ROUMANIAN SYNAGOGUE SISTERHOOD CELEBRATES SECOND ANNIVERSARY

Main Object of Group Is to Build Temple for Members

Mrs. Rosenberg Honored

The Sisterhood of the Roumanian Congregation Ahavath Shalom observed its second anniversary last Sunday with a banquet in Weinstein's Banquet Hall on Weybosset street. The members of the men's association were guests.

The Sisterhood was formed two years ago with the main object of raising funds for the building of the Congregation Temple and is making fine progress in that respect. The officers are Mrs. S. Samson, President; Mrs. R. Sacarovitz, Vice President; Mrs. I. Rubenovitz, Treasurer, and Mrs. Abner Rosenberg, Secretary.

Dr. Greenstein Toastmaster

Dr. J. E. Greenstein was toastmaster and speeches were made by Louis Goldstein, Adolph Brown, J. Reich, M. Hercov, M. Greenstein, B. Greenstein, M. Urban, A. Rosenberg, Mrs. S. Samson, Mrs. M. Greenstein, Mrs. A. Rosenberg and Mrs. B. Friedman.

Recitations were given by Miss Evelyn Goldstein and Miss Shirley Weiss and Jewish Folk Songs were sung by B. Greenstein and Miss Evelyn Greenstein with Miss Saudie Silverman at the piano.

Mrs. Abner Rosenberg, who is one of the organizers of the Sisterhood and at present its secretary, was presented with a valuable token in gold for faithful services.

A pleasing incident took place, when Dr. Greenstein, the youngest member of the organization, called on Myer Urban to speak. Mr. Urban is the oldest member and maintains an unbroken record of attendance in over 35 years.

Jewish Program On WEAN Sunday

Artists to Broadcast Musical Selections at 12:15; Jewish Announcer at "Mike"

An interesting and entertaining Jewish radio program will be broadcast Sunday over Station WEAN at 12:15. Harry Silverman, well-known baritone, formerly on the Yiddish stage in New York, will render a group of folk songs and popular numbers from the Jewish musical comedy stage. Several selections will be given by Miss Mary Orliansky, local soprano, and the program will close with a group of ensemble numbers. The programs will be given every Sunday at 12:15.

The announcer, who is the only one of Jewish faith on the Yankee network and who is known to the radio audience as Mowry Lowe, is a local young man, Maurice Perlow.

Only Two Jewish Fatalities Listed In California Quake

Los Angeles, Mar. 17—(JTA)—As far as can be ascertained, there have been two Jewish fatalities in the earthquake that struck California last Friday night. They are Mary J. Seelig, 45 years of age, of Long Beach, and Frank Tobais, 35 years of age, 1853 Crenshaw boulevard in Los Angeles. Tobais was killed by a falling wall.

Among the several hundred names of those taken to the hospital at Long Beach, there appear but a scant dozen or so Jewish names. The lists, however, are still incomplete and it is difficult to determine the exact number of Jewish casualties.

Fortunately, the quake occurred at too early an hour in the evening to affect the worshippers in the synagogues at Long Beach or Los Angeles.

Paid-up Members Given Luncheon

Successful Beth-Israel Sisterhood Affair to be Held Annually

One of the most pleasant affairs ever sponsored by the Sisterhood of Temple Beth-Israel was the complimentary luncheon and bridge to paid-up members, given last Monday afternoon in the Vestry of the Temple.

The event was the first of its kind to be given by the Sisterhood and its unquestionable success has prompted the organization to make this an annual gathering. Prizes were donated by Mrs. Leo Weiner, President of the Sisterhood and won by Mrs. Samuel P. Lazarus as a door prize and by Mrs. Charles Senter for the highest bridge score. Prizes were also presented at each table. Mrs. Samuel Littman, cultural chairman, read an article on "Purim," written by Mrs. Moses of the Women's League of the United Synagogue.

Mrs. S. N. Deutch and Mrs. J. D. Grossman were the co-chairmen.

Ida Fain Named Queen Esther at Jewish Center Purim Masquerade

Over 900 persons attended the Queen Esther Purim Masquerade Thursday at the Arcadia. Miss Ida Fain was chosen Queen Esther with the following court attendants: Rose Cohen, Frances Ackerman, Tillie Marks, Edith Rotenberg, Ruth Snell, Eva Tanenbaum, Charlotte F. Snow, Dorothy Spiegle, Harriet J. Winnerman, all of Providence, and Jean Schwartz of Pawtucket.

The prizes for persons selling the most tickets were presented to Miss Ida Fain, first; Mrs. Ira Robinson, second, and Miss Dorothy Spiegle, third. Costume prize winners were Evelyn Simon, Evelyn Bader, Evelyn Sigal, Idah Snell, Dr. Sol Rubenstein, Leonard Schoenberg and Joseph Policas.

Ludwig Satz, one of the best known Jewish comedians, will appear at the Liberty Theatre, Broad and Gallatin streets, Monday and Tuesday, in the first Jewish musical comedy talking picture, "His Wife's Lover." Matinees will begin each day at 2:15 and evening showings at 6:30.

Mr. Satz will have an all-star supporting cast of singers and dancers, including Isadore Cashier, Lucy Levine, Michael Rosenberg, Jacob Frank, Lillian Feinman and others.

Dr. Beno Guttenberg, recognized as one of the world's foremost Seismological authorities, and a member of the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, made a trip through the stricken areas for scientific purposes. He has arrived at the conclusion that the earthquake was due to a faulting in the earth's crust, and not to any volcanic disturbance.

Rhode Island Jewish families had a number of relatives and friends in the earthquake danger zone and considerable apprehension was felt here regarding their safety. Authorities in California are still checking on the situation there and the Red Cross has begun rescue and rehabilitation work. Fairly definite reports indicated, however, that no Rhode Islanders were killed or injured in the disaster.

JEWISH CENTER LECTURE GROUP CLOSURES SUNDAY

Prof. H. A. Overstreet City College Philosophy Head, to Speak

Subject, 'Building Minds'

Prof. Harry A. Overstreet of the College of the City of New York will be the final speaker in the Center's "Celebrities Course," Sunday evening, at 8:30 o'clock, on the subject, "Building Minds for This Age."

Prof. Overstreet is well known as a lecturer and author of many important books. He is at present head of the department of philosophy at City College and lecturer with the New School for Social Research. He taught formerly at the University of California and has also given courses in the University of Chicago and at Columbia. He is a graduate of the University of California and Oxford University. For a number of years he has been director of Adult Summer Sessions in California.

Dr. Overstreet's publications have in the main been in the field of social philosophy and psychology and have appeared in various American and English journals. He has written many articles of late years in the liberal journals like the New Republic, Nation and Survey.

Dr. Overstreet has lectured in the New York Liberal Temple, the New School for Social Research, the Brooklyn and New York Ethical Societies, the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, the Columbia Institute of Arts and Sciences, Cooper Union, Ford Hall, various Settlement Houses, Forum and Labor groups and women's clubs.

He is the author of "Influencing Human Behavior," "About Ourselves" and "The Enduring Quest."

Mos Chitom Society Conducting Drive

Seeking Funds to Help Poor With Passover Necessities; M. Feinberg in Charge

The Mos Chitom Society, which has provided Passover needs for the Jewish poor in the city for many years, is conducting a drive so that they may be able to answer the many great demands for help. In a statement yesterday, Morris Feinberg, of the organization since its founding, said:

"After taking care of as many families as we could we find our treasury drained. The need this year far exceeds any previous years and in order to cope with the situation we are compelled to call upon our people to exert their efforts to co-operate generously with the committee." The distribution is under the supervision of the local Rabbin.

The committee includes S. Goldstein, M. Bromson, M. Tenkin, George Pullman, B. Russian, S. Jersky, A. Goldberg, A. Heller, Hyman Katz and Philip Abraams.

Louis Rubin Dies

Louis Rubin, who for more than twenty years conducted the former College Hill Store at 9 College Hill, died suddenly Sunday evening when stricken by a heart attack while attending a Purim Festival at Temple Emanu-El.

Since 1914, Mr. Rubin had been in the novelty business. His home was at 43 Halsey street. He was born Jan. 25, 1888, in Russia. Since boyhood he had lived in this city.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Rose (Cohen) Rubin; a son, Harvey, and a daughter, Charlotte. His mother, Mrs. Goldie Rubin; a sister, Miss Gertrude Rubin, and five brothers, David, Max, Martin, Albert and Abraham Rubin, also survive.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon from his home, with services at Temple Emanu-El. Burial was in Park Cemetery.

30 Club Leaders Get Certificates

Leaders' Institute Held at Temple Emanu-El Honors Eligible Members

The Leaders' Institute, a series of courses given to all leaders or prospective leaders, was fittingly concluded at Temple Emanu-El on Saturday evening by Rabbi Israel M. Goldman, who issued the certificates to the eligible members.

The ceremony took place following the regular Purim party. The course, instituted by the Rhode Island Council of Young Judaea, with Arno Wrazlowsky as its president and Joseph Keller as supervisor, was taught by Rabbi Goldman, Fred Weiser and J. Beigelson of the Temple Emanu-El Religious School.

The following were the recipients of certificates:

Providence Fraternal Observes Anniversary

The Providence Fraternal Association observed its sixth anniversary Tuesday evening in its headquarters, 830 Westminster street. A program of entertainment and dancing followed a short business meeting. Specialty numbers by members, door prizes and refreshments were features of the evening. Max Levin was chairman of the committee, which included Mrs. Morris Sheer, Mrs. William Reuter, Mrs. William Schmelz, Mrs. Simon Licker, Harry Bloomberg, Nathan Ostrov, Louis Hayman, Harry Levine and Simon Licker.

The officers of the group are Charles Silverman, Past President; Harry Bloomberg, President; Simon Licker, Vice President; David Isserlis, Chaplain; Joseph Keller, Financial Secretary; Barney Kessler, Recording Secretary; Louis Rosenbaum, Treasurer; Abraham Guy, Inner Guard, and M. Sirota, Master of Arms. Hugo Sperber is President of the Board of Trustees.

Separate Jewish Municipal Units Urged In Jerusalem

Jerusalem, Mar. 17—(JTA)—The formation of autonomous Jewish municipal units within general municipalities in mixed cities, like Jerusalem and Haifa, is demanded by the Jewish Agency in a 108-page memorandum submitted to the government.

The memorandum is in the form of a series of observations on the projected new municipal ordinance which, it is understood, is planned to serve as a preliminary to the legislative council, which the government proposes subsequently to establish.

In the memorandum, the Jewish Agency demands unrestricted women's franchise, also wider powers for municipalities and a more modern spirit, in the sense of less bureaucratic interference in the affairs of municipalities.

The draft of the new municipalities' ordinance, which has not yet been

Hitler Order Fails to Halt Assaults On Individual Jews

Sackett Makes Appeal

Berlin, Mar. 17—(JTA)—Although the U. S. Ambassador Sackett made representations here last week regarding assaults on American citizens, more Americans have suffered at the hands of Nazis. They are Julius Fuhs and Edward Dahlberg, the author, and a student, Lewis Berman. Dahlberg was attacked on the Kurfurstendamm by Storm Troops and badly beaten on the head. Fuhs was attacked and robbed by Nazis in a cafe, of which he is the owner.

Louis Berman, a medical student, was beaten up in the street by Nazi troops.

Violence Continues

London, Mar. 17—(JTA)—Despite the lull in the attack on Jewish businesses following the publication of Hitler's order, there is no cessation in the acts of violence against individual Jews.

At Kiel, Wilhelm Spieger, a Jewish lawyer and a Socialist candidate at the municipal elections, was shot dead by two men, who pretended to be police officers. They knocked at his door, demanding that he open it in the name of the law. As soon as Spieger opened the door, they fired at him, killing him instantly and escaping.

The London Times, which features the prevalence of violence in Germany, described the case of a well-known Jewish lawyer in Munich which complained to the police of Nazi interference with Jewish stores. The Nazis thereupon attacked him, cut off his trousers above the knees, and compelled him to parade the streets with a placard inscribed, "Never Again Complain to the Police."

German Prisoners Tortured

Similar stories are reaching here from Vienna. Today's Austrian press vividly describes the inhuman torture of Jews who have been imprisoned in the German military fortress of Spandau. The Austrian newspapers reproduce the details given to them by refugees from Germany who have left the country after being released from Spandau, which had previously been reserved only for prisoners of high rank.

They tell that on being brought into Spandau the Nazis greet every new group of arrivals with the question whether they are Jews. If the reply is in the affirmative, the victim is forced to lie down on the floor and his body is stamped and kicked, until he is unconscious.

AMERICA'S JEWRY INDICTED

A leading editorial in a Warsaw publication, the Jewish Telegraphic Agency informs us, vigorously scores the silence of American Jews who stand indicted of allowing the excesses in Germany to grow and develop without raising an organized voice or endeavoring to use their influence to alleviate conditions.

The article contrasts the "lackadaisical spirit" of American Jewry with that of British Jews, whose concentrated influences, the writer claims, has created a deep impression in German circles. The article goes on to say that only by appeals to humanitarian feelings can Hitlerism be reached and the author also suggests that Jews consider boycotting German goods the world over.

The indictment is a true one. America's Jewry, if only the question of politics were involved, probably is better disunited. Politically or economically, it would be suicide for a banding together of Jews or any other nationality or religion. In the first place the end would not be worth the means even if it could be accomplished; in the second, so small a minority, no matter how militant, would be hopelessly lost in the shuffle.

But the question here, as is well pointed out, is one of mercy and compassion. It is right and proper that Jews the world over should join in mighty protest against the outrages perpetrated upon their brethren in Germany, a nation which owes much to its Jewish citizens for the high place it has occupied in world affairs. Beyond the recent mass meeting in New York, there has come to our knowledge no outstanding movement for united protest by American Jews. It is about time such a movement got under way.

Isolated and disjointed appeals are easily pigeon-holed or tossed into somebody's wastebasket. But, if from the pulpits of synagogues and temples, from mass meetings in the large and small Jewish centers the country over, from Jewish men and women in high governmental circles, such a widespread movement for intervention is started, some definite satisfaction may fairly be expected.

With the whole world situation so delicate, it is unlikely that the United States government or any other power will intervene formally unless there is some overt and unpardonable act on the part of the Hitler regime. However, the outlook is not discouraging on that score. In the winding river of international relations, there is more than one channel. An informal and unpublished "suggestion" from the larger nations that he ought to mend his ways cannot well be disregarded even by so narrowly nationalistic an individual as the Nazi tyrant.

Minnie Mack Opens Cleansing Shop

Miss Minnie Mack, well known in the young Jewish set of this city, announces the opening of her new and modern Come-Again Shop of the Kleenit Co., Cleansers, at 317 Alice Building. Miss Mack was formerly with the Perfection Dry Cleaners. An outstanding special to introduce the fine service she will render, is the cleansing of any lady's or gentleman's garment for 50 cents, with call and delivery service. Another Kleenit store is at 336 Elmwood avenue.

Miss Mack is an active member of the Phi Gamma Sorority, the Girl's City Club and the Sister Sorority.

PURIM CELEBRATION

The Purim services Sunday proved to be one of the most thrilling experiences for the old folks at the Home. The usual religious service with the Megillah was read in the morning by S. Kessler and in the evening by M. Dlutzy. The day was culminated with a Purim party, through the courtesy of a special committee of the Ladies' Association of the Home, consisting of Mrs. D. Kahnovsky (chairman), Mesdames S. Ganzer, A. L. Sutton, L. Miller, S. N. Deutch, L. Marcus, A. White, M. Mellion, R. H. Sonion, S. Newburger, B. Tichman, H. Shatkin, J. Berkelhammer, J. Hochberg, H. Swartz, J. D. Grossman, Louis Smira, J. Goldsmith, J. Ernstof, B. M. Goldowsky, L. M. Grant. The old folks were veritably showered with gifts.

Under the auspices of the Young Judaea, a remarkable program delighted the hearts of the old folks. Martin Cohen presented a play which he had written especially for the occasion, called "Grandfather's Visit on Purim." Sydney Cohen recited an original theme on Purim in Yiddish that astonished the old folks with its colorful composition and delivery. The second part of the program, under the leadership of Miss S. Lasker, with the girls of her club, in colorful costume, thrilled the old folks with Palestinian dances and songs. The Millman Trio gave several dance numbers. The third part of the program consisted of solos rendered by Miss Lasker and Miss L. Finberg, assisted by the leaders of the Young Judaea clubs.

The chairman of the entertainment committee, Bernard M. Goldowsky, President of the Ladies' Association of the Home, Mrs. Harry Shatkin, and the chairman of the evening, Mrs. D. Kahnovsky; as well as the various members of her committee, thank the participants for their fine co-operation.

PASSOVER SEDER

Passover preparations are now taking place for a Seder to be given the first night of Pesach, and one on the second, open to the public. Reservations must be made before April 1, with Mrs. Leo Logan, Plantations 4257, or at the office of the Home, Angell 1135. There will be no cards mailed or any solicitations for these reservations.

OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY

Occupational Therapy for the old folks started Monday under the direction of Miss Chase, state representative of the Occupational Therapy National Organization. She is assisted by Mrs. H. B. Bornside, volunteer. Considerable enthusiasm has been aroused among the old folks, who are commencing to become interested in the various projects such as crocheting, embroidery, coloring various objects, etc. The plan is to appeal to the old folks by having each project of religious content.

Jewish Orphanage News

ENTERTAINMENT AND "TREATS" PRESENTED CHILDREN

The children of the Jewish Orphanage enjoyed a professional entertainment last week through the courtesy of Melva Bolden, popular colored entertainer. Mr. Bolden rendered choice bits of comedy, impersonations, song and dances, which were enthusiastically received by the boys and girls. Richmond Ford accompanied on the piano. This was one of a series of entertainments given at the Orphanage for the amusement of the children, partly by the youngsters and partly by outside talent.

On the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. A. Zalkind, 16 Elma street, gave an ice cream treat to the Home.

In pursuance of annual custom in honor of their son Arnold's birthday on March 13th, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Hilfer, 75 Laurel avenue, furnished ice cream and cake for the Orphanage children.

Mrs. Annie Bernstein, 62 Tyndall avenue, continuing the practice of the late Mrs. M. Feinberg and herself, presented "Shalach Monos" of cake and fruit for Purim.

Morris Karlin, 89 Potter street, Pawtucket, and Rabbi O. W. Werner, 47 Mulberry street, Providence, likewise brightened the Purim festival for the children for the traditional "Shalach Monos." The Purim season thus was this year celebrated in the Orphanage with more home-made "goodies" than for a number of years past.

DIETITIAN AND COOK JOIN BASKETBALL TEAM

The culinary department of the Home has now a "large" representation on the girls' basketball team in the persons of Mrs. Wolfenson, the dietitian, and Mrs. Brown, the cook.

TIDBITS

By SYLVIA L. ROBIN

A large audience enthusiastically received the offerings of the artists at the Costume Recital sponsored by the Miriam Hospital Association last Friday at the Music Mansion. Mrs. Celia Parvey, chairman, in her pleasing manner, made the introductory remarks. The audience was to be carried around the world with the artists in costume to transport them.

First, Mrs. Florence Levy Newburger took us to the Orient in a group of Chinese numbers. Mrs. Newburger made a delightful Chinese maiden, and her nimble fingers made the piano tell us all that the music implied. Then we traveled west with Benjamin Primack: His violin was the medium, this time. Mr. Primack rendered several Italian classics, accompanied by Leroy Armstrong. Next we were taken to Syria, portrayed by Mrs. Abbie Grant Huddish in costume, mannerisms and dialect, a Syrian woman-peddler, and later back to the south of our own country, when Mrs. Huddish became a southern mammy teaching a Sunday school class.

Miss Mary Orlansky, in costume, then sang a group of Italian songs, accompanied by Miss Marion Grossman. Mr. Primack followed with a miscellaneous group of violin solos, after which Mrs. Newburger brought us back home again with several southern selections.

Mrs. Louis Hayman need no longer suffer from cold hands—she was fortunate enough to win a fur muff the last time she attended a meeting of the Providence Fraternal Association.

Highlights of the evening at the Purim Masquerade: Al Gurwitz, as King Ahasuerus, receiving the Queen, Ida Fain—and not a bad picker, at that, with Miss Fain resplendent in a red robe trimmed with ermine. Bert Pickar was the Court Messenger, and the following, dressed in Oriental costumes of blue, green, white orchid, pink and red, were the Court Attendants: Rose Cohen, Dorothy Spiegel, Tillie Marks, Ruth Snell.

Harriet Winnerman, Eva Tannenbaum, Frances Ackerman, Charlotte Snow, Jean Schwartz, Edith Rotenberg, Len Schonberg was the sensation of the ages when he appeared in a sea diver's outfit made of white rubber. . . . Ida Snell as a Belle of 1800, took a prize as the most beautiful costume. . . . Evelyn Simon, as a Belle of 1880, took the historic prize. . . . Dr. Sol Rubinstein wore the most humorous costume, as one of the Marx Brothers. . . . Evelyn Siegal, as Spanish Beauty, took the prize for the most original costume, and Evelyn Bader wore the most beautiful costume, a Martha Washington dress, with the accessories, black fan and parasol. . . . the Evelyns were most predominant. . . . Others in costume were Sam Berditch, as Mor-decai; Evelyn Kaufman, as a Cossack girl; Frank Nathanson, as a farmer, Belle Corich, as a gypsy, and Mina Udinsky and Ida Weiner as two studies in black.

The spectators were seated around the hall, and in the boxes we spied the following: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hassenfeld, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Steiner, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sundlun, Mr. and Mrs. Saul Abrams, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Workman, Mr. and Mrs. Jules P. Goldstein, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Sapinsky, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Woolf, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Seefar, Mr. and Mrs. Herman S. Galkin, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rosen, Mr. and Mrs. Walker Adler, Mr. Charles Silverman, Mr. John Silverman, Nathan Temkin, Dr. and Mrs. Archie A. Albert, Dr. and Mrs. A. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. Boris Nelson, Dr. Edward Seltzer and Walter Lederer.

JEWISH TELEGRAPHIC AGENCY OBSERVES 15th ANNIVERSARY

By M. SIMONI

The 15th Anniversary of the foundation of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency should be regarded in a sense as an occasion of Jewish national interest, no less than other Jewish anniversaries to which space is rightly accorded in the Jewish press.

During the past few months there have been a number of commemorations and celebrations to which prominent writers, artists, and public men have devoted a great deal of attention. One need only mention the cases of the Ben Yudah anniversary and the Bialik celebrations. Here we had a world-wide recognition of the invaluable work done on the one hand by the father of Modern Hebrew, and on the other by the greatest living Hebrew poet, whose work is by many considered worthy of standing beside the creations of Yehuda Halevi.

In a sense, the Anniversary of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency's foundation may be regarded just as much a cultural event as a recognition of a force functioning in Jewry and providing cords of unity and avenues of communication so invaluable to the scattered members of a scattered national body.

Although Jewish liturgy is still full of devout prayer for a national ingathering, it is no longer true to say that the Diaspora is in any way comparable with the utter segregation which so many Jewish centers and communities suffered before science supplied the means of joining them, spiritually if not physically.

The 20th Century, with its perfected telegraphic systems, its wireless, its highly organized postal arrangements, its aeroplanes, and its swift steamers, has considerably modified the historic Dispersion of the Jewish people.

Talmudic scholars are aware that on more than one occasion the ancient Rabbis in their discussions made allowances for the difficulties of communication obtaining in the ancient world. On account of the difficulties of communication, in more than one case, for instance, special concessions were granted to people living as near as Galilee or Acco. It is an interesting reflection that the Jew of New York is now, in a sense, closer to the Jew of Jerusalem than was the Jew in Jerusalem to his brother a few miles from that city, in ancient days.

It was a happy inspiration, with a sense of the dramatic, that must have led a man like Mr. Jacob Landau to take steps which eventually led to the creation of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency in the year 1918, and the establishment of an organization which has at one stroke robbed the historic Diaspora of one of its greatest ills and terrors.

It was the period immediately after the war. Jewry which had suffered terribly in the catastrophe, lay torn and mangled, the prey of the Ukrainian blood-lust, and of the new political organisms which were already beginning to threaten Jewry in Eastern Europe with economic annihilation. In the Western lands, Jews were eager to take up once again contact with their places of origin; everyone was thirsty for knowledge of what was happening here, there, and everywhere. It was the moment when the effects of the Balfour Declaration were beginning to be understood and when it was beginning to be realized, that only by some form of Jewish unity, by regular contact between the various Jewish communities and by a reliable knowledge of day-by-day Jewish development the world over would it be possible for Jews to profit in any way from the promise implicit in the Balfour Declaration.

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency, or the J. T. A., as it has come to be called, grew swiftly. Under the capable hands of its founder, Mr. Jacob Landau, its ramifications spread, and within a brief period it had already established offices in seven of the leading centers — New York, London, Paris, Berlin, Warsaw, Vienna and Jerusalem, besides a host of local news-collecting agencies.

During the past 15 years, the J. T. A. has repeatedly proved itself an invaluable instrument, not only for the collection and dissemination of news, but also as a protective agency for Jews throughout the world. Indirectly, the J. T. A., because it has had at its command the means for improving public opinion, has also been the means of exerting influence which have time and again, proved even more effective than institutions whose specific function it was to protect the rights of individual Jews and Jewish institutions.

It would be possible to go thru the extensive archives of the J. T. A., and pick out a host of incidents in which the J. T. A. has, without exaggeration, been enabled to avert catastrophes, either to Jewish groups or to Jews as individuals.

One may take at random, as a fair example, the case of a Polish Jew who had been sentenced to death by a Military Court in Poland. He was charged with being a Bolshevik spy, and there seemed no way out. Fortunately, the story was brought to the attention of the J. T. A., through an American relative. The J. T. A. instituted inquiries, with the result that the wide public interest in the case led to a new trial, and the eventual acquittal of the accused. But cases of this sort have been so numerous in the annals of the J. T. A., that it is not possible within the limits of an article of this sort to enlarge on them.

In the course of its 15 years' service, the J. T. A. has been in touch with all Jewish problems. Whether it was Roumania, the deplorable situation of thousands of stateless Jews who had no protection of any passport, Polish excesses, the wave of pogroms following the Bela Kun upheaval in Hungary, or the more recent Palestine disturbances, the J. T. A. has, through its courageous correspondents, been the means of presenting in dispassionate but precise form, facts which contributed considerably to the eventual pacification or settlement of the trouble.

On occasion, the J. T. A. has invited expression of opinion on the part of men and women exerting world wide influence, and has thus succeeded in concentrating upon Jewish troubles an attention which might not otherwise been forthcoming. Prime Ministers, Ministers of Foreign Affairs, Presidents of Republics, men of letters and art have time and again made use of the service of the J. T. A., in order to give voice to their opinions on events affecting Jews, and thus rendered services which cannot be over-estimated.

As a cultural force, the J. T. A. has time and again brought to the notice of the public the achievements of Jewish artists and men of letters. Movements in Jewish artistic fields have formed the subject of innumerable articles written at the request of the J. T. A., and there is no doubt that the wide interest in such matters among Jews of the present day may, in considerable measure, be credited to it.

May it not be that Professor Einstein, whose outstanding achievement it has been to indicate the essential oneness of things in the physical world, will, by his presence at the anniversary dinner of the J. T. A. in New York, mark the fact that the existence and function of the J. T. A. is in the Jewish spiritual world a demonstration of the essential unity of Israel, transcending the limits of geographical space, and helping to maintain Jewry as a national and cultural whole?

By FRED R. BIENSTOCK

"Death in the Senate" by Diplommat is a finely told mystery tale that is exceedingly appropriate to the times. It reintroduces good old Dennis Tyler who appeared to such advantage in "The Corpse on the White House Lawn." Dennis solves the mystery of the sudden deaths of the hypocritical anti-liquor senator, who, in the midst of confessing his sins and omissions, drops to the floor of the Senate dead. To all appearances, it is death from heart disease but our own Dennis thinks otherwise and when another prominent Washingtonian goes the same way his beliefs are strengthened. How he goes about solving the murders is the gist of this intriguing story.

"Hizzones the Mayor," by Joel Sayre, author of "Rackety-Rax" is a spirited satire on present-day politics. This is a book which will provide many a laugh for its reader and perhaps more than one wry face. In its exaggeration it is almost lifelike. Between Chicago and New York almost nothing in this book about the "Great City of Malta" seems too far-fetched to be told about. A fine vein of humor is possessed by Mr. Sayre and he uses it gracefully so that the book is just short of overdone. In fact for me it was just right—full of the humor and absurdity of present-day government and more than a little full of bitterness at the absurdity of 20th century people being willing to stand for it!

And then we come to the prize book of the week, month, and perhaps, year—"She Loves Me," by Norman Klein (Farrar and Rhinehart). Mr. Klein is the author of last year's hit, "No, No the Woman." His present book is straight novel. It tells the story of a young American girl whose father owns a ranch in Mexico and has, when she returns to him from the convent, become what is contemptuously called a "squaw-woman." Unknown to her he has married Terese, Mexican beauty without morals and has a whole litter of youngsters by her. Althea's mother has been dead a long time but even this does not prevent her from being deeply hurt at her father's action. To escape the life with her stepmother who flaunts her infidelities and encourages Althea's father in his heavy drinking Althea goes away with and marries Claude Hunt, who is a member of a lion-hunting party that comes to the ranch. She does not love him. She has been attracted by Cotter, young publicity man who kisses her and murmurs "Mary" while he does so. Enraged by this insult Althea scorns him.

To Hollywood Althea goes with her new and middle-aged husband who shows no desire to enter into a marriage relationship with her. She meets up with Cotter again and begins to have an affair. Hunt sends her away when he discovers this and she obtains a divorce and marries Cotter who is just the tiniest bit reluctant to relinquish his bachelorhood. Gradually it is borne in on Althea that Cotter is wealthier than she, and unwilling to give up her ambitions, she tries to write herself. She writes and is successful as a Western thrill-story teller. A baby, she decides—a boy baby—will give her the person she longs for, the man she sought in Hunt and Cotter. Fame, the boy baby and a dish-rag for a husband, all are eventually hers. And Hunt comes back under the sway of influence. A gripping story of a woman of will and ambition married to a weakling. The tale is simply and effectively told, the writing is more than adequate and the depiction of the characters most lifelike. Whether or not Mr. Klein was dealing with real people I do not know. But I can tell you that a number of prominent writers might easily fill the bill assigned to Althea.

Nazi Excesses Drive Jewish Immigrants Back to Poland

Warsaw (JTA) — A report has reached here that the Saxon Minister of Interior has ordered the expulsion from Dresden of 15 Jewish families who are Polish citizens, among them a number of young children. It is added that the efforts of the Polish Consul to obtain a withdrawal of the expulsion order has failed and that the Polish Consul-General in Berlin is now dealing with the matter.

The "Kattowitz Press" reports that 240 Polish Jewish families have arrived at Kattowitz, in Polish Upper Silesia, fleeing from Berlin and Saxony before Hitlerist excesses.

Financial Problems and Amplification of Synagogue Influence to be Discussed by Leaders of Rhode Island and Massachusetts

Five hundred delegates and visitors from Jewish religious congregations throughout Massachusetts and Rhode Island will attend the religious conference to be held in Boston Sunday, April 2. The conference will discuss the problems that beset the synagogue, especially those brought about by financial difficulties, and through an exchange of experiences attempt to point the way to a solution of difficulties. In honor of the occasion there will be a special "laymen's service," the morning of April 2, held at Temple Israel. The service will be addressed by Samuel Finkel, president of the Brotherhood of Temple Israel and chairman of the New England Association of Reform Congregations; Judge Jacob Asher, president of the Brotherhood of Temple Emanuel of Worcester; and Harold Lipkin, president of the Brotherhood of Temple Ohabei Shalom of Boston, and others will conduct the service.

Luncheon will be served at Temple Ohabei Shalom, with the congregation as hosts to the delegates. The afternoon session will be held at Temple Ohabei Shalom and will consist, first, of a discussion of problems besetting the synagogue, led by Matthew Porosky, chairman of the Board of Temple Ohabei Shalom; Lee M. Friedman, president of Temple Israel; and A. S. Burg, president of Temple Beth El, of Lynn, Mass. Rabbi William H. Finshreiber, of Temple Keneseth Israel of Philadelphia, will deliver an address on "The Congregation and Its Membership."

This conference is one of a series conducted throughout New England, New Jersey and New York by the North East Religious Union, which is a regional division of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, parent body of all the Reform congregations of the United States. These conferences are part of a program tended to intensify and to amplify the influence of the Synagogue upon the Jews of the region and to bring the benefits of religious experience to small, outlying communities, and to the unorganized student bodies in the many colleges and universities in the section. The New England Association of Reform congregations, direct sponsor of the Boston meeting, is a constituent member of the North East Religious Union.

The members of the board of managers of the Union for Massachusetts are: Samuel B. Finkel, Boston, chairman; Mrs. Bessie S. Abraham, Brookline; Judge Jacob Asher, Worcester; Mrs. Louis H. Epstein, Boston; Lee M. Friedman, Boston; Matthew Porosky, Boston, and Morris Ziskind, Pittsfield. The Board Members of Rhode Island are: Charles C. Brown, Providence, chairman; and C. Joseph Fox, Max L. Grant, Adolph Meller, Mrs. Caesar Misch and Mrs. J. George Nathanson, all of Providence.

Roger W. Straus, of New York, is chairman of the North East Religious Union, and Jacob B. Pollak is regional rabbi and secretary.

"Jews All Over the World May Regard Me as Second Balfour," Declares Emir in Land Negotiations

Jerusalem (JTA)—"The Jews all over the world may regard me as a second Balfour." This statement is said to have been made by the Emir Abdullah in connection with the negotiations for the transfer of Trans-Jordan land to Jews. "Balfour promised the Jews a land which was not in his possession," the Emir is alleged to have added, "while I am actually opening for the Jews a land which is fully in my possession."

This report of the Emir's remarks is only one of the many statements and counter-statements floating about in connection with the Trans-Jordan affair.

Palestine is a land in which rumor and report assume curious guises, and it is not easy to disentangle truth from fiction.

Thus, there is a new tale to which much attention has been given in the Arab press. The story is that a group of Arabs has approached the Emir with an offer to take up the land which is the subject of negotiations with the Jews. They are reported to have offered to lease the land on conditions more favorable than those in the proposed agreement with the Jews, according to details published in "El Arab," the organ of the Independent Arab Party. The details given are: 1. The Arab company undertakes to pay the Emir of Trans-Jordan a sum of £207,500 for the land to be leased to them for a period of 99 years; 2. during the first ten years the Emir is to receive from the company a sum of £50,000, during the following ten years another £10,000, during the third ten years £20,000, while the balance is to be paid up during the remaining 69 years.

"El Arab" points out that this offer is the more attractive since the agreement with the Jews provides only for £2000 a year, totaling only £198,000 for the 99 years.

In the meantime, reports from

Trans-Jordan confirm that the subject of Jewish settlement is still the talk of that territory. The Emir is being openly pressed by many of his followers to bring the negotiations with the Jews to a happy conclusion. One thing is certain, that he is being urged to turn a deaf ear to the intrigues of the Arabs of Western Palestine. The expressed sentiment is: "We can take care of ourselves; let the Palestine Arabs mind their own business."

Baltimore Butcher Found Guilty by Court of Rabbis

Baltimore (JTA)—An ancient custom, said to be seldom followed in recent years in Baltimore, was reinstated this week when a full rabbinical court of ten rabbis sat to consider a charge against Harry Magad, a storekeeper of alleged violations of kosher food regulation.

The storekeeper was a defendant in a pending charge in the Criminal Court, accusing him of violating ordinances regulating the sale of kosher meats.

When the case came before Judge George A. Solter recently, Magad's attorney proposed that a rabbinical court be permitted to pass on the charge, according to Jewish usage. The Deputy State's Attorney assented to the proposal, and Judge Solter at that time postponed action of the case pending the suggested rabbinical hearing.

Magad was found guilty by the rabbinical court, which ordered him to remove all kosher symbols from his store windows. The Criminal Court charge against Magad is scheduled to be disposed of next Monday and the findings of the rabbis are expected to be reported to Judge Solter at that time.

An Old Depression Story

Old Jacob's sons were sitting around a stump fire they had made in the pasture field waiting for the sheep to get their fill of grazing.

"Did you hear the latest?" upped Zebulon. "Little Joe has wheeled out papa's best silk shirt."

"Don't say!" said Isaac. "Won't the girls fall for him now?"

"Well, he's pa's pet, you know," said Levi. "But take it from me, he's headed for a fall. Did you hear the dream he's been having?"

"What's that," asked several of the brothers.

"Get a load of this," said Levi. "Little Joe dreamt that he and his brothers were out in the field, gathering sheaves. Well, all of a sudden, his sheaf gets in the center and stands still, and all the other sheaves circle about him and do a salem."

Naphtali Reads a Lot

"It takes no psycho-analyst to understand that one," said Naphtali, who did a lot of reading. "It's plainly nothing but a suppressed desire. Dreams you know are but wish fulfillments, and Joseph in his heart wishes for his brothers to be subservient to him."

"Well, we could end all of his high falutin' fancies in that little pit over there. What do you say, fellers, if we drop him into that. It'll be the end of Silk-shirt Joe."

Reuben advised the brothers to go slow about it, but the temptation was too great. As Joseph came along, he was seized and slung into the pit. However, on the sly, his older brother snatched him out and sold him to some Midianite merchants who were passing by who took Joseph to Egypt and in turn sold him to Lord Potiphar, a big shot in the Egyptian government.

At first, Joseph was put to working around the house, fixing one thing or another.

One day, as Joseph was pottering around the lawn, Mrs. Potiphar looks out of the window to see if the mail man was around, when her eyes get a load of Joseph.

She stared in amazement, as the profile of Joseph lifted into view. "Do my eyes deceive me!" she said. "Can it be Clark Gable has joined my retinue of servants?"

Missus Feigned Illness

From that time on, the Missus was busy inventing ways to keep Joseph nearby. Her first was to affect illness and ask that Joseph be sent to her quarters to attend to her.

She would lay in bed and say to Joseph, "Here, Joe, hold my hand and feel my pulse. I reckon I must have high temperature and rapid pulse." And sure enough, even if her pulse was normal enough, as soon as Joe took hold of it, it would start pit-spating. And Joe would continually have to feel her pulse.

One day, she ups close to Joseph and pats his hair and says: "You know, Joe, I could fall for you in a big way."

"Be yourself, Mrs. Potiphar," says Joseph. "What have I got to offer you—me a slave. Besides what will the husband say?"

"O hang the husband," said Mrs. Potiphar.

"The chances are he'll hang me instead," replied Joe.

The Trap is Set

Well, scenes like this would be going on continually, the dame giving him plenty of trouble. One evening, when Mr. Potiphar was late coming home — Joseph was called to Mrs. Potiphar's quarters. When he arrived there, the room was full of intoxicating incense. Only one candle dimly glowed, but the light in Mrs. Potiphar's eyes seemed to burn like six candles as she reclined on her couch arrayed in the utmost of oriental allure.

"Come, dearest and soothe my brow," said the Missus.

"Now, don't be silly," said Joseph. "Your husband may be home any minute, and besides I am busy now. There seems something the matter with the kitchen range, and I'm busy fixing it."

"Well, just hold my hand for a minute," said Mrs. Potiphar. Joseph took out his watch. "All right, remember you said a minute." Joseph took her hand.

"Come, Joseph, put your head next to mine," said Mrs. Potiphar. "Now, we mustn't do that. You know you are married, and besides Joseph, making an effort to tear himself away. Mrs. Potiphar grabbed Joseph's shirt. Joseph wrenched himself away and fled with Mrs. Potiphar holding his shirt. Mrs. Potiphar's mind was quick enough to see that now she was in a dilemma. She screamed and called the other servants. Joseph, she said, had tried to attack her.

Cools Heels in Jail

Well, as you know Joseph was thrown into prison. In his cell, were two Egyptian lads who had formerly been in Pharaoh's employ — the King's former baker and cup bearer. Joseph went over big with the cup bearer, especially after he had interpreted the latter's dream to mean that he would be freed. And sure enough, the cup bearer was freed, and soon was serving the king with his cups as in the old days.

One day, the cup bearer served the king no less than ten high-balls before breakfast. The cup bearer could see that the King was troubled. "What's on your mind, King?" he said. "You don't look so hot."

"No, I guess not," said the King. "I had a terrible dream."

"Nertz," said the cup bearer in Egyptian. "You probably ate something indigestible before going to bed. If you would just take a glass of warm milk before going to bed, you would sleep like a top."

"No, I am sure," said the King, "that this is an ominous dream. I must summon my magicians and soothsayers."

"Well, if you are looking for a dream interpreter, I want to recommend a younger fellow I became acquainted with in jail."

And so it came about that Joseph was brought to interpret the King's dream. The King told him about his terrible dream — about the seven lean cows eating up the seven fat cows.

Forecasts Conditions

When the King had finished, Joseph said: "That's easy. Egypt is now going through a period of seven years of abundance. They will be followed by seven years of depression."

"That's not sensible," said the King. "How can you talk about depression? Look at the Stock Exchange. There never in the history of Egypt has been so much stock exchanged. Why the country is full of cattle."

"Yes, yes, your Majesty, but don't forget the economic cycle. This period of over-production will be followed by a period of want, and if the King is wise, he will make preparations for the lean years."

"What would you suggest?" asked the King. "Inflation, dying currency, technocracy?"

"No, what I would suggest is very simple. Study history, your Majesty, and you will note that people have a tendency to get academic about things that are fundamentally very simple. You wouldn't believe it, your Majesty, but there is a historical record of a time, when the world was suffering from depression, when at the very time, in one part of the world, there was too much cattle. In fact, they were killing a thousand cattle every month to keep the cattle prices up to standard, and in another part of the country, they were ploughing the cotton into the soil, though in parts of the world, this very cotton was in great demand. In other parts, the wheat was rotting in the field, though men were walking the streets for want of bread, and still other parts, the trees heavily laden with fruit, were not being picked. Yet all this time, men were hungry, and the whole problem could have been simply solved by gathering these crops and feeding the people."

"Of course, your Majesty, we have a more difficult problem. We shall suffer from actual shortage but I propose a very simple solution — merely that we gather the surplus corn and store it for the lean years that are to follow."

"That sounds sensible to me," said his Majesty. "What would you say if I make you Prime Minister, in charge of carrying out this plan?" It was okay with Joseph. And after the years of abundance, came the depression that Joseph had foretold. Drought invaded the land of Egypt, and all the neighboring parts, and even the brethren of Joseph came up to Egypt to buy corn. It is interesting to pick up one of the Egyptian newspapers of that day and read such headlines as the following: CROPS FAIL IN ALL PARTS OF WORLD. THOUSANDS REPORTED DYING OF STARVATION. EGYPT ALONE IS SECURE. PRIME MINISTER JOSEPH'S PLAN BRINGS PROSPERITY TO EGYPT WHEN WHOLE WORLD STAGGERS

And so you see, what you can do with a depression with a Yiddishe kop.

Electricity Instead of Wax Tapers in Sabbath Eve Ceremony

Newark (JTA)—A precedent in the traditional Jewish rite of lighting candles on the Sabbath Eve, is expected to be set here the latter part of this month when the Daughters of Israel Home for the Aged opens its new four-story annex. The women residents of the institution, it is announced, will introduce the novelty of blessing the Sabbath with electric candles in place of the usual wax candles.

Boycott Against Jews Throughout Germany

STENCH-BOMBS THROWN INTO MANY STORES

Berlin (JTA) — "The safety of the life and property of the Jewish citizens is legally guaranteed to all who are loyal to the Government," declared Minister Goering to representatives of the Central Union of the German Citizens of the Jewish Faith, Dr. Brodnitz and Dr. Wiener, who had called on him, states an official communique issued by the Government here.

The communique adds that Goering confirmed that in the course of the search of the Union's offices, no proof had been found that the Union was in any way connected with Communist aspirations.

Although this is the second statement of the kind issued by Minister Goering within a week, it is the first time that the contents have been officially reproduced in Germany. Indeed, it had been pointed out by the "Judische Rundschau," official organ of the German Zionist Federation, that it had become a practice of the German Government to issue abroad reassuring official statements which were not reproduced in the German press.

Nevertheless the anti-Jewish boycott agitation which commenced sporadically, shows signs of spreading to many parts of the country. The fact also that there is no real definition of authority as between the regular police, and the Nazi troopers makes it next to impossible for sufferers to secure immediate protection.

Nor has the situation been improved by the fact that all the 17 German States are now controlled through Nazi police commissioners.

The most serious incidents in connection with the boycott agitation during the past 24 hours have occurred in places as far apart as Berlin, Magdeburg, the Chemnitz district, and Kassel.

In Berlin the use of loudspeakers has become a regular feature of the campaign. Loudspeakers were erected outside the shop buildings and Nazi announcers shouted incessantly to the large crowds that had assembled: "Germans, buy only from Germans." Nazis also hoisted Swastika flags over the Tietz department stores and Woolworth's in different parts of the city, as well as over the huge department store known as Kaufhaus des Westens. Police eventually succeeded in restoring order and in preventing the spread of the disturbance at these places.

In other parts of Berlin the agitation led to rowdiness and the throwing of missiles.

In the Grenadierstrasse, the Jewish quarter of Berlin, Nazi crowds assembled and with the use of loudspeakers bellowed "Don't buy from Jews." The tumult produced a panic, leading to the hurried closing of the Jewish shops. Police interference fortunately prevented any mishandling of the Jewish inhabitants of the neighborhood.

At the Tietz branches in the Leipzigerstrasse, Bluecherplatz, Koenigsstrasse, Alexanderplatz, Alliancestrasse, and Wilmersdorferstrasse, the congestion and the intensity of the noise and the agitation compelled the closing down of the stores much earlier than usual. The same thing occurred at the Leiser shoe shops and the Karstadthaus Department Store on Kurfurstendamm. At the "Epagé" stores, an organization similar to Woolworth's, Nazi youths in their uniforms broke into the shops shouting "Out with the Jews." They also threw stench-bombs into the stores, compelling the shops to close.

Seven shots were fired through the window of the shop owned by Samuel Grundleger, smashing the windows and destroying a quantity of goods. The attackers have not been traced, though Grundleger had lately received numerous threats from Nazis. In addition he had been warned by Christian friends that Nazis contemplated an attack on his store.

At Kassel uniformed Nazis forced all the Jewish shops to close down. Eventually, following a meeting between the proprietors and the Police President, an assurance was received that the Nazi agitation would discontinue and the Jews would be enabled to open their shops on the following day.

The whole of the Chemnitz area, one of the largest manufacturing centers in Germany, is suffering from the boycott agitation. Business has been seriously dislocated. In Chemnitz itself, a crowd which included persons wearing Nazi emblems attempted to storm the great Schocken stores, but the police managed to restore order before the disturbances reached dangerous dimensions.

A Nazi report dealing with the occurrences at Chemnitz, endeavors to divert itself of responsibility with the explanation that the crowds were in reality Communists who wore Nazi emblems, and that there was not a single Nazi among them.

JEWISH SPORT NOTES

Greenberg of the Tigers

Ever since 1930 when he broke in to the big leagues Henry Greenberg has been a pre-season newspaper topic. This year Detroit is trying to make a third baseman out of the Bronx slugger who never has done anything on the ball field but play first base. The Tigers are desperate for hitting. Were not that the case Greenberg would have been allowed to try his wares at the initial corner. Lack of 300 hitters made the Tigers a sad outfit in 1932. Manager Harris, a shrewd baseball pilot, is determined to add hitting power, but in picking on Greenberg to play third base he ran up against a hard proposition.

Frankly, Greenberg balked at the plan. He liked to make the plays at first; but he did not get very far with his argument. Harris told him that he thought Harry Davis was the best fielding first baseman the league has developed in years, and he was sure to stay at that post.

The Detroit manager sent for Greenberg to talk it over, and that is why the New York boy was among the first in the training camp. Harris wants to get some good out of the money the Detroit club put in on Greenberg, who signed a Detroit contract back in 1930 for $9000. Since that time he has been polishing up in the minors, and now seems to be the time for him to fit into the Detroit machinery.

In some ways Greenberg is an outstanding player. At least the Texas League so voted him last season when he drove in 131 runs in 154 games. His batting mark measured up to only .290 but he made 174 hits, which totaled 344 bases, or almost a two bagger every time he gets a hit. Included in his work were 39 homers, which impressed Harris a lot.

Greenberg is an all-around athlete, and Harris has him working out at third base. He is fast for a big boy, and is taking to his new post exceptionally well.

Rosenbloom Never Worries

One reason why Maxie Rosenbloom after 211 rights in ten years of fistic activity is still apparently as good as ever is the fact that he refused to worry in the ring or out of it. Maxie has the precious gift of both mental and physical relaxation.

"Are you worried about the bank holiday, Maxie?" asked your interviewer as the light heavyweight champion prepared to go through his training stunts at Stillman's gymnasium, the last real work he will do before he risks the title in a 15-rounder with Adolph Heuser in Madison Square Garden next week.

"Worry?" was the reply. "Me worry? That's a laugh. As far as I am concerned I have had a bank holiday ever since I started fighting. So why should I start worrying now? I never worry about anything. I hire a manager to worry for me. Look at him. He's doing some pretty good worrying right now."

Maxie pointed to his manager, Frank Bachman, who was telling some of his brother pilots that he had heard rumors Maxie was going to "get the works," meaning the champion would have to do everything but knock out the challenger to earn the decision.

"See, I told you he was worrying," laughed Maxie.

"The reason you don't worry is because you are too dumb to worry," Bachman retorted. "You know what this guy pulled in St. Louis? He ordered a steak, medium done, and when the waiter brought it to him, it was as tough as shoe leather. So he says to me: 'What do you think of that waiter. I ordered a medium steak and he brings me one that is well to do!'"

"Listen, you egg," came back Rosenbloom. "You are the one who said the steak was well to do. You are dumber than I am. Speaking of banks and such things, though, I wish they would declare one of those moratoriums. You know, when you don't have to pay your debts, I would be away out in front if they did that."

"How long have you been training for this fight, Maxie?"

"This is my third day in the gymnasium. I guess that's about the longest I ever did train for a fight. But I don't need much gym work. I keep busy in the ring and that keeps me in shape. I have a lot of fun out of fighting, though once in a while I get hit on the chin and then it isn't so funny."

"I've had 211 fights. Maybe I haven't saved any money, but I've had a lot of fun and made a lot of friends. Lots of the fighters who skimped and saved their dough haven't any more money than I have and not nearly as many friends. You guys don't need to worry about what will become of me when I quit fighting."

"Oh, yeah," snorted Lou Stillman. "You think you got a lot of friends, do you? Well, when you hang up your gloves you can hang up your friends, too. They won't know you any more."

"Anyway, I'm not going to quit for a while yet," said the champion. "I figure I will fight about a dozen more times and then quit. I might quit now, except that I have to keep fighting because Bachman has to pay off a mortgage. But I'm not worrying."

Maxie pulled on a badly soiled gymnasium shirt.

"You think you'll beat that German?" he was asked.

"Sure."

"Going to bet on yourself?"

"Bet on a fight!" snorted Maxie. "Not me. I only bet twice on myself, and each time I got beat. At least the judges said so, even if I thought otherwise, and I had to pay off. No more betting on fights for me. I'll bet on the horses or the dice, but not on fights."

The King Can Do No Wrong

The following story is lifted bodily and without permission of the "New Yorker."

The young Chicago heavyweight, King Levinisky, is not considered a genius, even by his closest friends and most ardent admirers, so it was told by a man who is pretty close to pugilism and pugilists. Levinisky was in Cleveland last summer at the time of the solar eclipse and, although the papers were full of it and it was a topic of wide conversation, he knew nothing about it. If he had heard it mentioned, it hadn't registered. Most of Cleveland turned out into the streets for the spectacle and Levinisky went along, too. An acquaintance handed him a piece of smoked glass and, with it to his eye, he peered up at the phenomenon. After a moment, he handed back the glass and, shaking his head, remarked in a tone of deep concern, "Yeah, dat's bad, ain't it?"

During one of his fights, Levinisky's seconds were worried because he came back to his corner at the end of every round in obvious distress, although his opponent didn't seem to be punishing him much. At the end of five or six rounds, the fighter confided that his feet hurt him. Immediate investigation disclosed that they hurt for the reason that he had the right shoe on the left foot and vice versa. The fighter was greatly surprised when so simple a reason was found for his pain and, the shoes being changed, evinced his relief by knocking his opponent out in a couple of rounds later.

Levine-Hazman

Miss Sadie Hazman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hazman, of Carrington avenue, became the bride of David Levine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Levine, of Fall River, last Tuesday evening at Zinn's Banquet Hall. Rabbi O. W. Werner and Rev. Philip Keller performed the ceremony under a canopy of ferns and spring flowers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore a gown of platinum satin with a tulle veil and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and gardenias. Miss Mary Hazman, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a gown of flowered crepe and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

Low Gold of Newport was the best man and Master Arnold H. Millman, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

The bride's mother wore a black lace gown and the mother of the bridegroom wore a black chiffon gown. They both had corsages of roses.

Out of town guests were present from New York, Lynn, Fall River, Newport, Brockton and New Bedford.

Cerel-Mellion

Miss Frances Mellion, daughter of Mrs. Rosetta Mellion of Duncan avenue, was united in marriage with Jack Allen Cerel, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Cerel of Blackstone street, last Sunday afternoon, at 1 o'clock, in Zinn's Banquet Hall. The ceremony was performed by Rabbi O. W. Werner.

Cake Sale to be Held Tuesday for Miriam Social Service Work

Mrs. Morris Mellion and Mrs. Louis Smira are co-chairmen for the cake sale to be given by the Miriam Hospital Association, Tuesday, March 21, at the Outlet Company. The proceeds will be used for the social service work of the organization.

The committee assisting includes Mesdames Samuel Markoff, Louis Lovett, Charles Hoffman, David Goldman, Rebecca Grant, Max Silverstein, Morris Berry, Louis M. Grant and David Kahanovsky.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Dr. Maurice J. Mellion, and her mother, was attired in a tea-rose gown of crepe and tulle and wore a turban of Roosevelt blue with slippers to match. She carried a white satin muff of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor was Miss Yvette Shaset, who wore black chiffon velvet and a corsage of sweet peas. Franklyn Mellion, brother of the bride, was best man.

Many out-of-town guests were present from New York, Springfield, Winthrop, Boston and Fall River.

After the dinner and reception, Mr. and Mrs. Cerel left on a motor trip to Washington, D. C. Upon their return, they will be at home to their friends at their residence on Fifth street.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Zalkind of 16 Elma street were honored at a surprise party by several relatives and friends, Wednesday evening, in honor of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. A feature of the evening's entertainment was a mock marriage.

Out of town guests attended from Fall River and Haverhill. Mr. and Mrs. Zalkind were presented with a banquet cloth by those present and were the recipients of many floral pieces from friends and the various organizations of which they are active members.

The hostesses were Mrs. Louis Sackett and Mrs. Henry Miller, sisters of Mrs. Zalkind.

Jewish Radio Program Over WPRO to be Given Every Sunday at 12:30

The popularity of the Jewish radio program, which is being given every Sunday morning over Station WPRO at 10:30, has prompted the Cherry & Webb Company to give consent for the advancement of the Jewish program to 12:30 every Sunday henceforth.

This coming Sunday, Rabbi Goldman will speak on the subject, "Joy Cometh In the Morning." The trio, consisting of Benjamin Premack, violinist; Arthur Einstein, pianist, and Miss Barbara Smith, cellist, will render the famous "Kol Nidre," by Bruch. Cantor Bettman will present two popular Yiddish folk songs, "Der Philoso" and "Ani Maamin," and the choir, under the direction of Mr. Einstein, will give two famous choral selections, "Mogen Ovov," Edelsohn, and "Seu Shearim," by Lewandowsky.
