Providence Finds Nazi Regime Guilty Two-State Reform Conclave To Be Held Here

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION STUDY PLANNED AT TEMPLE BETH-EL; NOTED LEADERS TO TAKE PART

Delegates from Bay State
to Attend Session
Slated April 15

National Head to Speak

Several hundred delegates, representing Jewish reform congregations, sisterhoods and brotherhoods of Massachusetts and Rhode Island will convene in Temple Beth-El here Sunday, April 15, for a conference on religious problems generally, but with special emphasis on the question of Jewish education for both the adult and the younger generations.

The convention will be held in Providence for the first time in the history of the reform movement. It is sponsored by the North East Religious Union of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, parent body of all reform Jewish congregations in the United States.

Follows General Program

The conference is part of the program being carried out by the Union to intensify and amplify Jewish religious work in the New England area. In pursuance of this policy the North East Religious Union has been holding a series of meetings in New England with Jewish farmers, Jewish students and other groups of Jews living away from synagogical influence, in an effort to bring the message of religion to them. This is the first conference in the area this year devoted entirely to education.

The first session will be a luncheon at noon in the vestry, at which Samuel B. Finkel of Boston, president of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods will be the main speaker. Addresses will be delivered by Charles Brown, president of Temple Beth El and Rabbi Wil-

NAZI LEADERS ALARMED OVER BOYCOTT GAINS

Woolworth, Macy, Altman
and Gimbel Brothers

Cite Consumer Resistance

NEW YORK, March 22 (JTA)—German industry today was looking askance at the Hitler government as a result of body blows struck in America this week as, one after another, great merchandising concerns announced elimination of Nazi-made goods and rupture of trade relations with the Reich.

Definite reports of deep-seated rumblings among both the working classes and industrial executives were arriving here from a variety of sources. With the anti-Hitler boycott in America showing constant growth to the extent that German goods may soon be completely shut out of United States markets, it became apparent that Nazi officials have grounds for fearing a breakdown in the frenzied, fanatical support given the Hitler regime thus far.

Woolworth Joins Ban

The latest blow at German business was struck by the F. W. Woolworth Company on Monday when Byron D. Miller, president, announced "we have discontinued importing German goods owing to the extreme sales resistance." It is the first boycott victory in the low price field and doubly important because Woolworth's has been one of the Reich's biggest American customers.

Belatedly, after an earlier refusal which all but blocked the entire boycott six months ago, the R. H. Macy Company has cabled its Berlin offices to close and instead is establishing quarters in Prague. "Consumer resistance to goods of German origin" is given as the reason. Gimbel Brothers and B. Altman and Company have followed suit.

Boycott Grows

Altogether, of more than 70 department stores in New York that were questioned by the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League, only four large establishments have failed to answer. These are Wanamaker's, Namm's, Abraham and Straus and Loeser's, the latter in Brooklyn. All other replies indicate some definite form of allegiance to the boycott.

Campaign for Workers in Palestine will be Launched April 1

The campaign for the Jewish Workers in Palestine known as the Geverkshefen will open Sunday evening, April 1 at the Poale Zion Center on North Main Street. Professor Chaim Fineman of Temple University, Philadelphia will be the principal speaker and the famous opera singer from Palestine, Moische Nathanson will render a program of new Palestinian songs.

The executive committee includes Alter Boyman, chairman; Max Beriman and Mrs. K. Phillips, associate chairmen; Morris Boeber, treasurer; Henry Burt, secretary; Harry Finberg, chairman of the advisory board.

The general committee: Solomon Lightman, Mrs. Harry S. Beck, David Belliovo, Joseph Biller, Harry Chact, Arthur Korman, Abraham Maklar, Dr. Philip M. Phillips, Israel Resnick, Hyman Abrams, Abram Davis, Harry Halpern, Max Hercov, David Newman, Samuel

Judge Joslin Gives Verdict

Adolf Hitler and his year-old Nazi program, in the sober, mature judgment of Rhode Island public opinion, today stood convicted of humanity's most grievous crime — found guilty of seeking to turn the world against historic progress and the blessings of modern civilization back to an antiquated and barbarous despotism that would plunge all peoples into chaos.

Thus, after hearing detailed evidence of a prosecution containing five definite accusations, was the verdict rendered in the "Case of Civilization Against Hitlerism," tried last night at Temple Emanuel before a capacity audience. There was no defense.

"Menace to Mankind"

With all the impressiveness of a high court, witnesses representing Christianity, Woman, Culture, Democracy and Judaism, in solemn succession, presented irrefutable testimony against the menace to mankind, the peril to peace and freedom and civilized life, the Nazi blight that threatens to "push world progress back hundreds of years."

Judge Philip C. Joslin of the Superior Court presided and the witness and testimony presented included: Dr. Samuel Clifton, president of the R. I. Ministers' Union, "The Indictment of the Christian Churches Against Hitlerism"; Prof. Sharon O. Brown of Brown University, "The Indictment of Culture Against Hitlerism"; Miss Alice W. Hunt, president of the Consumers' League of

Touro Fraternal Honors Memory of Jacob Eaton

Several hundred members and friends of the Touro Fraternal Association attended the annual memorial exercises for Jacob A. Eaton, Wednesday evening at Touro headquarters.

Mrs. Marion L. Misch, well-known leader in women's circles, lecturer and member of the school committee was the principal speaker.

Jacob Eaton, who was organization's founder, died 13 years ago, after devoting his life to the service and welfare of his people and to his State.

He came to Brooklyn, N. Y., at the age of 14, but because of his minority he could not procure his citizenship here. He went back to his birthplace, Roumania until he was 23, maintaining a residence in Brooklyn. Coming back to Brooklyn he entered business and having occasion to visit Providence on an errand, he took a liking to the city and decided to settle here. He was naturalized herein in the old third ward in 1899, became a member of their Republican committee two years later and shortly was chairman. From then on he climbed in politics becoming finally Secretary of State Printing Commission. He did innumerable deeds for the citizenry but he was even a greater friend to his Jewish fellowmen.

President David C. Adelman

opened the meeting and Samson Nathanson presided. Cantor Joseph Schlossberg of Temple Beth Israel delivered the "El Mo Rochim." Mrs. Misch was presented with flowers.

Beth-El Men's Club Plans Radio Show

If there happens to be a broadcasting star whose name is missing from the list of those scheduled to "appear" at the Gigantic Radio Nite of Temple Beth-El's Men's Club next Tuesday, it is due to a typographical error or lack of space, for they'll all "be there." And so will several hundred Men's Club guests who are coming to see the show, to dance, partake of refreshments and generally to have themselves one swell time.

Members have been asked to bring their women folks and other guests to the party, which will be held in the vestry of the Broad Street Temple. Dr. Albert C. Berger is chairman of the arrangements committee and he promises a grand time for the audience in its attempts to identify the impersonators of, to name a few, Rubinoof, Eddie Cantor, Graham McNamee, Greta Garbo (never heard her on the radio, but she's on the list!) Nick Parkyourcarcass, Bing Crosby, Jessica Dragonette, Ed Wynn, Bert Lahr, Lannie Ross, Joe Penner, Rudy Valee, Maurice Chevalier, Albertina Rasch Girls (wonder how they sound!), all to be presented by the National Bunkasting Company.

The show starts at 8.30 and dancing and refreshments will follow the broadcast. Additional tickets are obtainable through Dr. Berger or Harry M. Myers, president of the club.

SAVING A GENERATION

The disaster in Germany has brought the Jews of the world face to face with a tragic situation of catastrophic proportions. A whole Jewish community comprising 600,000 persons has been disrupted and demoralized; its members have become economic and social outcasts, moral "lepers," intellectual "criminals." Their lot is pathetic and sorrowful to the extreme. Yet it is not to be compared with the piercing tragedy of the children, the younger generation which has been struck by the Nazi terror as if by some mysterious, deadly plague that threatens to twist their lives into a mangled mass of torture and pain.

Psychologists tell us that the mind is at its most impressionable stage in childhood, that the slightest experience, beneficial or otherwise, registers upon the delicate mechanism of the brain and leaves its ineradicable record upon it. The libel and slander that the Nazis are spreading in the schools, in the press, in the movies, and through every other channel of public communication fall upon the defenceless Jewish youth in Germany with the crushing blow of an avalanche burying it in the debris of degradation and shame. While many of the adults cannot perhaps understand why they, who never conducted themselves or lived as Jews, should be persecuted for being something that they always denied they were, they nevertheless have the mental capacity to realize that the vicious anti-Semitism launched by the Hitlerites has little basis in fact or even in religious prejudice, but is in reality a pretext and a delusion which the Nazis have exploited in order to arouse the German people. This is bitter enough, and yet it contains some grain of consolation.

But in the case of the children, how can their immature minds perceive the true motives behind this flagrant crime against the Jews? How can their tender spirits resist the steady vilification and constant taunts of their teachers, their fellow-pupils, and their former "Aryan" friends? How can they fight off a system of intolerance and prejudice that has already scarred them for life and branded them in their own minds as "inferior" and "second grade" beings. What far-reaching injury this will bring to the future generation it is too terrible to contemplate. But it is all too clear that these children will grow up as a lost and broken generation unless they are extricated from Germany body and soul. And this can be accomplished only by transporting and settling them in Palestine. The refuge that they may find in other European countries, will, of course, place them in a more sympathetic environment. But economic barriers curtail their opportunities for a haven in Europe, where at best, they would continue to bear the stigma of foreigners.

In Palestine, however, the children can find not only a complete escape from persecution, but every opportunity for a normal and secure life, enriched by the cultural heritage of the Jewish people. The children who are now ostracized as an alien and destructive element in Germany can become an indigenously vital element in the upbuilding of Palestine. It is with this high purpose in view that the Jewish Agency for Palestine has included in its efforts to settle German Jews in Palestine through the Central Bureau for the Settlement of German Jewish refugees in Palestine, a special plan for settling, maintaining and educating children from the kindergarten age to the age of 18 on the soil of Palestine. By the very urgent nature of the suffering of the children, this phase of the bureau's work demands the whole-hearted support of American Jewry.

PACKED HOUSE WITNESSES "YOSHE KALB" PERFORMANCE

"Herald" Reviewer Hopeful of Future of Yiddish Theater — Sees Finer and Higher Standards as the New Aims of Producers and Actors

By JACK SILVERMAN

After waiting two years during which the play attained one of the greatest successes the Jewish Theatre has enjoyed in many years, Maurice Schwartz brought his Yiddish Art Theater production, "Yoshe Kalb" to the Modern Theatre last Sunday for two performances, and it was a typical Schwartz offering in one sense, and different than usual in another.

In the first sense, it was the type of play, manner of production, scenery, lighting, acting and all that is typical of our Jewish Art Theater. Schwartz never comes here without the proper scenery, lights, etc. . . . Oh, no . . . not he! . . . The second sense was, we are very happy to report, an almost complete sell-out for both performances, which is different from the usual Schwartz luck of the past. . . . Somehow or other those other Jewish "Theatrical offerings" which travel without lights and scenery, and care very little for the natives, (or "Moishe T." as they call them) of the smaller towns, have had much better response in years past than did Schwartz.

The audiences evidently liked the cheap melodrama, imitations of the Non-Jewish theatre, the hokum the so-called "leibedigs" of the songs and dances, and what not . . . This writer, (an ex-theater director) has torn handfuls of hair out of his partly bald head, in anguish over this. "Why should these buffoons get a packed house, and an artist like Schwartz only moderate audiences?" Somehow the answer was never forthcoming; not publicly; but in the back of our head was always the suggestion and feeling that the great mass of Jewish theatre goers have not yet learned to distinguish the good from the bad, art from hokum, and so forth, and so forth!

Of course it must be admitted that the play received an unusual amount of good publicity prior to its local coming. Then again, it was Sunday. And as a parting shot—there were a fair number of non-Jews present. It does not deter from the fact that "Yoshe Kalb" is an excellent dramatization by Mr. Schwartz of L. J. Singer's novel of the same name. An adaptation which was very difficult to make (due to the fact that the task of the novelist is not limited as is the task of the dramatist. A book is not expected to be read in one sitting of 2 1/2 hours. The novelist can take all the time he wants in developing his characters. He can switch them from one locality to another, thousands of times if he may so wish.

Rules of the stage which demand economy of attention, swift exposition of theme, limited physical surroundings, not to say a thing about the close relationship of lights, scenery and costumes to the play and its construction, are not foisted upon the novelist. It is much more difficult to write a good play than it is to write a good novel, as can be clearly visible by making comparisons in the results attained. There are conservatively speaking ten or fifteen good novels produced every year to each good play, notwithstanding the fact that every one we know from the office boy to a bank president hopes some day to be the creator of an immortal theatrical masterpiece.

These difficulties which beset the dramatist in the writing of a new and original play, are still present when an adaptation is desired from a novel. To some extent they are even more complicated as would be in the case of a tailor trying to remodel a ladies dress into a suit. If any criticism is to be offered on Mr. Schwartz's production of "Yoshe Kalb," it can not be justly found in the acting, staging, character portrayal or anything else except that in adapting the play for the stage, Mr. Schwartz would have done perhaps much better in not following the original novel as closely as he tried to.

It is one of those books that demands the facilities of the Chinese theatre, where they think nothing of sitting at a performance for 6 or 7 hours and witnessing 50 or 60 different scenes. The theme of the book could have been truthfully presented on the stage even if Mr. Schwartz said to himself "I'll dramatize Yoshe in my own way, in the way a story is presented in the theater . . . 3 acts, and 2 changes of scene . . . Mr. Singer is all right in his way as a novelist but like most writers he does not fully visualize the technique and limitations of the theater . . . after all, the main task is to tell a story, and there certainly are no definite rules as to how it should be told".

Mr. Schwartz did not choose to write a play based upon Mr. Singer's book. He preferred to dramatize it. There is no crime in that, only a difference of opinion. Perhaps he figured that most of the people who will go to see the play, have read the book. Perhaps some other cause swayed him in the direction he chose. At any rate the entire subject is a matter of opinion.

As to the story, it is somewhat complicated; especially to the uninitiated in the strange manners and customs of the "Chasidim". It concerns Reb Melech, the Nyseheve Rabbi, who has been widowed thrice, and who according to law must not marry again, lest his act bring misfortune. Reb Melech states that this is not a law, but merely a custom and he chose to disregard it. The object of his desire is the young and beautiful Malkale, niece of his follower Mechelle. The only obstacle in his path is the fact that his own young daughter Serele is not yet married. This he smooths out in an iron handed manner by actually compelling the Rechanivke Rabbi to marry his son Nachumche to Serele, after which he loses little time in compelling the marriage of Malkale to himself.

His triumph is however short lived. Malkale is as spirited as a race horse. On his wedding night she humbles his pride by making him feel what he really is—a very old man. Worse still she falls in love with his son-in-law Nachumche who is a young idealistic boy, and who has not acclimated himself to his position as husband to Serele. Consequences of the dire prophesy begin to follow in rapid succession. Malkale dies 9 months later, and Nachumche overcomes remorse flees from his home and becomes a wanderer.

After many years of wandering he lands in the town of Byelagure, where he becomes assistant to Konon the sexton. He has changed his name to "Yoshe" and due to his meekness has been nicknamed "Yoshe Kalb". The sexton's half-witted daughter, Zivya falls in love with him and conceals a story that Yoshe is the father of her expectant child. A forced marriage is arranged, but Yoshe runs away and returns to his wife and home after an absence of 15 years. Reb Melech rejoices in the return of his son-in-law and decides to make him his heir and successor in preference to his sons who have proven unworthy. Just then a messenger arrives from Byelagure and accuses Nachumche of being "Yoshe Kalb". A court of seventy rabbis is convened. The trial scene that follows is one of the most effective in the whole range of dramatic literature. Nachumche is pronounced a "gizil" a lost soul, Reb Melech dies, and Nachumche or as he is also known "Yoshe Kalb" flees to once more become a wanderer.

Art personified . . . real art in the theatre. That's what Schwartz and his loyal supporters have been striving for with more or less success for a number of years. In the production of "Yoshe Kalb" they have justified their existence and struggle since the inception of their New York theatre. It is a sad but nevertheless true fact that far too many Americans, Jews included, seek the theatre only as a medium of entertainment that is logically due a 10 or 12 year old child . . . The mirror of life which the stage should rightfully present to its constituents is sadly rejected by far too many people. Perhaps what we need more than anything else in this realm is the education of the masses to appreciate the worth while and refuse the slap stick, hokum, and other trifles that the managers and producers have been serving us through the years.

As to the future of the Jewish Theatre, it is not dead as so many would like to believe. True that the suspension of immigration has done a lot to reduce the number of Jewish theater goers, but the aforesaid mismanagement of the producers did the real damage. If the Jewish theatrical magnates have become disgusted with cheap imitation of non-Jewish melodrama and musical comedy, and are willing to step forward and give us plays that are typically Jewish directed by experts, played by artists and produced in a manner of the Jewish Art theatre, they will be happily surprised to learn that the sons and daughters of immigrants, even those who have forgotten how to speak Yiddish, still have a heartfelt longing to view the Jewish drama properly presented.

And So The Days Pass

By JACK SILVERMAN

WOONSOCKET BY THE "SEE" (Yes, see . . . if you can do as well in Providence!)

Last week, Wednesday, March 14, I was the guest of Woonsocket Lodge, No. 989 B'nai Brith, a Jewish order, (if you don't know it) of the highest rank . . . A Jewish order, that I am ashamed to say, has no lodge in Providence. (For which you, and you, and I have no excuse) . . . If you know anything about that Woonsocket crowd, you'll guess that we all had a swell time . . . Everything that bunch up in the northern corner of the state ever does, is done in so much better style than we city slickers ever do in Providence, that even their mediocre efforts compare favorably with the best that we can boast of.

The lodge celebrated its 10th anniversary, (lahng leben zolen zei!) at Schwartz's Mayfair Inn, North Smithfield, (a "peachy" spot) . . . In addition to some 125 members, there were present about 150 friends and guests . . . to tell you my impressions of the evening, the people, the spirit, and the effect it had on me, would take the whole column . . . ALL RIGHT, LET'S . . . I think it's not only worthwhile copy, but something that'll interest you . . . so here goes.

The Shalansky sisters, girls who have set a fine example in community endeavors . . . Jack Shaffer, president of the Pawtucket Lodge, who journeyed over to give his felicitations . . . Leo Lyons of Boston, the grand old man of B'nai Brith, and one of the most lovable people you could ever meet . . . Florence Abrams, who won the first lucky prize . . . This dinner tastes better than wonderful . . . where did I eat this wonderful cooking before? . . . "Tell me, Mary, who prepared this meal?" . . . "Oh, don't you know, Mr. Silverman?" . . . Mrs. Beckie Brenner did." . . . Beckie Brenner of Bethlechem fame? . . . Oh well . . . Frank Cohen, president of the Taunton Lodge . . . The Choral Society — the treat of the evening . . . and the main speaker of the evening, Frank Goldman of Lowell, president, District Grand Lodge No. 1; a public orator, and a leader of people, whose reputation is bound to be known all over the country in a short time.

UNITY
There were many more, of course, but I do know that you don't expect me to mention everybody. What I wish to talk to you about is the communal spirit . . . the UNITY that is present in the small Jewish community of Woonsocket, and that is sadly lacking here.

Regardless of what the object is to be attained . . . So long as it is of a Jewish nature . . . You will always find the Jewish families of Woonsocket in the foreground, presenting a solid front . . . From Arthur Darman (who I'm pretty sure is the head man in many things, including business and money) to the least known and poorest individual . . . THEY ALL STAND TOGETHER . . . You won't find much bickering and discord among them because one comes from Poland, and the other from Russia . . . No animosity because one is a "Litvack" and the other a "Galitzeaner" . . . No division between Reformed and Orthodox . . . rich or poor, young or old.

THEY ARE JEWS . . . and they try to live up to the idea of Judaism as it properly should be lived up to, in a spirit of brotherliness, friendship and humility . . . I don't believe there is a single one among them who donates either his money, time, or efforts to gain "Gai'voh" . . . that malignant ill which a certain number of our brethren are afflicted with . . . they who give a donation, or perform a service, with the sole object in view of gaining publicity or praise . . . THE WOONSOCKET JEWISH PEOPLE DO MANY GOOD DEEDS THAT ARE UNHEARD AND UNSUNG, because they feel it is their Jewish duty to do them, and because they enjoy a spiritual satisfaction in so doing.

Did I say a column? . . . I could devote several columns to give examples and illustrations of certain specific cases, and still have enough material left to write a couple of books . . . However . . . THE REAL reason for this article is not so much to praise them, as an attempt to awaken us . . . We in Providence are a fairly good sized Jewish Community . . . WE ARE NOT ACCOMPLISHING ALL THE GOOD THAT WE SHOULD . . . True, we are accomplishing a fair lot . . . BUT NOT ALL THAT WE SHOULD AND ARE CAPABLE OF . . . There is not enough co-ordination among our various groups, societies and synagogues . . . there is a certain duplication and competition of activity that is useless and wasteful . . . There are many things needed that have to date been neglected, such as a central publicity bureau to regulate and distribute the proper kind of Jewish publicity to the non-Jewish press.

As things are at present, every "Chaim" and "Moishe" run to the local dailies with items that clog up the allotted space to Jewish activities, which are in most cases of no interest to the Gentiles, and which space SHOULD be filled with news matter that will do us SOME REAL GOOD . . . We should have a committee representing the different Jewish groups and societies of the community to plan and carry out activities that will not interfere with one another, and be of benefit to ALL instead of only a few . . . In Jewish education we could have one central school for advanced Jewish learning supported by ALL the Talmud Torahs, where their graduates could pursue Jewish learning as far as they were desirous . . . Oh, yes, my friend . . . WE SHOULD do a lot of things . . . We CAN do a great deal more than we have in the past if we emulate Woonsocket, and other Jewish communities that live and work along their standard and ideas.

Last, but not least . . . this column was inspired by a visit to a B'nai Brith meeting . . . Let us by all means revive our defunct lodge in Providence . . . you can count me in 100 percent . . . LET'S GO . . . And so the days pass.

More than 250 members and guests attended a dinner and entertainment in celebration of the 10th anniversary of the founding of Woonsocket Lodge, Order of B'nai Brith, Wednesday night in the Mayfair Inn. Felicitations were extended the lodge by various speakers, including President Frank Goldman of Lowell, who heads the District Grand Lodge, No. 1, comprising those lodges in New York, New England and Eastern Canada. Arthur Kornstein, chairman of the program committee of Woonsocket lodge was toastmaster.

Other speakers were: Jacob A. Goldberg, president of Worcester Lodge; Frank P. Cohen, president of Taunton Lodge; Jacob Shaffer, president of Pawtucket Lodge; Lawrence White, general secretary of the District Grand Lodge of New York; Rabbi I. Rakovsky of Pawtucket, formerly of Toledo, Ohio, and a member of the lodge in that city; Morris Espo, past president of Pawtucket Lodge; Max Reback of Pawtucket, former district deputy for Rhode Island; Nestor Dreyfus, past president of the New London Lodge; Harry J. Second prize, donated by Joseph Baker, was won by Mrs. Samuel Kornstein. Mrs. Charles M. Hoffman, wife of Major Charles M. Hoffman, superintendent of the Miriam Hospital, again acted hostess to the staff of the hospital at a party Monday evening at her home on Lenox avenue. However, instead of the dignified staff expected, Mrs. Hoffman welcomed at the door, a party of youngsters gaily attired in rompers, bloomer dresses and overalls—the staff had gone childlike.

Upon discovering that they could play bridge, seven tables were set and prizes given at each for the one who could play the best. Singing, dancing and games were prevalent throughout the evening, and refreshments were served at a beautifully arranged table. Assisting Mrs. Hoffman were Mrs. Morris Berry, Mrs. Alter Boyman, Mrs. Charles Brown and Mrs. Carl Jagolinzer.

Rhode Island, "The Indictment of Woman Against Hitlerism"; Former Asst. Atty.-Gen. Fred B. Perkins, secretary of the Rhode Island Bar Association, "The Indictment of Democracy Against Hitlerism," and Rabbi Israel M. Goldman of Temple Emanu-El, "The Indictment of the Jews Against Hitlerism."

Hitler's doctrine, Dr. Clifton charged, constitutes a "mad man's fury directed at minority groups in the German Reich. It is a systematic and ruthless persecution of 600,000 Jews who are being eliminated from the political, commercial, professional and cultural life of the nation merely because they are not Aryans." Every kind of inhuman treatment has been visited upon this hapless group by Hitlerism and the entire world has been shocked by the spectacle.

"Our protest is against such cruelty and oppression in the name of our common Father, who has made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth. Hitler has ordered the church to remodel itself; to make itself not Christian, but German; not universal but Aryan; not free, but a Nazi agency under Nazi control. And already the results are consistent with bitter hatred and wicked persecution.

Placed Above God
"Hitler is placed first — even above God, and the one who is above God begins a system of punishment for those who do not conform. Men and women are maltreated, imprisoned, as the sign of a mad man's God-defying impiety. Surely, the voice of the civilized world must be lifted in protest against such a denial of divine Fatherhood and human brotherhood!"

federal government convey to Germany the shock and pain of the American people.

Passed unanimously by the legislature last week, the resolution, introduced by Rep. Charles Brown of Providence, the only Jewish member of the House, was signed promptly by Governor Theodore Francis Green and despatched to Washington. Besides voicing the sentiment of the state which was founded on the principle of religious and political freedom and which was the first to declare its independence from British tyranny, the measure instructs the Rhode Island delegation in Congress to push for affirmative action against Nazi oppression of religious minorities on the part of the national government.

The resolution further points out that the German Reich "stands pledged to the United States to accord its 'nationals who belong to racial, religious or linguistic minorities . . . the same treatment and security in law and in fact as other nationals.'" It emphasized that the federal government has ample precedent, going back nearly a century in American history, to intercede with a foreign government on behalf of its oppressed minorities and urge passage of the Tydings and Dickstein measures now pending in Congress.

accused the Nazi chieftain of seeking to wipe out, ruthlessly, cruelly, all the gains Woman has made toward equality and emancipation in the past 100 years. Scores of excellent woman physicians, scholars and attorneys in Germany have been relegated to cookstove slavery, she charged; sentenced, under the Hitler regime to revert to the former state of an outlook restricted to the kitchen and the dispan. The great danger is in spread of the Nazi movement just when Woman is beginning to prove her right to equality in cultural, business and professional endeavors.

Freedom Challenged

Those principles upon which this country was created and has prospered, religious, economic and political freedom, are unalterably and directly at variance with the Nazi doctrine. Mr. Perkins pointed out, and whatever progress has been made toward world peace, toward liberality and true neighborliness among all peoples, stands impaired so long as the Nazi menace exists.

The American democracy of free speech, free press, free assembly, of religious and civil liberty compels those who believe in these principles to protest against the tyranny and oppression of Hitler, he declared, and true Americans would be out of step with tradition if they failed to speak out against the barbaric despotism so plainly evident in Nazi Germany. Levelling Culture's accusation at Hitler, Prof. Brown cited the hundreds of Jewish scientists, artists and educators who have been ousted from German universities during the past year. He stressed the existing low state of learning in the Reich as compared with its former high standing among the concert of nations. Germany in particular and all humanity as well stand to lose immeasurably by the unreasoning illogical and senseless discrimination

Former Providence Rabbi and Wife Feted

Cincinnati, March 22 — All members of Temple Israel earlier this week joined in a reception to Rabbi and Mrs. Samuel M. Gup, its spiritual leader, on his 15th wedding anniversary. Rabbi Gup for a number of years was head of Temple Beth-El, Providence, and did much to develop that congregation, coming here direct from the Rhode Island city.

The reception was under the direction of the Rose E. Lazarus Sisterhood of Temple Israel and was held in Winding Hollow City Club. The rabbinical couple was presented with a number of gifts and both responded briefly to commendatory addresses.

In addition to state and municipal chief executives, speakers were Dr. John E. Donley, former state psychiatrist; Dr. Albert L. Midgeley, Col. Frank W. Tillinghast, Walter F. Farrell, president of the Union Trust Company and an Outlet director; Daniel M. Morrissey, Providence attorney, and Edward M. Fay.

A silver vase, inscribed to commemorate the day in 1894 when Joseph and Leon Samuels opened their first shop in Weybosset Street, was presented to Col. Samuels by his associates. Frank E. Ballou, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce retail board of trade, recalled the growth of the Outlet Company, and Weybosset Street with it, from the time the two ambitious young Samuels boys came here. Governor Green paid tribute to him as a "public-spirited citizen," sentiments echoed by Mayor Dunne.

Dr. Donley, keynote speaker, emphasized the department store head's philanthropy, stressing the gift to Rhode Island Hospital of the Samuels Lental Clinic. J. E. Edelstein, vice president of The Outlet, was toastmaster and James Sinclair was chairman.

Delegates from Bay State

Slated April 15

National Head to Speak

Several hundred delegates, representing Jewish reform congregations, sisterhoods and brotherhoods of Massachusetts and Rhode Island will convene in Temple Beth-El here Sunday, April 15, for a conference on religious problems generally, but with special emphasis on the question of Jewish education for both the adult and the younger generations.

The convention will be held in Providence for the first time in the history of the reform movement. It is sponsored by the North East Religious Union of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, parent body of all reform Jewish congregations in the United States.

Follows General Program

The conference is part of the program being carried out by the Union to intensify and amplify Jewish religious work in the New England area. In pursuance of this policy the North East Religious Union has been holding a series of meetings in New England with Jewish farmers, Jewish students and other groups of Jews living away from synagogal influence, in an effort to bring the message of religion to them. This is the first conference in the area this year devoted entirely to education.

The first session will be a luncheon at noon in the vestry, at which Samuel B. Finkel of Boston, president of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods will be the main speaker. Addresses will be delivered by Charles Brown, president of Temple Beth El and Rabbi Wil-

NEW YORK, March 22 (JTA)—German industry today was looking askance at the Hitler government as a result of body blows struck in America this week as, one after another, great merchandising concerns announced elimination of Nazi-made goods and rupture of trade relations with the Reich.

Definite reports of deep-seated rumblings among both the working classes and industrial executives were arriving here from a variety of sources. #### Woolworth Joins Ban

The latest blow at German business was struck by the F. W. Woolworth Company on Monday when Byron D. Miller, president, announced "we have discontinued importing German goods owing to the extreme sales resistance." It is the first boycott victory in the low price field and doubly important because Woolworth's has been one of the Reich's biggest American customers.

Belatedly, after an earlier refusal which all but blocked the entire boycott six months ago, the R. H. Macy Company has cabled its Berlin offices to close and instead is establishing quarters in Prague. "Consumer resistance to goods of German origin" is given as the reason. Gimbel Brothers and B. Altman and Company have followed suit.

Boycott Grows

Altogether, of more than 70 department stores in New York that were questioned by the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League, only four large establishments have failed to answer. These are Wanamaker's, Nammis, Abraham and Straus and Loeser's, the latter in Brooklyn. All other replies indicate some definite form of allegiance to the boycott.

Campaign for Workers in Palestine will be Launched April 1

The campaign for the Jewish Workers in Palestine known as the Geverkshefen will open Sunday evening, April 1 at the Poale Zion Center on North Main Street. Professor Chaim Fineman of Temple University, Philadelphia will be the principal speaker and the famous opera singer from Palestine, Moïse Nathanson will render a program of new Palestinian songs.

The executive committee includes Alter Boyman, chairman; Max Berman and Mrs. K. Phillips, associate chairmen; Morris Beeber, treasurer; Henry Burt, secretary; Harry Finberg, chairman of the advisory board.

The general committee: Solomon Lightman, Mrs. Harry S. Beck, David Bellove, Joseph Biller, Harry Chaet, Arthur Korman, Abraham Maklar, Dr. Philip M. Phillips, Israel Resnick, Hyman Abrams, Abram Davis, Harry Halpern, Max Hercov, David Newman, Samuel

Beth-El Men's Club Plans Radio Show

If there happens to be a broadcasting star whose name is missing from the list of those scheduled to "appear" at the Gigantic Radio Nite of Temple Beth-El's Men's Club next

Tuesday, it is due to a typographical error or lack of space, for they'll all "be there." And so will several hundred Men's Club guests who are coming to see the show, to dance, partake of refreshments and generally to have themselves one swell time.

Members have been asked to bring their women folks and other guests to the party, which will be held in the vestry of the Broad Street Temple. Dr. Albert C. Berger is chairman of the arrangements committee and he promises a grand time for the audience in its attempts to identify the impersonators-of, to name a few, Rubinoff, Eddie Cantor, Graham McNamee, Greta Garbo (never heard her on the radio, but she's on the list!) Nick Parkyourcass, Bing Crosby, Jessica Dragonette, Ed Wynn, Bert Lahr, Lannie Ross, Joe Penner, Rudy Valee, Maurice Chevalier, Albertina Rasch Girls (wonder how they sound!), all to be presented by the National Bunkasting Company.

The show starts at 8.30 and dancing and refreshments will follow the broadcast. Additional tickets are obtainable through Dr. Berger or Harry M. Myers, president of the club.
