IN SWEARING IN CEREMONIES held last week in Providence City Hall Mayor Vincent A. Cianci, far right, appointed Louis Kornstein as Assistant City Solicitor and Legal Council for the Providence Fire Department. Kornstein, who is a resident of Providence, is a graduate of Providence College and the John Marshall Law School, Chicago, Ill.

United Jerusalem Day Designated Sept. 14

NEW YORK (JTA) — Heads of six major Jewish congregations and rabbinic bodies have called for a massive religious demonstration throughout the U.S. and Canada to dramatize the critical importance of keeping Jerusalem united. In a letter to over 3000 American and Canadian rabbis, the leaders proclaimed Sept. 14 "United Jerusalem Day" and urged that the religious community stress "Jerusalem—United Forever" during the High Holy Day season.

Citing the fact that this is the "Bar Mitzvah" of the reunification of Jerusalem is of utmost concern to us all. Rallies, symbolic Western Wall ceremonies, special religious school assemblies and High Holy Day sermons will stress the centrality of Jerusalem in Jewish life.

"One of the many, and most effective, ways we can help alleviate the pressure on Jerusalem and assure the development and growth of Israel is through a High Holy Day appeal in behalf of Israel Bonds," the organization presidents said. They urged synagogues to utilize the High Holy Day period to marshal moral and material support so that Jerusalem may remain united and the nation can meet the many economic challenges confronting it as a result of the treaty with Egypt.

Joining in the call for continued support of a united Jerusalem were: three presidents of rabbinic associations: Rabbi Sol Roth, Rabbinical Council of America (Orthodox); Rabbi Seymour Cohen, Rabbinical Council of America (Orthodox); Rabbi Seymour Cohen, Rabbinical Assembly (Conservative) and Rabbi Jerome Malino, Central Conference of American Rabbis; as well as Rabbi Alexander Schindler, president, Union of American Hebrew Congregations (Reform); Simon Schwartz, president, United Synagogue of America (Conservative) and Julius Berman, president, Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America—representing the three congregational arms of American Jewry.

Picker Named Principal New Hebrew School Established In South County

Temple Beth Am of Warwick, Temple Beth Torah of Cranston, and the Bureau of Jewish Education of Rhode Island have combined efforts and resources to form a midweek Hebrew School which will be known as the Temple Beth Am-Temple Beth Torah Extension School.

This school has been formed to meet the needs of the growing Jewish population in East Greenwich, Warwick, West Warwick and Coventry. Although the school is open to all families in the area, membership in one of the participating synagogues is a prerequisite for enrollment.

Classes will meet on Monday and Wednesday afternoons from 3:30 to 5:30 at the Cedar Hill Elementary School in Warwick. The Extension School will include classes Aleph through Hay.

Each pupil enrolled in the Extension School will be required to attend Sunday classes at his/her respective synagogue in compliance with the minimum standards of education set forth by the United Synagogues of America for all students attending school affiliated with the conservative movement.

Lonna Picker is serving as principal of the Extension School. Her training is highlighted by 25 years of experience in the field of Jewish education. In addition to her Bachelor's degree from Towson State University and advanced studies at the Baltimore Hebrew College, Ms. Picker has served in varied administrative capacities in the northeastern portion of the U.S.

Major Holland Named Chairman

MAJ. GEN. LEONARD HOLLAND

MAJOR GENERAL LEONARD HOLLAND, the Adjutant General and Commanding General of the Rhode Island National Guard, has been named this year's General Fund Raising Campaign Chairman for the state affiliate of the American Heart Association.

As Chairman, he will spearhead the fight against heart disease in Rhode Island through fund raising efforts conducted statewide. General Holland succeeds Attorney General Dennis J. Roberts in the position.

Israel Bank Notes Rise In Net Income

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Israel Discount Bank Limited, the principal banking subsidiary of IDB Bankholding Corporation Limited, has reported consolidated assets rose to $8.2 billion as at June 30, 1980, a 20 per cent increase from $6.8 billion at June 30, 1979.

Total deposits rose by 23 per cent reaching almost $7 billion, up from approximately $5.7 billion, while deposits of the public increased 22 per cent to about $4.9 billion, up from $4 billion as at June 30, 1979.

Net income on a consolidated basis, for the half year ended June 30, 1980 amounted to $21.1 million as against $13.8 million for the same period last year, up 53 per cent.

DURING a recent visit to the United States, Ophira Navon, wife of the President of Israel, met with UNICEF and U.S. Committee leaders to discuss UNICEF's activities around the world and common interests of the U.S. and Israeli national UNICEF Committees.

This year's Rosh Hashanah Card from UNICEF reproduces a page from a 14th Century Spanish Bible, with English and Hebrew New Year greetings inside.

Sam Levenson Dies Was Teacher, Humorist

NEW YORK — Writer Sam Levenson, who said his humor came from VU's — Very Unimportant People — died Wednesday, August 27, 1980 at the age of 68, after a career that made his portly, bow-tied figure familiar to millions of television viewers.

Levenson, a lifelong resident of Brooklyn, died of cardiac arrest at Long Island College Hospital just hours after he was admitted. Born Dec. 11, 1911, in New York City, the youngest of eight children to Rebecca and Hyman Levenson, he delighted early audiences with memories of his poor but happy Jewish home.

Before entering show business, Levenson was a teacher at Brooklyn's Samuel J. Tilden High School.

Levenson broke into show business in 1940 when a group of teachers formed an orchestra to perform at a Catskill Mountains hotel and took him along as master of ceremonies.

Twelve years later, he gave up teaching to become what he called a full time "folk humorist" and moved on to the television and night club circuit.

Levenson, whose trademarks were a trim crewcut and an ever-present grin, was known to television viewers throughout the 1950's and 1960's for his appearances on such shows as This is Show Business, The Ed Sullivan show and game shows To Tell the Truth and Match Game. He also moderated the popular show Two for the Money.

He began writing books because he said he was "tired of running all over the United States" and missed the family he talked so much about.

Levenson's writings included, "Everything but Money, Sex and the Single

Child. In One Era and Out the Other. You Can Say That Again. Sam, A Time For Innocence and his final work, You Don't Have To Be In Who's Who To Know What's What.

On the family, Levenson wrote: "Give a child an inch and he'll think he's a ruler." Some other Levenson thoughts were, "It's easy to be wise, just think of something stupid and then say the opposite" and "When your memory goes, forget it." Levenson is survived by his wife of 43 years, Esther, and two children, Conrad and Emily.

Funeral services were held at the West End Temple in Belle Harbor and burial was at the Beth David Cemetery in Elmont.

Memorial Service Held For Fallen Youth

BRUSSELS (ITA) — Hundreds of people attended a memorial service held for David Kohane, 15, who was killed by a terrorist bomb last month in Antwerp. The ceremony was held to mark the 30th day of his death, and the boy's father recited kaddish in the presence of senior government officials, representatives of the Israel Embassy and members of the Belgian Jewish community.

Two of the children wounded during the attack in front of an Agudat Israel Community Center, are still in the hospital, but are no longer on the danger list. Itzhak Abrahamowitz, 14, has already undergone two operations and doctors plan a third in the hope of saving his sight.

Joshua Erlich, 13, who suffered severe head injuries, will be hospitalized for several more months. Doctors who examined him after the bomb explosion, said that close to 40 pieces of shrapnel appeared to have entered his brain.

Congressmen Seek Meeting With Muskie Over U.S.-Israel Policy

WASHINGTON (JTA) — Angered by the Carter Administration abstention on the United Nations Security Council resolution censuring Israel for its Jerusalem law, 30 Congressmen have asked Secretary of State Edmund Muskie to meet with them and discuss U.S. policy toward Israel.

Rep. Sidney Yates (D.Ill.), dean of the Jewish members of the House, has asked for the meeting on behalf of his colleagues to include Rep. Dante Passell (D.Fla.), Jonathan Bingham (D.N.Y.) and James Blanchard (D.Mich.). This development followed additional statements from top-level Republicans and Sen. Carl Levin (D.Mich.) denouncing the U.S. abstention.

Former Tennessee Senator Bill Brock, chairman of the Republican national committee, described the Security Council censure as "another step" in the "vicious campaign which by its nature, is as much anti-

American as anti-Israel."

Brock said that the "Palestine Liberation Organization, in concert with the Soviet Union and radical governments, have for months made clear and public their intent to expel Israel from the United Nations and to destroy the Egyptian-Israel peace treaty."

Brock said the Carter Administration's "failure to veto the resolution represented an abandonment of our commitment to the peace process, a contribution to the isolation of a democratic ally and friend—Israel, and a violation of the trust of the American people by a government elected to represent the best interests of our nation." He added: "The Administration's abstentions are repugnant; you cannot speak against a resolution and then refuse to vote against it. The action betrays the words."

Earlier, in another condemnation of the U.S. abstention, Sen. Jacob Javits (R.N.Y.), said "I appreciate the problems with other countries, but we have vetoed before. The abstention leaves the resolution as a valid Security Council resolution and that's the difference between day and night."

Levin told the Senate that the Administration's abstention was "a terrible mistake" and added: "The point that must be made, and made clearly, is that it does not serve our national interests to participate in and sanction a process which seeks to focus exclusive attention on the behavior of only one of the parties involved in this complex and sensitive situation. And it does not serve the interests of peace to participate in or sanction such a process."

Prior to the vote 18 members of the House telegraphed Muskie, urging him to veto the resolution. This message, signed by both Democrats and Republicans, was drafted by Rep. Benjamin Gilman (R.N.Y.).

Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, deputy majority leader in the House, who was one of the signers, sent a message to Muskie, following his address to the Security Council. In it, Rosenthal's office told Jewish Telegraphic Agency, Rosenthal wrote Muskie that he had listened to his remarks before the Council.

"I thought your statement," Rosenthal wrote to Muskie, "was as effective a presentation of American goals and strategy in mediating the Arab-Israeli conflict as any I have heard in the past 20 years. I would have preferred that the United States vote against the resolution but within the context of the constraints operating upon our foreign policy, I understand the decision to abstain."

Israeli Ambassador Ephraim Evron delivered a note from the Israeli government to Muskie, protesting the U.S. abstention. Muskie reiterated to Evron the U.S. position that Jerusalem's status should be negotiated in the final stage of a comprehensive settlement. The Israeli note reportedly was strongly worded and expressed "the various serious views in Israel" about the effects of the resolution.

The State Department holds the Security Council resolution as "not binding" in view of the abstention. But others note that some governments with embassies in Jerusalem are removing them because they do consider the resolution binding. The Netherlands government, in announcing it was moving its embassy to Tel Aviv, spoke of massive Arab pressure upon it and declared that ultimatums are unacceptable, but that, nevertheless, it has resolved to make the move in line with its policy of implementing UN Security Council resolutions.

Funeral Services Held For Fallen Israeli Soldiers

TEL AVIV, (JTA)—The three Israeli soldiers who were killed late last week during the Israeli attack on terrorist bases in south Lebanon have been buried with full military honors. Funeral services took place at the Netanya cemetery for Capt. Meir Knishbakh, 23, at the Kibbutz Kfar Menachem cemetery for Sgt. Guy Shalev, and at the Tel Aviv military cemetery for Capt. Yossi Oved, 22.

Members of Oved's family and friends recalled that the young soldier, who had lived in Tel Aviv's Hatikvah quarter, always expressed pride in the fact that he had made it from that slum district to the army where he became an officer in the famed Golan Brigade.

The 12 soldiers injured in the raid are reported to be doing well and were in contact with their families. One of those injured had been in a rest home recuperating from injuries he received during the terrorist attack on Kibbutz Misgav Am earlier this year. When he heard about the Israeli raid the left the camp and joined his unit and took part in the attack. He was wounded in the fighting, but not seriously.

Meanwhile, Israeli army planes again pounded terrorist bases in south Lebanon after Palestinian terrorists fired a number of rockets into the northern Galilee in retaliation for the Israeli raids, an army spokesman announced. There were no reports of any casualties or damage.

Israeli Deputy Defense Minister Mordechai Zipori declared that Israel will continue its activity against the terrorists with all its power, no matter how far Israeli soldiers will have to penetrate into south Lebanon. "We, and only we, shall decide the place and the time for any action we may take," he said. "The action this week achieved its objective" to disrupt and undermine terrorist activities.

Chief of Staff Gen. Rafael Eitan said "I know of no other army in the world that would have been able to carry out such a mission with so few casualties."

Navon To Visit Egypt

JERUSALEM, (JTA) — President Yitzhak Navon has sent a message to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat accepting his invitation to visit Egypt. Navon did not ask to appear before the Egyptian Parliament in Cairo as a return gesture to Sadat's appearance before the Knesset three years ago. The visit will probably take place next month.

Navon has received Egypt's Ambassador to Israel, Saad Mortada, and gave him a copy of the message, whose original was sent through the Israeli Embassy in Cairo. Coming out of the President's residence, Mortada said the visit was likely to contribute to the improvement of relations between the two countries. Mortada also said he hoped a summit between Sadat and Premier Menachem Begin would take place soon, adding in Hebrew: "Im itzce hashem"

An Outlook For U.S. Aid To Israel

WASHINGTON, (JTA)—Burdened by a continuing defense program that eats up two-fifths of its budget and the enormously increased costs of energy, the government of Israel has formally presented to the United States a request for economic and military aid totaling $2.9 billion for the U.S. fiscal year of 1982 beginning Oct. 1, 1981.

This request for $700 million more than the appropriation being legislated for the year beginning next Oct. 1. The long lead time for presentation of requests is required to enable the U.S. legislative processes to consider all aid requests minutely.

The Israeli request was presented by Israeli Ambassador Ephraim Evron to Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, at the State Department. Evron was accompanied by Dan Halperin, the Israeli Embassy's Minister for Economic Affairs. The State Department, which guides the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID), initiates U.S. assistance abroad.

It is considered improbable that the Israeli request for the fiscal year 1982 will be fully considered by the U.S. government until after the Presidential inauguration and the convening of the new Congress next January. The program for the fiscal year beginning next October is itself far from complete in both houses of Congress.

REQUEST TERMED REALISTIC

The $2.9 billion request, Israeli sources noted, is "realistic" in that it represents the difference between the expected outflow for Israel's expenditures in the fiscal year 1982 and its income. Israel's expenditures in the fiscal year 1982 and its income, Israeli citizens are the highest taxed in the world and the defense budget of the Middle East's lone democracy is also the highest. Although Israel and Egypt have a peace treaty, Israel still faces potential warfare on three fronts.

Aid to Israel was $1.3 billion in the fiscal year 1980, the current year. The Congress now is considering slightly less than $2.2 billion for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. This includes $1.4 billion in military aid and $785 million in economic supporting assistance, the highest total for any country.

For Egypt, economic aid is set at $750 million and military aid at $550 million. Economic assistance for Egypt, however, is enhanced to about $1 billion when the Food for Peace Program, administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, is included.

While this legislation is incomplete, these totals, having both the usual bipartisan support in Congress and backed by the Carter Administration, are expected to prevail. The authorization measure, which sets the foreign aid policy, is in a Senate-House conference. The appropriation bill, which funds the suggested totals in the authorization legislation, has been approved by the House Appropriations Committee but its Senate counterpart has not yet taken it up. Matters other than funds for Egypt and Israel are slowing the legislative process.

Israeli sources note that 40 per cent of Israel's budget is for defense. It cost $1.5 billion in 1978, the year before the Alma-Ata fields were yielded to Egypt as $700 million. For fiscal year 1981, the cost is put at more than $2.5 billion and even higher for 1982 in view of the expected increases in petroleum prices.

In 1979, the Alma Ati fields supplied Israel with 22 per cent of its petroleum needs. Had Israel kept the fields, it would have developed them would have made Israel self-sufficient in petroleum by 1983.

In preparing their budget, Israelis face a three-fold burden. Primary is defense. The cost to Israel of evacuating Sinai and establishing a new military infrastructure in south Israel as a result of the treaty with Egypt about $5 billion over a three-year period. The U.S. has contributed a grant of $800 million for these purposes and a loan of $2.4 billion at a relatively high interest rate, leaving a gap of about $2 billion for Israel to meet.

A second burden is the loss of the Sinai oil fields and the increasing outlays for imported oil at world market prices. The third burden is the absence of oil imports from Iran which was a principal supplier before the Shah's departure from Teheran.

OPEC Prices Making Herzl Dream A Reality

TEL AVIV (JTA)—Gallop oil prices, spurred by the Arab countries and others in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), have made feasible the plan for a canal from the Mediterranean to the Red Sea envisioned by Theodor Herzl in his classic "Kamland."

The $700 million plan approved by the Cabinet is not as grandiose as that proposed by Herzl. It calls for a hydroelectric plant to be powered by the waterfall that would be created by the difference in the level of the Mediterranean coast and the Dead Sea area. But Herzl also saw the canal as a ship route to the Red Sea.

In fact, Laurence Oliphant, the British non-Jew who promoted Jewish immigration after a visit to Palestine in 1879 and who himself later settled in Haifa, proposed such a canal as an alternate to the Suez Canal.

Herzl's proposal was an adoption of a plan proposed earlier by Max Brodner, a Swiss engineer who later converted to Judaism. Although international politics rather than science prevented development of the plan, the canal has continued to be proposed over the years. In the 1950s, Prof. Walter Lauder, the American land conservation expert, suggested building the canal.

EVOLUTION OF THE PLAN

Israeli scientists also proposed the canal. But all proposals were rejected because the cost was prohibitive. The price of oil was so cheap that the savings from a hydroelectric plant would not justify the cost of the canal. But now the situation has changed.

In 1977, Prof. Yuval Ne'eman, a noted physicist who formerly was president of Tel Aviv University, was named head of a committee to consider several routes proposed for a canal. The proposals had been made at a seminar on a canal at Ben-Gurion University of the Negev at Beer-Sheva earlier that year.

One plan proposed by Shimon Giv, an engineer, and adopted by the late Yigal Alon, called for a route from Haifa to Beisan and then to the Dead Sea with an open canal along the Yizrael Valley. This plan would have helped implement the Alon Plan for Jewish settlements in the Jordan Valley and was considered to be the least expensive route. But it was rejected because it would take too much land away from the fertile Yizrael Valley and would endanger Israel's limited water supply with salt water from the Mediterranean.

Third, southern routes were proposed. One from just south of Tel Aviv through Beit Shehem to the northern Dead Sea area was also rejected for fear of polluting drinking water. A second plan, running from Zikhron Yaakov to Arad and the Dead Sea near Masada, was also rejected.

The plan which was approved runs from Khan Yunis in the Gaza Strip to Arad and Masada and then to the Dead Sea. It is 62 miles long, about six miles longer than the other route to Masada.

REASONS FOR THE ROUTE CHOSEN

Ne'eman, who is also head of the ultra-nationalist Tzichya faction, told the Cabinet that the route chosen was selected because it would have many byproducts in addition to the hydroelectric plan. He said the canal will provide special cooling lakes for the proposed nuclear power plant to be built in the Negev, there will be areas for selling and fishing and special lakes would provide solar energy for the various factories along the canal, especially the Dead Sea's Potash Works. The power plant to be built would provide 10 percent of Israel's electricity by the 1990s.

Israel is expected to sound out Jordan before going ahead with the work but it will not ask for Jordan's approval, it was stressed. Giv, the engineer whose northern route was rejected, has charged that the proposed canal route would raise the level of the Dead Sea so much that it would flood a plant on the Jordanian side of the sea. Ne'eman described this view as "nonsense" and said that canal would not cause the sea to go up that high. He said the Jordanians would benefit from the increased water level of the Dead Sea.

The canal would take three years to design and twice that long to build. However, Haaretz has reported that Alvin Rosenberg, a Toronto lawyer, has organized a consortium of Jewish and non-Jewish investors from Canada, the United States, Britain and Israel, who are ready to invest in the project if they are given the concession to operate the hydroelectric plant. Rosenberg told the newspaper that the group was not only motivated by support for Israel but was convinced that the project is economically feasible.

A Special Report: Recent Arab Offensive Only A Prelude

UNITED NATIONS, (JTA)—In the last few months the UN virtually forgot about the existence of other trouble spots in the world apart from the Middle East. The Security Council was called into session at least eight times by the Arabs and their supporters to condemn, rebuke and warn Israel and a special emergency meeting of the General Assembly was convened during that time to censure Israel and affirm Palestinian rights.

In a special with the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, Yehuda Blum, Israel's Ambassador to the United Nations since September, asserted that the Arab offensive against the Jewish State in recent months was only a prelude, "a preparation," to the anti-Israeli offensive in the upcoming 35th session of the General Assembly, which is scheduled to open here Sept. 16.

In a one-hour interview in his office, the 49-year-old former international law professor at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, discussed a number of topics, including Israel's status at the UN, the roles of the United States and the Soviet Union in the world body, and Israel's relations with Egypt. Excerpts from the interview follow:

Q. What is Israel to expect in the upcoming General Assembly?

A. It is hard to recall a year that was as crowded as this year as far as attacks on Israel at the UN are concerned. Out of 60 meetings which the Security Council held from the beginning of this year, 34 meetings, or more than 50 per cent, were devoted to Israel. At the same time, since January, not even a single meeting was devoted to the issue of Afghanistan, Iran or Cambodia. It is clear that the UN is used more and more as an anti-Israel arena, which is being exploited by the Arabs and their supporters. Without doubt, therefore, all that happened at the UN regarding Israel in recent months was a sort of preparation for the General Assembly. The Arabs are preparing to concentrate their anti-Israel offensive for the second part of the Assembly, after the U.S. Presidential election in November.

They have also chosen November 15 as a date to climax their drive against Israel as can be seen by the recent General Assembly resolution which called on Israel to withdraw from "occupied Arab territories" beginning by November 15 and by the recent Security Council resolution demanding that Israel rescind its Jerusalem law by the same date. The Arabs chose November 15 because of its proximity to November 29, which is "Palestine Day" at the UN.

Q. It seems that the Arabs are seeking more and more resolutions that will have a tangible effect on Israel. What sort of resolutions, specifically, are they likely to push for in the upcoming session?

A. The resolution passed by the Security Council (calling on nations with embassies in Jerusalem to remove them from that city and which declared the Jerusalem law "null and void") is one such example. While that resolution does not specifically call for sanctions against Israel, the resolution's call for

NEW YORK, N.Y. — An American Jewish leader has listed seven key foreign and domestic issues that will have a bearing on how Jews vote in this November's elections.

Nathan Perlmutter, national director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, said in an article prepared for the agency's national publication, the ADL Bulletin, that "while ADL does not take political positions, as individuals we would be indisputably to pretend disinterest in the candidates' positions on issues of Jewish concerns."

Perlmutter pointed out that Jews base their votes on a broad range of issues. He went on to say, however, "we do share specific Jewish agendas and are watchful for political responses to our Jewish concerns." These include, he said, the candidates' positions on Israel and Soviet Jewry, and whether or not they oppose quotas in employment and admissions to colleges and universities.

Perlmutter gave the following examples: On the Middle East:

To what extent does each candidate recognize the importance, as a key strategic ally of the United States, of a militarily strong, secure Israel?

What are the candidates' views on military sales to hostile Arab countries which would tip the balance of power in the Middle East, endangering American interests, endangering Israel?

What are the candidates' views toward the P.L.O.?

What are their views of the U.N.'s mounting efforts to legitimize the P.L.O.?

What are the candidates' views on an undivided Jerusalem under Israeli sovereignty?

On the question of Soviet Jewry:

What support would each candidate bring for continuing influence on the Soviet Union to grant visas to refugees and prisoners of conscience seeking freedom from the Soviet cage?

On the domestic front:

To what extent will each candidate support equal opportunity in employment and education for all Americans, regardless of race, color, sex, or creed? In short, does the candidate support or oppose quotas?

Perlmutter said that answers to the questions "will be thoughtfully weighed" by Jews.

U.S. Plans Egyptian Military Base

WASHINGTON (JTA) — Pentagon officials have confirmed that the Carter administration plans to construct a first-class military airfield at Ras Banas on the Red Sea for use by the U.S. Rapid Deployment Force (RDF) to accommodate a division of troops and a flotilla of long-range American bombers.

Ras Banas is in southeastern Egypt, not far from its border with Sudan and almost directly opposite the Saudi Arabian and Persian Gulf oil fields. The RDF is being formed to deal with volatile situations like those in the Middle East.

Pentagon sources have made it known that Oman, Somalia, Kenya, Diego Garcia and Israel also figure prominently in U.S. contingency plans to meet the Soviet threat to the West's oil lines. Somalia and Oman have already agreed to allow U.S. forces to use sites in their areas. British-controlled Diego Garcia in the Indian Ocean also is engaged for that purpose. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat had said the U.S. could use Egyptian facilities but not have a base on Egyptian soil. The arrangement for Ras Banas would be to provide a staging area for American forces. U.S. planes and troops would not be permanently stationed at Ras Banas but would fly there in periods of tension. A U.S. division comprises 18,000 men.

The airfield construction budget will be presented to Congress in January. While the facilities to modernize the new outmoded field at Ras Banas will reportedly cost about $400 million, the Pentagon says this figure is incorrect, indicating it will be less.

Why the U.S. is prepared to spend this huge sum on Ras Banas when Israeli air bases in Sinai, Etzion being among the world's best, are being passed up is a question that remains formally unanswered. Congress, however, is certain to require answers when the Pentagon presents the proposal to it for approval next winter. Another as yet unanswered query is whether the U.S. will be able to use the base to fly support to Israel in the event Israel comes under attack.

Policy planners recognize the virtues of both Israel's military prowess and the Sinai bases which Israel is to turn over to Egypt under the Egyptian-Israeli treaty. Political circumstances, however, stand in the way.

Administration sources say Washington foresees trouble with Saudi Arabia, Egypt and other Arab states if it includes Israel as a strategic asset to the United States. But no plans have been made known of Israeli-U.S. military cooperation in the event of trouble in the oil fields or even in Israel's defense.

"Arab governments would scream sky-high at American-Israeli military operations," a Congressional Middle East specialist noted. He observed that Sadat agreed to Ras Banas but refused Sinai sites to the U.S. because he wants Ras Banas built up as an Egyptian base. Egypt will have total access for its air force at Ras Banas and share its control with the U.S.

In the Sinai, Egypt might be in a position of sharing some authority with Israel under the Israeli-Egyptian treaty. More importantly, Egypt agreed to Ras Banas because of its distance from Israel. "In time of possible trouble with Israel, Egypt would have a modern base distant from Israel's fighter aircraft," it was noted.

Israel Submits $2.9 Billion Request To U.S.

TEL AVIV (JTA) — Finance Minister Yigal Hurwitz has met with U.S. Ambassador Samuel Lewis and formally submitted Israel's request for $2.9 billion in aid for 1982 fiscal year, $1.8 billion in military aid and $1.1 billion in economic aid. Hurwitz told reporters after the meeting, "I would have been much happier if we could have made it without this aid, but our economic needs and the defense budget are more than Israel can shoulder alone."

Lewis said the U.S. would do its best to meet that request despite its own economic difficulties. He added, however, "It is too early to judge now as to what the decision would be concerning Israel's request for aid."

Hurwitz also presented Lewis with documents indicating some of the major reasons

Israel is asking for the aid: the evacuation of bases from the Sinai and their redeployment to the Negev is costing more than the total aid request; the return of the Suez oil fields has placed an enormous burden on Israel's oil and energy needs; the continued infusion of new military equipment into the armies of the Arab states requires Israel to update its own military needs.

In Washington, Israeli Ambassador Ephraim Evron presented Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher with Israel's aid request. He told reporters afterwards, "We hope that as the years go by we will be able to reach a point where we will not request anything. We are trying to cut down as much as possible. We hope this trend will continue in the future."

Syrian Synagogue Desecrated According To Reports

NEW YORK (JTA) — The Committee for the Rescue of Syrian Jews said it has received reports from Syria that the 2350-year-old synagogue of Ezra the Scribe in Tadmor near Aleppo has been taken over by unidentified individuals who are using it and the adjacent shrine as animal stables. The Jewish cemetery in Tadmor has also been taken over by the same individuals who are using it as a pasture for animals.

In telegrams to President Carter and United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, Committee president Abraham Dwek called their attention to these outrages and urged them to protest the "desecration of the holy places and cemetery and to call upon the Syrian government to take appropriate measures for the immediate eviction of these individuals, the preservation of the sanctity of those places and their restoration to the Jewish community."

Dwek noted that it was in Tadmor, "on the river Abana," according to the Bible, that Ezra the Scribe proclaimed a fast when he stopped there for three days during his perilous journey from Babylon to the returning Jewish exiles to Jerusalem to rebuild the Temple.

Orthodox Union Criticizes U.S. Abstention

NEW YORK, N.Y. — In a strongly-worded telegram to President Carter, the Orthodox Union criticized the United States abstention yesterday on the Security Council resolution calling for all countries to withdraw their embassies from Jerusalem. Julius Berman, President of the Orthodox Union, said in the telegram that the failure of the "administration . . . to veto yet another in a series of virulently anti-Israel resolutions in the Security Council . . . throws into question the depth of the (the) administration's support of Israel and her security." It is most disturbing that the guardian of world morality refuses to block one-sided and imbalanced resolutions.

The telegram also discounted Secretary of State Muskie's remarks made at the time of the abstention. "It is the action," Berman said, "rather than the words which speaks most eloquently and forcefully. The action of the abstention pales any significance Mr. Muskie's statement may have otherwise had."

The Orthodox Union is the central spokesman for more than one thousand Orthodox synagogues throughout the United States and Canada.

Yeshiva U. Graduates To Settle In Israel

NEW YORK (JTA)—More than 20 percent of the graduating class of 55 students at Yeshiva University's Wurzelweil School of Social Work Block Education Program, six men and six women, plan to settle in Israel to take up positions in government and communal agencies.

The 55 graduates received Master's Degrees at the Block program's third annual commencement Aug. 1. The 12 making aliyah have already been engaged as social workers or have made commitments to live in Israel, university officials said.

The Block program, called the first university-based graduate school of social work under Jewish auspices, was opened in 1976. The program allows students to do field work in hometown communal agencies during the regular academic year and take eight weeks of classroom casework for three consecutive summers at the university Brookdale Center in Manhattan.

The 12 making aliyah are Tamar Feldman of Philadelphia; Susan Forer of Encino, Calif.; Ora Gittelsohn of Miami Beach, Fla.; Alan Klugman of Jersey City, N.J.; Zvi Lopian, originally from London, England; Jill Levine of Whitestone, N.Y.; Gerald Masel of Teaneck, N.J.; Janis Musnikow of Flushing, N.Y.; Ayala Rahimi of Kew Gardens, N.Y.; Shlomo Rapaport of Teaneck; Stuart Wax of Woodmere, N.Y.; and Alexander Yeres of The Bronx, N.Y.

The officials said some of the students have already done field work in Israel. Klugman worked with the community organization section of Jerusalem; Lopian worked at the Summit Institute in Jerusalem; Ms. Musnikow worked with the Jerusalem division of communities and graduates. Ms. Rahimi studied at Shaare Zedek Hospital in Jerusalem, as did Yeres.

The new graduates will join the more than 1000 Yeshiva University alumni families living in Israel. The alumni, graduates of various undergraduate and graduate schools of the university, work in a variety of fields in government, communal life, education and the professions.

Rumanian Chorus, Orchestra Arrive In Israel

TEL AVIV (JTA)—Some 30 young men and women comprising the chorus and orchestra of the Jewish community in Rumania arrived in Israel headed by Rumania's Chief Rabbi Moshe Rosen. The group, which was invited to Israel by the mayors of Jerusalem, Tel Aviv and other cities, is the first from a Communist country to come to Israel to present Yiddish and Hebrew songs.

Their 10-day visit to Israel was with the approval of the Rumanian government, according to a report from Bucharest.

Belinsky, Capuano Married In Candlelight Ceremony

Miss Pamela Ann Belinsky, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Belinsky of Warwick and the late Dr. Joseph Belinsky, became the bride of Gary Everett Capuano, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett of Hope, R.I. on Saturday, August 30, 1980.

The Honorable Judge Jacob J. Alprin performed the candlelight ceremony which took place in the Garden Room at the Biltmore Plaza, Providence. A dinner reception followed in Grand Ballroom of the Biltmore.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Belinsky, and her uncle, Dr. Gabriel Belinsky, of Lowell, Mass. Marita Jo Miller, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor and Mrs. Donna Lennon was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Lindsley Capuano, sister of the groom, Ann Jewell and Mary Celeste Savatere.

James Magnone was best man with Joseph Piacitelli, Daniel Gagnon, Lance Corporal Peter Ruggiero and Ronald Jacob serving as ushers.

The bride's paternal grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Belinsky, was escorted down the aisle by Dr. Peter Belinsky, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Belinsky-Capuano is presently a registered nurse at Rhode Island Hospital. Her husband is the Maitre'd of

Iris Renee Kleinman Weds Steven B. Libenson

Gunning Mrs. Steven B. Libenson

Miss Iris Renee Kleinman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold J. Kleinman, of Cranston, R.I., became the bride of Steven B. Libenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Libenson, of Kingston, Penna., at a 6 p.m. ceremony held on Sunday, August 31, 1980 at the Temple Beth Torah in Cranston. Rabbi Gerald Zeligman officiated with Cantor Aaron Marcus also taking part in the ceremony.

The bride wore a custom designed gown by Phyllis of The House of Bianchi which was made of imported ivory French silk chiffon over a matching silk slip which was designed with a separate gown fashioned with a bodice of imported, hand clipped Alencon lace and embellished with beading, miniature straps, and tailored waistline attached to a full controlled skirt ending in an aisle width chapel length train.

A see-thru chiffon jacket, fashioned with an extended collar of matching lace and traditional long sleeves with cuffs of lace, was highlighted by a blouson waistline finished with an ivory satin tailored sash.

Her custom designed French headpiece of ivory silk chiffon was finished with a cabbage rose of ivory chiffon and attached to an aisle width chapel length ivory illusion veil.

Miss Denise Behrens was maid of honor with Miss Margaux Libenson, sister of the groom and Mrs. Jeffrey Kleinman, sister-in-law of the bride, serving as honor attendants. They wore Bianchi ankle length gowns of Grotto Blue Chiffon designed with a bateau neckline and fitted bodice with an all over capelet, chiffon waistline sash and bouffant skirt fashioned with handkerchief points.

Best man was Bud Reilly with Jeffrey Kleinman, brother of the bride, and Stuart Scheinholtz, cousin of the groom, serving as ushers.

Following a honeymoon trip to Jamaica, the couple will make their home in Edwinstown, Penna.

Picon And Lerner At Concord For High Holidays

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y.: Molly Picon, star of stage, screen, television and Yiddish theatre and Max Lerner, noted author, columnist, professor and lecturer, will be at the Concord Resort Hotel during the forthcoming High Holiday week. The Kiamesha Lake, N.Y. resort hotel, located in New York State's nationally renowned Sullivan County Catskill Mountains, is only 90 minutes from the New York metropolitan region and its closeby national and international airports.

A complete program of lectures and seminars to complement the holidays is on the hotel's agenda. Observant Jews from all over the U.S., Canada, Mexico and many foreign countries can look forward to a fine selection of rich, cultural, traditional activities to celebrate the Hebrew New Year. The programs are designed to preserve the sanctity of the occasion and enhance the spiritual atmosphere in which the religious significance might best be interpreted and appreciated.

The High Holy Days observance includes Rosh Hashonah, which begins this year on Wednesday evening, September 10, and the Day of Atonement which ends on Saturday evening, September 20. Concord reservations this year run from September 10 to September 21, 1980. Guests who attend the traditional services in the Concord Synagogue will hear the liturgy sung by Cantor Herman Malamood and the 18 voice ensemble of the famous Concord Choir. Services will be conducted by the Concord Resident Rabbi.

While the religious services are dominant features of the holiday observance, Concord management adheres to the traditional holiday spirit in every respect at the resort. Meticulous adherence to dietary laws, which the hotel observes year round, is assured by the resort's rabbinical staff. Family patriarchs preside over family tables bountifully laden with traditional holiday cuisine, festively replete with the sweets and spirits symbolic of the occasion.

Many guests arrange for family reunions at the Concord during the High Holiday period, with far flung members of many generations meeting to usher in a healthy and prosperous New Year together.

T.V.'s 'Milk and Honey'

Jewish Program Completes Pilot Year

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (JTA)—A new magazine-style television program, "Milk and Honey," produced by the Greater Hartford Jewish Federation has completed its pilot year on WITV-Channel 30 in Hartford, the Federation reported. The program, billed as a "Magazine for creative Jewish Living," is telecast once a month on Sunday afternoons. Harriet Dobin Woolf, Federation communications director, is hostess and producer.

She said most of the program's segments are filmed on location in Greater Hartford. The format includes two or three short human interest or interview portions, a six-to-eight minute kosher gourmet cooking lesson by two local cookbook authors, and a Jewish community calendar.

Channel 30, the local NBC affiliate, donates not only the public service air time but also staff, on-location filming, equipment, and all production-editing facilities and expertise, she said. The Federation, through Mrs. Woolf, is responsible for planning each program, script-writing, some supply expenses, talent recruitment, publicity, scheduling and overall coordination.

Among the highlights of the first year were segments on a Federation-sponsored Jewish education program for handicapped children; an interview and demonstration by Judaic sculptor Jonathan Craig; Sephardic music by Boston's "Voice of the Turtle" troupe; a Federation-sponsored senior citizens kosher meals program; Israeli Hasidic festival highlights; interviews with author Ruth Gruber, Lith editor Susan Weidman Schneider; Yehuda Hellman, executive director of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations; Israeli television newsmen Daniel Peor, Israeli actor Hanan Goldblatt; and Soviet Jewry activist Susan Dodd.

Other features included film from a community-wide Walk-A-Thon.

Mrs. Woolf said that the program's local human interest features and Jewish cultural life "is the key to its success," adding that the show's on-filming location takes the program "out of the studio and into the community where the Federation action is." She said this "peeps up the format and provides better coverage of local stories and people."

She said Channel 30 has also cooperated with the Federation in airing a two-hour fund-raising telethon in March 1979 and also showed "Holocaust-Revisted," a 30-minute midweek prime time show to coincide with the NBC rebroadcast of "Holocaust" in September, 1979.

The area is served by all three networks, a public station and cable TV but there is minimal regular Jewish programming, she said. The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith sponsors "Dialogue" on WTNH (ABC) and Channel 30 broadcasts a 15-minute religious program, with a local rabbi, each Sunday morning.

Channel 3 (CBS) sponsors "We Believe," a religious program at 7:30 a.m. on Sunday, rotating between the various religions. The Federation and, prior to 1978, area rabbis took part in this talk show but pulled out because of air time and production arrangement problems and to organize "Milk and Honey." "Shalom Corner," a Tarbut Foundation program, is telecast on Channel 3.

RONALD T. GAULT, of the New York City Dept. of Employment visits with a Summer Youth Employment Program enrollee and some of the children at Camp Ohel Baruch, in Monticello, N.Y.

Summer Program Aids In Total Employment Experience

The importance that the City's Administration attaches to serving the "chemistry" of each of New York's ethnic communities was never more evident than in a visit and evaluation of eight summer camp work sites located in the Catskill mountains recently conducted by Commissioner Ronald T. Gault of the New York City Department of Employment. His trip personified the Department of Employment's plan to encourage the operation of programs relevant to local needs.

This visitation was a follow up to a commitment to operate a pilot project to prove that the camps sponsored by the Yeshivos and Hebrew Day Schools can be effectively used as worksites. Larry Minard, the Director of the Summer Youth Employment Program dedicated much of his own, and his senior staff's time, to supervising the program operated by the National Society for Hebrew Day Schools and the eight major camps.

Satisfied with the quality of the work experience programs Minard requested that Commissioner Gault join him and the Department of Labor's representative, Rodrego Ortiz for a personal review of the accomplishments.

Rabbi Dov Oustatcher, Director of Youth Programs for The National Society for Hebrew Day Schools which sponsored the program stated, "over 60 per cent of the program's enrollees could not fill out job applications when they entered our program, they didn't know that they can't list their previous employers as 'Mosh'. We are proud to have offered them Labor Market Orientation, resume and interview skills along with the vital previous employment needed to help transition these youngsters to the world of work."

The camps involved in the pilot project included Camps Bnos Yaakov, Chasan Sofer, Gila, Morris, Ohel Baruch, Ohr Shraga, Shalva and Chavatzleth.

Shimon Friedman, a previous Summer Youth Corps enrollee, is now the supervisor of Camp Ohel Baruch. He pointed out how his years on the program provided the training and experience he needed to obtain his present job. "I am pleased to be in a position to provide other Chassidic youth work experience in their community and thus to af-

Festival Ballet Announces Subscription Drive

Festival Ballet, under the artistic direction of Christine Hennessy and Winthrop Corey, has announced its subscription drive for the 1980-81 season. Choice seats are now available for the Fall, Winter and Spring performances to be held at the Ocean State Performing Arts Center. Subscribers will save up to 20 per cent off the box office prices.

The opening program, October 18, 19 will feature Agnes DeMille's Golden Age, starring Winthrop Corey and Ann Marie Sarazin, principal with the Boston Ballet. The Spanish styled Paquita, choreographed by Christine Hennessy, will be next, followed by a contemporary work, The Greatest, choreographed by Arthur Mitchell, Artistic Director of The Dance Theater of Harlem, music by George Benson.

The Christmas season will again be highlighted by five performances of The Nutcracker. December 26 and 27, 28 both matinee and evening.

As a special attraction, on January 11, a matinee performance of the national touring company of A Chorus Line will be included in this subscription.

The Spring program, April 4, 5 will feature Sleeping Beauty Act III plus two other ballets from Festival's repertoire.

Egypt-Israel Border Crossings Total 11,500

Estimates show that some 3,500 American tourists have used the direct air-services between Tel Aviv and Cairo operated by El Al Israel Airlines and Nefertiti Airlines, since air service commenced between the two countries in the wake of the Egypt-Israel peace accords.

Approximately 8,000 American tourists have crossed the land frontier at Neot Sinai between Israel and Egypt. An estimated 6,500 Americans traveled round trip.

Tight Squeeze
WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. Jeannie Eldridge, 24, and Anne Mansfield, 32, talk on the telephone a lot. Since they became friends through "running," they have trained together and have telephone conversations preceding races they both enter.

Eldridge finished first in the recent L'eggs/YWCA 10,000 meter (6.2 miles) run here in 39 minutes, 17 seconds. Mansfield was third in 39:33. It was the first win ever for Eldridge, who enters races often.

Second place finisher Beth Dillinger, 24, probably felt like she was squeezed in a phone booth. She was six seconds behind the winner, while ending Mansfield by 10 seconds.

Yehuda Blum:

the removal of foreign embassies from Jerusalem is in itself a form of sanction.

In the upcoming General Assembly we are going to see the Arabs trying to impose sanctions on Israel, although they will try to avoid the term "sanctions." At the same time it is expected that they will accompany their anti-Israel drive at the UN with strong pressure in various world capitals against the Jewish State as they have been doing in recent weeks on the issue of Jerusalem.

Q. This General Assembly will be your third as Israel's representative here. How would you assess Israel's position in the organization? Do you agree with the view that Israel's position is steadily deteriorating?

A. There is no doubt that there is a constant and continuing erosion in Israel's position at the UN. In fact, the watershed was in 1967. After the victory of the Six-Day War the Arab response was to focus on the rights of the Palestinian people and the Palestine Liberation Organization. Therefore, only since 1968 do we see UN resolutions that refer to the rights of the "homeless Palestinian people." Since then this process has been accelerating. It climaxed in 1974 with the acceptance of the PLO as an "observer" to the UN and with the anti-Zionist resolution in 1975.

These events are two sides of the same coin. On the one hand, the Palestinian issue, as presented by the Arabs and its terrorist movement, is legitimized; and on the other hand, the national liberation movement of the Jewish people, Zionism, is delegitimized. This is a continuing process at the UN and all the anti-Israel resolutions in the Security Council and the General Assembly are strengthening it.

The severity of this development can best be seen in that a new international climate is being created, a climate that causes even friendly nations to hesitate to stand openly in support of the State of Israel.

Q. In contrast, how would you assess the position of the PLO at the UN?

A. Parliamentarily speaking, the PLO, which is not a UN member, does not pay membership dues and has no right to vote, is stronger, far stronger, than many member states when it comes to recruiting votes or passing resolutions favorable to it.

It happened more than once that meetings at the UN did not take place because Beirut, that is, Yasser Arafat (head of the PLO), did not give its o.k. It is not only the strength of the PLO, but also the weakness of the West. It is not an accident that the accelerating process of the strengthening of the PLO and the weakening of Israel at the UN is paralleled with the first time in support of Palestinian rights. The connection between oil and support of the Palestinians is clear.

Q. Where does the Soviet Union stand in this relentless, anti-Israel offensive at the UN?

A. In the last 25 years the Soviet Union has been playing a negative role in the Mideast. It is interested in the destabilization of all our area and for that purpose the PLO is fulfilling a certain role that in many ways is similar to the role that the Cubans play in Africa and the Vietnamese in Southeast Asia. The PLO is an organization that could not possibly exist today — logistically, militarily and even diplomatically — without the support of the Soviet Union and its satellite countries.

The Soviet support of the PLO is even greater than the support the PLO is receiving from the Arab states, which are fearful of the PLO. The Arab support of the terrorist organization is a reflection of inter-Arab struggles. It is easy for the Soviets to use the "Palestinian card" to destabilize the Mideast and at the same time to distract the world from its actions in other parts of the globe, such as Afghanistan and Cambodia.

Q. The United States appears at times to be Israel's only friend at the UN. How would you characterize the relations between the two countries at the UN?

A. The United States, like the Soviet Union, is vying at the UN for influence. Because the bloc of the democratic countries is in a minority the competition, in fact, is for the votes of the Third World countries. The Americans are always trying to avoid isolation and therefore are using their veto power hesitantly. The Soviets are trying to push the U.S. to use its veto power in order to come to the Arabs and say, "See who are your friends and who are your enemies." The relations between Israel and the U.S. stem from this situation.

The United States had to balance two factors: one, its traditional friendship with Israel and its commitment to Israel's security and well-being and, second, its rivalry with the USSR. As a result, we witnessed in the last year a series of U.S. abstentions (in the Security Council).

Q. What are the relations between Israel and Egypt at the UN? Is the spirit of Camp David felt here?

A. The truth is that we have detected here only a minimal change in Egypt's attitude toward Israel. It is true, Egyptian diplomats do not walk out anymore when Israeli representatives speak and I shake hands with the Egyptian Ambassador to the UN, but beyond that there is no change either in Egyptian speeches, which are harsh, or in the pattern of Egyptian voting.

The Egyptians support any anti-Israeli resolution and participate in anti-Israeli debates in the Security Council. The Egyptian representative, for instance, spoke twice against Israel in the Security Council debate at the end of June and he was the one to present the anti-Israel resolution before the Council. According to all signs, Egypt considers the UN as an arena to show she has not abandoned the Arab and Islamic cause and wants to prove by its anti-Israeli attitudes that she did not betray the Arab-Palestinian cause.

Q. Many Israelis believe that Israel's abuse at the UN has reached such proportions that Israel would be better off leaving the organization altogether. What is your view?

A. We should not quit the United Nations. This is the desire of our enemies. They want to show that Israel is isolated. With all the frustrations Israel is encountering here, our membership at the UN symbolizes our belonging to the international community, being an equal among equal states.

For a people like the Jewish people, which for 2,000 years was deprived of independence and statehood, it is important to maintain even those signs at the UN, like the flag and the nameplate (on the desk of the Israeli Ambassador). It is also important to utilize the UN as a stage from which to reply to our accusers. This stage is available and it should not be left for the sole use of our enemies.

Bridge

by Robert E. Starr

In previous articles I have discussed helping to take the guess work out of two-way finesses. There is a key one in today's hand which many of the Declarers tackled with the usual results when guessing, approximately half were wrong. However, there is a card combination here that changes this from a guess to a sure thing. Not that you will capture that Queen but that you make certain that if you are to lose to it, the right opponent is the one who will win. The one you can afford to lose to.

North		East
♠ 8 6 4 2		♠ Q J 10 7
♥ K 6		♥ 9 7
♦ A 10 9 5		♦ Q 4
♣ A 8 3		♣ J 9 6 4

♠ A K 5		♠ 9 3
♥ Q 4 3		♥ A 10 8 5 2
♦ K J 6 2		♦ 8 7 3
♣ K Q 5		♣ 10 7 2

South was Dealer, all vulnerable with this bidding:

1NT	P	2C	P
2NT	P	3NT	End

Even though North's Spades were very small, never-the-less, he was well-advised to use the Stayman Convention just in case his partner also happened to have four, too. Regardless, each pair playing this hand ended in game in No Trump. Some failed to make it.

The lead was a small Heart and right here is the first possible problem. I watched as two Declarers, following the adage, second hand low, allowed the lead to come around to the Queen. This would only have been right if East had the Ace and happened to win that trick with it. A good Defender wouldn't use that Ace on a low card even if he had it. Now this left that King in Dummy all alone, a sitting duck.

At this point Declarer has eight sure tricks with the extra coming from the Diamond suit in which there is that two-way finesse for that Queen. Now it is really a guess for if wrong, the Heart suit is cashed to set the hand. The better Declarers went right up with Dummy's Heart King for what happens to that right then should govern the rest of the hand. But even when it won, two more Declarers made a guess of the Diamonds and both guessed wrong, finessing into East. On winning with that Queen East wasted no time returning a Heart to set the hand.

How, then, can the hand be guaranteed? Easy, after that King wins the first trick, take note of Declarer's new doubleton Queen. It is protected if West leads a Heart but if East does, Goodbye. All you have to do is make sure that if a Diamond must be lost to one of them, West is the one. As it turns out, that way the finesse happens to win as an added bonus for those who played the hand correctly. But really you don't mind losing as long as it is West who wins. A second Heart lead from him will even give you an overtrick.

If the King should lose trick one, there is another point. You must duck the return and then, hoping East is either out of Hearts or the suit will split, now finesse the other way, into East.

Moral: If there is a Danger hand that you cannot afford to allow to get the lead, do anything to keep him out.

Begin Staff Denies Knowledge Of Arab Eviction Notices

JERUSALEM, (JTA) — Premier Menachem Begin's office has denied any knowledge of the eviction orders served over the weekend to three Arab families living near the site designated for Begin's new office in East Jerusalem. "I know nothing of the order and I don't know who decided to issue it at this time," Matityahu Shmuelovitz, director general of the Prime Minister's Office said yesterday.

The notices were served to three families living in houses adjacent to the recently completed building which will house the prime Minister's Office in the Sheikh Jarrah section of East Jerusalem. They were signed by a lawyer in the office of the legal advisor of the Israel Land Administration which is the legal owner of the land.

Deportation Proceedings Initiated Against Rumanian Archbishop

DETROIT, (JTA) — Five years after he was indicted on charges of concealing his ties to the fascist Rumanian Iron Guard when he applied to enter the U.S. and when he gained American citizenship in the 1950s, Rumanian Orthodox Archbishop Valerian Trifa of Grass Lake, Michigan has surrendered his citizenship papers to U.S. officials.

Trifa's action halts denaturalization proceedings against him. Federal officials will now have to begin deportation proceedings against him. If successful in that action, Trifa could be deported to Rumania where he could be tried for inciting a January 1941 pogrom by Iron Guards in Bucharest which took the lives of hundreds of Jews.

Trifa, 65, contends he has been denied due process in the case because the Federal government waited 30 years to bring charges against him. A defense motion based on that argument was over-ruled last year by Federal Judge Cornelia Kennedy in Detroit.

Trifa said he surrendered his citizenship papers in order to keep his case from becoming "a power struggle between my church, my American government and my country of origin." He denied that giving up his papers was an admission of guilt.

Attorneys for Trifa say the prelate has spent more than $100,000 for legal fees, most of the funds raised by his church's 35,000 members in the U.S. Dr. Charles Kremer, an 83-year-old retired New York dentist, has led the fight for more than 25 years. Kremer said he was pleased that Trifa had surrendered his papers, but added that he was "determined to continue the fight."

Peter Alter, of Detroit, vice chairman of the National Law Committee of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, called for Federal officials to begin deportation proceedings as soon as possible.

Deposition Led To Surrender

Rabbi Rubin Dobin, chairman of an American Anti-Nazi Association in Miami, Florida, believes that Trifa surrendered his papers after seeing testimony obtained from a Miami eye-witness to the Jan. 21, 1941 Bucharest pogrom. Rafael Gabaie, 83, was located in Miami last January by Dobin's group for the Justice Department.

Because Gabaie was too old and feeble to travel, William Crane, senior criminal investigator for the Justice Department, went to Miami Beach along with a Justice Department attorney, Eugene Tirofa in charge of the Trifa case, on Jan. 25.

Gabaie's deposition, according to Dobin, stated that Gabaie grew up with Trifa in Rumania and went to the Bucharest church where Trifa was speaking on Jan. 21, 1941. According to Dobin, Gabaie said the church was filled with Iron Guards who were given weapons from two automobiles driven by Nazi SS members. Gabaie reportedly watched Trifa lead the pogrom and kill several individuals.

Last week, an assistant U.S. attorney and a court reporter from Detroit went to Rumania to take depositions from witnesses in the U.S. case against Trifa. The case, which had been assigned to Judge Horace Gilmore, had been in the pre-trial stage since May 1975.

While in the U.S., Trifa has been a controversial figure. There were allegations that he forcefully took over the Rumanian Orthodox Episcopate of America and brought in Iron Guard monks as priests. The archdiocese under Trifa took over a local parish in Detroit after a bitter court battle between the parish and the archdiocese.

As an anti-Communist, Trifa was invited in the late 1950s by then Vice President Richard Nixon to give the invocation before a session of the U.S. Senate. Trifa has contended in the past that the charges against him have been fomented by the Communist regime in Rumania and that he would not get a fair trial in Rumania. Observers believe that Trifa will use this argument in any deportation proceedings brought against him.

In New York, Phil Baum, executive director of the American Jewish Congress, said "Now that Trifa can no longer seek refuge behind his claim of citizenship the way is open to deport him from this country which he entered illegally in the first place. We trust that will take place soon. This event is one of the first indications of the efficacy of our government's decision to create a special investigation unit within the Department of Justice."

Israel Expresses Regret Over Holland Embassy Move

JERUSALEM, (JTA) — Israel reacted with "deep sorrow and sadness" at Holland's decision to move its embassy from Jerusalem, where it has been for 30 years, to Tel Aviv. The decision to move followed the United Nations Security Council resolution which censured Israel for its Jerusalem law and called on countries with embassies in Jerusalem to move them.

Holland, which was the only European country to have its embassy in Jerusalem, became the sixth country to make the move, following Venezuela, Uruguay, Ecuador, Chile and El Salvador. Costa Rica is now deliberating whether to move its embassy, too.

A Foreign Ministry statement, drafted, it is understood at the highest level, recalled Holland's record of saving Jews during World War II and expressed sadness at the fact that the Dutch government was now succumbing to Arab pressure.

"The government of Israel," the statement said, "a feeling of profound sympathy for the government and people of the Netherlands who have bowed to unwarranted interference in their relationship with Israel . . . The relations . . . have been based on . . . mutual respect and deep friendship."

"The people of Israel will never forget the efforts made by innumerable Dutch women and men to save their Jewish fellow citizens under the Nazi occupation. It is therefore all the more sad for Israel to see such a brave and noble people being subjected to such cynical pressures . . . Israel is convinced that yielding to such pressures is a grave mistake, as many countries have learned to their cost in the past." The statement concluded by reassuring Jerusalem's status as Israel's indivisible capital.

Avraham Sharir, chairman of the Likud, termed Holland's move as "a disgraceful surrender to oil pressure on the part of our best friend in Europe. But the world today worships the god of oil." There was no other immediate official reaction from government leaders.

However, Amnon Rubinstein, of the Shai faction in the Knesset, told Israel Radio that the responsibility for Holland's decision lay with the Israeli government and the opposition Labor Party which had allowed the Jerusalem law to be adopted by the Knesset. "It will take many years of patient work to put right the political damage Israel has suffered as a result of the law," he said.

A statement issued by the Dutch government in The Hague announcing its decision

Israeli Planes To Continue Lebanon Flights

TEL AVIV, (JTA) — Israeli planes will continue to fly over southern Lebanon as long as Lebanon does not have a government that controls the terrorists on its soil, Deputy Defense Minister Mordechai Zipori declared.

Zipori, in an interview on the Army Broadcasting Station, was commenting on reports from Damascus that the Syrian Air Force will try to intercept Israeli planes flying over south Lebanon. In one such attempt last Sunday, Israeli planes shot down a Syrian MIG-21.

"Whoever will interfere" with the Israeli flights over Lebanon "will bear the consequences," Zipori warned. "If there are those who forgot the lessons in the past (when scores of Syrian planes were shot down in dogfights over Lebanon by the Israel Air Force), we shall have to remind them."

The Deputy Defense Minister stressed the flights were essential to protect the security of Israelis as long as there were terrorists in south Lebanon.

to move its embassy recalled it had previously regretted Israel's "unilateral decision" to proclaim united Jerusalem's capital as an obstacle toward a settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict. The statement also said that the Dutch government had resolved to move its embassy in line with its policy of implementing UN Security Council resolutions.

Holland had been under intense pressure from Arab countries for some time to move its embassy. In its statement Holland expressed regret about the pressure, partly in the form of ultimatums that Dutch-Arab commerce would be affected, exerted, on the government to its embassy.

Earlier this month, the Iraqi government presented an official letter to the Dutch ambassador in Baghdad demanding that the embassy be moved from Jerusalem "within a month" or Iraq would sever all diplomatic and economic ties with Holland. Iraq only recently resumed relations with Holland and placed several large orders with Dutch companies.

The Dutch are expected to retain their consulate general, in Jerusalem. Until now, the Dutch ambassador has served in the dual functions of ambassador and consul general, but with its departure for Tel Aviv the roles will have to be split.

A Man Of Two Worlds:

Fr. DuBois Appointed
At Hebrew University

The recent appointment by the Faculty of Philosophy of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem of Fr. Marcel Dubois, O.P., as chairman of its department is very welcome news, especially to those involved in the dialogue between the Catholic and Jewish communities worldwide. This decision was made in recognition of Fr. Dubois' scholarship and acknowledged service to the University ever since his appointment as senior lecturer in 1968, and not solely because of his extensive engagement in Christian-Jewish dialogue.

Nevertheless, the fact remains that for the first time in its 55-year history, not only a non-Jew, but a Dominican priest now heads a major department of the preeminent Jewish institution of higher learning.

Born in France, he entered the Dominican order at the age of 18, on the eve of World War II. He studied philosophy and theology at the Dominican Faculty of "Le Saulchoir," and received his doctorate in philosophy from Thomas Aquinas Pontifical University in Rome in 1961.

Just one year later, he made a decision which was to lead to his present appointment. He chose to make Aliyah (immigration) to Israel. That fateful decision was consonant with the view he has held since, namely, that especially in Israel can the Christian make an attempt to engage in dialogue with Jews free from fallacy and self-deception.

A major motif of Fr. Dubois' work in the dialogue centers on the theme of the paradox and mystery of Israel. Christians in Israel, like Dubois, face the paradoxical reality of being a minority as regards their encounter with Judaism. In his own words, this is a "... health situation, for our Jewish friends (in Israel) are free from all feelings of being strangers or threatened in their identity, whereas we encounter them without the protection of false securities. Thus, the encounter becomes more true, devoid of fear or illusion, with a great exigency of authenticity."

Both more mundane and yet more decisive is the mystery which Christians must face as they confront a vibrant and renascent Judaism. They then begin to discover ... the peculiarity of the Jewish People with all this implies, its permanence through time, its spiritual tradition, its historical dynamism, the continuity of its religious and national conscience, the living link of the People with the Bible and with its Land. The complexity and the convergence of all the components of Judaism: faith, history, tradition, messianic hope, national will-to-live, cannot be forgotten, since here, in this country, they are always present. These are discoveries that renew, in a practical way, the conditions of the encounter that Christians living in Israel would like to share with all their Christian brethren in the world."

Fr. Dubois has brought insight and love to the Jewish-Christian dialogue in his work with a number of notable interfaith activities. He was a founding member of the Rainbow Group, the Ecumenical Theological Research Fraternity, and is a member of the Executive Committee of the Israel Interfaith Committee.

Most important, for a number of years, Fr. Dubois has been an adviser to the Vatican Commission for Relations with the Jews. This has placed him at the center stage in the complex dealings between the Holy See and the Jewish People.

Perhaps dearest of all was his tenure as Superior of St. Isaiah Dominican House in Jerusalem, which he was instrumental in establishing as a center for Judaic Studies in the Holy City. And this commitment toward the development of understanding and sharing is most poignantly exemplified by his penchant for saying his daily Mass in the language of the Bible and of modern Israel — Hebrew.

In realizing the terrible asymmetry in Christian-Jewish relations in the past and in dedicating himself to overcoming that imbalance, he brings honor to himself, his faith and to the Hebrew University. At a time when Israel's position in the world community is becoming ever more isolated, Fr. Dubois speaks for understanding and reconciliation. As a Christian Israeli, he is a man of two worlds and in that unique dual role he symbolizes the hope of peace.

Poll Indicates Israeli Win
In Nuclear Confrontation

NEW YORK, (JTA) — The first nuclear war will probably be fought between Israel and the Arab countries. This is one of the findings of a poll on nuclear war which was conducted by the magazine, "Nesi," which started publishing earlier this year. The findings of the poll are reported in the October issue of the magazine.

According to the poll, which questioned 32 internationally recognized nuclear armament and military experts, "Israel will win (the first nuclear war) but it will be a Pyrrhic victory, because so many Israelis will die." Findings of the poll and the October issue of Nesi were presented at a press conference here at the United Nations Plaza Hotel.

The poll, conducted according to the Delphi method in which the experts answer similar questions at least twice to achieve maximum accuracy, also made the following points:

"The likelihood of a nuclear war over the next five years is statistically small, but growing, but from 1985 to 1989 the danger will increase.

"During the 1990s, nuclear war possibilities could double because more than twice as many nations will have the bomb than now have it.

"Within the next 10 years, it is expected that Israel, South Africa, Iraq, Pakistan, South Korea, Taiwan, Argentina and Brazil will have nuclear armaments.

"The first global nuclear war, between the U.S. and the Soviet Union is considered almost two-and-a-half times less probable than a war between Israel and the Arabs. The results of the poll indicated that the Soviets will win.

"If there is a global nuclear war in the next decade, the cause would be the escalation of conflict between the allies of the superpowers in the Mideast, or an escalation of an acute international crisis.

A regional nuclear war in the Mideast or elsewhere — will result in the deaths of over five million people. One or more million people would suffer some form of debilitating radiation poisoning.

Emanah Women Urge
UN Reassessment

Council resolution of August 20, 1980.

The issue of Jerusalem is too important and too vital to the Jewish people throughout the world to have a resolution of condemnation of Israel for its reiterating what is absolutely a fact that Jerusalem is Israel's eternal capital, rammed through by the PLO.

The U.S. made a forceful plea through Secretary of State Muskie's appearance at the Security Council session and took issue with the resolution. Certainly, therefore, the U.S. should have forthrightly vetoed the resolution. A Security Council resolution remains on record and all the explanatory statements which seek to ameliorate the consequences of this resolution cannot negate the effect in terms of public knowledge of the U.S. abstention instead of vetoing around the world.

We foresee dire consequences in terms of long range United States' interests in the Middle East. We feel that the U.S. has taken a sharp turn away from the Camp David Accords and we furthermore see in this Security Council resolution, a complete negation of the purposes of the U.N. as an instrument of U.S. foreign policy.

AJC Voices Objection To Nursing Home Listings

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The American Jewish Congress has criticized a proposal by the Department of Health and Human Services to keep the race, sex, national origin and religious preference of Medicare and Medicaid patients in nursing homes on a "Master Patient Register."

In testimony before a regional hearing held by the Department, Florence Galkin of the American Jewish Congress' Constitution on Urban Affairs declared: "The Constitution's mandate of separation of church and state stands for the proposition that government inquiries about religious preference, where permissible at all, must be narrowly limited to the minimum necessary to satisfy government interest."

"While there is a legitimate need to identify to a patient's religion, if any, so as to facilitate the provision of religious services, we see no reason why that information must be maintained permanently in a central file."

The American Jewish Congress spokesperson also urged that requirements for the availability of religious preference diets be expanded to include the accommodation of other religious observances. She suggested specifically that in the departmental regulation requiring compliance with state and local laws, Orthodox Jewish objections to autopsies be taken into account.

Mrs. Galkin also urged the Department to establish a specific nurse-patient ratio requirement in place of the present proposed regulation, which calls for "a sufficient number of qualified nursing personnel to meet the total nursing needs of the patient." She observed:

"One of the lessons of close observation of nursing home operations in the last few years is that vague rules will lead nursing home operators to interpret them for their own benefit and not for the benefit of their patients."

Mrs. Galkin concluded by noting that the proposed regulations did not deal with the increasing number of mental health patients placed in nursing homes because of the lack of availability of other treatment facilities. Mrs. Galkin told the hearing:

"If these people are to continue to reside in nursing facilities, standards must be developed for properly treating them. The failure to do so will simply lead to a situation in which their underlying conditions continue to deteriorate while life for the other residents is made more difficult."

U.S. To Investigate Israeli Weapons Use

WASHINGTON, (JTA)—The United States is conducting "a continuing investigation" of Israel's possible use of American weapons beyond its own borders, State Department spokesman David Passage said against the background of Israel's incursion into South Lebanon last week. "I don't know if the law has been violated," he said. U.S. law prohibits use of American weaponry outside the borders of the country that receives them.

Israeli Ambassador Ephraim Evron told reporters here that Israel did use American weapons in Lebanon but there was nothing wrong with this since it was for defensive purposes. "We did not get weapons in order not to use them," he said. "The raid was part of our self-defense policy."

Evron stressed that "there's no reason why it shouldn't be used." He said the American weapons were given to Israel "in order to help us defend ourselves. That was the purpose of this operation."

The Israeli envoy added that the "violence" in Lebanon "will stop as soon as our neighbors choose to make peace. As long as they are intent on attacking us, we will have to defend ourselves."

In discussing Israel's raids, Passage reiterated previous U.S. views on Israeli of South Lebanon where Palestinian terrorists have military strongholds by noting that "continuing violence contributes to violence" and expressing support for the integrity of Lebanon. He refused to condemn the Israeli incursion, saying he has "no way of characterizing the raid except to note that it took place."

Passage added that "We are deeply concerned by rising tensions and we call on all parties to act with restraint." Asked if the parties include Major Saad Haddad, the leader of the Christian militia in south Lebanon, Passage replied in the affirmative. He did not mention the Palestine Liberation Organization in this context.

Regarding the investigation into Israel's use of U.S. arms, Passage was asked if it includes investigating the activities of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL), from whom the PLO has been reported to be getting weapons which are used in attacking Israel and whether Israel's raid was impugning the integrity of the state of Lebanon or attacking "a state within a state" in Lebanon. He said that the U.S. is looking into the circumstances of the raid.

In Beirut, however, the U.S. Embassy would lead to an increase in tension in the region. Lebanese Foreign Minister Fuad Buitros criticized Arab nations for failing to formulate strategy to meet "Israel's aggressive policy." He also stated that the major powers were indifferent to repeated Israeli strikes in south Lebanon. In Cairo, Egypt also condemned the raids as a new obstacle to peace.

At the United Nations, Lebanon requested "an urgent intervention by the United States and by all those who are in a position to do so" in the situation in south Lebanon following the Israeli raids. Hassan Tuani, Lebanon's chief delegate, said it was more and more urgent that the UN intervene if its resolutions on the subject were to retain credibility. He did not ask for a formal meeting of the Security Council.

Also at the UN, Secretary General Kurt Waldheim appealed to all sides to maintain peace in the area. His spokesman said the UNIFIL commander had protested to Israeli authorities the spokesman also said that Waldheim deplored the cycle of violence and resulting casualties and urged that all parties "cooperate fully with UNIFIL in its efforts to fulfill its mandate and, in particular, to maintain peace in the area."

Bookbinder Calls For Trifa Deportation

Dr. Paul Bookbinder, Chairman of the Program Committee of the New England Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith has urged the speedy deportation of a Romanian church leader who surrendered his American citizenship before he could stand trial as a Nazi war criminal.

Valerian D. Trifa, head of the Romanian Orthodox Episcopate in America, is accused of participating in the 1941 massacre of Jews in Bucharest. He faced a denaturalization trial for falsifying his past and therefore illegally entering the U.S. in 1950.

Seymour Reich, chairman of ADL's national Civil Rights Committee, in urging the Justice Department to bring deportation proceedings against Bishop Trifa "as soon as possible" said "only in this way can justice be done." The League has been in the forefront of the struggle to bring accused Nazi war criminals to justice.

Bishop Trifa is accused of covering up the fact that he is a leader of the fascist Iron Guard student organization and of posing as a displaced person when he arrived in the U.S. from Italy.

The Bucharest massacre took place in January, 1941, during a rebellion against the Romanian army by the pro-Nazi Iron Guard movement. Hundreds, possibly thousands of Jews were rounded up by Guard members and murdered.

Carter, Mondale Meet With Jews, Gain Support

WASHINGTON, (JTA) — Responding to invitations from President Carter, 20 Jewish citizens met with him and Vice President Walter Mondale at the White House for almost an hour and later several told reporters they were endorsing the President for reelection.

The gathering reportedly is one of several being arranged by the White House to bolster support within the Jewish community for the Carter-Mondale ticket. Another meeting is scheduled for a group from New York.

Among those who spoke with reporters were Howard Gittis and William Batoff, both of Philadelphia; Sigmund Strochlitz, of New London, Conn., and David Chase of West Hartford, Conn. Others in the group were from Detroit, Cleveland and Boston.

Batoff said he has "no idea" why he was invited. But he denied that the White House intention was to circumvent the leadership of the organized Jewish community. "I believe they invited people who are strong in their communities and interested in the Jewish relationship with the President—and would like it to continue."

Asked if the "traditional Jewish leaders" would back the President, Batoff replied, "Oh, yes, quite a few will be coming out very shortly in support of President Carter."

Gittis said the purpose of the meeting was to be "filled in by the President, Vice President and other officials of the Administration on their positions which would be of interest to the Jewish community, which they did very effectively, very intelligently in a manner which would lead to complete dedicated support of the Jewish community for this Administration."

Gittis said he was not affiliated with an organization and was not a spokesman but came as an individual. Asked if he endorsed the President, he replied, "most of us here endorsed the President before this" and are "actively working for his reelection which is important to the American Jewish community."

Strochlitz said that "we were very upset" about the United States abstention on the United Nations Security Council last Wednesday against Israel's Jerusalem law. "The United States should not have abstained, but vetoed it," he said. "This is the first time the United States accepted some kind of punishment for Israel. President Carter explained it. I am not at liberty to explain how he explained it."

Batoff then said Carter's explanation for the abstention was that "an undivided Jerusalem was exactly what the Camp David accords had suggested and the President felt he was in keeping with that accord." He said he was "absolutely, totally satisfied" with the President's explanation.

When a reporter asked "why are the Jewish people supporting President Carter when the government of Israel makes clear this Administration is not a friend of Israel," Batoff noted that Israeli Premier Menachem Begin had "alluded" to the abstention but "it was not a statement. He expected a veto and instead he got an abstention."

Chase said "20 doubtful people with reservations came to see the President this morning and we are leaving 20 very satisfied and happy people. This Administration is doing a great job for me as an American and for me of religious belief, being Jewish." He said "many Jewish people do not understand the true policy of this Administration and the dedication of this Administration to Jews and Israel."

14-Year-Old Spots Bomb

Terrorist Gang Uncovered In Nablus

TEL AVIV (JTA) — One day after a disaster was averted at the Carmel market here, when a bomb was discovered on top of a vendor's cart and dismantled before it could explode, an army spokesman announced that an Arab terrorist gang had been uncovered in Nablus. The gang was responsible for planting two lethal bombs in the Carmel market two years ago and last year which caused fatalities and scores of injuries to shoppers.

According to reliable sources, the man who placed the bombs is among those the security forces rounded up in the Nablus. The terrorist cell there is part of the El Fatah, it was reported.

The first bomb, in August 1978, killed one person and injured 50. The second bomb, in April 1979, killed two persons and injured 29.

Meanwhile, the Carmel market is back to normal and the hero there was a 14-year-old boy from Gaza who detected the suspicious-looking object on top of the vendor's cart. Owners of the fruit and vegetable stands in the market collected IL 10,000 among themselves and gave it to the youth as the token of appreciation.

In another near tragedy, a bomb exploded today at a bus stop near a busy intersection outside Kiryat Malachi near Ashdod. Police said there were no injuries and no damages.

Anderson Issues Rosh Hashanah Message

WASHINGTON, (JTA) — Independent Presidential candidate John Anderson has issued his Rosh Hashanah message today, referring to the High Holy Days as a "time of introspection and renewal." He said the American vision of the world "draws much from the spirit of Rosh Hashanah. Our founders were imbued with the same sense of tikun olam, of correcting the world, and making it a better place to live."

"They too appreciated the need not only to ponder the past, but to learn from it and go beyond it. Our founders shared the Rosh Hashanah dream: that our lives must aspire to decency and idealism, not just to the mundane. And they established America in the ancient Biblical image: to be a light unto the nations."

Anderson also expressed his hope that in the year to come, "We will see an America dedicated to these principles. That we will promote democracy and sustain allies who share our ideals. That we will pursue justice at home and abroad. And that we as a nation will find the courage to resist intimidation, to fight for human rights and to endeavor in the pursuit of peace."

Begun Released

NEW YORK, (JTA) — According to reports received today by the National Conference on Soviet Jewry, Prisoner of Conscience Isosif Begun has been released from exile, completing a second term, of three years.

Prime Minister Addresses ARMDI Convention

TEL AVIV — When Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin addressed the recent Israel convention of the American Red Magen David for Israel (ARMDI), his remarks held a special poignancy for two Long Island residents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Orbach of West Hempstead, N.Y.

The Prime Minister thanked the ARMDI for their efforts on behalf of Israel's Red Magen David Society, and particularly for the more than 700 ambulances and Mobile Intensive Care Unit Ambulances that the ARMDI had donated to Israel over the past 10 years.

A mobile intensive cardiac ambulance contributed by Mr. and Mrs. Orbach was instrumental in saving the life of Pinchik Minister Begin when he suffered a heart attack during a recent Knesset debate. When the emergency call went to the MDA Station in Jerusalem, an especially outfitted vehicle staffed by trained MDA Paramedics was rushed to the scene.

The paramedics began emergency medical procedures on the spot and continued their efforts until the prime minister's condition was stabilized and he could be transferred to the Hadassah Hospital in Ein Karem. The medical treatment continued in the ambulance, played a significant role in saving Mr. Begin's life and is credited with aiding in his speedy recovery.

Greeting ARMDI Convention in Israel, the Prime Minister Begin led a galaxy of major Israeli leaders who welcomed the many delegates of the American Red Magen David for Israel participating in the 40th anniversary convention of organization which was held in Jerusalem.

Mr. Begin acknowledged the heroic role played by Magen David Adom and ARMDI during some of the most trying times of the Jewish State and of the mandate period which preceded it.

The Prime Minister was presented with the coveted Chaim Weizmann award of ARMDI "for his vision and courage in guiding Israel on the road to peace." The American delegation was headed by ARMDI National Board Members Stuart A. Jackson, Herman Z. Quittman, Sydney Wertheimer and Benjamin Saxe.

The group was received by President Itzhak Navon at Beit Hanassi in Jerusalem. Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Yadin, Minister of Health Eliezer Shostak, former Prime Minister Abba Eban, Minister of Interior Joseph Burg were among those who addressed the convention.

At the conclusion of the convention, a delegation of ARMDI leaders continued on to Cairo where they were welcomed by Israeli Ambassador Eliahu Ben Eliezer at the Israeli embassy in Egyptian capital.

DOJO Publishes Member Goals, Programs

NEW YORK, N.Y. — DOJO, the organization of Directors of North American Jewish Organizations in Israel, has just published an up-dated version of the programs and goals of its 24 participating members, reports the Israel Office of the American Jewish Committee.

DOJO was formed in 1974 to serve as a clearing-house for information and consultation among the American groups, and for liaison between them and Israeli institutions.

The directory, published in both Hebrew and English, is intended to give Israeli basic knowledge about the different American groups operating in the country.

DOJO Co-Chairman for 1979-1980 are Rabbi Ezra Spicchaner of Hebrew-Union College, Jewish Institute of Religion and Asher Terman of the National Jewish Welfare Board.

Member agencies are: American Association for Jewish Education, American Jewish Committee, American Jewish Congress, American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, American Mizrachi Women, American Zionist Federation, Anti-

Defamation League, Association of Americans and Canadians in Israel, Bnai B'rith, Bnai B'rith Hill Foundation, Brandeis University.

Others are: Hadassah Council in Israel, Hebrew Union College — Jewish Institute of Religion, Jewish Publication Society, Jewish Theological Seminary, National Jewish Welfare Board, National Council of Jewish Women, Rabbinical Council of America, Union of American Hebrew Congregations, United Israel Appeal, Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, United Synagogue of America, American Professors for Peace in the Middle East and Canadian Jewish Congress are listed as cooperating agencies.

Weizman Visits Egypt, Meets With Sadat

TEL AVIV, (JTA) — Former Defense Minister Ezer Weizman, has arrived in Cairo for a private visit, but as a guest of Egyptian Foreign Minister Kamel Hassan Ali, was given a warm welcome and was met at the airport by Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Boutros Ghali and by Mrs. Ali whose husband was meeting with President Anwar Sadat at the time.

Weizman was received with applause in coffee houses and hotels he visited. He was also due to meet with Sadat.

At the airport, Weizman said that his visit is further proof that the normalization process between Israel and Egypt is continuing. He arrived on an Egyptian plane together with 100 other tourists from Israel.

Prominent U.S. Jews Denounce U.N. Resolution

NEW YORK (JTA) — A group of 39 prominent American Jews who had joined last month in advocating territorial compromise and in criticizing extremists in Israel have released a statement to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency denouncing the United Nations Security Council resolution on Jerusalem and voicing "regret" that the United States did not cast a veto.

The statement was drafted and circulated by Leonard Fein of Boston, editor of the independent Jewish monthly, Moment, and signed by more than two-thirds of the 56 Jewish leaders whose public declaration on July 1 caused widespread controversy in the American Jewish community.

Signers of the statement included Theodore Mann and Rabbi Alexander Schindler, Joseph former chairmen of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations; Stephen Shalom, past president of the New York United Jewish Appeal-Federation of Jewish Philanthropies drive; Theodore Bikel, senior vice president of the American Jewish Congress; Rabbi Arthur Hertzberg and Sam Norich, vice-presidents of the World Jewish Congress; and Arden Shuster and Fanny Schacter, philanthropists, leaders.

The statement said, in part: "We believe that the United Nations has no moral authority to speak to the Jerusalem question. In a complex and anguished world, the UN and its member agencies have repeatedly behaved as if the Middle East were the only area of international crisis warranting their attention. This distortion has prevented the UN and its agencies from responding appropriately to a variety of other and not less vexing matters."

Further, the UN's obsession with the Middle East has demonstrably failed to advance the cause of peace even in that troubled region. Citizens of the United States, and of the world, are forced to conclude that the United Nations has been taken hostage by the PLO, to no good purpose.

"We regret that the United States did not, in its vote, have the courage of the convictions it expressed in the course of the debate."

"We find it ironic that those who have insisted upon Israel's liquidation — upon the liquidation of a member state of the United Nations — and who have adopted international terrorism as their preferred method of behavior, should be treated with deference, while a member state which is governed by the rule of law is repeatedly vilified. Finally, we wish to make it absolutely clear that, we regard Jerusalem as the eternal capital of the Jewish State. Its integrity as a united city is beyond debate. Questions of boundaries, access and the status of the holy places may be the subject of negotiation. The status of Jerusalem as a united city, and as Israel's capital, is not."

Among the others who signed the statement were: Rabbi Joshua Heschman, Sylvia Hassenfeld, Leon Lick, Rabbi Wolfe Kelman, Sam Leuchter, Arthur Levine, Jacqueline Levine, Jacob Neusner, Rabbi David Polish and Albert Vorpan.

Fein, who had played a major role in preparing the earlier statement, said that many of the original 56 signed were on vacation and could not be reached. He said he circulated the new statement only among those who had associated themselves with the earlier declaration.

Religious Leader Calls For Eliminating Sexist Language

MONTREAL, Canada — Sexist language in the Bible and in prayer must be eliminated if women are to achieve religious equality, the American Psychological Association was told here recently.

Annette Daum of New York, interreligious affairs coordinator for the Union of American Hebrew Congregations (UAHCO), called for a "multi-denominational approach to reverse the damaging effects on both men and women of centuries of language that misrepresents women and misleads us as to the very nature of God."

The UAHCO is the congregational arm of Reform Judaism in the United States and Canada, representing 1.2 million members in 750 synagogues.

Despite progress toward equality of the sexes in the religious sphere, Ms. Daum said, "Sexist language remains a major problem, particularly in seminary training programs." She said women seminarians find themselves in a men's club atmosphere studying a body of literature which is male-oriented, taught by men, mostly about men, interpreted and translated by men in language that oozes with masculine metaphor.

Ms. Daum said many Reform synagogues were now using a glossary of substitute terminology to help them replace masculine words and phrases used in the liturgy.

"At a recent interfaith consultation titled, 'How to Survive as a Feminist in a Patriarchal Religion,' participants concluded that 'the major problem was the elimination of sexist language in biblical translation, liturgy and education material,' Ms. Daum noted.

"A few rabbis are already using inclusive language on a regular basis in their congregations," she observed. "Members of other synagogues are seeking the same kind of changes. It is no longer unusual for congregations to experiment with creative services along gendered lines."

The Union of American Hebrew Congregations has also prepared a checklist to help Jewish feminists raise their congregations' awareness of sexism. Ms. Daum said it is contained in "Jewish Options for the '80s," a 56-page kit of consciousness-raising programs, recently published by the UAHCO for Reform synagogues.

"As people of the book, whose most revered prayer is the Shema ('Hear, O Israel...'), The command to hear and heed the words which have shaped the religious beliefs of over half the world's population — we Jews cannot underestimate the power of words," Ms. Daum said.

The New Money Market Funds

by Sylvia Porter

Tax-Free Funds In a Tough Market

PART II

A new, highly attractive "winkle" is being added to the appeals of liquidity, relatively superior rates of return and stability that have made the taxable money market funds such sensational successes in the past few years.

The wrinkle is the tax-exempt money market fund, through which you, a small, comparatively uninformed investor, can enter the widely diversified, tough market for tax-free municipal bonds. The new fund continues to offer the traditional benefits of money market funds: broad diversification, simplification of record-keeping, professional management, low administrative expenses, flexibility, constant liquidity, relatively superior rates of return, etc.

On top of all these is the tax-exemption feature, from federal income taxes, and perhaps state and local income taxes, too.

There is no such investment as a tax-exempt savings bank account. There is no centralized or guaranteed market for tax-exempt issues. It is not a simple, one-two-three task to sell short-term, tax-exempt obligations in the secondary market.

Thus, the emergence of the new type of money market fund, designed to be a haven for your cash reserves, while you are holding your reserves for use in other future transactions and to earn comparatively high tax-exempt income for you while you wait.

At this writing, there are just four such funds in which we, as individuals, can invest: the Warwick Short-Term Tax-Exempt Portfolio; the Chancellor Tax-Exempt Daily Income Fund; the Fidelity Tax-Exempt Money Market Trust and the Scudder Tax-Free Money Fund. But others are being developed, will be available soon.

The mechanics of buying and selling conventional, taxable money market funds have become increasingly simplified by electronic funds transfer, telephone exchanges, direct deposits to checking accounts, simplified record-keeping. You, an investor in tax-free money market investments, may get the identical features.

After your initial application is properly executed, with a signature guarantee to establish telephone redemption and telephone exchange privileges, you may add any amount of cash just by sending a check or by transferring cash by federal bank wire to the fund's custodian. Similarly, if you need cash quickly, a toll-free phone call can provide ready access to your account, as shareholder.

The liquidation of any or all of the account's balance may be completed in one day, with the proceeds wired direct to your personal checking account. All tax-free money funds are no-loads.

The higher your income tax bracket, the more attractive a tax-exempt money market fund will be to you, of course. For instance, Scudder Tax-Free Money Fund currently provides a yield of about 5 per cent, while Scudder Managed Reserves or Scudder Cash Investment Trust (taxable money market funds) provide yields of about 10 per cent. Thus, if you're in the 50 per cent tax bracket, far too easy to get to with today's tax rates and the so-called tax "creep" due to inflation, you break even. But if you're in the 70 per cent tax bracket, you would net only 3 per cent out of a taxable return of 10 per cent, and the tax-exempt money market fund would provide a margin of 2 percentage points.

You may find a tax-exempt money fund appropriate as a supplement to savings and taxable market fund investments, not solely as a substitute. In certain tax brackets (40 to 60 per cent, say) you may achieve a better net return by owning a combination of taxable and tax-free investments, rather than one type exclusively.

If you shift enough capital from taxable to tax-exempt forms, your tax bracket can decline to a point where tax-exempt issues are no longer productive.

The trick is to keep a balanced position at the break-even point, where your dollars earned on invested capital are producing the best available return for you within the proper limits of risk and your basic investment objectives.

Interest rates in this era and against today's extraordinarily uncertain economic background are more unpredictable than usual, and that's unpredictable indeed.

Before you make any investment, in tax-free money funds as in other mediums, you must examine your objectives and tax situation. But once you have done so, and as you more clearly understand the usefulness of tax-free money funds, you will may find the funds serve a real need for you.

Next week: Key Questions to Ask About Tax-Free Money Funds.

Evron Questions Sadat's Intentions Over Autonomy

LOS ANGELES, CALIF. — Israel Ambassador to the United States Ephraim Evron asserts that the question of Jerusalem was gratuitously injected into the peace process by Egypt on April 1. On that date the Egyptian parliament passed a resolution claiming Arab sovereignty for East Jerusalem: Evron met the press earlier in the day and later was the major speaker at the opening foreign affairs plenary session of Hadassah's annual national convention meeting here August 24 through 27.

The Ambassador said that he fears that the Egyptians are deliberately sabotaging the autonomy negotiations with Israel which President Sadat has unilaterally suspended four different times "for no good reason."

Evron explained that the question of Jerusalem was to be dealt with at the end of the five-year Transition Period, as indicated in the Camp David Agreement. Instead, according to Evron, the Egyptian parliament raised the question of Jerusalem in April and once again in July. Israel has merely responded to the Egyptian initiative, he explained.

Furthermore, he pointed out, that while Israel continues to implement the peace treaty by moving back from territories in the Sinai and by giving up oil fields, the "normalization process" is not being carried out by Egypt as envisaged.

Sinowitz Struggling To Solidify Talks

JERUSALEM, (JTA) — U.S. special envoy Sol Sinowitz is understood to have forcefully urged Premier Menachem Begin not to go ahead with his plan to move the Prime Minister's Office and Cabinet room to East Jerusalem.

In a three-hour tete a tete, the envoy is believed to have argued with Begin that this move, or the annexation of the Golan Heights (a proposal to that effect is under discussion among Likud and Labor Knesseters) would both be very severe blows indeed to the chance of peace.

Sinowitz, also understood to feel that if the autonomy talks cannot be resumed soon, the Camp David process is in danger of wilting and eventually dying. He reportedly does not fault solely Israel for the deterioration of the situation: for instance, Sinowitz appears to accept the Israeli contention that Egypt has been stalling over the "normalization." He also heard, and apparently appreciated, Israel's claim that the Egyptian press has mounted a viciously hostile campaign against Begin and Israel as a whole — which does nothing to help the peace process.

Israel's chief autonomy negotiator, Interior Minister Yosef Burg, was quoted as saying his own talk with Sinowitz had been "tough." The special envoy is to see Begin again and meet with the full autonomy negotiating team under Burg. He will also meet separately with Labor Party chairman Shimon Peres and former Premier Yitzhak Rabin.

Sinowitz is understood to firmly deny that his current mission is a political gambit connected with the U.S. President election campaign and designed to show that the peace process, the brightest foreign policy feather in President Carter's cap, is still alive. He has expressed fears on the part of Washington that an ongoing suspension of the talks can only lead to their final collapse.

Sinowitz will be going to Egypt next week where President Anwar Sadat has renewed his proposal Camp David-style talks in Washington after the U.S. Presidential election in November. According to Alhram, a special Egyptian envoy took Sadat's latest message to Ambassador Saad M. Mortana in Israel who delivered it to Begin.

Sinowitz will also be arriving in Cairo in the wake of a charge by Egyptian Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali Saturday that the Carter Administration wanted to revive the autonomy talks for election purposes. In a report to the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Egyptian Parliament, Ali also accused Israel of breaking pledges given in private to Egyptian and American negotiators. The autonomy talks, which were to have resumed in early August after Sadat broke them off last May, were postponed again by the Egyptian President to protest Israel's new Jerusalem Law. Ali said that Cairo believes that the talks could not resume while Israel took such measures. But he charged that the Carter Administration views the Camp David accords as important to the President's reelection campaign and wanted negotiations to resume regardless of what happened. "They wanted to give American public opinion the impression their Middle East efforts are still achieving positive results," Ali said.

In another development, Luxembourg's Foreign Minister Gaston Thorn, chairman of the European Economic Community's (EEC) Council of Ministers, who was in Cairo recently, said he has postponed another visit to Israel at Israel's request. He said he would try to arrange a new date in order to meet with West Bank and Gaza leaders.

Thorn has visited Israel, Lebanon, Jordan, Syria, Saudi Arabia, the Persian Gulf, the Arab League headquarters in Tunis and Egypt in a follow-up to the EEC foreign ministers' declaration in Venice last June calling for the participation of all parties, including the Palestine Liberation Organization, in Middle East peace negotiations.

Meanwhile, Bolivia has become the latest country to decide to move its embassy from Jerusalem to Tel Aviv.

In Israel, meanwhile, there is a growing feeling among observers that the plan to move the Premier's office to East Jerusalem is no longer seen with enthusiasm by many Cabinet ministers.

Chastened by the dramatic, and for Israel entirely negative, effects of the Jerusalem Law, a number of senior ministers are understood to be having serious second thoughts about the wisdom of moving the office at this time. Ministers have indicated that they want to be consulted privately and individually by Begin before he brings the matter up before the Cabinet.

Education Minister Ze'evulun Hammer said in a radio interview that there was no argument that Israel had the right to place the office wherever it wanted in Jerusalem, but moving the office now would be politically ill-timed.

In a separate interview, Labor Alignment Knesseter Yossi Sarid charged, quoting a "senior coalition source," that Cabinet ministers had promised Washington that the Jerusalem bill would be buried in committee. However, Sarid said, eventually "local political interests took precedence over the State's interests, and the Jerusalem issue became a victim of the coming (Israeli) election campaign."

Begin Protests Abstention In Letter To Muskie

JERUSALEM, (JTA) — Premier Menachem Begin has written to U.S. Secretary of State Edmund Muskie to protest the U.S. abstention in the United Nations Security Council on the resolution censuring Israel for the Jerusalem law and calling on countries with embassies in Jerusalem to move them. Government sources would not divulge the contents of the letter but said it was a strongly-worded rejection of the U.S. claim that the Jerusalem law was a unilateral move which harmed the Middle East peace process. Israel recently denounced the Security Council resolution and said it was "categorically rejecting it." At the Cabinet meeting Begin said the resolution was passed because the U.S. had abstained. He described the resolution and the abstention as "surrender to blackmail by the oil monsters."

Meanwhile, the Foreign Ministry took issue with the U.S. State Department for denying the validity of a sentence in a statement by the Cabinet that said "there are clear pledges in the U.S. to transfer the American embassy from the plain (Tel Aviv) to Jerusalem." The Foreign Ministry statement, which was apparently inspired by Begin personally, said "the official denial is mistaken."

Successful Investing

Bonds Vs. Stocks
A True Story

by David R. Sargent

Q— I'm a widow who needs advice on managing available resources. How should my assets be divided between bonds and stocks? w.W. Massachusetts.

A— Several years ago, I advised the lady who asked the question to put her money in common stocks. She, however, hankered for bonds, because the immediate return was much higher. She had trouble buying Georgia-Pacific with a cash return of 1.6 per cent when she could get a good solid utility bond paying more than 8 per cent. And, in a way, you couldn't blame her. When you invest for income to live on, you naturally reach for the yield that is the most generous today.

But I argued for tomorrow. I pointed out that a fixed-income return is just that — fixed. It'll never get any better. And in an inflationary era, that's something to worry about. Congress has always rescued the retiree from the loss of purchasing power of the Social Security dollar, but there is no one to rescue the bondholder when his or her interest coupon dollar shrinks. After considerable palaver in this vein, the lady yielded some and bought both bonds and stocks. That was about ten years ago. I recently decided to see what had happened to this particular portfolio over the past decade, updating figures to show current security values and dividend rates. Her common stocks have moved up in value but, more important, her dividend income has really soared.

The income today is some 108 per cent more than it was when she bought the stocks, thus keeping her just about even with the advance in the cost of living. And for the most part, these were not growth companies selected for capital gains. The were issues one might buy for an income oriented portfolio.

For a while the total dollars paid to be by the bond section of her portfolio over the years were larger than the amount she got as common stock dividends. This reflected an average bond yield at the beginning of better than 8 per cent vs. less than 5 per cent on the common stocks. But each year dividend increases on the common stock have inched ahead until the dollar return soared well past that of the bonds.

If the proof of the pudding is in the eating the long-term investor should look to good common stocks for income in these inflationary times. Many of the original stock in the widow's portfolio are still attractive buys. A half dozen of them, with an average yield close to 7 per cent, would include American Tel. & Tel., Caterpillar Tractor, Conoco, Inc., Exxon, Georgia-Pacific, and New England Electric.

Admoni Named To Head Project Renewal

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Yehiel Admoni of Jerusalem has been named Director-General of the Project Renewal Division of the Jewish Agency for Israel. The appointment was made by the Agency's Board of Governors on the recommendation of United Israel Appeal Chairman Jerold C. Hoffberger, who serves as Chairman of the Jewish Agency Project Renewal Committee, and Robert Russell, the committee's Co-Chairman.

Russell, who is also Chairman of the United Jewish Appeal Project Renewal Coordinating Committee, made the announcement here today.

"Mr. Admoni comes to this position with extensive administrative experience," said Russell. "He has first-hand knowledge of the workings of both the Jewish Agency and the Israeli government, as well as a well-earned reputation as a man who gets things done. He is an excellent choice to continue the work started by Eliezer Rafaeli."

For the past three years, Admoni has been Director-General of Agridev, an Israeli company which assists Third World nations with agricultural development programs. He is a former staff member of the Jewish Agency Rural Settlement Department, and served as its Director-General from 1969 through 1977. He also was Director of the Agricultural Training Administration of the Jewish Agency, and Deputy Chief of the joint Ministry of Agriculture/Jewish Agency Agricultural Training Administration.

A native of Jerusalem, Admoni served with the Palmach during the War of Independence. In 1957, he studied in the United States under a special United Nations grant and returned to this country in 1965 to complete work on a master's degree in agricultural economics at Purdue University.

Prayer Amendment Assailed By Jewish Congress

WASHINGTON, — The American Jewish Congress has assailed an amendment to the 1981 Department of Education appropriation bill, which recently passed the House of Representatives, barring the Department of Education from spending any funds for the purpose of "preventing the implementation of programs of voluntary prayer or meditation" in the public schools.

Professor Abraham S. Goldstein, chairman of the American Jewish Congress Commission on Law and Social Action, called the bill "the latest in a series of unsuccessful Congressional attempts to overturn the decisions of the Supreme Court prohibiting religious exercises in the public schools." He added: "Although we know of no program of the Department of Education which would be subject to the language of this amendment, it is disheartening that Members of Congress, who have taken oaths to support the Constitution, have voted to subvert that very Constitution."

The American Jewish Congress spokesman noted that a House subcommittee has not yet completed its hearings on the so-called Helms Amendment, which would deprive the federal courts of jurisdiction in determining challenges to state and local laws calling for "voluntary prayer" in public schools.

"We are dismayed that the House has chosen not to wait for the informed views of the subcommittee before attempting to legislate in this area," Professor Goldstein said, adding:

"Religion is not a device to be used by government for the advancement of its ends. It is against the interests of religion itself when government seeks to manipulate religion in order to maintain and propagate specific, and often transitory, societal codes.

The truths of religion grow out of profound faith and conviction, not the needs of a particular society.

He also went on to state that, "the teachings of religion include ethical values, and that religion has played an essential part in heightening and strengthening moral responsibility, cannot be doubted. What we do challenge, however, is whether 'public school religion' can provide moral or ethical education."

Indeed, there is strong evidence that state-sponsored religion does not increase the public morality of any government that promotes or endorses it."

JWV's Reaffirm Jerusalem Position

NEW ORLEANS, La. (JTA) — The Jewish War Veterans concluded its 85th annual convention by reaffirming its position that an undivided and integrated Jerusalem remain, now and forever, the capital of Israel. "We decry the most recent abstention of the U.S. government in the Nations Security Council," a resolution on this issue stated. It added that the resolution last week "clearly represents meddling in the internal affairs of a sovereign state."
