Contributors to UJA to Vote On Permanent Organization

Contributors to the 1944 United Jewish Appeal campaign will meet on May 28 at the Biltmore Hotel to discuss proposed by-laws for the formation of a General Jewish Committee in this city which would act as permanent fund-raising organization, it was announced this week by Archibald Silverman, general chairman of the UJA who conducted the deliberations held by the Committee of 25 last Wednesday night.

Jacob Temkin, chairman of a committee of nine, recently appointed to draw up by-laws for the new organization, presented the committee's recommendations which, after a period of discussion, were accepted.

Sedition Lawyer Files Libel Suits

NEW YORK — Henry H. Klein, Jewish defense attorney for Colonel E. N. Sanctuary, notorious Jew-baiter, at the mass sedition trials in Washington, has filed libel suits against the newspaper PM and the Judea Publishing Corporation, publishers of the Brooklyn Jewish Examiner. The suit against the Examiner names Rabbi Louis D. Gross, editor and publisher; Rabbi Philip R. Alstat, columnist and Arnold Levin, of the Independent Jewish Press Service.

Teen-Age Paper To Combat Bias

NEW HAVEN — A teen-age newspaper with eleven editors representing the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths will be launched in Connecticut as the sixth major activity of the "Freeport Plan" to combat racial and religious intolerance.

The "Freeport Plan," inaugurated in 1940 by Rabbi E. Leon Hurwitz, is guided by an Inter-Faith Clergy Council, and stresses inter-faith youth activities through an "all-out-to-church-and-synagogue week," brotherhood week, religious-book week and an annual institute of community affairs.

They Escaped Death in Nazi Camps

Following the revelations of how military and political prisoners were treated in Germany, one can understand the rejoicing shown above by a group of refugees arriving in Palestine from Europe. In the period since the outbreak of World War II, more than 85,000 men, women and children were brought to Palestine.

British Organize Anti-Zionist Group

LONDON — Opposition to the establishment of a Jewish State anywhere was expressed here in behalf of the "Jewish Fellowship" at a meeting of the Middle-East Committee, composed of members of the House of Commons, at which the Palestine question was discussed.

The meeting, under chairmanship of Gen. Edward Spears, former British Minister in Syria, was attended by 30 members of Parliament.

Palestine May Be Test For Mandate Government

BOSTON — Palestine is seen as a "test case" for the mandate system of government as opposed to an international "trusteeship", the Christian Science Monitor reports. "Palestine has been a test case with two independent races, Arabs and Jews were working on equal terms, with Britain, the mandatory power, as umpire.

"Problems there have been taking on tremendous proportions, quite unforeseeable at the time of inception of the mandate, through developments in Europe and by unprecedented persecution of the Jews by Germany. Whether these problems will be solved by placing Palestine under an international trusteeship remains to be seen, especially as the Arab states emphatically stress the importance of the Palestine question as the key to any form of security for the Middle East", the Christian Science Monitor says

Editorials

Mussolini

The story of Benito Mussolini in all its stark futility now enters history, to remain for all time an object lesson to the wise and discerning of the world; an eloquent warning to mankind to distinguish henceforth between the genuine article and the counterfeit; between greatness and bluff; between leadership and opportunism.

Doubtless there will be many times in the future when the conditions which gave rise to Fascism and Mussolini will come again. Nations and peoples will look anew to "strong men" to extricate them from chaos and the fruits of their own blundering. Over and over again since the dawn of history they have done so.

If they remember Mussolini, they may hesitate a bit longer before they give absolute power to any individual; they may exercise more care in following a leader.

War Crimes Punishment

The heavy cloud of secrecy which hangs over the proceedings of the War Crimes Commission in London is pierced by flashes which hardly reassure those who fear that the entire program of preparing to punish the most monstrous crimes of history is being incompetently bungled.

Not a single item of official information as to just what is being planned has been given the public. There are some who maintain that the silence is due not so much to "security" consideration as to a desire to conceal the fact that nothing tangible has been or is being accomplished.

Legalistic fumbling behind closed doors in London and mumblings from the State Department in Washington compare pitifully with the prompt retribution the Russians are exacting from the war criminals they capture. That kind of action is a language the Nazis will understand better than our silence.

French Jews Want to Settle In Palestine

PARIS — French Jewry is now far more Zionist-minded than before the war and the majority hope to eventually settle in Palestine, Leon Mays, President of the Jewish Consistoire, representative central body of French Jewry, declared in an address to the first conference of Zionist youth held in France, since its liberation.

To Name Street For George Mandel

PARIS — The Municipal Council here resolved unanimously to name one of the city's most important thoroughfares after George Mandel, French-Jewish statesman who was killed by the Germans during the occupation. Mandel was a member of the French cabinet at the time of France's capitulation in June, 1940.

The Jewish Boy Scout organization here has decided to raise funds for the purchase in Palestine of land for a colony dedicated to members killed during the resistance to the Germans in occupied France.

Ministers Collect Evidence of Waltham Anti-Semitism

Present Facts To Gov. Tobin

BOSTON — Evidence of organized anti-Semitic attacks upon students and property of Middlesex University Medical School at Waltham, Mass., assembled by Protestant clergymen, was in the hands of Gov. Tobin this week.

The attacks, most of which occurred the week before Easter, culminated on Good Friday night in an invasion of the Middlesex campus by a gang of 20 youths who broke 30 windows in the Medical School library. Two hours later they stoned a synagogue two miles away.

Police dismissed the attacks as "kid stuff," but four members of the Boston Regional Action Committee of The Protestant who

Warners to Make Picture On Life of General Rose

DENVER — Warner Bros. have sent a script writer to this city to work on a movie of the late Gen. Maurice Rose, Robert S. Gamzey, managing editor of the Intermountain Jewish News, reported this week.

Gamzey, who is writing a life of Gen. Rose, said that although the general was away from Jewish "life as we know it, during his army career, he kept Judaism close to his heart."

Gamzey also wrote: "In his letters to his parents, he never forgot Jewish holidays. Before Rosh Hashonah he sent

New Year greetings in Hebrew, having gone to the B. M. H. religious school and being Bar Mitzvah there under Rabbi C. H. Kauer.

"Before Passover, he wrote excerpts from the Hagaddah, and the Four Questions.

"Pop," he wrote, "I wish I could be at the seder table with you and Ma and Arnold. Maybe next year I can be at the seder with you."

"When his son, Roderick, was born four years ago at Ft. Knox, Ky., he went to considerable trouble to bring a Mohel from Louisville to initiate him properly, according to Rabbi Rose."

60,000 Receive Red Army Awards

MOSCOW — In 1944 alone, 28,000 Jews received awards for valor in the service of the Red Army, bringing the total of Jewish Red Army men bearing decoration to 60,000, the Jewish Anti-Fascist Committee announced in a statement issued here.

The number of Jews bearing the highest award, Hero of the Soviet Union, has doubled in the past year.

PRAISES BRIGADE

NEW YORK — Rep. Clare Booth Luce (R. Conn.), reporting on her visit with the Jewish Brigade, quoted British officers as saying: "There is no more grim and determined unit on the whole Italian front."

Minister to Back Zionist Demands

BUCHAREST — Prime Minister Petro Groza of Romania has issued a statement declaring that he will support the Zionist demands for the establishment of a Jewish State in Palestine. At the same time, he emphasized that the Jews in Romania are equal citizens of the country.

Stating that he does not believe that assimilation will solve the Jewish problem, Groza said: "No people should be sentenced to permanent wandering and to a situation of remaining a permanent minority. Therefore I believe that the right thing to do is to secure Palestine for the Jews as their own state."

31 States Back Jewish Palestine

NEW YORK — The state legislatures of Arkansas, Indiana, Nevada, Ohio, Oregon and Utah recently announced the adoption of pro-Zionist resolutions, thus bringing to 31 the number of states which have formally urged the United States government to take appropriate measures now to open the gates of Palestine and reconstitute that country as a Jewish Commonwealth. The 31 states represent more than 82 per cent of the population of the United States.

LINT FROM A BLUE SERGE SUIT:

Just before the war, Jan Smeterlin, the eminent Polish pianist, was on a world concert tour and at one point visited Valdemosa on the island of Majorca, which was the place where Chopin lived. Smeterlin visited the monastery which was Chopin's home (and has since been turned into a private residence) hoping to see the piano on which Chopin played. He was told that the piano was now the property of a private family in Palma. Smeterlin located that family and as he stood in rapt awe looking at this box, which was the instrument of the great Polish immortal, the man of the house said, "Surely, Mr. Smeterlin, you're going to play on it!"..... Smeterlin replied reverently, "Oh—I wouldn't think of touching it." To which his host said, "Oh, nonsense—my children bang on it all the time!"

Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black is a fiend for lyonnaise potatoes. A new waitress at his favorite restaurant brought him french fries in error and told him she couldn't change the order..... A Washington reporter, seated near by, asked her if she knew the patron was a United States high court judge.

Unimpressed, she refused to change the order, explaining: "How often do they change their decisions?"

We've only used it twice before, but every time some contributor offers it we get the giggles and have to print it over again. It's about Mr. Mefoofsky and his four-year-old son, Itzie.....They were strolling in the park, and the boy kept asking all sorts of questions. It was getting on Mefoofsky's "noyfs"

"Poppa," persisted Itzie, "wot kind flower is doze?"

"How should I know?" exploded Mefoofsky. "Am I in the milliner bizniz?"

James Gordon Bennett (who used to own the N. Y. Herald) had a list of "don'ts" for reporters that was as long as the memory of a radio comedian.....Every once in a while, though, the boys made him take one back. "Don't use 'patron' or 'guest' in referring to a paying customer at a hotel," one rule

NEW YORKERS' NOTEBOOK:

The English are giggling over the cook's dog at an RAF flying field. The canine dashed down the runway in pursuit of a plane taking-off....."Does your dog always do that?" a new officer asked..... The cook said yep....."Why?" the officer wanted to know.

"I don't know, sir?" replied the dog's owner. "But what worries me is what he's going to do with it when he catches a plane."

Ivor Newton, the London pianist, heard a Cockney give this explanation of his own courage regarding the robot bombings: "I see it ike this. It must take the Germans a lot of trouble to make the bloody things, and then they have to get them into those pits and up in the air, and it is quite a long way from France to London, and if they do get to London, they still have to find Limehouse, and even then, it isn't everyone who can find 37 Bulstrode road where I live, and if they do, it's 10 to 1 that I would be down the corner in the Pub."

At the home of mutual friends, after the funeral of the Archbishop of Canterbury, Winston Churchill, who was touched by the prelate's passing, said: "Once again, the nation has lost a great churchman and a great Englishman."

.....Then, in an aside Mr. Churchill, who credits his 70 years to having a drink now and then, added: "And once again one of my good friends has met the untimely end of a complete teetotaler!"

Story of the Week: The newest General Patton legend according to just-returned correspondents

.....When the Germans cold-bloodedly murdered Gen. Maurice Rose, Patton was strangely silent for a long time.....Then he reached slowly into his jacket pocket from which he removed a German-English dictionary.....And crossed out the word "mercy."

The other night Prof. Leo Reisman relayed the one about the trainee at a naval radio training center in Georgia. His station was the radio tower.....He became worried when he couldn't account for an incoming fleet of planes. He flashed: "X Radiq Tower calling Pilot Jones. Been messaging you but got no answer. If you hear me, wabble wings."

Shortly came the reply: "Pilot Jones calling X Radio Tower. I landed two hours ago. If you hear me, wabble tower!"

Wagner Scores Appeasement

65,000 Attend Jewish Rights Rally

NEW YORK — Charging that "the power which is preventing the development of a Jewish Commonwealth in Palestine is British power," and that Great Britain's policies in Palestine "are a tragic revival of the disease of appeasement," Senator Robert F. Wagner (Dem., N. Y.) this week urged that the nations of the world "put their hands to their neglected task of constituting a Jewish Commonwealth in Palestine."

Speaking before a Rally for Jewish Rights demonstration of more than 65,000 persons who jammed Lewisohn Stadium and overflowed into the adjoining Jasper Oval, he declared: "I say to our British friends and Allies, you have not fulfilled your obligations to Palestine. You are in default. The American people believe it is high time that you redeem your pledge."

Mayor LaGuardia, Dr. Stephen S. Wise, Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, Louis Lipsky and other Zionist leaders also addressed the great crowd.

Pointing out that Religious Book Week coincides with the anniversary of the burning of the books by the Nazis in Berlin on May 10, 1933, Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, president of the Conference, declared that "the catalogue of two hundred books reflects the thinking of the democratic world now that the spirit which prompted the burning of the books is being destroyed on the battlefield."

The Jewish list was selected by Dr. Solomon Grayzel, Dr. William H. Fineshriber and Dr. Mortimer J. Cohen, all of Philadelphia. The children's Jewish list was selected by Rev. Leon Fram, Simcha Rubenstein, and Mrs. Arthur L. Goulsen, all of Detroit.

MOLLY PICON

Reprinted from Indiana Chronicle

By FAY BICK

Molly Picon, Yiddish musical comedy star, has helped spread the fame of the Yiddish theater through several continents and among many faiths and nations. Universally acknowledged before the war, she has reaped new laurels since America's entrance into the war. She was the first Yiddish actress to proceed on a USO tour and may soon embark on another. Molly Picon's worldwide fame is due to a talent which transcends lingual borders and places her in the first rank of musical-comedy stars in any language. She sings, wise-cracks, evokes laughter and tears in Yiddish, English (which is her native tongue), French, Spanish, Russian and a variety of several other languages. Molly Picon's wistfulness, her child-mother personality registers without language, by pantomime alone.

MOLLY PICON

Yiddish theater is, to many of them, something strictly ghettoized and alien. I pride myself on having broken down their resistance. They perked up when they saw the performance of their comrades—non-Jews. They came over to thank me after the performance, and confessed: 'We feared that your performance would be something entirely different.' Molly's performance was in English—but she rendered Yiddish melodies and Jewish humor.

Your interviewer met Molly between acts recently, during her annual fortnight appearances at Loew's State. The cashier of the theater gave Molly her check and explained: "What a job I had. The bank sent us yellow checks, and knowing how superstitious you actors are about yellow, I had them sent back."

Molly, dynamite on stage, was relaxed and subdued, but her eyes would not rest—large, lively, compassionate. She told of her USO tours, of the sacrifice, the ecstasy and the pain she witnessed. She told of the reaction of the Jewish soldiers to her appearances.

"These boys were nervous," she said, "they felt uneasy, lest a Jewish actress shame them by putting on a hammy performance. The Molly Picon, after 25 years of married life, is still profoundly in love with Jacob Kalich, her husband-director and script writer. "Yankele," she says "has made me what I am. He has taught me acting. He has produced plays that suit my genre. Other Yiddish actors and actresses are less fortunate."

She believes that the Yiddish stage possesses relatively more talent than Broadway and Hollywood. But the Yiddish actors suffer from two disadvantages—they play down to their audiences and the Yiddish stage hasn't effective directors. Directors can make or break an actor. The average Yiddish actor is more gifted than his Broadway counter-part, but is handicapped by poor directors.

Began Career at Five

She began her stage career at the age of five. "But I was not a prodigy, it was quite an accident," Molly assured me. Her father was a tailor, eking out a meager living, and her mother was a seamstress making wardrobes for a Yiddish theatre. She would frequently take little Molly backstage with her, into the actress's dressings rooms, while making their costumes. Once a distracted theater manager rushed in, tearing his hair out, looked once at Molly and jumped up and down in glee, shouting, "Give me that child, I need that child." Molly's mother was scared. Finally, after a great deal of confusion, the manager explained that the child engaged for the evening's performance had failed to show up and Molly must take her place. "Fifty cents for the evening," he said, Molly's mother agreed. "I may or may not have had talent. Nearly every child is cute, the audience response is certain, and so I became an actress, and began supplementing my family's earnings. An extra 50 cents a night meant a great deal to my family in those days."

Molly's first Yiddish star appearances were in Romania, wherefrom "Yankele" cabled glowing—and truthful accounts—of her successes. Then she returned to New York to establish herself on Second Avenue. She has since shuttled many times across the oceans and seas, as well as between Second Avenue and Broadway. She has appeared in Yiddish movies, but not yet in one made in Hollywood. Molly writes her own lyrics in several languages, and her lyrics are part of her great success.

She is a person of great loyalty. Her successes in other languages, have not dimmed her loyalty to the Yiddish stage; her life with Kalich is comparable to that of Lynn Fontaine and Alfred Lunt; her sister is her manager and wardrobe mistress, and her deep compassion moved her seven years ago to adopt a Jewish orphan from Europe. The child lives in Palestine, and Molly proudly displays his photographs and letters. "My child," she says with pride and a catch in her throat.

What has been her experience with non-Jewish actors—any anti-Semitism there? "No, none," she asserts, "actors may be extraverts, flighty, but, by golly, they take you at your face value. They'll be jealous of you as an artist, but they'll not take it out against your race. Actors are the world's real universalists."

A direct question: "Have you any unfulfilled ambitions as an actress?" Molly shrugs her shoulders, her face lights up, and she holds the powder-puff half-way between nose and mirror, and she replies gaily: "Nope, I've had a full life. Between the stage and Yankele—no woman, no actress could wish for more."

Honor Mother Who Gave Nine Sons to U. S. Army

NEW YORK — Honors galore are coming to Mrs. Esther Stolnick, of the Jewish section of Brownsville, in Brooklyn. Mrs. Stolnick is the mother of nine boys who are in service of the country.

One of her sons has won the Silver Star and the British Flying Cross and was personally decorated by General Eisenhower.

Mrs. Stolnick, who is 63 years old and lives in very humble quarters at 97 Belmont avenue, Brownsville, spoke modestly about the tributes which have come to her from the American Legion and other patriotic organizations.

She said simply that she and her husband, Louis, came to America from Austria thirty-seven years ago, and that they always tried to do whatever they could for their country. Mrs. Stolnick was chosen to head 140 women of the country distinguished for their patriotic service. While her children are in the service, Mrs. Stolnick also devotes herself to war activities, as far as she can.
