HITLER CONFIDANT SAILS TO REPORT ON U. S. SITUATION

Newark, Feb. 17—(JTA)—Dr. Ludwig R. Sattler, a native of this city, and said to be a close confidant of Adolf Hitler, has sailed for Europe to report to the Nazi leader as to the alleged sentiment which Americans evince toward the German Fascist movement.

Sailing via a roundabout route, he is heading first toward South America, where he also will study the reaction toward Hitlerism. He will then cross the Andes for Buenos Aires, where he will head for Germany.

At a farewell gathering held here and attended chiefly by members of German singing societies, Dr. Sattler asserted:

"Germany wants and favors a strong government. She wants a man of the type of Hitler, who is a 100 per cent patriot, to steer the ship of state—a strong man who will insist on Germany taking her place among the Great Powers

Austrian Edict Limits Refugees

Many Jews Leaving Germany to Escape Possible Persecution by Nazis

Vienna, Feb. 17—(JTA)—Acting on the report that the railways and roads are crowded with refugees, including numerous Jews, who are seeking to cross the German frontier into Austria, the Austrian government has issued orders for the strict control of the Austrian-German frontier, for the purpose of "preventing the entry of undesirable foreigners."

The Austrian press announces that regulations regarding asylum to foreigners will be tightened by the government in order to meet the situation which is developing.

According to the reports the majority of the so-called refugees who are allegedly leaving Germany are non-citizens of Germany, who are departing from the country because they fear that measures will be taken against them by Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

Popular Jewish Merchant Dies Suddenly In Bristol

Rhode Island Jewry lost one of its most colorful figures in the sudden death early this week in Bristol of Max Makowsky, who succumbed to a heart attack in his home, 192 Wood street, that town, early Monday morning.

He was stricken shortly after midnight and died before a physician, hastily summoned, could aid him. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from his home, with Rabbi H. D. Bachrach of Providence officiating. Burial was in Lincoln Cemetery and Rabbi Israel M. Goldman of this city was in charge of the committal service.

Survivors are his widow, a daughter, Mrs. Ethel Barron, of West Newton, Mass.; four sons, Charles, of Bristol; Dr. Israel Makowsky of New York; Sidney, of Bristol, and Raymond, a student at Harvard; three brothers, Nathan Marks of Warren, Irving Makowsky of Attleboro, Albert Makowsky of Bristol; a sister, Mrs. Pauline Bressel of Worcester, Mass., and two sisters in Poland.

Mr. Makowsky's life story read like a novel. Born in Germany, 59 years ago, he went to Switzerland when a young man and became associated with a cousin in the dry good business. He came to Providence in 1897 and was married to Miss Eva Novogroski. Six months later he moved to Bristol, opening a dry good and clothing store. He prospered catering principally to Italian and Portuguese immigrants, befriending many by giving credit when they could not get it elsewhere.

After expanding his business rapidly, keeping pace with the great influx of Portuguese and Italian immigrants into Bristol, Mr. Makowsky shrewdly anticipated the demand for increased housing facilities and launched a building campaign, acquiring a number of dwelling houses. He also aided many home builders by advancing necessary funds.

His business ability generally recognized, other merchants sought Mr. Makowsky's advice. Sponsors of the program to rehabilitate Bristol in an industrial way often conferred with him.

Three years ago he bought the Hasbrouck block in Hope street, sustained a sizeable loss when the building was partially destroyed by fire, rebuilt and remodeled it and moved his store into the heart of the town's business section. He had been attending business daily although in failing health for some time.

Mr. Makowsky, in addition to having been first President of the Bristol Synagogue, was a member of the Howell Street Synagogue in Providence, the B'nai B'rith, Providence Protective Fraternal Association and the Bristol Chamber of Commerce.

Senator Robin Presents Jewish War Veterans' Armistice Day Resolve

In support of his bill to require all stores and factories to close on Armistice Day, Senator Paul J. Robin of Providence, Democrat, last Tuesday presented to the Senate a resolution passed unanimously by the Department of Rhode Island Jewish War Veterans of the United States.

The resolve, signed by Department Adjutant Barney Taber and Department Commander Herman W. ## U. S. Jewish Group Willing to Develop Transjordan Sector

Reported Ready to Spend $5,000,000 Provided Lease Is Procured for Territory

Arabs Seeking Privileges

Jerusalem, Feb. 17—(JTA)—An American Jewish company undertook to invest five million dollars to develop Transjordan territory in the event that it was able to conclude an agreement for a land lease with Emir Abdullah.

This allegation is published by the Arab press today, which says it has authentic information with regard to the terms of the projected land lease.

The Arab press are dissatisfied with yesterday's communique from the Emir's palace, which declares that he is unable to supply his own private capital for its development. The papers demand that the land be leased to Arabs.

Despite the communique, the feeling here is that the matter is not entirely ended as far as leasing land to a Jewish company is concerned. The view is expressed here that the matter will be closed to Jews only if the Arabs succeed in obtaining the capital for the development of the territory available.

Lipsky Scores Britain

New York, Feb. 17—(JTA)—The maintenance of an artificial division between Transjordan and Palestine is accentuating Jewish-Arab differences was asserted here Sunday by Louis Lipsky, national chairman of the American Palestine Campaign, and former President of the Zionist Organization of America, in an address at the semi-annual meeting of the Seaboard Zionist Region at the Jewish Community Center.

Referring to the recent offer of Emir Abdullah to lease his land holdings in Transjordan to a Jewish company, Mr. Lipsky declared that "if England is really in earnest about establishing peace between Arabs and Jews and at the same time is seriously interested in the development of the Jewish National Home, it would take steps at once to remove the po-

Warsaw Eliminates Help To Jewish Institutions

Warsaw, Feb. 17—(JTA)—The abolition of subsidies received in the past by various Jewish institutions and Jewish schools, has been resolved by the Executive Committee of the Warsaw Municipality.

The withdrawal of the subventions will deal a death blow to the Jewish institutions who are already in a precarious state owing to the economic crisis.

The withdrawal of the municipal subsidies was decided upon as part of an economy measure which resulted in the cutting of the budget for social welfare and educational purposes from 1,800,000 zlotys to 1,050,000 zlotys.

Many non-Jewish institutions are altogether unaffected by the cut.

Objection is expressed to the fact that instead of making equal reductions in the budget for the various institutions, the executive decided to eliminate some Jewish institutions from receiving aid while radically reducing subventions of others.

Thus the Tarbut Hebrew schools, which formerly received 24,000 zlotys are to receive 9000 zlotys; the Yiddish schools, known as Zischo, are cut from 60,000 zlotys to 23,000 zlotys; the Orthodox schools and the Jewish orphanages receive proportionate cuts.

Anti-Semitic disturbances, led by National Democratic students, broke out at the University of Warsaw in connection with the proposal to limit the autonomy of the universities.

A Jewish student was severely beaten up during the disturbances.

The disturbances started first as clashes between the pro-government students, who support the measure, and the National Democrats, members of the opposition party. Later they developed into an attack upon the Jews who suffered most heavily.

A Professor Tadeusz Szarniecki was also attacked and injured, because he favors the limitation of the university autonomy.

Police were permitted to enter the university campus and dispersed the rioters.

LATVIAN NAZIS ATTACK BIALIK CLUB IN RIGA

Riga, Feb. 17—(JTA)—A Latvian Nazi group recently attacked the Bialik Club here.

Several Jews were injured. The furniture was demolished and portraits of Theodor Herzl and Chaim Nachman Bialik, the Hebrew poet, after whom the club is named, were destroyed. The Nazi attackers were arrested.

TAX TO SOLVE PROBLEM OF SYNAGOGUE UPKEEP URGED

New York, Feb. 17—(JTA)—A plan to solve the financial difficulties of congregations, through taxation of the more affluent members of each congregation, has been proposed by Israel Silberman, prominent resident of Kew Gardens and President of Congregation Beth-Israel Community Center of Richmond Hill, as well as Treasurer of the United Synagogue of America.

Mr. Silberman's plan, which is similar to that of the old Jewish Kehillahs, whereby every member of the Jewish community was taxed for the upkeep of the Synagogue and other Jewish institutions, proposes to request every affluent member of a congregation to tax himself to the extent of a large annual contribution to the funds of the synagogue. This tax will greatly exceed the amount of the annual dues.

REMOVE DYK AS DIRECTOR OF CO-OPERATIVE SETTLEMENT

Berlin, Feb. 17—(JTA)—The removal of Solomon Dyk, the Jewish director of the Prussian Co-operative Settlement Company, was formally brought about by the Prussian government.

The official reason given for the removal of Dyk, who has rendered outstanding service to the co-operative settlement, is that he is not a German but a Polish citizen.

It is known, however, that Dyk has been the target of a relentless campaign on the part of the Nazi press who seek the dismissal of all Jews from government service.

Dyk has been a resident of Germany for thirty years.

Mayor Dunne Pledges Support to Membership Drive for the Home

The following letter was received from Mayor James E. Dunne, addressed to Nat C. Cohen, Chairman of the Home for the Aged Membership Committee:

February 9, 1933

Mr. Nat C. Cohen,
Chairman of Jewish Home for Aged Membership Enrollment,
403 Woolworth Building,
Providence, R. I.

Dear Mr. Cohen:—

It is a pleasure for me to endorse and lend my whole-hearted support to the Campaign now being conducted for the Jewish Home for the Aged. To my mind there is no more touching situation than that of the aged. Many of them cannot help themselves, and have but a few years left. It is the duty of the younger members of the community to determine whether or not that short space of time shall be one of happiness and comfort, or one of despondency and worry.

I urge the citizens of Providence to listen to your plans and to contribute to the campaign. I feel that this is a very deserving cause and should receive the support and co-operation of the public in order that the Campaign will be a complete success.

Very sincerely yours,

(Signed), JAMES E. DUNNE,

Mayor.

TIDBITS

By SYLVIA L. ROBIN

An unplanned housewarming was held at the gorgeous new home of the Reuben Lipson on Blackstone Boulevard, when two score of their friends trooped in last Saturday night. And it developed into a wow of a party. After the hostess recovered from the shock of surprise, a tour of inspection began. Each room of the beautiful house was found to be lovelier than the preceding one. When the party finally settled itself around the spacious living room, an antique urn, the gift of the visitors, was presented to Mrs. Lipson. Ethel Cohen made the presentation speech and was ably assisted by side remarks from Harry Hoffman. Then the party became gay and hilarious. Games were played, drinks (rainbow hued), were served, having been shook up by the host himself. Platters of sandwiches and cakes and all things good loaded the dining room table to capacity. Having had a most enjoyable evening the following guests finally departed: The Messrs. and Mesdames Aaron Cohen, Barney Taber, Irving Glantz, George Silverman, Mac Cohen, Irving Paster, Herman Davis, Joe Berman, Leo Wine, Abe Halpert, Otto Politzer, Paul Robin, Henry Hoffman, Irving Goldstein, Sam Mistowsky, Carl Jagoliner, Joseph Fields, John Rouslin, Jack Bronsky.

The Valentine dance held at the Vets' quarters, Tuesday night, was a gala affair. Everybody was there. Good fellowship was the prevailing spirit and a hundred people seemed like one big happy family. There were tap dances and a Paul Jones directed by a self-appointed master of ceremonies, our own dear Senator Paul Robin. Some seated around the dance floor, some in the lounging room and others dancing, we came across the following: Mr. and Mrs. Cohen, the latter the genial President of the Vets' Auxiliary; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Wine, she a Past President, in a pretty green gown; Mr. and Mrs. Ted Rosenblatt, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Berman, both of these ladies sporting new dresses; Mr. and Mrs. Irving Glantz, the misses choosing her husband's dancing partners; Sally Blumenthal, beaming when her husband appeared on the scene; Rose Halpert, having a fine time even though she came stag; Esmond Borod, accompanied by the little waxed mustache, and also his wife; Mr. and Mrs. Mac Cohen, the well-liked Senior Vice Commander and his famous National President wife—and what a laugh when she pulled another president's number for the prize box of chocolates; Mr. and Mrs. Barney Taber, who also won a prize; Mr. and Mrs. Phil Pokras—always the life of a party; Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Sugarman and their guests, the Myer Perlmutters; Leo Lewis, the caterer—and what a feed he put up. A group, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barad, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Rosen—the petite lady in black velvet, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Goldstein, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Wexler, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Berman.

Harry and Mrs. Hoffman, getting all the laughs; Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Lipson, Mrs. with her pearl-studded jabot, and Reuben in gray—his best suit; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Berger, Mr. and Mrs. Will Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Wagnan, Sam and Winnie Mistowsky, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Epstein, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Swerling being congratulated on their new home. Mr. and Mrs. M. Decof, Mr. and Mrs. Klemer, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gertz, Jack couldn't wait for 11:15, when it was time to eat. Mr. and Mrs. Si Schwartz, and representing Taft avenue, the following Dr. and Mrs. Maurice Mellon, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schreiber, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Silverman and Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Blumenthal, Jeanette won a box of candy, had palpitation of the heart and was the last one out of the building, having waited for the musicians to go home so she could do some entertaining. Mr. and Mrs. Dave Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Musen, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cowan, —off in a corner those newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Blacher. From Fall River, the Charles Jagoliner, and the Harry Goldbergs. Drs. Ben and John and their fraus—arriving late, but just in time for refreshments. At 12 o'clock the music stopped and the evening was over all too soon.

GEORGE WASHINGTON—FRIEND OF THE JEWS

Replying to a letter from the Charleston Jewish Congregation in 1790, congratulating him upon his accession to the presidency, George Washington enunciated a cardinal American principle which should be an integral part of the store of learning of every youth, whether Jewish or Gentile. As a statement mirroring the broad tolerance, the keen understanding and the warm and human sympathy of a great man it is a classic.

"The citizens of the United States," he wrote, "have a right to applaud themselves for having given to mankind examples of an enlarged and liberal policy worthy of imitation. All possess alike liberty of conscience and immunities of citizenship. It is for happily the government of the United States, which gives to bigotry no sanction, to persecution no assistance requires only that they who live under its protection shall demean themselves as good citizens in giving it on all occasions their effectual support. May the children of the stock of Abraham who dwell in this land continue to merit and enjoy the good will of the other inhabitants, while every one shall sit in safety under his own vine and fig tree, and there shall be none to make him afraid."

For a philosophy asserting fundamental American doctrines, guaranteeing religious liberty, protecting against persecution, and allowing the development of one's own code of life the letter is unequalled in our literature. Here is the key to the character of a man who saw clearly beyond the narrow confines of race and class, and prophet-wise envisioned the America for which he had fought so long and so well as a promised land for all mankind.

During his lifetime Washington's relations with the Jews were of the most pleasant nature. He was aware of and proud of the fact that the preponderant majority of the Jewish colonist were aligned with the patriot cause. The Non-Importation Agreements are studied with the names of Jewish merchants. Jews enlisted under the Colonial banner far in proportion to their representation in the population. A Jew, Haym Solomon, loaned his entire personal fortune, more than $650,000, to the patriot cause and impoverished himself and his family in doing so. Two Jews were on Washington's staff, the brave and intrepid Major Benjamin Nones and the fearless Colonel Isaac Franks, who served as his aide de camp.

Fearless and courageous on the field of battle, possessing more than any other American of his age fundamental qualities of leadership, which stood him in such good stead during the trying period in the struggle for American independence, Washington carried into the presidency with him other personal qualities which have given him an imperishable place in history.

Washington was faithful in his loyalties, unswerving in his idealism, sympathetic in his relations with others. Above all he possessed human understanding. It was the foundation upon which he built his entire philosophy. It was the guiding hand which directed his work while he was in office. For him there were no differing races, no gradations in social classes—only fellowmen who needed direction, and co-operation—without which no great nation can exist.

One of the unfortunate attributes of Time is the fact that succeeding generations tend to forget the examples of History's great sons. If we are to remember Washington for his heroism during the carnage of Valley Forge, it is, to us at least, more important that we remember Washington for enunciating principles such as we find in the letter quoted above.

It would not be too much to say that were there a man among us who possessed the qualities of Washington—he would be the man to lead us out of the shadow of our present day Valley of Darkness. For Washington epitomized to the fullest degree the elementary fact that if nations are to exist side by side along the broad lines of fundamental human friendships—and without it there is no room at all for any continued amicable international existence—we must develop men, and hence nations, possessing what George Washington did—prophetic vision, broad tolerance and human understanding.

BY THE WAY

TIDBITS AND NEWS OF JEWISH PERSONALITIES

By DAVID SCHWARTZ

Hitler No Bryan

Did you listen to Brother (or is it Sister, as some would have it). Hitler in the news reel the other day? Well, I did, and for the life of me, I don't see where they get those comparisons of the oratorical powers of Hitler with the late William Jennings Bryan.

As to phraseology and content I can make no comparison for Sister Hitler spoke a little too fast for me, to enable me to get his German, but from the standpoint of voice and oratorical presence, there is no comparison.

Bryan's voice—sonorous, metallic, almost effortlessly sailing over the largest auditoriums, and clear as the proverbial bell.

Hitler's—strained, screechy, like the creaking of a rusty hinged door, or the meowing of a half a dozen cats chased by a mangy poodle.

Van Paassen's New Piccolo

Mr. Pierre Van Paassen, who for several years, has been singing enigma of Zionist effort, is now fiddling to another tune, that of the Soviet Jewish colonization in Biro-Bidjan.

In his latest effusion, Mr. Van Paassen brings no less gladsome tidings than that gold and oil will presently be discovered in Biro-Bidjan. Mr. Van Paassen tells us that he knows whereof he speaks, for it seems, he once took some courses in geology.

We hope Mr. Van Paassen is right, but we should like to know of what particular benefit such discoveries would be to the Jews of that section.

Potatoes vs. Gold

Being in the Soviet realms it is hardly to be expected, that the Soviet authorities would allow the Jews of that particular section to keep the gold.

It seems to me that as far as the Jewish colonists of Soviet Russia are concerned, it would be much better for them to discover some potatoes or horse radish. They could at least eat that themselves.

Palestine and Russia

The above, of course, is not said in any hostility to the Biro-Bidjan project per se. If I have any prejudice at all in the matter, it is because Mr. Van Paassen has in his series of articles, by implication, if not overtly, turned to condemning Palestine.

He writes though to say: What's the use of wasting time with oranges in Palestine, when the Jews in the Russian colonies pick gold nuggets from the soil.

The Story of '49

It is far better to pick potatoes or oranges from the soil than gold. Ask California. She knows.

One of the greatest gold rushes in the history of civilization occurred in California in 1849.

The ones who got rich there however, were not so much the gold miners, as those who raised food and sold the food to the gold miners.

It is a truism that in the case of gold mines, more is put into the earth than is taken out.

Jews as Colonists

I am, I repeat, very much interested in the Biro-Bidjan project, and I see no reason why it shouldn't be a success.

It should be a success, because, it seems, as colonizers, Jews are remarkably successful.

Indeed, a friend of mine, who has made the subject of colonization something of a specialty, tells me that Jews are the world's greatest colonizers.

England is generally regarded as the greatest colonizing power, but this friend tells me, that England's success is largely due to Jewish agents. The pioneer developers of Africa, Australia, etc., were Jews, according to him.

A Story

The story was told to me yesterday, and I didn't regard it as funny, but this morning, while shaving, I found myself laughing over it. So I will tell it to you. Maybe you are smarter and will laugh right away. It is told of a big-town and small-town Jew in Russia, who chanced to meet each other one day.

"Where are you from?" asked Chayim.

"I am from Berditchiv," replied Shmooel.

"Is Berditchiv a big town?"

"No," said Shmooel. "It's a town of about 60,000."

"How many Jews are there?"

"Well, of the 60,000, about 50,000 are Jews."

Now it was Shmooel's turn to ask. "And you, where are you from?"

"I am from Moscow," replied Chayim.

"And the population?"

"The population of Moscow is about 2,000,000."

"And how many Jews are there?"

"Oh, there are about 30,000 Jews in Moscow."

"Zu vas tag euch a zo viel goyim?" asked Shmooel.

And how many Jews are there?

"Oh, there are about 30,000 Jews in Moscow."

"Zu vas tag euch a zo viel goyim?" asked Shmooel.

And how many Jews are there?

by Editor Slomovitz of the Detroit Jewish Chronicle.

Writes the Detroit editor: "A young Detroit Jewish lawyer represented a Jewish client who sued a Frenchman for back rent. A French lawyer happened to represent the defendant. It was a jury trial and the Frenchman, addressing the jury, said something about the plaintiff's counsel possessing the faculties of a race which know how to juggle with facts and cover them up."

"The young Jewish lawyer replied that if he possessed such a quality of his race, his opponent was endowed with the faculty of his own race to fail to pay their debts on time."

"In view of the foreign debt quarrel, it was an excellent retort," comments Mr. Slomovitz, "and it helped the young Jew in securing the verdict."

"This case," adds Slomovitz, "reminds me of a trial in a New York court, about ten years ago. A Jew was the defendant and the lawyer was also a Jew. The plaintiff's attorney, addressing the jury, told the story about the Irishman, Frenchman and Jew, who went to the grave of a friend to pay their final tributes. The Irishman placed a five dollar check on the coffin, the Frenchman, a five hundred franc note, and the Jew took out the two bills and put a ten thousand dollar check in their stead. No sooner did the lawyer get through telling the story than the judge arose and declared a mistrial on the ground that the jury was being prejudiced."

Hadassah Holds Linen Shower; Plan Donors' Luncheon for May 24

The Providence Chapter of Hadassah held its regular meeting and annual linen shower at Temple Beth-El Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. Samuel Michaelson presiding.

Ostrow and of particular interest was the contribution of Hearne's Department Store of New York, giving one per cent. of their total sales of Wednesday, Feb. 15th, towards the New York Chapter Donors' Luncheon. The decoration and displays there were in keeping with the spirit of Hadassah for that day and the most prominent women in Hadassah acted as sales-ladies and department heads.

Rabbi William G. Braude extended greetings and welcomed Hadassah in the name of Temple Beth-El and warmly commended the work of Hadassah with its great influence for good in every Jewish community.

THE YEARS BETWEEN

By NINA KAYE

Minna Waldman was forty, though she looked ten years younger, with her exquisitely kept hair and face and hands. After all, it was her business to keep women young though with none of her customers—clients, she called them—had she succeeded as well as with her self. (Minna didn't like to remember that her sister Hannah, two years older and the mother of three half-grown boys, didn't look her years either, and Hannah had gone all her life, at least since the fashion for puffs went out in 1910, without benefit of beauty parlor.)

But Minna wasn't thinking of her sister Hannah that December evening. She stood before the long mirror in her silver and black "salon de beauté" patting into place a marcel that was already perfect. The last customer had long since departed, the girls had all cleaned their booths and gone home. Minna had balanced the register, switched out all the lights but the front one. She was alone with her thoughts.

"It's not," she mused "it's not as if I didn't have any money or if I looked forty."

Quite suddenly an overwhelming loneliness came over her. "What was I working for all these years?" she demanded bitterly of her image. "At first, going around from one house to another with a satchel, struggling and saving until I could get this shop. And then, working here, early and late—" Her hands dropped to her sides. "Was it to send Hannah's boys to college? Was it to buy nice clothes for myself?"

Minna's eyes sought the clock. Quarter past ten. In another minute Sol Klein would be here, on his way home from night school, where he taught, waiting for an appointment in the city high school. A slow flush mounted the soft curve of her cheek. Her head went up with a defiant gesture. "What if he is twenty-seven?" she demanded. "I don't look more than thirty!"

Sinking into a chair, Minna's thoughts swept ahead of her. Something had happened to her in the past few weeks—ever since Sol Klein had taken to stopping by the shop, waiting while she locked up and walking along with her to her boarding house. Before that she had been proud of herself, proud of her shop and what she had done, proud of the snug little bank account she had been too wary to touch in the hectic days of 1929.

She didn't know at exactly what moment she had ceased pitying her sister Hannah and begun to admire her. Hannah had her boys to make her proud. Hannah had her husband, even if he never was much of a money maker. And she, Minna, had no one!

"We could travel," she said desperately. "Even if everybody in town would talk, we wouldn't be here to hear them. I'd never let myself get old. I'd be interested in everything he is interested in. What kind of a future has he got here, waiting for years, maybe until he gets an appointment? I'd make everything easy for him. We would settle somewhere else, New York, maybe. He could take up law, anything."

Minna sprang to her feet. Her heart was beating in her throat. She'd do it! Tonight! "He likes me," she reassured herself. "He doesn't have to come all the way downtown. I didn't ask him to come!"

There was a rattle at the locked door. Minna took a last hasty glance at herself in the mirror, saw that her cheeks were flushed with excitement, then she ran to open the door. Sol stood outside, looking very young and boyish with his upturned coat collar and his head uncovered to the winter wind.

"Hello," he greeted her, "all alone?"

"All alone as usual," Minna answered, noting the gay lilt in her voice. "Wait until I put my hat on and I'll be with you." Why did she tremble so? She could hardly adjust the inverted saucer of a hat over her hair. She managed, somehow to slide into the sleeves of her mink coat which he held for her.

Locking the door, Minna swung in to step beside Sol. He stopped an instant to relight his pipe, the flare of the match bronzing his strong young face. Then they started down the deserted, wintry street.

Minna didn't know how to begin didn't know how to lead the conversation around to what she had to say. She felt frozen inside, knowing, as she did, how much depended on tonight.

"It's rotten luck," Sol spoke into the teeth of the wind. "It certainly is rotten luck to be starting out in life now. Why, if I'd been born ten years earlier, I'd be somewhere by now—even if I were a failure. I'd at least know it was due to my own lack of ability. But nowadays, we can only sit back and twiddle our thumbs and blame everything on the time."

Minna's heart leaped gladly. There he had done it for her, prepared the way for anything she had to say. Swiftly, the words raced through her brain as she nerved herself to say them aloud. She had only to say, "It doesn't have to be so hard for you Sol. I've got enough for both of us if we were married—"

She had it all thought out, any possible objection that might come up, whether he voiced it or not. They went a few steps in silence.

Sol spoke again before Minna had gathered sufficient courage. "It's so desperately hard on people who're in love, Miss Waldman. Here a man wants nothing in the world but to make a living and a home for the girl he loves and his hands are tied."

Something in Minna's throat began to flutter. She had only to tell him, only to say, she had enough. But Sol was still talking.

"And just because he refuses to rush into marriage without any prospects, without knowing what he'll be doing a month from now, is no reason she should refuse to see him, do you think, Miss Waldman?"

Why was he talking like this? Why was he asking her these questions?

He laughed ruefully. "Pardon me for telling you my troubles," he said, with an attempted lightness. "You're not responsible for the depression. And what have economic laws to do with natural laws? I won't bother you any more." He paused. "I did think, though, that if she cared, if she loved me so much she was willing to marry me whether I had a job or not, she'd wait once for me after the shop was closed."

For an instant Minna felt as if she had died. "Helen!" she gasped, "You came every night for Helen?"

He nodded mutely.

Then Minna spoke softly, more to herself than to him. "She's always crying, every time she's in the booth without a customer, I hear her crying. I—I thought she was sick. I—I made her go home early every night!" Blindly, through her own tears, Minna reached out and put her hand on his arm.

"She's right, Sol," she said through the ache inside her. "A job doesn't matter. Money doesn't matter. You should get married. It's so terrible to be alone!"

"THE HOUSE THAT SERVICE BUILT"

BROAD and STEWART STREETS PROVIDENCE

cause the other day Miss Hirsch, whose father Max is the trainer of a formidable public stable at Belmont Park, New York, went before the Jockey Club and asked for permission to build up a stable of her own. Whether or not she will get her license rests with the governors of that club and their decision is due any day. If they act favorably on her application it will be the first time in the history of the sport that a woman has received a trainers' license.

At the moment, Miss Hirsch, who has just turned twenty, has a one-horse stable. This is a two-year-old she has named Tullihoo. The colt is by Polymeian-Tullia. According to Major Algernon Daingerfield, of the Jockey Club, Miss Hirsch asks permission to train only thoroughbreds, which will race in her own colors. She will register colors if the Jockey Club acts favorably upon her application for a trainers' license.

"Miss Hirsch," said Major Daingerfield, "is the first woman to have made application to the Jockey Club for a trainers' license. From time to time in the past expert horsewomen have made applications for jockeys' licenses, but the Jockey Club has never sanctioned them."

Father Confirms Her Confidence

Miss Hirsch expressed utmost confidence in her ability to train Tullihoo or any other horses she may acquire. Her father, Max Hirsch, subscribed to this confidence. Indeed, he said his daughter had been a great help to him for the last several years. She has a particularly expert eye for a horse and an uncanny way of discovering minor faults and the proper methods for correcting them. Miss Hirsch is an expert horsewoman and time after time in morning trials, has exhibited a skill in horsemanship which veteran jockeys might envy.

"Mary's knowledge and experience in handling horses is the result of her innate love of the thoroughbred," said Mr. Hirsch. "She has been riding ever since she was a child, but of late years has taken an active part in training. For the last several years she has been out to the stable every morning long before it was time to take out the first sets and in many cases has been the first to diagnose a fault and suggest a remedy. I am sure she is quite competent to carry on in the profession and shall have no doubt of her success if she is granted a trainers' license."

"I hope I get my license," said Miss Hirsch. "That would encourage me to carry out, I think successfully, the real ambition of my life. I feel it is the only life for me. I would relish the opportunity to put my own theories to the test. For the last three years I have been studying hard while working at my father's stable and I am sure I have acquired sufficient knowledge to stand on my own feet in this profession."

Hirsch One of Leading Trainers

For more than fifteen years Max Hirsch, one of the youngest of the profession when he broke in after a long apprenticeship as a jockey, has been one of the most successful of public trainers. Perhaps the best thoroughbred he ever developed was Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt's Sarazen.

Among others Hirsch trained the horses of Arnold Rothstein when that plunger was interested in racing, and helped him effect many a coup. He trained A. H. Gosden's Vito, winner of the 1928 Belmont Stakes. His best of last year was Morton L. Schwartz's Gusto, champion money winner of the year by virtue of victories in the American Derby, the Arlington Classic and the Jockey Club Gold Cup. He is one of the few Jewish trainers in horse racing.

Chatterings

Moe Berg, former Washington Senator's catch, will help coach the Princeton University baseball team this spring. The Tiger institution is Moe's Alma Mater.

At the Millrose games, held in New York last week, no Jewish trackman earned a win—this is the first time in years such a situation has existed.

Al Siegel, the new sprint star, is not Jewish—which answers two queries I received during the past fortnight.

Tilden says no, but I think the American Davis Cup team will bring that tennis trophy back to these shores next July—the very word July has a pleasant sound in these bitter days.

I have a suspicion that you are going to pay a good deal less to see the ball players perform this coming summer.

dent of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies of New York City, has been appointed chairman of the committee, Dr. Rosenbach announced.

Maurice Wertheim, banker and member of the board of managers of the Theatre Guild, has accepted the post as treasurer. Mr. Wertheim has been a member of the board of governors of the Hebrew University since its opening in 1925.

Marks Birthday

In accepting the chairmanship, Mr. Stroock announced that the dinner tendered to Professor Einstein, which will commemorate his fifty-fourth birthday, on March 14th, provides an opportunity for his friends to pay tribute not only to the place Dr. Einstein holds in the scientific world but to his wide and extensive interest in cultural matters.

The dinner to Dr. Einstein will also celebrate the eighth anniversary of the Hebrew University, formally opened on April 1, 1925, by the late Lord Balfour.

In addition to Dr. Rosenbach officers of the American Friends of the Hebrew University sponsoring the dinner include Felix M. Warburg, chairman of the council; Vice Presidents, Dr. Solomon Lowenstein, executive director of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies in New York; Hon. Julian W. Mack and Eugene Untermyer. Other officers include Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo, Judge Irving Lehman, Dr. Emanuel Libman, Dr. Nathan Ratnoff, Roger W. Straus and Dr. Stephen S. Wise. Announcement of the full dinner committee will be made at a later date. Mr. Stroock said, and invitations to the dinner will be issued to men and women of prominence throughout the United States.

litical anomaly known as the Transjordan State."

Mr. Lipsky's address was the keynote speech of the session, attended by delegates from the states of Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia.

Terming Britain's policy in keeping Transjordan and Palestine apart as short sighted, Mr. Lipsky declared:

"The arguments advanced for establishing a separate government in Transjordan, with Emir Abdullah as the nominal head, were never convincing. These arguments have to do with post-war British imperial policies which since have broken down. A separate Transjordan is of no value to the indigenous Transjordan Arabs, has no genuine significance for the Palestinian Arabs and is certainly detrimental to Jewish interests.

"The growth of the Jewish National Home is seriously affected because Transjordan contains only 200,000 inhabitants in a territory twice as large as that of Palestine, in which there are over 1,000,000 inhabitants. If these two unequal parts were consolidated, there could be an easy and natural exchange of populations and of all the benefits of industry and commerce.

"The continuance of the Transjordan contrivance—a government maintained by Britain with no resource of its own—prevents the development of a Jewish National Home large enough for Jewish needs, and, at the same time, accentuates Jewish-Arab differences which arise out of the feeling of Palestine Arabs that a delimited Palestine is not large enough for both nationalities.

"Great Britain can, if it wishes have all the provisions of the Mandate apply also to Transjordan, and can govern it as it saw governs Palestine.

"Why should it hesitate to take this step which is bound to pave the way to peace and prosperity on both sides of the Jordan."
