Searchlight Over Europe

Form Group to Locate Persons Displaced by War

NEW YORK — The establishment of the Central Location Index, Inc., as a channel through which seven nationally known organizations will seek to locate persons displaced by war and whose whereabouts are unknown, was announced here this week by Moses A. Leavitt, president of the newly created agency.

Mr. Leavitt stated that the Central Location Index, which will be housed in New York City, will serve as a channel for clearance of the names of hundreds of thousands of persons who are now being sought by relatives and friends in this country. The Index, Mr. Leavitt emphasized, will not deal directly with individual applicants. Persons desiring to apply for location service can do so through member agencies or their affiliated and cooperating organizations throughout the United States if they have not previously done so. The member agencies in turn will register the names with the Central Location Index for clearance, after which the extensive overseas facilities of the member agencies, of the International Red Cross and of public and semi-public bodies, will be enlisted in the location of displaced people as rapidly as changing conditions permit.

Central Location Index will not undertake any personal message service to persons in occupied countries. This service is being given by the American Red Cross which agency also receives inquiries regarding persons in occupied countries.

Accuse N. Y. School Heads of Glossing Over Racialism

NEW YORK — Charging that the spread of religious intolerance and false racial ideas are "glossed over" in our (New York City) schools, Johanna M. Lindlof, educator and New York Post columnist, referred to the case of Mrs. Gladys Laubenheimer, a teacher in a Brooklyn public school who was accused by the Parents Association of Public School 25 of spreading prejudice and intolerance upon her pupils. Ignoring demands of the Parents Association to try Mrs. Laubenheimer on those charges, Superintendent of Schools John E. Wade referred the matter to the local school board which recommended only that the teacher be transferred and reprimanded.

"Unless Dr. Wade follows through as requested by the parents," writes Mrs. Lindlof, "the Laubenheimer case will be another example in which the failure to act by school heads vitiates the excellent and extensive program intended to increase inter-racial and religious tolerance."

Several weeks ago, in reply to complaints by Jewish parents that anti-Semitic gangs were beating up Jewish children in The Bronx, Dr. Wade advised to keep the children indoors after 8 p. m.

The fund was created by Mr. Willkie from the proceeds of his book, "One World."

HELP CAPTURE GRODNO

Henry Ford Denies Having Talked With Fascist Pelley

WASHINGTON — Among the exhibits introduced by the prosecution at the mass sedition trial here, was a letter from William Dudley Pelley to Major General George Van Horn Moseley, retired army officer, written in April, 1941, in which the former Silver Shirt leader boasted that he was in "closest contact" with Henry Ford and expected to "see him again the following day." He also stated in the letter that he would like to familiarize Charles A. Lindbergh and Senator Burton K. Wheeler with his plans to "alter history."

A spokesman for Henry Ford denied that the industrialist had

Arthur J. Levy Presented With Sixth "Roger" Award

Arthur J. Levy, prominent in communal affairs in Rhode Island, was presented with the sixth "Roger" award of the Providence Journal Company last Sunday afternoon at Roger Williams Park during the weekly program known as Sunday-in-the-Park.

Mr. Levy, chairman of the Providence Council of Social Agencies, and chairman of the Providence Community Fund's Education Committee, was cited for his "outstanding community service." The text of the citation, signed by G. Pierce Metcalf, and read by Jack Martin, was as follows:

"Arthur Joseph Levy is one whom good citizenship has become a habit. It was his habit before the fervor for doing our bit arrived again with the war and the least of us began to make his contribution to the aggregate heroism of the Nation. Service is the common lot and honorable today, made easy by the urgency of band music, by posters, radio, and headlines, by the vogue, by obvious justice and by obvious necessity. "But look also to the man who accepts civic responsibilities in normal times, when the limelight is dim and the victory to be won

Only 80,000 Jews Left in Poland

NEW YORK — Only 80,000 Jews survive in Poland and they are concentrated in Lodz, and in the vicinities of Bendin, Cracow, and Lublin, according to information received by the World Jewish Congress from Anselm Reiss, Polish Jewish leader in London who quoted a representative of the Polish Underground just arrived in Britain. (Lublin has been liberated by the Red Army, since this report was released.)

LONDON — Max Auschnitt, an apostate Jew, close friend of Nazi Puppet Premier of Romania General Antoncescu, was sentenced to death in absentia by a court-martial after fleeing Romania in a stolen bomber, the Nazi Transkontinent news agency reports. Auschnitt, described by the Germans as "a big Jewish industrialist," had been interned in a Hungarian concentration camp.

Attempt Made on Life of MacMichael

Was on Way to Farewell Function

JERUSALEM — Sir Harold MacMichael, retiring British High Commissioner of Palestine and Trans-Jordan, was slightly injured this week when an unsuccessful attempt was made on his life while he was traveling along the Jerusalem-Telaviv highway.

MacMichael's private secretary also was injured slightly but details of the assassination attempt were not immediately available. Lady MacMichael, traveling with her husband, was not injured.

It was believed the attempt was made by Sternists—extreme Zionists—just before MacMichael was scheduled to depart from Palestine. He is to be succeeded by Field Marshal Viscount Gort.

Gort was in Vatican City this week where he was granted a 20-minute audience with Pope Pius XII.

The attempt caused wide indignation throughout Palestine among both Arabs and Jews. Police were reported carrying out a vigorous search for the assassins.

The British radio said that MacMichael, with his wife and secretary and staff members, was motoring to a farewell function when the car, under police escort, was ambushed. Fire was opened on the car by assassins along the side of the road. The broadcast said that two members of MacMichael's staff were seriously injured.

Irving Berlin, Back Home, Proud of Talk With Pope

NEW YORK — Irving Berlin, back in the U. S. after four months of playing "This Is the Army" for American and British troops in Italy, told reporters this week that his audience with the Pope was one of the memorable experiences of his tour.

"I'm very proud of that," he said at a press conference, "because I got a chance to thank him for the fine work he has done to help the Jewish people."

"I was nervous at first, but I had heard how the Pope had extended refuge and wonderful help to the oppressed Jews of Rome and I wanted to thank him for my people."

The popular songwriter, who has entertained troops through two wars, and the 160 enlisted men who comprise the cast of "This Is the Army," performed before some 300,000 troops in all. They received a citation from Mark Clark, Commanding General of the Fifth Army for "having contributed materially to the morale of Fifth Army troops."

Berlin and the troupe gave their show twice a day, and Berlin also managed to find time for daily impromptu engagements at hospitals, walking through wards to entertain bed-ridden soldiers two and three at a time.

The civilian population in Rome saw "This Is the Army" soon after its first performance for soldiers in the city on June 15. Although is less spectacular. The quality of a citizen is shown at such undramatic stages where the going is harder and lonelier.

"Arthur Levy has been such a man. As chairman of the educational publicity committee of the Providence Community Fund, he successfully awakened the public understanding and the public conscience. As president of the Jewish Family Welfare Society (now the Jewish Family and Children's Service) and as an officer of the Jewish Federation and the Jewish Community Centre, he proudly has sustained his race and religion as an effective, benevolent leader.

"As chairman of the important Providence Council of Social Agencies, he helped unify policy and action for our various instrumentalities of human welfare. All this and more, apart from his professional life, and wholly as a volunteer, he has offered with a com-

The selection of Mr. Levy, as well as previous "Roger" recipients, was made by three college presidents: Dr. Henry M. Wriston of Brown University, Very Rev. John J. Dillon, O.P., of Providence College, and Dr. Lucius Whipple of the Rhode Island College of Education. The presentation is made each week by the committee in the name of the Providence Journal-Evening Bulletin.

The program at the Park last Sunday was sponsored by the Jewish Community Centre, under the chairmanship of J. I. Cohen, executive director. Jewish artists that appeared included Ethel Sydney, vocalist, accompanied by Ben Victor; Abraham Paull, choralist; Cantor Joseph Schlossberg, of Temple Beth-Israel, Evelyn S. Gerstebliart, vocalist, and S. E. Suchman, S. 2/c, stationed at Camp Thomas, Davisville.

Concentration Camp Heads Tried for Mistreating Jews

ALGIERS — The mistreatment of interned Jews in the concentration camps established by the Vichy Government in North Africa was described here at the trial of the administrators of Camp Djennian at Bou-Berg.

The chief accusation against the camp director and guards is that they caused the death of a 51-year-old Jewish physician named Chaouat, former president of the League for Human Rights in Algeria. Although he was ill when he arrived at the camp Dr. Chaouat was compelled to work on the camp farm. Witnesses testified that due to overwork and exposure in inclement weather the prisoner contracted pneumonia, but was not permitted to quit work. Eventually he contracted typhus and died at the camp on June 12, 1942.

Dr. Bernard Lecache, former president of the League of Human Rights in France, testified that the directors and the guards taunted him saying: "Hitler, our chief, will win the war and you Jews will be exterminated." He charged that although he was forced to work for eight hours at a stretch carrying rocks weighing fifty to sixty pounds, he was given no food and water while working. Many Jews and other prisoners died as a result of overwork, lack of food and beatings by the guards. Lecache said.

New Malaria Cure Found

REHOVOTH — Dr. B. M. Bloch of the Daniel Sieff Research Institute here has disclosed that locally manufactured palastrin tablets have been found a more effective cure for malaria than the now unobtainable quinine. Straws in the Wind

The news from Germany indicates that destiny (and the German people are believers in destiny) has in its own mysterious ways begun to wreak vengeance on the "super-race" con-founded in a primordial web of its own creation.

But we hope, in justice to the dead and to those that are still dying at the hands of the Valhalla Cain, and for the security of the future world peace, that the leaders and peoples of the democratic countries will not be deceived by the events in Germany.

It is not a revolt of right against evil; it is the mutiny of the crew of a pirate ship. It is with relish we read of the fratricide. We hope for more of it. It will make easier the mopping up job for the Allies.

THINK BEFORE YOU TALK!...

A FEW IDLE WORDS ABOUT SHIP MOVEMENTS

... CAN MAKE A RAFT OF TROUBLE!

BY HARRY CONOVER
Noted Authority on Beauty, Writing for Walter Winchell

The model business developed, along with the use of photography, in the advertising business. As the agencies got away from the use of line drawings and began to experiment with photographs, the need for models became apparent.

The first models, about 20 years ago, were actors "at liberty." Their pay ranged from a dinner to the least amount of cash they could be appeased with. Today a model's fee ranges from $5 to $25 an hour. Highest model fee ever paid was $50 an hour to Betty Wyman and Gwill Andre.

Ninety per cent of the modeling jobs in the country are held by women. 8 per cent by men and 2 per cent by children.

A top fashion model will pose in over $2,000,000 worth of clothes in a year.

Many motion picture stars—male and female—got their start in the modeling business. Among these are Jinx Falkenburg, Anita Colby, Jean Arthur, Barbara Stanwyck, Joan Blondell, Ruth Hussey, Fredric March, Franchot Tone, Alan Curtis and Neil Hamilton.

Modeling became a fashionable business about 1930, when society girls invaded the field. About six years ago, the college girl made her debut in front of the camera; today she leads the field.

A well-known psychiatrist conducted a standard IQ test among 400 models recently. Results found the models well above average in intelligence.

Trends Influence Standards

Popular trends influence beauty standards. There was a time when every little girl in the model business looked like Shirley Temple and every lad resembled Freddy Bartholomew. Today highly successful children may even have teeth missing in front; it's personality and naturalness that count.

Fifteen years ago, modelling was a part-time job with girls who worked in offices, had small roles in the theatre, etc. Today modelling is a full time job, with models taking occasional part-time jobs as radio actresses, etc.

Models have traveled all over the country for location shots. It is not unusual to take them to Florida, Mexico, far-western dude ranches for special backgrounds. One picture magazine took a model on a 60,000-mile trip through South America a few years ago for location pictures.

Mail order houses who use models extensively spend about a million dollars annually to pretty-up their fashion books.

Successful stay in the field for a model is about six years, two years on the way up, two years on top, and two years going down.

Lots of prominent businessmen and socially prominent women get a kick out of seeing their faces in magazines. They frequently model under assumed names. One of the most successful "businessman type of model, who usually portrays a professional man in the ads, has never been able to make a success in the business world.

Not all calls are limited to the human species. We've gotten calls for boxing kangaroos, dogs, cats, horses, cows, pigs and rabbits.

Considering the importance of the model business, there are comparatively few girls who are successful. At most there are 1000 successful models in the U. S.

ANECDOTA PRESIDENTIA:

Although the White House is the last place in the world (except Grant's Tomb you'd expect to find a gag-man, some of our Presidents have fashioned bon mots that would have earned them berths on leading radio comedians payrolls. In a discussion on the proper

"IT CAN'T BE DONE"

When Wilson was faced with severe opposition on his League of Nations proposals, the objection, "It can't be done," was familiar to his ears. At such times he would relate this story: A man was telling his son a bedtime story about an alligator. It was creeping up behind a turtle, with its mouth wide open. Finally it was within reach but just as its great jaws were snapping shut, the turtle made a spring, ran up a tree and escaped. "Why, dad," said the boy, "how can a turtle spring and climb a tree?" "Great Scott," replied the father, "he had to!"

Calvin Coolidge, generally accepted as the tightest-lipped of the Chief Executives, has several nifties to his credit. A Washington correspondent questioned him about his reaction to Rupert Hughes' biography debunking many of the legends about George Washington. Coolidge gazed out the window and then muttered nasally: "I notice the Washington Monument is still standing."

Pegler Condemns Free Port Project

Attacks Policy of Temporary Visitors

NEW YORK — Westbrook Pegler, Scripps-Howard columnist who frequently engages in alien baiting, lashed out against the "free port" project admitting 1,000 refugees from Nazi persecution now en route from Italy by Presidential directive to a temporary haven at Fort Ontario, New York.

Attacking the large number of refugees admitted from Europe as temporary visitors during and immediately preceding this war, Pegler charged that the U. S. Government was "just winking" at its immigration laws and predicted that "all of them will presently be permitted to settle permanently by taking a little trip to Canada and re-entering as immigrants.

"Similarly," Pegler writes, "the present group of 1,000 might be admitted temporarily and not returned to their Homelands as Mr. Roosevelt promised they would be and further thousands might likewise be favored."

use of a word, Grover Cleveland was surprised to hear a Senator refer to his source as "Daniel Webster's dictionary"....."But my dear Senator," said Cleveland, "Noah made the dictionary"....."Don't be silly," replied the Senator, giving him a scornful look. "Noah built the ark."

A Congressional committee was meeting with President Wilson, and, as you can well imagine, many of the good Representatives were shaking the walls with their loud, but unratational oratory. The Prez listened patiently for a while, and then related this story: "I am reminded of the old Colored man down in Virginia who was riding a mule, and who was caught in a violent thunderstorm while passing through a dense forest. Although he trembled at the horrifying peals of thunder, he was thankful for the occasional flashes of lightning which enabled him to see his way. At last he prayed: 'O Lawd, if it's jes' the same to you, I'd rather hev a little less noise an' a little more light!'"

Attempt to Frame "Under Cover" Author Backfires

NEW YORK — An attempt to smear the character of a Government witness in the trial of the 29 alleged seditionists, and thus discredit his testimony, backfired in the face of its sponsor, Edwin Perry Banta, 73, anti-Semite and pro-Nazi. Banta, whose articles appeared in the German American Bund's Deutscher Beobachter, is being held in $1500 bail on charges of conspiracy.

Banta is accused of conspiring with June Kelly, 21, to bring charges of criminal attack against John Roy Carlson, author of "Under Cover." Miss Kelly said that Banta promised such charges would "blow the sedition trial in Washington all to hell."

Banta, who at one time worked for American Women Against Communism, is described in "Under Cover" as a "confidential trouble-shooter for native fascists throughout the country."

Both Miss Kelly and Banta have sold information to the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League.

A League spokesman said: "Catching a big bad man often involves getting information from a little bad man.

"Several weeks ago the League received inquiries as to Banta's attempt to involve Mr. Carlson, whose exposes of seditions efforts are well known, and against whom Banta is said to have held a personal grudge. The League at that time informed Mr. Carlson, through his associates, of what appeared to be the case, and Mr. Carlson was then in contact with the law-enforcement agencies. The name of the young lady mentioned by Mr. Hogan, Miss Kelly, has been closely linked with that of Joseph McWilliams, sedition trial defendant, repeatedly exposed by the Anti-Nazi League in preceding years."

2 eggs

Juice and grated rind of 1 lemon
Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Cream shortening and sugar and blend well. Add egg and beat vigorously. Stir in lemon juice and rind. Add flour mixture in 1 or 2 portions, stirring until smooth. Loosely pour into waxed paper and chill in refrigerator for an hour. Shape dough into balls the size of small walnuts and place about 2 inches apart on a buttered baking tin. Cover tin-bottomed pan with a sheet of wax paper and add water and press the cookies out flat to 1/8 inch thickness. Bake in a moderately hot oven for 4 to 5 minutes, or until slightly browned at edges. Remove to cake racks to cool before eating.

Heifetz Fiddled But Neither Rome Nor G. I.'s Burned

NEW YORK — At least 70 per cent, and probably 80, of the G. I.'s Yuseva Heifetz met abroad find really serious music, the great violinist is convinced.

Mr. Heifetz is just back from his second long trip, playing for servicemen. This one took him to Italy and there and in neighboring countries he played at concerts in approximately two months. "I know they liked what they heard," Mr. Heifetz says, "because they were there. And they didn't walk out. When I was about to begin a long piece, I often told them that if they wanted to leave that it would be a good time. They didn't."

Mr. Heifetz played as close as four miles to the front, and remembers vividly one occasion when enemy guns went into action. The program was being played at a truck, some of the audience watched Mr. Heifetz's violin and his f under the truck. Then they dove into various shelters.

"I just stood there, watching the show. Nobody thought to fire on me under a truck, I guess."

Refugees Receive Warm Reception at N. Y. Shelter

NEW YORK — The thirty-not reporters and photographers watched silently as the boat bringing the 384 refugees to temporary asylum at this country docked at the Bimohet, N. Y. pier. The rain was lined with tense, anxious people. In the Friday evening twilight you could see them dressed in shiny, tattered clothes. They peered down silently at the people at the dock.

One of the Jewish reporters called out cheerfully to the refugees, "Shalom." A few other reporters joined in and then, as though they had learned for the first time that they were looking at friends, the refugees shouted back, "Shalom" and "Shabbat Shalom." ("Good Sabbath.") They waved and a number of them kept shouting, "Hello, America, Hello."

In groups of twenty they were set to the Army to special trains which brought them last morning to Fort Ontario, an island site which until recently housed a contingent of soldiers.

They did not sing for times as they walked to the trains. Nor did they smile. Their faces were that sad hollow and some looked just a little frightened. They carried whatever possessions remaining in their pockets, some of them in Europe's network of concentration camps.

Some of the boys and girls had to shoes. Others wore scabby, lumpy trunks in which they had made the arduous two-week ocean journey from Naples. They looked up Army transport. One elderly Jew was asked how a fish is measured in American soil. His smile was wistful. He said in a low voice, "When the Lord leads, there is I follow."

The refugees arrived at the Emergency Refugee Shelter early last Saturday morning and were immediately served a hearty, welcoming breakfast which included such foods as eggs and crates of juice. "Futures" that these unfortunate victims had not seen in years.

The big, well-lighted apartments for families and beds for unmarried persons in apartments were assigned and other details were efficiently cleared. By morning, it was apparent that a distinct change of concentration had come over the refugees.

Here and there you noticed people smiling and laughing something which had been entirely absent ing the night before. In spite of their ragged garments, the refugees immediately set about trying to spruce up. Men shaved, mothers washed their children's perked faces, young girls applied lipstick.

Toward evening, the promenade which had resounded only a short time ago to the rattle of soldiers' marching was filled with couples strolling and chatting cheerfully. Over on a patch of coal grass, a group of yarmulke wearing Polish Chassidim discussed the day's events. For many this was the first peaceful Sabbath they had enjoyed in a long while.

For the refugees themselves the most burning question was that of locating their relatives, to whom they had permission to write. The National Refugee Service provided forms to secure from the refugees permanent data concerning their relatives in this country.

Until facilities for the operation of kosher kitchens are ready, NES will provide kosher meat for the 144 orthodox refugees. The National Refugee Service, through its local committees in Oswego, Syracuse, and Rochester, is prepared to furnish any other items which the authorities may request.

On the evening of the first night of outdoor Thanksgiving services was held by the refugees, which was conducted by Rabbi Moshe Teitelbaum.

Wise Challenges Committees Views

Says Statement on "Protestant" Altered

NEW YORK — Dr. Stephen S. Wise this week issued a public statement in which he termed the inclusion of the American Jewish Congress in the American Jewish Committee's attack against "The Protestant" a "misinterpretation of the statement issued by the American Jewish Congress."

Dr. Wise's statement refers to a story published in the July issue of the American Jewish Committee Reporter under a headline reading "Jewish Agencies Warned Against Support of Protestant and Textbook Commission." The Committee's story stated unequivocally that the American Jewish Congress agreed "that it is inadvisable to foster the activities of Mr. Leslie."

Subsequently, the American Jewish Committee launched a national publicity campaign in the Scripps-Howard papers and the parochial press involving the American Jewish Congress in its renewed attack against Mr. Leslie and The Protestant.

It Happened This Week

In Retrospect

Well-deserved sums up the opinion of folks when they heard or read of Arthur Levy receiving the Providence Journal-Bulletin's sixth "Roger" for outstanding community service...Arthur, for many years, has been an advocate of a Jewish Federation, similar to community councils in other cities, but the various factions just couldn't get together and the idea was temporarily bypassed...He was among the first representatives on the liaison committee of the Community Fund and it was largely through his efforts that separate committees were eliminated...Alter Boyman this week expressed his regret that Isaac Feinstein had accepted another post after nine years as superintendent of the Home for Aged...He handled a difficult task with ability. Mr. Boyman said...Words of praise were also heard this week for the Miriam Hospital Campaign Committee for the spirit and co-operation that marked the drive...Despite the fact that the hottest portion of the summer snarled the coverage of donors by solicitors, the enthusiasm of the officials was responsible for the largest sum ever raised in our communal history...It also explains the determination of the committee to continue the campaign until the goal of $750,000 is reached...

only about 10 per cent of the audience understood English, the ballads of the last 25 years were greeted like old friends by the natives. The performance raised $10,000 for relief of Italian children.

The author of "Yip Yop Yop-hank," the World War I counterpart of "This Is the Army," managed during the tour, which lasted from April through July, to compose a new song entitled "There Are No Wings on a Foxhole." General Marshall has accepted it for the U. S. Infantry to which it is dedicated.

"This Is the Army" has grossed $10,000,000 for Army Emergency Relief and $300,000 for British Service Charities. And its career is far from finished. After a short stay in this country to attend to some personal business, Berlin will rejoin the show which is continuing on a round-the-world tour.

He Once Loved Firecrackers
But Japs Changed His Mind

By PAUL KRESH

It was a close call on Saipan a few weeks ago for Warrant Officer Jerry Weinstein, of Baltimore. A mortar shell landed only 35 feet from him. Several men were injured.

Bathing himself with water from his helmet, Jerry explained recently why he, personally, is sore at the Japanese.

"It's like this," he said, "I always was very fond of firecrackers.

"But there have been so many things exploding around here in the last few days that when the boys set off some captured Japanese firecrackers on the Fourth of July I nearly jumped out of my foxhole.

"Yesterday, the boys got hold of some firecrackers and again they made me jumpy, so I find I am getting allergic to firecrackers and this makes me very sore, indeed, because, as I say, I am always very fond of same.

"And I blame it all on the Japs."

Jerry, who is a veteran of the Eniwetok campaign, is proud of one particular accomplishment during this campaign: after repeated failures, he's succeeded in growing a moustache.

Bar Mitzvah Recording

Captain Ephraim Goldman, overseas with a medical unit, couldn't attend his son Irving's bar mitzvah, but he will distinctly hear the candidate saying: Today I am a man," and every other detail of the proceedings. Temple Adath Jeshuran in Syracuse, where the event took place recently, is forwarding a recording of the entire ceremony. It features the captain's son reciting the "Maftar" and, we're told, an alert listener can even make out the proud sighs of relatives.

The Rains Came—And Stayed!

The French are friendly, but it rains too much in Normandy, Sorporal Irving Lust informs us this week. He's serving with an anti-aircraft artillery unit on that front.

"I don't know what's the matter with Europe," he wrote home to Washington, D. C., "but it is always raining. This is supposed to be summer, but it's plenty cold. Right now it's raining cats and dogs."

The terrain, he says, is level—a condition caused by war, not geology. He wrote that "we passed through some cities that are almost level and if I could mail home souvenirs the attic would be full."

Had Plenty to Say

Despite the fact that they're separated by the entire Atlantic Ocean, Mrs. Ann Gravitz, of Brooklyn, recently managed to hold her husband's undivided attention for an hour. Her method was sending him a ten-foot letter with more than 3600 words in it.

Private Morton Gravitz, the husband, busy at present at a P-51 Mustang fighter station in England, was questioned about the contents. "She still loves me," was his reply, "and the feeling is very mutual."

Wreath Placed On Herzl's Tomb

GENEVA — On the night of the fortieth anniversary of the death of Dr. Theodor Herzl, founder of political Zionism, a wreath was placed on his tombstone in the Jewish cemetery in Vienna. The Gestapo, according to a report received here, was put on its toes and instigated a probe which failed to uncover the "felon" who paid homage to the father of Zionism.

Pope Pius Grants Audience to Rabbi

ROME — Pope Pius this week received Chief Rabbi Anton Zolli of Rome, with whom he spoke for a half-hour. It is understood that Rabbi Zolli expressed his thanks and those of the Jewish community for the moral and material assistance given the Jews of Rome during the German occupation of the capital. Aside from sheltering many Jews, the Vatican contributed funds to meet a ransom demand made by the Germans.

BOARD UNINFORMED

WASHINGTON — The War Refugee Board, informed that Pinckney Tuck, U. S. minister in Cairo, had announced that 5,000 Jewish children may be removed from France shortly, stated that it had no knowledge of the projected evacuation.

BREWER'S YEAST, a widely used pharmaceutical staple, has become a valuable source of B Complex Vitamins and Protein for wartime use in fortifying and enriching stock and poultry feeds, as well as a nutritional food adjunct for humans. Recognizing the healthful values of BREWER'S YEAST, and anticipating eventual scarcities of common animal feed adjuncts such as fish meal, meat scraps etc., the NARRAGANSETT BREWING COMPANY was the first New England Brewery to install special equipment to process its own yeast for supply to agricultural feed merchants. NARRAGANSETT has made its facilities available for the processing of yeast supplied by other breweries, thereby making a valuable contribution to the food program of a nation at war.

"Yeast is a rich source of the B vitamins and also of good quality protein, and is therefore valuable in diets. Probably the best-known yeast product available is DRIED BREWER'S YEAST."

Quoted from "A Handbook for Better Feeding of Livestock," and "The Feeding of Chickens." Issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.
