

Officials Admit Terrorism Cut Down Tourism To Israel

JERUSALEM — Terrorism by Arab guerrillas and air hijacking cut into Israel's vital tourism industry during the last half of 1972. Government officials conceded here this week.

After the May 30 massacre at Tel Aviv international airport opened a new wave of Arab terrorism, the flow of tourists to Israel, which had been running 32 per cent ahead of the record 1971 rate, suddenly stopped. The result was a year that was disappointing by the standards of Israel's booming tourism industry.

"I don't like to credit our adversaries," Hanoch Givton, the director general of the Israeli Tourism Ministry, said at a news conference here, "but there is no doubt that Arab terrorism hurt tourism here last year.

"We still managed an 11 per cent increase overall for the year," Mr. Givton said, "but it would have been far greater had it not been for the terrorism and hijackings."

Impact Called Temporary

Despite the trend, which Mr. Givton said might continue into 1973, he asserted that the impact of the Arab terrorists had been "marginal and temporary."

"All their efforts cannot change the fact that more tourists came to Israel in 1972 than ever before," he said.

Tourism is of major economic importance in Israel, where it earns more foreign currency than any other enterprise.

In 1972, according to the Government figures, 727,400 visitors spent an average of 15.2 days in Israel and left behind approximately $180-million.

The total does not include the earnings of El Al, Israel's national airline, nor the estimated $20-million spent by the 150,000 Arabs who visited the occupied West Bank of the Jordan under the "summer visitors" program.

In 1971, when tourism jumped a remarkable 50 percent over 1970, 657,000 people visited Israel.

"That was the banner year," Mr. Givton said. "Suddenly all the people who had thought of coming to Israel felt safe enough to do it. We weren't ready for it."

During that unexpected wave, he said, Israel suffered a "breakdown of services." People with confirmed and prepaid reservations were turned away from overbooked hotels, rental cars were unavailable and public facilities were jammed.

To avoid a repetition of that breakdown, Israel has been feverishly expanding facilities. Some 1,700 hotel rooms were completed last year, bringing the total to 18,000 rooms, and 10,000 more are scheduled for 1975.

HOUSING UNITS

JERUSALEM — Construction of 42,900 housing units was begun during the first nine months of this year, according to figures just released by the Central Bureau of Statistics.

French Government Frowns At Visit Of Golda Meir

PARIS—Premier Golda Meir is planning a trip to Paris this month, making the French Government more unhappy than usual about Israel and Israelis.

Mrs. Meir, waving aside the advice of the Israeli Embassy and the opposition of the French, has decided to attend a meeting of the Socialist International, of which she is deputy chairman and has long been a strong supporter.

The host at the two-day meeting January 13 and 14, is the French Socialist party, now embroiled in an election battle with the Gaullists and other forces supporting the Government.

The general elections, March 4 and 11 will be less than two months away when the Socialist gathering takes place, and the French Socialists can be expected to make the most of the ostensible support for their cause that the presence of Mrs. Meir and other foreign dignitaries will bring.

Chancellor Bruno Kreisky of Austria, Premier Olof Palme of Sweden and Premier Anker Jorgensen of Denmark are expected, and the French are not happy about that either.

Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany has decided to send the President of the lower house of Parliament, Annemarie Renger-Loncaveric. Mr. Brandt is coming a few days later for the semi-annual high-level French-German talks and apparently decided that there was no point in offending the French.

Of all the Socialist dignitaries, French Officials are most sensitive to the visit of Mrs. Meir. French-Israeli relations, cold since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war and the French embargo on arms shipments to the Middle East, have shown slight improvement lately but not enough to remove the strain.

There has been no high-level exchange of visits between France and Israel for more than five years, and officials have let it be known that Mrs. Meir's presence here will be entirely private. In the present official mood here, she will not be received by President Pompidou or by Premier Pierre Messmer.

In the official view, Mrs. Meir's decision to come in effect constitutes interference in the French elections. Despite the Government's leaning toward the Arab side in the conflict with Israel, there is a strong current of popular sympathy for the Israelis that Gaullists are afraid the Socialists will exploit.

The leftist coalition of Socialists and Communists have been showing gains in recent polls and the Gaullist-dominated majority has correspondingly slipped.

Reports that the Israeli Foreign Minister, Abba Eban, might make an official visit here after the elections are being discounted by informed diplomatic sources. It is said that relations are not sufficiently improved for the Government to invite him or for him to ask for an invitation.

The small improvement in relations that has occurred results from the lack of French initiatives either in Europe or in the United Nations to impose a big-power solution on Israel and the Arabs.

France has also gone along with her Common Market partners in accepting Israel as part of the Mediterranean area with which a free trade zone is to be negotiated.

JERUSALEM—Premier Golda Meir advised the Cabinet that she would attend the meeting of the Socialist International in Paris in January.

Government sources said that the decision to make the trip was based on her election in Vienna as a deputy chairman of the International. "Although no meetings with French officials are scheduled or expected, Mrs. Meir is expected to confer on the middle east with other foreign ministers.

First Jewish Baby Born To Steins

The first Jewish baby born in Rhode Island in 1973 appears to be the son of Dr. and Mrs. Joshua Stein of Bristol.

Born at the Providence Lying-in Hospital at 4:59 a.m. on January 1, the first child of Joshua and Penney Stein weighed in at 7 pounds, 7 ounces and approximately 19½ inches long. The father's unbiased opinion was that he was a "gorgeous child."

Dr. Stein, who teaches Modern European History at Roger Williams College, and his wife are both native New Yorkers. They live at 58 Union Street in Bristol.

The Herald will have a picture of the baby for next week's paper.

Shapiros Believed To Be Separated

JERUSALEM — Judy Silver Shapiro, the social worker from Cincinnati, and Gavriol Shapiro, the Jewish engineer activist she married in Moscow last June, are believed to have separated. The couple who came to Israel in October after a reunion in Vienna, disappeared from the Beit Gora immigrant absorption center in Jerusalem. Jewish Agency officials said they had no idea where they were or whether they were living together.

Israeli newspapers published a UPI story claiming that the Shapiros have broken up. One quoted a Jewish Agency official as saying that they were no longer living together.

Israeli sources admitted that the story of their break-up was probably genuine. They said the couple quarreled publicly in Vienna when Judy wanted to return to the United States and Gavriol insisted on leaving at once for Israel. They quarreled again in front of reporters at Lod Airport.

The sources described Judy as "bossy" and Gavriol as "quiet but firm."

Israeli Court Upholds Expulsion Of Black Jews

JERUSALEM — The Supreme Court upheld the expulsion of eight Black Hebrews who entered Israel last year, but suggested that those of the sect who have been here longer should be allowed to stay. Black Hebrews have been seeking Israeli citizenship as Jews under the Law of Return, but the Court agreed with the Interior Ministry in ruling that "the most one can say is that they maintain the Law of Moses as they understand it, not as it has developed through the ages."

The eight — seven of them members of a family named Clark — were picked up by police earlier this year in Jericho after expiration of their three-month visas. They had entered Israel last year and lived first at the sect's center in Dimona. Of late, the Interior Ministry has been turning away members of the sect arriving at Lod Airport.

DRUZE RECEPTION

HAIFA — The largest group of young Druze ever to be inducted into the army at any one time was given a farewell reception here last month.

Student Unrest Flares Into Open

CAIRO — Long-simmering student unrest flared into the open Wednesday as thousands of riot policemen used tear gas, bamboo staves and truncheons to keep rebellious university students from marching on downtown Cairo.

The violent clashes started shortly after 11 A.M. and lasted until midafternoon, when the police had the campus of Cairo University effectively sealed with several thousand students still inside.

Universities Are Closed

The number of students injured could not be determined. Ambulances with sirens wailing made frequent trips into the area and returned carrying several persons each. Many students were taken to the police station just outside the campus.

The Government issued a statement announcing that all universities would be closed for the remaining nine days of the current semester. A two-week midyear vacation is to begin on January 13.

Wednesday's violence marked the breakdown of an arrangement between the Government of President Anwar el-Sadat and the students that both sides had found to be to their advantage.

The Government tolerated political activities on the campuses, including sharply critical wall posters, but made it clear that no student demonstrations would be tolerated in the city streets.

The decision by student leaders to march on the downtown area was an open challenge to the Government.

First Such Violence in Year

This was the first instance of student violence since the riots of January, 1972, when several thousand students poured into Liberation Square and occupied it overnight. The demonstrators at that time held political seminars with workers who had come to the square from factories and accused the Government of doing nothing to reconquer the territories occupied by Israel and of a lack of freedom in Egypt.

One difference between the two occasions is that this year the student movement has lacked the political cohesion that it had a year ago. Some groups voice the same complaints as last year but others oppose them, and the first real cohesion was achieved over the arrests last Friday of a number of student leaders.

The demonstrators had planned to march on Liberation Square and perhaps the National Assembly, both in the center of the city to demand the release of the student leader. The official total of those arrested Friday is 45.

Amphitheater Occupied

Trouble was foreshadowed early Wednesday morning when a hard core of several hundred students gathered outside the main entrance of Cairo University and, with placards and shouted slogans, announced that they would start marching on downtown at 11 o'clock. Other placards said: "Free our comrades."

Most of the students involved had spent the night in the domed amphitheater, which they have occupied since the arrests Friday.

By 11 am the crowd had swollen to 2,000 or 3,000 and began to move down the broad avenue toward the University Bridge across the Nile some 500 yards away. Cairo University is on the left bank of the Nile, across the river from the heart of the city.

Riot policemen in helmets and khaki uniforms, each carrying a big oval shield as well as a stove but no firearms, had massed at the approaches to the bridge. As the students came near, the police, shouting, rushed at them in a solid phalanx.

Students Fall Back

The demonstrators, some of them hurling rocks, fell back toward the campus entrance.

After the first clash, the police started moving into the area from all sides in dozens of trucks. They cut off all streets leading away from the campus to keep the students from reaching any of the Nile bridges.

American-Jewish Newspapermen Have Complaints

JERUSALEM — A group of 25 American-Jewish journalists and public relations personnel left for home last week generally satisfied with their nine-day "study mission" in Israel, arranged and conducted by the American Zionist Federation and the Jewish Agency's Organization and Information Department. But some of the editors, whose papers serve Jewish communities in various parts of the U.S., were critical of certain aspects of the tour.

Charles Baumohl, managing editor of the Jewish News of Newark, New Jersey complained that there were too few bona fide newsmen and too many officials and public relations people in the party which, he said, lent the whole tour an unprofessional air. Albert W. Bloom, executive editor of the Jewish Chronicle of Pittsburgh, said the tour was "enormously rewarding" but complained that the visitors got "short shrift in exposure to top newsmakers."

Joseph Hochstein, editor and publisher of the Jewish Week in Washington, observed that it was "absurd and frustrating" to have "off-the-record" briefings with more than two dozen people in the room. Nora Levin, a free lance journalist from Philadelphia, spoke of the "palpable antagonism" noticeable at a dinner the group attended with local Israeli journalists. Many other participants complained that the program was too crowded and that they had little time to get their notes in order.

Mrs. Fred N. Raisner

Miss Susan JoAnn Katz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Katz of Brookline, Massachusetts, was married on Saturday, December 9, to Fred N. Raisner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham W. Raisner of Providence. Rabbi Albert S. Goldstein and Cantor Alex Zimmer officiated at the 6:30 p.m. ceremony which was held at Temple Ohabei Shalom in Brookline.

The bride wore a white empire waist gown of satin fashioned with an Alencon lace neckline and lace applique bodice. The deep scalloped lace border of the hem matched the detachable applique lace train. A Camelot cap covered in Alencon lace edged in pearls held her silk veil, and she carried a Bible covered with roses.

Miss Judith Katz served as maid of honor, and Miss Ruth Ellen Katz as bridesmaid to their sister. Harvey L. Raisner was best man for his brother. Myron J. Raisner, brother of the bridegroom, was usher.

Following a wedding trip to the Virgin Island, Mr. and Mrs. Raisner will reside in Warwick.

House Prices Double Syrian Jewish Community Migrates To Jersey Town

DEAL, N.J. — A steady migration of Syrian Jews to this shore community over the last few years has sent the prices of houses soaring and created fears among some older residents that the new group may make it difficult for other Jews to assimilate into the community.

Of the 125 Syrian Jewish families who have purchased homes here, only about a dozen live in Deal year round. The others come only in the summer.

In a large way, Deal itself is a summer community — its year round population of 2,500 increases to 6,000 during the warmer months. The town's proximity to the ocean, its majestic mansions and more modern homes on oversized plots of land and its calm atmosphere make Deal an attractive place for well-to-do seasonal residents.

For some 25 years, many wealthy Syrian Jews spent their summers in nearby Bradley Beach. But six years ago, a number decided that the town had become too crowded and had lost its general attractiveness. This prompted the move to Deal.

The Syrian Jews are a closely knit group. Some 1,000 of them — roughly two-thirds of their number in this country — live near the Flatbush section of Brooklyn in an area bordered by Avenue J, East Second Street, Avenue V and East 19th Street. It is this group that has contributed to the move to Deal. Their food and music leans more toward the Oriental than other Jewish groups and they steadfastly encourage marriage within the group.

House Prices Doubled
The transfer to Deal followed the group pattern, and thus resulted in a tremendous demand for houses. The movement has become so strong that real estate brokers in the area say that the prices of houses here have doubled over the past four years, as compared with a general 20-to-30 per cent increase in neighboring shore communities.

"I can remember one house in Deal that sold for $94,000 about one and one-half years ago," said a broker who asked that he name not be used. "That house was resold for $150,000 just recently."

Available homes in Deal have become so scarce that small bungalows — situated in a section known as "the patch" and formerly used as servants' quarters for the owners of mansions — were being sold for $30,000, one broker reported.

The average price of a house here is $75,000, according to the town clerk-administrator, W. Stanley Conover. Some brokers say the accurate figure is closer to $90,000.

Long List of Customers
A Manhattan attorney, asked that his name be withheld said that he had started renting a summer home here six years ago when the rental fee was "not cheap, but reasonable." He said that the fee had reached "an absurd level" three years ago, at which time he decided to purchase the house.

"I get letters from real estate brokers all the time saying there is a tremendous demand for homes and that many customers are waiting," the attorney said. "A year ago one broker got as close to blockbusting as he could get. He listed the names of his 15 most recent customers — they were all Syrian Jews."

Town residents are quick to point out that the Syrian Jews who have moved in purchased their houses at prices far above the going market values.

"If I had owned the type of house that interests these people — they like ranch houses the most — it would have been difficult for me to say 'no' when I heard what kind of money they were willing to pay," said one present resident.

Former residents who were interviewed said they sold their homes to the Syrian Jews not out of fear but out of the realization that they no longer needed such large homes. Some said they planned to relocate in highrise condominiums that are now under construction in neighboring Long Branch.

"A lot of those who sold out had reached that stage in life where their children were either married or living away from home," Mr. Conover said. "They realized that keeping a large place was more of a burden than a pleasure, so they decided to accept the offers while they could."

Strain of Antagonism
There now is an undercurrent of antagonism among the non-Syrian Jewish community — particularly the less Orthodox — toward the Syrian Jews. The town is about 40 per cent Jewish.

"A lot of Jewish residents here are afraid of being called 'too Jewish,'" said one resident. "They are trying to become part of the community at large, and are afraid that the Syrian Jews — who stand out because of their clanishness — will make assimilation impossible."

Although their social relationships are for the most part cordial, both the Syrian and non-Syrian Jews say they have not and probably will not form close relationships with members of the other group.

Another fear that some residents have — but are somewhat reluctant to discuss — is that the Syrian Jews might "take over" the community.

"I don't like any place I'm in to be all white or all black or all Jewish," said one Jewish Manhattan businessman who lives here during the summer.

"I tend to think it's not going to happen, though," he continued. "I think most of the Syrian Jews who wanted to purchase houses already have done so. Besides, I can't see prices going crazy forever."

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY The American Jewish Year Book — 1972 By BERYL SEGAL

At this time of the year the American Jewish Committee publishes the American Jewish Year Book. The AJC has been doing it for 73 years. The eminent Cyrus Adler was the editor of the first annual publication. The leading article "The Year," which was a summary of all that has happened in the Jewish world, was written by Henrietta Szold, a lady known in every Jewish home as the founder of Hadassah, and the moving spirit in the Youth Aliyah movement.

The Jewish community at that time (1899-1900) was small indeed. The estimate of the American Jewish Year Book was one million ninety-three thousand and eight hundred souls. The number was derived from publications and inquiries at various cities and towns in the country. A hundred years before, about 1818, Mordecai Noah, the dreamer who looked for and found an island for a Jewish State in America, the Grand Island near Niagara Falls, estimated the number of Jews in the United States to be about three thousand. That island would have been sufficient for three thousand inhabitants. But already, Mr. M.A. Berk, in 1848, hardly fifty years after Mordecai Noah's estimate, found that the number of Jews in the United States had jumped to fifty thousand. By the time the first Jewish American Year Book appeared that number had already reached over one million. It is now over six million, Ken Yirbu, may they increase and multiply.

The Year Book also has local interest. We learn that at that time, 1899-1900, Rhode Island had three thousand Jewish souls. Today, the number of Jews in Rhode Island reaches over twenty-two thousand, according to the American Year Book.

The American Jewish Year Book also gives the percentage of Jews as compared to the general population. Thus the population in the State of Rhode Island is 960,000. That puts the population of Jews in the state as 2.32 per cent.

A feature of the American Jewish Year Book is watched carefully every year, especially since the tragic days of the Nazi regime when our people were so cruelly decimated in Germany and Eastern Europe. This feature is the all-important statistic gathered from the entire world, telling us the number of Jews in every country.

According to the AJYB the number of Jews in the world today is over fourteen million.

We have not yet caught up with the pre-Hitler days, unfortunately.

A breakdown of these statistics shows that the Americas (North, Central, South) have the lion's share of the Jewish population, seven million. The rest of the world accounts for the other seven million.

The AJYB further shows the United States to have the largest, and we might add, the most important Jewish community in the world. It is estimated that over six million Jews now live in the United States. Compare this estimate with the 3,000 of the days of Mordecai Noah, and the over one million in 1900 when the American Jewish Year Book began to appear.

The next largest community lives in the Soviet Union, both the European and the Asiatic Soviet Republics, and this estimate is open to question. The USSR gives the number of Jews as two million six hundred and forty-four thousand. In Jewish circles, however, the number is said to be nearer three million.

Israel, with two million six hundred and thirty-two thousand, is the next in size as well as in eminence. The number given in the Year Book is that of 1970-71. It probably is higher now with Jews streaming into it from all the corners of the earth.

It is very interesting to compare the number of Jews in each country. France, for instance, has an estimated 550,000 Jews. Great Britain has only 410,000 Jewish inhabitants. Argentina runs a close second to France with 500,000 Jews. The African countries and Australia together have only 250,440 Jews.

Canada, a prosperous and freedom loving country, has a Jewish population of 300,000.

Roumania, with all the possibilities of emigration, still has 100,000 Jews.

Belgium and the Netherlands, small as they are, have 40,000 and 30,000 Jews respectively.

And so it goes with the breakdown of country by country, not leaving out even Nicaragua with 200 Jews and Barbados with only 75 Jewish inhabitants.

The Year Book of some seven hundred pages contains articles on the legal status of the American Jewish community; civic and political life of the Jews in America; Jewish communal service, and many other summations of the past year.

The most interesting article, to me at least, is the status of Jewish education in America. We will look at that article in the coming issues.

In the meantime I would advise you to read the American Jewish Year Book of 1972. The book has been sent to all libraries and to subscribers. Your temple library, I am sure, has it.

(Mr. Segal's opinions are his own and not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

Your Money's Worth

By Sylvia Porter

How Big Is YOUR Tax Load?

Out of each eight-hour working day in 1973, you'll work approximately one and three-quarter hours just to pay the federal income taxes you owe.

Over the working year which started Tuesday, you will work about 79 days merely to cover your federal taxes.

What's more, these estimates by the Tax Foundation in New York City only begin to suggest the tax burden you are now carrying. Other calculations indicate that you, a typical American, will have to work a full four months of 1973 before you will have the money to pay the taxes of all types you owe.

If your workday starts at 9 a.m., it will be close to lunchtime every workday of 1973 before you will have earned enough to cover your debt to the federal, state and local governments.

These statistics by themselves explain why the U.S. has turned so strongly in favor of curbing government spending. President Nixon would not be making so powerful and publicized an effort to hold the federal budget to a $250 billion ceiling were he not acutely aware that you are applauding his effort and the reasons behind it.

Your tax burden underlines why in 1972 you raised so loud a cry for tax reform — for legislation that would help shift the burden from you to that faceless rich American who is wheeling and dealing himself out of paying his proper share of U.S. taxes. Tax reform has been muted since the election and probably will be delayed — but it is NOT DEAD.

And these dramatic illustrations of what you pay in taxes confirms the political astuteness of Nixon's pledge that he will not ask for tax hikes in '73 (although there's no forecasting what may be the situation in '74.)

But having said all this, how bad really is your tax burden in comparison with that carried by citizens in other industrialized nations? Honestly, how bad?

Not bad at all, says the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, a group of 23 industrialized nations headquartered in Paris.

In a just released report, more detailed than any ever put together before, the OECD proves that we are far from the most heavily

Mrs. Marvin I. Gordon

Miss Deborah Ann Kortick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kortick of 84 Mason Avenue, Cranston, became the bride on Saturday, December 23, of Marvin Innis Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gordon of 73 Community Drive, Cranston. Rabbi Jacob Handler and Cantor Karl S. Kritz officiated at the 6:30 p.m. ceremony which was held at Temple Beth Israel. A reception followed in the temple.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satepeau designed with a high ruffled neckline, long fitted sleeves and a full skirt accented with pearls. A double ruffle finished the hemline and the detachable full sweep train. A matching Venise lace headpiece held her silk illusion veil, and she carried a prayerbook covered with an orchid and stephanotis.

Dressed in a burgundy velvet gown with pink lace trim, Miss Janis Kortick served as maid of honor for her sister. Other attendants were Miss Risa Berger and Mrs. Norman Lazarus.

Lloyd Gordon, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Edward Shein and Richard Mellion.

Following a wedding cruise to the Florida islands, the couple will live in North Providence.

'The Torah' To Be Subject Of Sisterhood Study Group

Temple Emanu-El Sisterhood will sponsor a Women's Study Group on Wednesday mornings starting January 10 as part of the Emanu-El adult education program. The Book of Exodus, as interpreted through the ages, will be considered from several viewpoints by a group of instructors. The group will meet from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30. Coffee will precede the classes.

Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen will introduce the course on January 10. On January 17, 24 and 31, Mrs. Aaron Klein of the Temple Emanu-El religious school faculty, will treat the subject from the Melton Approach which is a study of how the text speaks for itself. Rabbi Bohnen will discuss the traditional commentaries for Exodus on February 7 and 14.

Following a recess on February 21, Rabbi William G. Braude of Temple Beth El will speak on the "Midrash of the Rabbis" on February 28. Tze'edah U-Re'edah will be the approach discussed by Mrs. Nathan Resnik on March 7, 14 and 21. This is a collection in Yiddish of women's own interpretations of the Bible that have been gathered through the ages.

The text for the course will be The Torah recently published by the Jewish Publication Society.

The Study Group is open to all interested women. Further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Maurice Glicksman at 245-2835. Members of the planning committee who assisted Mrs. Glicksman are Veda Barron, Evelyn Bresnick, Carol Ingall, Doris McGarry, Belle Dubinsky and Phyllis Berry, ex-officio.

Israeli Rabbi Converts Falashas

JERUSALEM — Rabbi Ovadia Yosef, the Sephardic chief rabbi, has converted 40 Falashas, (black Jews from Ethiopia) during the past two years, it has been disclosed.

Rabbi Yosef performed the conversions apparently to satisfy other rabbis who maintain that the Falashas are not Jews but of Hamitic — black African — stock.

Rabbi Yosef himself believes that the Falashas are descendants of the Israelite tribe of Dan who wandered into Ethiopia thousands of years ago.

There are at most about 50,000 Falashas, some 260 of them living in Israel. Leaders of the community predicted that the Falashas would die out within the next 20 years unless they emigrate en masse to Israel.

Israeli immigration authorities have been equivocal about Falasha immigration because their status as Jews is open to question.

The Falashas claim to be Jews and many adhere vaguely to Jewish laws and customs although they also retain distinctly Christian and heathen practices.

Asked whether he would permit the Falashas women converts to marry a Cohen, Rabbi Yosef replied that this was a complicated halachic problem, indicating that he believed the Falashas are, or may be, Jews according to halacha, religious law.

According to the Jewish law, converts are not permitted to marry Cohanim, descendants of the priestly caste.

NOT CHECKING

JERUSALEM — Israeli authorities are no longer checking persons and vehicles at the Erez, Nahal Oz and Kerem Shalom check-points in the Gaza Strip in effect since the Six-Day War.

Rabbi Kahane Fined In Israel

JERUSALEM — Rabbi Meir Kahane, leader of the Jewish Defense League, was fined IL 100 for breach of the peace and unlawful assembly and was ordered by a Jerusalem magistrate to post IL 2,000 bond to assure his future good behavior. Kahane's fine stemmed from an attempt by him and several of his followers to affix a mezuzah to the Damascus Gate of the Old City last month in violation of police orders.

A senior legal source stated that a decision was expected shortly whether to prosecute Kahane and former Irgun leader Amitai Paglin on charges of smuggling arms out of the country to fight Arab terrorists abroad. The source cautioned that the lack of developments in the case since it became headline news two months ago should not be interpreted as a sign that the Justice Ministry has lost interest in it.

AN ENDOWMENT FUND has been inaugurated by the Jewish Family & Children's Service to sponsor the Arthur J. Levy Annual Memorial Lecture. It was in 1929 that the late Mr. Levy founded the Jewish Family & Children's Service (formerly the Jewish Welfare Service), an agency which provides professional counseling and relief to families. He served as its president for the first 20 years of its existence. The Endowment Fund committee is comprised of all past presidents of the agency and is chaired by Dr. Nathan A. Bolotow. "It is our plan," said Dr. Bolotow, "to engage an outstanding speaker in the field of human relations each year to present an exceptional program which will be free to the public. We are hereby establishing a living memorial, in perpetuity, to our friend, Arthur J. Levy, who served civic and charitable concerns in this community with his keen talents and kind heart for over 50 years." Shown above, left to right, are Alvin W. Pansey, president of the agency; Paul Segal, executive director, and Dr. Bolotow.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING
ROGER E. SPEAR

Arbitrage — Squeezing Out A Profit
 Q: I recently read that arbitrage houses had bought about half a million shares of Rheingold (NYSE) because of the pending takeover by PepsiCo (NYSE). Would you explain the workings of arbitrage, and what an arbitrage house is? M.L.
 A: An arbitrage transaction is used to take advantage of a small price differential which temporarily exists between two classes of securities (one of which is convertible) or in the same stock on two exchanges. Mergers, reorganizations rights offerings, exchange offerings also present arbitrage opportunities. The procedure is normally consummated by a simultaneous purchase and short sale. Perhaps the classic example of an arbitrage maneuver is the purchase and short sale of shares of the same issue which happen to be trading at fractionally different prices on two exchanges. The arbitrageur purchases 1,000 shares of stock ABC on the Big Board at $15 and shorts 1,000 shares on the Pacific Coast Exchange at $15½. The transaction is completed by delivery of the $15 shares to cover the short sale.
 In instances where a senior convertible security is trading at a discount and is currently exchangeable for the common, an arbitrage situation exists. Again the same steps of purchase, short and covering are employed to effect a small but quick profit.
 The recent tender offer by PepsiCo for Rheingold shares did not involve arbitrage since it was a cash offer. It did, however, present an opportunity for certain profit, if the FTC allowed the offer to go through. Because PepsiCo was bidding $22 for shares which were trading about $16, arbitrageurs and other professional traders stepped in to take advantage of the opportunity.
 Arbitrage houses specialize in this type of trading, doing business for themselves, institutions and smaller brokerage houses. However, most large retail brokerage firms, have their own arbitrage departments.
Growth Stock List Available
 Q: We have five years to go prior to retirement and have $36,000 to invest at this time. Our assets include $10,000 E bonds, $24,000 in a balanced mutual fund and adequate cash for emergencies. At present, we are both working, earning more than enough for our needs. What do you suggest for us for investments? J.B.
 A: I have recently compiled a portfolio for investors seeking moderate growth over the long term, as well as a more speculative portfolio for the younger investor. From the more conservative list I would select Financial Federation (NYSE), Whirlpool Corporation (NYSE), Texas Utilities (NYSE) and V.F. Corporation for your portfolio.
 These lists of growth stock investments are available to all readers without charge. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope to Roger E. Spear c/o this newspaper for your copy.
 Q: I bought 250 Grumman Corporation (NYSE) shares at 17-3/4. What do you think? Should I hold or sell? T.M.
 A: Another $20 million pretax inventory write-down was recently taken by Grumman on its F14A Navy fighter program. Last year $65 million pretax was written off on this same contract. These charges cover losses incurred on 86 of the 313 craft contracted for. Grumman estimates that losses on the remaining craft could reach $340 million, seriously jeopardizing the company's financial position. Negotiations with the Navy are expected to resolve some of the contract problems prior to the end of the year.
 The corporate jet — Gulfstream II — has been a success. Four new orders for the plane have been received, boosting 1972 unit sales on this item to above the annual goal of 15 craft. Backlog was up in the third quarter to $1.56 billion from $1.35 billion the previous year. However, since the F14A program is a major part of Grumman's operations at this time I would suggest sale on any rally to the 14 level.
Mutual Fund Trades On Portfolio Value
 Q: In January I purchased shares in Fund for U.S. Government Securities at $10.76. Dividends and capital gains have been reinvested, giving me about 50 additional shares. If I redeem now I will just about break even. The portfolio of government securities does not seem to have deteriorated so I am at a loss to understand why the redemption price is so low. I realize there is a small price difference resulting from the load fee. R.M.
 A: A mutual fund's net asset value — the lower of the two prices printed daily in the newspaper — is based on the total value of its portfolio plus cash on a given day. In the case of the Fund for U.S. Government Securities the value of its holdings is tied to interest rates. Agency bonds, particularly intermediate and short term, which comprise a good portion of the fund's holdings, have dropped in price since January because interest rates were rising. The fund is well suited to investors seeking high income with above-average safety. However, as you have discovered, share value fluctuates in relation to the level of interest rates. Thus, shareholders must realize that a modest loss of principal is possible under certain money rate condition.
 Q: I need maximum income! Please suggest some 9% or 10% bonds even though I may have to pay a premium. E.F.
 Q: We are retired, need added income plus safety. Please suggest some high-quality bonds. V.F.
 A: Gladly. I have selected two short- and two long-term high-yield bonds all of which are rated BBB or A. It should be noted that although current yield on these debt securities is 8.4% or better because of the trading premiums, the yield to maturity is lower. The two short-term obligations are Credit-Hrift Financial 9-3/4s of 1975 and First Mortgage Investors 9s of 1978. Mississippi River Fuel 9-3/4s of 1990 and Northern Natural Gas 9-1/2s of 1990 are both rated A and yield about 8.5% currently.

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

In my opinion we do not stress Defense enough in these articles yet one is on Defense twice as much as he is Declarer. To make up for this more Defensive hands will be appearing here. Today's villain was not really making a poor play when he failed to come up with the one thing that would set the hand. What he did was more or less automatic. Had no one pointed out to him and the others who did the same how they could have done differently and garnered another trick, they all would have thought, "Well, we couldn't have set the hand because Declarer had only one Club." Many players think they play fine Bridge because they are oblivious to their mistakes. If no one enlightens them, they go on in their merry way playing "Perfect" Bridge and wondering why they never seem to get good scores. It must be their partner's fault. Today's hand is a perfect example.

No one was vulnerable, North Dealer with this bidding:

N	E	S	W
P	1♦	3♦	3♣
ReDb1	2♦	P	4♦
3♦	P		End

This is the way the bidding went at some of the tables. If West simply overcalled Clubs after South opened the bidding, East admittedly would have less knowledge of the high-card probability in West's hand but at the same time East would be certain that West had at least five Clubs, the minimum requirement for an overcall. This would easily inform a thinking East that South could at the most have but one Club.

What I am getting at is that a good defender sitting East should consider exactly what his prospects are for taking his maximum of tricks. With the overall East should realize that if he does not overtake his partner's Club King he will never ever have a chance to get in and lead through Declarer. Looking at the high Diamonds in Dummy should convince him that when he does do this he has but one play to make, a switch to Hearts hoping that his partner has a holding in that suit that will do some good. As you can see, this will be rewarded with the taking of two Heart tricks with the Ace and Queen and then a ruff by East to set the hand.

With the Double instead of the overcall, East will have the certain knowledge that his partner has high cards and they must be in Hearts so again the Club King must be overtaken just in case West happens to have five Clubs and the second lead in the Club suit will not live as is the case. Either way the only way to set the hand is for East to overtake his Partner's King at trick one. Most Defenders were reluctant to do this fearing that they would be wasting a high card but could this really be true? No, for West has to have other high Clubs, at least the Queen, to lead the King so it is very unlikely that a trick in Clubs will be lost but the timing will be utterly destroyed if that play is not made at the very first trick. Instead of wasting a high card by overtaking that King you would be wasting a very valuable entry if you do not overtake it. Look at all four hands and put yourself in East's place. Would you think to overtake your partner's King at trick one? You really should do it.

Moral: Sometimes it is imperative to overtake your own partner's trick to gain an entry. You must just not do it but do it at the correct time.

TO SING AT TEA: Miss Shari Lynn Fishbein will sing at the paid-up membership tea of the Providence Hebrew Day School Women. The affair will be held on Tuesday, January 9, at 1:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Allan Sydney of 7 Alton Road.

Miss Fishbein, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Jay Fishbein, will sing songs of Israel to the accompaniment of a guitar and accordion. Presently enrolled as a third year pre-dental student at Boston University, she has been active musically since the age of eight. She has sung with the Temple Emanu-El High Holiday choir, the Zamir Chorale of Boston, and recently was featured in an Israeli musical program on Channel 36.

Mrs. Gerald Harlam is chairman of the afternoon.

ORGANIZATION NEWS

CIRCUS TO APPEAR

The new Emmett Kelly, Jr., all-star circus will appear at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium on Saturday, January 13, at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. under the auspices of Artists Internationales.

The entertainment features Ben Star of television and movies; Clarence, the cross-eyed lion of the Dakitari series, and Judy and the Chimps from the same series.

Further information may be obtained by calling 831-4600.

SPORTS NIGHT

Gus Parmet, local sportscaster, will host a press conference at the next open meeting of the Temple Beth Torah Men's Club on Sunday, January 21 at 5:30 p.m. Among those invited by Mr. Parmet are Neil Bennett, general manager of the new AAA franchised Pawtucket Red Sox, and Jack Gregory, coach of the University of Rhode Island football team.

The program will be in the general pattern of a parent and child night. Dinner will be served.

YOUTH PROGRAMS

The Jewish Community Center has planned several special events for teenagers during January.

A special gameroom and social program will be held following the basketball games with the Brockton Jewish Community Center on Saturday, January 6. The gameroom program will start at 9:30 p.m.

"Night and Fog," a French documentary film about the World War II concentration camps, will be presented on Wednesday, January 10, at 7:30 p.m.

A weiner roast will be held at the Center's day camp site in Johnston on Sunday, January 14, at 4 p.m. Advance registration at the Center is required.

The next teen dance at the Center will be held on Saturday evening, January 20.

A teen theatre party to see the Trinity Square Repertory presentation of "The Royal Hunt of the Sun" is scheduled for Wednesday, January 24. Tickets, which are limited, must be purchased in advance. Those attending will meet at the Center at 7 p.m. where transportation will be available.

GIRLS' CLASSES

A girls' acrobatics and gymnastics class for girls in grades three and over is now open for registration at the Jewish Community Center.

The eight session program will start on Thursday, January 18, at 4 p.m., under the direction of Miss Ann Carr, professional dance and gymnast teacher. Miss Carr is president of the New England Dance Teachers Association and is an instructor at Barrington College. She also maintains her own dance studio in Pawtucket.

Advance registration is required. Further information may be obtained by calling the Center at 861-8800.

TO SFEAK: Rabbi Joseph B. Stern, professor of Talmud at the Hebrew College in Boston, will speak on "Criminal Justice and Human Rehabilitation in Jewish Law" at the Malavah Malkah celebration which will be held on Saturday, January 6, at 8 p.m. at the Jewish Community Center.

Rabbi Stern, a fifth generation Israeli, was educated in Yeshivot and at the Hebrew University. He was ordained at Yeshivah University in New York City where he was a student of Rabbi Soloveit-chik.

The event, which is open to the community, is jointly sponsored by the adult education committee of the Bureau of Jewish Education and the Jewish Community Center.

BATTLE OF THE CENTURY: According to Joe Celletti it is to feature an all day boxing program that will help in the official dedication observance at the Providence Civic Center on January 17 and it will bring together none other than Ralph Zannelli and Charlie Lagor. Sounds like something someone would be writing in the dim past. That name "Zannelli," was magic in the world of boxing for its box office magnetism back when Ralphie was meeting all comers, the great and near great, and setting attendance records at the R.I. Auditorium. His opponent in the "dream match" being conjured up by Celletti, is famed for managing, developing and training boxers and also for wearing a black derby hat while working in the corners. "Wonder if Charlie will wear the hat while appearing in the exhibition with Zannelli? It will give the younger generation an opportunity for seeing Ralph Zannelli in ring togs. From all reports, he isn't too far from being in fighting shape, appearing almost as he did when facing the greatest in the boxing world.

OLIVE YIELD UP
JERUSALEM — Israel's olive yield is expected to reach 22,000 tons this year — an all-time record. Azar Artul, director of the Olive Marketing and Export Council, said recently that his Council would maintain strict control over the import of olives from the administered areas into Israel, to protect local growers and to keep prices stable.

MORE ON BOXING: Joe Morrisette of Fall River will present Golden Gloves competition at Lincoln Park (on the way to New Bedford) starting January 18. Boys in the Golden Gloves will be aiming for places in the Tournament of Champions that is scheduled for Lowell in April. The National AAU competition is listed for Boston in April. That's where the Olympic boxers qualify for the big games.

taxed people in the world. We are, in fact, among the most lightly taxed.

Our total tax burden takes about 28 cents out of each dollar of our national output (our Gross National Product).

Only Japan's and Switzerland's citizens pay less — and don't miss the significance of those two names. For Japan has a minimal military budget draining taxes from her people. And Switzerland is a traditionally neutral land about the size of a postage stamp.

Most heavily taxed are the citizens of Sweden who pay 43 cents out of each dollar of their national output to finance their social-welfare and other programs. Next in line are the citizens of the Netherlands who pay 39.7 cents out of each dollar of their output in total taxes.

"I pay those taxes," said an OECD spokesman, a citizen of the Netherlands, "when I called him in Washington on this. 'Don't complain about your tax load in the U.S.'"

The following figures, excerpted from the OECD report, will show where we stand. The total tax burden in various countries is given in terms of cents per dollar of GNP.

The second figure shows the taxes you and others pay excluding social security taxes.

The total tax burden for you in the U.S. is 27.9c for each dollar of GNP, and 22.7c excluding social security. In Sweden the total tax burden is 43.0c, and 34.8c excluding social security; in the Netherlands the total tax burden is 39.7c, and 25.5c excluding social security; in Denmark the total tax burden is 38.7c, and 35.6c excluding social security; in Norway the total tax burden is 38.4c, and 29.3c excluding social security.

In Britain the total tax burden is 36.6c, and 31.6c excluding social security; in France the total tax burden is 36.3c, and 21.8c excluding social security; in Austria the total tax burden is 35.8c, and 26.6c excluding social security; in Germany the total tax burden is 34.0c, and 23.2c excluding social security.

In Belgium the total tax burden is 33.8c, and 24.0c excluding social security; in Canada the total tax burden is 30.2c, and 27.8c excluding social security; in Italy the total tax burden is 30.1c, and 19.2c excluding social security; in Japan the total tax burden is 19.4c, and 15.8c excluding social security.

Turkey Charges Jewish Men, Women With Establishing School Illegally

INSTANBUL—A group of two young rabbis and 11 young Jewish religion teachers, including six women, were charged in a criminal court here recently with illegally establishing a school and conducting language courses.

The prosecutor asked the court to apply the penal code clause providing for prison sentences of between six months and two years. Eleven of the 13 Jews appeared in court and their lawyer said that he would present a detailed defense at the next session.

The indictment claimed that the rabbis and teachers conducted Hebrew and history lessons in a synagogue. It described both the "Mahzikai Torah" Bible prayer courses and the teachers as "unauthorized."

Eli Cohen, the head of the "Mahzikai Torah," told the court that this organization was not a school and that the Bible and prayer courses were conducted in synagogues under a permit given to the Chief Rabbinate by the education ministry in 1960.

"Hebrew," he said, "was not taught as a language course, but within the framework of the Bible and prayers, because it is the language of the Bible and prayer."

The purpose of the classes was to educate children, mainly primary school boys and girls, in their religion and he rejected the charge that Hebrew and Jewish history were taught separately.

The other members of the "Mahzikai Torah" told the court that they gave instruction in the Bible and Jewish prayers voluntarily and received no payment.

One teacher said: "I learned my prayers and the Bible at these courses in the synagogue when I was a boy and now I am teaching the same to the new generation."

The young women teachers said that they were giving similar instruction to the girls.

ONE OF THE GREATEST: Ernie Mandell, stepping as briskly as he did when he was one of the flashiest, speed-maneuvering, spectacular attractions on a boxing card, offered his hand in holiday greeting. Ernie was NE Featherweight Champion and he appears fit as the proverbial fiddle. "I do 60 push-ups every morning," said the dapper Mr. Mandell. "Try to keep physically fit." Ernie, who at one time trained with the immortal "Young Montreal," surely rated with the best of all time in New England. Someone said to Ernie, "You know what's the matter with boxing?" That was a hard question to answer. "Well," the someone continued, "Guys like you!" "Like me!" exclaimed Ernie. "I did everything I could to make the game great!" "No, you didn't," the someone continued. "You didn't help the other boxers by showing them your tricks of the trade." After thinking a minute, Ernie commented, "You know, he may have been right. I worked hard on a special format and I kept it all to myself." And we added, "Which was the reason you were so good, Ernie, and being good you helped make the game better."

Existence Of 'Red Front' Discovered On Spies' Arrest

TEL AVIV — The existence of an extreme left-wing organization called the "Red Front" which preaches violent revolution was disclosed here. It has only about 20 members, including Ehud Adiv and Dan Vered, two of the Jewish suspects arrested in the crackdown on a Syrian-directed spy and sabotage ring, according to Israeli newspapers. The "Front" issues a publication and solicits funds. It asks IL 5 for a year's subscription and instructs the subscribers to send their donations to Vered, a 30-year-old school teacher who holds extreme Marxist views. (Ironically, the word "Vered" is Hebrew for "pose" and/or "pink.")

According to reports, the "Red Front" ideology was imported by Vered from his days as a member of the SDS (Students for a Democratic Society) in the U.S. It maintains that "Socialism cannot be implemented without a violent revolution" and states that "Revolution can come about only if the revolutionaries do not fear violence."

It was also learned that the spy ring was infiltrated by Israeli agents who kept its members under close surveillance. Israeli security forces moved in to break up the ring when it became apparent that it was about to embark on a series of terrorist and sabotage activities. Police said that more arrests were due and would include two more Jews who knew of the spy ring's existence but failed to inform the authorities.

Magistrates have already signed detention orders for all of the detainees and their relatives are engaging defense lawyers. Adiv's parents have engaged a lawyer to represent their son but he has refused to accept the lawyer or to speak to him.

NATIONAL JEWISH HOSPITAL trustees John J. Cummings, Jr., left, president of Industrial National Bank of Rhode Island, and Leonard A. Johnson, director and consultant of Gladdings, Inc., have announced the formation of a state-wide committee to sponsor the first annual Rhode Island dinner for the Denver-based hospital. The dinner, which will be held on March 1 at the Colonial Hilton Motor Inn in Cranston, will aid the treatment, teaching and research programs of the nonsectarian respiratory disease center.

Form State-Wide Committee For National Hospital Benefit

A state-wide committee of sponsors is being formed for the first annual Rhode Island dinner for National Jewish Hospital and Research Center at Denver, Colorado, it was announced by hospital trustees this week.

A dinner, which will aid the nonsectarian respiratory disease center, will be held on March 1 at the Colonial Hilton Motor Inn in Cranston. Civic and business leaders on the sponsoring committee will meet at 4:30 p.m. on Wednesday, January 10, at the Industrial National Bank of Rhode Island. Two local trustees are John J. Cummings, Jr., president of the Industrial National, and Leonard A. Johnson, director and consultant of Gladdings, Inc. Mr. Johnson is also serving as chairman of the dinner.

According to Mr. Johnson, National Jewish Hospital is "treating patients with problem cases of asthma, tuberculosis and cystic fibrosis who are treatment failures in local hospitals. They are teaching doctors from Rhode Island the most advanced methods of treatment in the fields of allergy, immunology and tuberculosis. And they are conducting research into new cures and controls for chronic respiratory diseases."

Survey Disputes Fears Of Christian Missionizing

WASHINGTON — A B'nai B'rith survey of 80 major colleges disputed fears expressed by Jewish religious leaders that the upsurge in Christian missionizing was attracting large numbers of Jewish students.

The study, analyzing the "extent and significance" of the Jesus movement at colleges with high Jewish enrollments, found that only a "negligible percentage" of Jews were responding to the evangelical appeals of the "Jesus freaks," the Campus Crusade for Christ and other fundamentalist groups, B'nai B'rith said.

In the findings, released at the annual meeting of B'nai B'rith's board of governors at the Mayflower Hotel, only 15 campuses reported known Jewish conversions to Christianity, generally fewer than five at each school. Only a few institutions reported 25 to 30.

Dr. Alfred Jospe, national director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation, the Jewish campus movement, strongly rejected statements by some Jewish disaster area."

Estimate Challenged

Jewish student reaction to missionary appeals, as reflected in the study, "does not justify some of the rising fears and alarms," Dr. Jospe said.

Recent estimates that 7,000 Jewish youth had been converted to Christianity were challenged by Dr. Jospe as "zealously overblown." More than 400,000 Jewish youths are attending college.

The "reverse side" of the conversion issue was cited by David M. Blumberg, president of B'nai B'rith, who said "the number of non-Jewish students adopting Judaism — without being proselytized, which Judaism frowns on — may be equal, if not greater."

Although statistics are not available, Mr. Blumberg said that a substantial increase in conversions to Judaism, generally as a result of student intermarriage, has been evident in recent years.

The B'nai B'rith study was conducted by the Hillel Foundation during the spring semester, and its findings were compiled by Dr. Samuel Z. Fishman, an assistant national director of the campus group.

A follow-up survey, taken during the fall term and covering 60 of the same schools, showed no change in the conclusion that campus evangelical efforts remain a "limited phenomenon" among Jews, Dr. Jospe said.

No Anti-Semitism

Hillel Foundation directors at each of the 80 schools said that anti-Semitism was not "an identifiable factor" in any of the missionary programs, and that most programs were directed to "the campus at large, not Jewish students particularly."

The survey cited the use of large "Jesus is kosher" posters on the Hofstra University campus where many missionary tracts were distributed. At other schools, public lectures by Jewish converts were advertised on topics designed to lure Jewish audiences.

Hillel directors have begun their own counteraction programs, often through lectures in which a rabbi or a Jewish faculty member presents the Jewish view of Jesus.

The study described the Campus Crusade for Christ, largest of the college missionary groups, as "well organized and well funded" but said that it and others generally functioned "outside the pale of the university campus ministries and, almost always, represent a theological, financial and personal challenge to the established campus ministry."

Speculation Rises About Jordan Jet

DALLAS, TEXAS — Following a report in the Dallas Morning News and a followup investigation by Jimmy Wisch, editor-publisher of the Texas Jewish Post, speculation has soared regarding a Royal Jordanian jet that landed at Love Field last week—officially to pick up commercial antennas—but reportedly being loaded with "top secret radio-radar missile-tracking equipment." The Morning News, quoting a "reliable source," said about $2.5 million worth of the equipment manufactured by Collins Radio Company, the largest maker of sophisticated electronic aviation equipment, was being readied at the airfield for shipment to Jordan. The jet has arrived on an unusual nonstop Jordan-to-Dallas flight, supposedly transporting jet engines to be overhauled.

In Washington, Jordanian Minister Dr. Nasir N. Batayneh said that the Jet was on a chartered round trip flight from Amman to Dallas. He said he knew nothing of any equipment having been taken aboard the jet. A State Department source said the jet arrived in Dallas several days ago and took on "ordinary equipment" "long anticipated" for delivery to Jordan as part of the on-going supply of military equipment from the U.S.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK: Harry Truman first became disenchanted in Adlai Stevenson during the 1952 campaign. Stevenson was asked what he planned to do about scandals in the government. "Yes, something should be done," said Stevenson. "Truman told me a candidate for the Presidency must run on the record of his predecessor" ... When Groucho Marx stopped in Independence on his way home to California, he lunched with Truman at a noisy restaurant. "Can't you, a former President, get these people to make their phone calls quietly?" he asked Truman.

"I can, but I would not dream of it," replied Truman. "They're raising funds for the Democratic Party."

During his last year in office, the President gave my wife, my two younger sons and me a tour of the White House. After Mrs. Truman took our sons to meet her mother, we found our youngest son, Douglas, sitting in the President's chair with his feet on the desk. As I quickly started to pull him away, the President came in and looked at the boy. "Let him sit there now," he told me. "I hope he never has to sit there while he's older."

We dined with the Trumans on their last night at the White House. The President said, "Since you're a lawyer, I'm appointing you federal judge." He appointed my wife Ambassador to Mexico. At the end of the meal, he told us: "You've served long enough" — and we resigned.

Jacques Belasco, who arranged and wrote songs for the current revue at Bill's Gay Nineties, is working on a musical version of Moulin Rouge. He spoke of the techniques of composing. "There's no magic formula," he said. "It's like any other job. You're commissioned to write a piece — just the way a supermarket gets a grocery order — sit down at the table and fulfill it ... The best way to tell a lie," Belasco advised, "is not to tell the truth and remember it."

Jean Kerr's new comedy, Finishing Touches, will play at the Washington Kennedy Center the week of the President's inauguration. The show foregoes its January 19 and 20 performances since the Inaugural Ball takes place there ... Actor Joe De Santis has completed a bust of Joan Merriam Smith, the aviatrix killed in a 1967 Las Vegas air crash. The sculpture has been accepted by the Smithsonian Institution for its aviation wing.

Dong Kingman has been commissioned to paint murals for the lobby of the first 50-story skyscraper in Hong Kong, the Land Tower, now nearing completion. Coincidentally, the building stands on the site of what was once Kingman's boyhood home, a ramshackle lean-to, where he lived from 1916-1929. One of the artist's paintings will be of his home ... Cosmopolitan is experimenting with a Spanish language edition here and in San Juan ... George Shearing is taking business law courses in braille.

Art Shamsky, the former Mets player and new co-owner of Mr. Laff's, discussed the recent re-opening of the restaurant. "We want to change the image of the place," he said. "It's no longer a singles bar — but a more refined restaurant. You might say, 'Mr. Laff's has gotten married and settled down' ... When Jack Lemmon screened his new movie, Avanti, and spoke to students at Harvard, it was in the same auditorium where he once appeared as an undergrad player in Hasty Pudding shows.

Martha Raye, star of No, No, Nanette, and Nick Condos were divorced 16 years ago, but in 1969 he became her manager. The actress is his only client. "Managing is not an easy business," he said at Adam's Apple. "You work like a dog to make a big deal, and when you pull it off and tell your client what you did, all you get is 'oh' ... Condos' arrangement with his ex-wife is somewhat unusual. Instead of the usual agent's fee, "it's 50 per cent business and 50 per cent pleasure."

At the party for the Radio City Music Hall's 40th anniversary, Al Gold of Rockefeller University, told of taking a group of Russian scientists headed by Mstislav Keldysh, president of the Soviet Academy of Scientists, to dinner at the Rainbow Room. They were frustrated because fog-marred the view from the 65th floor. When Keldysh told general manager Tony May he was disappointed by the lack of visibility, May said he would do something about it.

Ten minutes later, the skyline miraculously appeared. The visitors were amazed and wanted an explanation. May smiled and said: "It's a service we reserve for those with Russian passports."

KICKOFF CHAIAN: Mrs. Jack Fink, above, is chairman and Mrs. Hayvis Woolf is cochairman of the open board meeting and donor kickoff of the Cranston Chapter of Hadassah. The affair will be held on Monday, January 8, at 12:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Erwin Bosler of 140 Summit Drive, Cranston.

Mrs. Joseph Danin, regional vice president of Hadassah, will be the guest speaker.

Mrs. Samuel Cohen and Mrs. Carl Adler are in charge of publicity, and Mrs. Emil Freedman will arrange the decorations.

Hostesses for the day are Mrs. Henry Jacober, president; Mrs. Ben Mellion, Mrs. Cohen, Mrs. Oscar Levy, Mrs. David Buckler, Mrs. Louis Gladstone, Mrs. Philip Goldfarb, Mrs. Ben Mendelowitz, Mrs. J. Hymann and Mrs. Nathan Lipson.

Jordanian Tax Stirs Dispute On West Bank

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A Jordanian Government decision to impose a 12 per cent tax on all imports from the Israeli-occupied West Bank has stirred a dispute between Amman and West Bank businessmen.

Opponents of the tax feel that it could drive a wedge into efforts aimed at reuniting the East Bank with the West Bank, which Israel captured from Jordan in the 1967 war.

Despite Israeli occupation, links between the two banks of the Jordan River, especially trade, have been maintained. West Bank residents continue to export most of their agricultural products to the East Bank.

Premier Ahmed al-Lawzi of Jordan, who is also Minister of Finance, told a delegation representing the chambers of commerce and agriculture on the West Bank that his Government was determined to go ahead with the tax.

The delegation, led by Hikmat al-Masri, a prominent businessman from Nablus who once served as speaker of the Jordanian Parliament, had gone to Amman to try to persuade the Government to rescind the tax.

Mr. Masri said in a statement published in the Lebanese daily An Nahar that the Jordanian measure "is bound to have serious complications which are not in the interest of the people of the West Bank or the unity of Jordan."

Mr. Masri was apparently referring to the threat that the Jordanian tax could pose to King Hussein's plan for setting up a united kingdom of the East and West Banks once the Israelis withdrew.

The King proposed his plan last March and has been making special efforts to win support for it among his former subjects on the West Bank.

The Jordanian Government has said that the tax is intended to counter an Israeli decision to give West Bank exporters an incentive allowance totaling 30 per cent of the value of the exports. Amman has charged that the Israeli move is aimed at integrating the West Bank economically with Israel and alleviating the deficit in the Israeli balance of payments.

Amman has also said, on its state-controlled radio, that Israeli authorities have told West Bank exporters that they must sell their goods on the East Bank for Jordanian dinars and then bring the money back to the occupied territory.

The Jordanian Government is believed to suspect that the Israelis want enough Jordanian currency under their control so that they may be able to use economic blackmail against Jordan in the future.

The Government told Parliament last month that the tax money would be put in a special fund to help West Bank farmers. Mr. Lawzi told the house that the Israeli incentive would help only a few businessmen and that the farmers would not benefit from it.

Western diplomatic sources in Beirut said the tax had become the main issue between King Hussein and the West Bank residents, threatening to have serious effects on their relations. The sources said the West Bank residents felt the Amman Government is treating them like foreigners and not as subjects.

Justified Claim

BONN — The Central Council of Jews in Germany stated that those who were persecuted by the Nazis had a justified claim against East Germany. Nazi-hunter Simon Wiesenthal announced in Vienna a campaign to have the governments of seven European countries demand reparations from East Germany for those who suffered under Nazi rule. Launching the drive in his capacity as the head of the Austrian League of Jewish Persucutees, he said West Germany had so far paid some $13.5 million to various countries and international institutions and funds for use as idemnification.

Native Israelis Acting For Arabs Shocks All Elements In Israel

JERUSALEM — Gan Shmuel, a kibbutz of the Marxist-Zionist Mapam Party, is the home of Ehud Adiv, one of four young Jews arrested on suspicion of belonging to an Arab-Jewish spy and sabotage ring directed from Damascus.

Victor Shemtov, Minister of Health and a Mapam member of Parliament, recently retorted after an attack from a Religious Party colleague: "The kibbutz condemns Adiv and is not covering up for him the way religious schools do for student hoodlums."

The exchange was not, perhaps the most elevating to seep out of the Cabinet Chamber, but it caught a national echo. The news that Jewish revolutionaries were ready to conspire with Syria against the existence of the State has stunned Israelis. The parties of the Right have found it hard to resist the temptations of McCarthyism as chilling revelation has followed chilling revelation. The parties of the Left are embarrassed and defensive.

Doctor Warhaftig's question was no more than a spasm. His National Religious Party is a member of the governing coalition. The chauvinistic opposition has exploited the spy story much more blatantly. Israeli internal politics are often small-minded. In an election year they are more parochial than ever.

The executive of the Gahal block, led by Menachem Begin, blamed "Leftists" and "Government leaders" for creating the psychological climate that made feasible the participation of four sabras in the spy ring. This phenomenon, Gahal said, was the logical extreme of the school of thought that terms parts of the ancient homeland "occupied territory" and says the return of the Jewish people to its heritage "wrongs the Arab inhabitants."

Shmuel Tamir, a member of Parliament and leader of the Free Centre group, said: "Israeli youth hears every day from persons in high office that Jewish settlement in Hebron and Rafah is oppressive colonialism. Such preaching finally pushed young people into resorting to all means against the oppressors. The spiritual vacuum now pervading the Labour Party prepares the ground for such evil harvests."

The extreme Left feels impelled to proclaim its loyalty to Israel. A Communist leader, Raoul Teitelbaum, condemned the alleged-participation of Jews in an enemy spy ring, but added a warning against "wholesale charges of treason against the Left-wing opposition." He trusted wistfully that the police would "act only against those linked with hostile activities."

Many Left-wingers feel that they must explain, if not justify, the act of treachery. Few have chosen to do so publicly. Ehud Adiv's father is still a lonely voice. "I do not wish to cover up for him," he said, "but he was always a very decent person. His motives were always humanistic, and because he cared so deeply about things, we will not turn our backs on him. He is our son and he will remain so."

One of the most serious dangers in the present atmosphere is that the Government's critics of the democratic Left and Centre will decide to keep their heads below the parapet. If dissent is equated with treason, perhaps it is better to stay quiet.

This happened once before this year. The Committee for Peace and Understanding, which campaigns for a withdrawal from the occupied territories from a professional base in the Hebrew University, cancelled publication of a major policy statement for just such reasons the week after the massacre at Lydda Airport.

The nation is, however, some way short of hysteria. A reaction has already set in. The independent evening newspaper Ma'ariv sounds a warning. "Public shock," it says in a leading article, "is understandable. At the same time let us not forget that these are just four individuals who were working on their own instigation, not as representatives of any movement, either mainstream or on the fringe."

Justice can hardly be served by reports that one named accused went to Damascus and Cairo and divulged highly classified military information. "There is nothing I know that I did not tell the Syrians," the Jerusalem Post quotes him as confessing.

PLANNING FOR the Study Group which will start on Tuesday, January 9, at the Jewish Community Center, are Leonore Leach, president of the Brandeis University National Women's Committee, Providence Chapter, and Marjorie R. Yashar, an attorney, and chairman of the study group which will discuss the legal rights of women in Rhode Island.

Brandeis Committee To Present Study Series On Women's Rights

The Brandeis University National Women's Committee, Providence Chapter, will present a winter study series dealing with the legal rights of women in Rhode Island. Chairman of the study group, which will meet on five Tuesday mornings starting January 9, at the Jewish Community Center, will be Marjorie R. Yashar, an attorney. Coffee will be served at 9:45 a.m. and the discussions will be held from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

"Probate Law" will be the first topic to be presented on January 9 by Beverly Long, an attorney. "Domestic Relations" will be discussed by Helen MacGregor, an attorney, at the January 23 meeting.

Robert Gammell, assistant Attorney-General, will speak about "What Every Mother Should Know about Drugs and the Law" on February 6. On February 27, Corinne Grande, Judge of the District Court of Rhode Island, will discuss "Discrimination Against Women and How To Cope with It."

The final meeting on March 13 will be addressed by former Governor Frank Licht on a topic to be announced.

Holy Land Is Battlefield For Cowboys, Indians Now

TEL AVIV — From time immemorial, the Holy Land has been tossed like a ball from empire to empire. Now there is a new set of combatants on this ancient battlefield: cowboys and Indians.

"Why not?" asked Norman Jewison, whose production, "Billy Two Hats," starring Gregory Peck, was being filmed on the same field conquered by everyone from the ancient Egyptians to the Turks to finally the Israelis.

"I don't see why all westerners have to be shot in Italy or Spain," Mr. Jewison said. "Israel has just as good a climate, terrain and almost the same kind of geographical locations."

The government has gone to the trouble of building a real Western town, replete with livery stables, swing-door saloons and a sheriff's office, outside Tel Aviv to attract movie companies and their money.

The film-makers are offered as incentives, tax-exempt status, a 20 per cent discount on all local purchases, and war insurance just in case the Middle East situation takes a sudden turn for the worse.

Written by a Scotsman, packaged in England and financed with $665,000 from Hollywood, "Billy Two Hats" is the first in what Israel hopes will be a series of profitable returns to its investment.

Ted Kotcheff, the writer, chose Israel as its setting because, he said:

"I wanted to visually establish isolation and loneliness, and this did it better than anywhere else."

The attractions to movie companies include low-cost labor, a variety of landscapes, good weather and a confined area that makes a move from one location to another not too costly in time and money.

Bringing the Wild West to Israel wasn't so easy. For one thing, getting the Winchester rifles and Colt 45's past airport security men was something of a hassle.

For another, Mr. Peck was forced to use an Israeli-bred horse that had never been in the desert. And finding Israelis who had been on horses to act as extras proved even more of a headache.

Soviet Authorities Announce Waiver Of Taxes For Some

MOSCOW — Boris T. Shumlin, Deputy Minister of the Interior, announced that Soviet authorities were prepared to waive the education tax for pensioners who wanted to emigrate and to reduce the taxes for others on a sliding scale, depending on the number of years they had worked after graduation.

In a statement given to Novosti, a feature agency under Communist party jurisdiction, Mr. Shumlin asserted that the tax on persons with higher educations, who wanted to leave the country affected only about 10 per cent of all applicants for emigration.

He defended the Soviet Union's right to impose a tax in order to obtain a refund for the costs of higher education provided free by the state. Soviet authorities, he said are prepared, "as a rule," to grant exit visas but "the Soviet Union does not intend to act as philanthropist" toward people who have had higher education.

But, implicitly accepting the argument of some Jewish activists that people who had worked for years had already repaid the state for their educations, Mr. Shumlin said:

"According to regulations existing now, men who have reached 60 and women who have reached

Trinity Square To Open 'Royal Hunt Of The Sun'

Trinity Square Repertory Company opens the fourth play of its 1972-73 season with The Royal Hunt of the Sun on Wednesday, January 10, at 8 p.m. at the Trinity Square Playhouse.

The adventurous, historical piece concerning Pizarro's conquest of Peru was written by Peter Shaffer and is directed by Adrian Hall with music composed by Richard Cumming.

The company's professional, technical and artistic staffs have been involved in researching, designing and executing costumes, settings and properties representing the era when a handful of Spanish conquistadors led by Francisco Pizarro, played by Richard Kneeland, ravaged the politically sophisticated, progressive, rich culture of the Peruvians ruled by the young Atahualpa, played by James Eichelberger.

Eugene Lee designed the sets and Roger Morgan, the lighting. Robert D. Soule created masks and armor while A. Christine Giannini developed the authentic period costumes.

Other members of the Trinity Company who will appear in The Royal Hunt of the Sun are Robert Black, Robert J. Colonna, Timothy Crowe, William Damkoehler, Richard Jenkins, David C. Jones, Richard Kavanaugh, David Kennett, Mina Manente, T. Richard Mason, George Martin and Donald Somers. The play will be performed through February 17.

Israeli Agents Infiltrated Ring

JERUSALEM — Following the exposure of a Syrian-directed spy ring in which several extreme leftist Jews were prominent members, security authorities intend to tighten control to prevent left-wing circles from making contact with hostile elements thereby endangering the security of the State. But sources here said the authorities did not intend to impose political control on these circles.

So far 46 suspected members of the spy ring — representing all major religious denominations in Israel — have been seized. Two of the four Jewish suspects have been identified as members of an extreme left-wing group known as the "Red Front," which preached violent revolution and has about 20 members. Its ideology was reportedly imported by Dan Vered, 30, one of the arrested Jewish suspects, from his days as a member of the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) in the U.S.

It was learned this week that the spy ring was infiltrated by Israeli agents who kept its members under close surveillance. Israeli security forces moved in to break up the ring when it became apparent it was about to embark on a series of terrorist and sabotage activities. Its members were reportedly planning to kidnap Defense Minister Moshe Dayan.

Hello again, here's what we have for you to start off the New Year.

Remember that dark-haired beauty I wrote about seeing at an open house last October but not knowing who she was? Well, I found out. Her name is Maryann DiNunzio. And for those of you who have seen her on TV as news reporter for Channel 12, take it from this reporter — she's even lovelier in person. And that, my friends, is very lovely indeed...

Do you enjoy a good movie? Then don't miss The Poseidon Adventure. If you like excitement, I promise you won't be disappointed.

That's all for now, my friends. May this new year bring you blessings. And please, God, peace. (Alan Shawn Feinstein is a syndicated columnist. He is the author of Making Your Money Grow, Folk Tales from Siam, and other books.)

Polish Artist's Life Shaped
By Early Events In Life

NEW YORK—An artist is often shaped by events in his life. And so it was with Andre Kielczynski, the artistic son of a Polish Catholic who sheltered Jews in his cellar in Warsaw during the Nazi Holocaust.

The story of how Andre came to Israel is one of the happier stories of the era which followed the Nazi Holocaust. The days when the elder Kielczynski had hidden as many Jews as he could in his cellar were all but a memory in 1958—but a memory which Israel and those who had been saved from Nazi gas chambers would never forget.

That year the Kielczynski family, along with others, were brought to Israel by the Israeli government for the planting of the trees along the road to the Yad Vashem memorial. At the foot of the trees were name plates—among them one bearing the name of the elder Kielczynski—commemorating the K'Doshai Ha'Olam (the Holy of the World)—a gesture of thanks from a grateful people. Today, the elder Kielczynski works at his old profession as an agronomist—but in the service of the Israeli Ministry of Agriculture.

However, his son, Andre, coming to Israel as a young man in his twenties and already a painter, was so inspired by the light and color of Israel that it changed his whole life as an artist and a man. Andre's face becomes alive with enthusiasm when he describes the reaction to the bright sunshine of Israel and its wonderful panoramas.

"In Poland," he says, "I painted in the traditional style. But when I came to Israel, I could never think of painting that way. I wanted to catch that wonderful light and warmth, to put in on canvas. Somehow I felt freer and I wanted to express that freedom."

He began studying art anew and a new style evolved—a style in which he devoted himself chiefly to landscapes, catching the golden shades of the hills of Jerusalem and the Mysticism and eternal quality he sees in it.

His personal life has also changed dramatically. Because he wanted to become a true Israeli, he converted to Judaism, became a citizen, and fought as a tank commander in the Six-Day War.

He is married to an Iraqi girl and has two young daughters, six and eight years old, one of whom is named Sharon, after the Israeli General Ariq Sharon. And he is repaying his debt to Israel by giving generously of his time to encourage young artists, teaching and guiding them.

'SITTING ON VOLCANO'

TORONTO — Daniel Monson, president of the Zionist Organization of Canada following a three-week visit to Latin America, declared that the Jewish communities there — especially in Chile, Argentina and Uruguay — are sitting on a dangerous volcano that will sooner or later erupt. Mr. Monson stated that there are no signs of a mass exodus of Jews to Israel, and that aliya from Latin America is only slightly higher now than it was a year ago. In the course of his visit, Mr. Monson addressed meetings sponsored by the General Zionist organizations in Rio de Janeiro, Montevideo and Buenos Aires. He also conferred with the leadership of the General Zionist movement in Lima, Peru.
