Action Follows Lynn Incident

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Early Congressional enactment of civil rights legislation was termed "urgent" by Jackson J. Holtz of Boston, Mass., newly elected National Commander of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States of America, after an incident in Lynn, Mass., involving the beating of 11-year-old Larry Goldstein, son of a World War II Jewish soldier who was killed in the Battle of the Bulge.

The occurrence, which was given nationwide newspaper coverage after the youngster's mother, Mrs. Sylvia Goldstein, described the attack on her boy in a letter to the Lynn newspaper, prompted Commander Holtz to assert:

"The final responsibility for this un-American act cannot be attributed solely to misguided, ir-

Morris Schwartz was toastmaster for the evening.

U.S. Will Profit from New DPs - Goldberg

N. E. Conference Held In Providence

America will profit from the DP newcomers admitted to her shores, Commander Joshua L. Goldberg, district chaplain of the Third Naval District, U. S. Navy, told New England delegates attending a United Service for New Americans Conference here at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel last Sunday. Commander Goldberg, recently returned from a visit to Israel and the immigration staging areas in Europe, asserted that the United States had always gained strength from fusions of new blood during every peak immigration period in her history.

"This time, he stated, "will be specially significant to future historians and sociologists. The displaced persons of today have great energy and talents to share with us. They have survived every terror known to man and they are eager to build new lives that will contribute to our own democratic way of life."

Commander Goldberg emphasized—

Lehman Seventh Jew Elected to Senate

NEW YORK—During the campaign of former Governor Herbert H. Lehman for Senator from the state of New York, the Jewish Information Bureau received, among other inquiries, a number of questions as to former members of our highest legislative body of the Jewish race and faith. Now that Mr. Lehman has been elected as a member of the Senate, the first time in history from the state of New York, interest in the identity of his predecessors continues to be a lively subject of inquiry.

The Jewish Information Bureau gives the following list of former Jewish members of the Senate and the terms of their service:

David Levy Yulee (Fla.)—1845-1851, 1855-1861 (had previously served as a member of the House of Representatives); Judah Philip Benjamin (La.)—1853-1861; Benjamin Franklin Jonas (La.)—1879-1885; Joseph Simon (Ore.)—1897-1903; Isador Rayner (Md.)—1905-1912, and Simon Guggenheim (Colo.)—1907-1913.

Governor Lehman will thus be the first Jewish member of the Senate in 36 years. Like the late Senator Guggenheim, Mr. Lehman is a member of a distinguished family, which in industry as well as in public service, had played notable parts in the development of American life.

The JWV Commander added that the attack on young Goldstein "was a desecration of the memory of his heroic father who fell in one of the great battles of a war that fought for the preservation of human liberty and the equality of man."

Although in and of itself, the attack on the Goldstein boy might be regarded as an isolated incident, Holtz continued, "enough anti-democratic acts of this na-

Obituary

PHILIP WEISER

Funeral services for Philip Weiser of 151 Somerset Street took place last week at the Max Sugarman Funeral Home. Rabbi Abraham Chill officiated and burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

ed the importance of aiding newcomers to become integrated members of their communities as quickly as possible.

"It goes without saying," he stated, "that the American Jewish Community is going to do whatever is necessary to get every eligible Jewish DP into the country. But the job does not end there. Each community, whether with professional help or the aid of volunteers, must provide opportunities for education and Americanization of each newcomer.

Albert Comanor, director, National Services of United Service for New Americans, discussed the national and local cooperative responsibility for immigration and resettlement of Jewish refugees at the Conference luncheon.

"The American Jewish Community of some five million people," he said, "is being asked to provide homes and temporary economic support for approximately 60,000 Jews in an 18-month period. Is this a very unreasonable sacrifice? Is it really too much to ask?"

Chairman of the conference was Meyer Tennenbaum, president of the R. I. Refugee Service.

District Trustees Re-elected by Home

More than One Man's Opinion

Dear Editor:

As a rule the column "One Man's Opinion" by Bernard Segal is a logical exposition of some aspect of Jewish life or Jewish interest, but Mr. Segal's last column on "Released Time" leaves us confused. We challenge anyone to tell us on the basis of the column whether he is for or against Released Time. Had Mr. Segal attended the three public hearings he certainly would have arrived at more definite conclusions.

Mr. Segal implies that the Jewish Community of Rhode Island did not show "Independence of thinking". Since when does independence of thinking necessarily lead to opposing conclusions? Is it not possible that many people, thinking independently, should arrive at a common conclusion? And if there were Jews who felt that Released Time was a good thing, why did they not speak up at the hearings? Certainly the Governor's Commission leaned over backwards in giving everyone an opportunity to be heard. If Mr. Segal favors Released Time, why did he not speak for himself? And why did he not use his column while the hearings were in progress to present a point of view different from all those who did speak on the subject?

Mr. Segal tells us that in New York City there is a Jewish organization which seems to approve of Released Time. This organization was formed after the Released Time bill became law in New York City. Mr. Segal does not mention the fact that the law was opposed vigorously in New York for 35 years since it was first proposed in 1905.

This Jewish Committee came into being to try to cope with a situation which was not of their making. We do not know what their attitude would be if they had the opportunity we now have to decide whether or not there should be Released Time. Since the organization says nothing about the potential evils which disturb us, Mr. Segal assumes that the evils do not exist.

He tells us that 3000 of the 10,000 Jewish children who went to Released Time classes joined Hebrew schools, implying that there is some causal relationship. How does he know? What he does not say is that while 28 per cent of New York City is Jewish only 1 per cent of the Jewish children take advantage of Released Time. He also failed to mention that the large majority of children who do not participate in the Released Time program are forced under the law to remain in school, keeping busy with review work. As a rule no new subject matter is taken up at that time out of consideration for the few children who are attending Released Time classes.

Mr. Segal overlooks that basic objection to Released Time and that is the fear that once sectarian influences are permitted to have some power in our public school system, there is no telling where it will end. Thomas Jefferson and James Madison foresaw this potential danger of involving church and State when they wrote the first amendment to our constitution. Mr. Segal suggests that we ought to let the Supreme Court decide whether or not Released Time is constitutional. The Supreme Court made a decision last year against Released Time in the McCollum case. We feel that even if there were no constitutional question involved it would still be inadvisable to let our public schools come under the influence of any religious group.

Mr. Segal says: "If we are to be dissatisfied with Released Time it is not because of the evil potentialities in it". We disagree with Mr. Segal. Our objection to Released Time stems from our fear of the potential dangers inherent in it. We challenge his statement that it certainly can do no harm. We know that Released Time is subject to many abuses which the law never contemplated.

We heartily agree with Mr. Segal that the Jewish Community must do a great deal to improve Jewish Education in Providence, but that is a problem that should in no way affect our opposition to the dangers of Released Time. Let us remember that this is not a Catholic, Protestant, or Jewish issue, but concerns the basic American principle of complete separation of Church and State.

"One Man's Opinion"

Hundred-Twenty-Seven North Main Street

By BERNARD SEGAL

The young woman walked shyly into the clinic of the Miriam Hospital. She presented her card and sat down self-consciously in the back of the room, awaiting her turn for the routine blood testing of pre-natal patients. I asked her to roll up the sleeve of her right arm and to hold it up for the taking of the blood from her vein. She lowered her eyes, and extended her arm in embarrassment.

And then I knew. There, on the side of her forearm, emblazoned in her flesh, was the number of her pain. A pain never to be forgotten, just as the number stamped on her arm in the Concentration Camp is never to be blotted out of her fibers.

She was a recent arrival to this country and to the city. One of the many new Americans entering this country under the Displaced Persons act of Congress.

I see them frequently now at the clinic and on the outside. They have all come to stay with us during the last Summer months, and they all mention the address 127 North Main Street, after the first few seconds of conversation.

Symbol of Hope

Now, that address means very little to you and me. How often have you heard of it? But to the new Americans, this number is as deeply imprinted in their minds, as is the number on their arms. With a very important difference, of course. While the number on the arm is a symbol of despair, this number on the brick building on North Main Street is the symbol of hope for new days, for better days.

It was from this address that they were met as they first set foot on the soil of these Providence Plantations. It was from this address that their coming here was made possible, to begin with, by the filing of a guarantee with immigration officials that a home and work will await each family that comes to our community. It is to this address that the new Americans turn for advice, for guidance in their new surroundings, and for downright help as long as help is needed.

Hundred-twenty-seven North Main Street is the headquarters of the Rhode Island Refugee Service, and the starting point for a new life to scores of new Americans in our midst.

But let us go back to the young woman from Poland, Hungary, and Germany, now sitting in the waiting room of the clinic. Three months ago she was still in the American zone of Germany, she and her husband marking time until the day of their departure. Their papers were all in order, the Commission acting favorably on their admission into the United States.

Her husband being a skilled worker, and both of them in good health, and the office of the R. I. Refugee Service having assured the authorities that this couple will be given employment and a home in Providence, not taking this job and home away from an American citizen, and not becoming a public charge, the Commission signed the necessary papers for the journey across the Atlantic.

Thus this woman and her husband, upon their arrival in the New York harbor, were immediately sent to Providence, the city of their new home, which adopted them as their own. At the station they were met by a representative of the office, and taken to temporary quarters either at the Hebrew Sheltering Society, on Jefferson Street, or with a private family.

From the moment the couple stepped down from the train, they became the responsibility of the agency on 127 North Main Street.

They were given an allowance of twenty dollars weekly until a job for the husband, and usually jobs for both of them, were found. If medical and dental care was needed, arrangements were made for them with local physicians and dentists. And I have heard some nice things about many of our physicians and dentists who give freely of their time and skill.

Starting Them Off

While the office is at the difficult task of fitting the newcomers to the right job, the Council of Jewish Women is busy looking for an apartment. When one is found, the office pays the rent until such time as the immigrants can pay out of their earnings.

The Council, too, sees to it that the apartment is furnished with basic things necessary for decent living. Kitchen utensils, new sheets and blankets, silverware, glassware, and floor coverings are obtained with the help of local merchants. If the husband is handy with paint and brush, he can obtain the material to redecorate the rooms to suit his own tastes. A training program in English is made available for them, and many little things that would help them to find their way in the strange city, are offered to them.

Now, this is a very sketchy picture of the efforts on the part of the office on 127 North Main Street. It is much simpler to tell of these things than to do them.

Just think of yourself, today, being confronted with the problem of finding a job and a home for a relative of yours whom you have invited to come and live here. Think of this relative as having been out of touch with things for a number of years. Add to this the fact that he does not understand English too well, and that the ways and methods of work here are new to him. Multiply this problem by 34, which is the number of relatives the office has met at the station since last June, and you have some idea of the size of the job.

Time Is Forgotten

I came to 127 North Main for half an hour, and stayed for three. Were it not for my having made an appointment elsewhere, and for the frantic telephones to Mrs. Esther Pritsker by her family, we could have doubled that number of hours and still not exhausted the many details of care and adjustments involved in each new family for which the office gave assurance to the government of the United States. And by the way, this assurance is given in your name and in mine. We have a stake in seeing to it that these assurances are fulfilled.

But I knew as I listened to Mrs. Pritsker, that many as these problems are, and difficult as they seem, they are not unsurmountable. As I looked out the window of the office toward the street, I saw in full view the blazing sign of a leading floor covering house, and I could look into the sales room of a large clothing wholesaler, and up above is the office of a printing shop of high reputation in the city. I know all of them. They, too, were new Americans at the turn of the century. I knew, as I listened to the difficulties, that the new Americans of today will find their place in the community, just as the waves of immigrants that preceded them.

And then I looked directly across and I saw the offices of the Hebrew Free Loan, a wonderful institution that helped many a man, myself included, to independence. And I looked to the right of me and I saw the simple house of worship of the Quakers, that wonderful sect that is the source of so much goodness to hundreds of refugees of all creeds and peoples.

Somehow I knew that all the difficulties will be overcome, and that the tears of despair will be wiped away from the eyes of many more new Americans, who are destined to come and to make their home among us.

SETS 150 SETTLEMENTS

In his opening address to the second session of the Knesset, meeting after a summer recess, Premier David Ben Gurion declared that the Government would spend $70,000,000 for the construction of 150 new settlements and that the Government would expend an additional $35,000,000 for immigrant shelter by March of this coming year.

Volunteers Requested For Visitation Work

Mrs. Lewis Blumenthal, chairman of the visitation committee of the Ladies Union Aid of Providence, this week asked for volunteers, either members or non-members, to assist her in her monthly program of recreation for patients in institutions. The group, headed by Mrs. Blumenthal, recently visited the State Hospital for the Mentally Ill in Howard. Transportation was provided by Mrs. Rose Goldman, who also volunteered the use of a victrola and records. The visitation committee, assisted by Mrs. Moe Cohn and Mrs. Veid, Grey Ladies, served refreshments.

Olympic Bowling
 By HOWARD COHEN

Seven out of eight teams are fighting for the first half championship, with only eight points between the first and seventh place teams. The H. Cohens are on top, followed by the Rodyns, Levines and B. Cohens, all tied for second only two points back. Four points out are the Leonards with the Schwartz team one point behind them. Last place Hochmans are trailing six points behind the Schwartzes. The standings have changed each week, so evenly matched are the teams. The Schwartzes took a 3-1 win from the Malatts with Joe and Sam Hochman carrying the load with 314 and 307 respectively. For the Malatts there were no good scores for three strings and no excuse for the low scores. Three solid bowlers, Golden, Jacobson and Malatt, averaged 92, 94 and 96. 'Tain't right. The B. Cohens and the Leonards split four points with Reeve Zatliff continuing to pace the Cohens with 107, 102 and 121 for a nice 330. The H. Cohens and Rodyns broke even, leaving a history-making record of missed spares. Of the 30 strings bowled, only five were 100 or more, with the best three being Bernstein's 309 and Teitelman's 301. 'Nuf said. The Levines continued their rush toward the top, taking a 3-1 win from the Jim Hochmans, Winn with 314 and Meesh Zatliff with 304 were the sparks. Capt. Jimmy was responsible for the salvaging of one point by getting a triple of 333, with two 113s and a 107. The usually reliable Greenberg and Wallick shoulda stood in bed.

Name Co-Chairman of Membership Drive

Mrs. David Litchman was appointed co-chairman of the current B'nai B'rith membership drive assisting Mrs. Thomas Goldberg, chairman. Others appointed by Mrs. Goldberg are Mesdames Louis Blattle, financial secretary; Meyer S. Miller, Milton V. BV Council Opposes Released Time Bill

The Blackstone Valley Jewish Community Council, representing eleven Jewish constituent organizations of Blackstone Valley, went on record last week as opposing Bill No. 509, providing for a program of released time for religious education in the public schools.

A letter to Edward F. McEntee of the Committee for Released Time, signed by Morris Espo, president of the Council, and David Chernack, secretary, stated:

"... We feel that a program of released time would violate the traditional separation of church and state in this country. We feel that the responsibility for religious education lies in the home and church and that adequate time remains outside of public school hours to permit such training."

Olympic Bowling

By HOWARD COHEN

Through a series of unfortunate illnesses, we have had to condense the league to six teams of six men each instead of eight teams. We are carrying on with fingers crossed and get well wishes to our ailing men. Trick shoulders, bad backs, ulcers and serious virus ailments have made our league a bad insurance risk.

Merle Rodyn's five slapped a 3-1 loss on the Irv Levines to take over sole possession of second place. Capt. Merle with 342 led the pack to the kill followed by "Steady Sid" Boren with 331.

The Joe Schwartzes iced the B. Cohens 3-1 with only two men. Joe and Sam Hochman, who hit 314 and 326 respectively. And five

Day School Children Send Gifts to Israel

Pupils of the Providence Hebrew Day School celebrated "Israel Charerim Day" Wednesday by bringing small personal items such as soap, toothbrushes and combs to be sent as Chanukah gifts to the children of Israel.

The event took place in cooperation with Hebrew Day Schools all over the country that are trying to establish correspondence between children of Israel and this country. The gifts in Israel will be distributed by Rabbi Alexander Gross of Torah Umesorah, now studying the Day School movement in Israel. Personal letters from the children of Israel to their American donors will start the correspondence between the two groups.

men were bowling for Cohens.

Lowell Leonard's men continue to rise and now sport a 500 average after taking a 3-1 win from Malatts. Hy Mandell, starting to find the range with 313, paced his team. Capt. Moe also showed signs of life with 303, his best yet.

The H. Cohens, beating down the J. Hochmans 3-1 to stay in first, were led by the captain and Teitelman with 335 and 321. Jim was best for his side with 309. Len Buchbinder took instructions from H. Cohen and then bowled a 104 to win the last string by one pin (the ingrate).

SYD COHEN:

Front Office Man
Who Plays the Field

When Hank Greenberg was named general manager of the Cleveland Indians last week following the sale of the club by Bill Veeck, it could hardly be called news. Hank's improved position in the Indians' scheme of things had been apparent for some time. He was, under the Veeck regime, a vice-president who dared to stick his nose into business on the field, and successfully. When a stockholder can do that and not cause trouble with the manager and the players, he is a most unusual guy. Hank is that.

When Greenberg spent one year in exile with Pittsburgh, following Walter Briggs' refusal to let him go to any other American League city, he did not make a name as a hitter or fielder. He played sparingly and, although he hit quite a few homers, was admittedly at the end of his string. Yet Pittsburgh never will forget Hank, for the story is freely told all over the big leagues that he made Ralph Kiner what he is today.

Everyone admits that Kiner was potentially great to start with, but he was like an uncut gem that has to be polished. Greenberg supplied the polish, and proved to be so good a teacher that other National Leaguers came to ask him for advice. If Greenberg were to set up a baseball clinic, he could make a fortune. Not needing the fortune, he is now dedicated to developing the potential jewels that may some day or do now wear the uniform of the Cleveland Indians.

It won't hurt to repeat Hank's words that he, the general manager, will put in a lot of time on the field working with those men he thinks he can help. So here is the unusual spectacle of the field manager, Boudreau, and the general manager, both on the field working with the men, yet neither getting in the other's way—they hope—and neither interfering with the other's functions.

Boudreau, a load off his mind now that he does not have to contend with the knowledge that Veeck dislikes him as a manager, can run the team as he likes. Greenberg, in addition to running the business end of the club, and directing the farm system, which he has sworn to build up as the means and source of future Indian championships, also will be on the field, in uniform, probably, to coach the younger players, and to give advice to the older men.

Three Careers In One

It sounds like a terrific undertaking. Not only is it that—it happens to be a revolutionary move in major league baseball. No front office man has dared try anything like it before, unless his assistance were requested in some specific case. Three full time careers rolled up into one, by one man. The Indians' GM obviously means business.

It sounds impossible, but I think that Boudreau will not find Greenberg in his way. It seems reasonably certain that Hank will let Lou alone. That is not to say, of course, that there will not be many conferences between the two and suggestions exchanged—and followed. Both men have been baseball minds, they are intelligent, and they realize that they need not be jealous, one of the other.

So Hank Greenberg, one of baseball's mightiest sluggers (he has hit some of the longest drives ever seen in many parks), one of the games most consistently popular and valuable players, achieves his ambition of running a big league club. Whether he ever has the desire to manage from the bench remains to be seen. You could build up a good case on either side of that question from his present actions.

Since I try to be very careful as to the kind of baseball talk permitted in this space, I am fairly sure that this column was first to announce the possibility of Greenberg's running the Indians to local readers.

It wasn't due to any scoop on my part. I read five papers—and sometimes more—from three different cities daily during the baseball season and thereby come across many rumors and predictions. In the issue of September 9, I repeated a story from one of

New Women's League Elects Mrs. Rosen

Mrs. Al Rosen was elected temporary president of the newly-formed Women's League of the Menorah Community House at a meeting held at the Narragansett Hotel November 21.

Other officers elected for temporary terms were Mrs. W. Gerstenblatt, second vice president, and Miss L. Slatoff, corresponding secretary. The program committee, headed by Mrs. E. Waldman, includes Mrs. Rosen, Mrs. Gerstenblatt, Miss Slatoff, Mrs. L. Sweet, Mrs. N. Malinou and Mrs. A. Goldstein. On the telephone squad are Mrs. G. Zaidman, Mrs. Al Goldberg, Mrs. W. Matzner, Mrs. Malinou, Miss Slatoff, Mrs. L. Richter and Mrs. L. Sweet.

The group is planning a penny social for the next meeting, to be held December 12.

What Cheer Auxiliary Installs Officers

Alfred Aden, deputy grand master of Rhode Island Brith Sholom, installed officers of What Cheer Lodge auxiliary recently in the lodge room. Officers are Mrs. A. Aden, president; Mrs. Joseph Koplun, vice president; Mrs. Max Margolis, treasurer, and Mrs. Samuel Rakusin, secretary. A social with refreshments followed the ceremonies.

Bill Corum's column claiming that a "deal" between Greenberg and Veeck was set and that Hank would own the Indians by the end of the year. I said that the story looked reliable and logical.

Well, Hank doesn't own the Cleveland club, but he certainly is the boss man under his unique setup, so Corum rates a boost for being at least among the first to get close to the truth—and this column will bashfully bow for having selected that one rumor out of all the others that were floating around at the time.

Providence Native Writes Novel About City

TULSA, OKLAHOMA—A former Providence girl, Beatrice Schwartz Levin, has been informed of the acceptance of her novel about Providence, "The Lonely Room."

The publishers, Bobbs-Merrill of Indianapolis, plan to use the Prospect Terrace statue of Roger Williams as the keynote of a book-jacket of the novel which has a variety of settings (a Texas Army camp and Naples, Italy, among them). Due to be published in the Spring, this novel is the first from the pen of the Rhode Island College of Education graduate. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Schwartz of 40 Comstock Avenue, Providence.

Mrs. Levin, wife of Dr. Franklyn K. Levin, Carter Oil Co. physicist, is the mother of two sons, Michael Jonathan, two years old, and Alan Robert, two months old. The author, in a recent interview, gave considerable credit to her husband for his constructive criticism.

"He browbeat me into rewriting one chapter 13 times," she said.

In discussing the slow progress of the book (she started it at Wisconsin the summer of 1948), she said that she had to squeeze time from her household duties and the care of her boys in order to write.

"I usually feed the babies and myself and get them outdoors, and then I ignore all my other work and just park myself at my typewriter for two or three hours while I'm still fresh. I can't write when I'm physically or mentally tired. Then the babies get fed again and I attack my housework."

Mrs. Levin is already at work on another novel. This one will be about graduate students at a mid-Western University in the years when GIs were flooding the campus. However, the excitement of her first success has broken up her routine. She is all agog with plans.

What will she do with the money she is anticipating?

"Oh, I hope to take a trip to Palestine to get first hand material and background for another novel. It already has three hundred pages of outline written and is called 'A Handful of Sand.' Then I would like to help my young sister Beverly get through Rhode Island State College. Young kids need lots of pretty clothes."

Mrs. Levin, who moved to Tulsa with her family only last July, came here from Madison. While there she did free lance writing, took graduate work in English and taught in the English department at the University of Wisconsin. One of her feature articles was published some time ago in the Sunday Journal. She also took

Appoint Steering Committee for Group

A steering committee for a newly-formed Younger-Married Set of Congregation Ohave Shalom was appointed at a meeting held Sunday night at the Temple. On the committee are Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Espo, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Rosen, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Max, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rosenberg, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Feldman and Mr. and Mrs. George Polette, with Rabbi and Mrs. Aaron Golden, ex-officio.

The next meeting of the group will be held December 11 in the vestry.

RABBI SILK'S SERMON

Rabbi Morris G. Silk will speak on "Plymouth Rock and Tel Aviv" at Thanksgiving services of Ahavath Shalom Synagogue tonight at 8 o'clock. Chanting of the services will be by Cantor Nathaniel Zolondek.

time out from her busy life to write for the Providence Second Seder Journal and to participate in the Madison Chapter of Hadasah.

"Hadassah is my pet," she said. "It is the one organization I am completely devoted to."

Mrs. Levin was very active in Zionist Youth circles when she lived in Providence and is still an ardent Labor Zionist.

"By the way," she said, "tell the Providence folk that I heard Mrs. Archibald Silverman talk about her recent trip to Europe when she was here in Tulsa. I hope you all appreciate 'Ida.' Notice that 'you all'? That's what comes from living in the South for four months!"

Cranston Bowling

By DR. HAYVIS WOOLF

Jack and Sarah Westerman sat and took in the general bowling scene with pride and praise the other night. Doc Rosenthal, Abe Gurwitz and Nat Tolchinsky sat in the spectators' seats, also, and gathered "nachass" as the boys bowled for their teams. To all these members of the Cranston Jewish Community Club, the bowling league is a source of pride.

As it was most of the league attended the special meeting of the Club who gathered to discuss further a site for the Community Center. This good news will travel fast.

And on top of it all Sam Gaber got one of the many strikes of the evening. Funny thing—along with Sam, our low men aren't low any more. Ed Charon, threatening anchor man position on his team and stogie smoking Bob Baker are training their good eye (not the glass one) on the ball.

High single of the night goes to Morris Filler with 119 (low for our ex-Temple Emanuel leaguer). The Dodgers had high pinfall with 1398 and high three went to Max White, who bowled 320. According to Max, all you have to do is know your horses and it's easy to bowl. How's the last race, boy? The Braves lead the league with 13 won and 3 lost. All I can say is "pretty good for a bunch of amateurs."

Guest spares for the evening were Jerry Fish and Dave Sugarman on the regulars (both over 100) and Joe Jagolinzer. Brother Ben Woolf was absent but we hope to see him next week.

QUESTION PERIOD
Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen conducted a question period after his talk on "Reflections on Whether We Don't Hold Jewish Life a Burden" at a meeting of the Rhode Island Fraternal Association November 17.

Bowling

By JERRY FREIBERG

The tenth week of bowling produced record scores as Don Cohen, with one string of 141 tying the season high single record, broke the high three record by toting up a score of 361. Gene Silverman, despite a third string of 93, came through with a 355 three; while Charlie Steingold rolled a nice 335 total. Lenny Summer and Les Friedman both had 326.

Gene's score pushed him right into first place in individual standing with a 106½ average, while Les and Don are close behind.

Hal Cohen's quintet continued their winning streak taking over three points and first place, while Silverman's team knocked off Summer's team 3-1. Doc Goldberg's five split 2-2 with Lefty Stuite Steingold's sluggers.

Irv Rosen, perhaps to celebrate the birth of his son, bowled a 116 string.

Crosby Elected to Loan Bank Board

Ralph R. Crosby, President of Old Colony Co-operative Bank, has been elected a member of the board of directors of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Boston for the term beginning January 1, 1950. This important post gives to Rhode Island financial institutions in the home loan field representation, together with close and continuous contact, with the Board of Directors of this important New England reserve institution.

Edward H. Weeks, now chairman of the board and formerly president of Old Colony, was one of the original members of the Board of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Boston, and has been an active member of the Board of Directors during the entire seventeen years of its existence. In declining to again stand to re-election, Mr. Weeks expressed the opinion that new, younger and more active men should be brought into the activities of the institution, and pointed out that this could not very well be done if some of the older members continued in their posts for year after year.

Sunset Lodge Host at Convention

The 15th annual National Masada Convention will take place at Sunset Lodge, Sharon, during the Thanksgiving week-end, beginning Thursday, November 24, and continuing through Sunday, November 27, with the New England Region of Masada acting as host. Large delegations representing young Zionists are expected to gather from all parts of the country to consider the future structure and status of Masada in relation to the Zionist Organization of America, the American Zionist Youth Commission, and to Israel.

The Convention deliberations will consider the role and responsibility of American-Jewish youth and young Zionists of America towards helping to bridge the two-way passage between this country and Israel through support in the building and development of the Jewish State, and through education and culture in the United States.

SYD COHEN:

Closing Out
A Great Career

I picked up the latest issue of Sport Magazine Saturday morning and it took just one glance at the cover to realize that here was a story that has been drawing little notice during the football season now ending.

The cover, in case you haven't seen it, shows the old and new quarterbacks of the Chicago Bears—Sid Luckman and Johnny Lujack. That cover photo tells a tale better than it can be put down in words. A great quarterback is passing and a great quarterback has arrived.

No need to mention how great a performer Luckman has been since he first attracted national attention with Columbia University as a sophomore in 1937. Now, 12 years later, he is about to close out one of the most brilliant careers in football history.

Sid was, and still is, as much a part of the Chicago Bears organization as is George Halas, the Papa Bear. Even his retirement from the active ranks has been tied in with Chicago's destiny. The stories of his retirement first were aired two years ago, and Luckman undoubtedly would have withdrawn to a coaching job on the sidelines or at some name college at that time—but for the fact that the Bears' new quarterback had not arrived.

So Sid stuck around till they signed Johnny Lujack, and then he started breaking in the Notre Dame All-America. They divided the chores pretty evenly in 1948, Johnny and Sid. The fanfare was kept at a minimum, for the Bear family wasn't keen on having too much of a publicity burden thrown on the broad Lujack shoulders.

But this season Lujack has taken over, with Luckman playing very little—and drawing few headlines. The metamorphosis is just about complete; the Bears have their new ace, and he is thoroughly trained in the H a l a s way of play. There is no longer a need for Sid Luckman to stay on the active list.

Luckman undoubtedly will remain in an important football capacity for years to come; but as the last leaves fall from the trees this fall, so his brilliant playing days are blowing into memory. That passing should not go unnoticed.

Boxing's New Veep

The election of Tony Petronella as fifth vice-president of the National Boxing Association last week came as very welcome news to the thousands of fans throughout Rhode Island who know Tony. More important, however, was the indication that the Providence area is beginning to assume a more important position in the national scheme of things. It's about time. I believe we richly deserve such recognition.

We often hear about the rabid fans of the big league cities—Brooklyn, Detroit and the like—but I personally believe that they all have to take a back seat when it comes to Providence. Over the last few years this has become an amazing sports town. These other big cities have their Dodgers and Tigers and their pro football teams and major league hockey and all the big fights and other promotions. Yet, here in Little Rhody we generate just as much, if not more enthusiasm, and since we don't all root for one club, or one league, we have a broader, more intelligent outlook on the picture.

And a not-to-be-forgotten item is that many a good Rhode Island buck finds its way into the Boston and New York box office receipts of most sporting events. We are growing up—in fact, we have arrived and I think someone ought to do a story for one of the national magazines to show the fans of other cities what a real sports town is like.

But that bit of local flag waving got me off the track. I meant to say more about Tony Petronella, who has brought Providence right into the boxing limelight through his selection by the NBA. To all who know Tony, it goes without saying that it couldn't happen to a nicer guy. Already a member of the State boxing commission, Petronella is known wherever boxing is popular. It is as much fact as prediction to say that he is on his way to being one of the biggest names in boxing the nation over. And wherever he goes and whatever he does, Tony is from Providence—so the city gets a free publicity ride at the same time.

What Tony doesn't know about boxing even the renowned Nat Fleischer probably doesn't know. Names, facts and figures—all roll off Tony's tongue with astonishing rapidity and accuracy. If information Please ever needs a boxing authority, Petronella should be their man. And if I sound as if I'm going overboard I don't mind, for Tony is worth it, not alone for himself but for the important role he is playing in bringing fame and respect to Rhode Island boxing.

It has been said that the fight game is in a bad way. Well, this state has made the kind of progress in recent months that will help get it out of the doldrums, and Tony is one of the factors behind that drive. Anyway, he is a personal friend and I wouldn't miss this chance to congratulate him.

Incidentally, noting the absence of boxing news from this column, Tony once invited me to have a session with him some time, when he would give me enough suitable material to fill several columns. I've never taken advantage of the offer.

However, arrangements already have been completed with another boxing enthusiast, whose offer to do a guest column that will show how Rhode Island is growing in the fight game was immediately accepted. That column will appear in the near future. I am confident that you will find it informative and interesting—and even significant. Wait and see.

Olympic Bowling
 By HOWARD COHEN

Seven out of eight teams are fighting for the first half championship, with only eight points between the first and seventh place teams. The H. Cohens are on top, followed by the Rodyns, Levines and B. Cohens, all tied for second only two points back. Four points out are the Leonards with the Schwartz team one point behind them. Last place Hochmans are trailing six points behind the Schwartzes. The standings have changed each week, so evenly matched are the teams. The Schwartzes took a 3-1 win from the Malatts with Joe and Sam Hochman carrying the load with 314 and 307 respectively. For the Malatts there were no good scores for three strings and no excuse for the low scores. Three solid bowlers, Golden, Jacobson and Malatt, averaged 92, 94 and 96. 'Tain't right. The B. Cohens and the Leonards split four points with Reeve Zatliff continuing to pace the Cohens with 107, 102 and 121 for a nice 330. The H. Cohens and Rodyns broke even, leaving a history-making record of missed spares. Of the 30 strings bowled, only five were 100 or more, with the best three being Bernstein's 309 and Teitelman's 301. 'Nuf said. The Levines continued their rush toward the top, taking a 3-1 win from the Jim Hochmans. Winn with 314 and Meesh Zatliff with 304 were the sparks. Capt. Jimmy was responsible for the salvaging of one point by getting a triple of 333, with two 113s and a 107. The usually reliable Greenberg and Wallick shoulda stood in bed.

Murray Trinkle, with an average of slightly more than 112, is the leading bowler in the Temple Beth-El Brotherhood League.

Last week's session at the Casino Alleys on Pine Street failed to see Archie Finklestein's Fearless Five dislodged from the top spot in the league standings. Leo Kopit's Keen Keglers hold on to the second place position.

Milt Weisman did some fancy bowling to come up with the high single and three-string marks for the night. He rolled 138 in one, and had a 362 total for three. Dick Barber, who holds the high single mark of 161, turned in a 137 string.

Nat Alterman, league secretary, says he plans to call a hot-stove league session for captains within a few days. Some of the leaders will have to be convinced to trade one or two bowlers, in order to give the league better balance.

Walter Strauss' Stellar Cellar Dwellers have been holding down the low spot for so long. John L. Lewis is thinking of organizing them into a new district of his miners' union. But, Walter is doing the least complaining of the lot.

Bowling Banter

By TEDI GREEN

It was "Even-Steven" night for the Olympic Auxiliary League as each team took two points.

Elaine Aiken's much improved bowling kept Lou Boren's team in first place and Elaine copped high single and high three for the night with 110 and 298 respectively. Harriet Zarchen's single of 105 and triple of 280 was high for the Miller group.

The Winn's couldn't take points from Dot Leonard's group. If Winn's five had taken four points, they would have tied with the Leonards for second place. The best scores from either team were Prexy Estelle Cohen's 97 and Elsie Zipkin's 93.

Turning in good sheets were Mimi Rodyn 102, Esther Miller 104 and Esther Kaplan 91.

BETH-EL SISTERHOOD

Mrs. Florence Markoff will present a series of sketches of famous women in Jewish literature at a meeting of Temple Beth El Sisterhood December 5.

JACOB HOHENEMSER

The Scout Committee of Temple Emanuel announced this week that under the new Explorer Program of Boy Scouts of America Senior Outfit 20, Providence, would be re-registered next month as Explorer Post 20. Under the new program, Boy Scouts, 14 years of age or over, are automatically registered as Explorers, and may take part in both troop activities and explorer activities, which includes camping, seamanship, vocational interests, community service and social contacts.

The leadership of the Jolly Roger Explorer Post will be handled by Bernard R. Clorman, post advisor, and the newly-appointed assistant advisor, Jacob Hohenemser, cantor of the temple.

Mr. Hohenemser, who was also appointed assistant scoutmaster of Troop 20, was a scoutmaster and later a scout commissioner in Southern Germany before the rise of the Nazi Party. He will work primarily in teaching scouts Hebrew songs and music.

Organization of the Explorer Post includes Maurice Finegold, chief crew leader; Raymond Sadow, leader of Skull Crew; Myron Bauman, leader of Bones' Crew, and Sidney Gershovitz, post secretary. Explorers Finegold and Sadow have been awarded the rank of Explorer Woodsman for advanced camping techniques.

Some people think...

that our service ends with the sale. 'Tisn't true! You'll NEVER hear us say, "Sorry, our service man is in Timbuku", or "We're awfully busy now—why don't you call us later!"

... what makes all this so terribly important is, that sooner or later EVERYTHING YOU BUY ANYWHERE requires service. A lot or a little ... it's important—to you.

... through the years MODERN never has lost that intimate personal touch with our customers. With us the word "SERVICE" is a dynamic force that gets things done ... long after the bill is stamped "paid in full"

... yes, MODERN IS THE HOME OF SERVICE UNLIMITED. All this sums up to the fact that there are very few people—these days—who can afford not to buy at the MODERN in Fall River!

If it is inconvenient to visit us during regular store hours any member of our owner-managed staff will be happy to arrange an evening appointment. Drop us a card or call Fall River 6-8291.

"Cover Outstanding Cards" Is GJC Plea

With $70,000 still to be raised—and if its present goal of $900,000 is to be reached—and with only a few short weeks remaining on its 1949 fund-raising campaign schedule, the General Jewish Committee is sparing no effort to reach the 1200 members of the community who as yet have made no pledge to the current drive.

Notices went out this week to all campaign workers with pledge cards still in their possession. The notices firmly requested that workers turn in their cards—either covered or uncovered—at a special Report Meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 30 at GJC headquarters, 203 Strand Building.

GJC offices that day will be open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. A staff of workers will be on hand to record all reports.

"Every card must and will be covered," said Alvin A. Sopkin, campaign chairman, this week. He indicated that cards still uncovered would immediately be assigned to special "mopping up" squads for definite contact during the few remaining weeks of the campaign.

"While we're eager to bring our campaign to a close, I'm sure the community will agree that we would be remiss in our duty until we definitely contacted every potential donor, and gave him an opportunity to participate in the drive," observed Sopkin.

To date, approximately 8200 members of the Jewish community of greater Providence have pledged a total of $830,000 to the 1949 "Year of Homecoming" drive of the local GJC. Campaign leaders feel that the $900,000 goal should represent a minimum level of giving in this area.

Failure of the drive to attain a total comparable to last year's will, of necessity, result in curtailed allocations to many of these beneficiary agencies.

To Entertain Children At Chanukah Party

Children of the North End will be entertained at a Chanukah party at the Beth David Synagogue from 1 to 3 o'clock on December 18.

A E Pi Bowling

Jerry Freiberg's basement boys knocked off the high-flying Himelfarb crew, 4-0, while Don Cohen's club defeated Beans Feinstein's gang, 3-1, to tighten up the league race. The Himelfarbs have only a two-point margin now on the runner-up Feinsteins. Freiberg was high gun for the night with a 351 triple and a 128 single. Burt Himelfarb had 313 for three, while Cohen rolled 312, and Bob Krovitz, like the veteran he is, came through with 302.

Other leading singles were 120 by Himelfarb, 118 by Freiberg, and 113 by Cohen.

Sam Weisman will be installed as president of the South Providence Hebrew Congregation at ceremonies to take place December 4.

Also to be installed are Ben Friedman, vice president; Louis Bedrick, treasurer, and Maurice Gordon, financial and recording secretary.

David Baums Give Torah to Synagogue

Mr. and Mrs. David Baum of Harvard Avenue will present a Torah to Congregation Sons of Abraham at special dedicatory services December 11 at 6 o'clock.

The Torah, which is a family heirloom, was commissioned to be written by the fore-fathers of Mr. Baum in 1731. The Acrostic on one Etz Hayim indicates the Torah to be 218 years old, which would make it the oldest one in the city of Providence.

Beth-Israel Bowling

By SAUL HODOSH

Another new name for the top spot this week. Meyer Epstein's Columbians hold a precarious one-game lead over Dartmouth and Army, and seven of the teams are only four games out.

A new team high three went on the record as Piny Gladstein's Cornellians threw a batch of thunderbolts for 1825. May be an omen of things to come. The only sad note in this case was the fact that Harvey Asher of the opposing Yale team turned in a sheet of 301, a 1000-1 shot for him.

The boys are still hungrily racking up those high singles and threes. Sharpshooters this week in the singles were Wyner 126, S. Segal 127, Myrow 129, I. Rubin 122, O. Dressler 122 and Lefkowitz 126. Good triples were bowled by J. Dressler 335, S. Segal 343, Harold Ross 331, Myrow 333, Steiner 340 and I. Rubin 329.
