Beth David To Install New Slate Of Officers

New officers for the coming year at Temple Beth David-Anshei Kovno will be installed on Sunday, June 13.

They include Representative Samuel C. Kagan, president; William Kanopkin, vice-president; Mrs. Abraham Shuster, recording secretary; Bernard Schneider, corresponding secretary; Max Tippe, financial secretary; Herbert Wagner, treasurer; and Jerome Aron sergeant-at-arms.

Board of trustees will be Abraham Aron, Milton Bronstein, Abner Hornstein, Leonard Kaplan, Charles Kilberg, Raymond Muffs, Milton Sherman, Mrs. Albert Snell and Mrs. Harold Winkleman. Honorary member of the board of trustees is Hyman B. Stone.

By their acceptance, these people have pledged their intentions to work for the betterment of Temple Beth David-Anshei Kovno, to administer its affairs to the best of their ability, and to promote its future.

Mr. Robert A. Riesman, president of the Jewish Federation of R. I., has been designated as the installing officer. He is recognized as a leader in Jewish community affairs and as such, has acquired a distinguished record of service to the Jewish people.

Religious services will be under the direction of Cantor Charles Ross and will begin promptly at 8 p.m.

Max Tippe will serve as the Master of Ceremonies. Provision has been made to hold the final drawing of the grand prizes of the annual raffle.

British Air Show Bars Israeli Jet

LONDON: Controversy has been stirred by the organizers of Britain's principal air show, who have barred an Israeli fighter plane from participating.

According to Desmond Clough, spokesman for the Society of British Aerospace Companies, sponsor of the Farnborough Air Show, the Israelis applied too late. The event is scheduled for September 5 through 12.

An Israel newspaper has asserted that pressure from Saudi Arabia was to blame for the rejection of Israel's entry into the show. An official from the Israeli Aircraft Industries claims Farnborough representatives agreed to allow the Kfir, planeon May 25 to be entered. Two days later, that decision was reversed.

A report in the Tel Aviv newspaper, Maariv, recently said Saudi Arabia had warned the British that their Arab export market for military planes would be jeopardized if the Israeli Kfir were permitted to show its capabilities at Farnborough.

Supersonic Performer

The Kfir is a supersonic single-seater that performed well against the Arab-piloted MIG-21's during the Middle East war of October 1973. It is based on the French Dassault airframe and is powered by a General Electric J-79 turbojet engine.

The official of the Israeli Aircraft Industries, which is government-owned, said today that while the final date for entering the Farnborough event was the end of February, he had been notified that the list "would not close until the eve of the show."

"So according to this," said the official, who asked to remain unidentified, "I went to see the Farnborough people.

"This was on May 25, and they were quite happy to see me, and they gave me an affirmative reply and said 'You're welcome.' I reported this to our people in Israel. "Two days later they wrote me a letter in which they went back on what they said before and stated there is no room in the air show."

Promoters' View

Mr. Clough, speaking for the promoters, conceded that last minute entries were sometimes permissible. But he maintained that the Israeli company never did put in a "formal" application to participate.

Community-Wide Testimonial Given Galkin By Federation

Over 400 people attended the 31st annual meeting of the Jewish Federation of Rhode Island. In conjunction with this community-wide gathering was a tribute to Joseph Galkin, retiring executive vice-president of the Federation.

A highlight of the evening was a multi-media slide presentation written, directed and produced by Mrs. Henry Markoff depicting Joseph Galkin's thirty-four years with the Jewish Federation.

Presentations were made by the past presidents of the Federation and by Mr. Robert A. Riesman, who was re-elected for another term as president. They spoke of the many years they worked with Mr. Galkin and the contributions that he made to the community during his incumbency.

The general chairmen of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Grossman; their co-chairmen, were Mr. & Mrs. Max Alperin, Mr. & Mrs. Bertram L. Bernhardt, Mr. & Mrs. Merrill L. Hassenfeld, Mr. & Mrs. Frank Licht, Mr. & Mrs. Joseph W. Riss, Mr. & Mrs. Robert A. Riesman, Mr. & Mrs. Edmund I. Waldman, Mr. & Mrs. Manfred Weil, Dr. and Mrs. Jacob Stone, Mrs. Leonard I. Salmanson, Mrs. Julius Irving, and Mrs. Raymond L. Cohen.

The special committee chairmen and their assistants, who made the evening possible were, Mr. Benjamin M. Falk, Mrs. Abraham Perceley, Mrs. Robert Hochberg, Mrs. Max Alperin, Mrs. David Horvitz, Mrs. David Litchman, Mrs. Julius Epstein, Mrs. Louis Mirman, Mrs. Henry Markoff, and Mrs. Bernard Sherman.

The following slate of officers for the term 1976-1977 was elected: Robert A. Riesman, president; Melvin G. Alperin, Mrs. Leonard I.

ABORTION

MILWAUKEE: An official of the Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights has accused the American Jewish Congress of "adopting the posture of legal positivism, the very ideology that enabled Hitler to pursue his genocidal policies," by its support for legalized abortion. Dr. Lowell A. Dunlap, the League's assistant executive director, made that charge in a study titled "Neo-Nazism in America?"

Salmanson, Edwin S. Soforenko, Stanley P. Blacher, and Herman C. Selya, vice presidents; Martin I. Dittelman, treasurer; Leonard Granoff, associate treasurer; Norman D. Tilles, secretary; Dan Asher, executive director; William L. Robin, associate executive director; Joseph Galkin, consultant. George Miller — Barrington, Samuel Shlevin — Pawtucket, Everett Berlinsky — Cranston-Warwick, Dr. Alden H. Blackman — Providence, Edward Goldberg — Newport, Dr. Robert G. Weisbord — South County, Lester A. Macktez — Woonsocket, area vice-presidents. Max Alperin, Merrill L. Hassenfeld, Frank Licht, and Joseph W. Riss, honorary presidents. Benjamin Brier, Ira S. Galkin, Stanley Grossman, Samuel Rosen, and Alexander Rumpel, honorary vice-presidents.

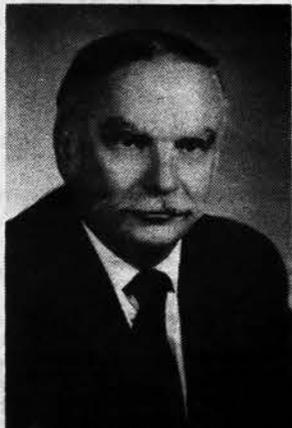

The board of directors for the term ending 1979 was elected as follows: Banice C. Bazar, Mrs. Alden H. Blackman, Irwin Chase, Barry Cohen, Gerald Cohen, Mrs. Newton B. Cohn, Oscar L. Davison, Sidney Dressler, Dr. Ronald Eisler, Abraham Factor, Dr. Seymour Feldman, William Fellner, Albert I. Gordon, Sidney F. Greenwald, David Horvitz, Mrs. Sherwin J. Jerome R. Sapolsky, Richard Shein, Dr. Albert Silverstein, Mrs. Sheldon S. Sollosy, Herbert Stern, Allan W. Sydney, Alan E. Symonds, Jacob N. Temkin, Martin M. Temkin, Dr. Norman Zucker.

The board of directors for the terms ending 1977 and 1978 remains the same. The four rabbinical representatives for the term ending 1977 are Rabbis Leslie Y. Gutterman, Jerome S. Gurland, Joel H. Zaimann and Gerald Zelermeyer. The four presidential appointees for the term ending 1977 are Dr. Charles Mandell, Mrs. Benjamin Mellion, Mrs. Sol Resnik, and Dr. M. Louis Kirschenbaum.

WOMEN'S AMERICAN ORT: The Rhode Island-Southern Massachusetts Region of Women's American ORT held a planning conference at Valle's on May 26. Officers installed were Sandra Cohen, president; Hope Pearlman, chairwoman of the executive committee; Barbara Miller, Lorraine Waldman, Ellen Reuter and Rita Eisman, vice presidents; Susan Vederman, treasurer; Toby Lang, financial secretary; Joan Glasser, corresponding secretary; Dorothy Rosen, recording secretary; Amy Weisman, mailing secretary; and Rox Kurzer, parliamentarian. Chairwoman for the day was Judith Goodman. Pictured here are, left to right, Rox Kurzer, outgoing president; Sandy Cohen, incoming president; and Hope Pearlman, chairwoman of the executive committee.

GURLAND TO BE HONORED: Rabbi Jerome S. Gurland, right, spiritual leader of Temple Sinai, will be honored for his leadership and service to the congregation, the community and Israel, it was announced by Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Halsband, chairmen of the tribute committee.

The occasion will be a program of tribute in behalf of State of Israel Bonds to be held Tuesday evening, June 15, at Temple Sinai. A sherry hour at 7:30 p.m. will precede the event, as will a Viennese dessert table.

Guest speaker will be Rabbi Leon Kronish, left, co-chairman of the National Congregational Committee of State of Israel Bonds and spiritual leader of Temple Beth Shalom, Miami Beach, Florida.

Tributes to Rabbi Gurland are expected to be delivered by The Most Reverend Louis E. Gelineau, Bishop of the Providence Diocese; Cranston Mayor James L. Taft, Jr.; and Rabbi Joel H. Zaiman, spiritual leader of Temple Emanu-El.

Boston's JCC Appeals For Disaster Victims

BOSTON: The Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Boston has issued an appeal to greater Boston area residents to join the Jewish people of Guatemala in a project to rebuild the city of Sanarate which was devastated by earthquakes last February.

Albert Schlossberg, Council president, who issued the appeal, said the 200 Jewish families of Sanarate have already begun collecting funds in the "Bricks for Guatemala" program which they hope will be supported by all the Jewish people in the world. Guatemala traditionally a friend of Israel, suffered one of its worst natural disasters in the February earthquake. A poor country to start with, Guatemala experienced tremendous material and economic losses. Twenty-three thousand people lost their lives, hundreds of thousands were wounded and nearly one and a half million people, out of a population of five million, were left homeless. According to Enrique Engel, president of the "Bricks for Guatemala" program, the situation is desperate now, but will become much worse this month when the six-month tropical rainy season ends. Sanarate will be rebuilt in the name of all Jewish people.

FRESH APPROACHES TO THE STUDY OF ANCIENT JUDAISM

By JACOB NEUSNER

(In this series, in five parts, Professor Jacob Neusner describes some of the new approaches developed at Brown University in the study of ancient Judaism, particularly that form of Judaism represented by the Talmud and related compilations.)

The investigation of the religious and legal ideas of a tractate of Mishnah-Tosefta must begin with a fresh exegesis of the tractate. Let me explain why this is the case and what is to be done.

The established exegesis takes for granted an axiom that is simply false: all texts and laws are to be interpreted in the light of all other texts and laws. Talmudic discussions of Mishnah and its meanings invariably shape the received interpretation of Mishnah, for example. If Tosefta—its own commentary—supplies a conception of Mishnah's principle or rule, then Tosefta places the imprint of its interpretation upon the meaning of Mishnah.

Now no one would imagine that the original meaning of Tanakh is to be uncovered in the pages of Midrash or in the medieval commentaries to the Scriptures. On the contrary, everyone understands that Tanakh has been subjected to a long history of interpretation, and that that history, while interesting, is germane to the original meaning of Tanakh only when, on objective and critical grounds, we are able to affirm it by historical criteria. By contrast, discussion of Mishnaic pericopae in Talmud and medieval commentaries and codes generally exhausts the analysis of the meaning of Mishnaic pericopae.

What is meant is simply: What did these words mean to the people who made them up, in the late first and second century? What issues can have been in their minds?

True, much is to be learned

Trinity Square's Problem

The problem of financing, a common accompaniment of the arts, seems to be the primary problem in the dispute between the Foundation for Repertory Theater in Rhode Island and the Trinity Personnel Company. The Foundation is responsible for the theater building and for raising money for the Company; the Company, Adrian Hall and the actors, is responsible for presenting a season of plays.

There have been financial crises and disagreements with executive boards before, but this is the first time a public airing of the situation has made most Rhode Islanders aware of what we stand to lose. It is also the first time that I remember what amount to public protestations of bad faith by one or the other side.

The Foundation undertook to raise $125,000 for the Company this year, but because of lack of imagination and a low-keyed fund drive raised only around $50,000—at least that's the way one side sees it. The Company's budget had been planned with the $125,000 in mind, and therefore their going into the red is the Foundation's fault, they say.

The Foundation, through its executive committee, has asked for an end to the Company's lease unless they remedy the default on the building payments by mid-August. This has been interpreted as a slap at Hall and an imputation of fiscal irresponsibility. It may be that; it may also be the final effort of those wearied by unsuccessful efforts to raise quite a lot of money yearly for a company that is daring, innovative, sometimes brilliant, and sometimes expensive.

If the Company and the Foundation can reconcile their differences this time, it will be good for the playgoing public to realize that keeping Trinity here should mean more than just buying a subscription: everybody who cares ought to give what he can and try to raise money from other donors. $90,000 must be raised by July 20, or we may have seen the last of Trinity in its present form.

Dislikes Recipe

It is a sad commentary on Jewish dietary laws and Jewishness "in general" that you chose to print a "Cream of Pea Soup" recipe, one using both chicken broth and light cream, in the May 21 issue.

One would not readily expect "the only Anglo-Jewish weekly in R.I. and Southeast Mass." to blatantly approve the recipe for publication with the suggestion that readers try it.

I hope that those faithful to the separation of milk and meat will be aware of your lack of good judgment in allowing the Cream of Pea Soup recipe space in a Jewish newspaper.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

And Now
They Are Three

By BERYL SEGAL

In this year of the Bicentennial, when we are told daily of some Rhode Island first in the American Revolution, let us tell of some Rhode Islanders who are first in our own days.

We have elected three Rhode Island women to offices in the Jewish community, offices that were usually reserved for men.

In the 1880s and 90s of the last century it was customary for women's organizations to elect a "Gentleman President" or secretary in addition to one of their own. So it was with the Moses Montefiore Ladies' Hebrew Benevolent Association organized in 1880 as well as in the case of the Hebrew Union Aid Association incorporated in 1890. We must remember that women were new at conducting affairs of an organization. East European women certainly were at a loss where parliamentary law was concerned.

But this year we have added three women to most important positions in the Jewish community.

These positions were not gained by flag waving, by demanding Women's Rights, nor by battle cries that are so prevalent at the present time. They were duly elected to their posts by consent and recognition of their abilities by the entire membership of their respective Boards of Directors, made up of men and women.

How does a person become elected to a high position in an organization?

First the women must become equal members, and they must be visible. The membership notices them and keeps them in mind for future elevations. These elevations are gradual. A woman member is put on the Board of Directors. She is given responsible work on various committees. She is judged by her performance. Is she really interested in the work of the organization? Is she willing to give up evenings at home or at parties and going-out events? Is she capable in what she undertakes? Mere membership will not do. An organization expects its Executive Boards to handle the affairs and destinies of the society or association expertly. Does she grasp the relationship of the organization to its members or its duties to the community. Is she likely to make friends or to irritate many of the members?

SYRIAN WHITE WASH

PARIS (ZINS): Salim Tatah, introduced by French radio as "head of the Jewish community in Syria," said here in an interview that he received an audience with Syrian President Assad who told him that in the very near future the authorities will no longer require an individual's religion to be listed in a Syrian passport. Tatah further declared that the ban of emigration from Syria applies to all citizens of that country without regard to their religion. The "spokesman" added that the Syrian President had given him assurances that in the very near future there will be no discrimination between Jews and non-Jews in his country.

When a member is elected to the office of first vice president, he must have had good marks on all these enumerated points. There is one difference. Whereas in the early days only men ever had a chance to prove their mettle, today women stand on the same scale as men. They are judged by the same standards. They are elected to the offices as men were previously elected.

The phenomenon is still new. We are likely to add, by sheer force of habit, whenever a woman is elected, "The First Woman Ever . . ." Now there are three women, each one of them being a "First". In the years to come the novelty will rub off and we will report of a woman officer just the same as we report of a man officer.

Of the three women who hold high office in Jewish organizations Mrs. Rollie Hostein was the pioneer. She was elected President of Temple Hahonim-Barrington Community Center, a fourteen year old congregation which has grown from 30 members in 1963 to 90, with a school for children and young people of about 120.

Mrs. Hostein is the wife of Clifford and is the mother of two children, the older of whom is a student at the University of Pennsylvania. She has been active at the Temple from the day of its inception and is beloved by the congregation. The women would not let her serve at Temple parties because they wanted her to do more important work in the congregation. Mrs. Hostein said in an interview with a reporter.

Rosalea Cohn, the wife of Newton B. Cohn, is the mother of two daughters. The oldest is doing graduate work at Temple University and the youngest is entering Clark University. She was recently elected President of the 121 year-old congregation Sons of Israel and David, Temple Beth El. Rosalea is a graduate of the University of Rhode Island. She holds membership in a number of organizations, has been President of the Sisterhood from 1967 to 1970 and on the Board of the Temple since 1969. Her election was really a "First". She joins a succession of Presidents since 1854.

Geraldine, or as she is called by her friends, Gerry, is the wife of Warren Foster and is the mother of four children. The oldest is married and the other three are in college. She will serve as president of the state-wide Bureau of Jewish Education which now enters 25 years of service to the communities of Rhode Island.

Gerry is a graduate of Pembroke and holds a Masters Degree in Education from Brown University. She taught at Nathan Bishop Middle School and is now teaching at the Midrasa (High School) and the Institute of Adult Studies of Temple Emanu-El.

She is also a Board member of the National Foundation for Jewish Culture, where she recently represented the Jewish community of Rhode Island in New York City.

All three are capable women. All three did their assigned work diligently. All of them served well before they became presidents of their respective groups.

May they be a good example to others who will come after them.

PODIATRIC DEGREE: Lee B. Kaufman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Kaufman of 23 Sachem Drive, Cranston, has received the degree of Doctor of Podiatric Medicine from the Pennsylvania College of Podiatric Medicine, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Dr. Kaufman will spend the coming year in Norristown, Pennsylvania, as a resident at Valley Forge Medical Center.

He is a 1968 graduate of Cranston High School East, and a 1972 graduate of Franklin and Marshall College.

While in podiatry school he did research in basic science, and was president of the student union board.

The college, in Philadelphia's Independence Mall area, is a single-track medical school, one of five in the nation that grant the degree of Doctor of Podiatric Medicine. Requirements for admission to the four year course are equivalent to those of multiple-track medical schools.

'George Washington Slept Here' At Theatre-By-The-Sea, Matunuck

George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart's comedy, "George Washington Slept Here," will open the 43rd anniversary season at Theatre-by-the-Sea, Matunuck, on Friday evening, June 18, at 8:30 p.m., and play through Sunday, June 27. The Broadway comedy will feature Nikki Bruno and Frank Sullivan, and will be directed by Arthur Walsh.

The two late comics, Kaufman and Hart, are well-known for their numerous comedies, including "You Can't Take It With You" and "The Man Who Came To Dinner." With "George Washington Slept Here," they have again penned a very funny play about American life — one with which many of us can identify.

The story is about Newton Fuller, a sentimental American businessman who yearns to own a piece of land in the country. He begins on the road to fulfilling his dreams by buying a run-down, ramshackle old stone house where George Washington is supposed to have spent a night or two. With his unenthusiastic wife and daughter, he gives up the apartment in New York and moves all the family's belongings down to the country, determined to live the way they did in the "good old days." Then the fun begins, and the disasters too. From a waterless well, to hungry Japanese beetles, to an attempted elopement by daughter Madge with the leading man in a nearby summer theatre, the "countrified" Newtons are a delight to behold.

Featured in the role of the sardonic wife, Annabelle Fuller, is Nikki Bruno, well-known to Rhode Island and New England audiences for the many leading parts she has played at Theatre-by-the-Sea over the past ten years, including roles in "Finishing Touches," "40 Carats" and "Plaza Suite." Playing opposite Miss Bruno, as her husband, Newton Fuller, will be another Matunuck veteran, Frank Sullivan, who last was seen in "The Sunshine Boys."

F.L. Schmidlapp, a newcomer to Rhode Island, will play the role of Uncle Stanley, the rich uncle. Mr. Schmidlapp, who recently appeared on the Adams Chronicles TV series, is a theatre veteran of 25 years.

Alfred Conti, remembered for his role as the youngest boy in "Finishing Touches" last season, will again play a brat this time, Raymond, an irritating nephew in "George Washington Slept Here."

Arthur Walsh, who directs the production, has staged many shows at Matunuck over the past eight years, including "Boys in the Band," "Finishing Touches," "That Championship Season" and "The Sunshine Boys."

Scenery is designed by Don Campbell.

Opening Week
Special festivities are planned for Friday, June 18, and Sunday, June 20. On these nights prior to curtain-time in the theatre, the Charlestown Colonial Boys will present a concert on the theatre grounds. A fife and drum corps consisting of ten young men including flag and musket bearers will participate in this colorful and patriotic event. The complete corps of 5th and 6th graders of this area have marched in many major parades and plan to participate in the Bicentennial celebration at Valley Forge, Pa. this summer.

Performances of "George Washington Slept Here" will be given Tuesday through Friday evenings at 8:30 p.m., Saturdays at 6 p.m. and 9 p.m. and Sundays at 7 p.m. There will be one matinee on Wednesday, June 23, at 2 p.m. Tickets are available by writing Theatre-by-the-Sea, Matunuck, 02879 or by calling (401) 789-3051.

"Kiss Me Kate", the Cole Porter musical comedy, will be the second attraction, playing June 29 to July 11. Seats are now available.

UN's Assistance To Refugees Will Cost Some $140 Million

NEW YORK — In 1976 the UN's assistance to refugees — primarily in the Arab refugee camps — will cost some $140 million. Over the past 20 years many member states have contributed an aggregate of $67 million. This sum exceeds the total given by Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Libya. Egypt's participation was $5.5 million, Syria's was $2.2 million and that of oil-rich Abu Dhabi a mere $191,000. But all of them could be termed "generous" compared with the Soviet Union which, throughout the entire period, has failed to contribute even one cent in support of refugees. Needless to say, the United States was the leading contributor with $619 million.

Ghost refugees

At the same time it has become evident that UN officials have consistently misrepresented the extent of the refugee problem. According to UN data, there are supposed to be 334,000 Arab refugees in the Gaza Strip. But the Israelis, who now control that territory, can only find 222,000. Israeli sources have also argued that the UN provides food-stuffs to hundreds of thousands of Arabs under Jordanian control and in the Gaza Strip who already have adequate means of support and who do not need the food rations for their subsistence. They accept the hand-outs and sell them to dealers and speculators at bargain prices. These facts are well known to UN officials, according to Israeli sources, but everyone pretends that it isn't so.

RUBINSTEIN HONORED

WASHINGTON: The Presidential Medal of Freedom, America's highest civilian award, has been presented to piano virtuoso Artur Schnabel by President Gerald Ford at a White House ceremony.

The 89-year-old Polish-born musician, an American citizen since 1942, has been decorated by at least 14 countries including Great Britain, France, Germany, Israel and Belgium. The ambassadors of the countries that have honored Rubinstein were guests at the White House reception.

CRUDE TANKER IN SUEZ

JERUSALEM: An oil tanker has passed through the Suez Canal carrying 20,000 tons of Iranian crude oil to Haifa. This is the first tanker to do so since the Jewish state was established.

Under the terms of the interim Sinai agreement signed last September, Egypt agreed to permit "non-military cargoes" to or from Israel to pass through the canal. It was specifically understood that this was to include oil.

PARTICIPANTS DECORATED

JERUSALEM: Israel has decorated 63 participants in the 1973 Middle East war, including an Arab tribesman, two women soldiers and a jet pilot allegedly tortured to death in Syria. Most of the soldiers were cited for bravery in the Sinai Desert, and on the Golan Heights, where there were major tank battles. Twenty-two of the awards went to men killed in action.

One of the seven men who won the Medal of Courage, Israel's highest award was Sgt. Ibrahim el-Trushan, a Bedouin tracker captured by Egyptians on the Suez Canal and allegedly tortured. A Medal of Courage citation for Lieut. Col. Avraham Lanir said he had bailed out of a crippled jet over Syria and "was tortured to death" by his captors.

RENEW MANDATE
NEW YORK: United Nations sources say that Secretary General Kurt Waldheim recently flew to Damascus to persuade Syria to renew the mandate of the United Nations buffer force on the Golan Heights.

The mandate expires at the end of this month and despite meetings between Mr. Waldheim and the Syrian representative to the United Nations, Mowaffak Allaf, no agreement on its extension was reached.

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

Artificial bids, especially the Stayman Two Club bid, are usually very useful to the pair that uses them correctly in the right context. However, because of their very nature, being artificial, they can backfire. They give the opponents a very inexpensive opportunity to take advantage of the situation by allowing them to Double rather than have to bid the same suit themselves at a level too high to take that risk. That Double shows that suit and demands the lead of that suit if the partner is on lead. Certainly it is easier to make a few tricks on Defense to set a hand than to make eight or nine as Declarer when the opponents have the preponderance of high cards. Today's hand shows how an alert Defender reaped the benefit of the bidding even though that same bidding was absolutely correct. It was just one of those things that can happen.

North and South were vulnerable, South Dealer with this bidding:

 1NT P 2♦ Dbl
 2♥ P 3NT Dbl

The bidding actually should have gone that way at every table for just about every pair uses the Stayman Convention after their partner opens No Trump yet several Easts, apparently mesmerized, failed to take advantage of their opportunity and passed after North bid two Clubs. A couple of others did double the first time but then allowed the opponents to play the hand in game undoubted. They were chicken for their only problem was if West happened to be void of Clubs and hence unable to lead one, possible but unlikely. The other possibility, that the opponents would run to either Hearts or Spades was remote, too, plus the fact that now they had to make one more trick and they didn't seem to have a fit there either.

As for the Defense, there was no problem as long as West did lead the Club and now it was just a case of whether East would grab his Diamond Ace as soon as that suit was led or wait two rounds before he took it and ran enough Clubs to set the hand. Not one East had courage enough to do that although as the cards happen to be, if he waits until the third round of Diamonds to take his Ace, Declarer will have no entry left in Dummy to cash the other two high Diamonds and will then have to give up the Spade King for down two before he can make enough tricks.

No one can blame any East who couldn't wait to take his five tricks and be plus 200. That would have to be a fine score. With any other lead, three No Trumps can be made.

Do not let the fact that the opponents might take advantage of your artificial bid deter you from using that Convention as long as the use can help you either describe your hand better or allow you to receive vital information you could not get any other way.

Moral: Whenever the opponents use an artificial call, you can always double to call for a lead or show a suit that can be used to sacrifice with. When you don't you practically tell your partner not to lead that suit. Even Blackwood responses can be doubled for leads.

BRAILOVSKY CAN LEAVE received permission to leave for Israel but his wife has again been refused, the Student Struggle for activist Dr. Victor Brailovsky has Soviet Jewry reported.

NEW YORK: The American Jewish Committee has welcomed the judgment of the Chairman of the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, as expressed in a letter to its Legal Director, that sponsorship by an employer of membership of its executives in private clubs that discriminate against minorities violates the law specifically Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

The Commission's view was expressed in a letter to the American Jewish Committee in response to the Committee's request that the EEOC issue guidelines prohibiting employer support of private clubs with discriminatory practices.

Brown Degree Awarded To Israel J. Kapstein

Israel J. Kapstein, professor emeritus of English at Brown University, is one of ten individuals who received honorary degrees from Brown University at their June 7 commencement exercises. A doctor of letters, Mr. Kapstein is an author of both fiction and poetry.

Over the course of 53 years, Mr. Kapstein, Brown class of 1926, has established an extraordinarily distinguished and intimate association with Brown University. Following his student days — both undergraduate and graduate — he served as instructor, as professor, and since 1969, as professor emeritus of English.

Known for his instruction in Romantic literature and in the contemporary novel, Mr. Kapstein was regarded as one of the university's strongest teachers of creative writing as well. His encouragement and direction have been credited with aiming several students toward careers as novelists. Throughout his own career he maintained associations with S. J. Perelman, Quentin Reynolds, and Nathaniel West, three Brown undergraduates who have won distinction as authors.

Kapstein's own novel, Something of a Hero, was a best seller in 1941, joining such works as Hemingway's For Whom the Bell Tolls and Marquand's H. M. Pulham, Esq. on the sought-after list. The novel The Song the Summer Evening Sings (1937), a novelette, numerous short stories, and poems are among his other works of fiction. He is the author of a college textbook on composition, Expository Prose (1955), and several scholarly articles, chiefly on Shelley. This spring he was awarded a 1976 National Jewish Book Award for his English translation (with William G. Braude, rabbi emeritus of Temple Beth El in Providence) of the classical Hebrew and Aramaic work, Peshta de-Rab Kahana: R. Kahana's Compilation of Discourses for Sabbaths and Festal Days.

Mr. Kapstein graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Brown in 1926, received his master's degree three years later, and completed his Ph.D. in 1933. After a year as an editorial assistant at A. A. Knopf, Inc., he returned to Brown as an assistant instructor. Named assistant professor of English in 1935, and associate professor in 1943, he was elevated to the rank of full professor in 1951.

Tapped by the university as a Sharpe Fellow (1931-33), Kapstein was also awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship in 1944, an honor which gave him the opportunity to devote himself to writing fiction. In 1961 he was chosen as a visiting professor of American literature at the University of Saigon under the Smith-Mundt Act Fellowship program.

The Fall River, Massachusetts, native has served the Providence community on a number of civic and religious boards and committees. A member of Temple Emanuel, he has acted as trustee for the Jewish Bureau of Education. He has served as board member of the Providence Public Library and the Hattie Ide Chaffee Nursing Home, and as trustee of the Miriam Hospital. His professional affiliations include the Modern Language Association, the Sphinx Club, the College Entrance Examination Board, the American Historical Association, and the Author's League of America. He has served the university as a member of the lectureships committee, and as an editorial board member of the Brown Alumni Monthly.

OUTER SPACE MANNA?

LONDON: Two Cambridge University engineers have come to the conclusion that the manna eaten by the Israelites during their wandering through the Sinai was a single cell protein produced by a machine from outer space. Rodney Dale and George Sassoon, both well-respected in the field of engineering research, air their theory in the equally respected magazine New Scientist. They argue that in the Kabbala the miracle in the wilderness is attributed not to the Almighty but to "the ancient of days." From the Kabbalistic description of "the ancient of days," they deduce that it might have been how a primitive culture would have described a sophisticated machine. The article appeared on April Fools Day.

U. Of Maine To Sponsor Mid East - U. S. Conference

WASHINGTON: The University of Maine with the cooperation of the U. S. Departments of State and Commerce will sponsor a joint four-day Middle East American business conference at its Orono campus Aug. 2-6, the university has disclosed. Acceptances have been received by the university from nine countries but Israel is not among them, according to the university's promotional material made available today to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency here.

More than 200 persons are expected from Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Qatar, Egypt, Iran, Iraq, United Arab Emirates, Bahrain and Oman. The United States does not have diplomatic relations with Iraq but maintains an "interests" section in Baghdad and commerce is conducted between the two countries. The U. S. Arab Chamber of Commerce is co-sponsor of the conference.

A Saudi Arabian, Abdul Wohabe, a director of the UBAF Arab American Bank in New York, will brief American businessmen on the legal aspects of doing business in the Arab World. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was quoted as saying this will be "the first large-scale conference held in the United States where Arab and Iranian businessmen will have the opportunity for face-to-face discussions with pre-selected American businessmen regarding specific products for sale and manufacture."

A recent trade mission of Maine businessmen sponsored by the U. S. Departments visited Iran and Saudi Arabia. John R. Brown, Jr., conference director, said the Mideastern businessmen coming to the conference are "paying their own way over from the Middle East."

Israeli Mass Communications Are Cutting Through Red Tape

By Yitzhak Shargil

TEL AVIV, (JTA) — Israel's highly developed, aggressive and largely unfettered mass communications media — especially television — is playing an increasing role in political events in the administered territories and inside Israel itself. The camera eye, no longer a dispassionate recorder of events has become, in some cases, their perpetrator. The presence of TV camera crew assures not only local but world-wide prominence to any group with an axe to grind, be they Arab youths stoning Israeli soldiers on the West Bank, disgruntled port workers blockading the docks at Ashdod, or south Tel Aviv slum dwellers battling police to redress some obscure grievance. During recent disturbances on the West Bank, charges were made that TV crews paid Arabs to stage violent confrontations for the benefit of their cameras. These charges could not be proven and were strongly denied. But it is clear, nevertheless, that a handful of high school students were able to get world-wide TV coverage by burning rubber tires on the roads and tossing Molotov cocktails. The palls of black smoke, the flaming gasoline canisters, provide the kind of pictorial material on which TV thrives.

Success always breeds imitators. It is no coincidence that after the West Bank riots and the clashes in Galilee on March 30 certain groups of Israelis resorted to the methods of the Arab youngsters to attract attention to themselves. Only on May 24, slum-dwellers in the Hattikvah quarter of southeastern Tel Aviv attacked police with fire bombs and at least one hand grenade which caused injuries to five persons. They also burned tires. The TV cameras were on hand to record these acts of lawlessness for posterity — and the evening news. Wire photos appeared in newspapers all across the world showing helmeted, truncheonwielding Israeli cops battling civilians. The issue was relatively minor and purely local — the demolition of buildings erected illegally without municipal licenses. But the spectacle of violence was blown up out of proportion by the sensation-hungry media. Access to the media by staging photogenic violence has led to what can be described only as extortion by some interest groups. Several weeks ago, another group of Tel Aviv slum dwellers protested with burning tires and stone-throwing against plans to raze several blocks of illegally built flats to make way for the expansion of the Tel Aviv University campus. These residents had already received fair compensation for leaving the flats and were to be re-located. After the demonstrations they extracted additional payment for carrying out the evacuation.

The success of such coercive methods can be attributed in part to the extreme sensitivity of local and national officials to criticism since the Yom Kippur War. Many a bureaucrat has closed his eyes to misconduct in order to avoid unpleasant publicity. Thus, unwarranted payments have been granted to social welfare recipients who invade the welfare offices, slam their fists on the tables and threaten to go to the news media. Or a man, his wife and children will camp outside a governmental office, hang out a placard making some demand or another, and wait for the news photographers and radio interviewers. More often than not the demand will be met, whether justified or not. Law abiding citizens are increasingly upset by this trend. For those who go through the official channels it can take months or years to get what is rightfully their due. There is no such wait for the "tough guy," the loudmouth, the fist-pounder. And if he can get his neighbors to join in a demonstration for the media, red tape disappears like a mirage.

By the time the heat of Summer rolls around... you'll wish that you had added central air conditioning this Spring.

It's not too late to avoid a mistake.

Soviet Emigrees To U. S.
Hurt Chances Of Others

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (JTA) — Emanuel Shimoni, the Israel Consul General in Philadelphia, declared May 24 that Soviet Jews who emigrate to the United States are jeopardizing the chances of thousands of other Jews in the USSR of going to Israel. Shimoni told an international forum at the annual meeting of the B'nai B'rith Middle Atlantic Region at the Concord Hotel that failure of Soviet Jews to go to Israel provides the Soviets with an excuse to close the gates to Jewish emigration still further. He urged Americans not to offer Soviet Jewish emigrants more aid and assistance than they would receive in Israel. William Korey, national director of B'nai B'rith's International Council, told the 700 delegates and guests, that a new "pulverization" of Soviet Jews — systematically excluding high school graduates from the universities — will provide greater impetus for emigration. Korey described the new assault on Soviet Jews as one more step in Kremlin policy of wiping Jews from the Soviet consciousness. Herman Edelsberg, advisor to the International Council, warned on the danger to Israel from the United States role as mediator in the Middle East. "A mediator is concerned primarily with ending an impasse and traditionally accomplishes this by pushing the weak into the arms of the strong, no matter who is right," he said. He added that sentiment to push Israel into the arms of the Arabs is growing in the U.S. "But what is the use of America's being number one in the world if it doesn't serve justice and morality?" he said.

These traditional Jewish delights are among the tested recipes being offered free to all customers in A&P stores.

The latest publication in A&P's "Operation Aware" series is "Traditional Jewish Recipes," a leaflet which gives recipes and directions for preparing ten favorite kosher recipes, ranging from borscht to rugelach.

"Operation Aware" is a service of A&P's National Department of Consumer Affairs. The "Operation Aware" center in each store offers leaflets which help customers to become well-informed shoppers. More than 450 products which carry the A&P or Ann Page label are certified kosher products which carry the U symbol.

"Traditional Jewish Recipes" is the first in "Operation Aware's" new series of international cooking brochures.

Here is a recipe of rugelach from "Traditional Jewish Recipes":

RUGELACH

- 1 pound sweet butter
- ½ pound cream cheese
- 3 tablespoons sour cream
- ¼ cup sugar
- ¾ cups flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 pound jar Ann Page Pure Orange marmalade
- ½ cup chopped walnuts

Cream butter and cream cheese together. Add flour. Add sour cream, sugar, and salt. Knead into a dough and refrigerate for several hours until firm. Roll into 9-inch circles, using about one sixth of the dough for each circle. Combine marmalade and chopped walnuts; spread on circles. Cut each circle into 8 wedge-shaped sections. Roll each wedge, starting from the large end and ending with the point. Curve to form a crescent, placing open end down on a buttered baking sheet. Bake at 375 degrees F. for 15 minutes, or until browned. Makes 4 dozen.

BUILDING COSTS UP

TEL AVIV: 1976 will see a substantial rise in the price of dwellings, according to Shikun Ovdim, the head of one of Israel's largest housing companies. He concedes that the large housing companies are still holding many unsold apartments, nevertheless, this will not prevent an increase in prices, because the large building companies have "enough strength to hold out."

original meaning of the pericope. In this regard, therefore, form-analysis allows us to distinguish the layers of meaning contained in the pericope, and redaction-criticism reveals the interface and interplay of these several layers. The processes are reciprocal and stand in a dialectical relationship. The result of these processes and methods is literary history, itself a primary component in the intellectual history. The history of the religious and legal concepts and metaphysics contained in the Mishnaic law therefore begins in the literary work, because the literary analysis comes prior to exegesis, and exegesis is the beginning of the reconstruction of the history of those ideas.

The next, and crucial question is: If it is assumed that Mishnah-Tosefta testifies to the time in which the document was finally redacted, ca. A.D. 200, then how shall we know what layers of thought come before the time of the redaction of the document itself? How shall we know, furthermore, whether a person to whom a saying is attributed really said it? To deal with the latter question, I do not believe we have any way of verifying whether a person to whom a saying is attributed actually said it.

Our history of Talmudic Judaism will unfold by periods, may even produce significant differentiation among named authorities within the several periods, but it will, so far as I can see, not supply a definitive answer to the question of whether 'Aqiva really said what he is claimed to have said. While that question—whether we have ipissima verba of a particular historical figure—is deemed terribly pressing in the study of the founder of Christianity, the importance of the question is for theological, not historical reasons. We do not know everything we might like to know; that does not mean what we do know is not worth knowing.

Yet the other matter—how we can find out whether anything in Mishnah-Tosefta antedates the redaction of Mishnah-Tosefta—requires more considerable attention. Here we must begin with a working hypothesis and test that hypothesis against the results attained in its application.

The simplest possible hypothesis is that the attributions of sayings to named authorities may be relied upon in assigning those sayings to the period, broadly defined, in which said authorities flourished. While we do not and cannot know whether 'Aqiva actually said what is attributed to him, we are able to establish criteria by which we find out whether what is assigned to 'Aqiva belongs in the period in which he lived, e.g. to his school or associates (or even to the man himself).

We have laws which interrelate in theme and conception, and which also bear attributions to successive authorities, e.g. to a Yavnean, to an Ushan, and to an authority of the time of Rabbi.

If we are able to demonstrate that what is assigned to a Yavnean is conceptually earlier than, and not dependent upon, what is assigned to an Ushan, then, on the face of it, the former indeed is an earlier tradition, the latter a later one.

The unfolding of the rabbis' ideas on legal and other questions may be shown to take place through sequences of logic, with what is assigned to later masters depending upon and generated by what is assigned to the earlier ones. When we find a correlation between such logical (not merely thematic) sequences and temporal

STERN FACULTY TO STAY
NEW YORK: An agreement by Yeshiva University to withdraw letters of nonreappointment to six members of the faculty of Stern College for Women has brought an end to the week-long strike by the school's 600 students. A university spokesman said that the cancellation of the letters was made in return for a commitment by the Stern College faculty to contribute to the university portions of anticipated salary increases for the 1976-77 school year, if no other means could be found to provide the funds to keep the six members on the Stern College faculty.

NO COMMENT
WASHINGTON: The State Department had no comment on the decision by the Israeli Cabinet to authorize the United States to begin talks with Egypt, Syria and Jordan about the possibility of a nonbelligerency agreement with Israel. Department spokesman John Trattner said the U.S. has not received the "full text" of the Israeli decision and "we look forward to seeing more of the Israel Cabinet position."

Herzog Denounces Story As Phoney

NEW YORK, (JTA) — Israel's Ambassador to the United Nations, Chaim Herzog, said May 27 that "the headlines and reports" that appeared in the Washington Post and the New York Post about his remarks in the Security Council May 26 were "misleading, inaccurate and tendentious." The headlines and news accounts referred to a "clash" between Israel and the United States over a majority statement presented to the Security Council which deplored Israel's occupation practices in the occupied Arab territories.

In a statement to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, Herzog said: "The headlines and reports about my remarks in the Security Council on 26 May, 1976 in the Washington Post and New York Post are misleading, inaccurate and tendentious. At no point in my remarks did I even once mention the United States let alone 'clash' with the United States. In my remarks I addressed myself to the text of the statement of the majority presented to the Security Council by the President of the Security Council. Had my remarks been reported accurately it would have been perfectly evident that I dealt with each item in the statement of the majority which I rejected, namely:

"The situation in the territories administered by Israel; the one-sided proposal in respect of the application of the Fourth Geneva Convention; and the assertion in the statement that the establishment of security settlement by Israel in the West Bank is an obstacle to peace. We welcome the U.S. dissent from the statement and note the eloquent silence of the Western countries during the debate which I described as a futile and barren waste of time designed as it was to divert attention from the major issue of the Lebanon. I reiterated the government of Israel's position that none of the issues raised, including the establishment of settlements, constitutes and obstacle to peace. . . The obstacle to peace lies in the refusal of the Arab states to negotiate peace with Israel."

ones, that is, if what is assigned to a later master does depend in theme, conception, principle, and inner logic upon what is attributed to an earlier master, then we have history: we know what comes earlier, what comes later.

We are able therefore to describe ideas probably characteristic of authorities between the disaster of 70 and the Bar Kokhba debacle, and from that time to the period of Rabbi, and in the time of Rabbi. Doubtless work on Amoraic materials will yield the same series of disciplined sequences of correlated attributions and logical developments, allowing us to test the general reliability of the attributions by periods and making possible a description of ideals held in a given period by various authorities.

On that basis, indeed, we can describe the ideas really characteristic of one period in the historical unfolding of Talmudic Judaism and relate them to ideas characteristic of earlier and later periods. (To be concluded next week)

CLAIMS REFUTED

LONDON, (JTA) — A British scholar refuted a frequent Arab claim that Jews were always well treated in Islamic lands. Dr. Tudor Parfitt, a lecturer at London University, stated that, on the contrary, Jews in Moslem countries were forced to wear the yellow Star of David as a badge of shame long before it was introduced in Western Christian countries.

IMPORT-EXPORT STATS.
JERUSALEM: In 1975 Israel had a deficit in its balance of trade of 2 billion, 218 million dollars, — 9% less than the previous year, when the trade deficit was 2 billion, 400 million dollars. Last year imports declined by 3% while, at the same time, exports increased by 6%. In relative terms the savings of $178 million is not a significant figure, but it is a favorable indicator of new trends. Total imports by Israel in 1975 amounted to $4 billion, 53 million. In 1974, imports aggregated $4 billion, 177 million. Last year Israel's exports amounted to $1 billion, 835 million as compared with $1 billion, 373 million in 1974. In December, 1975, Israel's trade deficit amounted to $140 million.
