Between You and Me

Nazi Hospitality

This story comes from an absolutely reliable source. . . We start it with that statement because we're certain you'll find it hard to credit otherwise, so incredible does it sound. . . The reader will recall that not long ago an international conference of penologists was held in Berlin. . . Although there were many protests, led by Samuel Untermyer, an American delegation attended the conference. . . So grateful were the Nazis that the Americans had elected to come to Germany that they went to amazing lengths to be nice to them. . . Here, for example, is one of the "lengths they went to."

The Ministry of Propaganda and Enlightenment of which Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels is the chief "mach-er," ever on the alert to see that good (or bad, for that matter) Germans are not enlightened on what's going on in the rest of the world, assigned individual "invisible" hosts to each and every American delegate to the conference. . . The host had orders to follow every move made by his "guest" . . . The purpose of this close surveillance was to see that no American delegate engaged a German in private conversation in course of which "contraband" information might be exchanged. . . Now this is what actually happened to one of the delegates (and it probably happened to others of other nationalities) . . .

Mr. X had made an appointment with an old friend, a German. . . They were to meet at a beer garden for a snack and a drink. . . And to talk over old times together, having been school chums. . . They met. . . But the conversation was somewhat peculiar and restrained. . . Just as the American sat down opposite his friend, a stranger to both of them sprang up from a nearby table and introduced himself as the American's "host" assigned by the German government to this particular delegate. . . The "host" coolly sat down and dominated the conversation between the two friends from the first moment of their meeting to the last, not for a moment permitting them to enter conversational channels that might lead to dangerous "enlightenment" for the German friend of the American delegate. . . Thorough, these Nazis, what?

Invitation

Judge Anna Moskowitz Kross of New York received a wired invitation from the White House the other day signed by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. . . Mrs. Roosevelt asked Judge Kross to address her class at the swanky Todhunter School. . . The invitation is, believe it or not, for next March, and urges Judge Kross to act on it at once.

Breaking the Boycott

Warning to Jewish business men and others: Beware of Jewish salesmen for German firms who try to sell you Nazi goods by telling you that their families are starving in Germany. . . We have it on the best of authority that this is part of a plan recently conceived and adopted by a large number of German firms to circumvent the anti-Nazi boycott which has cut such inroads into their business here. . . The practice is reported especially common in the wine business.

Odds and Ends

Magistrate William O'Dwyer, presiding in Brooklyn Traffic Court during Koah Hatanon, gave suspended sentences to more than 500 traffic violators who were fortunate enough to come up before him. . . Talk about the New Year spirit. . . The New Jersey Court of Appeals was ready to hand down its decision in the Hauptmann case on Yom Kippur. . . But Justice Joseph Perini of Atlantic City declined to appear on the bench on that day, so announcement of the decision was deferred. . . Carl Lasevich, film magnate, re-

George Pullman to Receive Unique Honor

Campaign Workers Praise Work of Mrs. Michaelson

With only $300 lacking to obtain their goal of $3,000, members of the campaign committee of the Jewish National Fund voted to continue their efforts another week, Mrs. Samuel Michaelson announced today. At the last meeting, Mrs. Archibald Silverman addressed the workers, telling them of the uncultivated land still available in Palestine and urging them to strive for the goal they had set.

It was also voted to inscribe the name of George Pullman in the Golden Book for his untiring efforts in behalf of social and charitable causes. The Golden Book lists only prominent Jewish men throughout the world whose active deeds for society have deserved recognition. At present, the Golden Book is kept under lock and key and is visible only through glass windows.

The campaign workers extended a rising vote of thanks to Mrs. Samuel Michaelson for her indefatigable efforts during the past weeks. This has been the first time in years that the annual goal has been approached and Mrs. Michaelson has been the first woman ever to head the campaign.

Aiding Mrs. Michaelson were: Joseph Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Swartz, Mrs. M. Shasset, Russell N. Swartz, Mr. and Mrs. Temkin, Mrs. N. Temkin, A. Resnick, Alter Boyman, Dr. and Mrs. Hils Berger, Morris Becker, Max Berman, Abe Heller, Samuel Michaelson, Louis M. Abedon, Samuel Finegold, Mrs. Jonas Goldenberg, S. Lichtman, George Pullman, Mrs. J. D. Grossman, Mrs. Gussie Nelson, Arthur Winkelman, Mrs. S. E. Flannbaum, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Burt, Mrs. H. Halperin, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Feinberg, Jacob S. Rabinowitz, Arthur Korman, J. Merochnick, Dr. David Lober, Mrs. Alex Kleinberger and Maurice W. Hendel, publicity chairman.

Symphony Drive Begins Monday

Campaign headquarters for the drive to be sponsored by the Providence Symphony Orchestra, next Monday, Oct. 28 to Nov. 9, will be established at the Providence Gas Company, 100 Weybosset Street, where a corps of workers, headed by Miss Edith Nichols, will be in charge.

The drive is again being headed by Mrs. Ada Holding Miller, with Mrs. George Hill MacLean as vice-chairman. Thirteen teams have been formed, captained by Mrs. A. B. Cianfrani, Miss Nettie Bander, Joseph Benson, Miss Lorette Gannon, Mrs. Moulton Gross, Charles Dickerson, Miss Margaret Lally, Miss Ruth Tripp, Mrs. Ada Holding Miller, Mrs. Celia Parvey, Mrs. George Hall, Mrs. John Doane Wick and Mrs. Harry Tracy.

Arrangements are being completed for the musicale which will launch the drive next Monday afternoon at the Music Mansion. Artists will be Renato Flaminio-Rulli, dramatic soprano; Georges Charon; tenor; and Edwin L. Stuntzner, cellist. The musical program will be under the direction of Dr. Wassili Lepa. Mrs. Raymond F. Wolcott will be in charge of the tea.

RELIGIOUS SCHOOL TO OPEN

The religious school of Congregation Ahavath Shalom of Pawtucket and Central Falls opens next Sunday, Friday evening services will begin this (Friday) evening.

SORORITY HOLDS MEETING

Discussion of social plans for the coming months and changes in the constitution, featured the Alpha Sigma Delta Sorority meeting last night at the home of Miss Gertrude Dlaty, Eaton St.

JEWISH AGENCIES ALLOTTED $64,076 FOR RUNNING EXPENSES

Sum Represents 11 Percent of Community Drive Total

CHARLES C. BROWN

With the determination of the goal of the campaign by the directors of the Providence Community Fund at the sum of $634,908, announced last week, it becomes public that the five major Jewish agencies which are members will be allotted $64,076 in addition to a small amount for the Jewish Federation for Social Service or nearly 11 percent of the total Providence-Cranston campaign quota. The figures which will be sought for minimum running expenses for the entire year 1936 are as follows:

Jewish Community Center $10,652; Jewish Family Welfare Society $9,630; Jewish Orphanage of Rhode Island $15,217; North End Dispensary $26,296; Miriam Hospital $2,341.

Total $64,076.

In addition to these agencies, the Jewish people of the city of Providence receive direct and very substantial from a number of other agencies in the fund, notably the Lying-In Hospital where over half the births in the city occur, a majority of them free or part-free, the District Nurses, Camp Fire Girls, Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, Bureau for the Handicapped, Charitable Fuel Society, Legal Aid Society, Mental Hygiene Society, Providence Tuberculosis League, and a number of others. In addition to the fact that many unfortunate Jewish families turn to these agencies, they are frequently of the utmost importance to employees of those among the Jewish population of the city who are in business.

It is worth noting that the Jewish agencies — not to speak of all the others in which we have an equal interest — share in the benefits of cooperative, economical fund-raising.

Thus, the total cost of raising the amounts above stated will be less than three percent, or in round figures less than $1800 for the whole job. If this same amount were raised by independent bridges, dances, campaigns, etc. the sum that would have to be spent for printing, orchestra, banquets, postage, and a hundred other items would use up at least $5000 more in contributors' money without accomplishing any more good.

Milton C. Sapinaley, president of the Jewish Community Center, has been a member of the important budget committee of the Community Fund this year and has spent days and weeks of time reviewing the figures and trying to provide all possible funds for the agencies. His statement made today in reference to the campaign follows:

"I am convinced that the Jewish people of Providence appreciate fully their connection with the Providence Community Fund.

"The officers and directors of each one of the agencies in the Fund are now able to devote all of their time to their real work of character building, of caring for the sick, for the protection and care of the orphans, for family welfare, rather than under the old system to be continually harassed because of lack of funds. They realize that because of their participation in the Providence Community Fund they are free to devote all their time to their real work.

"In my judgment, the Jewish people of Providence will turn out en masse and do their full part in supporting the Fund during the coming year.

Committees to Report at Home's Meeting on Sunday

The annual meeting of the Jewish Home for Aged of Rhode Island will be held at 10 o'clock next Sunday at the Home on Hillside Avenue. Samuel M. Magid, president of the Home, will give his annual report.

A musical program will be provided. Isaac E. Feinstein, superintendent of the home, will report on activities of the Home during the holidays.

The following committees will present reports: Mrs. Samuel N. Deutch, chairman, admissions committee; Samuel Michaelson, chairman, arbitration committee; Charles C. Brown, chairman budget committee; Bernard M. Goldowsky, chairman, entertainment committee; Harry Loeb Jacobs, chairman finance committee; Max Siegal, chairman house committee; Walter F. Sandun, chairman of legal committee; Dr. Leo Cohen, chairman, medical committee; Nat C. Cohen, chairman, membership committee; Judge J. Jerome Hahn, chairman, memorial committee; Alton Boyman, chairman, publicity committee, and Judge Hahn, chairman also of the visiting committee.

The nominating committee, headed by Leo Logan, will present names of officers and directors for the coming year.

The Jewish community is cordially invited to attend the meeting, which will be opened by Rabbi Willem Brande of Temple Beth-El, assisted by Cantor Teitelman of Temple Emanu-El.

Dr. Hirsch Is Released by Gestapo

Increased Stringency in Measures Adopted by Reich Cabinet

BERLIN (JTA)—With his distraught wife waiting for him at the prison door, Dr. Otto Hirsch, one of the most important leaders of German Jewry, was released last week by the Nazi secret state police after seven days' solitary imprisonment in Columbia House, known as the "torture chamber of the Gestapo."

Dr. Hirsch's release came with the same dramatic suddenness and lack of explanation as his arrest two days after Yom Kippur. He had been arrested for signing, as president of the executive of the Reichsvertretung der Deutschen Juden, a Yom Kippur manifesto protesting anti-Jewish edicts.

While no charges were lodged against him, Dr. Hirsch was held at Gestapo headquarters and then transferred to Columbia House. His release was made mandatory under Nazi regulations which do not permit the Gestapo to hold prisoners more than eight days without lodging charges against them.

Rabbi Leo Baeck, president of the Reichsvertretung, the other signer of the manifesto, was arrested on Yom Kippur, and released after a 24-hour grilling by the secret police.

It was thought Dr. Hirsch would have been arrested the same day, but he was out of the city. He was seized immediately upon his arrival in Berlin two days later and held incommunicado for a week.

The Gestapo shrouded the arrest and detention with a veil of secrecy, denying all information to correspondents.

Informed foreign circles interpreted the detention as a move to hold Dr. Hirsch hostage and bludgeon the Reichsvertretung into signing a statement for foreign consumption that the Jews were satisfied with the Nuremberg legislation and wanted the anti-Nazi boycott abroad halted.

Arrest of Rabbi Baeck on Yom Kippur and the subsequent seizure of Dr. Hirsch created consternation in the Berlin Jewish Community. It was the first time important Jewish leaders were placed under arrest by a government body.

The Yom Kippur manifesto was not read in synagogues as had been scheduled. The Gestapo telegraphed orders to have all copies seized.

The paragraph of the message which is believed to have incensed the Nazis follows:

"We stand before the Lord. With the same strength with which we have acknowledged our sins, the sins of individuals and the sins of the community, we declare with a feeling of abhorrence that the lies directed against us and the calumnies spread against our religion and its Testament are repudiated by our root and branch."

David Adelman to Speak Before National Council

The civic study group of the Providence Section, National Council of Jewish Women, will hold its opening meeting next Wednesday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, in Room 202 Narragansett Hotel. David C. Adelman, a member of the Executive Committee of the Republican State Central Committee, will introduce the series of talks in the course. Mr. Adelman will speak on "Religion and the Politician, Politics, and Women."

Mrs. Morris Garabman is chairman of the group.

The Man Who Thwarted the Hitlerites

French Producer Forced Nazi Company to Show Film Bearing His "Non-Aryan" Name
By DANIEL L. SCHORR

There is a story behind "La Maternelle," the famous French film now showing in New York, a story almost as interesting as the film itself. We learned about it in an interview with Jean Benoit-Levy, French motion picture producer, before he sailed for home on the Normandie last Wednesday.

M. Benoit-Levy was in this country on a mission for the French Minister of Education in connection with his life-long hobby, the development of films as direct implements of education. He investigated the progress made in the development of educational films in this country and delivered addresses at Columbia and New York University.

He also attended the New York opening of "La Maternelle," hailed by the press as one of the greatest pictures to come here from Europe. In France and England, where the picture was first shown, it elicited rave notices from the most conservative periodicals. So much so, in fact, that he was approached to permit the film to be shown in Germany.

Whereby hangs a tale. It was December of last year when Benoit-Levy signed a contract to have "La Maternelle" shown in Germany, he told us in English richly garnished with French words and expressions.

Shortly afterward a representative of the company telephoned him. You see, the agent apologized, it was impossible to exhibit the film in Germany under the "non-Aryan" name Benoit-Levy. "Would he mind if they changed it?"

He certainly would mind, he informed the agent angrily. He was born Benoit-Levy and intended to remain that despite any restrictions the Nazis might try to impose. Later he was offered a sum of money above the contract figure to allow the German company to change his name. The representative who made the offer, M. Benoit-Levy said, was thrown out of his office.

There matters stood for a while. The picture was shown in Berlin, and the clippings of the reviews began to come in to the Paris office. Lo and behold, they all referred to the director of the picture as Jean Benoit. The Levy had been dropped.

The film director investigated and found the German distributors had eliminated the second half of the name without authority. He solicited the aid of the French Society of Authors and instituted suit.

A settlement was reached whereby the German distributors were obliged to scrap all the posters, publicity and screen announcements bearing the abbreviated name. And then there blossomed forth in German motion picture houses, contrary to the approved practice of the Third Reich, this much-touted film bearing the strictly "non-Aryan" name, Levy.

But meanwhile the reviewers had seen the film. And such newspapers as Hitler's personal organ, Der Voelkischer Beobachter, and Propaganda Minister Goebbels' Der Angriff praised it to the skies. The Beobachter hailed its "sensitivity" and its fine depiction of children and lauded the "artistic atmosphere of the film."

The reviewer of Der Angriff described himself as "gripped by its greatness." He spoke of its "warmth and humanity," and ended up by calling the picture "a tremendous artistic conception such as we have never seen come to us from France."

When it became known that the director was Jewish, there was a marked falling off of enthusiasm in the German coordinated press. But the picture continued to draw huge crowds. Dolls were made in the image of the characters. The picture was a smash hit.

The courageous Zionist publication, Juedische Rundschau, added to the humiliation of the Nazi press by gently rubbing it in. The Rundschau, in a long featured editorial, cited previous statements in the Nazi press to the effect that the Jew was incapable of genuine artistic endeavor and then threw the reviews into their faces.

The Rundschau blamed the UFA, big German film company, for shorting the director's name.

We saw the opening of the picture in New York and can vouch for the fact it is one of the most masterful, sympathetic motion pictures of the year.

We asked M. Benoit-Levy about the part the Jew plays in the French cinema. In France, he said, the Jew plays his role in motion pictures mostly in the distributing end of the business. There are not many Jewish directors, he said, and not one famous Jewish star.

He objected to the distinction between Jews and non-Jews. "French Jews as a whole are assimilated," he declared. "We are as French as all the other Frenchmen irrespective of religion. You don't find as much of that tendency of pointing out the Jewishness of people in motion pictures as you do here."

Drifting to the general topic of movies, M. Benoit-Levy expressed great admiration for the technical brilliance of American pictures. The greatest American film he ever saw was "White Shadows in the South Seas," he said.

Emanu-El Scouts to Dedicate Log Cabin

Boy Scouts of Troop 20, Temple Emanu-El will dedicate their newly erected log cabin and camp site in Spragueville, R. I. next Sunday, at 3 o'clock, weather permitting. Rabbi Israel M. Goldman, Judge Philip C. Joslin and Chief Harold Williams will participate in a simple, but effective ritual.

The boys were fortunate in obtaining a 99-year lease at a nominal rent upon a magnificent six-acre tract of forest land, timbered with 50-foot pines, oaks and birches, and which fronts on Stillwater Reservoir in Spragueville. During the past summer, under the supervision of Martin M. Zucker, chairman of the Scout committee, a strong, attractive log cabin was constructed, complete with bunk-room and huge stone fireplace. Wide porches will make possible sleeping quarters for summer camping, especially after screens have been placed into position.

The camp will be enjoyed all the more by the boys because they have actively participated in the actual building. The long winding Indian trail made it necessary for every pound of brick, stone, cement and every piece of lumber to be carried by hand. Plans are being made for overnight hikes even in winter, so that skating and skiing may be enjoyed. In the summer there will be fishing, swimming, boating, together with usual scoutcraft activities.

Welfare Society Plans Exhibition

A report of plans for the exhibit of the Jewish Family Welfare Society in the forthcoming Welfare Exposition sponsored by the Providence Community Fund, was presented at the regular monthly meeting of the Society's board of directors, last Monday evening in the Carpenter Memorial Building, 100 North Main Street. Arthur J. Levy president, presided.

A report of the Society's clothing committee was submitted by Mrs. Harry Guny. An appropriation was authorized by the directors for the purchase of new clothing to be administered through its clothing committee which comprises Mrs. Milton Fuld, chairman, Mrs. Fred Adler, Mrs. Bert Bernhardt, Mrs. Max A. Cohen, Mrs. Joseph Field, Mrs. Edward Finberg, Mrs. Harry Guny and Mrs. Ephraim Rosen.

In her report, Miss Jessie Joselowitz, executive director, discussed the effect of the developments in W. P. A. upon the employment problems of the families under the care of the Society. She also discussed developments in the administration of the old age pension and indicated that the Society had assisted 52 persons eligible to file their applications for this pension. She further indicated that the Society has accepted for care this far this year a total of 271 families, almost equal to the number of families served in a 12-month period a year ago, and which present problems such as ill health, unemployment and social maladjustment.

Officers and members of the board are: Arthur J. Levy, president; Mrs. Moses Einstein, first vice-president; Alter Boyman, second vice-president; Dr. Joseph Smith, secretary; Abraham Blackman, treasurer; Mrs. Fred Adler, Walter Adler, Rabbi William G. Braude, Jacob I. Cohen, Mrs. Samuel Deutch, Irving I. Fain,

Jewish War Veterans Hold Weekly Bingo

Bingo parties are being sponsored weekly by the Jewish War Veterans, each Monday night in the ballroom of the Home at 100 Niagara Street, under the direction of Aaron Cohen and Irving D. Paster, co-chairman. Each week a beautiful attendance prize is awarded. Last Monday night, a 82-piece china luncheon set was given away as the major prize of the evening.

The Jewish War Veterans' ballroom is conducive to comfortable enjoyment and with many prizes available each week, these parties are apt to turn out very profitable for those who attend. The bingo starts at 8:15 o'clock.

Social and Personal

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Allen of Taylor Street, announce the birth of a son on Oct. 12, at Miriam Hospital. Mrs. Allen was formerly Bessie Yarkin.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brody of 15 Douglas Avenue, are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son last Sunday, at Miriam Hospital. Before marriage Mrs. Brody was Miriam Shuster.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Backman of 644 Broad Street, on Oct. 15, at Miriam Hospital. Mrs. Backman was formerly Mildred Marks.

Morris Feinberg, Mrs. Edward M. Finberg, Mrs. Louis Goldenberg, Max I. Grant, Mrs. Harry Guny, Henry Hassenfeld, Issadore Horowitz, Harry Loeb Jacobs, Dr. James K. Krasnoff, Mrs. Kopel Mayberg, Professor Harry E. Miller, Mrs. J. George Nathanson, Mrs. Ephraim Rosen, Dr. Joseph B. Webber, and Samuel H. Workman.

The Jewish Center Council Committee of last Tuesday discussed plans for the second annual version of the 1935 Center Follies. It is planned to present the Follies early in December with talent recruited from the Center membership.

Harry Herbert of Lawrence, Mass. has been engaged as coach and will be assisted by Atty. Herbert Theiman of the same city. The committee comprises Arthur Bazok, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Joseph J. Seifer, Mrs. Sidney Rabinowitz, Benjamin Hakatansky, Dr. Myron Keller and Isador Korn.

Dr. Alfred Adler, famous psychologist of Vienna has been engaged to speak at the Center on Sunday evening, Dec. 22, on one of nine Sunday evening programs to be offered this season.

The Jewish Center Religious School will open its seventh scholastic year this Sunday morning, with the following staff: Harriet Wimmerman, Naomi Richman, Betty Roy, Stella Simons, Beatrice Gross, Ethel Levene, Sidney Long, Lester Aptel, Irving Podrat, Samuel Cohen, Ira Blum, Evelyn Winn, Nat Roy, Sylvia Ackerman, Walter Gartner, Ruth Cohen and Edith Seltzer. More than 300 children are expected to enroll for a course in history, bible and ceremonies.

As one of the 38 agencies in the Providence Community Fund, the Jewish Community Center will be represented in the welfare exhibit which opens in the Arcade Building next Monday. The Center will be represented by a display of vocational work in its classes and other activities. A group of 75 children will present an operetta, "The Lonely Princess," under the direction of Miss Gladys Chernak.

Among new activities to be sponsored this year will be an intermediate dramatic society under the leadership of Miss Florence Shapiro. This group is to be closely connected with the Jewish Center Players, older dramatic organization at the Center which has been in existence for 10 years. Plans are also in progress to enlarge the membership and scope. It is planned to hold several meetings during the year to which the public will be invited.

viled. The J. C. C. Players are now rehearsing "The Queen's Husband" by Robert Sherwood, a three-act play to be presented at the Barker Playhouse on Jan. 19. Miss Shapiro will work with those members of the group who have not been assigned parts in this play and will arrange for a series of contact plays to be presented during the season.

OBITUARIES

HARRY GEFFNER

Funeral services for Harry Geffner of 44 Firglade Ave., who died last Sunday in St. Joseph's Hospital after an illness of several months, were held last Monday morning from Temple Emanu-El. Mr. Geffner was 58 years old and had been a resident of Providence for the past 30 years. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

Mr. Geffner is survived by three sons, Albert, David and Saul, and two daughters, Mrs. Belle Adler and Eleanor Geffner.

MRS. SARAH BLAZER

Mrs. Sarah Blazer, wife of Syle Blazer and a sister of Morris Prayman, died last Saturday at Rhode Island Hospital after a short illness. Mrs. Blazer was 37 years old and had lived in Providence for the past 20 years.

She was a member of the Ahavath Shalom Hebrew School, the Louis Steiner Benevolent Association and the Ladies' Union Aid Society. The funeral was held from Max Sugarman's Funeral Home and burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

ISAAC FORMAN

Funeral services for Isaac Forman of 18 Taylor St., proprietor of a South Providence meat market for the past 35 years, were held last Friday afternoon from his home. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

Mr. Forman was born in Russia, 64 years ago and came to this country about 35 years ago. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Tessie Forman; a daughter, Mrs. Sophie Sandperil, and two sons, Hyman and Harry Forman, all of Providence.

A Needed Work Well Done

No greater good has ever been done, and with as little publicity, as the work being conducted among Jewish sick and needy in Rhode Island by the Miriam Hospital Association through its social service department.

This organization of earnest women deserves the blessings of Jewry throughout the state for its work among those who are so unfortunate that they cannot care for themselves. The social service committee's efforts constitute a most important supplement to the work of the hospital itself by caring for the poor after they leave their sick beds, furnishing them with medicines, crutches, bandages, surgical belts, clothes and other materials so essential to successful convalescence.

More than 100 persons thus far this year have had good cause to bless these women who go about their self-assumed duties quietly, efficiently, caring for those most in need of care, providing without cost to the needy everything necessary. And if it is deemed advisable that some overworked and ill mother should go away for a week or two to regain her health and overcome despair, that, too, is taken care of. Funds for these charitable purposes are derived from membership in the Association, social events, rummage sales and bridges. And several hundred women are taking quiet pride in the organization's work.

General Sherill's "Friendly" Warning

General Sherill has returned from his trip of investigation through Germany completely satisfied that the German Olympic Committee is affording German Jews the fullest consideration in their trials for the German team. Indeed, his mind has been so satiated with German propaganda and with Hitler's "good cheer" (he was Hitler's guest) that he advises the Jews in America to discontinue their campaign against the Nazi regime, even to lifting the boycott.

He believes that should the Olympics be given up this year the thousands of young American athletes will become anti-Semitic just because they would be deprived of competing for the Olympic team. But General Sherill forgets that the issue is not the discontinuance of the Olympic games next year but the transference of the contests to a country where fairness and non-discrimination is the rule and not the exception.

He was successful, the General stated, in securing Hitler's consent to have one Jew on the Nazi team. But Miss Mayer, who supposedly was the one to receive this magnificent invitation denied that the invitation had ever reached her and, furthermore, she did not consider herself a candidate for the Nazi team.

General Sherill has gratuitously attempted to make the Olympic Games a purely Jewish issue disregarding the proven occurrences against Catholic and Protestant sport clubs which do not accept Nazi doctrines of conscience.

Although the General admitted that many of his statements were in variance with known facts, he declared they didn't bother him. With a deftness born of his years in the diplomatic service General Sherill evaded his questioners regarding these inconsistencies.

General Sherill's attitude that the Jew should not stir up too much row lest they invite suppression in this country, as well as in Germany, marks him as a subconscious anti-Semite — even though he sincerely believes he is a friend of the Jews.

Sisterhood Plans Social Gathering

The Sisterhood of Temple Beth-El will hold its first social event of the year on Nov. 15, at which time the vestry will be transformed into a Russian Krestolna (tavern) complete with all the color, music and entertainment that the name implies.

It was announced today by Mrs. Cecilia Parvey, chairman of the general committee. Assisting Mrs. Parvey were Mrs. Milton Field, refreshments; Mrs. Abraham Kesterman, decorations; Mrs. Max Kesterman, tickets; Mrs. Leo Logan, program; Mrs. Samuel Markoff, waitresses; Mrs. Joseph C. Nathanson, publicity director, and Mrs. Milton Fisher, ex-officio.

TEMPLE BETH ISRAEL

Late Friday Evening Service

The opening of the late Friday night services will take place Friday evening, Nov. 1 and will be dedicated to the observance of Bal-four Day, the 18th anniversary of which is observed on that Sabbath. Rabbi Schussheim will speak on that occasion on "What Is the Jewish Problem and How Does Palestine Answer It?"

The Cantor and choir will participate and a social gathering will follow this service. Organizations having Zionist interest are urged to participate.

Daily Services

Services during the week are held daily at 7 o'clock in the morning and at 6 o'clock in the evening. Those required to recite the Kiddish will please note the time.

Bar-Mitzvah

The Bar-Mitzvah of Albert Bellin will take place tomorrow (Saturday) morning, at the Temple in connection with the regular service, commencing at 9 o'clock. Albert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Bellin and will be the first Bar-Mitzvah celebrated this season.

Floral Offering

Flowers on the pulpit for Shemin Aizerch were the gift of Mrs. Mayer Levitt in memory of her husband.

Memorial Light

On Sheminin Aizerch the Temple dedicated a memorial light to the memory of Benjamin Berman, one of the first members of the Temple. The light was donated by his widow and children.

Sunday School Opening

Formal opening of the Sunday School will take place this Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. The delay until this date was caused by the holidays and by the beach situation. The excellent staff engaged, however, and the program of studies as arranged, assures this year's session of the school to be on the highest level. The following teachers have been engaged for the school: Siegfried Arnold, Gerald Bronstein, Samuel Solinger, Miss Lillian Reich, Miss Dorothy Markoff, Miss Sophie Narmark, Miss Sadie Caspar, Miss Laura Leichter and Mrs. Mary Coken. New registrants are urged to come with their parents for registration purposes.

TEMPLE EMANU-EL

Friday Night Services

The opening late Friday night services will be held on Friday evening, Nov. 1. At this service the Rabbi will preach the first of a series of seven addresses under the general heading, "Solving Life's Everyday Problems." The sermon that he will preach at the first service is entitled, "Finding Happiness in an Ordinary Career."

The other sermons in this series are as follows: "Working Without a Sense of Strain," "Learning to Forget," "Getting Along With Other People," "Keeping Up One's Course," "Increasing One's Chances of Achievement," "Staying Young As One Grows Old."

This series will present practical working suggestions in order to aid people to live a happier and more effective life. A cordial invitation is extended not only to the members of the congregation, but to the community at large to attend the Sabbath Eve services which are conducted by Rabbi Goldman with the assistance of Cantor Harry Bettman and the Temple Emanu-El Choir under the direction of Arthur Einstein.

Bar Mitzvah of Jerome Halpern

Tomorrow (Saturday) morning, Jerome Halpern, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Halpern, will celebrate his Bar Mitzvah. Rabbi Goldman will preach on the subject, "Man—The Imperfect Creature."

Hart to Introduce Golding

Everything is in readiness for the great opening of the eighth year of the Institute of Jewish Studies on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 2, when Louis Golding, world-famous British novelist will lecture on the subject, "The Magnolia Street Wanderer." R. K. Hale, Literary Editor of the Providence Journal and Bulletin, famous literary critic will introduce and welcome Mr. Golding. Mrs. Nat C. Cohen, chairman of the Institute, will preside. This year the Institute of Jewish Studies presents on Saturday afternoon lectures and four Sunday evening lectures. A cordial invitation is extended to

Sisterhood

One of the most beautiful meetings in the history of the Sisterhood inaugurated the season this year. The program is arranged by the committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Rose Markensohn and promises to be a most interesting one providing a novel feature for each meeting. The next meeting will take place Monday evening, Nov. 4, and will be dedicated to the cause of peace.

Men's Club

An interesting meeting of the Men's Club took place Monday evening, marking the opening of the season of activities of the Men's Club of Temple Beth Israel. Dr. Carl Jagoliner, president, was in the chair and reports were rendered on the coming activities, particular emphasis being laid on the cultural and educational program. The Men's Club also pledged itself to support the Hebrew and Religious Schools of the Temple. The social part of the meeting was in charge of Samuel B. Feingold, program chairman, who arranged for a smoker, refreshments and entertainment. Acting as Fred Weitman, social chairman, who provided a generous supply of refreshments. The next meeting will be in the form of a public forum at which an outstanding issue of the day will be presented by a speaker of note. A discussion will follow.

Adult Study Activities

A number of groups have been organized by Rabbi Schussheim covering various topics of interest in the educational field. These are open to men and women at a nominal fee. Application should be made either to Mrs. Rose Markensohn, chairman for the women, or to Dr. Carl Jagoliner, chairman for men. The following courses are supplied: Saturday afternoons, a series under the general heading, "The New Faces of Contemporary World."

Sunday morning, "The Development of Jewish Life and Thought" and four monthly Sunday evenings the Seminary Institute of Jewish Studies. The opening speaker for the Saturday afternoon group will be Professor Harry Miller of Brown University, who will speak on "Stakes in Ethiopia" with special reference to the effect of the situation on minority groups. This opening session will take place in the afternoon of Saturday, Nov. 3.

everyone in the city to enroll in the Institute of Jewish Studies. Enrollments can be made by calling the Temple office (Manning 5455).

Hebrew High School Department

The school board is very happy to announce that for the first time in the history of the school, a High School Department in the Hebrew School has been established, with an enrollment of eight pupils. Most of these pupils are graduates of the elementary department of the Hebrew School. Samuel Kessler is the instructor in charge. A two-year course has been established for the High School. This first year the class is studying Halki and Babyloni. "Asker" and "Ezer" Part 3, which contains selections from the Talmud and Midrash. Also Scharfstein's "Ben Yisroel," part 2, which contains selections from Modern Hebrew Literature.

Opening Alumni Meeting

The opening meeting of the Temple Alumni Association will be held on Sunday evening, Nov. 3. It will be featured by a supper-meeting and a peace program. The main speaker will be Irwin M. Tobin, executive director of the R. L. Council for Peace Action. Tobin is a graduate of Tufts College and holds M. A.'s from Clark University and Rutgers School of International Relations. He has been associated with Paul Harris, nationally famous leader of youth in peace work. Mr. Tobin is a member of the faculty of the Religious School.

Nursery School to Open

The Nursery School of Temple Emanu-El will open Monday morning, Nov. 4. The Director of the Nursery School will again be Mrs. Morris Lee Grover, graduate in education from Boston University, and a graduate of Miss Nellie's Kindergarten School. She has also attended R. I. College of Education, Boston Hebrew Teachers College, and Boston Nursery Training School. She very successfully conducted the Nursery School last year. Assisting Mrs. Grover will be Mrs. Harold Rogell, a graduate of the Leslie Kindergarten School of Boston and who has taught there for several years. In addition, Mrs. Grover has attendance daily a registered nurse from the Board of Health. The school year of the Nursery Department

Sisterhood Carnival Builds for Future

The Sisterhood of Congregation Ahavath Sholem will stage its first carnival in the vestry of the synagogue, Jackson and High Sts., next Sunday and Monday. This will be the Sisterhood's first affair of the year and it is expected to become an annual institution. Committee members are working diligently to establish an unusually fine affair as a precedent.

Mrs. Pearl Schinagel, chairman of the ways and means committee of the Sisterhood, and an ardent worker, is responsible for the inaugurating of the carnival and for much of its success so far. Miss Martin Curran is carnival chairman, with Mrs. Alfred Goldenberg and Mrs. Charles Tesler as co-chairmen.

Proceeds from the event will be applied to various tasks which the Sisterhood has undertaken in the local Jewish community, such as the support of the Synagogue, Religious School, Hebrew School and various cultural undertakings.

Officers of the Sisterhood, as well as a large, active committee, are supporting a carnival in an effort to make it a successful affair for those who will attend as well as for the synagogue.

The booth arrangement committee comprises Samuel Zarchen, chairman, Jack Goldenberg, Martin Curran, Charles Tesler, Abraham Singer, Morris Cooper and Joseph Levinson.

In charge of the various booths will be Mrs. Isaac Cokin, cake table; Mrs. Harry Goldberg, refreshments; Mrs. Ida Hite, frankfurters; Mrs. Israel Hake, specialties; Mrs. Charles Tesler, fruit and vegetables; Mrs. Israel Luber, groceries; Mrs. Alfred Goldenberg, miscellaneous; and Mrs. Samuel Zarchen, candy.

Those in charge of ticket distribution include Mrs. William Weinstein, Mrs. Samuel Cokin, Mrs. Samuel Zarchen, Mrs. Samuel Brown, Mrs. Israel Luber, Mrs. Abraham Singer and Mrs. Morris Cooper.

Rabbi Isaiel Ruckelby is acting as ex-officio member of all committees.

Officers of the Sisterhood are: Mrs. Joseph August, president; Mrs. Martin Curran, first vice president; Mrs. Israel Luber, secretary; Mrs. Louis Handler, financial secretary; Mrs. Samuel Zarchen, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Louis Lipson, recording secretary; Mrs. Samuel Brown, treasurer, and Mrs. Alfred Goldenberg, auditor.

Agudas Achim Sponsor Dance

The 12th annual dance sponsored by the Sisterhood Agudas Achim of Attleboro will be held on the night of Nov. 5, in Elks' Hall, Attleboro. Music will be furnished by Al Rosen and his orchestra. During the intermission a variety program of entertainment has been arranged.

Mrs. Samuel Miller is chairman of the committee in charge and she will be assisted by Mrs. Barry Kessler, co-chairman; Mrs. Hyman Globes, secretary and Mrs. Ralph Halter, treasurer. Tickets may be obtained from Sisterhood members or at the door.

E. S. GIRLS ELECT OFFICERS

Officers were elected at the first meeting of the E. S. Girls last Wednesday night at the Jewish Community Center. Mildred Robinson was chosen president; Ann Diamond, vice president; Bernice Koret, secretary; Esther Robins, treasurer, and Zelda Ehrenkrantz, publicity director. New members were voted in and plans were made for a Hallows-een party.

OPEN HOUSE

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice W. Bliss of 16 Montague St., will have open house on Saturday evening, Nov. 2, in honor of their son, Robert H. Bliss, who becomes Bar Mitzvah the same day at Temple Emanu-El.

ment is 32 weeks, divided into four quarters. The children come every morning from 9 to 12 o'clock. The equipment, both indoors and outdoors, is of the most modern. Registration is now in progress for children from ages 3 to 5.

Saul Raskin Art Exhibit

The internationally famous Jewish artist, Saul Raskin, is coming to Providence with an unusual art show which will open at Temple Emanu-El on Monday evening, Nov. 4. The exhibit will be in progress for 10 days. A cordial invitation is extended by all Mr. Raskin is bringing with him over 100 items of artistic Jewish interest. These include some 20 oil paintings, some 40 water colors, a group of etchings and dry points, a group of lithographs and also a group of linecuts and drawings.

A FEW NOTES FROM OUR TRUSTY NOTE-BOOK

The Men's Club of Temple Beth Israel, in line with the other men's clubs of our city, announces a fine program for the coming months and lists such fine speakers as Maurice Samuels and Judge Brodsky of New York. . . . The latter will be remembered as that fiery member of the New York bench whose utterances of an anti-German nature caused so much comment in the press of the nation a few weeks ago and were the subject of diplomatic notes between this country and the Hitler nation. . . . Judge Brodsky will attract a large audience of interested hearers when he comes to Providence.

This club held its first meeting of the season last Monday night. . . . Dr. Carl Japanser is the aggressive leader of the organization which holds its meetings at the Temple on Niagara St. . . . other officers are Hy Lisler, Maurice Hendel and Joe Blomfield. . . . We understand that the dinner-dance of the Men's Club of Beth-El was a great success last Wednesday and we regret that we were not present to enjoy the excellent program which was the "topps" . . . This column went to press before the first meeting of the men's group of Temple Emanuel-El but we know that this club started its season in A-1 manner with such a splendid speaker as General Smedley Butler as the feature attraction.

Jewish Community Center comes to "bat" with the announcement that Upton Sinclair, famous author who was nearly elected Governor of the great state of California, will be the feature of this year's lecture course. . . . With such men as Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin slated, it seems that the gymnasium of the Center will be inadequate for the hundreds who will want to hear the program. . . . Congregationalists in our local Jewish homes who are bringing those luminaries to Providence. . . . Did you know that it is the practice among very observant Jews not to eat nuts on the New Year Festival, because the numerical value of the Hebrew word for nut, "egze," is equivalent to that of the Hebrew word for sin, "chet."

HERE AND THERE

The Ledgmont dinner-dance tomorrow night at the Narragansett will feature Jewish activities for the week. . . . This is an annual event and grows year by year. . . . The fortunate winners of tournaments of the year. . . . Elliot Paris will be crowned club "chump" and a host of other "champs" will be named. . . . Maynard Cohen is back in town as manager of the local Carroll College stars after acting in the same capacity for this live organization in other cities in New England and New York State. . . . Sam Kalman is another local boy who holds an important position with this same company.

Congratulations to Sarah Brimmon and Pat Fain who are the latest to announce betrothal news but yours truly is not a bit surprised at the good news — so there. . . . Although Brews's girl team is having its worst season in years, the work of its sophomore halfback, Mike Greenberg, a Harvard boy, is a "standout" and critics of the great college game predict that he will be another Al Carmichael.

Another on the Brown team is "Fipsy" Elmerstein, local boy who starred at Ropes High, where, incidentally, Joe Schein, former Brunswick, is head football coach and members of the faculty — Irving

JEWES HASTEN TO SELL INTERESTS

BERLIN (JTA) — A new rush by Jews to sell their interests, precipitated by Minister of the Interior Wilhelm Frick's announcement that the government is formulating laws the purpose of which is to oust Jews from commerce has caused a further drastic depreciation in the market value of their holdings.

Commenting on Frick's announcement, Der Judische Rundschau, official Zionist organ, recalls a statement made last February by Dr. Julius Lippert, Nazi commissar for Berlin, before the American Chamber of Commerce here. Dr. Lippert, the publication emphasizes, assured the American body that Jews were definitely enjoying equal rights in Germany's economic life.

Ladies. . . They are telling me that one of our dime and dance spots on Tom Rippur night celebrated the holiday by charging holiday prices, which some paid and some did not. . . . Plenty of rumblings these days about United States' participation in Olympic Games.

The latest in the demand of the head of the Amateur Union of the United States, Jeremiah T. Mahoney, asking the resignation of the head of the German Olympic Committee, because he is being "used as a screen to conceal his government's most flagrant violations of the Olympic ideals of fair play" . . . Prof. Henry Miller of Brown and Louis Novins of Boston addressed opening meeting of B'nai B'rith last Monday and in the large group present we noticed. . . . Mike Cooper, Morris Cooper, Irwin Cort, Norman Feinberg (who couldn't get home fast enough to see son Joel), Sam Soforenko, Lou Abedon, Dave Falk, Dr. J. Jessie Josselowitz' election as president of Council of Jewish Social Workers is a fine selection and a tribute to her fine work as active head of the Jewish Family Welfare Society.

ECHOES
Several of our young men, as is their habit, took their usual exercise by the horseback route last Sunday morning — the boys, Archie Fain, Syd Hanesel, Dr. Jay Fleckstein and Irving Fleishman, were near the end of the canter and ride, when friend Irving spotted a fine looking dairy with healthy, substantial cows grazing in the fields which were located a stone's throw from the horse stable. . . . Calling a youngster, he gave the boy the and instructed him to get "some milk" giving the youngster explicit directions to get the white fluid at the nearby dairy. . . . after waiting patiently a half-hour for the youth's return, the youngster appeared with a large paper bag and in it — can you imagine — were two cans of CONDENSED MILK.

Ed Soforenko is being primed by dad Sam Soforenko to be a factor in the insurance business and dad is sure proud of the youngster who is showing surprising aptitude towards some day duplicating the records of his father. . . . Henry Hanesfeld, the other half of Hanesfeld Brothers is chairman of the banquet committee for the coming big party of the Miriam Hospital which will mark its jubilee year. . . . We are happy to learn that Al Shore is on the mend and will soon be about after leaving that pesky appendix a week ago.

Bert Frederick A. Wilnot, religious editor of the Journal and Bulletin, and well known as a speaker before many of our Jewish bodies, told 200 young people who attended a religious convention of the Armenian Congregational Church on Sunday that "Genuine Christians are those who have broken down their narrow spheres of loyalty and have laid aside their ancient prejudices" . . . JEWIS IN SPORTS

By MORRIS WEINER

Newman Back on Gridiron

Harry Newman, outstanding quarterback in the professional football ranks last season, has once again changed from multi to mouskian. He will be hurling passes instead of punts for the world champions of the gridiron, the New York Football Giants.

Newman's sudden decision to play ball this year was brought about by the doctor's verdict of a clean bill of health. The former Michigan captain and all-American signal caller had believed along with every other football fan in the country that his playing days were over. Harry had been badly injured in one of the championship playoffs last year. Rushed to the hospital the x-rays revealed a fractured vertebrae.

We visited him while he was still supported by braces, straps, bandages, in fact everything but the hospital's foundations. It was then that he told us about not playing football any more. "I guess ten years of football should be enough for anybody. I played four years at high school, four at Michigan, and this wound up my second season as a pro. I like the game so darn much it's going to be tough to quit."

In Liquor Business

Tim Marx, owner of the grid Giants, was so fond of the diminutive Jewish quarterback that when he heard Harry would no longer be able to play he made him a partner in his Detroit liquor plant. Harry became the business manager of the auto town's whiskey shebang. It didn't matter at all that Newman never touched the stuff.

A year of resting and a year of perfect conditioning resulted in a thorough mending of the fractured members. Now that the alert and watchful eyes of the medical boys these passes as accurately, as speedily, and with as perfect timing as he had been doing a year ago. His timing, his coolness in spotting a receiver and heaving the ball to him in the face of a surging and surging line had not been diminished in the least.

Friedman or Newman

Harry Newman was the protégé of another great Michigan player. In fact no one is readier to admit than Harry himself that everything he knows about the bombing business of an aerial attack is due to the teachings of the great Benny Friedman.

Friedman made football history. Thrice named as all-American quarterback, the famous Kipke, coach of Wolverines, picked Benny as the smartest ball player he had coached over a period of 40 years. Kipke admitted that when Friedman was in the game playing for God, for country, and for dear old Michigan, that team had more than a punt, a pass and a prayer, the traditional Michigan triad. Benny could do more with his passing attack than Kipke had been able to accomplish in 30 years with his prayers. Friedman's activities on the football field for Michigan were records for the books.

While Benny was in his heyday of glory as a senior on the Wolverine eleven he spotted a youngster on the plebe squad who had all the makings of a great ball player. The kid could pass, he could huck, and what was more he had a football brain. He could size up a situation on the gridiron even before a team lined up in the much-publicized Michigan huddle. Benny watched Harry go into action during one of the Freshman games against the scrubs of the University of Wisconsin. It was a one-man game. Newman kept throwing those perfect passes and the score kept mounting higher and higher.

Friedman adopted the kid. Perhaps it was the fact that Newman was Jewish that Benny devoted so much time to in the short, stocky youngster from Detroit. At 190 lbs Newman was coached so expertly in the art of field-generalship that in his very first year on the Michigan varsity he was chosen as an all-American line back. Kipke was again talking about the greatest quarter he had discovered in 30 years.

During the three years Newman played ball for the Ann Arbor Indians he created so many rooters and supporters as Friedman had had in all his glory. Nevertheless, it wasn't for the Michigan fans to decide. Both of these gridiron heroes entered the professional football ranks. Both teacher and protégé were playing with rival eleven, Benny Friedman was quarterback for the Brooklyn Dodgers. Harry Newman, (he pupil), was holding down the same position with the New York Giants.

Twice during the 1933 football season these teams were pitted against each other for honors in the professional gridiron world. In the first game it was Newman's deadly accurate passes to his teammates that sent the Dodgers down to an inglorious defeat. In the second game the process was reversed. Benny Friedman saved the day for the Flatbush Flock by whipping the Dodgers all over the ball field. Yet, wherever they were tossed, there was a Brooklyn ball player to catch them. The game ended in a rout for the Giants.

The fans were split. Who was better, Friedman or Newman? It was a camp favoring the low hero. The spectators couldn't decide. However, in a poll conducted by the J. T. A. in the cities where the Dodgers and the Giants had played during the 1933 season this corner decided that Friedman, the teacher, was rated far above his pupil.

Today, Friedman has retired as a professional ball player. He is now coaching at the City College in New York. Newman, however, is back in the limelight. Will he prove as great a ball player, as good a forward passer, and as clever a strategist as Friedman? Perhaps this season will tell the tale!

Nazis' Influence on German-Americans Seems on the Wane

NEW YORK (JTA) — The influence of the Nazis over German-American societies was seen on the wane last week after the German consulate in New York City, in a letter with last year, had witnessed no mention of the Jewish issue.

Reports from Berlin said the official German news bureau had hailed the rally of the United German Societies and the German American Citizens League, which met in New York last week, as a landmark in the history of the German-American community.

The "Friends," which last year controlled the German Day rally and injected the Jewish issue into addresses with venom, this year was barred and tried in vain to hold its own rally. The local Nazis were locked out of the St. Nicholas Palace, where their meeting had been scheduled, at the last moment when David Vetschiner, Jewish manager, discovered the nature of the rally and vetoed the engagement.

The crowd of about 1,500 then formed ranks and marched into the Central Park Stadium with swastikas flying and singing the Nazi Horst Wessel song. Police dispersed the crowd, although Fritz Gissibl, president of the "Friends," said Mayor LaGuardia had given permission for the outdoor meeting.

At the United German Societies rally next night, Mayor LaGuardia, Samuel Untermyer and Magistrate Brodsky were denounced, but attacks on the Jewish people were carefully avoided. German Ambassador Hans Luther assailed the Versailles Treaty as an "anti-pacific document."

He concluded his address with the cry, "Heil Deutschland! Heil Voreingigen Staaten!", avoiding the usual salute of the Third Reich, "Heil Hitler!"

CAPITOL COMMENT

By NATBAN KOENIG

Germany's failure to negotiate a new trade treaty with the United States to replace the one which expired Oct. 15, is expected to result in a material decrease in the volume of German-made goods coming into this country in the future. Some German-made goods will find it impossible to come into the United States and compete with domestic products because of the high rate of duty which became effective with the expiration of the German-American trade treaty. With these new rates of duty in effect, foreign trade experts hold the opinion that Germany will find it highly unprofitable, and in some instances impossible, to sell her goods in the United States.

Negotiations Fail

Last minute efforts of the German government to negotiate a new trade treaty with failure, it was learned from the State Department. A special representative of the German government was sent to Washington in the hope of ironing out differences. This representative was Dr. Karl Ritter of the economic division of the German Foreign Office. He carried on discussions with Secretary of State Hull and Assistant Secretary Sayre, who is in charge of the State Department's trade agreements program.

The conversations were said to be of a friendly nature. It was Ritter's hope that basis for an agreement could be arrived at before the trade treaty expired on October 15, as a result of its abrogation by Germany.

Secretary of State Hull indicated to the German government the terms on which a new trade agreement may be negotiated. Uppermost is equality of treatment for American goods. The German government is at present unable to assure the United States that it can proceed on a basis of equality of treatment for American goods.

Refuse Concessions

Germany renounced the trade treaty which was in effect since 1925 because the United States protested several times against discrimination. The Reich refused to extend to the United States concessions granted to other countries under special arrangements. Since Germany abrogated the trade treaty with the United States, she has undertaken to negotiate special barter pacts with other countries. This has been done with the idea of obtaining a more favorable balance between imports and exports.

The German government according to Washington observers, is expected to continue her efforts to ward negotiating a new trade treaty with the United States. Germany is in need of certain kinds of American raw materials which cannot be obtained from other countries. In order to be able to get these, Germany finds that she must be in a position to sell goods in the United States. This arises out of Germany's sore financial situation and her inability to buy American dollars with which to pay for American goods.

As long as the fundamental differences in foreign trade policies exist in the way between the two countries, officials in Washington do not expect an agreement to be consummated with Germany. Secretary Hull is not expected to depart from his policy of equality of treatment for American goods.

New Laws Needed

With the opening of the next session of Congress less than three months away, members are beginning to turn their attention toward the need for amending legislation and enacting new laws to meet specific conditions.

OUR FILM FOLK

By HELEN ZIGMOND

HOLLYWOOD

A most revealing little document — that booklet issued by the United Jewish Welfare Fund of Los Angeles. It contains all the contributors and their gifts for the 1935 campaign. The mute figures point to the movie colony's magnanimity without which the fund would have been nil. Cinematists, Gentiles as well as Jews, were by far the most generous donors. Among the topplers were the fifteen-hundred-dollar checks from Jack Benny, Sam Goldwyn, Louis B. Mayer, Irving Thalberg and Jack Warner. Those giving one-hundred and more were Irving Berlin, Harry Cohn, Phil Goldstone, Al Jolson, Joseph Schenck, David Selznick, Ernst Lubitsch, and Myron Selznick.

By comparison the Jewish medical profession of this city should blush for shame... their almost constant tactful donations (even from the affluent) cause us to wonder whether there was an agreement among them not to contribute more.

The Marx Triplets are as "off" from the screen as they are on... if you follow me, Groucho is very particular about the brand of cigars he smokes... has them made especially for him by a Philadelphia concern. One day Chico and Harpo thoughtfully replaced the select brand with a box of the cheapest stogies obtainable. That afternoon Groucho wired his cigar-makers to congratulate them on the improvement of their product!

Mack Gordon, the song-writer of 300-pound bulk, has a role in "Collegiate." When reporting for work he brought three men along... together they will make one stand-in for him.

Schmoos? They say Finchan and Mares Agency submitted Elsin Barrie (John Barrymore's once-upon-a-time) for vaude bookings... alas, no bids. Francis Lederer, official representative of the Movie Industry, recent President Roosevelt on his great side... I see P. D. R. had no time for flicker factories. Edwin Robinson is nibbling at a Franz Hale masterpiece for $60,000. "You're not the type!" said Hollywood to Maurice Schwartz... but he and his Yiddish Art group are crowding them in the sides every night at London. George Jessel will just about Cinematown in the "New Yorker" once a month henceforth. If George Givov is able to remain here, he'll legalize... he plans to study law at a Los Angeles university.

Did you know that when Louis B. Mayer was little more than 14 he had worked up such a lively business of metal salvaging that he took his father in as a partner to make the deal legal? They employed 200 men for hoisting sunken ships and salvaging the metal.

free pictures to execs on the lot for their home movies... they wear hand, J. W. is most generous with free prints for benefits, often releasing a picture before it is commercially distributed.

Those embossed, engraved, embazoned invitations to "Midsummer Night's Dream" premiere returned with drooping corners to the W. B. studio marked "5 Cents Postage Due."

There's a rift, they say, 'twixt the houses of Warner and LeRoy. Tia braided about that Son-in-law Mervyn LeRoy may take his hodkins over to the original Warner court-yard on Sunset Boulevard and perch a placard, "LeRoy Productions." Pardon us... Shakespeare has come to Hollywood...

We like the story they tell about Papa Yocelson, Al Jolson's father. Al was just about to enter the broadcasting room when he received a long-distance call. His pappy's voice came over the wire, "You were wonderful! You were marvelous!" "But I haven't started yet," corrected Al. There was no answer for a moment, then, "My boy, I know. But you forget the difference in time!"

Tune in again... same time.
