

Lebanon Takes Steps To Halt Publicity Activities Of Commandos

BEIRUT, Lebanon — President Suleiman Franjien said that the country was taking steps to halt the publicity activities of the Arab commando group that claimed responsibility for the Tel Aviv airport massacre.

Despite the statement, the Premier, Saeb Salam, insisted there was no legal basis for a clampdown.

The announcements came amid tension marked by insistent rumors that an Israeli offensive was already under way in the south. The President, who deplored the violence, said the new steps were designed to avoid giving the Israelis "a new inflammatory pretext" for such an attack.

Ghassan Kanafani, editor and spokesman for the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, which said it had instigated the shooting, asserted that he had not been notified of any new measures.

With the foreign press, Premier Salam said: "Lebanon is a free country. Many people use it as a base for public information."

He repeated over and over:

"This was a foreign group, traveling from a foreign capital flying in a foreign plane. Lebanon does not come into it at all."

The Premier and security

side insisted that there was no record that the three Japanese had visited Lebanon, a guerrilla spokesman said the same thing.

Mr. Salam, a Moslem, was asked whether he condoned or deplored the attack. "What we want is peace in the area," he replied. "Of course, violence begets violence."

"We cannot be responsible except for established acts that we can control," he said, adding that he had no evidence that the Palestinians here were "not behaving in a peaceful manner."

President Franjien, a Maronite Christian, said the country "deplores the repetition and escalation" of acts of violence.

Insisting that Lebanon could not be held responsible for the presence here of 300,000 Palestinian refugees "chased from their homes," the President said that repression in occupied countries "inexorably" brings extreme reactions.

He said that the Lebanese Government, which has "already intervened as far as possible" against the Marxist guerrilla group, "has taken new measures to avoid Lebanon's being the source of its information activities."

Security At European Airports Tightened After Attack In Israel

LONDON — Security at European airports has been tightened in the aftermath of the attack by three terrorists that left 26 persons dead at the Tel Aviv International Airport.

Electronic devices, random searches, armed guards, plainclothesmen and television monitors have remained the key measures taken by security officials at airports in London, Athens, Rome, Paris, Copenhagen and Bonn.

Stringent new procedures went into effect at the international airports of Rome and Milan for all flights leaving for the Middle East. Passengers were searched and all their baggage was inspected.

(The Tel Aviv airport was put on military alert in the expectation of a possible new terrorist attack, but no incident occurred. Israeli planes flew over southern Lebanon and no unusual troop movements were reported in Israeli border settlements.)

The new measures in Italy followed the revelation that the three Japanese who killed the 26 people had boarded a flight to Tel Aviv at Rome without discovery of their automatic rifles and hand grenades.

Transport Minister Oscar Luigi Scalfaro ordered the tightened rules in response to a formal request by the Israeli Government.

Officials at Rome's Fiumicino Airport had said that it was "impossible" to examine all 21,000 pieces of luggage handled there on an average day. They asserted that all airlines operating at Fiumicino had agreed to scrutinize baggage checked for Middle East destinations, and said that this procedure had not been observed when the three Japanese boarded an Air France airliner.

Airline representatives discussed security measures with police and airport official and military officers at a meeting in the Fiumicino air terminal. In a statement later, the airlines complained that the new measures were causing "chaotic working conditions."

Air France denied in a statement that it was negligent in enforcing security, saying its checks on travelers and their luggage were "in no way inferior" to those of other companies. The statement was apparently a reply to the charge made by the French Union of Airline Pilots that security controls had been relaxed since earlier this year.

A letter in Le Monde expressed the astonishment of a Frenchman who said that when he was flying from Strasbourg to Paris and from Paris to Tel Aviv last May 10, neither he nor his luggage had been searched.

In London, Captain Laurie Taylor, chairman of the British Airline Pilots Association, described the attack in Tel Aviv as "a completely new threat to civil aviation."

"It appears it will now be necessary to carry out an inspection of every item allowed aboard an airliner," he said.

Security officers at Heathrow Airport met representatives of Scotland Yard and airlines — including El Al, the Israeli line — to discuss measures to thwart terrorists and hijackers. The measures are expected to include a sizable increase in the use of electronic scanning machines for checking luggage, bigger checks on freight and stepped-up surveillance of parked airliners.

Leslie Green, the general manager of Heathrow Airport, said, "Now we must try to anticipate further attempts at original methods of wreaking havoc, vengeance or murder."

He said security measures would be strengthened, but added: "Apart from turning Heathrow into an armed camp — as some airports in the world have become — what more can we do?"

"If the British public want the army to move in with barbed wire and machine guns that is a matter for the Government to decide."

Like several other European airports, Heathrow has given police escorts to passengers boarding or leaving El Al flights.

There were also meetings between airport and airline officials across Europe to discuss security, including more refined electronic devices to scan both passengers and luggage.

In Athens, for example, all outgoing passengers pass through metal-detectors in a check for weapons. Although officials at Athens airport are reluctant to discuss security measures in detail, it is known that plainclothes policemen are now posing as passengers and lingering in transit lounges.

A new police squad, known as the Hijacking Prevention Squad, was also organized before the tragedy in Tel Aviv to operate in plain clothes at the airport.

Major airports in Europe, such as those in Paris, Copenhagen and Bonn, have installed magnetic devices and X-ray equipment to detect weapons and metal objects in luggage and on passengers. Some airlines also check the personal background of passengers on flights to troubled areas.

The incident in Tel Aviv has already spurred calls for international cooperation in a widespread tightening of security. Gordon Ruddick, a director of the International Air Transport Association, the airlines' supervisory group, said from Geneva: "It has been a long uphill battle trying to bully Governments into introducing legislation. We always seem to be one step behind."

"We have had the kinks, the politically motivated hijackers and the extortionists," he said. "Now we have sunk to the depths of the mass victimization of innocent people."

Irish Group Gives Scholarship To Lewis, Jew Born in Dublin

The Irish Scholarship Foundation, Inc. of Providence has awarded a scholarship this year to Arnold Israel Lewis of Dublin, Ireland, to attend the 1972 Multinational Summer Program in Marketing Management at Harvard University.

Mr. Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Lewis of Dublin, is the nephew of Rabbi Theodore Lewis of Touro Synagogue in Newport. Born in Dublin, he received an intermediate certificate from Stratford College in Dublin and a second class honors degree in Business Studies from the University of Dublin, Trinity College, in 1970. At the present time he is organization and methods officer with a large British automotive component company and is working on a new stock control system.

According to Austin C. Daley, president of the Irish Scholarship Foundation, this is the fourth scholarship which the group has awarded with the idea of helping a citizen of Ireland contribute to the cultural and industrial life of the country.

Mr. Lewis will arrive in the United States on June 8 and stay with Rabbi Lewis in Newport until June 18 when he will leave for

ARNOLD ISRAEL LEWIS

A reception in his honor will be held on Sunday, June 11, at the Bryant College Unionstructure in Smithfield from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Cantor Theodore Schneider of Brookline, Massachusetts, will entertain with a program of Jewish and Irish songs.

The public is invited to attend.

Parisians Demonstrate Against Killings

PARIS — Over 1,500 Parisians demonstrated last week against the killings at the airport at Tel Aviv by marching from Place de la Republique to the Jewish Memorial near the Seine in the Marais district.

The marchers, mostly Jewish youths, carried 26 torches, one for each of the 26 dead, and chanted slogans against the Palestinian guerrillas, Lebanon and Air France, the French national airline on which the three Japanese gunmen had traveled from Rome to Israel.

François Mitterrand, the Socialist leader, sent a telegram of condolence to Premier Golda Meir; Jewish organizations continued voicing indignation over the slayings, and the French Arab Friendship Society, headed by Louis Terrenoire, a former Gaullist Information Minister, expressly dissociated itself from any terrorism.

Jews Released From Prison

By Syrian Authorities

PARIS — Several Syrian Jews were released from prison by the Syrian authorities according to unconfirmed reports reaching Paris. Some of these reports said all the detained Jews with the exception of former Beirut Jewish community leader Albert Elias were suddenly set free and allowed to return to their homes.

Elias was kidnapped in broad daylight last autumn in downtown Beirut while on his way from his home to the local community building. Though the Syrians have denied holding him or even knowing where he was detained, persistent reports said that Elias was being held in a Syrian military prison on the outskirts of Damascus.

Jewish organizations in Paris, which refuse to be named, confirmed these reports. According to the reports, nine Syrian Jews, including three women, were set free by the Syrians. Some of them had spent over a year in jail. The organizations explain that the Syrians did not release Elias because of their former claims that they do not hold him.

Among those set free are two former teachers at the Alliance Israélite Universelle School in Damascus, Jacques Ariel and Jacques Attar. The Alliance confirmed this report here. It is not known yet whether the released men will be allowed to leave the country.

A number of non-Jewish personalities including French Senate president Alain Poher have repeatedly intervened in the past to secure the release of the Jewish detainees in Syrian prisons. Should the reports be confirmed, it would appear that their release was partially due to these interventions.

VISITS ISRAEL

JERUSALEM — Dr. Rudolph Kirchschlaeger, Foreign Minister of Austria, made the first official visit of an Austrian foreign minister to Israel. No Israeli Foreign Minister has yet visited Austria but an invitation to return Dr. Kirchschlaeger's visit is expected to be extended on this occasion.

Israel has good relations with Austria. Vienna is the main way station for Soviet and other East European Jews bound for Israel. Officials here say Austrian assistance in this area is generous beyond what anyone would expect, even from a friendly nation. Austrian officials provide temporary housing for Jewish immigrants in transit and help Israeli officials in speeding up the paperwork required in the preabsorption process.

Proceeds of the outing will be used for the Camp Shalom Scholarship Fund.

Mrs. Jeffrey A. Agid

Miss Sherry Debra Leapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Leapman of 292 Merry Mount Drive, Warwick, became the bride on Sunday, June 4, of Jeffrey Andrew Agid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Agid of 572 Elmgrove Avenue.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white organza gown styled with Venise lace trim on the high collar, a sheer yoke bodice, French pouf sleeves and a full skirt with lavender ribbons at the waistline. She carried her grandmother's prayer book covered with white orchids and stephanotis.

Following a wedding trip to the Nevele Hotel in Ellenville, New York, the couple will live in Providence.

Jewish Community Center Offers Special Summer Membership Plan

A special summer introductory membership to the Jewish Community Center of Rhode Island will be offered to families which are not presently members of the Center, it has been announced by Norman Robinson, chairman of the Center membership campaign committee.

Approved by the Center's board of directors at its meeting last week, the new plan will offer a family membership from June 15, 1972, to September 15, 1972 for $50. This will entitle all members of the family to full use of the Center facilities except for the Health Clubs and Nursery School.

Included will be the swimming pool, sun deck, gymnasium and exercise facilities, game rooms and lounges as well as eligibility for such special summer activities as the Tween Trails, Camp Small Fry and the complete range of special group and class activities for every age group that is now being offered for enrollment.

Families which decide to continue their Center membership after the introductory membership's September 15 expiration date will be able to credit the $50 against the regular full annual Center family membership fee of $125, or against the $85 fee for annual young adult family membership.

The Center also offers a special summer membership fee for college students who attend out-of-town schools and are home only for summer vacation time.

Further information may be obtained by calling Arthur Eisenstein, assistant executive director of the Center, at 861-8800.

Israel's Leaders Express Satisfaction Over Talks

JERUSALEM — Israeli leaders expressed satisfaction at the outcome of President Nixon's talks in Moscow as they affect the Middle East.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban cited specifically the phrase in the joint Soviet-American communique that expressed the readiness of the two sides to play a role in international peacemaking efforts.

As interpreted here, this seemed to signal a Soviet endorsement of United States efforts to arrange a partial settlement between Israel and Egypt that separate the two countries' front lines and reopen the Suez Canal.

Israel agreed four months ago to American proposals for opening indirect talks on this limited accord, but the Egyptian Government has denounced United States efforts and declined in diplomatic contacts to give Washington any response to the specific American initiative.

The Soviet Union reportedly discouraged Egypt from accepting the American proposals when they were first offered, apparently out of reluctance to let the United States assume the role of principal peacemaker for the Middle East.

Israeli officials said they suspected that the summit meeting in Moscow served to soften this Soviet resistance, even though the Middle East is not believed to have figured high on the agenda of issues discussed by President Nixon and Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist party leader.

ASKS CAMPAIGN
NEW YORK — Rabbi Abraham Gross, president of the Rabbinical Alliance of America, has called upon all member rabbis and their congregations to begin a concerted letter writing and contact campaign to Congressmen to amend the Economic Opportunity Act so that a more suitable distribution of anti-poverty monies could be allocated to include poor Jews.

RAP FILM
BONN — The Jewish community in West Berlin protested the screening of a film of the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin which were held under the auspices of Hitler. The protest was lodged by the Organization of Racial, Political and Religious Victims of Nazism. The owner of the Zoo Palace Cinema, which advertised the film as "The Best Sports Movie of All Times," agreed not to show it.

ROME — Leaders of Italy's Jewish community warn that a rash of anti-Semitic acts by Italian neo-Fascists are intended to test whether Italic public opinion would tolerate such acts on the eve of general elections. Sergio Piperno, president of the Union of Italian Jewish Communities, and Chief Rabbi Eli Toaff spoke at ceremonies reconsecrating the 18th century synagogue in Gorizia which was broken into and vandalized by unknown persons believed to be neo-Fascists.

A LETTER TO A NEIGHBOR

By GIDEON RAFAEL

To my Neighbor in Egypt:

In the absence of lines of communications between your country and mine and of any means of dialogue between our two Governments, may I be permitted to convey to you, by this medium, some thoughts and reflections on the destiny and the future of the relations between Egypt and Israel.

It is now almost 25 years that our two countries have been engaged in a continuous state of belligerence. Three times have the embers burst into the flames of war. We fought, and we overcame in these three contests because every man, woman and child in Israel knew and felt that they were fighting not alone for survival, but also for that pawn that was placed in the hands of our generation to ensure the continuity of the existence of the people of Israel in its land.

In your eyes, we are in Sinai as a result of our having carried out a calculated and long-prepared plan for Israel's expansion into Arab territory. In our eyes, the reason why we are in the places where we are today is entirely different. Not in implementation of a master plan did we reach the east bank of the Suez Canal, the banks of the River Jordan and the heights of Golan, but because we succeeded in frustrating the real and proclaimed threat that you will march on us from the south, that you will descend upon us from the north and that you will push us into the sea from the east. The cease-fire lines of today are not the bounds of Israel's expansion. They are the lines that the Israel Army reached in a thrust of self-defense. To the degree that the area of peace will extend, the area of the administered territories will shrink.

We face the alternative of living in constant peril on the edge of a precipice or of building a bridge across the abyss.

This is the hour to set about building that bridge. The element and components of peace-engineering are in our own hands and in our reach to erect the structure. We do not need foreign experts for this purpose; for, if we really want to do the job, we know how to accomplish it. Just as foreigners will not fight our wars, they will not build our peace. They are ready — as in your case — to station an expeditionary force on foreign soil on the pretext of military aid against the imaginary designs of Israel.

What good did the arms race do to us? Has either of us agreed to lag behind the other? Did the flow of military supplies alter the balance of strength or confer decisive advantages or bring solutions nearer? All that the arms race did was to add more explosives to a situation which is saturated with danger and tension as it is. The arms race cuts into our own flesh; it squanders our assets and prevents us from directing our best skills and resources to provide the masses of our people with decent standards of living within a progressive and just society. The burden of military expenditure weighs heavily on all the States of our region and holds them back from taking off towards vital social objectives to which every responsible government must aspire and towards which the eyes of our people are raised.

Is it visionary to think that, within the framework of peace in which the security of our States is ensured, we could establish a joint fund — a fund for peace and development — to which we would contribute a sizeable percentage of the savings on our military budgets? A fund in which all States that are willing to contribute towards the solution of the problems which burden all of us in our region would be invited to take part. A fund to be administered in common responsibility by the States of the area participating in it, which would themselves determine the goals and decide upon the projects of its application.

If we lift our eyes from this strife in which we have been embroiled over the last twenty years, we will realize that, during that same period, enemies of the past, who lost millions of their sons in two wars, have become allies of today. Wide zones of joint economic and social activity have come into being. Customs and walls have crumbled, and barriers of borders have been razed.

The President of Egypt has announced his readiness to enter into a peace agreement with Israel and recognize its sovereignty. This is an honorable and commendable statement. It was welcomed by Israel and met with our positive response.

I can assure you that we, for our part, will do all that can be done, and that we will examine with open minds every possibility and every proposal that is likely to further the cause of peace, so that agreement by negotiation may be reached.

I get the impression that there is a stirring among both our people, that time is pressing, a feeling that we have given too much of our energy to declare positions and too little to time our steps.

A sense of frustration and anxiety seems to be common to both because of the continued stagnation. It is the duty of responsible statesmen to direct these sentiments into positive channels of life and creation, not of desolation and destruction.

(Gideon Rafael is the former director general of Israel's Ministry of Foreign Affairs.)

Israeli Soldier Killed in Guerrilla Ambush

TEL AVIV — The military command said that an Israeli soldier was killed Monday in an ambush by Arab guerrillas near Quneitra on the occupied Golan heights of Syria.

The attack, apparently timed to coincide with the fifth anniversary of the outbreak of the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, broke a lull of nearly four months on the Syrian front. The last reported incident occurred February 13 when shots were fired across the cease-fire lines at an Israeli post, injuring one soldier.

The soldier killed Monday had been riding in a civilian vehicle and another soldier in the car was injured. The Israelis had no chance to return the fire.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

What's New in Providence?

By BERYL SEGAL

"What's new in Providence?" asked the Rabbi after he was away for almost eight months.

We were walking on a sunny Memorial Day in the streets of the East Side and talking of this and that, and I never got around to tell Rabbi William G. Braude all he wanted to know about Providence, just as he did not even begin to tell me of life and manners in Israel where the Rabbi spent his time in teaching and in learning.

What is new in Providence? What happened in the Jewish community worth telling about during his absence?

To my mind the news of the Jewish Home for the Aged joining, as a beneficiary, the Jewish Federation of Rhode Island is on top of the list. If the Federation did nothing else but provide in this manner for the Home, we could say Dayenu.

The Home has always prided itself as being an independent agency in the community. Ever since the Home was founded, in 1912, the agency had the key to the heart and the purse strings of every Jew in Providence, and, for that matter, in the entire State of Rhode Island. Old and young, rich and poor, none refused when the Home called for aid. Making the elderly secure and comfortable is a Mitzvah deeply imbedded in the tradition of our people. My generation still remembers when grandparents were the crown of the family. When grandfather entered the room everybody stood up, and the seat of honor at the head of the table was reserved for him. This tradition, though tarnished in the harsh realities of America, still has a hold on us. The Home never knew the meaning of lean years.

But the times caught up with the Home. High costs of food and equipment. Regulation of work and ancillary personnel. Demanding requirements of safety and sanitary conditions. New and revised methods of managing a Home. All these, together with an increase in the aged coming to the Home, made it imperative for the Board of Trustees of the Home to look for a constant, reliable source of support.

And they found it. Reported Harold Leavitt, President of the Home, at a meeting of the Board of Directors:

The Jewish Federation of Rhode Island unanimously accepted the Home as one of the latest Jewish agencies wanting to become its beneficiary. There were no conditions set. No requirements advanced. No "Ifs" or "Buts" stipulated. The financial arrangements were worked out by both the Home and the Federation, to the satisfaction of both.

Let us hope it will also satisfy the community as a whole. The Home at last is provided for by the Federation. ***

The next piece of news I wanted to tell the Rabbi, as we were walking on that summer morning, was about The Miriam Hospital, still fresh in my memory, since the Annual Meeting was held during the same week.

The hospital is coming up in the world of Medicine. The Miriam is now a major hospital facility in the state. Its Research efforts, its teaching facilities, the high caliber of its staff, and its standing in the community are all evidence of that. But with all this come greater financial burdens, and in this The Miriam falls short of any other hospital in the community. It has no government resources to fall back on as the Veterans Hospital does. It has no accumulated funds as the Rhode Island Hospital has. Nor does the Miriam have a Religious Diocese behind it as does St. Joseph's and Our Lady of Fatima.

It is relatively young, and its growth has been phenomenal. The hospital must catch up financially if it is to meet the challenges of modern hospital service.

At the Annual Meeting of The Miriam held recently it was revealed that one member of the Board of Trustees is doing just that. Mr. Stanley Grossman, well known to us all, has undertaken to solicit from among people who are able and are willing to contribute from $10,000 and upwards toward a hospital fund, by whatever name it will be known. It was also reported that the results are encouraging.

To me that shows that all you need is one person, talking to the right people, about a worthwhile project, and the response will exceed all expectations.

There is more news in our community that is worth retelling you about, Rabbi, but I will limit myself to a hysteria that has taken hold of our organizations. There is hardly a gathering, a conference or a convention, for that matter, where the cry "Let My People Go" is not heard. It has become the equivalent of "L'Shonoh Haboh B'Yerushalayim."

And this is very distressing. It is as if all our problems have been solved here. Let my people go where? Who gave us the authority to speak for Russian Jewry? What gives us the assurance that our demands will be heeded when greater powers cannot move the Soviets from their appointed course?

We need a program for American Jews. A program of direction, of priorities, of discipline. As it is, everybody does what is good in his own eyes, and oh, what foolish things we say and what foolish acts we perform, all in the name of the belief that we really are the saviors of Russian Jewry.

There is still the Community Center, the efforts to bring Cranston-Warwick Jews into a closer orbit with the Jewish Federation, the Providence Hebrew Day School and the Bureau of Jewish Education, to mention a few. But of these I will try to tell you on another occasion.

(Mr. Segal's opinions are his own, and not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

Your Money's Worth

By Sylvia Porter

Where Will the Jobs Be? — V

How would you like to:
Go into business for yourself;
Earn from $15,000 to $40,000 a year;

Set your own time schedules, deadlines, work pace;

And all this "without any experience necessary?"

Door-to-door sales — the "world's smallest independent business" — might answer all these dreams IF you like this type of work and IF you have what it takes to make a go of it.

Door-to-door selling is our country's oldest method of merchandising. Among familiar products initially introduced to the American public by door-to-door salesmen are the washing machine, silk and nylon stockings, the vacuum cleaner, sewing machine, radio.

Today, 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 are in door-to-door selling — about half of them women. And the numbers continue to grow as millions of all ages yearn for the advantages of this occupation, student turn to it to finance their tuition costs, teachers and others lean on it to boost their incomes, women move in to supplement the family's income and fill up their idle hours.

The whole field of direct selling is expanding rapidly, spurred particularly by your increasing willingness to pay a premium for the luxury of "shopping at home." The field is also diversifying to a wide range of goods and services. There are now an estimated 2,500 to 3,000 direct selling companies — many of them glamor stocks in recent years — grossing about $4 billion annually, double the volume of only a decade ago.

Should YOU attempt to go into the direct selling field? Here are some realistic guidelines for you from the Washington based Direct Selling Association, the trade association which recently put together a code of ethics for its members.

EARNINGS: If you are selling part-time, your typical earnings in commissions will be about $30 to $50 a week. If you work full-time and are lucky, you'll probably average $10,000 to $15,000 a year. If you're in the minority of "born" sales people (or their field supervisors), you may manage $40,000 or more annually.

Women earn at least as much as men do.

ADVANTAGES: You're on your own and can set your own work load, time schedules, financial goals. You can get started with virtually no experience, can get in or out of direct sales at any time, normally need no capital to begin with. (Warning: steer clear of any direct sales company that requires you to make a big investment in sales gear before you even hit the road.)

DISSADVANTAGES: You may not be able to achieve the income you seek unless you are willing and able to spend a considerable amount of time away from home. You may have to carry heavy (Continued on Page 12)

BRIDGE

After getting to the Slam contract in today's hand, the various Declarers had to make it. Some did but not many. See if you would. True, there is no certain way of doing it but if one plays the percentages he will find that he has the necessary twelve tricks. The lead can make a difference but shouldn't for the problem still exists. A bit of psychology is also involved here if the Declarer thinks ahead enough to employ it.

Mrs. Andrea Cokin and Mrs. Betty Finkelstein were North and South, no one vulnerable, East Dealer with this bidding:

P	6NT	End

Most of the pairs ended in the same Slam contract but there were many different sequences of bidding. Sometimes it was North who took over after his partner opened the bidding; he certainly did have a very good hand opposite an opening bid. When it was discovered that an Ace was missing when the Blackwood Convention was used, this really solidified the hand and made six No Trump appear to be easy. As the cards happened to be, it wasn't so easy but can be made.

West had no normal, automatic lead so we found each red suit being led at some time or other. Regardless, the end result should be the same. With both black suits being bid by Declarer, it is not very good policy to lead right into him.

As soon as the lead was made and Dummy spread, Declarer could count the following tricks: six Diamonds, two Clubs and one Heart, a total of only nine. Where would the rest come from? Every suit except Diamonds could produce some if played correctly and/or a finesse would work. A Heart finesse could actually pick up at least three tricks if it worked and if the King, besides being with West, were able to be dropped, it could gain another one. The Club finesse could also be taken and that would gain one more trick if it worked plus two more if the Queen were also to drop on the third round. Lastly, if enough of these did not materialize, the Spade could be led up to and if either the cards were right or the correct guess made, another trick is gained there.

With a Diamond lead, Declarer should win the Jack and because the Club finesse can only be taken once, the Heart twice, the Heart is a better play. When that worked but the King did not cover, it made Declarer think that West had four which was the case. That gave South now a total of eleven tricks. He had to get another from the black suit but could not cash the third Heart or he might set up the King for the opponents while they still had the Spade Ace.

Now which black suit should be attacked? The Club finesse might work or a Spade trick garnered by playing to the two honors in South and then guessing correctly if East should not play high. I feel that because of a bit of psychology involved the Spade play might be the better. Remember those two red suits are right there on the table for everyone to see. South's hand is hidden and South opened the bidding. If South does have both the King and Queen that Ace of East's will take but one trick if any for one Spade may be all South needs to make seven. Very few Easts, looking at that dummy would have enough courage to duck the Ace so if East does not play it the Jack should be inserted to finesse against the Queen. If West has both then nothing would work in Spades and the Club finesse should be tried but the odds of West having both are not as much as even whereas a finesse at all is exactly that.

When Declarer did this East jumped right up with the Ace and the hand was over. Who can blame him? He might not ever get it and that overtrick in Duplicate is so vital as we have mentioned so many times. This line of play gave Declarer the best chance percentage-wise but truly we can say that any other line would not be completely wrong.

Moral: Normally, leading to a King-Jack combination is just a guess but sometimes something can sway one's judgment. This is true of many so-called guesses. Usually there is some kind of clue, watch for them.

Benedictine Priest Returns To Judaism

TEL AVIV — A 60-year-old Benedictine priest who was born a Jew returned to the Jewish fold 33 years after he converted to Catholicism in order to "save my life" on the eve of World War II.

A Haifa rabbinical court officially declared Dornland Rheinhold a Jew once more. "It's the greatest day of my life," he told reporters. According to Jewish religious law, a born Jew who converts to Christianity need not undergo reconversion to Judaism but a rabbinical court must approve his assumption of Jewish religious obligations.

He was born in Germany of Jewish parents, became a Communist and fled to France. In 1937 he entered a Catholic seminary and was ordained. In 1968 he was sent to Jerusalem, where he lived in a Benedictine monastery until recently. Asked what made him return to Judaism, Rheinhold said, "When I came here I suddenly discovered that I have a people of mine, a land of mine."

Students Protest Rehiring Of Ex-Nazi

BONN — German students have protested the reinstatement of a former SS leader, Hans Fleischhacker, professor at the University of Frankfurt.

Brought to trial four years ago on charges of having aided in the mass murder of 115 Jews, he was suspended from the university. In March 1971 he received a surprise acquittal. It was not denied, however, that he had gone to Auschwitz in June 1942 to select skulls of 150 Jewish inmates. Within five days he had chosen 79 Jewish men, 30 Jewish women and six non-Jews, all of whom were subsequently killed in gas chambers. Their skulls were conserved.

Fleischhacker began lecturing at the university April 20.

FEDERATION TAKES OVER
MILWAUKEE, Wis. — The 51-year-old Wisconsin Jewish Chronicle has been taken over by the Milwaukee Jewish Federation "in the absence of any private sources of publication." The publisher and co-founder, Irving Rhodes, had wanted to retire for years but was not able to find any purchasers. The Federation bought the paper "to keep open a direct channel of information for the Jewish community."

TO HONOR SECRETARY: At a special late Friday evening service beginning at 8:10 o'clock on Friday, June 9, Temple Beth Israel will honor Mrs. Jack (Natalie) Crovitz who is retiring after 19 years as secretary of the temple. Mrs. Crovitz also has the distinction of being the first woman to serve on the executive board of the temple, having been elected to the office of recording secretary by the congregation two years ago.

The services, which will be conducted by Rabbi Jacob Handler and Cantor Karl S. Kritz, will be followed by a reception and Oneg Shabbat in the temple's Anna and Ira Galkin social hall.

MOURN KING

COPENHAGEN — Danish Jews joined their fellow citizens in deep mourning for King Frederik IX, who died Friday night at the age of 72. Chief Rabbi Bent Melchoir eulogized the late king who, like his father Christian X, who died in 1947, was a sincere friend of the Jewish people. Israeli Ambassador Moshe Leshem visited the Royal Palace to sign the mourning book. The Israeli flag was flown at half mast over the Embassy.

Hello Again!

News of the Sports World by Warren Walden

CONGRATS OF THE WEEK: To Arnie Berman who became the first to repeat as "Jewish Athlete of the Year" when he was awarded the "Wally Sundrum Jr. Award" at the annual R.I. Jewish Bowling Congress Awards Night.

... And to call your attention to the fact that America is great, among other awards at the Jewish Bowling Congress was one for the Reverend A.B. Begley, O.P., who is retired Athletic Director at Providence College. Father Begley received the Bert Summer Award... More congrats. go to Pariseault Construction Softball Team for its efforts at Virginia Beach in the Azalea Softball Tournament... Track enthusiasts will focus eyes on Bowdoin College tomorrow (Sat.) when LaSalle Academy will be defending champion in the New England Track Meet. "Little Rhody" will be represented by the top four finishers in events last Saturday and by top finishers in competition held last Monday at Brown Stadium.

AT OLD NARRAGANSETT: A story in ELKS magazine tells of a race between Barney Oldfield and Ralph DePalma, two of the best race car drivers of their day which was back before the 1920s, who were scheduled in a race at Santa Monica, California, to decide once and for all which man was best. Tum, tum — They raced at old Narragansett Speedway in Cranston, too... Also from ELKS, "If you know you're fishing a good bass spot but still not getting much action, attach a split tail pork rind strip so it flutters off behind the last lure hook..." . . . SPORT Mag. says, "Hank Aaron, who in 18 major-league seasons has never been relieved because of a deficiency in any aspect of his game charged that baseball has become too specialized." Interesting story in which Hank says that it usually takes two turns at bat for a batter to get the edge on the pitcher, but in today's scheme of things, just when the batter has caught up, a new pitcher arrives on the scene. The "Big Bambino" didn't need two turns and neither did Ty Cobb or Tris Speaker or a number of good lead-off men, say I.

VIGNETTE (Last we forgot): A rookie, batting for the first time against the great Christy Mathewson, made a safe hit. In the dressing — or — club house, he was boasting, "I don't think so much of him. I was really a little scared going up there but he was easy to hit." An old timer, chawin' his terbacca, casually remarked as he spat a direct hit on a cuspidor twenty paces away, "What did Matty throw you?" The rookie replied, "I didn't notice." "Well," drawled the old timer, "Ya shud ov, 'cuz if yer up here in the big time for a humer years and Matty is still pickin', ya just aint ever gonna get that kind-a-pich agin!"

(One of the smartest of all pitchers, it has been said that Christy Mathewson was the first thorough gentleman pro baseball player and that he was a master in controlling a pitched ball, being able to veritably hit a dime from the distance between pitcher and batter.)

Israelis Shocked At Revelation Of Nation's Lawyers' Pay Scale

JERUSALEM — Israelis who have long prided themselves on building an egalitarian society were jolted last week by disclosures of the high pay scales of lawyers and other professional men in an economy that is supposedly operating close to austerity conditions.

After a public outcry, the Cabinet voted to block payment of legal fees at a daily rate of $630 a man to five private lawyers participating in a recent investigative commission.

This daily stipend is more than the monthly salary of Premier Golda Meir and the high court justice who presided over the government board of inquiry before which the lawyers argued.

Even more galling to the Israeli conscience, the fees were defended as fully in line with what top-level lawyers, accountants and other consultants not in the civil service expect to receive.

A keystone of Zionist ideology has been that salary differentials between the highest-paid and the lowest-paid workers, should be small, an ideal largely realized in the civil service but clearly not in Israeli private enterprise.

The Cabinet voted to investigate all the stipends paid to private professional men by the Government and public corporations, saying that the lawyers' fees "exceeds all reasonable bounds consonant with the economy and the society of Israel."

The storm over legal fees is the latest ripple in the seven-month controversy surrounding the affairs of the Netivei Neft Company, the Israeli oil exploitation corporation for the occupied Sinai Peninsula.

Building on the evident managerial irregularities of this Government-owned company, the debate quickly became a broad soul-searching exercise, reaching into the over-all ethics and morality of modern Israeli society.

After a three-month judicial investigation, for which the lawyers are now to be paid, the director of Netivei Neft, Mordechai Friedman, resigned last month, accused of profiteering and mismanagement of Government funds. The board of inquiry had cleared him of any criminal wrongdoings, though it cast aspersions on his managerial ethics.

The verdict of the commission, headed by Justice Alfred Kitron of the Supreme Court, was widely criticized in Israel as seeming to excuse unethical practices as long as the business thrived.

Scarcely had the storm that precipitated Mr. Friedman's resignation died down when the commission, tying up administrative loose ends before disbanding, awarded legal fees to the lawyers representing Mr. Friedman and other key figures in the dispute.

The news of the lawyers' stipends broke a week ago, just one day before Mrs. Meir gave one of her frequent public appeals for self-sacrifice among Israelis to help the nation's poor and accommodate new immigrants.

Addressing the annual convention of Israel B'nai B'rith, the Premier said the Government should do more to take from the "haves" for the benefit of the "have nots", for the long term good of all.

Last week, the Finance Committee of the Knesset, or parliament, summoned Justice Minister Yaakov Shimson Shapiro to explain why he approved the grant of over $100,000 in legal fees for the 49-day hearing.

Mr. Shapiro said that the basic fee for a top-flight private lawyer in Israel was about $160 a day, but this had been augmented because of the long working days during the Netivei Neft inquiry.

Lebanon Denies Terrorist Training

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Lebanon denied that the terrorists who carried out the attack at the Tel Aviv airport had been trained on Lebanese soil.

In a statement to the press issued here, the Lebanese Mission to the United Nations said:

"The Israeli Zionist propaganda has alleged and continues to allege that three armed Japanese men who were responsible for the incident last week were trained in Lebanon."

"After thorough investigation, the Prime Minister of Lebanon and the Lebanese Chief of Security categorically refuted these allegations."

The Lebanese Mission then quoted a communiqué issued by the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, in which the front said its headquarters were situated in territory occupied by Israel and was operating underground.

"The three Japanese who carried out the mission," the communiqué said, "never entered Lebanon, nor did they ever undertake any training there."

COST HIGH

JERUSALEM — Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir, in a meeting with American UJA leaders, revealed that the cost to Israel for the import of weapons since 1967 aggregated 15.5 billion pounds (3.7 billion dollars).

OBSERVATIONS: A bicycle "built for five" and also one of the big-wheeled old time bikes can be seen in a Woonsocket store window... Is this ecology? Trucks on the highway puffing out exhaust smoke contaminating the air. A sign on the back of one read, "This vehicle pays so many $$$ for using this highway."

Humpf — What price pure air? .. How much does it cost us for new tires and front end alignment after someone digs holes and leaves sharp edges in the asphalt? They should be made to replace and repair as 'twas before, eh — or haven't you hit one? . . . O.K. Bud — Happy Days — It's a long way from a little red school house to the magnificent Bryant College with its beautiful setting, surroundings, architecture, facilities and entire description that strains the message of words; one visit being worth many of them. Umhm — Anyone remember the old Butler Exchange Building? It was located where the Industrial Trust now stands and it housed "Bryant & Stratton" . . . Attention hunters!

— Epitaphs: One in Woodstock, Connecticut, on a memorial for a man and his dog, both buried beside it. It is adorned with a picture of the man, holding his rifle and a fox he has shot, the dog being in the scene looking up at his master and the inscription telling how many foxes the dog has helped in catching... And, with that, CARRY ON!

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK: The entire political complexion of the New York State Legislature will be changed in the coming election. At least 36 Assemblymen are definitely leaving, either to run for higher office or to return to private life. Other Assemblymen face difficult primary fights. Twelve State Senators are also planning to leave office.

The plight of the widow of Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter was first reported in this column on January 20. Tom Yawkey, owner of the Boston Red Sox, has helped raise enough money to save Tara Hall, a shelter run by Father O'Sullivan for homeless and abused boys in Georgetown, South Carolina. Yawkey obtained contributions from baseball people and other sports figures.

Dr. Werner von Braun, the rocket and space expert who retired from NASA recently, denied he was a genius. The man who invented the V-2 rocket used by Hitler to bomb London said: "I am merely a pipe fitter." When his screen biography starring Curt Jurgens, "I Aim at the Stars," opened, his autograph was valued by one collector as being worth half an Elvis Presley signature.

"Now I know where I stand with this generation," said von Braun.

At the Newport Jazz Festival this summer in New York, Stan Getz will play three separate concerts at Philharmonic Hall. He'll be reunited with the Woody Herman orchestra . . . The Supremes are going on tour with The Temptations. The original Supremes were first known as "The Primitives," and sang with a group called "The Primes," who are now The Temptations . . . Recently at Carnegie Hall, Sunny Lee, a guide at the UN, gave a one-woman dance recital. Ingruan Kim, the Korean Consul General attended. Miss Lee made all the arrangement herself, including booking the hall and producing the programs without the help of an agent. It was her NY debut.

Orson Welles, one of the world's best-known magicians, has been instructing Tom Sommers in several magic tricks for the new movie, "Get to Know Your Rabbit" . . . Peter Sellers and Per Oskarsson will play Frenchmen in "The Blockhouse."

The Plaza Hotel is now being used for the settings for two movies, "The Great Gatsby," which stars Ali McGraw, and "Across 110th Street," starring Anthony Quinn and Anthony Franciosa . . . The Franklin Mint is going to produce a sterling silver plate done by Jamie Wyeth. The young artist is the first member of his painting family to work in silver . . . Norman Rockwell will do some color illustrations for the Ladies Home Journal.

Motown, the Detroit record company which created an entire new sound of rock music eight years ago, will record an original album from a Broadway show. Stuart Ostrow's forthcoming musical, "The Adventures of Pippin," will be the first musical on the Motown label . . . Robin Moore, who wrote "The Green Berets" and "The French Connection" and co-authored "The Happy Hooker," is planning a new dance musical for Broadway.

Although his new show will be called "The Happy Hooker," it is not about Xavier Hollander, the madam.

Arthur Miller, whose new play, "Creation of the World and Other Business," will open on Broadway in the fall, says he was not a good student. "I went to elementary school in Harlem," he said, "where, if you spoke to your neighbor, the teacher would grab both of you by the hair and bang your heads together. That was the level of instruction."

During the Depression, Miller

says, he made an astute financial maneuver. He wanted to buy a bicycle from a friend. "I went to the bank and took out my total savings, $12, and I bought the bicycle. The next day the bank was closed, and that was the smartest financial move I ever made. The only sad part was that the bike was stolen the following week."

Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians is about to release a "white paper" voicing its concern for the great loss of jobs in New York for musicians on radio and television shows. The recent move of the Tonight show to California and the termination of David Frost's show have cost many musicians their jobs. The possible cancellation of Dick Cavett may cost more. In California, musicians often play on a freelance or "outsider" basis, and are no longer hired on a permanent basis.

Four years ago, NBC had 40 musicians on its staff in New York. Now there are none. The union contract is due to expire at the end of July.

ENGAGED: Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Bensusan of 27 Kearsage Drive, Cranston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Leslie Jo Bensusan of Kenrick Street, Brighton, Massachusetts, to Herbert James Paine of Brookline, Massachusetts.

Miss Bensusan received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Boston University in 1967, and a Bachelor of Science degree, majoring in Special Education, in 1968.

Mr. Paine has a Master of Arts degree from the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies.

A July 8 wedding is planned.

Four Reputed JDL Members Arrested For Conspiracy To Bomb Soviet Mission

LIDO BEACH, L.I. — A conspiracy to blow up the residence of the Soviet mission to the United Nations at Glen Cove was reported broken up here with the arrest of four reputed members of the Jewish Defense League.

The arrests were announced in Washington by the Acting Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst.

The four suspects, ranging in age from 16 to 26 years old, were seized as they allegedly assembled two fragmentation bombs in a second-floor washroom of the Lido Beach Jewish Center here. The arrests followed an anonymous telephone tip to the Nassau County police.

Robert A. Morse, United States Attorney for the Eastern District, said in Brooklyn that Mr. Kleindienst had taken "a personal interest in the case." He did not say why, but the fact that President Nixon is in Moscow, engaged in delicate negotiations between the countries, is an obvious reason. Harassment of Soviet officials in this country by the Jewish Defense League has stirred diplomatic protests from the Soviet Union in the past.

A statement by the Nassau Police Department said that the police and agents of the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearm section of the United States Treasury Department had determined that the four arrested suspects were "active in the Jewish Defense League activities and the purpose for them in making the fragmentation bombs was to use them against Russian installations — including the Russian mission at Glen Cove, known as Kendilworth — and organizations they believed were not sufficiently anti-Russian."

The four were identified as Mark I. Binsky, 17 years old, a student from Massapequa Park, L.I.; David Levine, 19, a student from West Hempstead, L.I.; Robert E. Fine, 25, unemployed, of East 26th Street, Brooklyn, and Ezra S. Gindi, 16, a student from East 12th Street, Brooklyn. All were held without bail on charges of possession of a bomb and third-degree burglary.

United States Attorney Morse said that the case against the four would be presented to a Federal grand jury.

Attorney General Kleindienst said in a statement that papers found in possession of the four contained detailed directions leading to the Lido Beach residence of the Soviet mission to the United Nations.

Israelis Launch Plan Of Hotel Construction

NEW YORK — In its search for methods of rapidly increasing hotel accommodations necessary during Israel's 25th Anniversary Year the Israel Ministry of Tourism has launched a massive hotel construction program that will add over 7,000 rooms between now and the start of the celebration.

Still another method being used is the establishment of a private room reserve being set up by the Ministry of Tourism to accommodate those tourists who prefer an alternative to hotels.

Hotels that can accommodate 1800 people and which can be readily removed after the peak of tourist demand will also be utilized. The Queen Elizabeth II will spend 18 days in the Israeli ports of Haifa and Ashdod, serving as floating hotel from April 21, 1973 to May 8, 1973. The period covers both the Passover-Easter holidays and the anniversary of Israel's Independence on May 7, 1973. Both are periods when many tourists wishing to visit Israel might otherwise be turned away, a ministry official said.

BAR MITZVAH: Bradley Jay Weiss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Weiss of Brooklyn, New York, became Bar Mitzvah on May 6 at B'nai Israel of Midwood, Brooklyn. He was the recipient of the annual award of the Brooklyn Council for Jewish Education on May 24.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Reuter of Providence. Paternal grandmother is Mrs. Helen Sheekleton of Brooklyn, and paternal grandfather is David Weiss of San Francisco, California.

McGovern Calls For Continued Israel Aid

COLUMBIA, Md. — Sen. George McGovern called last week for continued U.S. aid to Israel, saying "we cannot permit our revulsion against the war in Indochina to distort our judgment about America's responsibilities elsewhere in the world."

The South Dakota senator said "any hint of a similarity between our involvement there (in Indochina) and in the Middle East is sadly and dangerously mistaken."

He said that "because we made a mistake in backing a corrupt dictatorship in Saigon is no reason at all to deny our economic, diplomatic and political help to the free and independent state of Israel."

Aides said the speech was designed to counter anti-McGovern advertisements in some Maryland Jewish newspapers before the primary that challenged his support for Israel, his commitment to civil rights legislation and even his record against the Vietnam war.

Only In America

The Verein Doctor
By Harry Golden

In the Jewish culture, we always avoided revealing the full extent of our sorrow in order to keep going (and also confuse the evil eye). Nothing was ever discussed in precise terms. Either we talked about it or used a euphemism.

Thus, you would never say a relative had tuberculosis. You always referred to tuberculosis as "a touch." The immigrants pounded upon this linguistic convenience. "He has a touch of bronchitis," they heard the doctors say, and so now tuberculosis became "a touch." He has "a touch."

This was not so devastating and it sustained the illusion that the workingman could continue going to the shop every day. This happened in the days of the sweatshop and the Jewish cemeteries in Brooklyn and Maspeth filled up with workers who died of "a touch."

In those days we joked about tuberculosis. We called it "Jewish asthma," just as we called some people "Jewish millionaires" because they had $8,000 in the savings bank.

The "verein" doctor understood all of this very well. The immigrant Jews formed fraternities here, usually based on the places of origin in the old country. We called them "societies" or "vereins" and one of the benefits of membership was that you had the services of a doctor.

All of this has been erroneously propagandized as "socialized medicine" (which all of us will come to anyway in another 20 years with our growing maturity). The verein doctor had nothing to do with "socialization." He had to do with health and survival. He was not only a doctor but usually also a philosopher.

The verein doctor worked in the days before specialized medicine and of course lacked the wonderful remedies and specialized skills doctors have at their command today. Actually, his main weapon was psychological.

Your father was sick. There was sorrow in the house. Suddenly the door opened and Dr. Frankel came in — and everybody felt better. His very presence was a comfort.

In the verein you paid 50 cents every three months and that entitled you to a doctor and you'd be surprised how many doctors competed for the appointment. They had no way of knowing that many of these immigrants and their children would rise up in the world and keep them on as personal physicians for life.

They were verein doctors who healed the sick, inspired

Feels Hebrew Education Has Not Kept Up With Times

I am presently at Lesley College pursuing an education in the field of special education. During the current semester I have been student teaching in a public elementary school with a relatively large Jewish-Israeli population.

The purpose of this letter is to share with you and your readers a conversation between myself and a second grader; which has triggered for me a great concern for our "contemporary" Hebrew schools.

It had been quite an industrious day leaving no time for a recess period. At dismissal time I found one child seemingly upset, upon questioning her as to why she said, "I never have any fun." I tried to console her by saying, "It's a nice day and you can go home and play outside." Her reply being, "NO I CAN'T I ALWAYS HAVE TO GO TO HEBREW SCHOOL UNTIL 4:00."

It disturbs me greatly that this child responds very well to the progressive education of the modern elementary school gives no signs of not wanting to come to school. Perhaps there is something lacking in the fulfillment of the modern child's needs in the Hebrew educational system. Many children elect extra-curricular activities after school, hence, the problem is more serious than a child's dislike of Hebrew School after a full day of being in school.

There is no doubt in my mind that secular education has gone through drastic changes in the past ten years. Has Hebrew Education kept up with the times? Our duty as parents and educators has been the perpetuation of the values of the past, with the hope that they will find relevance in the present.

Is the structure of the modern day Hebrew School relevant? WHY Must Our children cry, "I HAVE TO GO TO HEBREW SCHOOL?"

ROBIN N. BORNSTEIN

confidence, and then went into the kitchen and had a glass of hot tea with your mother. A confinement case was "extra" — $15 was the verein assessment — and if you were a member of the verein, you received a discount on your medicines.

I remember the huge apothecary where we bought the prescriptions. It was right next to Mandell's bank and it was owned by a man named Lindemann who always gave me a piece of kandelzucker (rock candy) when I came in.

These wonderful men, the verein doctors, climbed four or five flights of tenement stairs countless times a day. When they discovered Jewish asthma in the chest of a sweatshop worker, they knew they could not advise him to go to a warmer and drier climate. This man had a wife and four children in the house and couldn't afford to lose one day's wages.

What could the doctor do for him? Often only prescribe cough medicine and tell the workingman to rest as much as possible after work and once in a while the verein doctor would write on the prescription slip, "Join the cloakmakers' union."

DONATE ART WORKS

WASHINGTON — The Embassy of Israel announced that its country will design and donate the art works and the furnishings of the Concert Lounge adjoining the Symphony Hall in the John F. Kennedy Center. The value of the project was estimated in excess of $200,000 and will be underwritten in part by a Washington D.C. group known as Friends of the State of Israel.

WAS BETTER

TEL AVIV — Economic and social integration of new immigrants was better when the Jewish Agency had the responsibility, than now when the Department is a government-controlled agency, according to experts in the field.

I've had some inquiries about where and when the U.S. Customs Bureau holds its auction of seized and unclaimed items in Boston. It's held yearly, usually in the fall. Write them and they'll send you full details — District Director of Customs, U.S. Customhouse, Boston, Massachusetts 02109.

Ever envy those lucky few who win fortunes in the lotteries? Well there is another kind of lottery, little known, where your chances of winning are much better. These public drawings are held each month by the U.S. Department of Interior, giving away leases to thousands of acres of land with high potential gas and oil deposits. Major oil companies will immediately purchase these leases from the lucky winners for large sums. The cost to enter each drawing is only $10. For only $10 more a firm in Texas will handle all details for you, including entering you in the drawing for an especially valuable piece of land. For full information write the Independent Oil Lease Associates, P.O. Box 28042, Dallas, Texas 75228.

sample cases on your route. The field has more than its share of hard sellers and unscrupulous dealers of one type or another — some of them illegally representing their wares and others regularly violating the Federal truth in lending law.

And always lurking in the background is the prospect of stricter Federal laws and regulations to set standards for direct selling and crack down on the abuses which have resisted all the industry's efforts at self-policing.

Now here are six more personal guides:

(1) To be a success, you really must like selling and really like dealing directly with people. Sincerity is vital.

(2) Your chances are best if you are the open, friendly type. You do not, though, have to be aggressive or brash. Plain politeness has great sales appeal.

(3) You cannot afford to be easily discouraged, for you will face countless "I don't want any" retorts. You can't take them personally if you are to keep your essential balance.

(4) You must be willing to work hard, put in plenty of weekends and overtime. Your "easy" time schedules may be anything but — as any individual who has made a success of direct selling will testify. This is, in actuality, hard work.

(5) And cardinal guideline of all: you cannot put your faith in direct selling as our career until you have tried it and tested your own potential. There is no other way.

As one seasoned observer has wisely remarked, "There are many people who couldn't sell a $5 for $1. If you're one of these, direct selling is an excellent way to go broke."

For excellent results, advertise in the Herald.
