. Also, investigate spending to eliminate all useless state expenses.

7. Monthly reports by the Governor through all communications media to the people on the progress and future usefulness of state projects. Such reports, if presented in a thoughtful manner, will make the people more willing to pay higher taxes.

8. Immediate serious consideration of the formation of Rhode Island into America's first City-State.

"I would like to see this program enacted," says 19 year old Jeffrey. "I think there is a reasonable chance that this program, or parts of it anyway, will be brought before the legislature — not necessarily however, by the next time it meets. How soon it will be brought before the Assembly depends on the support which we get for it, and how much public interest is aroused. I think that points one, three and five have the best chance of passing; possibly point four."

According to Jeffrey, more than 150 people have shown interest in his legislative program, including John Chafee, Republican endorsed candidate for Governor of Rhode Island.

A graduate of Cranston East High School, Jeffrey will enter the University of Rhode Island in September, where he intends to study Journalism. Particularly interested in writing and in photography, Jeffrey was a feature writer as well as photographer on his high school newspaper, "The Thunderbolt."

His interest in politics, he says, began in 1959 before the last election, and besides his eight-point legislative program, he has presented other political views in letters which he has written in to the Journal-Bulletin.

In one of his letters, published recently, he gives his opinion of the John Birch Society:

"The fears the members of this ultra conservative 'living room meditation group' have for the future of their country is manifesting itself negatively. These rightists fear and distrust everyone. They are too narrow-minded to understand that the danger to this country is from foreign communism; they do not yet realize that this country has struck fatal blows to national communism."

The future of United States democracy lies on the hands of the younger generation now growing to maturity — if they have a genuine interest in the solving of problems of government when they are young, as Jeffrey Berger is doing, the people of the United States can only benefit from this interest in the future.

Jeffrey is quite hopeful of having the major points in his legislative, non-partisan program pass the assembly and in so doing bring progress for the people of Rhode Island under democracy.

Israel, Bulgaria Agree On Claim

JERUSALEM — The Israeli and Bulgarian Governments have reached an understanding on payments by the East European country of damages to families of victims of the shooting down in 1955 of an El Al airliner over Bulgaria with a loss of 58 lives, official sources reported last week.

These sources said a final agreement on the lengthy and much-delayed settlement could be expected in a few weeks. Dr. Chaim Yachil, director general of Israel's Foreign Ministry, visited Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, several days ago and expressed satisfaction with the talks he had there with Bulgarian Government officials.

After many months of futile talks with Bulgarian officials, who at first rejected responsibility for the crash and then admitted responsibility for the disaster, Israel lodged a complaint in 1959 with the International Court of Justice at Hague. Israel told the Hague court that damages equivalent to $7,462,803 had been claimed.

The United States Government filed a brief and evidence on behalf of six American citizens who were among the victims and who left American next-of-kin. The court decided, however, that it was not competent in the case.

Yahrzeit Services in the Home commence at sunset the day previous.

Rome Jews Fight Fascists

ROME — Strong police units guarded approaches to the former Jewish ghetto as an aftermath to two days of violent clashes between neo-Fascists and Jews in which two Jews and seven Rightists were wounded. Rightists shouted anti-Semitic slogans. A shot was fired from an election campaign car which came into the Jewish section. Angry Jews attacked and mauled the campaigners.

Dr. Elio Toaff, Chief Rabbi of Rome, stated that "After all that Jews, and especially Rome's Jews, suffered from Nazism and Fascism any provocation would inevitably result in a violent reaction. The events proved it again and it is only due to the tact of the police force and its efficiency and the moderating action of Jewish community officials that no worse incidents occurred." etc.
