Thomas Group to Probe Gerald Smith's Activities

WASHINGTON--The off-again-on-again investigation of fascism in America led by Rep. John McDowell (R., Pa.), chairman of a House Un-American Activities Subcommittee, is on again.

Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.), chairman of the full committee, announced that McDowell's group would begin hearings this week into the racial pamphlets and financial backing of Gerald L. K. Smith.

McDowell, who reported five weeks ago that hearings would not be held because there were not any fascists in the U. S. A. worth investigating, promised something "sensational."

"We've got something that may turn out to be sensational," said McDowell, talking again like the McDowell who said seven weeks ago there would be open public hearings involving "some pretty important people."

At Tulsa, Okla., Smith said he would be willing and eager, as always, to testify and tell all about his America First Movement and his Christian Nationalist Crusade.

Hinting that he knew what the Committee investigators were after, Smith said he was prepared to testify that some of his financial backers have also contributed to the campaigns of Reps. Thomas and McDowell.

Vets to Require Anti-Red Pledge

NEW YORK—Applicants for membership in the Jewish War Veterans of the United States will be required hereafter to sign pledges that they are not now nor have ever been members of any Communist or other subversive organization, Leo Price, Commander of the Department of New York of the J. W. V. announced last week. He said this move was in keeping with a resolution adopted at the J. W. V. national convention at St. Paul last year barring Communists from membership in the organization.

Haganah Girls Fined for Arms

JERUSALEM—A British military court yesterday fined two girl members of Haganah, Carmela Yaari, 20, and Ruth Klinov, 18, £400 ($1600) each for possessing arms and ammunition. Both girls, daughters of Jewish Agency officials, paid the fines.

The charge against the girls dated from Dec. 4 when Arab mobs surged down Princess Mary Ave. toward a Jewish section, burning shops in the commercial center.

This was the first time a military court had imposed a fine instead of a prison sentence for carrying arms.

Truman Hopeful On DP Entry

NEW YORK—President Truman said this week in a letter to the United Service for New Americans that he hoped "early action" by Congress would authorize the admission of "our country's fair share" of displaced persons.

Rep. William G. Stratton (D., Ill.), the main speaker at the organization's meeting here said he was content Congress would soon pass his bill to admit 400,000 DP's to the U. S. A.

Technion Sponsors Open Meeting

A project that would transform the desert lands of Palestine into lands of agricultural usefulness, and enable several millions of persons to make a "decent and prosperous livelihood" in that country, will be discussed publicly at a meeting sponsored by the Southern New England Chapter of Technion, next Monday evening, January 19, at 8:30 o'clock at the Rhode Island School of Design auditorium.

Walter Clay Lowdermilk, noted soil conservation expert and former assistant chief of the Soil Conservation Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, will speak on "Palestine—Haven for Millions of Settlers" in connection with his Jordan Valley Authority Plan for Palestine.

William Fondiller, honorary president of the American Technion Society and assistant vice president of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, also will appear on the program. President of the Society during four of the last seven years, Fondiller has devoted much time and energy to sponsoring and promoting the cause of Technion (Hebrew Institute of Technology of Haifa).

Irving J. Fain, president of the Southern New England Chapter of Technion, and a charter member of the local organization, has announced that next Monday's meeting is open to the public. There will be no admis-

Palestine Defense

Two months have passed since the UN voted on the partition of Palestine into Arab and Jewish states. Almost half a thousand dead and an even greater number of wounded Arabs and Jews are the first results of this action. It is now agreed that Palestine is the test case of the United Nations Organization. Will the UN, backed by its constituent members, assume full responsibility for its actions or will it remain a slightly more efficient debating society than was the League of Nations? It is easy to say good or bad things about as amorphous a body as the UN seems to be. It must not be forgotten that the UN is merely the polite verbal representation of master nations in a "cold war."

Although the Anglo-American bloc and the Russian bloc agreed on partition, it must not be forgotten that every subsequent move is dictated by the jockeying for position in the war for power and world hegemony.

The smaller problem of Arab versus Jew, though a bloody one, must be viewed against the larger back-drop. There will be much more bloodshed until the overall picture becomes clear and defined. Meanwhile, everything should be done to strengthen the hands of Palestine defense. We do not have to be concerned about their good sense of restraint. The Haganah does not have an itchy trigger-finger. The Jews of Palestine are not the Jews of Poland, though many come from there. They want to live but they will die fighting, if necessary. It is to the benefit of the world to avert the storm before everyone is trapped in it.

Exporter Seeks Return of TNT

NEW YORK—Leonard Weisman, 32-year-old Mount Vernon engineer and exporter, who helped purchase arms and equipment for the defense of Palestine, said this week that he is going to take legal steps "to reassert ownership" of the 200 tons of high explosives seized by police and FBI agents in New York and New Jersey.

Monmouth County Prosecutor Victor Carton, on the other hand, said a New Jersey grand jury will investigate the entire transaction because the transportation and storage of explosives without a permit from the New Jersey Department of Labor is a violation of State law.

Weisman, who said he helped buy the surplus war materials in a legal manner for legitimate use, promised to hold a press conference this week at his New York office, 41 E. 42d St., "where I expect to clear the whole thing up."

The explosives Weisman helped buy were discovered near Asbury Park, N. J., and in Ulster County, N. Y., while he was away in Norfolk, Va., on business.

Will Prove No Connection
The young businessman said he is going to prove there is no connection between the surplus war materials found at these locations and the 65,000 pounds of contraband TNT uncovered accidentally a week ago on a Jersey City pier during loading operations of a freighter bound for Palestine.

"I can account for every pound of equipment I helped purchase," he said. "Some newspapers have said that part of the explosives are unaccounted for and were probably on the high seas. As far as I know none of the shipment is missing."

"When that story appeared last week about the TNT they found on that Jersey pier I became furious because I thought perhaps that some of the stuff came from my shipment. I checked immediately with the Palestinian agents for whom I was acting and they swore up and down that they were not using the stuff I got."

"One Man's Opinion"

Technion, U. S. A.

By BERNARD SEGAL

In a meeting room of a local hotel we sat one evening and we listened to a man speaking. He spoke of soil and subsoil, of artesian wells and water pipes, of carbide furnaces and chemical fertilizer. He spoke in the accents and the style of the European educated scientist, employing no devices of oratory, reading a paper studded with technical terms and data, and yet kept his listeners tense for nigh two hours and eager for more.

The speaker was Dr. Hugo Neumann, professor of Chemical engineering at the Hebrew Institute of Technology, at Haifa, and specialist in the chemistry of food and water. The audience consisted of a score of engineers, chemists, and industrialists, young men and women in the main, members of the Providence chapter of Technion.

This talk was my first introduction to the American Technion Society. I understand that similar scientific talks were given to the chapter meetings on previous occasions. These talks by Palestinian scientists of the H.I.T. are sponsored by American Technion for the fourteen chapters of the society in the United States and Canada. Their purpose is to inform the members of the work of the Institute and of its needs for further growth.

It is the aim of the American Technion Society to develop the H.I.T. in Haifa into a scientific school of the highest standards. To accomplish this the society has contributed finances and scientific equipment for new laboratories, for research projects, and has brought about an exchange of scientific and technological ideas between men of science in America and the scientists of the H. I. T. in Palestine.

MISS RUTH I. BANDER
Mr. and Mrs. George Bander of 182½ Somerset street announce the engagement of their daughter, Ruth, to Milton I. Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rose, of Westbury, Long Island, New York.

A good idea of the aims and workings of the American Technion Society is afforded by the Yearbook published by the society.

Among the contributors to the Yearbook of 1947 are such great names in American science as Arthur H. Compton, Nobel Prize winner in Physics, Harold C. Urey of Atomic Energy fame, Robert E. Doherty, president of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, and others.

Many of these articles are far above your head and mine. You will do well to be satisfied with looking at the titles alone. Unless you are a mathematician, you might not be enlightened at all by a formula explaining the size and the arrangement of the sand ripples in the desert or under water. I was terrified by the article describing the New Development in Motor Vehicle Chassis Design, or the ones on Supersonic Aerodynamics, and Radio Proximity Fuse, and the Grinding of the Screw Threads. If you get a copy of the Yearbook, my advice to you is to leave these articles for the members of Technion, and to turn to the lighter reading matter.

I liked the architectural plan for a new city in Palestine, to be built between Tel Aviv and Haifa for a population of 50,000.

I enjoyed the reiteration of Walter Lowdermilk's ideas for a Jordan Valley Authority, along the lines of our own T.V.A., which will turn Palestine into a land flowing with milk and honey once again and will make it the Hope of the Middle East.

I was fascinated by the section entitled American Jews in Electrical Engineering. You will read there of a goodly company of giants in their chosen field, but completely unknown to the millions who reap the fruit of their ingenuity. These scientists of Jewish origin have contributed to the development of the Telephone, the Telegraph, the Radio, Television, Electric power, Transportation, Household conveniences.

All of these scientists and contributors to the Yearbook are either members or sponsors of Technion, the American Society.

An important arm of the Society is the Southern New England chapter. At the meeting, attended by the Executive Director of A. T. S., a large scale plan was discussed. It concerns the obtaining of tools, machinery and equipment for the laboratories of the Institute. In this effort the local group took the initiative, and Providence will be the focal point of the campaign.

All this time the chapter of Technion worked within a narrow circle of men and women related to one phase or another of technology. The first bid for public attention is being made by the chapter this week, by calling us all to the Rhode Island School of Design Auditorium. For this meeting Technion is bringing to Providence one of its most illustrious founders, William Fondiller, of the Bell Telephone System Laboratories, and the man whose name will forever be associated with the rebuilding of Zion, Walter C. Lowdermilk of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service.

The Auditorium should be filled to the very doors by young and old anxious to attend.

"Most American families will be able to follow a more regular savings program during the coming year as they become more ac-

Indian Head Camp News

Indian Head Camp for boys will open its 1948 season at the end of June under the supervision of its executive directors, Rose and Joseph Hurvitz. The latter supervise all details of the camp pertaining to the health and welfare of its campers. In addition, a program director heads the faculty of 17 experienced counselors and together they plan a full program for the summer.

Among the field sports, baseball is featured on the regulation baseball diamond. In waterfront sports, a Red Cross safety program is followed with the additional feature of weekly trips to salt water beaches along Cape Cod. Horseback riding is available to those who want it. A complete program of other activities is also offered.

Many Providence campers have spent their summers at this camp in Pembroke, Mass. The camp is only 50 miles away and is easily accessible by automobile or bus. More information or local references may be obtained by communicating with the directors.

Technion, Hebrew Institute of Technology in Haifa, Prepares for Approximately 50 American veterans have enrolled in the Technion under the provisions of the GI Bill of Rights. The first of these students are shown arriving at the Institute.

Called the Middle East's Great Engineering School

The Jewish people in Palestine are currently engaged in a pioneer effort to build a free society based on the foundations of modern science and technology. Although great strides have been made toward that goal, a much greater task is still ahead which calls for bold technical planning and a maximum application of scientific knowledge.

It is in this endeavor that the Technion, Hebrew Institute of Technology in Haifa, Palestine, is expected to play a decisive role. Technion, the only institution providing engineering and technical training in Palestine, is the center of technology and applied science in that country.

Already the great engineering school of the Middle East, the Institute, or Technion, is exerting a tremendous influence on the technological development in that area, and is providing the skilled technical leadership needed for the building of a pioneer country.

Founded in 1912, the Technion was converted in 1924 into a technological school along the lines of such a world-famed institution as Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In now consists of an Engineering College of accepted university standards, a Graduate School for advanced students, a Technical High School for the training of foremen and skilled workers, and a Nautical School of secondary school level for the training of officers and technical personnel for the Merchant Marine.

Hebrew Is the Language

Hebrew is the language of instruction at the Technion and the Institute is open to all persons, regardless of race or creed. Palestinian Arabs are among those who have taken advantage of this democratic principle that has not yet been adopted in many of the better institutions of learning in the United States.

The faculty of the Institute includes outstanding educators, engineers and scientists. The total student enrollment is 1200, of whom approximately 600 are registered in the Engineering School. This figure includes 50 American Jewish veterans who are receiving training at the Technion under the provisions of the GI Bill of Rights.

Testing and research laboratories at the Haifa institute are used not only for instruction and research but are also often placed at the service of private industry and governmental agencies for testing purposes. During the war the Technion rendered invaluable service to the Allied cause by supplying military technical services and war time industries in the Middle East with qualified engineers, skilled technicians and research facilities.

In the twenty-four years of its active existence, it has trained young people—and, through extension courses, many engaged in industry—in engineering and mechanical skills; has introduced modern industrial practices and methods, and helped develop the resources of the country, thus creating new employment opportunities for immigrants.

Now, with the creation of the new Jewish state a certainty, and with the development of Palestine a factor that must be given immediate consideration, the Technion faces even greater responsibilities. There is land to be reclaimed from the desert; there are entire cities to be planned, blueprinted and constructed; there is the vital development and

The land of Israel, however, is a rare jewel. Using its colonies and cities, their industries as elements in a laboratory, Jewish scientists are working for the purpose of developing the country.

Their success in creating a thriving industrial base in a neglected wasteland existed a quarter of a century ago. Their efforts have been a national political arena.

The task, however, has only just begun. The task, however, has only just begun. The task, however, has only just begun. The task, however, has only just begun.

responsibility as its share of building a new land, should require and seek outside assistance. And it is just as natural for such assistance to come from another nation that itself faced many of these same problems in the not too distant past—the United States.

The American Society

The American Technion Society, with chapters in every important city in the nation, is the organization that is striving to provide the Haifa Institute with most of the aid it needs. The Society, with national offices in New York City, has as its aim the advancement of engineering education and technological research in Palestine and the Middle East through support of the Technion in Haifa.

Sponsored by eminent scientists, engineers and men of public affairs, the Society has undertaken to assist the institution with funds for maintenance and building purposes, to make American industrial and technical know-how available to the Technion and through it to Palestine industry, and to equip the school with modern instruments and machinery.

It is no mean group of men who are at the head of the American Society. From its president, J. W. Wunsch, to the men who are listed as sponsors, the organization is packed with important names in the engineering field.

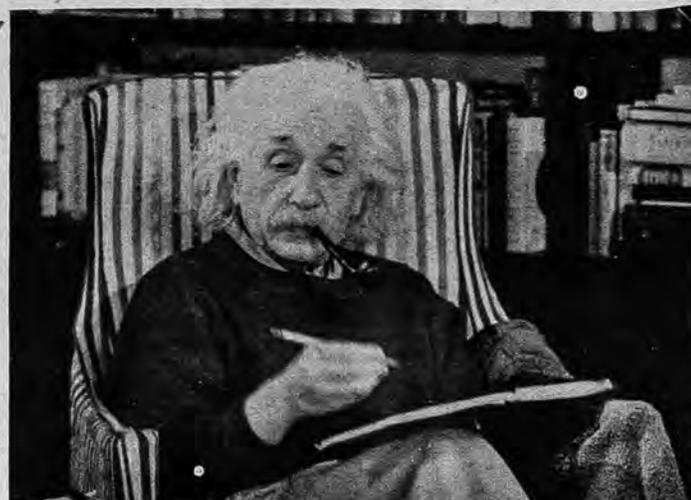

Wunsch, a charter member and director, is a consulting engineer and president of two firms in Brooklyn and Connecticut that manufacture cranes and hoisting machinery. He is a co-founder of the "David Wunsch Memorial Laboratory for Mechanical Engineering" at the Technion, which he inspected last year in the course of an air trip to Palestine.

A Brief Summary

The above is not intended as a complete story of the Hebrew Institute of Technology in Haifa or its American sponsors. It is simply a brief summary of the history, aims, accomplishments and problems of a school of engineering which promises to attain international prominence in future years to a far greater degree than it has to date, and of the society in this country that is pledged to further its program.

Of more immediate interest to those whose interests do not extend to the field of engineering is the tremendous impact which the Technion is bound to have on the future development of Palestine. With the possible future of millions of would-be settlers depending to a great extent on engineering projects, the Jewish people of the world must have themselves a more than casual interest in the progress of this school.

Close to one thousand persons can be seated comfortably in the Rhode Island School of Design auditorium, it was emphasized this week by officials of the Southern New England Chapter of Technion, sponsors of the meeting featuring Walter Clay Lowdermilk, noted soil conservation expert, to be held next Monday evening at the spacious RISD hall.

There are exactly 954 seats in the auditorium, thus assuring that the crowd of about one thousand that is anticipated at the affair will be able to enjoy the program in comfort.

Lowdermilk's proposed JVA plan, counterpart of the Tennessee Valley Authority, has become a widely discussed topic since the United Nations created the new Jewish state in Palestine. It was conceived while its author was on a fifteen month tour of Europe and the Middle East prior to the war.

"Palestine, if developed into the Jordan Valley Authority, will support nearly six million people in a state of well being," Lowdermilk asserts. "Once the great underused and undeveloped resources of the Middle East are fully and well utilized, thirty million people and many more may find decent and prosperous livelihood where a few millions now eke out a meager existence."

Technion, the only institution providing engineering and technical training in Palestine, is expected to play an important role in the development of the country if the plan is adopted. The American Technion Society is working for the advancement of the Haifa school.

8 Capacity Crowd Cheers as GJC Campaign Exceeds Million Dollars

THE PROVIDENCE JEWISH HERALD, FRIDAY, JANUARY 16, 1948

Surprise and joy are registered on campaign chairman, Alvin A. Sopkin's countenance as Archibald Silverman, president of the GJC, presented him and Mrs. Sopkin with a sterling punch bowl from the Board of Directors of the General Jewish Committee as a token of "grateful appreciation for outstanding leadership and devoted work in the 1947 campaign."

One of the highlights of the evening was the presentation made by Max I. Grant on behalf of the board of directors of the "Campaign Award", in the form of a loving cup to Mr. Abe C. Fine, chairman of the textile division. In the picture above, Mrs. Fine is shown accepting the cup from Mr. Grant for her husband. The inscription on the cup reads: "Presented to Abe C. Fine by the Board of Directors of the General Jewish Committee in grateful appreciation for his devotion and generosity in the 1947 campaign."

Shown above is part of the tremendous audience that attended the closing celebration. There was an equal number of people in the lobby and parlors of the Narragansett Hotel who were unable to get into the Ballroom because of lack of space. After the formal part of the meeting, the Ballroom was cleared for dance and entertainment.

Zionists Cancel Shekel Elections

NEW YORK—All Zionist organizations and parties in this country which are officially with the World Zionist movement, un-animously agreed to waive the holding of elections and adopted a joint slate of delegates to the forthcoming World Zionist Congress, with representation on the same ratio as that obtained at the 22nd World Zionist Congress, Charles Ress, chairman of the U. S. Central Shekel and Election Board, announced today.

The decision by all Zionist parties to forego elections was taken in recognition of the need of conserving their entire energies and resources toward meeting the danger which is facing the Palestine Yishuv in the struggle to safeguard the establishment of the Jewish State.

Coupled with this action, the U. S. Central Shekel Board un-animously approved a resolution to extend the national campaign for the sale of shekolim in this country to March 1 in order to roll up the largest possible number of registered supporters for the Jewish State.

The Shkolim committee meeting was held at the home of Chavera Harry Richman, chairman, who reported on the progress of the sale of shkolim.

Want Girls at AZA Conclave

An appeal to Providence parents to allow their daughters to accept invitations to the AZA Blackstone-Narragansett Regional Winter Convention in Woonsocket this weekend was issued last Monday evening by officials of the sponsoring Woonsocket AZA.

The convention will be held starting tomorrow morning at the B'nai Israel Synagogue, corner of Green and Bernon streets, Woonsocket, and will continue through Sunday.

Claiming that the chapter has gone all out in making careful preparations for the event, which will cost in the neighborhood of $1000, an AZA leader said he was amazed at reports that some parents apparently are afraid to permit their daughters, invited guests of AZA, to attend. To allay their fears and insure that a large and representative delegation attends from Providence, this spokesman outlined preparations made by AZA to insure that the girls are well cared for.

He said all visiting girls will be under the direct supervision of the Woonsocket B'nai B'rith Lodge, and the entire Jewish community. Housing has been provided for all girls, who will stay in private Jewish homes and the conclave itself will be entirely chaperoned by Jewish leaders of the community. In addition, Providence AZA is chartering busses at its own expense to take the girls to the conclave. Those desirous of attending need only contact any AZA member to arrange for transportation.

The program for the evening will include a prize conga, a rhumba contest, an elimination spot light dance and, as a special feature, a jitterbug exhibition

'New Look' Stays In Spring Fashions

The Spring Prologue of the Second Annual Fashion Fair was held last night at the Waldorf-Astoria. One of the garments—an undergarment—was this strapless, lacy black "cinch," held in place by a score of hooks. Model: Gloria Marsh.

LaVerne Hays, left, wears grey and white striped job, long pinch jacket and slenderizing skirt. Pique accent in the collar. The hat is soft felt with pique trimming. Pat Stevens, center, wears a beige gabardine suit. Buttons are gold balls. Hat and matching gloves are of ginger faille. Frances Vassar has on a yellow and grey striped jacket, yellow and grey pin-dot skirt, straw hat and watch chain jewelry accent.

This is a dusty pink, soft wool jersey dress with a low cut neck line. A built-in "cinch" girdle narrows the line at the waist. It's new look, but simple. The model: Diane McLaughlin.

This tea gown, worn by Evelyn Bonfine, is of apricot taffeta with deep pockets. The show indicated the "New Look" has won its battle, will stay a while, but that it is now a little smoother.

THE SPORTS SCREEN

By SYD COHEN

I had a hunch Saturday that the Steam Rollers would win their third game of the season, so I attended the game. The Rollers won all right and looked good while winning. Yet, by the end of the first quarter, I knew that this column would be written as an obituary of a style of play.

I did not enjoy the game, even though I was glad the local team was on a winning streak (every win this year constitutes a winning streak), for I realized that a new era in Rhode Island basketball had been ushered in. The fast, or quick break is gone.

Nat Hickey, the new coach of the Rollers, is a member of the widely discussed "Original Celtics," who played all their basketball back in the days when there was a center-tap after every basket and a point-a-minute team was quite a novelty. Hickey has been coaching in the Mid-West where conservative basketball is the vogue. He has brought this style of play to Rhode Island.

Rhode Island, home of the quick break and the nationally-famous and highly successful Rhode Island State College Rams—Rhode Island, where Steam Rollers last year were the talk of professional basketball fans throughout the BAA circuit—Rhode Island, synonymous in basketball circles with racehorse style play and amazing shooting from any and all angles—is now playing a comparatively slow, sedate, methodical game with the emphasis on getting the ball in for layups and pivots. The quick break is gone.

Olympic Bowling

By HOWARD COHEN

Joe Schwartz's Dartmouth five won the first half championship last Thursday night by taking a 4-0 forfeit win from Abe Lobel's Harvard team. Harry Woloff's Princeton gang pulled an upset by holding Howie Cohen's Navy team to a 2-2 split. It was a tough break for Navy to catch Princeton on a hot night. The two points beat Navy out of the championship as they missed a tie by one point and the title by two.

The first half race was tighter than a frozen bagel. Dartmouth finished with 26, Navy 25, and Army (Merlyn Rodyn) 24.

To start the second half the teams will be reorganized into six-man groups.

Bowling on the whole is improving. Joe Schwartz led the way Thursday with a 334 three, followed by Sid Green, whose hook was right in the 1-3 slot, with 325. Hal Levine, 313, Harry Woloff and Haskell Frank, the latter two with 307, were other good bowlers. Frank had the best single, 132, followed by Green's 120, Woloff's 119 and 116 and Reeve Karten, who outdid himself with 109.

Top bowling average men so far are Merlyn Rodyn 109, H. Cohen 106, J. Schwartz and Lobel 101, and Frank and Lew Snyder 100.

Ernie Calverley, an amazing player by any standards, now does very little shooting. No longer does he take those breathtaking shots from all over the court. He scored 7 points Saturday, three on fouls. No longer is Earl Shannon the "Driver." He scored fewer than Ernie. Former All-American Kenny Sailors tallied six points, two on fouls. Hank Beenders did not get into the game, along with Pop Goodwin and George Mearns, who was not even dressed.

These points, you may say, are irrelevant and unimportant as long as the team clicks and wins. Team play is more important than high individual totals. Granted.

Still, we can't help feeling that if ever a squad was meant to play the quick break it is this same group of Steam Rollers. They have everything—speed, shooting ability, drive, defense, height. With the emphasis on height. Last year, with a group of local stars (for the most part) who had just left college, with a team that was terribly outclassed in game after game because of its inability to control the backboards, the Rollers won a very respectable proportion of their games and put up a torrid fight in losing. That they failed to make the playoffs was due primarily to that lack of height.

It is true that the team has floundered this year and many are inclined to blame that condition on their style of play. I say no. First, the team admittedly was not in condition at the beginning of the season. The players faded in the stretch of each early game after either holding the lead or staying reasonably close. Some games were lost at the foul line after the Rollers outscored the opposition from the floor. And the coaching was not top-grade. None of these conditions could be attributed to the quick break.

They say the new style is winning style. Sure, because everyone plays that way. For that matter, it is also a losing style because of that same reason. Every time some team wins another loses. With that same style.

Bob Morris, who coached the Rollers last year and did a fine job, and then transferred to Brown, could be excused Saturday night if, as a spectator, he had mumbled, "Boy, what I couldn't do with this squad!" I believe the Rollers, operating under him all season, would have been among the leaders.

I took a poll of my acquaintances after the game. Three men liked the new Rollers, three did not. Two girls liked them, one had no opinion. It was not an exciting game. The crowd was quiet.

We all were glad to see them win. We hope it continues. Hickey should be a winning coach. But I can't help wishing he had given the quick break a try... especially when he has men of the caliber of Calverley, Sailors and Nostrand.

Mike Miller's White Sox continued their winning ways by blanking Lenny Schoenberg's Dodgers to gain 2 points in their bid for top place as Joe Primack's Indians were dividing 2 with M. Burrow's Braves. Meanwhile Doctor Gil Woiler's Reds managed to gain a split decision with Bill Kagan's Red Sox due to the sensational last-string bowling of Leo Miller and H. Weinberg. The Reds lost the first 2 games by the closest of margins.

Bowlistics

Irv Chase, the most improved bowler this season at Lenny Cort's Casino Alleys, came up with a high of 149 and a three-string total of 367 to set the pace for the evening. The "Old Master" Lou Chase was right behind him with a score of 140 and a high three of 353 while little Mike Miller was most consistent with a high string of 123 and a high three of 353. Bill Goralnick had strings of 125 and 118 while Dick Chase, the "80" bowler, came up with a string of 125. Abe Press continued with his consistent bowling and Al Chase has lost none of his speed or efficiency.

Beth Israel Bowling

By SAUL HODOCH

First place was apparently too lofty for Howie Nelson's Princeton team so they promptly took a tailspin by dropping 4 points this past week to Rhode Island State, which has really picked up steam with Wolfe Meirowitz as anchor man. Hy Wasserman must have injected some new blood into his Dartmouth stalwarts as they ran roughshod over Army, picked up 4 points and vaulted back into first place after one week's absence.

It would appear that the new year has sharpened up the eyes of the members as the individual scores are improved. Al Raisner got the range in his second string and marked up 138 for high three. Hy Wasserman racked up 123 and O. Dressler and Moe Press also joined the parade with 119 each, one pin over Irving Berenbaum. Wasserman annexed high 3 for the night with 335 but was hard pressed by Raisner's excellent score of 332. Moe Press acquitted himself nobly with 324.

Books of Interest To Jewish Readers

In addition to much material in books and magazines about Palestine and the rest of the modern world, the Providence Public Library has recently added to its shelves these titles of interest for Jewish readers:

ACTION FOR UNITY, by Goodwin Watson. "A reconnaissance.....in the battle against bigotry and hate," embodying the report of Planning Survey sponsored by the Commission on Community Inter-relations of the American Jewish Congress.

THE AMERICAN PAST, by Roger P. Butterfield. A large, planned picture book for adults.

EUROPE WITHOUT BAED-EKER, by Edmund Wilson. A cultured man's highly critical view of what the state of Europe today is doing to people.

A HANDBOOK OF JUDAISM, by Meyer Waxman.

A HISTORY OF THE JEWS, by Solomon Grayzel.

These last two books start with fundamentals, but go a long way toward answering the most complicated questions.

Want Girls at AZA Conclave

An appeal to Providence parents to allow their daughters to accept invitations to the AZA Blackstone-Narragansett Regional Winter Convention in Woonsocket this weekend was issued last Monday evening by officials of the sponsoring Woonsocket AZA.

The convention will be held starting tomorrow morning at the B'nai Israel Synagogue, corner of Green and Bernon streets, Woonsocket, and will continue through Sunday.

Claiming that the chapter has gone all out in making careful preparations for the event, which will cost in the neighborhood of $1000, an AZA leader said he was amazed at reports that some parents apparently are afraid to permit their daughters, invited guests of AZA, to attend. To allay their fears and insure that a large and representative delegation attends from Providence, this spokesman outlined preparations made by AZA to insure that the girls are well cared for.

He said all visiting girls will be under the direct supervision of the Woonsocket B'nai B'rith Lodge, and the entire Jewish community. Housing has been provided for all girls, who will stay in private Jewish homes and the conclave itself will be entirely chaperoned by Jewish leaders of the community. In addition, Providence AZA is chartering busses at its own expense to take the girls to the conclave. Those desirous of attending need only contact any AZA member to arrange for transportation.

The program for the evening will include a prize conga, a rhumba contest, an elimination spot light dance and, as a special feature, a jitterbug exhibition

'New Look' Stays In Spring Fashions

The Spring Prologue of the Second Annual Fashion Fair was held last night at the Waldorf-Astoria. One of the garments—an undergarment—was this strapless, lacy black "cinch," held in place by a score of hooks. Model: Gloria Marsh.

LaVerne Hays, left, wears grey and white striped job, long pinch jacket and slenderizing skirt. Pique accent in the collar. The hat is soft felt with pique trimming. Pat Stevens, center, wears a beige gabardine suit. Buttons are gold balls. Hat and matching gloves are of ginger faille. Frances Vassar has on a yellow and grey striped jacket, yellow and grey pin-dot skirt, straw hat and watch chain jewelry accent.

This is a dusty pink, soft wool jersey dress with a low cut neck line. A built-in "cinch" girdle narrows the line at the waist. It's new look, but simple. The model: Diane McLaughlin.

This tea gown, worn by Evelyn Bonfine, is of apricot taffeta with deep pockets. The show indicated the "New Look" has won its battle, will stay a while, but that it is now a little smoother.

Nan Bennett wears a pre-sleep creation of transparent silk with large floral print in green and red. Skirt is wide at hips. Sleeves bulge at shoulders.
