Community-Wide Rally, All Night Vigil Planned In Support Of Soviet Jewry

A community-wide rally and an all night vigil by Jewish residents of Rhode Island in support of oppressed Soviet Jewry will be held on Saturday evening, Oct. 24, at 8 p.m. at Temple Emanu-El.

The event is sponsored by the Rhode Island Conference on Soviet Jewry to call attention to what it contends is the persecution of Russian Jews and to mobilize public opinion against Soviet Russia on this matter. Rabbi Saul Leeman of Temple Beth Torah is chairman of the rally.

A torchlight parade, originating at Temple Emanu-El and a procession of Torahs carried by rabbis in the community will highlight the rally. Cantor Ivan E. Perlman of Temple Emanu-El will lead the procession, chanting Hebrew songs.

Students from the Jewish Community Center and temple youth groups will march in the parade, carrying posters and banner asking for support from the community.

Following the parade the marchers and supporters will reassemble at Temple Emanu-El where a varied program and the all night vigil will be conducted.

Jerry Goodman of the American Jewish Committee, a specialist on Eastern European affairs, will speak on the present situation in that area.

Aviva Semadar, an Israeli folk singer who has appeared in Europe, will head the entertainment program. Miss Semadar, who has studied music and singing in Tel Aviv's Academy of Music and began her musical career in Europe in 1964, has appeared at many music festivals, on radio and television.

The program will also include a movie on Russian Jewry, a dramatic presentation, a community sing and Israeli dancing.

The all night vigil will conclude with a sunrise service at 6 a.m. followed by breakfast at 6:30 a.m.

Temple Beth David, Anshe Kovno To Hold Installation Ceremonies

The first officers elected since the recent merger of two of the oldest congregations in Providence will be installed Wednesday, Oct. 28, at 8 p.m. in Temple Beth David-Anshe Kovno on Oakland Avenue.

Representative Samuel C. Kagan will be sworn in as president along with officers and directors who include members of both former congregations.

Governor Frank Licht will be installing officer at the event which will be held in the main sanctuary of the temple, beginning with the regular evening Maariv religious service. It will be followed by an informal gathering in the social hall where refreshments will be served.

Specially invited guests include U.S. Senator John O. Pastore, who was governor when the temple on Oakland Avenue was undertaken; Mayor Joseph A. Doorley Jr., rabbis of all congregations in the state, and clergy of all other faiths. The meeting is open to the public.

Other officers who will be installed with Mr. Kagan are William Kanopkin, vice president; Herbert Wagner, treasurer; Max Tippe, financial secretary; Mrs. Abraham Shuster, recording secretary; Mrs. Charlotte Wolf and Jack Zelman, corresponding secretaries; Jerome Aron, sergeant-at-arms, and a 15-member board of directors; Mrs. Celia Baker Berger, president of the Motherhood, and Mrs. Mary Mushnick, president of the Sisterhood.

Cantor Charles Ross, who has officiated at Temple Beth David for eight years, will chant the religious service. Max Tippe will lead responsive readings and introduce Gov. Licht.

Another feature of the program will be presentation of a new charter by a representative of the United (Conservative) Synagogues of America with which the merged congregation is affiliated.

Merger of the two congregations, each of which dates back to the 1800s, was negotiated this summer for the purpose of strengthening them and providing improved services and facilities for worship as well as social activities.

The Beth David congregation originated with a small group of Russian immigrants in 1869, more than a century ago. Formal organization took place in 1892 and the cornerstone of the first permanent synagogue building at 157 Chalkstone Avenue was laid in 1899. That site was retained until 1945 when ground was broken for the present building at Oakland Avenue and Sparrow Street and the High Holidays were observed in the then uncompleted building there in October of the same year.

The upstairs portion, including the main sanctuary which seats more than 550, and the wing for the Hebrew School as well as a large social hall and kitchen facilities were dedicated in 1954.

Anshe Kovno Congregation was organized about 80 years ago by immigrants from Kovno, Lithuania. Members worshipped at a building on Orms Street which was taken over in 1962 by the state to make way for the Route 95 Expressway. From then until the merger with Beth David was consummated in time for this year's High Holiday services, Anshe Kovno members worshipped at the Sons of Zion Synagogue at 45 Orms Street.

TO SPEAK: Rabbi Emanuel A. Goldsmith, lecturer in Yiddish Language and Literature at Brandeis University, will be the speaker at the Bureau's Adult Education series on great Jewish thinkers of the twentieth century.

The first lecture on "Ahad Ha-am and Cultural Zionism" will be presented on Thursday, Oct. 29, at 8 p.m. at Hillel House.

Poll Shows Attitudes Split On Troop Aid

NEW YORK - American attitudes toward the Middle East conflict are overwhelmingly sympathetic to Israel but sharply divided as to whether the United States should send troops to defend Israel if its existence was threatened by the Arabs with Soviet backing, according to the latest Louis Harris poll made public recently.

The poll results also showed that a majority of Americans give President Nixon a great deal or some credit for initiating the current 90-day cease-fire in the Middle East.

Reports Indicate Soviets Planning Major Show Trial In Leningrad

LONDON - Soviet authorities are reportedly preparing a show trial of Russian citizens, mostly Jewish - the biggest in the Soviet Union since 1968, when 17 intellectuals were accused of dissention after the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The trial, likely to be held in Leningrad next month, is connected with the arrest of 30 Soviet citizens alleged to have tried to hijack a Soviet plane at Leningrad airport to fly to Finland last June.

Two leading Leningrad Jews, Grigory Vertlib, jurist, and Gillel Shur, engineer, have written to the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet protesting the trial and the searches of other Leningrad Jews following the arrests.

It is believed that the KGB, the Soviet secret police, had a hand in the alleged hijackings, sources said. Realizing how desperate many Soviet Jews had become to leave the country and seeing mounting applications for exit permits, the secret police are thought to have planted an agent provocateur - a Jew named B. Dymshits - and provoked the hijacking.

The purpose of the trial appears to be to terrorize Jews and curb their desires to emigrate. Procurator General Andreyevich Rudenko has taken charge of legal preparations and investigations. Rudenko, a member of the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist Party, was chief Soviet prosecutor at the Nuremberg trials.

It is feared that Jews will be tried on charges of attempting to seize state property, an offense punishable by death.

To Install Mrs. David Horovitz As Head Of Ladies' Association

Mrs. David Horovitz will be installed as president of the Ladies' Association of the Jewish Home for the Aged at the annual installation luncheon which will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 28, at 12:30 p.m. at the Ledgemont Country Club in Seekonk, Mass.

Also, Max Rose, Herman Rosen, Ben Snel, Harry Sklut, Hyman Stone, Louis Strauss, Perry Summer, Raymond Surdut and Alvin Venokoor.

Mrs. Charles Coken is in charge of reservations for the installation luncheon.

Court Says No Liquor Licenses For Clubs Discriminating Racially

PHILADELPHIA - The Pennsylvania - Delaware - Maryland Regional Council of the American Jewish Committee has hailed the decision by a three judge federal court in Scranton that the state of Pennsylvania may not grant liquor license to a private club that refuses membership or service because of race as a breakthrough in the battle against club discrimination.

In a joint statement by Jay C. Leff, president of the Council, and Edward H. Rosen, president of the Philadelphia chapter, the committee pointed out that, while the ruling does not deny the right of a club to choose its membership in any way it sees fit, the state may not grant a liquor license to a discriminatory club. This may well strike a serious blow to club discrimination, Leff and Rosen said.

If the decision is appealed to the United States Supreme Court, the Pittsburgh and Philadelphia chapters of the committee have agreed to file an amicus curiae brief through their regional and national organization.

The decision of the court was rendered in a case resulting from the refusal of the Moose Lodge 107 in Harrisburg to serve Representative K. LeRoy Irvis, a Pittsburgh Negro and Democratic majority leader of the State House.

Leff pointed out that a survey of club bias in Pennsylvania conducted by the committee in 1966 noted 36 downtown and country clubs in 13 Pennsylvania cities practice religious, racial or ethnic discrimination. The report concluded that club bias was the most pervasive form of institutionalized anti-Semitism.

Dr. Kaplan To Speak At B'nai Israel

Dr. Mordecai M. Kaplan, founder of the Reconstructionist movement and a noted Jewish philosopher, will be the guest speaker at a Torah Convocation to be held at Congregation B'nai Israel in Woonsocket on Sunday, Nov. 1, at 2:30 p.m. in the main sanctuary. A Mincha service, conducted by Rabbi William E. Kaufman and Cantor Philip Macktaz will precede Prof. Kaplan's address.

Dr. Kaplan's first major work, "Judaism as a Civilization," which appeared in 1934, was an original major contribution toward a program for Jewish life in this country. He has published numerous additional works in which he has elaborated on his conception of Judaism. Among these works are "The Future of the American Jew," "Judaism without Supernaturalism," "A Greater Judaism in the Making," and "The Religion of Ethical Nationhood."

Judge Lewis Z. Lavine, president of the congregation, has extended an open invitation to the general community.

During his stay in Woonsocket, Dr. Kaplan will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur I. Darman.

Obituaries

LOUIS FISHBEIN

Funeral services for Louis I. Fishbein, 92, a well known member of the Providence Jewish community, who died Sunday at the Jewish Home for the Aged, 99 Hillside Avenue, after an illness of two years, were held Monday at the Sugarman Memorial Chapel. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

The husband of the late Sarah (Miller) Fishbein, he was born on April 15, 1878, in Kishinev, the Ukraine, Russia, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fishbein. He emigrated to the United States in 1895 and married the same year, living in Boston until 1918, when the Fishbeins moved to Providence.

Mr. Fishbein, who served many charitable causes, was a founder of the Providence Hebrew Sheltering Society and the Chased Schel Amess Association.

With his wife, Mr. Fishbein was host to many transients who arrived in Providence during the depression years in need of temporary lodging.

Until his retirement because of illness in 1933, Mr. Fishbein owned the Louis I. Fishbein Construction Company here.

He was a founder of Temple Beth Shalom and was instrumental in having a chapel built at the Rhode Island Medical Center at Howard.

He was a life member of the Providence Hebrew Day School and a member of Temple Beth Sholom, Ahavath Sholom, the Mizrahi Organization of America, Hapoel Hamizrachi of America, Hebrew Free Loan Association, Mishkon Tfiloh, the Zionist Organization of America, B'nai B'rith, Jewish Home for the Aged and the Jewish Convalescent Home.

He is survived by eight sons, Morris, Dr. Jay N., and Samuel S. Fishbein of Providence; Dr. Joseph G., Mathew M. and Ralph Fishbein of Pawtucket, Dr. Arthur I. Fishbein of Boston, Mass., and Nathan S. Fishbein of New York, N.Y.; a brother, Samuel Fishbein of Revere, Mass.; a sister, Mrs. Ethel Levitan of Winthrop, Mass.; 17 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren.

MAX GENSER

Word has reached here of the death of Max Genser of 16712 Gledhill Street, Sepulveda, Calif., formerly of Providence, on Sunday. He was the husband of Dora Genser.

Besides his wife, he leaves two daughters, Mrs. Theodore Manheim and Mrs. Paul Brotman, both of California, and three grandchildren.

IRVING S. STRAUSS

Word has been received here of the death of Irving S. Strauss of San Francisco, Calif., formerly of Providence on Oct. 20. Burial was in San Francisco.

He was the son of the late Frank B. and Fannie E. (Klass) Strauss.

Besides his wife, Naomi Strauss, he is survived by a brother, Dr. Samuel D. Strauss of Schenectady, N.Y., and two sisters, Miss Beatrice Strauss and Mrs. David Feinberg, both of Providence.

ALBERT A. COKEN

Funeral services for Albert A. Coken, 61, of 64 Chatham Road, Cranston, a furrier in Providence for more than 30 years, who died unexpectedly Monday, were held the following day at Temple Beth Israel. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

The husband of Mary (Orliansky) Coken, he was born in Russia, a son of the late Leon and Bertha (Potter) Coken. He had been a Providence resident until 1954 when he moved to Cranston. Mr. Coken owned A. Coken Furs now located on Union Street.

A member of the board of directors and Men's Club of Temple Beth Israel, he was a past scoutmaster of Troop 10, and also a member of Redwood Lodge #35, AF&AM, and Touro Fraternal Association.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, David Coken of Kalamazoo, Mich.; a daughter, Mrs. Libby Gerhardt of New York City; two brothers, Irving I. Coken of Cranston and Charles Coken of Providence, and three grandchildren.

AAJE To Develop Curriculum Material

NEW YORK - A project to develop materials in Jewish studies to be used in public high schools and colleges throughout the United States has been undertaken by the American Association for Jewish Education, the national coordinating agency for Jewish education in the U.S.

The project was announced by Robert H. Arnow, president of the AAJE, following authorization by its national executive committee. Arnow said the initial stage of the three-year project was made possible by a grant from the Herman and Gertrude Gross Education Foundation.

He said that Dr. Sara Feinstein, recently appointed to the staff of the AAJE, will direct the program conducted under the guidance of the AAJE's national curriculum research institute.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK - The Isaac Stern - Eugene Istomin - Leonard Rose trio was invited by Prime Minister Heath to play at Chequers. But Heath was detained at 10 Downing St. by the hijacking crisis. He phoned the trio to play for his 90 guests "just as if I were there."

The next day Heath invited them to 10 Downing St. for a social visit.

The script of the play about Eleanor Roosevelt has been sent to Lynn Redgrave . . . Dolores del Rio is rehearsing her title role in "Camille" in Mexico City . . . Clive Barnes will write the introduction to Bantam Books' publication of the report of the Presidential Commission on Obscenity and Pornography . . . Carlo Ponti, who came here for the premiere of "Sunflower," flew to Milan to see his stricken father. He left his wife Sophia Loren here.

Erich Maria Remarque, the author whose funeral services were held near his home in Switzerland, once summarized his life for me. He said: "I have three things: Independence, with which I was born; tolerance, which is why I came to America; and a sense of humor, which I got in America. Three vital things; I think that's my life summary."

Glencarlo Uzzelli will be ready to open Ford's Mullet Bay Beach Hotel in St. Maarten Dec. 1 . . . N.Y. State's Art Council will pay for the city's first sound-and-light project, at the South St. Seaport. Illumination expert Abe Feder will light it . . . Irving R. Levine is completing another book during his year's sabbatical from NBC News. He'll report to his new NBC assignment in Washington Jan. 1.

Maria Harriman at first frowned upon her husband Averell's entry into politics as a candidate. She said: "I don't want to be a Mary Todd. I'd much rather be an Ann Rutledge" . . . After the '56 convention, when Adlai Stevenson won the nomination from Harriman, Stevenson's sister, Buffy Ives, mentioned her brother's campaigning on roller coasters and Ferris wheels.

Mrs. Harriman said: I don't mind roller coasters but Ferris wheels?"

Peter Duchin, who was reared by the Harrimans, composed special music for Mrs. Harriman's funeral services . . . Robert F. Wagner Jr., son of the former mayor, is working on the City's University's Special Campaign Recess Project . . . Dorothy Collins is the first one signed by Hal Prince for "Follies" . . . George Solti, who quit as Covent Garden Opera's musical director, will succeed Von Karajan as head of the Paris Orchestra.

Columbia Records' Goddard Lieberson tells of Thomas Edison's wife urging him to come to bed. He stalled, saying he was working on an invention to help all mankind. For hours she called him, and Edison said he was busy on something to help mankind. At 4 a.m. she burst into his laboratory and found him hovering over a lit electric bulb. Edison was shouting into the bulb, "Hello? Hello? Hello?"

The "Owl and the Pussycat" film has one dated scene. It shows George Segal buying a ticket to one of the six films for $2. They charge $4 now . . . Henry Youngman, who was on TV seven times one week, asks: "If Guy Lombardo retires, do we have to give up New Year's Eve?" . . . Jack Benny will play his violin at two fund - raising functions - with the Israeli Symphony Orchestra, and Oct. 14 at the Manhattan School of Music dinner.

At Shor's, Benny Friedman, the football immortal, told of a point made by Claude Harmon, the golf pro, blaming Father Dudley for the Giants' defeats.

The priest sits on the bench with players, and also goes into the dressing room with them. Harmon pointed out that the priest's presence prevents them from exploding with cuss-words.

At the worst, therefore, all the players say is "Aw, shucks . . ."

The first grandchild of the late John Steinbeck will be born in Saigon, where John Steinbeck Jr. and his wife are working . . . Robert Redford, who'd never operated a motorcycle, did over a thousand miles on one for his role as a racer in "Little Fauss and Big Halsy."

The first time I met President Nasser in Cairo he shrugged about recent archeological discoveries. "I'd rather solve one problem a day than discover a tomb a minute." The next time I saw him, also in Cairo, he said of the Palestine refugees: "I can stop one, two, three or four fanatics from crossing into Israel but not 250,000 . . ."

ENGAGED: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Greenfield of 100 Dexterdale Road announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Leslie R. Greenfield of 888 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, Mass., to Arthur Barrow of Cambridge, Mass. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Barrow of Valley Stream, Long Island, N.Y.

Miss Greenfield, a graduate of Hope High School and Bryant College, is employed by the law firm of Conragen and Russian.

Mr. Barrow was graduated from Valley Stream South High School and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

A Dec. 6 wedding is planned.

Lies Not To Tell Yourself

Men tell themselves a lot of lies. It is hard to be truthful to friends and relatives all the time and it is even harder to be truthful to oneself.

I have dear friends who insist they like their boss. They repeat to themselves over and over that along with fried eggplant they also like their boss.

They remind me of old Foreign Legionnaires who get a tear in their eye talking about the good old days at Sidi bel Abbas where their officers flogged them for minor infractions.

But if a man has to work for a living, pretending to like the boss isn't that dangerous a ruse to perpetuate upon himself.

Five Reasons Why Your Family Will Benefit If Paul J. PISANO Is Elected MAYOR of CRANSTON

1. AN EFFECTIVE DRUG PREVENTION PROGRAM:

As a family man PAUL PISANO wants your children and his children to grow up in a city which is free from the present and growing menace of drug abuse.

2. QUALITY EDUCATION:

As a product of Cranston's schools, PAUL PISANO will work with the School Committee to improve the quality of our educational programs and facilities. He opposes regionalization of elementary and secondary education because such a proposal would downgrade rather than benefit Cranston's educational system. He wants your children and his to enjoy the convenience, the safety, and the friendships which only neighborhood schools can foster, and thus he will resist any attempt to bring forced bussing to Cranston.

3. POLICE AND FIRE PROTECTION:

PAUL PISANO believes that our safety services should receive high priority in this age of civil disorder. Crime in the streets can be reduced and safety hazards can be minimized if the mayor encourages and cooperates with his police and fire departments. Mr. Pisano believes that those who are charged with the protection of our lives and property, at the risk of their own well-being, deserve adequate wages, intensive training, and professional respect.

4. IMPROVED RECREATIONAL FACILITIES:

As a former school athlete, PAUL PISANO knows the need for adequate recreational facilities for all of Cranston's citizens. He wants improvement and expansion of our present facilities, and new areas to serve those who are now deprived of convenient opportunities for recreation.

5. ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY:

PAUL PISANO insists that air, water, and land pollution in Cranston must be curbed. The Pawtuxet River and the Upper Bay must be restored, industrial wastes controlled, sanitary landfill stringently supervised, and older neighborhoods restored and rescued from decline. Cranston must be made a more healthful and beautiful place in which to live. This must be our legacy to Cranston's coming generation.

ORGANIZATION NEWS

JUNIOR HIGH STUDENTS
The Jewish Community Center will conduct its Junior High open house at the Center building on Sunday, Oct. 25, from 4 to 6 p.m. All junior high students are invited to attend. Ellen Green, junior high activities worker, will discuss Center tween activities with those who attend.

Clubs for Junior High boys and girls will open on Wednesday, Oct. 28, at 7 p.m. Four clubs are planned, and each club will be assigned an advisor to help in planning and carrying out its activities.

DRUG PROGRAM
Several members of "Together," a drug crisis and information center in Providence, will speak to senior high students and interested parents on Monday, Nov. 2, at 8 p.m. at the Jewish Community Center.

The program has been organized by the Center Youth Council to bring information on drugs and their uses to senior high school students and their parents. A series of small group discussions will follow the speakers.

PARLOR MEETING
A parlor meeting in connection with the campaign of the Cranston division of the Jewish Federation of Rhode Island will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 28, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Goldberger of 71 Baldwin Orchard Drive, Cranston.

Irving Sigal, chairman of the Cranston division, has announced that there will be a guest speaker. Norm Bomzer is co-chairman of the division.

Policy Of Strength, Not Talk

JERUSALEM - A clearer and firmer Israeli policy had begun to emerge. As the dust settles on the first round of the Jordanian Civil War, on the second retirement of Dr. Jarring, and on the funeral of Nasser, the new Israeli line is more broadly based in domestic support, harder, yet fundamentally more optimistic than the policy of two months ago.

The new line is based on strength actual and to come rather than negotiation. The approach to peace is that of the "long haul" rather than the hope of a new formulation that will lead to a breakthrough. The new attitude is evident both in the "foreign" field and the "domestic" field of the occupied Arabs.

No new policy statement has been made, but the line is evident from talks with Ministers and senior officials. It dates from the Cabinet revolt of General Dayan, the Defense Minister, and his friends, in late August which led to Israel's withdrawal from the Jarring talks for as long as the "illegal" Soviet missiles remained in the standstill zone.

The policy was dramatically vindicated when President Nixon also toughened his approach to the Russians, and arranged to supply military and economic aid for Israel on an unprecedented scale. Israel now feels itself to be strong, and to be getting stronger, and the feeling is apparent in a dozen different ways. It could be seen in the "ultimatum" delivered to the Jordanian guerrillas - that Israel will "not tolerate" implementation of the guerrillas' cease-fire agreement with Hussein, whereby they would return to the borders and resume activities against Israel.

It could be seen in the decision to hold municipal elections in the West Bank towns; in the beginning of work on housing for Jewish settlement in Hebron; and in the erection of permanent tourist huts to replace the tents at Sharm El-Sheikh.

The most obvious expression of the policy is the refusal to take part in "peace talks" as long as these threaten to lead to Israeli withdrawal without a convincing peace in exchange - in particular if these are conducted under pressure of Egyptian missiles along the Suez Canal.

In the occupied territories the policy is to hold on to every inch of land until there is peace and even then to insist on "secure" borders. Meanwhile the areas of "coexistence" with the occupied Arabs are to be enlarged and consolidated, and at the same time "facts" are being created to increase Israel's bargaining power in the event of a settlement, and to maximise pressure on the Arabs to reach one. It is the stick and carrot approach.

The "facts" being created are not limited to the increase of Israel's stake in the territories by building new settlements and blocks of flats. Part of the new policy is to make the first serious attempt to rehabilitate the 160,000 refugees now under Israeli administration.

Hopes of a quick breakthrough to peace under the Jarring talks were never high in Israel, and such as they were shattered well before the death of Nasser by the infringements of the cease-fire agreement. Nasser's death has added to the disillusionment. Israeli officials now expect a period of collective and

How?

By BERYL SEGAL

As the years go by, and they grow into decades, and the disquieting news keeps coming from the Soviet Union, we ask ourselves: How?

How did it happen that the Soviet Union and Israel have become such mortal enemies?

We, whose memory goes back to the early days of the Russian Revolution, cannot believe what we read, what we hear, what we are told about the Soviet Union and the anti-Israel, anti-Jewish policies so manifest in the attacks in the press and the pronouncements of its emissaries.

How did it happen? We remember the spring days of the Revolution. We remember the days when we were walking on air. We were as people dreaming a pleasant dream and were afraid to be awakened. Decree followed decree, and the decrees were as honey to the tongue and balsam to our bruised body.

THE GATES OF THE GHETTO ARE OPENED. JEWS MAY LIVE ALL OVER THE LAND. And the Jews spread out East and West, North and South of the great plains of the Russian Republic. No more barriers of religion or nationality. We are all citizens of the Republic.

THE DOORS TO THE SCHOOLS AND THE UNIVERSITIES ARE OPEN TO ALL. And Jews flocked to the schools and they were welcomed there, and they contributed to the cultural life of the Republic. Nothing stood in their way. No artificial barriers.

JEWS MAY FOLLOW ANY PROFESSION THEY WANT. The "Except Jews" clause was abolished. For so many centuries we were used to be exceptions to every right and privilege of the Russians that our heads began to swim. Is that possible? Can a Jew become an officer in the Army or Navy? Can a Jew practice Law outside of the Pale? Can a Jew be a teacher without undergoing conversion? Can a Jew own land and farm it? No more "except Jews?"

Is there any wonder that Jews danced in the streets. They who had lived in darkness all those years had suddenly been given a great light, and the Revolution gave them that light.

They danced and they gave their best to their old-new land of Russia.

They gave the land a Leo Trotzky, the man who was mentioned, until the days of Stalin, in the same breath as Lenin. Lenin and Trotzky, the two builders of the Revolution. Trotzky, the builder of the Red Army.

They gave the land a Maxim Litvinov, the man who was the mastermind of the Foreign Policies of the Soviets.

They gave the land a Kaganowsky, the right hand man to Stalin, until he fell from the grace of the madman.

They gave the land men and women of distinction in music and in literature, in diplomacy and in internal affairs, in medicine and in the sciences. They went in with heart and soul into the building of a new land, and they excelled.

They excelled. Here is the key to the sudden about-face of the Stalins and the Khrushchevs. The Jews are everywhere. They excel. They do better than we.

The Book of Daniel tells us that Darius the King of the ancient Medes and Persia appointed three governors over his kingdom. Daniel the Jew was one of them. And when the prices and governors saw that he EXCELS over all of them they "sought to find occasion against Daniel . . . but they could find no occasion nor fault, for as much as he was faithful . . ." Then the princes and governors said: "We shall not find any fault in Daniel except in the Faith of his Fathers. He is a Jew, isn't he?"

And Daniel was thrown in the Lion's pit.

The same story is repeated today in the Soviet Union. They are Jews, and therefore are not to be tolerated in the affairs of the land.

It is a scheme that worked for the Governors of the ancient Medes, and it works for the Commissars of the Soviet Union.

This and this alone seems to be the cause of the great animosity between the men in control of the Soviet Union and the Jews. Such hatred, such sadistic enmity can only be explained by the old, old dictum: "They are Jews and that is good enough reason."

And now on the Eve of Simchas Torah, when the youth of America is getting ready for yet another protest march against the Soviet Union and or the Jews, and the youth of Providence is preparing for "Hakofes" to express their solidarity with the Jews of the Soviet Union, at Temple Emanu-El, I cannot be with them. I envy their zeal, but I will sit down in the manner of our forefathers and ask the age-old question:

How? How did it happen? Why such sorrow in place of the joy we have witnessed when the Revolution was young and there was Spring in the land?

(The opinions expressed by Mr. Segal are his own and not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

War Spending: Essential for Jobs?

One of the most evil economic propaganda weapons that we could hand the communists would be a voluntary admission that the U.S. needs record and rising war spending to support our prosperity. This is propaganda the Russians have been trumpeting since Lenin's day. It is not true. Peace would be the most electrifyingly bullish thing that could happen to us.

One of the most explosive economic weapons that we could hand America's destructive young radicals would be the argument that the U.S. cannot cut war spending and still maintain reasonably full employment. This is an argument the young who hate America advance to prove our society is not worth preserving. It is utterly false. By

Student Attempts To Arrange Debate

For the past few weeks, numerous articles concerning a "Caprio-Israel clash" have been published in the Providence Journal.

As a representative of the Politics Club of Roger Williams College, Bristol, I have been attempting in vain to get the two candidates together for a public debate.

For three days I have been trying to get some form of a definite answer from Mr. Caprio's campaign office. The only response I got was a list of people, who might be able to help me in getting an answer.

I didn't mind the first three phone calls, but shortly afterwards it became ridiculous. I have drawn a very firm conclusion: that Mr. Caprio does not want to debate Mr. Israel; until perhaps after the election.

Is Mr. Caprio afraid of Mr. Israel? I often wondered why? What do you have to lose, Mr. Caprio? What are you afraid of? Are you trying to hide something?

The good People of the State of Rhode Island deserve some answers. We have the right to know. I could understand the silence if we lived behind the Iron Curtain, but we're not, Mr. Caprio. We're in America, where people have the right to speak out, and demand to know the truth.

If you won't speak out to the citizens of Rhode Island now, in the form of a public debate, how can you honestly say you will serve the people of Rhode Island as Attorney General in their best interests?

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By Roger E. Spear

Merck's Multiple Reduced

Q: Can you discuss the recent weakness in Merck & Company shares? Although the proposed merger with National Starch was called off, the shares have not recovered, W. R.

A: The failure of these shares to respond to the termination of merger talks reflects investor disappointment with Merck's second quarter operating results. Because 1969 interim earnings were strike-depressed and the 1970 period would benefit from the reduction in the surtax, a 20 per cent jump in profits had been anticipated. However, per share earnings gained only 6 per cent on a 9 per cent increase in sales. Merck & Co. has long been appraised at a higher premium than the drug industry as a whole. Even with the recent weakness, shares still command a multiple of 26x (based on a reduced estimate of 1970 earnings to $3.10 a share) compared with an industry multiple of 20x. In the past five years Merck shares have traded at an average of 33x earnings, thus, the current multiple reflects a reappraisal of the company's growth potential.

Q: What is your opinion of Hall Printing bought at 41? Will shares recover? G. H.

A: Hall Printing is the leading printer of paperback books, which account for 35 per cent of annual sales. A similar proportion of revenues is derived from catalog printing, with magazines contributing the remaining 30 per cent. The company has a conservative capitalization; long term debt of $9.5 million is carried at 1 1/4 per cent; there is no preferred stock and just over one million common shares. Current assets are three times current liabilities with cash items accounting for 30 per cent of current assets. Because the floating supply of stock is thin, fluctuations in share price are exaggerated. Earnings for the June period — first quarter of the 1970-71 fiscal year — were off sharply as a result of strikes. However, improvement over the balance of the fiscal year should lift earnings above the $2.95 a share of fiscal 1970. Hold for recovery.

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

We're back to the tough ones again, for today's hand is just that. Yet, again everything is actually presented to an alert Declarer to go after the hand in the only right way. No one did although one pair did make the hand when the hand on lead led an Ace. A very bad lead in this case.

North
 ♠ A J 7 2
 ♥ A J 6
 ♦ 10 7
 ♣ A Q J 3

West
 ♥ K Q 10 8 7 4
 ♦ A Q J 8

East
 ♥ 9 5 3 2
 ♦ 9 6 5 3
 ♣ 10 7 6 2

South
 ♠ K G 10 8 5 4
 ♥ Void
 ♦ K 4 2
 ♣ K 9 8 4

North-South were vulnerable, West Dealer. The bidding as it went in some of the cases.

W	N	E	S
1♥	Dble P		4♣
P	6♣	End

Some pairs only reached game, two playing the hand with North as Declarer where a Diamond lead would have set the hand right off the bat but one didn't come so they had the same chance to make the hand as the South Declarers. As far as the bidding goes, when North made the take-out Double after West's Heart bid, he implied a Spade suit as well as at least an opening bid. This should have encouraged South even more than some of them were for merely bid game and settled for it. They were fortunate in this case for those who did bid the slam, failed to make it except in the case mentioned above.

A take-out Double generally shows an affinity for every suit except that bid by an opponent, so if North's high cards were elsewhere, South could have used them better. South should have made the slam try which would certainly have been accepted by North. Either way the problem here is to make six whether in it or not for as you know, Duplicate gives credit for extra tricks even when slams are not bid so a pair in four making six beats a pair in five making five.

All West's but one led the Heart King and all Souths played the Ace from Dummy. When they eventually tried to lead up to their own Diamond King they were disappointed when West cashed two Diamond tricks. What did they expect? Hadn't West opened the bidding? This certainly should have pinpointed every high card in the opponents' combined hands and should have alerted the Declarers as to how to better play the hand. They should all have known that the Diamond Ace would be off-side.

So what should they do? With the absolute knowledge of the whereabouts of every key card they should formulate a plan before playing too automatically to the first trick for going up with that Heart Ace will sign their death warrant. They should play low and ruff in their own hand. This leaves the Ace and Jack of Hearts still in Dummy to be utilized later. Now they should play all their Trumps and all their Clubs ending in Dummy. Dummy's last three cards will be that same Ace and Jack of Hearts and a Diamond. Declarer's last three are Diamonds, East's are immaterial, West's the problem, his. As every one of his cards are known, his discards are easy to keep track of. His last four cards will be the Queen, 10 of Hearts and the Ace, Queen of Diamonds. He must discard one of those so you can now see his problem and also the opportunity whatever he does gives Declarer.

If he saves the two Hearts he has to bare down to a singleton Diamond Ace so if he does this a Diamond is led to him. His forced Heart return goes right through Dummy's finessing position, the Jack is inserted and the hand made. If he discards a Heart, the Ace can be played dropping the Queen and making the Jack the twelfth trick. There is nothing West can do to combat this. Yet nobody made this hand legitimately and frankly I do not blame them.

Moral: You can see how to bid and play hands much better as a kibitzer than sitting right at the table. Especially how to play the hands. If you can learn to look at your own hand and Dummy from a farther position you might do better. Even try sitting way back for a while you will be surprised how different you see things.

Time To Spare

By GERALD ANDREWS - Retirement Adviser

Time To Shape-Up

"Goodness, Gerald, I do believe you're getting flabby around the middle." Is that any way for a wife to talk to her husband?

I wanted to say it was her fault — all those muffins, pies, and cakes she's always baking sure are tempting. But she was too quick for me.

"I pride myself," she said, "on my baking, but over-indulging is another thing. I've seen you sneaking around for late night snacks. And when's the last time you took me bowling or went for a swim to work off some of that good eating? I think you're getting plain lazy!"

The little lady's fighting words made me feel guilty, as I looked at my slightly bulging belly. She was right. It was time to lose all those bulges and win back a wife (who, by the way, threatened me with no more desserts).

Have you been sitting around, too, not exercising much except to open and close the refrigerator door? I know how easy it is to forget the importance of daily exercise, especially in retirement. But we're never too old to begin a fitness program.

First I received an okay from my doctor. His only advice was: "Start off slow and ease into whatever you do. Gradually step up your activity, and be sure to stop before you become fatigued."

Well, you know how it is . . . getting started on a regular exercise program takes the most effort. But once you begin, you immediately feel the benefits. You even breathe deeper . . . soon you look forward to tuning up your muscles every day. And if you do something you like to do, exercise can be fun.

My wife and I have liked bicycle riding ever since we were kids. So now the two of us start each morning together with a little jaunt around town. She says exercise is more fun when you work out with others.

The truth is, you get exercise in hundreds of games and sports like bowling, golf, shuffleboard, etc. The only problem is they're "start and stop" exercises that don't give you a complete workout. Gardening, swimming, and walking are the best and most enjoyable forms of exercise, but you can also hustle over to your local Y for physical fitness programs. Or find out what's at your neighborhood school or recreation center.

It's only been a few weeks of daily cycling, but already I feel great. Muscles are tightened, I've dropped a few pounds, and my posture's improved . . . and maybe best of all, guess who's baking my favorite desserts again!

HAVE YOU GOT IT? — Maybe you think I'm referring to that great old game of "Button, Button, Who's Got The Button?" No, not at all. It came to mind as I watched John P. Cronin coaching the LaSalle Academy football players the other day. "Surely," I thought, "We are fortunate in having such a giant in our midst. He has a way in transmitting his teachings to his players. Now just what is it that makes Jack Cronin different; such an inspiration to everyone he meets?" And then it came to mind. "It's personality," I mused. "It's enthusiasm, a quality that's infectious."

ONE GIFT — A great man once said, "If I had but one gift to give my son, it would be enthusiasm." And what a gift! Without it, you become a drab, hum-drum individual. You not only hinder your own progress but you depress your associates. Napoleon was called the "100,000 Man" because it was said his enthusiasm would inspire 100-thousand men. It's the reason for success by some coaches and athletes who achieve greatness while others are just ordinary, run-of-the-mill performers. And so, if you haven't got it, get it!

CASSIUS CLAY HAS IT — An exciting athlete is said to possess "color." It's an ingredient that is difficult to define. Like charm, chowder or chop suey, it's made up of a variety of ingredients, the most important of which is enthusiasm. It's the ability to get excited even if it's only over a boiled egg or a turnip. Cassius Clay is surrounded by it. He is exciting to watch if he is only walking down the street; doubly so when he's in the boxing ring.

MAGNETIC — The excitement that follows Cassius will attract big crowds when he steps in the ring with Jerry Quarry through closed-circuit television at R.I. Auditorium on Oct. 26th. Can he come back? Can he summon the vitality to last throughout the fight if he doesn't win quickly? Will he upset the old saying that "they don't come back?" These and other questions are in the minds of sports fans everywhere because Cassius possesses that indefinable quality called a number of years ago by Eleanor Glyn — "it."

NEW-OLD STYLE — Joe Celletti says that boxer Tommy Dragon has a Gene Tunney haircut. If you young guys don't remember Tunney, may I remind that his crew-cut pompadour was in evidence when he gained immortality by winning the heavyweight championship and defending it in the ring with Jack Dempsey. Celletti wishes the long-haired fellows would follow the style being worn by Dragon. Joe worked in Dragon's corner at the Aud. during the last boxing show and was very impressed with the way Tommy could follow instructions. "He's another Bob Foster!" Celletti exclaimed, "He's going places!" That should make Dragon's manager, Charlie Lager, happy.

COMING BACK — With Dragon on the move and with Dennis McNamee showing much promise, the local ring presentations seem on the upswing. Eddie Imond, who directs McNamee, is predicting big things for his protegee, too. With those two and the popular Rickey Raimondi on the fistic horizon, boxing is surely moving back into the sports spotlight. Raimondi will be seen in action in Providence soon. There has been an abundance of good comment on the last show at R.I. Aud.

GOOD FELLOWS GET TOGETHER — The Fraternity Club will hold its 15th annual reunion in Prudence Hall (Silver Lake) on Oct. 31st. Chief Ernest Pullano is behind the move and among those attending will be Joe (Giuseppi) Pips Pullano, Al Macaroni, Al Pullano, Tubby Zanfagna, Carl Toti, Joe Gatta, Bill Sheehan, Tony Lanifero

Lefty Carpinelli, Camille "Red" Durand, Hank Soar and others; many others whose names were in the headlines when Tim O'Neil's baseball teams were attracting thousands of fans. A whole story could be written about each one and there just isn't room here. Ah yes, those were the days, my friends! But what about Fratone's Tigers? Remember them? So start saying, "Remember this and that — " and CARRY ON!

Character is revealed by what we fall for, as well as what we stand for.

ENGAGED: Mr. and Mrs. Moshe S. Zernach of Jerusalem, Israel, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Rita Zernach to Joel Isaac Braude, son of Rabbi and Mrs. William G. Braude of Providence.

Miss Zernach is on leave of absence from the Hebrew University in Jerusalem where she is an executive officer of the Authority for Research and Development. She has also served as master of ceremonies for special radio and television programs and as news announcer for the Israel Broadcast Authority. A native of Iraq, Miss Zernach came to Israel with her family as a child in 1951. She is the great-granddaughter of the late Abraham Aslan, former Chief Rabbi of Baghdad.

After graduating from Hope High School, Mr. Braude was awarded a scholarship by The Jewish Agency in 1957 to the Institute for Youth Leaders from abroad located in Jerusalem. He then studied at the Hebrew University and Brown University where he received his B.A. in 1966. He has taught in the Hebrew High School of the Bureau of Jewish Education in Providence and has served as a group leader at the Bradley Hospital. In 1969 he received his M.A. from Rhode Island College in Child Guidance. For the past year he served as counselor for foreign students at Hebrew University. After the wedding he will pursue studies leading to a doctorate in the field of child guidance or counseling. He is the grandson of the late Rabbi and Mrs. Yitzhak Isaac Braude of Denver, Colo., and of this city, and of Mrs. Joseph Finklestein, also of Providence, and the late Joseph Finklestein.

The wedding is planned for Sunday, Nov. 1, at 3 p.m. at Temple Beth El. Friends in the community are invited to attend.

GARBERS HAVE DAUGHTER

Dr. and Mrs. Perry Garber of 142 West Blue Ridge Road, Cranston, announce the birth of their second child and second daughter, Jolie Sara, on Oct. 14.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. David Licker of 1750 N.E. 191 Street, Building D-1, Apartment 405, North Miami Beach, Fla. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Garber of 78 Pembroke Avenue.

Maternal great-grandfather is David Exter of Cranston.

ATTEND BROWN

Among the 804 freshmen who were accepted at Brown University for the coming year were two local boys.

Paul Donald Glassman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Glassman of 170 Ridge Street, Pawtucket, is a graduate of Classical High School and he is a candidate for the Bachelor of Arts degree.

Philip Sherwin Spencer, also a Classical High School graduate and candidate for the Bachelor of Arts degree, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Spencer of 20 Ninth Street.

RELIGIOUS SCHOOL

Twenty-four boys and girls who began their first grade religious school studies at Temple Beth El this year were consecrated during the Shemini Atzers-Simchas Torah service yesterday morning.

They are Lauren Ann Adler, Lisa Frances Aronson, David Robert Benharris, Amy Beth Brown, Bradley Todd Chase, Richard Lee Chase, Michele Elsie Chernov and Mark Vernon Fleisig.

Also, Marjorie Sue Fradin, Gerald Lawrence Graff, Deborah Lynn Kerzner, Betsy Kingsbury, Jill Susan Landesberg, Jonathan Litchman, Suzanne Dana Troy Lovett and Alan Philip Ostrow.

Also, John Stephen Prescott, Michael Lawrence Schein, Lloyd Louis Schwartz, Jane Sarah Shein, Debra Lee Silverman, Jane Louise Symonds, Emily Ruth Torgan and Miriam Judith Wold.

ENGAGED: Mr. and Mrs. William Butterman of 718 Armistice Boulevard, Pawtucket, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Judith A. Butterman, to Edward Stachurski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stachurski of 115 Saratoga Avenue, Pawtucket.

Both were graduated from Tolman High School and the University of Rhode Island. Miss Butterman was a member of Chi Omega sorority, and Mr. Stachurski was a member of Sigma Nu fraternity. He is a chemical engineer.

A Feb. 13 wedding is planned.

ORGANIZATION NEWS

SELF DEFENSE

Charles Earle, director of the Mattson Academy of Karate, will conduct introductory courses in self-defense and Karate at the Jewish Community Center. It has been announced by Elliott Goldstein, director of health and physical education.

Mr. Earle presents a program, "The Living Room Dojo," on Friday nights on Channel 36. Classes will be held on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. at the Center.

ELECTS OFFICERS

The Rhode Island Council, Jewish National Fund, has elected as its officers for the coming year, Louis Baruch Rubinstein, chairman; M. Louis Abedon, Rabbi Saul Leeman and Charles Swartz, vice chairmen; Stephen A. Gordon, secretary, and Joseph Teverow, treasurer.

In recognition of their many years of service to the organization, Ernest Nathan and Harry Finkelstein, immediate past chairman and treasurer, respectively, were named as honorary chairman and honorary treasurer.

The Council will hold the first meeting of its board of directors on Sunday, Oct. 25, at 10 a.m., at the Jewish Community Center.

A film which depicts the current role of the Jewish National Fund in reforestation, roadbuilding and the establishment of new settlements in Israel will be shown. Abraham Hertzog, executive director of the New England Regional office, will address the board.

MCLAUGHLIN TO SPEAK

Father John McLaughlin, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, will be the guest speaker at the Temple Emanu-El Men's Club breakfast meeting which will be held on Sunday, Oct. 25, at 9:30 a.m. Morning worship in the chapel will precede the breakfast meeting.

Merwin Bolusky, program chairman, has announced that a question and answer period will follow the main address. Co-chairmen of this program are Alec Gurwitz and Malvern R. Ross.

FALL SOCIAL PLANNED

The South Shore Single Adult Group of Temple Beth Am, Phase II, in Randolph, Mass., will hold their Fall Social on Sunday, Oct. 25, from 7 to 11 p.m. at the temple on Main Street in Randolph.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Swartz

Ina Susan Swartz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Swartz of 3 Bedford Road, Pawtucket, was married on Saturday, Sept. 5, to Barry Sandrew, son of Paul Sandrew of New London, Conn., and the late Rose Sandrew. Rabbi William G. Braude officiated at the 7:30 p.m. ceremony which was held at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride was attended by her twin sister, Mrs. Harold Lightman, and Dr. Stuart Sandrew served as best man for his brother.

Following a wedding trip to Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Sandrew are living at 26 Bryon Road, West Roxbury, Mass.

Mrs. Sandrew was graduated from Pawtucket West High School and the Shepard-Gill School of Nursing. She is charge nurse at the Star of David Nursing Hospital in West Roxbury.

Mr. Sandrew is a graduate of Valley Forge Military Academy and the University of Hartford. He is presently a graduate student at Northeastern University.

much of the growth in the industry involves such traditional methods as uniformed guard services, the surge in security needs has nurtured dozens of ingenious new devices. Realizing the demand, Baker Industries, a long-established maker of fire-fighting chemicals and detection systems, has been stressing the service end of its protective security business since 1965. Company has acquired several firms which provide fire and burglary alarm surveillance plus several guard service companies. The Wells Fargo Services Group, which accounted for 77.6 per cent of last year's revenues, offers services such as armored car pick-up and delivery of bank deposits and inter-bank deliveries of cash and securities, etc. Largely as a result of numerous acquisitions, revenues and earnings increased at compound annual rates of 47 per cent and 26 per cent respectively, over the past four years. However, because Baker generally uses its common stock for purchasing these firms, near-term earnings growth may be slowed due to the currently depressed price of Baker stock. Excluding any new acquisitions, it is estimated that Baker's profits should improve an average of 8 per cent yearly over the long term. Although there are hundreds of small, privately owned companies in the field, there are far fewer publicly held firms. Some with varying stakes in crime prevention include: American District Telegraph, Bangor-Pinta, Breeze Corp., Wm. J. Burns, Walter Kidde, Pinderton's and Wackenhut Corp.

Uncertainties Cloud Future of United Brands

Q: We have shares of AMK common, now United Brands. What is your opinion of this issue? A. K. We are holding shares of United Brands and would like your opinion and information on this new company. M. S.

A: United Brands, a newly formed entity, resulted from the June, 1970, merger of AMK Corp., a major meat packer through its John Morrell subsidiary, and United Fruit Co. Because the Federal Trade Commission has challenged this merger, United Fruit will continue to operate as a separate body, pending the resolution of the FTC proceeding. United Brands recently reported second quarter earnings of 53 cents a share, down from $1.29 in the previous comparable quarter. Sales were $381.7 million, up from $365.2 million last year. This poor showing is attributable to floods which hit the banana-growing lands and to the lingering effects of last fall's hurricane. John Morrell's margins may improve in the final half of 1970, aided by lower hog prices. However, should losses from the recent corn blight affect the hog supply, margins may be penalized in 1971. In view of the uncertainties involved, both with the company's earnings outlook and the FTC suit, shares are relatively unappealing at this time.

Q: Thriftmart has reduced its dividend from 35 cents to 25 cents to 15 cents. Should I hold or sell? M.F.

A: Thriftmart operates a chain of supermarkets, liquor-delicatessen stores and cash-and-carry wholesale outlets in Southern California, an area hard-hit by defense cutbacks and unemployment. Earnings for the year ended last March were off sharply on a slight increase in sales. June quarter results were similarly disappointing. Margins were under heavy pressure from competitive price-cutting in a period of rising merchandise and salary costs. Four supermarkets have been converted to discount outlets and a new store was opened in April. Although restoration of the former dividend rate is not an early prospect, shares may be held for probable further price recovery.

Crime Protection
A Growth Industry

Q: I am interested in investing in the crime protection industry. Would you comment on Baker Industries and name others in the field? B.W.

A: More and more, people are turning to private enterprise for public services. Crime protection is one phase of this accelerating trend; and business is booming for most companies in this field. It is estimated that private crime fighters took in more than $3 billion last year, nearly double the 1963 figure. One company president estimates that the market is growing at about 10-15 per cent annually. In fact, about the only "industry" growing faster is crime itself. While

SURVEYING THE SCENE in Haifa port as an unprecedented number of Western immigrants arrive, this girl wonders if her family will ever be settled again.

Increased American Immigration To Israel May Be Direct Consequence Of War

ISRAEL - As the first three stars appeared to signal the end of Shabbat, the boat had docked in Haifa port and now the group of Americans was on its way to Jerusalem.

As they approached the town of Lod, the lights of Israel's international airport burned brightly and over-tired children pressed their noses against the windowpanes to catch a glimpse of the huge airplanes shimmering on the tarmac.

A little girl stared at the large entrance sign with its Hebrew letters and exclaimed excitedly, "Look, Mommy - a Jewish airport!"

Carol Oppenheimer smiled at her four-year old daughter - a smile shared by the other parents on the bus.

"This is, after all, why we came to Israel," said Dr. Stuart Oppenheimer and the other parents agreed.

Identity. A word repeated constantly by everyone in the group. To live in a Jewish country, they said, to raise our children as Jews in Israel.

Perhaps more than the political consequences of the Six-Day War, the sociological implications will be the ones to which future historians will point when they write about the war's effects on the Jewish People.

Buoyed by the Six-Day War which awed Jews - let alone non-Jews - the Jewish People united to astound the world as they plunged into the Emergency Campaign proclaimed by the Keren Hayesod-United Israel Appeal in 54 countries and the United Jewish Appeal in the United States.

As the funds for Israel's survival soared to unprecedented heights, Jews looked at one another and knew that something had changed. The established patterns of thought and action pushed the spirit of identification to the limit: "aliya."

Since the rebirth of the State in 1948, most immigrants had come from devastated Europe and from the hate-ridden Arab countries. To most Westerners even Israel's most ardent supporters - immigration was considered something to support as long as it was others who were doing the immigrating. Especially in the free and prosperous English-speaking countries, aliya was an abstract concept.

Five months after the June war, several alumni of Young Judea, the Hadassah Zionist Youth Movement in America, met to form a "garin" - a nucleus - and they called themselves "Hamagshimim," those who fulfill.

Their aim was to organize married professionals in their twenties and thirties who have the temperaments and abilities to live in a new type of cooperative community in Israel.

The garin's plans focused on Neve Ilan in the Judean Hills. Once a kibbutz, it had been abandoned in 1956 after several attempts at settlement failed because of poor agricultural conditions. Now Hamagshimim wanted the 680 dunams of land for a "moshav shitufi" - a cooperative settlement where each family would have its own home and the group would run the moshav's enterprises collectively, each family drawing an income parallel to its needs.

Most cooperative settlements in Israel are agricultural. But the members of Hamagshimim are not farmers and they planned a unique experiment in cooperative living which makes use of their professional skills.

Neve Ilan will have a school for emotionally disturbed children; an electronics factory; a school for instruction in Hebrew and courses in Israeli culture and history; and, most grandiose of all, a resort with hotel and country club facilities. The Israeli government is providing some 60 per cent of the capital; the rest will come from the garin and outside investors. Certain members of the group will work in their professions outside the settlement and their income will be pooled.

On a warm Saturday night in September, the S.S. Queen Anna Maria edged into her berth at Haifa port and the largest number of Western immigrants ever to arrive on one ship disembarked. Among them were 35 families of Garin Hamagshimim.

Until Neve Ilan is ready, they will live in the new absorption center at Mevaseret Zion, some five kilometers from Jerusalem. Here each family has a house with two or three bedrooms; there is a clinic, a grocery store

Meir Accepts Degree College

JERUSALEM - Premier Golda Meir has accepted an honorary degree from Hebrew Union College, the seminary of Reform Judaism, and told an appreciative audience in the college chapel that she was "confident there will be no government crisis about it."

Mrs. Meir was referring indirectly to the bitter opposition toward the Reform movement by the Orthodox National Religious Party, a member of her coalition government. The Orthodox establishment in Israel refuses to recognize Reform rabbis and has tried to block their efforts to set up Reform congregations in Israel.

Dr. Nelson Glueck, president of the American-based HUC which recently opened its seminary in Israel, addressed himself to that problem as he conferred an honorary doctorate of humane letters on the 73-year-old Israeli premier.

Dr. Glueck said, "We shall labor quietly but determinedly for complete freedom of religious practice here in Israel in all the phases of life and are confident that such freedom will eventually be established here for all Jews to exercise their religious feelings in accordance with their own traditions and judgment."

Mrs. Meir's acceptance of the degree was seen as an enhancement of HUC's status in Israel in the face of the local rabbinate's refusal to recognize it.

Remember when long-hair music meant Brahms, Beethoven and Bach?

and a kindergarten for the numerous children to attend while their parents study Hebrew five hours a day.

The older children, like 14-year-old Liora Gross, attend the district school at nearby Kibbutz Maale Hamisha. Liora's father, Gershon, is garin secretary and her mother is a youth worker. Both parents, who have lived in Israel previously, speak fluent Hebrew and Gershon, a Ph.D. in dairy science, already has a job in Rehovot.

Jim and Karen Bellis from Eugene, Ore. immediately changed their names to Yacov and Keren-Or. He is a cultural anthropologist who has a grant from the National Institutes of Health to write his dissertation on Western immigration to Israel.

Stu Oppenheimer plans to continue his medical career and Carol her duties as a housewife, which, she says, "take on new meaning in Israel."

The Providence Re-Builder

Mayor Joe Doorley knows that to build up an old city, you've got to start by tearing down. By tearing down old structures to make room for new business and industry. Room for corporations which can bear the tax burden that would bury the individual taxpayer.

So Mayor Doorley went to Washington and fought long and hard for Federal funds. Brought back $74,000,000 for various programs, and used some of the money to develop new business and industrial sites and rejuvenate old ones. Then he had to convince some pretty shrewd businessmen that Providence was a city on the way up, not out.

It took a lot of doing. A lot of paperwork and endless meetings. But Joe Doorley's sparked the biggest building boom in Providence's history. $100,000,000 worth of building permits. The hotels, the banks, the sky-scraper apartments, the office buildings and industrial plants.

They're here in Providence to stay. To grow and help pay the lion's share of taxes. It wasn't easy, but Mayor Joe Doorley found a way.

YIVO Houses Recollections of Despair, Glimmers Of Hope From Lives Of Past Generations Of Jews

NEW YORK—Recollections of despair, histories of sorrow, glimmers of occasional joy or hope—all mutely endure the visitor's scrutiny.

In the building of YIVO, the Yiddish Scientific Institute at 1048 Fifth Avenue, the burden of past generations weighs heavily. Shelf on shelf, becalmed by dust, lie the archives of Jewish suffering. The institute has an exhibition commemorating the centenary of the Yiddish-language press in America. Since the building is crammed with archives, the displays spread through the ground floor corridors, in cabinets and on the walls.

"We try to turn down material that people offer us," said Shmuel Lapin, secretary of YIVO. But the tragic record grows, pouring out into a downtown warehouse, occasionally cutting itself down to domesticity in microfilm, as though the enormity of crimes could be reduced by diminishing the size of records.

Albert Einstein, urging support for YIVO, once wrote: "Men do not live by bread alone, and Jews certainly do not." He called the men gathered in the institute "Chosen of Spirit."

YIVO (in Yiddish, the initials stand for Yidisher Vissnshaftlekher Institute) was founded in Vilna, then a part of Poland, in 1925. The institute wanted to study Jewish life, especially in Eastern Europe. It also wanted to enhance the Jews' image of themselves in the hostile Polish environment.

The Germans seized YIVO's library and archives in 1940, but much was eventually recovered and shipped to New York. In the transplanted institute, a staff of about 40 work with a yearly budget of about $350,000, contributed by individuals and organizations.

There are half a million letters from Jews who were trying to escape from France in World War II. "Has a decision been made in Vichy?" writes one man who says he has become "unbalanced" by the conditions of his existence. "Has the Portuguese transit visa been granted?"

In a collection of Polish Yeshiva records there are magnificently imaginative tributes to truth and beauty-by parents trying to arrange marriages for their daughters.

There are original manuscripts by Yiddish authors, and the very bar mitzvah present that Meier Amshel Rothschild gave his grandson, a handwritten, illuminated Talmud tractate.

The institute has a copy of "The Jewish State" by Theodor Herzl, founder of Zionism, dedicated in his own hand to Nathan Birnbaum, who coined the word Zionism. It also has Herzl's handwritten diary.

One collection features reports from prewar-German spies in Poland who were happy to inform Berlin that the Poles were suitably anti-Semitic.

For one visitor, Z. Szajkowski, a research associate, gently unwrapped an album bearing the signatures of 7,000 Jewish children in Lodz, Poland. They signed their names in Yiddish on the occasion of New Year 1943. Said Mr. Szajkowski: "This is all that remains of 7,000 children killed during the war—their signatures."

YIVO has what it believes is the only surviving copy of the only book ever printed by Jews in a deportation center. Entitled "Massada" (after the ancient Jewish fortress), it was put together early in 1942 at Compiègne, France.

As though a brighter future beckoned, Zionists in Compiègne founded a "national Jewish movement" and wrote: "In a concentration camp, removed from humanity, isolated from the world, separated from the masses of people, a few Jews wanted to incarnate the wishes and deep inspirations of the whole nation. We wanted to, and we succeeded."

The archives have a copy (the original was lost) of a book handwritten by a Jew who was hiding in Zeligow, Poland, during World War II. Since he had no prayer book, he wrote his own from memory.

YIVO issues guides to doctoral dissertations and master's theses on the Jewish subjects (e.g. "Love elements in the poetry of selected Hebrew poets of the Jewish Golden Age in Spain"). Next year it will publish the fifth edition of "College Yiddish" by Uriel Weinreich. With the University of Chicago Press, YIVO is preparing a "History of the Yiddish Language."

Last year YIVO founded a Center for Advanced Jewish Studies, to give instruction to graduate students and to help colleges and scholars in research. It also sponsors classes for teachers in the New York Public schools.

Many of those roots are evident in the exhibition on the Yiddish-language press. Since prose can only begin to tell the story, there are poems as well. One, by Jacob Glatstein (in translation by Aaron Kramer), goes:

I read a Yiddish paper in a New York subway; it is my morning prayer; . . . O God, take pity on the terrified Yiddish letters; protect them from the subway-inquisition.

Sounds ridiculous, doesn't it? But what if everybody in this country were to throw their hands up in despair and say they don't give a hoot.

Indeed, there would be no tomorrow.

But fortunately, Americans have a way of solving their problems.

And that's just what's going to happen in these troubled times. Simply because it's always been an American tradition.

Now, how can you, as one little ole citizen in this big, wide country of ours, be of any help?

Well, take a minute and think about a U.S. Savings Bond.

That's right, a U.S. Savings Bond.

No, it isn't an immediate remedy for all our ills. But it helps.

If everybody were to buy just one $25.00 Savings Bond (cost $18.75), your country would be stronger economically to wipe out some of those scars we've been sporting.

Of course, everybody would be helping themselves, too. If you were to sign up on a Bond purchase plan where you work or bank, you'd have quite a nice nest egg for yourself one of these days.

You'd have a lot more dollars in the kitty for things like college educations, that new home, or a secure retirement.

So think about a U.S. Savings Bond today. And then go out and buy one.

Tomorrow.

If they're lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace 'em.

TO BE GUEST SPEAKER: Dr. I. David Passow, former administrator at the Weizmann Institute in Jerusalem, will be the guest speaker at a meeting of the Warwick Jewish community at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Pierce of 26 Wildrose Court, Warwick, on Tuesday, Oct. 27, at 8 p.m.

Dr. Passow, director of the Department of Adult Jewish Education at Gratz College who recently returned from Israel, will speak on the critical situation in Israel.

Author, scholar and underground fighter for Israel, Dr. Passow was born in New York City. He did graduate work at Yeshiva University and the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. Immediately following the establishment of the State of Israel in 1948, he and his family moved to Israel.

Since his return to the United States, Dr. Passow has been associated with several institutions of higher learning and has held high ranking offices in Zionist and allied organizations, and has served as executive director of the New England Zionist Emergency Council and of the New England section of the American Christian Palestine Committee.

Aaron Jaffa is chairman of the Warwick Division of the Jewish Federation of Rhode Island, and Abe Aron and Jack Mossberg are associate chairmen.

Rabbi Says Parents Envelop Youth In Cocoon Of Unreality

NEW YORK - Today's campus rebellion stems from the resentment of youth at being reared on false values, the National Committee For Furtherance of Jewish Education has charged.

In a confidential report, parts of which were released to the press, the Jewish organization, which operates schools and other educational activities for young Jewish boys and girls throughout the United States, attributed many of the present difficulties with youth to "their disillusionment toward the preceding generation which has raised them for an unreal world."

"Too many parents in rearing their children shield them from not only responsibility, but also everything distasteful and tragic," said Rabbi Jacob J. Hecht, NCFJE executive vice president.

The result is, Rabbi Hecht said, that "from the crib to college our youth are enveloped in a cocoon of unreality, and they cannot help but grow up with distorted views on love, marriage, ethics, religion, and everything else that really matters."

According to the report, one of the most serious mistakes that many parents make is the failure to impose proper discipline. "Today's fathers and mothers seem afraid to lay the law down to their children, and it is the children who end up ruling the household."

The report points out that children grow up feeling that they can do almost anything they want and are, in effect, above the law. "When they find out otherwise, as they do sooner or later, they have a tremendous readjustment to make."

The same unrealistic approach is often applied by parents in regard to money. "Many children grow up today thinking their parents have an inexhaustible supply of money. This is because nothing is denied the child. Without extending himself one bit, the child goes to the best camps, gets an automobile while still in high school, and, when he goes to college, often spends more on socializing than on tuition."

"The same holds in the area of ethics," the report said. "The man who cheats on his income tax is looked upon as someone who got away with something, not someone who did something dishonest. No wonder the child grows up thinking that dishonesty pays off."

Similar false views are often given to children in the areas of religion, the report said. On the Sabbath they see their parents play golf, gamble at cards or do anything but attend services in houses of worship. "Under these circumstances how can they help but grow up with a disrespectful attitude towards religion?"

In many other families which may be religious, religion is often used only as a means to an end, the report said. A Jewish Bar Mitzvah, rather than being a religious ceremony, becomes instead an occasion for receiving gifts and a gala social time featuring catered banquets and paid entertainment.

By imposing false values on their children, parents are preventing them from developing goals. "In a sense, many parents have become goal robbers."

Without goals, it is impossible for youth to become sufficiently prepared to take on the responsibilities they will face in marriage and parenthood," the report said. "The very training they need - in discipline, in understanding the value of money, in developing a feeling for religion - they have not received."

Policy Now Based On Strength, Not Negotiation

vacillating leadership in Egypt, in which the Soviet hold will be strengthened. This means that there will not be war, but nor will there be peace.

This no-war-no-peace situation is precisely the one to which the new policy is adjusted. The aim now is to seek an "arrangement" to stop the fighting, but without Israeli withdrawal from anywhere. This naturally suits Israel, as its main aim since the 1967 victory has been to preserve the status quo until there is peace, while the main aim of Egypt, Syria and Jordan has been to upset it. United States aid, which promises to exceed $450 millions worth of military credits in the next two years, will enable the status quo to be defended on all fronts.

Last April, Israel was asking for military credits at $60 millions a year. Now it has asked for - and is virtually certain to get - between $225 millions and $250 millions a year.

The search for an "arrangement" rather than for peace naturally suits the expansionists best of all as it enables Israel to create "facts" at leisure, imperceptibly hardening occupation into ownership. But these are a minority, now removed from office in Mrs. Meir's coalition. Most Israelis, and their present Government, see the value of the status quo in the security it offers. Peace is seen as a distant goal which can only be achieved when the Arabs "see that they cannot destroy Israel," as Mrs. Meir put it recently.

In the occupied territories, recent events produced a false dawn. When the Jarring talks seemed about to get under way, the value of the Israeli pound fell against the Jordanian dinar and the Egyptian pound. But now hopes of a quick withdrawal are dead. The Jordanian war brought about a traumatic disillusionment with Hussein, and this led some Israelis to hopes of a new accommodation with the West Bankers. The death of Nasser again added to the feeling of hopelessness among the occupied Palestinians.

Some activity on the West Bank encouraged Israeli hopes. Meetings were held, at which the behaviour of Hussein's troops was declared "worse than the Israelis." Some notables in Nablus wanted to form a committee to express an independent stand, denouncing the King's regime.

When Israeli ministers, including the Deputy Premier, Yigal Allon, began expressing hopes that new leadership might emerge and engage in talks with Israeli rumors spread of a new Israeli willingness to examine the possibility of a West Bank state for the Palestinians.

But these were false promises. The three ministers who matter in West Bank affairs are also the ones most closely linked to the new policies of "digging in." They are: Defense Minister Dayan (who is in charge of the military government in the administered areas); Police Minister Shlomo Hillel (who reports to the Prime Minister on occupation matters); and Transport Minister Shimon Perez, who retains separate responsibility for refugees.

All three were active on the West Bank while the Jordanian war raged. But the formation of a Palestinian State was not among their objectives. General Dayan apparently tried to persuade pro-Jordanian notables to go across to Amman and volunteer as members of a new administration. This was an illustration of how far the interests of Hussein and Israel coincide in seeking non-guerrilla Palestinian leadership. But Dayan appeared to have little success. If there were still pro-Hussein elements on the West Bank, they were not prepared to expose themselves to popular wrath by showing it.

It was a period of confusion for both the occupiers and the occupied. When Arabs met to denounce Hussein, some Israelis (but not the ministers concerned) mistook this for a pro-Israel gesture. The absence of a recognised and viable leadership among the Arabs showed itself once again: no unified stand emerged and every village or town notable looked over his shoulder to see what his neighbour was saying.

When the dust had settled, it became clear to both sides that between the Israelis and the occupied Arabs nothing that mattered had changed. The essential vicious circle remained intact: without a general Israeli-Arab peace there could be no viable arrangement. A West Bank state set up without the approval of Amman on the one side and the guerrillas on the other would be doomed from the start. It would be branded as Israel's puppet, and infiltrated by the guerrillas, who would threaten Israel at its heartland.

Company To Employ Observant Jews

NEW YORK - Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. has been hiring Orthodox Jews as computer programmers since it accepted a conciliation agreement last August with the New York State Division of Human Rights to end its refusal to hire observant Jews for such jobs, the National Jewish Commission on Law and Public Affairs (COLPA) has reported.

Julius Berman, COLPA president, said the conciliation agreement was worked out with the assistance of COLPA, Howard Rhine, a COLPA vice president, acted as attorney for two Orthodox Jews who charged the huge insurance firm with Sabbath discrimination after they were refused jobs as programmers.

The company had contended that meeting the Sabbath requirements of observant Jews could be harmful to its computer operations. The effort to induce Metropolitan to hire observant Jews began in 1966 when Bernard Rubin applied for a programmer job and was rejected as a Sabbath observer.

Melvin Dershowitz, the other applicant, applied for a job last spring and was rejected for the same reason. Each sought help from COLPA.

Your Money's Worth

shifting our spending priorities, we would create far more jobs and far more worthwhile jobs than today.

It is hard to believe that the Nixon Administration would make this dangerous admission or argument.

Yet, as the following little anecdote will illustrate, this is precisely what high administration officials are doing.

A few days ago, Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird invited a small cross-section of the individuals for luncheon at the Pentagon. Shortly after we sat down (we were eight in addition to Laird and the Deputy Secretary of Defense David Packard), Laird introduced the conversation by summarizing how much the defense budget has been cut.

The figures, by the way, are much more impressive than you may realize. Specifically:

Defense spending in this fiscal year will be around $71 billion, down a fat $18 billion from the 1968 Vietnam war peak and only about $4.2 billion above the pre-escalation level of 1964.

The defense budget is now around seven per cent of our Gross National Product, down 2.7 per cent from the '68 peak and well below the 1964 level too.

Defense spending now represents 34.6 per cent of our total federal budget, down a hefty 8.6 per cent from '68 and down an even heftier 8.8 per cent from the pre-Vietnam escalation of '64.

No small achievement this — and I suggest we give Laird the great credit he deserves for doing it in the face of enormous odds.

But then Laird went on to report that since mid-'69, employment in the military, defense-products and defense-related industries has decreased 840,000 as against an overall rise in joblessness of 1.3 million. And he remarked with a rueful, gracious smile:

"This is what happens when you move so rapidly from a war to a peacetime economy." The implication was unmistakable: the defense cuts are a prime reason for the recession and unemployment.

And here is where I stand up and get counted.

For the fact is the recession of 1969-70 is primarily the result of a policy of brutally tight money deliberately adopted by the Federal Reserve System to prevent businessmen from getting all the money they wanted; to force them to curb their inflationary spending, to postpone inflationary projects, to lay off workers.

Tight money has been the crucial factor behind the stock market crackup, the wave of business bankruptcies — not defense cuts.

Even in areas hit hardest by the cutbacks, this holds true — for had the aim not been to control inflation by compelling a business slowdown, the administration could have cushioned the defense spending reductions by non-defense spending increases.

But the sound policy objective was to curb inflation, and so the defense cutbacks were not offset.

You may criticize 1970's anti-inflation policies as crude and cruel, but you can't criticize their aim. You can argue that joblessness could be cushioned far more effectively, but you cannot use unemployment as an excuse for military spending.

What I heard at Laird's luncheon is probably shrewd politics and Laird is known as a brilliantly skillful politician.

But what I heard was rotten economics and potentially perilous propaganda and, therefore, it's too important to remain my private anecdote. Thus, at the risk of biting the hand that fed me, I pass it on to you.
