

Sentence Lawyer To Imprisonment

TEL AVIV — Yaakov Baror, former Tel Aviv District Attorney and a prosecutor in the Adolf Eichmann trial, was sentenced to three months imprisonment after pleading guilty to charges of having obtained an attorney's license under false pretenses.

In imposing sentence District Court Judge Eliezer Malchi said: "I have no other way to save the face of Israel Juridical Administration which was so hurt in the case."

Baror also admitted having obtained money from the government under false pretenses as a result of his claim for the license. He received seniority and professional allowances payable to qualified members of the Bar in civil service.

Judge Malchi suspended the sentence for eight weeks to permit Baror to ask President Ben Zvi for clemency. The Judge stressed that the defendant had falsified repeatedly because there was "no way out" after he began his career as a lawyer. Although considered a brilliant attorney he had never completed his studies in law school.

Dismiss Application For Immigration Visa

JERUSALEM — The Israel Supreme Court dismissed an application by Mervyn Gold, of Cleveland, for an order to the Interior Ministry to issue to him an immigration visa. The three-justice tribunal ruled two to one against the application without comment, announcing that a detailed ruling would be issued later. The ruling will be appealed.

The crucial point before the tribunal was whether a person charged with a crime, but not convicted of it, was "a person with a criminal past likely to endanger the public peace." Prospective immigrants so classified cannot migrate to Israel under its Law of Return.

Gold was indicted in the United States on charges of fraudulent financial transactions in that country. He arrived in Israel with a passport which he said he lost after a substitute passport was taken from him by the United States consul in Naples to force him to stand trial.

U. R. I. Opens Campus To Young Musicians

by Wilma Ecker

In attendance at the All-State Music Week held at the University of Rhode Island from Aug. 27 through Aug. 31 were five talented teenagers from Providence and surrounding areas.

This unique music camp, held for the second year, provides both a musical and a recreational outlet for over two hundred teenagers. Although the cost for each student is $40 for the week, part of this fee is paid by the University of Rhode Island and the Rhode Island school system, leaving an average charge of only $10 or less for the student to pay.

The camp, located directly on U.R.I.'s campus in Kingston, offers the teenagers who attend

Nazi Admirer Charged With Fatal Shooting

FALLS CHURCH, Va.—A 17-year-old youth described by police as an anti-Semite who admired George Rockwell's American Nazi party and sought to join it, has been charged by Fairfax county police with shooting to death a Jewish boy, also aged 17. The shooting followed years of anti-Semitic agitation by the Rockwell movement among high school youths in northern Virginia.

The victim of the shooting was Lewis M. Goldfein, an honor student, vice-president of the Falls Church High School student council, president of his class and a member of the varsity baseball and wrestling teams. He was shot down at night outside his home as he set up a telescope to study the stars. He aspired to become a scientist.

The accused, John C. Vinson, Jr., was described as a highly intelligent youth, possessing an I.Q. of 165. He was fascinated by Nazism and, according to the Washington Post, had previously been charged with painting a swastika on private property.

The Post quoted a probationary official as stating that "young Vinson had exhibited some American Nazi party literature on one occasion and he understood, once tried to join the organization but was turned down because he was too young." Detective M. Herbell told the Washington Star "he hated Jews." The detective also stated that Vinson sought to associate himself with the Rockwell Nazi group. Vinson is a son of a Metropolitan police officer who served on the District of Columbia force for 23 years.

Meanwhile the State Corporation Commission of Virginia rejected yesterday George Rockwell's bid for a charter.

Jewish Conciliation Board Work Praised By Legalists, Humanists

NEW YORK—Jewish families torn by internal strife take their problems to a non-judicial body whose decisions are binding upon the disputants. Made up mostly of rabbis, judges, business men and lawyers, the Jewish Conciliation Board of America has been settling cases for 43 years in accordance with Jewish law and customs, common sense and what is called "a Jewish heart." The decisions are usually made at the conclusion of impassioned presentations of the issues by the individuals concerned, who are questioned by the board members. The elapsed time from the statement of the grievance to the rendering of the decision is usually one hour, according to an article in the New York Times.

The board's work has been praised by such legalists as Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas and such humanists as the late Ernie Pyle. An arbitration agreement that must be signed by parties to a dispute prior to the hearing makes the board's decision enforceable in the civil courts.

Board Praised

Why do persons place themselves under the jurisdiction of a board that may rule against them although no legal case exists?

"Our people have a great moral sense," said Mrs. Louis Richman, executive secretary of the board, which was founded by her late husband. "They want to do the right thing."

Bans Visas For Israel Athletes

TEL AVIV — Israeli sports officials expressed bitterness this week over the second ban by a Moslem country on Israeli athletes invited to participate in overseas contests.

Malaya followed the precedent of Indonesia by canceling visas of Israeli athletes invited to compete in a soccer tourney at Kuala Lumpur as part of Malaya's celebrations of independence. Three weeks ago, Indonesia declined to send entry permits to members of an Israeli team invited to participate in the Fourth Asian Games at Jakarta.

Malaya has no diplomatic ties with Israel, and visas were issued two weeks ago to 23 Israelis through the British Consulate in Tel Aviv which represents Malayan interests in Israel.

HARTFORD CENTER READY

HARTFORD — A new Jewish Community Center, built specifically to meet the social, educational, cultural and sports needs of Greater Hartford Jewry, will be opened this fall. The new center building has facilities for all types of social, athletic and cultural events including a 426-seat theater.

The Times recalls that the board was founded to keep quarrels involving Jews out of the courts and to help immigrants avoid costly litigation—its services are free. It is a descendant of the Beth Din, the religious courts in which European Jews were allowed to resolve their own differences.

In Israel, rabbinical courts have sole jurisdiction over divorces.

In addition to marital problems, which make up 80 percent of the board's work, it hears problems involving the support and maintenance of older parents.

"We have cases of parents coming here with six, seven and eight children," Mrs. Richman told the N. Y. Times. "There's always one who's the good child—who supports the parent. The rest bicker, and it's common to hear a son say, 'I'll give $10 if Harry gives $25.'"

The board processes about 600 cases a year. Of these, 150 are heard by the board. Initially most cases were brought before rabbis, fraternal orders and burial societies. As the immigrants became Americanized, the board heard more and more family cases.

Samuel Haber To Take Place Of Ambassador Comay As Speaker

Samuel Haber, assistant Director-General for overseas operations of the Joint Distribution Committee, will launch the 1962 campaign of the General Jewish Committee at the Initial Gifts "Kickoff" dinner on Sunday evening, Sept. 23, at the Colony Motor Hotel.

Mr. Haber replaces Ambassador Michael Comay, permanent representative of Israel to the United Nations, as the guest speaker. Ambassador Comay was forced to cancel his Providence appearance. In a letter to GJC executive director Joseph Galkin, Ambassador Comay said that because of the tense world situation at this time he is unable to leave his duties at the United Nations.

Mr. Haber is one of the key officers of the JDC's vast overseas relief and rehabilitation program which provides welfare services to more than 325,000 oppressed and destitute people in 27 countries in continental Europe, North Africa, the Middle East and Israel. JDC is the major American agency aiding distressed Jews abroad since the end of World War II.

Mr. Haber will report on recent developments affecting JDC operations in Israel, North Africa, the Middle East and Europe. He will speak on the conditions affecting Jews in those areas of the world.

A major in the U.S. Army and military governor of Bavaria and Wurtemberg, Haber became associated with the JDC

Adopt Resolution Banning Religious, Racial Incitement

JOHANNESBURG — A resolution calling on the Government of the Republic of South Africa to ban racial or religious incitement against any section of the country's population was adopted unanimously here at the biennial congress of the South African Jewish Board of Deputies.

The congress, first gathering of its kind since South Africa left the British Commonwealth, also reaffirmed the Jewish community's loyalty to the republic, expressing a "prayer for lasting peace, prosperity and progress for South Africa and all its inhabitants."

Prior to adoption of the resolution, Dr. Teddy Schneider, chairman of the Board, told the delegates from all over the country in his keynote address, that, while the position of the Jews in South Africa was "generally satisfactory," recent incidents had shown there were individuals and organizations, here as well as overseas, that are advancing the hateful doctrines of nazism.

In Schneider's address, as well as in the resolution against racism, emphasis was laid on the fact that both the Government and leaders of non-Jewish public opinion here, had denounced anti-Semitism. The resolution noted the fact that the "great majority of South Africans have agreed with the Prime Minister's appeal of last November to keep the country free from anti-Semitism."

The resolution noted there had been "an explosion" of condemnations of such incidents.

as Country Director for the American Zone of Germany from 1947 to 1954.

From 1954 to the end of 1956, Haber was in charge of the JDC relief and welfare program for Moroccan Jews. Later that year he was assigned to Poland, where as the first JDC representative permitted in that country since 1950, he set up a special emergency relief program for Jewish repatriates to that country from the Soviet zone.

Both men and women have been invited to attend the 18th annual campaign opening dinner to launch the 1962 GJC fund-raising drive.

A million came - help more come...

You have helped to bring a million immigrants to Israel since 1948, through your generous contributions.

Now, more thousands are on the way. To transport them and assure adequate reception-aid, your continued and increasing help is vital.

And that help cannot stop at the bottom of the gangplank. Help them as they strive to make new lives for themselves. Help provide the new homes they need, the clinics and youth centers, the trade-training and educational opportunities, the welfare and rehabilitation aid. . .

SEE THEM THOUGH — INTO A HOPEFUL FUTURE . . . THROUGH THE GENERAL JEWISH COMMITTEE AND THE 53 AGENCIES IT SUPPORTS!

In Israel: a sudden spurt of immigration plus the 335,000 already there who need housing, rehabilitation and training. This is the challenge we must help this new country meet in 1962!

In Overseas Lands: more aid is needed for 225,000 Jewish men, women and children — including food, shelter, medical care, vocational training, other constructive help.

In This Country: welfare services, youth services, better relations among people of all races and creeds are necessary to preserve, protect and extend our basic freedoms.

In Our Own Community: thirteen local agencies in this area receive more than $100,000 of their allocations from GJC funds. These vital agencies merit our support!

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

Mutual Fund 'Comparison' Records Meaningless

It was unfortunate and naive of the professors who wrote the massive Wharton School study on the $19 billion mutual fund industry to include in their report a statement that on average, the performance of the mutual funds in recent years "did not differ appreciably from what would have been achieved by an unmanaged portfolio" -- for this clearly implies that you could have done just as well for yourself in the market if you had managed your own nestegg and not bothered to pay your mutual fund's managers a commission to handle your money.

It was unfortunate because this one argument has been pulled out of the exhaustively-researched 595-page report and blown up to the extent where it has obscured many of the fundamental and valid criticisms of the setup, operations and activities of the mutual funds made by the University of Pennsylvania professors after four years of study.

There is not one thoughtful student of mutual funds who denies that there are abuses in selling practices, questions about the "load" (buying commission) charged to mutual fund shareholders, doubts about conflicts of interest, interlocking deals, etc.

There is not one responsible individual within the industry who does not admit that laws drawn up to regulate a half-billion dollar industry a quarter-century ago should be up-dated to regulate the rapidly growing multi-billion dollar industry with three million shareholders today.

These are the important points -- and it's unfortunate that they are being obscured.

It was naive too, because these "comparison" performances are both misleading and ridiculous on the face of them.

No "little investor" -- and it is the little investor who is the primary buyer of mutual fund shares -- could possibly invest in a list as diversified as Standard & Poor's Composite Index, consisting of 500 stocks, as well as an assortment of bonds and other assets! He not only wouldn't have that sort of money but also human beings don't imitate statistical averages. Wall Street professionals often compare their performance with that of the Dow-Jones index of 30 industrial stocks, but even as they do this they know they're only playing a numbers game.

Even comparisons among the funds themselves are befuddling and confusing because their performances vary violently from year to year.

As a dramatic illustration, the mutual fund which turned in the top performance as of the end of 1957 was in 101st place the following year. The fund which turned in the best performance as of the end of 1959 was in 57th place the next year.

Of course, if I had put my entire nestegg in International Business Machines at the "right" time in the 1950s and had sold out at the "right" time in late 1961 -- early 1962, I'd have made the performance of all mutual funds look sick. Did I do this? No. However, I also didn't put my entire nestegg in one of the hot-hot growth stocks at the peak of their popularity and so I don't have losses on paper ranging to 75 per cent or more today either.

The astonishing variation from year to year in performance among the "five best" mutual funds is underlined by this table, prepared by Vance, Sanders & Co. of Boston.

1957 Position	Standing 1958	1958 Position	Standing 1959
1st fund	101 st	1st fund	2nd
2nd fund	103rd	2nd fund	10th
3rd fund	95 th	3rd fund	13 th
4th fund	90 th	4th fund	42nd
5th fund	87 th	5th fund	57 th

1959 Position	Standing 1960	1960 Position	Standing 1961
1st fund	57 th	1st fund	37 th
2nd fund	29 th	2nd fund	56 th
3rd fund	90 th	3rd fund	40 th
4th fund	95 th	4th fund	35 th
5th fund	34 th	5th fund	45 th

It may be taken for granted that each fund was trying to turn in a top-notch record to hold and get more shareholders. New regulations are coming for mutual funds which will add to your protection, and this is the important point. It won't improve their performances, though, for the good ones already are doing their best.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

THE SHALASH

By Beryl Segal

Recently I stood and watched workmen put up a huge tent in front of a Synagogue. It was unusually big, covering the entire piazza and extending all over the steps and over the area between the piazza and the meeting hall, connecting up with the meeting hall. I would say that the tent was intended to take under its cover at least four hundred people.

I was told that the tent will serve as a reception room at a wedding that was to take place during that weekend.

"That reminds me of a Shalash," I remarked to a man who stood near me and also watched. "What's a Shalash?" asked the man.

And it came to me just then that unless you spent your childhood and your boyhood in a little town on the Ukraine you wouldn't know the meaning of a Shalash, and all the memories which that name evokes would be new to you.

Do you know what a Shalash is, or was?

When we children of my native town, saw a Shalash going up in a neighborhood we knew that a wedding was in preparation, and a wedding meant fun for all, the invited guest as well as the uninvited of the rest of the townlet. Only the lame and the sick and children in their cribs stood home when there was a wedding in the little town.

A Shalash was a large enclosure made of boards put up side by side the height of a house. It had no roof and no windows, but plenty of space for tables and a dance space. They usually picked a level ground, grassy under foot for the location of a Shalash.

On the night of the wedding everybody in the townlet was around the Shalash, waiting for the wedding procession to make its way from the Shul where the wedding ceremony took place. The procession progressed at a slow pace. Not because the distance from the Shul to the Shalash was so great, but because the procession halted every few minutes. Every few minutes a circle would form and a dance would start in the middle of the street. The parents of the bride and groom -- to them it was too serious a night for dancing. But there were always aunts and uncles, cousins and nephews, and friends and relatives from both sides. They would suddenly throw their arms around each other's shoulders and away they went in a dance that would halt the procession until it was over.

The musicians, four of them at a usual wedding, and double that number when the wedding was a merging of wealth and riches, would lead the procession. The fiddler at the head and the drummer bringing up the rear. We, the children, were very fond of the drummer. His boom-boom-bam would resound in the night and would deafen our ears. Every once in a while one of us would sidle up to the drum, take a whack at it and melt into the crowd. It made no difference. The drummer went on with his drumming, boom-boom-bam, no matter what the rest of the band was playing.

The drummer went on with his drumming, boom-boom-bam, no matter what the rest of the band was playing.

It was Frankfurter who said of a trial lawyer he disliked, "He thinks that all facts were created equal." And he most enjoyed interrupting the lawyers arguing before the Court, and asserting his independence of the other justices. A lawyer once cited a case as precedent and said to the Court, "I am now quoting from your opinion in the case." Frankfurter, who had dissented, corrected the lawyer: "That wasn't my opinion. That was the court's opinion." And Justice

At last the procession reached the Shalash for the wedding feast. The business of seating everybody at the proper place was a source of headaches for the parents of the bride. Who was to sit next to whom, and far away from the main table? Who was who among the out-of-town guest, and how important a guest was he?

Many a quarrel broke out because of the amount of Koved and the degree of hospitality accorded a guest at a wedding. Many a poor relative went home crying because of the place given to her at the wedding.

The guests seated, the musicians broke out in a melody. One in honor of the bride and groom. One in honor of the parents of the young couple. One in honor of the oldest uncle, and so on and on, while the meals were served and the guests were talking and the noise and hilarity outside the Shalash grew in volume as the wedding feast got under way inside.

We had advance notice of the goings-on inside the Shalash even before the guests knew what was coming up. The more enterprising among us climbed up on the roof of the adjoining house and gave a minute-by-minute description.

"The soups being served now!"

"Now they bring the chicken!"

"They are calling for the wedding gifts!"

"The Badchen is coming!" The Badchen, the wedding fiddler, was as important a member of the wedding entertainers as the fiddler was. He would stand on a table and make up rhymes and sing his impromptu songs. He would scold the rich and make fun of the poor, chide the young for casting eyes on girls and make the bride cry with his dire prediction of a life with mother-in-law.

But it was all in jest. A Badchen could do or say almost anything.

Outside it was dark, only the Shalash being lighted with hundreds of candles. Around the Shalash the noise and confusion reached its highest peak. Some boys and girls chose this time to be romantic and held hands in the dark or disappeared altogether. Some fights would break out over the places held at the cracks in the boards. A crack in the board was a coveted place to hold, because you saw and heard almost everything that went on inside.

Happy days of childhood. Delightful nights of youth. A Shalash in our townlet was like a circus coming to town here, like a parade passing by the streets.

He who saw a Shalash once in his life will always remember the light-headedness, the sheer joy of living, the excitement that went with the Shalash.

In the morning, on the way to Heder, we stopped to look into the Shalash. It was unusually quiet, and empty, and grey. The magic of the night before was gone out of it completely.

The Lyons Den

by Leonard Lyons

THE COURT: Arthur Goldberg's first decision as the newest Supreme Court Justice will involve law clerks. Each Justice chooses his own clerks, usually the top students from law schools in his home area. Justice Frankfurter already had chosen the two honor men who would be his clerks for the next term. Goldberg probably will keep them.

The clerks, of course, will find it quite different working for Goldberg instead of for his restless, volatile predecessor. An artist who was sketching Frankfurter in his office had to move his chair constantly -- because the jurist kept phoning, dictating and greeting visitors. Frankfurter told him: "Your other job, besides sketching me, is catching me."

It was Frankfurter who said of a trial lawyer he disliked, "He thinks that all facts were created equal." And he most enjoyed interrupting the lawyers arguing before the Court, and asserting his independence of the other justices. A lawyer once cited a case as precedent and said to the Court, "I am now quoting from your opinion in the case."

Frankfurter, who had dissented, corrected the lawyer: "That wasn't my opinion. That was the court's opinion." And Justice

Douglas spoke up, "The opinion has none the less authority."

THE RESOLVE: Anne Bancroft, star of "The Miracle Worker," confided recently how she once had broken her smoking habit for almost a year. "I was in love," she said, "and it looked hopeless." She muttered a hope, "I'd do anything, make any sacrifice, if I could get him." She chose the sacrifice -- cigarettes. She stopped smoking immediately.

"But then I gained 34 pounds," said Miss Bancroft. "And the weight began to concern me more than did this man." She resumed smoking, lost the added poundage and forgot about the man.

THE ACTORS: Horace MacMahon, star of the TV show "Naked City," appeared at the Bronx County Courthouse recently to film a segment. MacMahon wore a cop's uniform. DA Dollinger's aides proved that they can act as convincingly as MacMahon and his fellow professionals. They gave him a "subpena" for violating the law by impersonating a cop.

THE SEARCH: Seven Arts Films decided to cast Sabu, the Elephant Boy, for a role in "Rampage," and started a search for him. It ended with a cable from the firm's Calcutta office; Sabu could be found in the San Fernando Valley, where he is a furniture salesman.

MEMOS: ABC will broadcast three daily reports on the America's Cup races. The broadcasts will be sponsored by a motion sickness pill. . . . Dore Schary's play "Banderol" will open the day his autobiography is published. . . . Françoise Sagan's new movie is based on a modern Casanova. dents as the increasing distribution of anti-Jewish propaganda and the recent blasting of a bomb at the Monument to Martyred European Jewry in the Johannesburg Jewish cemetery. Nevertheless, Schneider stressed, "the Government should take a serious view of such propaganda, and introduce legislation to protect all sections of the population against racial incitement."

Another resolution declared unanimously that the Board "deplores any attempts from within or outside the Jewish community to introduce Jewish issues into political controversies in South Africa." The resolution reiterated the Jewish community's insistence that "there is no collective Jewish attitude on political issues," emphasizing that: "Jewish citizens exercise the same rights as do other citizens to hold personal, political opinions and to exercise civic responsibilities through political parties and individual free choice."

At the same time, the congress urged Jewish citizens to make their contributions in accordance with the teachings of Judaism "toward promotion of understanding, good will and cooperation between all races, and toward a peaceful and secure future for all inhabitants on the principles of justice and the dignity of the individual."

Plans Checked For Pace Setter Event — Mrs. Stanley Grossman, right, Pace-Setter chairman, and her co-chairman, Mrs. Peter H. Bardach, are checking over plans for the GJC Women's Division Pace-Setter event which will be held on Monday afternoon Sept. 24, at the home of Mrs. Grossman.

Abbi Ben Ari To Address Women At Pace-Setter Champagne Hour

Abbi Ben Ari, an immigrant to Israel from South Africa who is now devoting his whole life to helping other immigrants to Israel will be the guest speaker at the GJC Women's Division Pace-Setters Champagne Hour on Monday, Sept. 24. This event will be held at the home of chairman Mrs. Stanley Grossman, 70 Harwich Road, at 3 P. M.

Mr. Ben Ari is the representative from the Municipal Council supervising the new development area of Lachhish, Israel.

Abbi Ben Ari

He is a local representative of the Israel Government Tourist Office and a leader in Kiria Gat's Industrial Development Corporation.

He became interested in the struggle for the Jewish state as a 12-year old boy in South Africa and became a leader in that country's Zionist youth movement. In 1952, Ben Ari emigrated to Israel and settled in Kibbutz Zora. He left the kibbutz in 1959 to become one of the pioneers building Lachhish.

In Hollywood . . .

By Barney Glazer

Hollywood, California -- We're blowing our horn because "Come Blow Your Horn" is Molly Picon's first movie since 1938, and that was much too long. . . David Merrick may be depended upon to take umbrage at almost anything show-wise. His latest whole-hearted denial is fired at an unauthorized announcement that he intends to be an actor as well as a Broadway producer.

"I haven't the qualities of an actor," emphasized Merrick. "Actors must be relentless, have colossal ambition, be backbiting, consider themselves the most fascinating creatures in the world, be compulsive talkers, have no sense of humor about their work and themselves and be insecure and constantly in panic as each day makes them a day older."

THE DOCTOR said "No visitors for Eddie Cantor," but his daughter Natalie invited Jack Benny, George Burns and Milton Berle to console Eddie on Ida's loss. It proved to be excellent therapy for the broken-hearted Cantor.

BURT METCALFE, who is the bridegroom in TV's "Father of the Bride" series, has become a citizen of the United States. Burt's father, Louis Matcoff, was originally from Russia. He met and was married to Esther Goldman in Winnipeg. Burt was born in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, but the family moved to Montreal before he was one year old. He also resided briefly in Winnipeg.

LISTEN TO Allen Sherman's "Golden Moments from Broadway" (Warners), in which he takes off on "Music Man" as follows: "Seventy-six Sol Cohins in the country club, with a hundred and four Irv Kleins on the links." According to some readers who become quite upset with any attempt at Jewish humor, this album will probably make them basket cases.

SID W. MEYERS, Chicago newspaperman, has written "The Great Las Vegas Fraud" (Mayflower Press) which is now gaining movie producers' attention. If you've never been to gambolton, you'll find the book fascinating reading. If you've visited the fabulous city, you'll learn things you failed to observe. I'm also willing to wager that the author failed to learn many facts about the city. For one who has covered Las Vegas as many years as I have done, the book seems to fall more into the category of a film fan magazine story pointing more towards what is saleable and slanted merchandise than what is the accepted picture by resident, worker and tourist.

PITTSBURGH'S pride and joy, Hank Levine, composed and recorded a tune titled; "Portrait of Marilyn." Due to Marilyn Monroe's recent death, the label thought the title might prove to be in bad taste at this time. It was changed to: "Portrait of a Blonde" and it looks like talented young Mr. Levine has another hit on his hands.

GEORGE JESSEL is after Cyd Charisse to star in his Israel movie which will be backed by the government. . . Phil Silvers is recovering from what was diagnosed as "muscular spasms" while on movie location. Commented Buddy Hackett: "That Phil will do anything for a free hospital lunch."

Teachers' Institute. During two days in October, when there are no school sessions, rehearsals are held and a final concert, consisting of the music learned at the summer session, is given.

Stephanie Zaidman, 16 years old, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Zaidman of 15 Elmwood Drive, Warwick, describes a typical day:

"Breakfast was served at 7:30 and rehearsals last until noon. After lunch, from 1:30 until 3:30, there was another rehearsal. We had free time until 5:30, and could play softball, tennis, go swimming, play ping-pong or relax at the Student Union. After supper, rehearsals were held until 8:30. But there was plenty of time for fun. A planned social event was held nearly every evening. There were two dances, one at the beginning and one at the close of the session, and everyone enjoyed the talent night."

Stephanie, a violinist, would like to become a psychologist but continue playing the violin as a hobby.

Harry Strumar, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Strumar of 117 8th Street, is 16 years old and has studied the trumpet for six years. After being interviewed, he played professional-sounding renditions of "Malleguena", "Havah Nagilah", and "Cherry Pink and Apple Blossom White". He plays with the Rhode Island Philharmonic Youth Orchestra and is hoping to study next year under Roger Voisin, the noted trumpet player with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Harry enjoyed camp, liked "getting away from the city" and felt that the experience of playing with other musicians his own age every day for a week was extremely beneficial.

Janet Carp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Carp of 52 George Arden Avenue, Warwick, has studied clarinet for five years. She is 17 years old and a senior at Warwick Veterans Memorial High School. She was very much impressed by campus life at U.R.I. and as a result of the week spent there, she intends to apply to this college for admission next year. "Then I'll be able to study under Donald Burns, our conductor, who is a professor at the University", she states.

Janet feels she learned quite a bit during the week, especially from the private sectional rehearsals. She is avidly interested in science and enjoys reading up on biological material and studying specimens under a microscope which she has at home. Undecided about her future now, she hopes to have a teaching career, either in music or science.

Joy Ellen Pitterman is 17 years old and the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Marvin Pitterman of 151 Bretton Woods Drive, Cranston. She is a soprano in the chorus and also plays the piano.

Joy lived in England with her family for two years while her father, an economics professor at U. R. I., was on a sabbatical leave. In her spare time she catches up on a heavy load of correspondence which she has established with her former English schoolmates, and also collects dolls made and bought in countries throughout the world. Joy thought the group was "a dedicated one and very, very nice. Besides wanting to have fun, everyone wanted to work."

Deborah Kapstein is 16 years old and attends Hope High School. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherwin J. Kapstein of 310 Olney Street and is versatile enough to know how to play the 'cello, guitar, and piano. She seems to have inherited her talent from her mother, a music teacher.

Debby, who hopes to become a social worker and play the 'cello in a community orchestra, perhaps typifies the feelings of all the students when she states "It was stimulating to be among such fine musicians from all over the state and to be able to discuss music, as well as to play together. The week was exciting, both musically and socially, and it left me with a feeling of challenge, as if I should go home and become a better musician."

Display Pamphlets At Post Office

More than 75 per cent of the government publications included in a display at the Main Post Office are of special interest to women, according to Postmaster Harry Kizirian.

The pamphlets, costing from 5 cents to $2.75, cover an enormous range of subjects, from credit to the common cold, from trees to teeth, and from salmon (22 time-tested recipes) to sewing machines. They offer tips on infant care all the way through adult life to food guides for older folks.

Under the general category of food are a shopper's guide for eggs and beef, food additives, basic menus, diets for gaining or losing weight, fish cookery, home freezing of fruits and vegetables and how to stretch the food dollar.

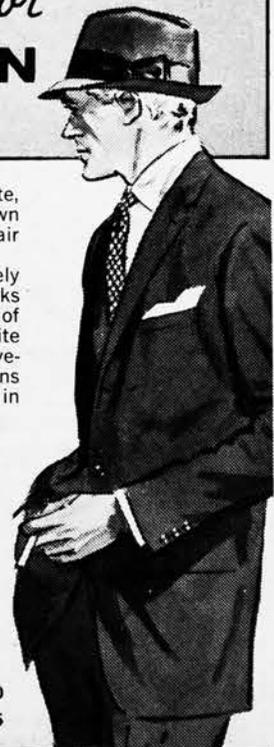

Other publications deal with health and hygiene. An FHA credit analysis is available for prospective home buyers, and young farm families are advised how to obtain credit, where to borrow and how much and figuring the cost of credit.

There are tips for buying home freezers, washing machines and sewing machines, on home methods for removing stains from fabrics and suggestions for maintaining a well-kept lawn.

Of the motor cars now in use, 57 per cent are equipped with automatic transmissions, 22 per cent with power steering, and 20 per cent with power brakes, the ALA states.

by LEON SAPERSTEIN

Professional football is breaking into the sports scene with the National Football League beginning play Sunday, September 16th. The still youthful American Football League began its action last weekend with a few surprises and a few run of the mill contests.

Over in the NFL, there promises to be an interesting situation in the eastern division with four teams capable of snaring the title. Last year's champs, the New York Giants, have been relegated to just being a contender by most of the pigskin prophets. And there are evident signs of trouble in the New York ranks due to old age, injuries and the retirement of two veteran stars.

Losing men like Charlie Conerly and Kyle Rote is never an easy pill for any coach to swallow. However, where Giant mentor Allie Sherman especially finds grounds for concern is the fact that he must rely on 35 year old Y.A. Tittle to guide his club through the perilous 1962 season. For quarterback insurance the Giants obtained Ralph Guglielmi from the St. Louis Cardinals and can use the returning (after a year's absence) Frank Gifford. Of course, as in the past the Giant hopes rest upon their remarkable defensive platoon, bulwarked by the incomparable Sam Huff.

Cleveland suffered a bad break when their star college hopeful, Ernie Davis, fell prey to a mysterious blood infection and will miss at least one year of action. Paul Brown also has a problem at quarterback in Jim Ninowski, obtained from the Detroit Lions in exchange for Milt Plum. Ninowski is a fine passer but hardly the equal of Plum and the Browns attack will have to depend mainly on the hard running of the league's best ground gainer, Jim Brown.

The Philadelphia Eagles must rely almost entirely on the throwing arm of Sonny Jurgensen. Fortunately, Nick Skorich has excellent receivers in Tommy McDonald, Bobby Walston and Pete Retzlaff. There is another potential end in track star Frank Budd, who hasn't played football since high school, but who can run the hundred in 9.2

Pittsburgh can finally expect a contender. The Steelers have last year's All-America fullback Bob Ferguson and quarterback Ed Brown from the Bears to bolster their strong offense led by the venerable Bobby Layne.

In the western sector very few experts are looking beyond the Champion Green Bay Packers as the probable leader in the division. And it appears that there is very little cause to reject this opinion. Here is a squad with no apparent weakness, with the best one-two running punch, an impregnable offensive line and two brilliant offensive ends in Boyd Dowler and Ron Kramer. Only injuries could throw a monkey wrench in Vince Lombardi's plans for another World Championship.

If another team has a chance to upset the Packers, that would have to be the Detroit Lions, strengthened by the acquisition of Milt Plum, the league's leading passer, and

DONATES $5,000

FRANKFURT — The Frank-Municipal Council last week made a donation of $5,000 toward the cost of erection of a new building for the Leo Baeck School in Haifa. Dr. Baeck, a leader of Liberal Judaism in Germany, was interned during the last two years of World War II in Nazi concentration camps. He died later in London.

The "July 20, 1944" organization, which was organized to care for the children of the Germans executed by the Gestapo for their role in the unsuccessful plot on that date against Hitler, indicated it planned to send 30 orphans on a tour to Israel next spring.

tell of a woman who brought her problem to a psychiatrist: "My husband thinks he's a horse." The doctor said he'd cure him, but it would be expensive.

"Money is no object," said the wife. "He won the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness."

THE GOLFER: Jackie Gleason was invited to play in the $30,000 Haig & Haig scotch mixed foursome golf tournament this winter. Gleason replied to the sponsors, Renfield Importers: "It is with anguish that I must turn down your invitation. I played the last time and went around the course in 69 -- and 69 shots is almost 3 quarts."

THE NIGHTCLUB MAN: The new host and night manager at Kenny's Steak Pub is Connie Immerman, one of the most colorful figures in New York's nightlife history. He now smiles in gracious appreciation of $5 and $10 tips-- this man who owned Connie's Inn in Harlem, ran the Cotton Club and once lost $250,000 to Nick the Greek.

Immerman survived the prohibition wars when mobs fought for control of nightclubs. Only his pleasant nature spared him from the kidnappings which then were common. Once, however, he was shanghaied. He received a call one morning from H.H. Rogers Jr. of the Standard Oil family, inviting him and his wife to have breakfast aboard Rogers' new yacht. Nothing was heard from them for months. Rogers took them to the South Seas.

The money rolled in big for Connie. He left the Cotton Club with his wife one night "to mix with the fancy folk" at the Waldorf. He asked for his check, proffered a $1,000 bill -- and couldn't understand why the Waldorf couldn't change it.

Immerman was gassed in World War I. But in 1942 he toured the induction centers trying to enlist, in vain. "No, I don't want any desk job or paper work here. I want to go overseas," he told the recruiting officers. "Being stationed in America, in a war like this, would be like sitting in the lobby while the show's going on in a theater."

FABULOUS DESSERTS

MISS DUTTON'S

Mrs. Jerome Sheldon Gurland

Miss Joan Barbara Greenstein, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jacob Greenstein of 49 Loraine Avenue, became the bride of Rabbi Jerome Sheldon Gurland, associate Rabbi of Temple Beth-El, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gurland of 2125 68th Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., at a 2 P.M. ceremony held at Temple Beth-El on Sunday, Sept. 9. Officiating at the ceremony were Rabbi William G. Braude, Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen, and Rabbi Howard Greenstein of Springfield, a cousin of the bride. A reception at Temple Beth-El followed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white peau de sole gown fashioned with a square neckline accented with clusters of pearls, long tapered sleeves, fitted bodice, and a bell shaped skirt ending in a detachable chapel train. Her bouffant French illusion veil fell from a peau de sole pillbox highlighted with matching pearls. She carried a Bible covered with orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. Harvey Gurland, a sister-in-law of the bridegroom, matron of honor, wore a blueberry De Luna taffeta waltz length gown designed with a scoop neckline, and a dome skirt accented with a bow. Her headpiece was a blueberry De Luna taffeta rose with a bouffant veil.

The bridesmaids, Miss Barbara Kane and Miss Marcia Komarin, wore matching styles and colors.

Harvey Gurland served as best man for his brother. Ushers were Rabbi Jerome Davidson, Roy Forman, Dr. Jason Greenstein, Rabbi Donald Heskins, Paul Markoff, Bernard Mehlman, Al Pion, Leonard Schoolman, and Elliot Wolfe.

After a wedding trip to Quebec City, the couple will reside at 77 Pitman Street.

USE ISOTOPES
TEL AVIV — The Atomic Energy Commission disclosed this week that radioactive isotopes produced at the Nabi Rubin reactor were used for medical research on the effects of hot climates on residents in Eilat and Beersheba.

Because of their short lifetime, the isotopes were rushed to the area by plane and injected into volunteers to measure the effect of hot temperatures on salt percentages in the blood.

LAY CORNERSTONE
SANTIAGO, Chile—A cornerstone was laid here this week for a new home for B'nai B'rith Pacifico chapter, to mark the 25th anniversary of the founding of the chapter. There are now five chapters of B'nai B'rith in Chile, three in Santiago and one each in Valparaiso and in Concepcion, totaling some 350 members.

1962 could be the most important year for the American Football League. A profitable season is necessary for many of the clubs or they may be forced to close up shop. Therefore, not only the standings but the attendance figures will be watched to see whether there will be two leagues or one in 1963.

In the east it looks like the Houston Oilers again with the Boston Patriots rated good enough for second place. The Chargers should repeat in the west, but the Dallas Texans could prove stubborn.
