Home for Aged Campaign Opens Monday Providence Temples To Celebrate Brotherhood Day

BETH ISRAEL AND EMANU-EL SUPPORT EVENT TO PROMOTE INTER-FAITH UNDERSTANDING

Jewish Observance Tonight Coincides With National Program to be Held Sunday in Catholic, Protestant Churches

Backed by Human Relations Seminar

Two Providence Jewish congregations, Temple Beth-Israel in Niagara Street, and Temple Emanu-El in Sessions Street, representing widely separated sections of the city, tonight will participate wholeheartedly in the nation-wide observance of Brotherhood Day, a program sponsored by the National Conference of Jews and Christians, it was announced today by the rabbis.

The event is being sponsored in this state by the Rhode Island Seminar on Human Relationships, both the national and state organizations being dedicated to promotion of peace and harmony and understanding among peoples of different religious persuasions.

Observance Inter-Religious

In the Christian Churches, both Catholic and Protestant, the celebration will be held Sunday. Through Brotherhood Day, leaders of the three great religious faiths hope further to dispel inter-religious distrust and prejudice, replacing these twin evils with human brotherhood and understanding to the end that religious minorities may be respected and appreciated.

At Temple Emanu-El, the Sabbath Eve service at 8:15 o'clock will be marked by an inter-faith service as part of the national observance. "Making the World Safe for Differences" will be the theme, and speakers will be Dr. Charles Carroll, state director of vocational education and Catholic leader associated with the Seminar; Dr. James D. Morrison, pastor of Central Baptist Church who is planning to attend the international Baptist convention this summer in Berlin; and Rabbi Israel M. Goldman, spiritual leader of the Temple. Rabbi Goldman is perhaps the most active Jewish religious

Symposium on Zionism to be Held Here May 6

Several hundred Young Judeans and Zionists are expected to attend the Symposium on Zionism to be held Sunday, May 6, in the foyer of the Biltmore Hotel. This event is sponsored in co-operation with the Zionist district to point out the urgent need for awakening a Jewish consciousness amidst a world hostile to Jewish life. It will stress the need for a definite and genuine co-operation in order to safeguard Jewish life.

Samuel M. Strong, leader of the Senior Judeans will coach the following participants in their respective topics:

Miss Irene Kassid, Brief Historical Review of Principles and Doctrine of Zionism; Miss Eva Zbarsky, the Jewish Agency; Miss Eva Smith, the Hadassah Movement; Milton Jacobs, the Keren Kayemeth and its Accomplishments; Sidney Cohen, the Keren Hayesod and its Role in Jewish Life; Hyman Stein, the Significance of Zionism for American Jewish Youth.

The sponsors of the affair are Morris Block, Joseph Keller and Samuel Goldin, all members of the Rhode Island Council of Young Judeans.

FAMOUS SINGER UNDISTURBED BY DEATH THREATS

Mme. Schmann-Heink Receives Crank Note At Anti-Nazi Rally

Two Detectives Guard Diva

New York, April 26 (JTA) — Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, 73-year-old matriarch of the opera, scoffed at death threats received when she sang at an anti-Nazi rally here Sunday night in Carnegie Hall but her friends and associates were not so reckless.

When she left Pennsylvania Station for Chicago early this week, two detectives from the regular group covering the huge depot were assigned to watch over her party, it became known today.

Her friends apparently were more worried than she herself, despite the fact that the letter which was handed in at the stage door at Carnegie Hall was the fourth or fifth of a series she had been mysteriously receiving in the last two months.

At the office of Harold Poat, her manager, the seriousness of the death threat letters was minimized. "By and large the German people in this country love Mme. Schumann-Heink as much as the Jews, the Catholics and everybody else," it was stated.

"Me have a bodyguard?" she said after she had received the letter Sunday night. "Not at my age!"

With this the singer closed the proceedings, except to remark that she would be in New York on Mother's Day, at which time she and Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, will share honors at the annual Mother's Day luncheon in the Hotel Astor.

Chalutza to Address Pioneer Donors' Fete

Mrs. Goldie Myerson, one of the most active Women Pioneer workers in the country, ardent Zionist and forceful orator, will be the principal speaker at the annual donors dinner to be held by the Women Pioneers Club of this city, Sunday evening, May 13 at 6:30 o'clock in Zinn's Banquet Hall.

Mrs. Myerson was born in Milwaukee, Wisconsin and received her early training and education in the United States. Scarcely out of her teens, she went to Palestine. There she lived as a Chalutza doing every type of work from the tilling of the soil to working in the offices of the Histadruth.

For the past two years, she has been the Histadruth's delegate to America. She was chosen for this position not only for her outstanding ability as a speaker but chiefly for her understanding and knowledge of the American youth and their problems.

At present, Mrs. Myerson is making a tour of the United States to unite all sympathizers of Labor Palestine, in particular the youth of America. She has also made a successful tour of Canada and interested many Jewish communities in the work carried on in Palestine.

The officers of the committee in charge of the arrangements for the event consist of Mrs. Morris Beeber, chairman; Mrs. Harry Schleifer, co-chairman; Mrs. Louis Smira, treasurer and Mrs. Harry S. Beck, president, ex-officio.

150 to Take Part in Drive

Vitality important to the institution itself, the aged of Rhode Island and the general welfare of all Jewry, the intensive membership campaign of the Jewish Home for the Aged opens Monday on a state-wide basis with an army of 150 workers ready to canvass every Jewish family in the various communities.

Headquarters for the drive will be at the Home, in Hillside Avenue, and the first meeting of workers and captains, in the nature of a preliminary rally at which instructions will be given out, is slated for tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the Home.

To Cover Whole State

Nat C. Cohen of Providence, is general chairman of the campaign, with Bernard M. Goldowsky as director of teams. Superintendent Manuel P. Ostrow is assisting. Twelve teams have been set up to cover Providence alone, while councils have been created for Pawtucket, Woonsocket, Newport, Westerly, and East Greenwich.

Supported almost entirely heretofore by Providence residents, the membership campaign this year is being extended to Jewish communities in other Rhode Island cities because the Home serves the entire Jewish population of the state. Direct contributions and proceeds from membership comprise the sole financial income.

The Pawtucket Council is being directed by Morris Espo, chairman, and Maurice Friedman, co-chairman; Newport, Judge Max Levy, chairman; Nathan David, co-chairman; Woonsocket, Arthur L. Darman and

Emanu-El Carnival Nets $2500, Honor Aisenberg

Old Man Depression was handed a terrific trouncing at the hands of the Temple Emanu-El Men's Club and its corps of assistants in the congregation, it was learned today as final results of the carnival held there recently became known.

By the same token, the Temple's mortgage fund was inflated to the extent of $2500, the net profits, as Chairman Samuel Rosen of the carnival committee at last week's Victory Night meeting of the Men's Club handed Judge C. Joslin, president of the Temple, a check for that amount. Reports showed the three-day jubilee to have been the most successful event in the Temple's history.

Announcement of the $2500 profit was made at the Men's Club meeting last week in the vestry of the Sessions Street Temple. It was also Ladies' Night, the men evidently asking them to be present in order to have an audience to brag to. Incidentally, women of the congregation had a major part in the carnival's success.

The speaker was Judge Jeremiah E. O'Connell of Superior Court, who described "Glimpses of the Orient." Judge O'Connell spent a long vacation in the East several years ago.

The Men's Club also elected officers for this year, naming Herman Aisenberg, president; Herbert Tienman, first vice president; Alex Wei-

Treibitsch-Lincoln

"I see by the papers," said Dr. Joshua Bloch to me, "that our friend, Treibitsch-Lincoln is back in America or passing through at any rate. The gentleman is now a Buddhist priest, having renounced Judaism many years ago for the Lutheran church, and later for the Presbyterian church and following his ministerial career, he served as spy for the English forces while at the same time spying for the Germans."

"Appropos of his presence, let me tell you a little story. Some years ago, when the name of Treibitsch-Lincoln was in the headlines by reasons of his arrest as a spy, a Christian woman came to my room (the Jewish Division of the New York Library.)

"Her name was Mrs. Lewis Tribus. Her husband was City Engineer of New York. He was one of the country's leading engineers. Mrs. Tribus came to me and without telling me who she was at first, wrote the letters that make up the name Tribus, and asked me if it was a Jewish name.

"I replied to her that as far as I knew it was not, but that there was a European town or two, which bore a name similar to that, and it is possible that some Jews, coming from that town or towns, might have such a name. It was quite customary for Jews to give themselves the names of their native towns.

"The lady was disappointed when I told her that it wasn't an intrinsically Jewish name. Then she told me the reasons of her coming.

"She was, she said, intensely devoted to her husband — Lewis Tribus. He was the most upright and magnanimous of men. And he was a very good Christian. He seemed in particular to be fond of the Old Testament and he always spoke very warmly of Palestine.

"Once he had said to her that he would give her for her wedding anniversary either an automobile or a trip to Palestine. 'I would prefer that you take the trip to Palestine,' he said. 'That was enough for me,' said Mrs. Tribus. 'If he wanted me to go to Palestine, I would go.'

"Now," continued Mrs. Tribus, "when I saw the name of Treibitsch-Lincoln in the papers, it occurred to me that the name Tribus might be of Jewish origin. Many times I have entertained the idea that my husband might have Jewish blood in him."

"What difference does it make whether your husband has Jewish blood or not?"

"Oh, you do not understand," answered Mrs. Tribus. "I would give anything to feel that my husband has in him the same blood as the Saviour."

A Contrast

So that is one story of a Christian lady named Tribus, who longed that her husband might be found to have Jewish blood.

Now let me give you another story of a Jewish family of the same name — and its reaction to Jewish blood.

The Nazi Theorician

"I see by the papers," said Dr. Melamed, the brilliant Chicago editor, to me, "that our friend Lincoln-Treibitsch is back in America. You know, of course, that he renounced Judaism, but do you know that the leading Nazi theorician — Arthur Treibitsch — was his cousin. All that the Nazis are saying about the Jews — all that the Nazis are saying about race — are but the rehashings of Arthur Treibitsch, who died a few years ago and Otto Weininger — another Jew. Both were brilliant men. Both while young were regarded as philosophical prodigies.

"Arthur Treibitsch wrote 'Geist und Judentum,' the most bitter tirade against the Jews one can imagine. Everything that Treibitsch disliked, he discovered to be Jewish. He hated Catholicism, so he proved that Catholicism was a Jewish invention. Later, he hated Free Masonry, and he branded that as Jewish.

"Brilliant as he undoubtedly was, he suffered from a persecution complex. He labored under the delusion that the Alliance Israelite was seeking his life. He was always sure that they were following him, with the knife of an assassin or with poison. When he went to sleep in a friend's home, he would steal down to see if there were any Jewish assassins concealed. He argued in the most profound German academic manner for the extermination of the Jews.

"The Nazis have not added one iota to what Treibitsch wrote. He anticipated everything they said. And it may interest you to know that Theodore Lessing, who wrote of Treibitsch's anti-Jewish tirades was respective congregations: Rabbi David Rachrach, Ahavath Shalom; Rabbi Morris Schussheim, Temple Beth Israel; Rabbi Israel M. Goldman, Temple Emanuel-El; Rabbi Isaiah Rackovsky, Ahavath Shalom, Pawtucket, and Rabbi A. Werner of Lawrence a brother of the guest of honor.

The committee in charge of arrangements included B. F. Rosen, chairman; A. Heller, Max Blum, William Elowitz, Benjamin Russian, Carl Michaelson, Joseph Bergel, Herman Bergel, Rev. Myer Smith, William Hanzler and Morris Feinberg, treasurer.

On Tuesday evening, more than forty members and friends feted Mr. and Mrs. Morris Chernov at the Shomrei Shabbos Synagogue on Douglas avenue. Speakers included Rev. Myer Levinson, M. Freidman and A. Garfinkel. A traveling trunk was presented Mr. Chernov which he graciously accepted. Cantor Sternberg entertained with vocal selections.

A large committee representing both congregations will see them off at New York today.

one of the first Jews assassinated when the Nazis got into power."

The Moral

There it is folks. A Christian lady, with the name of Tribus, struck by the similarity of her name to Treibitsch hopes that she may have Jewish blood. A Jew — Treibitsch — becomes the leading Nazi Theorician.

Small Town Boy

"Make mention in your column" buttonholed me E. B. S., "that Bernard A. Bergman, ex-secretary to Benjamin Winter, and ex-About the Town for the New Yorker is now editor of the March of Events page of the New York American. You can put it under the caption: Boy from Chillicothe, Ohio, Makes Good in Big City."

ANOTHER BUTTONHOLER

"Why don't you say something in your column, buttonholes A. J. S., 'about Maurice Schwartz always complaining about the Jews.' 'He is filling the Forward with lamentations and protestations. Twice a year, Schwartz complains about the Jewish treatment of his art. When he leaves Second Avenue and tries out the English audiences on Broadway, he always writes chiding the Jewish patrons, telling them now, he is independent of them. And when he comes back — after failing on Broadway, he always writes complaining of their neglect.'

What — Another Kicker!

"Why don't you say something in your column about Ernest Bloch?" kicks S. M. "All the Jews have been praising him to the skies. And he is always telling how Jewish his music is. Well, how do you reconcile that with his recent statement that he respects the sincerity of Hitler and that the Jewish question in Germany is only incidental. In my opinion, his Sacred Cantata, which he wrote for the Temple services ought to be boycotted as much as German ships."

"You know what Leopold Godowsky, the famous composer, remarked when he heard Bloch's statement that he respected Hitler's sincerity: 'The ox that gorges you is also sincere.' Bravo for Godowsky."

Evolution

"Did you notice?" queries Edward Coleman, secretary of the American Jewish Historical Society, "the evolution of the name Herbert Askwith — the American Jewish writer?"

"His father's name was Askwith. Later, it was changed to Askwith. Now it has become Askwith. Next — it will probably be Askwith — and maybe he'll become a prime minister — like Herbert Askwith."

More About Names

"Did you know," queries Rose L. Klein, "that Ricardo Cortez started out as Jacob Kranz — that it later became Jack Crane — and then Ricardo Cortez, and that Cortez doesn't like to be reminded of his first name?"

"And did you know, Rose L., that Jews in Palestine by the name of Klein, change it to Katan — the Hebrew word for Klein? Isn't this a Klein and meshugga world, Rose?"

Kraebling Describes Early Jewish Life. Jewish life of the third century, A. D. as portrayed by the mural in southern Mesopotamia was described Sunday night, April 22, by Dr. Carl R. Kraebling, Professor of New Testament literature at Yale University, at the final lecture of a series under the auspices of the Institute for Jewish Studies at the Temple Emanu-El.

Jews of the third century commonly ignored the Mosaic traditions banning paintings of human figures, a custom observed by the Jews of the present day in their synagogues. Dr. Kraebling said. As a result, the synagogue of Dura showed vivid portrayals of the life and customs of that day so well preserved that they still may be seen in their original colors.

Prof. Millar Burrows of the Department of Biblical Literature at Brown University presided. He was introduced by Rabbi Israel M. Goldman of Temple Emanu-El. Edward Goldberger, chairman of the Institute of Jewish Studies, also spoke.

V. F. W. Circus Opens with Parade, May 14

Plans are being made to open the Veterans of Foreign Wars Circus and Congress of Dads-Derfils at the Cyclo-drome on Monday, May 14, with a big old-fashioned street parade, according to John J. Crotley, chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Governor Theodore Francis Green will review the parade and will be guest of honor at the opening performance, which will be known as Governor's Night. The circus will run one week.

The entire arena at the Cyclo-drome is rapidly being transformed into a gigantic circus amphitheatre with facilities enabling the presentation of many large features, which are too big to stage in a regular circus tent.

The committee also announced that examinations of babies being entered in the "Perfect Rhode Island Baby" contest, will close next Monday. Examinations will be conducted on that day, at 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. and will be by appointment only.

"The Perfect Baby" will be crowned and awards will be made to winners in various classes at a baby pageant and parade which will feature the circus on Saturday, May 19, and practical of the past year with full anticipation of the coming season.

Young Israel placed in Center Scout preliminaries Wednesday evening. The play presented was a comedy, "The Passover Hebeardsail," with the following participants: Hyman Blazer, Samuel Wilk, Gilbert Stein, Ben Blum, Richard Brodsky, Raymond Gerstenblatt and Charles Kilberg.

The newly-elected club officers are: Hyman Blazer, president; Ben Blum, vice president; Sydney P. Cohen, secretary, and Richard Brodsky treasurer.

ROSH CHODESH ELLUL	SUN., AUG. 12

BROTHERHOOD DAY

Tonight at Temple Emanu-El and Temple Beth Israel will be observed Brotherhood Day, part of a nation-wide observance which will be held in the Christian places of worship on Sunday. It is sponsored here by the Rhode Island Seminar on Human Relationships and elsewhere throughout the country by the National Conference of Jews and Christians.

Brotherhood Day is still another of the admirable means being used by the Seminar to further inter-religious understanding and harmony, the need for which admittedly throughout the world has never been greater, for religious tolerance is perhaps the greatest obstacle to world peace and progress. It has ever been so, especially in times of stress when people, discouraged and economically oppressed, cast about for some goat upon which to vent their spleen.

The goat, because usually its resistance is hopeless, almost always has been a racial or religious minority. Witness the continued atrocities in Germany against the Jews and, in a lesser measure thus far, against the Catholics. Witness, too, the hate propaganda flooding this country and originating from Nazi sources.

Catholics, Protestants and Jews can never arise above old suspicions and prejudices until the average man and woman of each of the three religious persuasions come to believe in human brotherhood. Intelligent leaders among the great religions are convinced of this and, because they appreciate the importance of extending this conviction among their followers, such organizations as the Seminar and the Conference of Jews and Christians have come into being. Hence, too, Brotherhood Day.

We in America have made long strides, but we are still far from the point where the inalienable rights of men, particularly their religious liberty, have become facts and not merely theories. Any period of our history, even today's events, confirm this. The closed mind and the hostile heart are evident among all groups and it is to dispel these that Brotherhood Day and other programs are arranged by the Conference and the Seminar which have undertaken the greatest work in human history.

Brotherhood Day does not deal with doctrinal differences, it does not promote worship in common, nor does it seek to water down anyone's religious convictions. It seeks only to emphasize human relations and united work as citizens, not on religious systems. It seeks to enhance no religion at the expense of another, but rather to promote understanding among all of them to the mutual advancement of the entire world.

AN UNFORTUNATE INCIDENT

Mr. Bernard S. Deutsch, president of the New York Board of Aldermen, did a courageous thing the other day when he ejected from his office an insulting, unrepresentative committee of Jews who had taken to themselves the imposing title of the Allied Professional Committee to Aid Victims of German Fascism.

The committee, according to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, had come by appointment to protest to Mr. Deutsch against what they claimed to be "police activities in aiding the Nazis."

The protest had to do with the disgraceful conduct of some Jews in attempting to break up a Nazi meeting being held a few doors from their own protest meeting against Nazi atrocities in Ridgewood early this month. One supposes, because Jews are not less restrained than others, that these things are bound to happen on occasion; but certainly they are nothing to brag about and the wise course would be to drop the matter as an unfortunate occurrence.

Mr. Deutsch was extremely patient with the delegation, whose members were not so calm. It developed that when the anti-Nazis sought to break up the Nazi rally some of the former were arrested. Mr. Deutsch started to point out that Police Commissioner O'Ryan was the man to whom complaint should be made if the police had exceeded reasonableness. When and if O'Ryan refused to act, then the protest would be properly put before him, the board president explained.

There was some further talk and the committee became considerably upset, one of the members going so far to charge Mr. Deutsch's actions were not in accord with his anti-Nazi protestations. Righteously aroused that his consistent anti-Nazi efforts should be challenged in this insulting manner by an unknown, by any group that impatiently demands satisfaction without taking the recourse open to it under law and order, Mr. Deutsch turned on his accuser.

Mr. Deutsch's record for years in opposition to Nazi activities cannot be impugned by a hastily gathered committee which comes to the wrong place to protest against a wrong which originated with the group it took it upon itself to represent. He was engaged in organizing effective and far-reaching protests against the Nazi outrages long before Mr. Average Man took notice of what was occurring in Germany.

The spectacle of Jews invading a Nazi rally with the obvious purpose of breaking it up, the use of violence is no more to be condoned when it is turned illegally against the Nazis in New York than Hitler is to be excused for attacking Jewish minorities in Germany.

When Mr. Deutsch, personally insulted and patience tried by this unreasonable group, told them to "get out and stay out," he took an attitude that should be applauded everywhere. There are orderly ways to bring protests to the attention of proper officials and no one, Jew or Gentile, can indorse such methods as this committee sought to use.

Picture Made in Holy Land by Rosenblatt to be Shown Here

"The Dream of My People" featuring the beloved late Cantor Joseph Rosenblatt, in the first singing and talking picture made in the Holy Land, will be shown on Sunday afternoon and evening, May 13, at the Metropolitan Theatre, Providence. The proceeds are for the auspices of the Jewish National Fund.

"The Dream of My People" is a picture which every Jew and non-Jew will find it a privilege to see. Not only does it afford an opportunity to hear the majestic voice of the late Cantor Rosenblatt, but it also gives a portrayal of the vivid new life of the Holy Land. Moreover, it presents views of holy places in Zion which are dear to non-Jews and Jews alike. The voices of the young pioneers, singing their happy melodies, are a source of inspiration and cheer. The makers and distributors of this cinema are to be congratulated on their enterprise.

FAY'S THEATRE

Heather Angel finds herself in the enviable position of being the only important figure in her latest picture "Romance in Trinidad" which starts a week's run at Fay's Theatre.

The Island of Trinidad, tiny British possession off the coast of Venezuela, never before a background for a motion picture, is the locale of the story. The island, formerly a hide-out for pirates, has a rich dramatic history.

Songs and People

Someone . . . somewhere . . . some-time . . . said something about judging a people by the songs they sing. My sentiments are, however, "Judge not, lest ye be judged" . . . Judge not, especially modern America, by SOME of the songs that we sing. It would be terrible.

A lot of water has passed under the bridge since Solomon wrote, "The Song of Songs" with its beautiful lyrics such as,

"Behold, thou art fair, my precious love,

Thine eyes are like the eyes of a dove."

. . . A lot of improvement has taken place in many fields of endeavor since then, but not in the field of song writing. Were it not for a disguised blessing . . . namely, that the singers of to-day's songs are almost as bad (some of them) as the terrible chants they wail . . . So bad that hardly anyone can understand the words they emote . . . the situation would undoubtedly call for a congressional investigation!

Did you ever stop to analyze some of the silly non-sensical verses that so many millions of Americans sing and applaud? . . . Well let me give you a sample . . . Now don't laugh, I'm serious! (and if the people who wrote these songs see it here, remember I'm only kidding!) . . . Here's just one fair sample . . .

"My dog loves my dog,
And your dog loves my dog,
And if our doggies love each other,

Why can't we?"
Get the idea? . . . No, this is not a comic song. It's a serious love song. . . . At any rate it throws a new light on the subject of LOVE. A new and hitherto unused reason as to why the young lady should accept her wooer's quest. Going along further, the words are . . .

"Don't they look sweet,
Every time they meet
Beneath their favorite tree?
My big airdate wags his little tail
To tell your terrier he's crazy to marry her!"

In other words, it's a dog-gone good proposition! I mean to be a song writer these days. I think I'll take a course in some moron college and give it a try . . . who knows, I might write a "hit" and then won't I be glad! Yes Sir, I'll be able to buy me all the good things I've always wanted and couldn't have; including a barrel of herring, and a wagonload of Russia tea!

The Lion and the Fox
One day, the king of the beasts went on a voyage, and was attended, among other animals by the fox. On their arrival in port, an ass, who held the office of tax collector, demanded the usual toll. Being reproved by the fox for asking toll of a king, the ass said that he returned it to his treasurer.

The lion was greatly displeased with this foolish excuse, and in order to punish the ass, he told the fox to tear him to pieces, and bring the remains for his consumption. The fox did so, but reserved the heart, and ate it himself. When the lion found it missing, he asked the fox the reason for its disappearance. "Oh," said the fox in reply, "the ass never HAD a heart for if he had possessed one, he would never have been such a fool as to demand toll from a king."

Their lives in constant disputation. But, when he died her tears flowed fast.

And she refused all consolation. Said her friends, "With the death of John.

She lost her most important occupation."

A Tale of Horror

Here's a yarn that's been going around for some time, but perhaps some of you have never heard it . . . In a small southern city there lived a young woman who for several nights was terrified with the same horrible dream. She dreamed that a man with an ugly scar on his right cheek, driving a hearse, came along beside her, and said, "Step in please."

Her nerves became so terribly shattered that upon the advice of her family physician, and accompanied by her mother, she went to visit relatives in Montreal. During their stay in the Canadian city, the two went shopping and came into the largest store in town, a 14 story building.

"They have a lovely roof garden here, giving you a fine view of the city," said the mother, "let's go up there."

They stepped up to the levator, and as the door opened the girl was horror stricken . . . There in front of her . . . the elevator operator . . . saying "step in, please," was the face with the ugly scar that she saw in her dreams!

The girl swooned, and had to be taken to a hospital . . . a minute later there was a terrible crash in the store. The elevator just before reaching the roof garden, became disengaged from its cable and crashed to the basement killing every one of the passengers.

Here And There

Miss Sylvia Cohen—Do you think it was nice of you not to let me know first that you have become engaged to Lou Goldberg? . . . Are we pals, or what? . . . A young man asked me to fix it up with a certain lady, whom he is very much in love with. I tried my best, and this is to let him know that her husband, (oh you didn't know she had one!) says "nothing doing" . . . James Seligman of Fall River—Are you sick, in jail or did you get married? Why haven't we seen or heard from you all these months? . . . Bill Brown, New Orleans, La.: Dear Bill—How you all gettin' along down yonder, and is you-all comin' up this way in the summah time? . . .

There's a movement brewing to tender a complimentary affair to Senator Paul Robin, which I heartily endorse.

Joe Shukovsky has a new idea of facing his summer vacations. He's going into the hospital for an operation in a short while. My sincerest wishes for a speedy recovery, Joe . . . Natalie (Fisher) Percelay:—Listen Pal . . . I'd like to have you write a piece for this column . . . will you please? I know you can do a swellgang job . . . Meet Morris Mogelev, a new addition to the Jewish Herald staff, a peachy guy and a prince of a good fellow . . . and so the days pass.

Temple Men's Club Plans Future Activities

Charles L. Silverman, chairman of the Temple Beth-El Men's Club annual Father and Son Night scheduled for May 29, announces that extensive plans are underway to make this a most outstanding event.

In addition to the dinner and movies, the Men's Club is sponsoring an essay contest for the Sunday School Students of Beth-El, to consist of 500 words on the subject "What My Father Means to Me." A prize of a school bag will be donated for the best essay. The judges will be Rabbi William G. Braude and Mordecai Soloff, principal of the school.

Central Falls Youth Attaining Fame in College Athletics

Morris Fabricant Shines in Variety of Sports

In the march of time, the witch-pot of former sparkling Rhode Island Jewish athletes brings to the surface vividly Bachrach, Temkin, Hochberg, Winograd, Chase, Abrams, Mishel, Cornsweet, Farber and Wineapple.

Time marches on.

Today the spotlight is thrown sharply upon the athletic career of the powerful 19-year old Morris Fabricant, Central Falls boy, now manufacturing home runs for Massanutten Academy, located at Woodstock, Virginia.

Here is a "success story" that began at Joseph Jenks Junior High School and continued through Pawtucket High School, overcame parental objections leaving in its wake a batch of screaming newspaper sport headlines.

Truthfully, the sight of Fabricant performing in any branch of sports without punch and color promises to be as sure as Dillinger without his little wooden gun.

And now he stands on the threshold of a thrilling college career.

Of particular interest is the question whether Fabricant will choose for further exploits Brown or Duke University in North Carolina.

During the basketball season Fabricant from a running guard position simply ran wild. His sharpshooting rang the cash register for 276 points in 21 games or an average of 15 points a game. That's something of a record. He was the mainstay of the team.

"Wally" Wade, famous football coach at Duke who happened to be on the sidelines of a basketball game in which Fabricant stole the thunder, doesn't need a picture of a natural athlete.

He made a hurried inquiry and learned that Fabricant could also play a "little" football, and baseball, and track.

"That's enough for me," he said.

So he personally invited Fabricant to attend Duke. Typical of southern hospitality.

Don't think for a moment that Brown won't miss young Fabricant if he chooses to cast his lot with the folks in sunny North Carolina. He's an answer to any coach's prayer for an athlete. Yet if he goes south, Alumni on College Hill can feel that the Central Falls boy will still get a Brown education. Because "Wally" Wade happens to be a Brown man. As a matter of fact a former star football player of the mauve period when Taft hung his shingle out in front of the White House.

What's Fabricant's biggest thrill? Last football season playing a roving center he intercepted a forward pass and ran 67 yards through a broken field to whip Westchester Academy of New York.

His next best thrill? Outdistancing his father to the front door in order to play his first high school football game.

At Pawtucket High School Fabricant earned 12 letters in football, basketball, baseball and track. He has been clocked at 10 3-5 seconds in the 100-yard dash.

Incidentally he played a half-back position on the football eleven where constantly he was a triple threat to schoolboy opposition. At Massanutten he strengthened the line.

Morris is the "kid" in the family. Yet his three brothers regard him with "hero worship." His father, a pleasing Jewish pioneer, at first a stranger to Young America's play-fancies, has become reconciled to athletics and now takes a keen interest in sports.

At the present time Fabricant is busy banging out long distance clouts and holding down the catcher's job. He may step into the pitcher's box if called upon.

Certainly, he is versatile.
