Ohawe Sholam Synagogue Of Pawtucket To Celebrate 50th Anniversary Of Building

Standing at the corner of High and Jackson Streets in Pawtucket is a 50-year-old building which serves a congregation which started in the 1890s. On the evening of Sunday, April 7, a dinner has been planned which will serve a double function — to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the building of the synagogue for Congregation Ohawe Sholam, and to officially install Rabbi Chaim Raizman as the spiritual leader of the congregation.

The congregation has grown from a few men who met for prayers daily to a congregation of several hundred families, with a Hebrew School, a Ladies' Auxiliary, and its own 50-year-old building.

It was on March 28, 1905, that five men signed the original papers of incorporation naming the group as The Congregation Ohawe Sholam of Pawtucket, R. I., "said corporation . . . constituted for the purpose of maintaining and conducting a House of Worship of the Orthodox Hebrew Religion in Pawtucket, Rhode Island . . ."

The five men who signed were Reubin Bloomberg, Morris Levenson, Isaac Brown, Abraham Berrick and Henry Cossock.

The meeting place of the congregation changed from the Cottrell Building to a building on East Avenue in downtown Pawtucket. Also used were the Pastime Theater at the corner of High and Exchange Streets and the Grand Army Hall.

An item of interest about the synagogue is the fact that the ark which is used for the Torahs came to it from Temple Beth El when that congregation moved. It cannot be recalled whether it was given to the Ohawe Sholam congregation or sold to it, but it did come from the reform temple.

A second item of interest is contained in a letter from Mrs. Morris Sholes written to Mrs. Abraham Mal, president of the Ladies' Aid and Sisterhood of the congregation. The letter, which was written in 1964, says:

" . . . About 48 years ago, my husband and I moved with our children to Pawtucket, where we found a small but vigorous Jewish community, which held its services in the Pawtucket Grand Army Hall. The Ladies' Aid, as the women's auxiliary organization was then known, gave active and enthusiastic support to the organizers of the new congregation. Mr. Eisenberg and his building committee bought the site of the present synagogue on High Street from Mr. Frank Crook. At the time of the purchase, the property consisted of an old theatre and a house. The theatre was torn down to make room for the synagogue and the house was moved to the back to house the Talmud Torah.

"Jewish teaching tells us that it is the Jewish mother who is responsible for the transmission of Jewish tradition and learning from generation to generation. The Ladies' Aid fulfilled this responsibility to the fullest extent. It was the Ladies' Aid who purchased the cornerstone of the synagogue. The parchment listing the names of the members of the organization rests within the cornerstone. Thus, the Ladies' Aid of more than 40 years ago built the foundation on which the dreams of this present Sisterhood could be realized. When the building was completed, the Ladies' Aid bought the key to the synagogue. So the women of my generation helped to open and keep open the door to Jewish tradition, culture and learning in the Pawtucket community.

"During my term as president of the Ladies' Aid, a committee composed of Mrs. Samuel Finn, Mrs. Morris Carlin and myself selected and purchased the large sterling silver and crystal chandelier now hanging in the sanctuary. This chandelier contains 152 bulbs, each bulb representing one member of the Ladies' Aid at the time the chandelier was purchased. Mrs. Tessler and Mrs. Raskin each presented a small matching chandelier in memory of their respective husbands. So, it was through the efforts of the Ladies' Aid that the beauty of the sanctuary was enhanced . . ."

Henry Friedman, who was in the retail fur business, was the first president of the congregation in the new building which was started in 1918 and completed by 1921. He was one of the men who did a vital job in the fund-raising for the building.

Records of the old days of the congregation are not always clear, but there are a few facts which were brought up by some of the older members. They recalled the name of a Rabbi Lakeb who was with the congregation for a short time in 1924. In 1925 Rabbi Abraham Schisgal was brought to Pawtucket by a member of the congregation. He came from Slutsk, Russia and remained with the congregation for about seven years. At that time they had about 150 families as members.

A Rabbi Gold and Rabbi Rakovsky followed and a Hebrew teacher, Mr. Sevelovich. At the time Rabbi Aaroh Goldin (who died a few years ago in Portsmouth, N. H.) became the spiritual leader of the congregation in 1940, the membership was growing and by the middle 40s was up to approximately 300 families. At one high holiday service, the synagogue, they said, "was packed to capacity" with people sitting in the aisles when almost 800 people attended.

For several years after Rabbi Goldin left, the members con-

Histadrut Not To Hold Usual May Day Parade

TEL AVIV — Histadrut, Israel's labor federation, announced recently that it will not hold its usual parade on May Day, traditional international labor holiday, because it conflicts with the day of mourning for those who fell in Israel's War for Independence in 1948.

The memorial day, which precedes Israel's Independence Day celebrations, falls on May 1 this year according to the Hebrew calendar. It will be observed as a day of rest for all except those employed in essential services, Histadrut said.

Knesset Members Voice Shock, Disgust At Revival Of Present Anti-Semitic Campaign In Poland

JERUSALEM — Knesset members of all factions, including the communists, sharply assailed the Polish Government for its current campaign to make Poland's surviving Jews the scapegoats for student riots and unrest.

Speakers voiced their shock and disgust at the revival of official anti-Semitism in Poland after Prime Minister Levi Eshkol denounced Warsaw's drive against "Zionists and their sympathizers" and urged Polish Jews to migrate to Israel.

Moshe Baram of the Israel Labor Party declared that the Jews have a long "blood reckoning" with Poland and called for the mobilization of world opinion against the Warsaw regime. Haim Landau of Gabal, the Herut-Liberal party alignment, said the anti-Semitic statements by Polish leaders were a "wave of mud."

Gideon Hausner of the Independent Liberal Party, who was the prosecutor in the Eichmann trial, said that "at long last the real face of Poland has been exposed."

The communist, Shlomo Mikunis, maintained that the Polish tactics are evidence of "a shaky ideological system" and said it is a sequel to Poland's one-sided support of the Arabs in the Six-Day War.

Other speakers noted that the worst crimes perpetrated by the nazis against the Jews were committed on Polish soil while the Polish population did nothing to prevent them.

Mrs. Feinstein had been a past president of Pioneer Women. The scholarship fund in her memory will pay for providing training in pediatric nursing, at Onna, a Pioneer Women's Children's Home and Nursing School in Israel.

Hearing Better

Ever occur to you that folks who are hard of hearing have an advantage over the rest of us? I mean, they're not bothered to the same extent by the raucous noises of modern life because they never hear them.

Could be considered a piece of good luck when you reach the stage where you have to cup a hand behind an ear to pick up the wail of an ambulance siren or the blare of rock-'n-roll from an unwelcome nearby radio.

Then again, a hearing aid lets you have the best of both worlds. You can tune in on the sounds you want to hear, like the conversation of good friends; you can tune out when the verbal going gets tough, like having the town bore camped at your elbow.

Anyway, it's consoling thought — instant hearing, instant deafness, depending on the circumstances.

One thing's for sure, total deafness is a misfortune second only to blindness among the defects of the senses. And since your hearing is almost bound to diminish, and perhaps to disappear, if you live long enough, you ought to give some attention to this possibility well in advance.

The first problem is the condition of your auditory apparatus. When it begins to give you trouble — when you realize that you're straining to catch sounds you used to pick up without effort — see your doctor. He'll probably send you to an otologist, if you want a ten-dollar word for an ear specialist.

You'll probably come away with a prescription for a hearing aid. If so, don't worry about it. Nowadays hearing aids are both effective and inconspicuous.

Buy Carefully —

Just be sure you know what you're doing before you buy one. Don't be taken in by the salesman who implies he's with some medical group or governmental agency. Refuse retreads offered as new, special models that are touted as superior to those advertised, rental contracts you haven't read down to the last line of fine print.

Don't listen (!) to the individual who insists that only one make of battery will keep the set running. If he's for real, he can surely give you a number of makes to choose from.

Dr. William C. Handy, of the Speech and Hearing Clinic at Johns Hopkins, says this — "No new and revolutionary development relating to the principles of amplification and transmission of sound, as applied to hearing aids, has taken place in more than a decade."

Bear that in mind when you go shopping, and then shop with confidence. There is a fine hearing aid waiting for you.

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

One of the intriguing elements of Bridge is the fact that one can play very often for a lifetime and never pick up the same hand twice - not card for card at any rate. However, often a hand will be similar to another in principle. Today's hand is almost identical to one I reported here some time ago as to the handling of the problem involved and it was the same problem in both hands. Unfortunately, either not enough of the Declarers confronted with the hand read my columns or else they did not associate the two hands as being so much alike.

♥ 10 8 6		♥ Q 4
♦ Q J 10 8		♦ A K 7
♠ J 9 7 2		♠ K Q 5

Mrs. Jordan Rice and Mrs. Joseph Schuster were North and South, all vulnerable, East dealer. The bidding:

P	1S	P	2S
P	3S	P	4S

The bidding was not the problem here for all pairs should have arrived at the same four Spade contract and practically all of them did. North showed a weak hand with Trump support but had enough in reserve to accept South's invitation to game. Likewise, South had enough over her opening bid to make that try but not enough to go directly to game herself.

West, with her solid sequence of honors had a natural lead in the Diamond Queen. Just about every other Declarer won it and couldn't wait to do what comes naturally, pull Trumps. As soon as the first one was played, there was no turning back, the hand was doomed. No matter which opponent won the first Trump lead another Diamond play would set up the setting trick for the defenders. They would cash two Trumps, the Heart Ace and a Diamond. There was no longer a way of avoiding this.

Before playing to the first trick, our Declarer looked over her situation and saw that she indeed had a problem. How many times we have stressed the importance of doing just that. With the Diamond lead she now was in danger of losing a trick in that suit. That along with her inevitable losers in the two Majors would cause her to be set unless something could be done to counteract this. She pondered for a few seconds and then saw the solution.

At trick two, instead of leading a Trump, she postponed this to remove the Heart Ace. The extra high Heart in Dummy would provide a discard for that losing Diamond with the Club Ace being the necessary entry to enable Declarer to use it. East won Declarer's Queen with her Ace and returned another Diamond but it was too late. Declarer won this with her last high Diamond, led another heart to Dummy, and discarded her other Diamond on the third Heart. There was little danger of an overruff with only five between her two hands and anyhow, if the third Heart were to be overruffed the hand could not be made.

She now did turn her attention to the Trumps, ruffed the Diamond return now, that loser was long gone, rid herself of the last outstanding Trumps with another Trump lead and could now claim the balance. The hand was really quite simple yet ten of the twelve Declarers who played the hand failed to make it. These Declarers were not beginners but were good Bridge players so you readers who think you might have done the same take Heart. There is still hope.

Moral: A loser is a loser. Even if in getting rid of it a Defender does overruff, it was a loser anyhow and the ruff just might cost that Defender a Trump trick.

Italian League Agrees To Change Of Name

NEW YORK — The Italian Anti-Defamation League has agreed to change its name to Americans of Italian Descent, thus ending litigation over its right to the former title.

The agreement was filed in State Supreme Court last week, where the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, the Jewish service organization, had a pending injunction suit against the Italian group over use of the words "anti-defamation league."

Justice Joseph A. Sarafite signed the order terminating the suit.

For And About Teenagers

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I am fifteen. I like a certain boy very much. He has been to see me, but only with a friend - who has now moved to Michigan. He is afraid to come over without his friend. He has a phone, but I am afraid to call him. I know he will not come to see me without his friend. He seems to like me, but is afraid to say so. He is the only boy I really like. He is very nice and well-mannered. What do you think is the matter? We will never get anywhere if we are both 'scaredy-cats'. Please give me some good advice."

OUR REPLY: Have you talked your problem over with your parents? Are you assured that they are ready for you to date? If you have not discussed it with them, do so, and you will then be certain that you have a "campaign" to plan. If you present your problem to your parents, you may be surprised at how easy it is to arrive at a solution. Your parents might arrange a birthday party, a picnic, or some occasion where it is quite proper for you to invite someone of your choosing.

The boy is not a stranger. Your parents apparently know him, since he has called on you before. So, there is no real problem... except being afraid. We are all afraid of doing something we have never done before. Usually, after we do them, we wonder why we were so concerned over so simple a thing.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

Israel . . . And The Attacks

It seems rather unfair that Israel be condemned for protecting herself by hitting back at the guerilla terrorists who have been striking at Israel constantly.

How long can Israel sit back and ignore the attacks? Just because the wounding of a single Kibbutznik does not make headlines, does not mean that it should be all right for that single farmer to be hurt or to be killed.

If there are to be no attacks by Israel, then the Arab terrorists, the members of El Fatah must stop their guerilla tactics. No one can sit forever while someone points a gun at him and keeps shooting. Everyone has the right to defend himself. Does Israel have to wait until thousands of her men are killed before she retaliates?

The best way to stop all this killing is for the Arabs to sit down with the Israelis and come to terms so that there can be peace in the Mid-East . . . for a while anyway.

Anti-Zionism Or Anti-Semitism?

Whether the recent campaign in Poland was caused by anti-Zionism or by anti-Semitism does not really make much difference. Whichever it is, it is anti-Jewish, and whether you are persecuted because you are a Jewish Zionist or a plain Jew matters very little to the one being persecuted.

The Polish Embassy in Washington published a lengthy release last week saying that this was the cause of the recent campaign against Jews in Poland. They said that they were combatting Zionism as a political program.

Inside one is the feeling that even if it is politically motivated, the latent anti-Semitism in Poland was delighted and willing to participate in this campaign. After the years during which the Jews in Poland were mistreated, the people in a country cannot suddenly within 20 years learn to love them. So although it may be anti-Zionism to some, we are sure there were many feeling that it served the Jews right.

There are only about 25,000 Jews left in Poland out of a pre-Hitler count of about three and one half million. What are these people to do?

Often, a country in trouble, will find a conveniently weak opponent and say, "It's all his fault." A scapegoat is used by governments just as it is used by people. Through the years Jews have been used as such, a little as the Negroes are being used in the United States. Poland, politically is having problems now. Anti-Zionism was handy and they used it. But how far will they go?

Protest Arrangements Made For Observances

RIO DE JANEIRO — A delegation representing the Confederation of Brazilian Jewish Communities visited the Polish Embassy to protest against arrangements made by the Polish Government for the memorial observances at the site of the Auschwitz death camp.

The delegation complained that the date set for inaugurating the Jewish memorial pavilion —

April 20 — fell on the Jewish Sabbath and Passover. The delegation also pointed out that facilities had not been indicated for Jewish organizations and representatives wishing to attend the dedication services.

It urged postponement of the inauguration of the pavilion until next year. The charge d'affaires, who received the delegation, promised to transmit its views.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

Off-Season Moving

Dave was notified at Christmas of his promotion and transfer across the country to a new job. He and Kay have just sold their house and now he is, in effect, wasting time while he waits to move at the date he originally told the company he would be ready: June 25.

By this decision, Dave and Kay are wasting money as well as time, and all because they are following the now outmoded U.S. tradition of summertime moving.

Of the close to 41,000,000 Americans, one out of five of us, who will be moving in 1968, more than 60 percent will move between June 1 and Sept. 30. This comes to a mind-boggling 24,000,000 individuals or 8,200 moves an hour during the four-month period. To cope with this rush, the moving industry will employ 30,000 extra part-time workers. It will operate on a 24-hour basis. And it will charge maximum prices.

But there's no doubt that many of these millions would be better off with a non-summer move. In spring, in fall, in winter. They would get more efficient and quicker service; they would be charged a minimum, not a maximum rate; their moves would be safer too.

The tradition of the summer move dates back to an era when vacations were almost always a summer affair and the U.S. was an agriculture-oriented economy. It has been rooted in the belief that it is bad to transfer children during a school year.

But the year-round vacation period is now commonplace and the U.S. no longer must bow to the special needs of the farmer. As for children, the new staggered school terms permit far more flexibility in transfers than ever before, and there is even an argument in favor of moving children during a school year.

In the words of Harold J. Blaine, president of the American Movers Conference and also president of Lyon Van Lines, "many educators have concluded that a mid-term change can be mentally and socially stimulating, compared with having to spend a lonely summer in a strange neighborhood. Children can acquire new friends easily in a school environment, but during summer vacation, there are few sources beyond nextdoor neighbors."

In an obvious effort to make more orderly use of the moving industry's equipment and personnel, the AMC is beginning a five-year program to attempt to encourage us to spread our moving periods throughout the year.

Off-season moving alone can result in savings of 5-15 percent, Blaine estimates. Also, highways and overnight accommodations are less crowded and motel-hotel rates are lower.

It makes sense. If the figure does run as high as 15 percent, this translates into real money on a bill which in many cases can be in four figures.

In addition, to save big money on moving expenses:

Before getting estimates, get rid of stuff you won't need or want in your new home. This is especially important if yours is a long distance move in which costs are based largely on weight. (Sample: heavy old appliances.)

If you are moving only to another part of town, send out your furniture for repairs and your rugs and drapes for cleaning, then have the articles delivered to your new home.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

Playing Elijah

By BERYL SEGAL

When I was a young man on the Ukraine I was a teacher in a school for refugee children.

The parents of these children had lived in the villages and townlets on the border of what was then Russia and Austria. When war broke out between the two countries the Russian army dug their trenches along the border and brought up their artillery to the villages. They did not want the Jews to see what was going on, and ordered all the villages and townlets to be evacuated in twenty-four hours. They hurried the Jews to leave and did not let them take any of their possessions.

The refugees came streaming into the city. Some came by horse and wagon. But most of them came trudging into the city wheeling their young ones on wheelbarrows.

The city did not allow any refugee to sleep without a roof over his head. People made room for them in their homes.

The city did not allow any refugee to go hungry. They fed them in Public Kitchens and invited them to their homes on Sabbaths.

The children came to our school to learn. The number of pupils doubled because of the refugees, and so the school became known as the Refugee School.

We did all we could to make the children feel at home in the school and to forget that they were refugees.

The time was just before the Festival of Passover and the children came with stories of new clothes, new shoes and new hats that their parents were buying for them for the holiday. The refugee children listened with envy.

We had heard of an American People's Relief that was sending over clothing for the refugees. But nobody knew when and where the clothes would arrive.

In the meantime we sang Passover songs with the children. We told them stories of the Festival. We learned poems of springtime and of freedom. And we prepared a playlet for the children.

The name of the playlet was "Elijah the Prophet." It was a story of a man and his wife and his two children. The man was sick and could not work, and the mother was the breadwinner for the family. When Passover came the children were sad. They would have nothing new for the holiday.

They were lying in their beds and were talking about the little girls who were getting new dresses, and of little boys who would have new shoes, and of the colorful hats they saw in the stores. When suddenly an old man appeared in their bedroom. The old man had a kind face and he leaned on his cane, and he said:

"Don't worry, children, Tomorrow will be a fine day. The sun will shine, and the birds will sing, and you will have everything your heart desires."

The old man stood over their beds, He caressed the children until they fell asleep. The lights grew dimmer and dimmer in the room and Elijah the Prophet moved backwards out of the room.

We watched the playlet and we looked at the refugee children, and we thought:

"Pour children. You, too, will need an Elijah the Prophet. Your fathers and mothers cannot buy you new clothes this year for Passover."

The day before Passover we wished the children a Happy Holiday and we sent them home for the week. Our hearts were heavy as we said good-bye, and we felt guilty to look in their eyes.

Towards the evening a big box came to the school. We crowded around the box and we opened it. The American mothers and children did not forget the refugees. There were clothing and shoes and hats and even stockings for little boys and girls.

The teachers began to pair off the clothes. We put girls' clothes separate and boys' clothes separate. We assorted them by sizes and ages and we placed each set of clothes in a neat little bundle.

It was late when we started out. We decided to ring the bell or knock on the door of the refugee homes and to leave the bundle at the door, and to go away immediately. We did not want to embarrass the children nor their parents.

And so it was that we, the teachers, played Elijah the Prophet to the pupils of the Refugee School.

Their headpieces were matching floral clusters with birdcage veils, and they carried spray bouquets of orange and white. The flower girls wore yellow dresses overlaid with white lace and carried baskets of yellow and white flower petals.

David Seidman served as best man for his brother. Ushers were Albert Bakelman, Carl Bakelman and Marshall Bakelman, brothers of the bride; Harold Cohn, Howard E. Just, Jr., and Harold Lake, brother-in-law of the bridegroom. Ring bearers were Larry Bakelman and David Bakelman, nephews of the bride.

After a wedding trip to Miami Beach, Fla., the couple will reside in East Hartford, Conn.

Dr. Bromberg Calls Warsaw Developments 'Vicious, Vile' Appeals To Anti-Semitism

WASHINGTON — Dr. Abraham Bromberg, a leading American authority on Eastern Europe and editor of the authoritative journal, "Problems of Communism," told the JTA last week that an analysis of developments in Warsaw indicate "vicious, vile and unscrupulous appeals to anti-Semitism to serve purely selfish factional political ends."

He termed the situation serious and said American Jews should act to "generate as much protest as possible in a decisive campaign."

He said that information now available made it apparent that Jews in Poland today "live in fear, surrounded by a propaganda campaign that feeds the fires of traditional anti-Semitism." He said that "it must be a harrowing experience" to be a Jew in Poland now.

Dr. Bromberg said it is "absolutely mandatory for the world to respond to the Polish regime's cynicism, including the obvious use of the term 'Zionist' as a euphemism for 'Jew.'"

An anti-Jewish atmosphere has been encouraged for deliberate objectives, he said. The aim is to use anti-Semitism as an anti-liberal weapon to discredit students and intellectuals who oppose repressive policies. He pointed out that nothing in the students' demands or demonstrations touched on Jewish issues.

According to Dr. Bromberg, a power struggle is unfolding in which dominant elements are appealing to anti-Semitic tendencies as a political device against opponents. Those exploiting anti-Semitism are "anti-liberal, anti-intellectual, and chauvinistic."

Dr. Bromberg said the anti-Jewish drive has apparently hit Jews regardless of their political factional affiliation. Victims include persons who desire to identify as Jews, as well as those with little interest in their Jewish origin. Actual "Zionists" emigrated long ago, he noted.

Dr. Bromberg, regarded as Washington's foremost expert on many trends in Eastern Europe, saw no evidence that present Warsaw actions were ordered or

Approve Pipeline Bypassing Suez

JERUSALEM — The Knesset, Israel's parliament, last week approved a Government plan to lay a $100 million pipeline linking the Red Sea and the Mediterranean.

The line would bypass the Suez Canal as a main oil route from the Middle East to Europe. The canal has been blocked since the Arab-Israeli war last June. Even in normal times, the United Arab Republic has barred Israeli shipping from using it.

The 42-inch, 160-mile pipeline would run from the port of Elath on the Gulf of Aqaba to Ascalon on the Mediterranean. It eventually would carry 60 million tons of oil a year.

initiated by Moscow. Politics within the Polish communist hierarchy are involved, he said.

Targets include Jews of all ideologies because of a basic decision to use anti-Semitism in appeals to the masses. Indeed, Jews in some instances are subtly bracketed with the Russians as "Moscovites" because they fled to Moscow during World War II, while Gen. Mieczyslaw Moczar, the tough Minister of Interior and head of the secret police, who leads conservatives, remained in Poland fighting the nazis.

Students and liberal intellectuals deserve credit for resisting the regime, Dr. Bromberg said. He characterized these elements as horrified by the revival of anti-Semitism as an aspect of the sickness in present Polish society. He stressed that by aiding the scapegoated Jews, the world can encourage the liberals who are trying to stand against the conservatives.

Dr. Bromberg urged meanwhile that U.S. Jews remain vigilant on the Russian-Jewish question. While it remains doubtful whether much can be done about Soviet policies in the Middle East, he said, the Kremlin remains concerned about the USSR's image on the issue of the Soviet-Jewish minority. Evidence indicates that the Russians remain concerned about world opinion and definitely do not want to be considered anti-Semites.

Hello Again!

Sports News By Warren Walden

STEAMBOAT 'ROUND THE BEND! - Racing talk may focus its topic on Louisville and the Kentucky Derby but that isn't the subject that has prompted me to issue an invitation to you-all to come along with me to Kentucky and the banks of the Ohio River on April 30th. Of course, you'll have to pay your own fare but it will be worth it. There will most likely be more and more Kentucky Derby attractions but a steamboat race between the Delta Queen and the Belle of Louisville on April 30th seems to me to be the big historic event of the year in racing because it may be the very last time that a pair of puffing, smoke-belching stern-wheelers churn the waters of the beautiful Ohio in a speed and maneuvering competition.

NARRAGANSETT BAY HAD IT ONCE - Steamboat racing back in the Gay '90's was so unusual and tales of the "Robert E. Lee" and the "Pargoud" in racing competition on "Old Man River" have helped to fill many a page in stories about the Mississippi. There are those folks in Rhode Island who vividly remember steamboating on Narragansett Bay and the daily unofficial races between the stately old Steamer Mount Hope with its boxed-in paddle-wheels and the trim New Shoreham with its steel prow and propeller-driven power. At least one trip up the Bay from Newport was an unofficial-official race and, if someone will make me do it, I'll go and look for the information so we'll know who won. And, you may also ask me about the old "What Cheer" and "Warwick," and "City of Newport" and "Squantum" and "Islander," if you so desire. What have they to do with a sports column? Well, baseball fans traveled down the bay on those old steamers to watch big league baseball teams play at Rocky Point! So, you see, the story behind the story IS more interesting many times.

THIS, THAT AND T'OTHER - Don't be surprised if you hear about Joe Celletti training fencers as well as boxers. Joe recently came in contact with Barbara Rothstein at South Providence Boy's Club, Miss Rothstein being associated with the fencing team at R.I. College... "I don't think it's a good idea for some of my boxers," said Joe. "Imagine what they could do if they got fooling around with some of those swords!" Want to learn? Contact Miss Rothstein at South Providence Boy's Club... Amelia Bert, who spread Rhode Island's fame as an outstanding discus thrower in the Pan-Am games a few years back, looks in the "pink" and just as ready for competition as ever. Some of these members of the weaker sex make the stronger look weaker....

A FOOT! - Caption on a picture in the N.Y. Times, "In French Boxing, a right to the jaw may be a foot, not a fist." French boxing, an old sport that is said to have disappeared about 50 years ago, is making a comeback in Paris. It is being taught at a sporting club, the participants wearing boxing gloves and using both their hands and their feet. No gloves are shown on the shoes. Is this more devastating than Karate? Fighting with the feet in France was called "Sabot," I think.

FLYWEIGHTS - Members of the Bijou Forum recently discussed the winning of the N.E. Flyweight Boxing Championship by Barney Sweeney on a jab foul from Babe Willard who had won it from John Crowley of constabulary fame. Barney was tall and Willard short in height. . . . Commissioner Bill Carey of the Tim O'Neil Baseball Leagues, says the 68th Providence Amateur League season will open during the latter part of May. There's a possibility that the games may be played under floodlights at McCoy Stadium and also on a Providence Recreation Field when lights are installed and for which plans are under way.... Interesting heavyweight wrestling championship victory by Bill Farrell who won the title from 260-pound Fred Snyder in the A.A.U. Eastern Championship matches on points. It was 5 to 1 for Farrell, who didn't take up wrestling until after his graduation from college. And, outside of all that, remember that "politeness is to do and say the nicest things in the nicest way" and if you always remember that, this will be a better world. - CARRY ON!

ADL Commends Senate For Civil Rights Bill

NEW YORK — The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith has commended the U.S. Senate for its passage of a comprehensive civil rights bill that will bar discrimination in about 80% of the nation's housing.

Dore Schary, national chairman of the ADL, said in a statement that the time has come for "the House to act promptly on the Senate-approved measure, a necessary step in eliminating the barriers which have effectively condemned the vast majority of American Negroes to life in the ghetto."

ducted services themselves calling in a Rabbi for the High Holidays only. Rabbi Joseph Rotherberger was with the congregation for two years and again the synagogue was without a rabbi. However, this past fall, Rabbi Raizman came to the congregation.

The membership of the congregation which has wavered up and down over the years is now at approximately 125 families, and through the efforts of the new rabbi, who has visited house-to-house in Pawtucket, 45 new members have been added. However, members feel that the future of the temple would be more successful in a different location.

As has happened to the temples and synagogues in the North End of Providence as the Jewish people moved out, and as is happening to those in South Providence as their people move, the Jewish population around the synagogue is simply disappearing. They are moving toward Providence and its East Side, or to the suburbs. And as is the situation in such cases when the members of the congregation move, either the synagogue moves with them or membership wanes.

It is estimated that the original building cost about $94,000, and would probably cost, at present construction rates, about a quarter of a million to replace. The building seats about 408 and contains a vestry, chapel, kitchen, rabbi's study and the synagogue itself with a balcony. The membership dues which in the 1890s were 10 cents a week are now $75 a year.

The rabbi, who will be installed by Dr. Samson R. Weiss, executive vice-president of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, was born in Vienna, Austria, in 1935, and came to the United States at the age of four. Ordained by Rabbi Moses Feinstein in 1960, he became an instructor of Talmud and Bible at the Bezalel School in Lakewood, N. J. He later worked with the Beth Medrash Govoha in Lakewood in public relations and fund raising fields. He also was founder and director of Camp Kol-Shirah, a summer day camp for boys and girls, ages 4 to 15.

Invited to the dinner on Sunday are Gov. John H. Chafee and Mayor Robert Burns of Pawtucket. David Horvitz, dinner chairman, will serve as master of ceremonies. Speakers include Dr. Weiss and Rabbi Maurice Lamm, rabbi of the Hebrew Institute of University Heights, in the Bronx, a member of the faculty of Stern College for Women of Yeshiva University and dean of the Akiva Hebrew Academy, who will install the officers of the synagogue who were elected in February.

Professor William Schwartz, son of the one the oldest members of the congregation, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Schwartz, and a professor at Boston University School of Law, will present a review of the past 50 years in the synagogue.

The officers who will be installed are Abraham Mal, president; Elliot Brown, first vice-president; Samuel Trachtenberg, second vice-president; Carl Pasmann, secretary, and Louis Levin, treasurer.

HONEYED DUCK WITH ORANGE SAUCE

2 large ducks
1/2 cup honey
2 teaspoons paprika
Sprinkle ducks with salt and pepper. Place on a rack in an uncovered roasting pan and place in a moderate oven (350 degrees F) for 2 1/2 hours, turning to brown evenly. Drain off fat from pan. Mix the honey with paprika. Brush ducks on all sides with half of this mixture. Turn ducks after 15 minutes and brush with remaining honey mixture. Turn ducks after 15 minutes and brush with remaining honey mixture. Bake until skin is crisp and brown—about 15 minutes longer. Serve with Orange Sauce (see below). Serves 6.

ORANGE SAUCE FOR HONEYED DUCK
Giblets and necks from 2 ducks
3/4 cup condensed clear chicken soup
3/4 cup water
2 tablespoons potato starch
3/4 cup orange juice
1/4 cup honey
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
Dash ginger
Cook giblets and necks in the chicken soup and water until tender. Mix potato starch with a little of the orange juice. Then mix with balance of orange juice. Add 3/4 cup of the giblet broth, the honey, salt, orange rind, and ginger. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Serve hot with duck. Serves 6.

NEW ORLEANS CAULIFLOWER
1 large head cauliflower
1 medium onion, diced
1 small green pepper, diced
2 stalks celery, diced
3 tablespoons vegetable shortening or pareve margarine
1 can (11 oz.) tomato and mushroom sauce
Remove leaves and stalks of cauliflower, cut off woody base, separate into flowerettes. Wash well and cook in salted water until just tender—about 8 minutes. Do not overcook. Keep warm. In a saucepan, combine onion, green pepper, celery, vegetable shortening or pareve margarine, and tomato and mushroom sauce. Simmer 15 minutes. Pour over cauliflower. Serves 6.

BASIC MATZO STUFFING

3/4 cup vegetable shortening or chicken fat
3/4 cup minced onion
10 matzos, finely broken#
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon paprika
1 egg
1 1/2 cans (2 cups) condensed clear chicken soup undiluted*
Saute onion in fat until tender but not browned. Add broken matzos and toast lightly. Combine seasonings, egg, and soup. Add to matzo mixture. Enough for a 10-12 lb. bird.

VARIATIONS

CELERY STUFFING: Saute 1 cup diced celery with the onion.
MUSHROOM STUFFING: Saute 1 cup diced fresh mushrooms with the onion.
NUT STUFFING: Toast 1 1/2 cups coarsely chopped nuts with the onion before adding matzo crumbs.
Giblet Stuffing: Cook giblets in water until tender (2 to 3 hours). Mince and add to dressing.
FRUIT STUFFING: Add 1 jar stewed prunes, (20) drained, pitted, and chopped, plus 2 cups pared, diced apple and 1/2 cup raisins.

*Note: This makes a dry dressing. If you prefer the moist type stuffing, increase the condensed chicken soup to 2 cans.
7 cups matzo farfel may be used instead.

HONEYED SWEET POTATOES
8 medium sweet potatoes
1/2 cup honey
2 tablespoons grated orange rind
1/2 cup orange juice
1/4 cup chicken fat or pareve margarine
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
Dash ginger
1/4 teaspoon salt
Cook unpeeled sweet potatoes until tender. Peel; cut into 1/2 inch slices. Combine honey, orange rind, orange juice, fat, cinnamon, ginger, and salt in a large skillet. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes. Add potatoes and simmer 5 minutes more, basting frequently with the sauce. Serves 8.

MATZO BREI

3 matzos
2 eggs
2 tablespoons water or milk
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
Break matzos into pieces. Cover with water and then pour water off immediately. Press excess water out of matzos. Melt about 2 tablespoons of butter in a skillet; add matzo and fry until lightly toasted. Beat eggs with remaining ingredients. Pour over matzos and fry, stirring frequently, until eggs are set. Serves 2 to 3.

CRANBERRY CABBAGE RELISH
6 cups finely chopped cabbage
1 can cranberry sauce

2 tablespoons minced parsley

1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/3 cup matzo meal
3 tablespoons peanut oil
3 tablespoons pareve margarine

BARNEY GLAZER

In Hollywood

Art Linkletter succeeded Bob Hope as the Beverly Hills B'nai B'rith Lodge #1325 Man of the Year at a recent gala event in the Beverly Hilton Hotel.

As the 21st recipient, Linkletter actually earned the distinction of Boy of the Year. Most of the speakers on the distinguished dais mixed friendly barbs with deep emotion to pay tribute to the famed showman for remaining young at heart, chiefly by communicating with children through radio and television and letting kids know that the world does care for them - very much so.

Jesse White, the Jolly White Giant of television commercials, emceed brightly.

Dais members consisted of Beverly Hills Mayor A. Fredric Leopold, Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin, actress Barbara Rush, Lodge President Jack Freeman, Charitable Foundation President Alan J. Factor, actress Greer Garson, composer-conductor Percy Faith, comedian Edgar Bergen, actress Agnes Moorhead, civic leader Sybil Brand, comedian Dave Barry, District Atty. Evelle J. Younger, and the distinguished guest and his wife, Lois.

Rabbi Magnin described Linkletter as "cut out of the same pattern as Bob Hope - charitable, sweet, kind and dedicated to bringing others happiness."

"Art once asked a Jewish youngster, 'What temple do you attend?'" related Rabbi Magnin. "The little one replied, 'Bullock's Wilshire.'" When the laughter subsided, the rabbi added, "Of course the kid meant I, Magnin's."

In shocking pink dress, topped by here famous red hair, Greer Garson, fittingly introduced by Jesse White as "lovely lady," said, "Art communicates with children on their own level, undoubtedly by being and thinking young himself."

Dave Barry told about two hippies on Sunset Boulevard who met a rabbi with his arm in a sling. "What's wrong?" they asked. The rabbi replied, "I slipped in the shower." Later, one hippy asked the other, "What's a shower? Snapped the other, "How 'd' I know? I ain't Jewish."

Barry stopped being funny to observe how wonderful it was that out of 21 celebrities honored in as many years Beverly Hills B'nai B'rith Lodge had singled out as many Christians as Jews.

Edgar Bergen joshed his friend Linkletter the most. "Art's five children don't mean he's Catholic," said Charlie McCarthy's guiding light. "Actually, he's an oversexed Protestant. Which reminds me about the parents who use the new contraceptive pill as a sleeping pill. They put it every morning in their teenage daughter's orange juice and every night they sleep like a log."

Seriously, Bergen famed Linkletter's marital life and statistics that violate the tradition of Hollywood divorces: five children, five grandchildren and only one marriage. "What Art does so well," said Bergen, "is make others happy. He has made a success of showbusiness but mostly of life."

Lodge President Jack Freeman observed that Linkletter and B'nai B'rith work alike - trying to help all people. "Art is helping children to grow up and help one another," noted Freeman, "which makes better citizens for tomorrow."

In accepting his plaque, Linkletter opened with a well articulated, "Mishpocheh (of which he had many present) and mechutonim (of which he had none), I agree that it's caring for other people that counts most in the world, letting them know that someone cares about them."

He summed up his lifework beautifully with, "Kids want love and knowledge."

Urge Change In Rules Of Selection Of Jurors

WASHINGTON — Major Reform Jewish groups joined Protestant and Quaker organizations recently in urging the United States Supreme Court to allow opponents of the death penalty to serve as jurors in trials involving capital punishment cases.

Later this year the court will review the practice by which jurors opposed to the death penalty may be disqualified.

The Jewish petitioners were the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, Central Conference of American Rabbis, and the commission on social action of Reform Judaism.

Mine On Negev Road Injures 28 Children

TEL AVIV — A busload of school children hit a mine on a Negev road last week. Two adults were killed and 28 children were injured, seven of them seriously.

The injured were rushed by transport planes to hospitals in the Tel Aviv area.

Nine of the seventh and eighth grade pupils were in the hospital, two in serious condition but said to be out of danger. Twenty other youngsters with minor injuries were home with their parents after receiving emergency first aid at Eilat, where they spent the night.

The bus was one of three carrying pupils of the Herzliyah Gymnasium in Tel Aviv on their annual sight seeing tour.

The bus, bound for Eilat, struck the mine near Beer Orah, less than 20 miles north of its destination, at dusk. Beer Orah was the scene of four other mine incidents in the previous 24 hours. Several pairs of footprints were found near the scene leading toward the Jordanian border.

"We heard an explosion. We were showered with glass splinters. Everything was black. I heard somebody crying and somebody shouting, 'It's a mine,' " a 17-year old girl, who was a passenger, said.

Her blouse and blue jeans were covered with dust and spots of blood as she waited in line to use a telephone to call her parents and tell them that she was safe.

Two passengers were dead — Dr. Pessach Meilich, one of several physicians who accompanied the youngsters, and Hannan Kalev, a Herzliyah graduate who had volunteered to serve as a counsellor. Both occupied seats directly over the front left wheel.

Observers at the scene said that only a miracle prevented more injuries and deaths. Nevertheless, it was the worst disaster to hit a civilian vehicle in the mounting campaign of terror and sabotage coming from across the Jordanian border.

The driver escaped injury when he was thrown clear by the explosion. There was no panic, a JTA correspondent was told. The youngsters quickly recovered from the shock and had started to tend the injured when other cars came along and soon ambulances from Eilat. Army engineers arrived on the scene quickly to search for more mines. Within a half-hour, all of the youngsters were on their way back to Eilat.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan meanwhile warned King Hussein again to stop guerrillas using Jordan as a base against Israel.

Dayan told newsmen that about 1,000 saboteurs had been captured and 90 killed since last fall and that about 1,000 still are active in Jordan.

Dayan declared, "Jordan has to take full responsibility for what is taking place on its territory — Fatah or no El Fatah. When we are fired at, we fire back."

Most of the raids are attributed to El Fatah, a sabotage organization which Israel claims has bases in Jordan.

Two soldiers were killed some hours before Dayan spoke, in a clash with infiltrators along the Jordan River.

In the Knesset, Israel's Parliament, Prime Minister Levi Eshkol said, "Jordan is doing nothing to stop the El Fatah. We will have to safeguard our security along the cease-fire line."

Foreign Minister Abba Eban told the Cabinet that Israel's diplomats abroad had communicated to various governments the serious concern in Israel over continuing acts of sabotage against Israeli citizens launched mainly from Jordan.

Recent incidents included the mining near Beer Orah of a taxi in which three occupants were injured, two seriously; mining of an Army vehicle near the Mandassa bridge, injuring a soldier; mining of a civilian tractor, injuring the driver at Kibbutz Nahal Oz; explosion of a bomb at a gasoline station near the Mandelbaum Gate in Jerusalem which caused no damage; and the sabotage of a gas pipeline near the Dead Sea which caused a spectacular fire but no major damage.

An Arab convicted of illegal possession of arms and ammunition got off with a light sentence in a military court Monday after a trial in which he advocated non-violence as the only solution to the Arab-Israel dispute.

The defendant, who received a one-year sentence, was Faisal Abdul Kader el Houseini, son of the commander of Arab forces in Jerusalem who was killed in the battle of Kastel during Israel's War for Independence in 1948.

He reportedly told the court that he was convinced that non-violence was the best way to help the Arabs.

A Long Time Between Meals

One of my readers was kind enough to send me a clipping from a Spanish paper. It was a news item describing the luncheon of the Judeo-Christian Society. What made it especially noteworthy was that this was the first time that Spanish Jews and Christians in Spain broke bread together at an advertised and publicized event.

Appropriately, the meeting took place at the Restaurante Sinai, the only kosher restaurant in Spain and perhaps the first Jewish restaurant since no one is sure whether the Jews had eating places before the Inquisition. Three priests sat at the head of the table. There was no rabbi for the simple reason there is only one rabbi in all of Spain and he lives in Barcelona.

There are 32 million citizens of Spain, 8,000 of whom are Jewish. Twenty-five hundred Jews, Spanish, Hungarian and Moroccan, live in Madrid.

In 1965, the Franco Government permitted Jews and Protestants to worship openly. Jews had had less difficulty in worshipping than Protestants since Judaism does not advocate proselytizing. In the Madrid synagogue, services took place every evening and, like everywhere, the temple was filled to overflowing during the High Holy Days.

While a luncheon is hardly a world-shattering event, this was the first one in which Jews and Gentiles participated since the Inquisition. The guests, after praying for universal peace and brotherhood, ate Sinai chicken, served with stewed prunes.

Albert Elmalmen Cochran is the proprietor of the Sinai Restaurante. He spent most of his life in Morocco and when he came to Madrid, friends said a kosher restaurant would certainly make him a buck if the government didn't interfere. For the government in Spain often does take things in its own hand.

The Jewish community, for instance, is allowed to import only 1,000 gallons of kosher wine every year. This time the government said nothing. Biblical and medieval Jewish paintings decorate the walls along with "Visit Israel" posters and there are pictures of Levi Eshkol, the prime minister, and Moshe

Dayan, everybody's idea of a defense minister.

One kosher restaurant does not a fellowship make. Franco has yet to recognize the state of Israel. On the day of the brotherhood luncheon, Spain awarded its highest honor of the year, the Don Quixote Medal to none other than King Hussein of Jordan. But the Restaurante Sinai may do a lot to alleviate any of the trouble of the Iggado, the liver, of Spanish Jews.

VIEWPOINT

By JEFF BERGER

Lawmakers Propose Steps To Aid Arab Refugees

NEW YORK — Two United States lawmakers have proposed steps to aid Arab refugees who are victims of war in the Middle East.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D., N.Y.) proposed that the United Nations establish a special fund for assistance to the Arabs in the territories occupied by Israel last June, and that the United States "do all that is necessary to dispel" from Arab minds "the false belief that Israel can be overthrown or conquered."

Kennedy told a UJA dinner that America's best role would be to assist all the nations of the Middle East in their peaceful development. He said that the U.S. must avoid the mistake of maintaining a rigid policy in the face of future changes in Arab policy.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R., N.Y.) suggested last week that the U.S. accept 50,000-60,000 Arab refugees displaced by the establishment of Israel in 1948. Other nations that could resettle them, he said, were Brazil, Australia, New Zealand and Canada.

Safety On

The American Road

(This is the last of three articles on highway safety.)

The chaos on American highways which last year killed nearly 50,000 men, women and children - a toll of needless bloodletting much higher than Vietnam - is caused mostly by uneducated or witless drivers, something which my first two articles on the subject took great pains to point out.

The problem is compounded, however, by highway systems designed for horses and cars designed with scarcely any attention to the manner in which they are driven.

It is impossible for all highways in this country to be safe, in our lifetimes. Residential streets will always offer blind driveways and intersections, pedestrians will jaywalk and get killed doing it, and idiots will continue to be able to pass red lights and stop signs. As long as these things can happen, highway fatalities will continue to occur.

It is quite another matter, and one for which there is no excuse, that the new interstate highways should be poorly designed. It is no less than tragic that millions of dollars, or billions, should be spent on such fiascos. Interstate highways should have center strips wide enough to accommodate disabled cars unable to get to the breakdown lanes; they should not offer the possibility of cars conflicting to get on and off freeways at exits located immediately following entrances; they should make it impossible for cars to get catapulted back onto the highway after hitting barriers; and the thousands of signs on the Interstate System should not be made with bases strong enough to demolish Army tanks. But this is the case.

Inept as our highway system is, Detroit automakers made it look beautiful. Although federal legislation has forced Detroit to make some not-very-costly modifications of its cars, the auto manufacturers have capitalized on this opportunity and raised their prices to ludicrous heights.

Most important, and certainly more maddening, has been Detroit's insistence upon building cars which will create inherently unsafe conditions on our highways and will get obsolete in a hurry in the process.

The worst design feature in 1968 is Pontiac's "V" jutting out from the front bumper. This "V" makes it impossible for Pontiacs to bump without denting, something in which I am sure auto body shops will take delight. This protrusion also is a threat to any pedestrian who is unfortunate enough to get hit by it - something Pontiac obviously didn't care about when they designed the car. Only their GTO - whose front end is made of a resilient rubberlike material which bounces in and out of shape when hit - is saving Pontiac from my dubious achievement award for Detroit's Disastrous Design of the Year.

GM seems to have cornered the market on designed-in mistakes. The 1968 Chevrolet's tail lights are in its bumper - just where they'll get scrunched when another car bumps them. I posed that question to Chevy dealers in the area who dismissed it as hogwash, saying the lights were recessed. But they smiled or gestured nervously when I pointed out that front-end designs of 68s easily enter the recessions and break the lights. GM seems to have misplaced somewhere the fact that bumpers are supposed to bump, and has built theirs so bumps will be costly, in more ways than one.

Although it is quite pretty, Chevy's Corvette melts in fires or breaks when involved in crashes, because it is made of fiberglass. You'll find many garagemen who are dead serious about not towing Corvettes because of the Vet's well-known habit of breaking in two if not towed "just right". And I might add it is scarcely possible to tow the superduper-designed Corvette without breaking its expensive body.

The problems we face as motorists are monumental, but if we remember we're driving imperfect cars on imperfect highways with an imperfect knowledge of what we're doing - and that more than 90 million others are doing the same thing - we stand some kind of chance of survival, albeit small.

One thing which we should do is make every effort to see to it that we survive if our imperfect cars get somehow disabled, which they are prone to do. In that regard, here are a few suggestions, from research in this field, on material to help preserve you as a driver:

1. FLARES - If you are disabled, other people have to see you to avoid driving into you. Get a couple of boxes of red highway flares. Although they don't make much money doing it, Stop & Shop recently started carrying Olin safety flares for less than $1.

2. JACK, LUG WRENCH, SPARE TIRE, AEROSOL TIRE BOMB: If you get a flat, the easiest way to fix it is with an aerosol bomb. They're generally available and work quite well, except with large punctures. Some people don't bother carrying spare tires; unless you're inclined to like long walks for service, carry a spare and be sure you know how to install it.

3. BOOSTER CABLES - The fastest way to get a dead battery awake is with a neighbor's help.

ALSO: spare oil, and a spout with which to install it; "dry gas", to prevent ice from forming in your gasoline, or to prevent it from evaporating, either of which causes stalls; spare fan belt and wrench to put it on with; spare headlights and tail light bulbs (signals are crucially important); first aid supplies (which you can get for under $1); and a screwdriver, which can be handy. Other items of importance could be mentioned here, but I hope to detail them at a later time. Suffice it to say these are minimums. (Add a gas can if you tend to be forgetful).

For the last couple of months, I have concentrated my attention on this arena of automotive safety, something which is quite close to my heart. Frankly, I am impatient with poorly designed roads, misdesigned cars, and motorists who don't know what they are doing. Penalties for bad driving should be of a nature which compel people to drive more safely by instinct of monetary survival, since they obviously don't care about their personal safety and appeals in that area go unheeded.

If you agree, or disagree with this series, I welcome your comments.

Eban Advises Rusk That Israeli Administration Is Most Lenient Under Circumstances At Present

JERUSALEM — Foreign Minister Abba Eban has advised U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk that Israel's administration of occupied Arab territories is the most lenient possible under the circumstances and that the expropriation of land in East Jerusalem for new housing projects was an urgent necessity in order to provide decent living standards for the population, the independent daily Ha'aretz reported.

According to Ha'aretz, Eban's statement was contained in an exchange of letters with Rusk. The latter had written to him urging Israel to exercise "restraint" in the former Arab territories it administers. He also stated that the U.S. does not favor unilateral measures in Jerusalem that might prejudice peace agreements and the city's "international character," Ha'aretz said.

The Rusk letter, according to the newspaper, followed reports that houses were being blown up and extended curfews imposed on Arab villages in the occupied territories.

Eban replied that these were necessary measures taken against terrorists and saboteurs who were acting against the interests of a majority of the population.

He said that the return to normal life in the occupied regions and the resumption of farming, trade and crafts testified to the wishes of the population not to be involved in the acts of terrorists whose sole purpose was to disrupt peace and good order.
