Catholics, GJC Swap Endorsements

Two of the community's largest and most far-reaching charitable fund-raising campaigns—the Catholic Charity Fund and the General Jewish Committee of Providence—in an unprecedented exchange of letters this week voiced warm endorsement of the other's philanthropic efforts.

Alvin A. Sopkin, GJC president, inaugurated the exchange when he wrote to the Most Reverend Russell J. McVinney, Bishop of Providence, and, on behalf of the GJC, extended its "warmest greetings" and wished the Catholic Charity Fund "every success" in its current drive.

"We are aware of the splendid work that is being done by the 25 important communal agencies supported by the Fund. Your cause is one that deserves the wholehearted support of all in the community," Sopkin noted.

In prompt reply, Bishop McVinney wrote:

"Your letter of the 26th expressing the warm endorsement of the Catholic Charity Fund Appeal by the General Jewish Committee of Providence is received."

Dedication Chairman

JACOB S. TEMKIN

A record of the people and events of mid-20th Century life will be among the contents of a sealed box that will be placed in the cornerstone of the New Miriam Hospital, Jacob S. Temkin announced this week.

Temkin, chairman of the committee arranging the cornerstone laying ceremonies, to take place Sunday, May 20 at 1:30 P.M. at the Summit Avenue building site, said the box will contain an accurate picture of the activities and aspirations of the Rhode Island community; and the times relating to the building of the New Miriam.

Included among the contents will be a copy of the Jewish Herald and other publications, plus a program of the event, containing a brief history of the Miriam Hospital, and copies of the speeches of state, civic and hospital officials taking part in the ceremonies.

GJC Re-elects Sopkin President

In an address to several hundred members of the General Jewish Committee of Providence, at that organization's sixth annual meeting this week, Dr. William Haber, noted economist, declared that "Israel's tremendous burden of immigration absorption requires the utmost financial support from American Jewry."

Dr. Haber, in detailing his experiences in 1948 and 1949 as special advisor on Jewish affairs to Gen. Lucius D. Clay, head of the American Military Government in Germany, made numerous human interest references to the plight of Jewish war victims, sharply pointing up the need for intensive support of the United Jewish Appeal's work in the areas of overseas relief and rehabilitation.

Pointing out that he was in Israel when the new Jewish democracy was proclaimed three years ago, Dr. Haber stated that "this represented one of the most thrilling experiences in my life."

Dr. Haber also commended the GJC for its accomplishments in the field of fund-raising, and the start that it has made in community planning.

"Such activity is a manifestation of sincere Jewish interest in both local welfare and international needs," he said.

He was introduced by Alvin A. Sopkin, GJC president, who presided at the meeting held in the Sheraton-Biltmore hotel ballroom on Monday evening of this week.

Emphasizing that, from an economic viewpoint, Israel has violated all economic concepts by adding the support of hundreds of thousands of immigrants to an already sagging financial struc-

Pawt. To Honor Morris Espo

PAWTUCKET—Presentation of a scroll to Morris Espo, community leader and president of the organization, will highlight the third annual meeting of the Blackstone Valley Jewish Community Council, Sunday, May 13 at 8:15 P.M. in the vestry of the Ohawe Sholom Synagogue. Mr. Espo has been nominated for his third consecutive term as head of the organization.

Mr. Espo's thirty-seven years of community service in the Blackstone Valley started with his presidency of the Hebrew Institute, the first effort of record to organize the Jewish community of the Blackstone Valley outside the synagogue.

He has served as president of the Henry Friedman Lodge, B'nai Brith, and is the oldest living president of that organization. He has also served on the board of the Ohawe Sholom Synagogue.

His current activities include: co-chairmanship of the Bonds for Israel Drive in the area, member of the board of trustees of the Pawtucket Boys Club, Member of the Pawtucket Rotary Club, Community Chest, vice president of Temple Emanuel, Providence, member of the board Jewish Home for the Aged, Camp Jori, and is serving on the advisory committee of the Salvation Army, Pawtucket.

Refreshments will be served following the meeting.

In taking the second game, Marty Brown chipped in a few crucial hits to support his own hurling for the Jewelers. M & F's Aon Rosenbaum lost two home runs in the glove of outfielder Greg Karambelas.

Mathewson Toggery extended their win streak to three as they took two from Lincoln Woods Dairy. Poor defensive play spelled doom for the losers in the first game. Paul Paris of the Dairy-men and Mort Rappaport of the Haberdashers matched homers. Irv Zatliff's relief hurling contributed to the win.

Six runs in the first inning of the nightcap proved to be more than the Dairy-men could garner in seven. Ralph Winn went all the way on the mound for Mathewson Toggery in the 9-4 win. A spirited Natcor club overcame an early Broadway Auto Sales lead to take the first game 8-5. A four run sixth highlighted by Irwin Lieberman's singling in the winning runs put the game on ice. Left fielder Ernie Chernick pulled the defensive gem of the game.

With Hank Levine displaying consistent control in capturing his second win the auto firm club easily took the second game 12-1. Automan Albie Samdperil took batting honors with a home run and two singles.

Natcor vs Richards Clothing at Bucklin Park; M & F Insurance vs Broadway Auto Sales at Roger Williams Park; Mathewson Toggery vs Waldorf Tuxedo at Sessions Street; Lincoln Woods vs Arden's Jewelry at Hopkins Park.

It was all Waldorf in the first game of the Waldorf-Richards twin bill as the Tuxedo outfit romped to a 15-0 victory. An explosive 9-run first inning, featured by Dave Rubien's base-clearing triple, followed by Bernie Davidson's three hit hurling, put the clincher on this one.

The second contest was an extra inning affair with Waldorf finally pulling it out 12-8. The last of the ninth saw Orello, Shoren and Holt pound out the winning markers after Richards had tied the game for the third time. For the losers Perry Deltch and Jay Krazner shared the batting honors.

M & F took the opener from Arden's Jewelry 9-7 but dropped the second 9-3. Warren (Red) Foster lent fine batting support to Nat Ludman's mound performance. Nate Snyder sparkled behind the plate for the losers. Arden's displayed some fine ball picture of a great event!

WHAT IS SO REMARKABLE, you ask, about a father helping his son plant a seedling tree?

This is what is remarkable: it is happening in Israel — today, on Israel's third anniversary of Statehood. And the odds were — overwhelmingly — that it could never happen at all.

The odds were that the father would die in Europe as six million other Jews died under Hitler. Yet he got through to the new, shining land. The odds were that the desert soil of Israel could not be made to flourish. But the father, and tens of thousands like him, brought more to the task than hoes and harrows...

Now you see the roots going down. Not just the roots of the seedling... human roots, too. The tree, the boy and Israel will all grow together. And along with them will grow and flourish the world's most precious way of life — democracy.

In just three years you have helped transplant 500,000 homeless refugees to Israel, have given them the chance to begin a new and hopeful life. But the work is only half done. Your help—through the United Jewish Appeal is needed still to bring 200,000 more this year, to reclaim land, plant forests, build settlements and homes so that these newcomers, too, can sink firm roots in Israel's soil. Give now, while there is time.

Providence moves me deeply.

"It is most heartening on the occasion of our annual appeal for the twenty-five agencies of charity sponsored by our Fund to receive the whole-hearted endorsement of all the magnanimous people of Rhode Island. I am most grateful for the devotedness and support of our Jewish brethren.

"I read in the press of your campaign for funds but have never been approached for a contribution. I am not aware of the time of the year during which you make your appeal but I send along herewith my mite which you might use in your next appeal. I am aware that it is but a mite, but it truly represents my financial competence and my wish to be numbered among your friends."

Enclosed was a personal check for $100 from Bishop McVinney.

Sopkin immediately wrote back:

"Our UJA campaign takes place in the late summer and early fall, and your contribution will be applied as the very first gift in our 1951 campaign. We are extremely grateful for your thoughtfulness and generosity in this matter, and you may be sure that this money will be used to help those people who are so much in need of our aid."

bald Silverman is honorary president.

Brief remarks were offered by Ress, general chairman of the 1951 drive; Mrs. Archie Fain, chairman of the Women's Division, and Harold Ratush, Young Adult Division chairman.

In the absence of George Gerber, the report of the nominating committee was presented by Dr. Nathan A. Bolotow.

Joseph Galkin, GJC executive director, in his report, stated:

"If we are to move ahead, we must try to develop among our people a sense of perspective which will enable them to see their project and agency not only as entities in themselves, but as part of an overall communal pattern.

"We still need people who devote themselves primarily to one particular need or agency program; who are enthusiasts for it; and who will press for full community attention to that need. But, along with them, we need others who possess a total community view; who see all these things in perspective, and who recognize the functions of all agencies and programs as part of a total entity."

A SALUTE TO ISRAEL

The celebration of the third anniversary of Israel's independence, it is to be hoped, will bring forth more than sentimental panegyrics on the historic aims and achievements of the young Jewish State.

Three years ago establishment of the Jewish State was described as a creative stroke of such magnitude that most people would willingly confess to an inability to evaluate it with anything approaching perspective. Seen against the background of 2,000 years of dispersion, world wars, the extinction of entire Jewish communities, the fulfillment of this dream was understandably overwhelming.

It is to the everlasting credit of the American Jewish community that sentiment was harnessed to reality, and that primarily through the vehicle of the United Jewish Appeal sufficient aid was extended to Israel to enable the infant State to double her population in these three years and at the same time grow out of her swaddling clothes industrially, politically, and in the community of nations.

Many of us will still admit to a sense of wonderment at the fact that the State of Israel exists, that in an era of unparalleled international wreckage, our generation has been privileged to be of assistance in the attaining of Israel's independence, in countering the wild rush towards international destruction by participating in the vastly constructive purposes implicit in Israel.

It goes without saying that American Jewry, with negligible exceptions, recognizes the fact that Israel must and should be strengthened, that from every viewpoint—on the humanitarian as well as politically realistic levels—a thriving and democratic Israel is uniquely important in our time.

Toward that end, capital provided by Americans through the Israeli Bond Issue will play a major part in making possible the realization of that goal.

It is to be hoped that the overwhelming majority of the Jewish people of America will respond wholeheartedly and voluntarily to the $500,000,000 Bond Issue, which is now underway.

The Good and the Beautiful

(A Mother's Day Story for Children)

BY BERNARD SEGAL

High above on his Throne of Glory sat the Creator and looked down upon the new earth which he had just created in six long days. He looked down upon the wide oceans, and the tall mountains, and the rolling meadows, and the green forests, and the winding rivers, and He saw that they were good and beautiful. Then He looked down upon the birds in the air, and the animals on land, and the fishes in the waters, and the worms burrowing underground, and upon man walking erect, and He saw that these too were good and beautiful.

But the world was not yet complete. The Creator had not finished all his work, and the world was waiting for the new creature not yet made by the hands of God.

Then one day the Creator said to the three angels who stood to the left of Him and to the right of Him and in front of Him:

"Go down and roam the earth and bring back word to me of what you see and what you hear among my creatures."

The three angels came down to earth with the rising of the sun, and with the setting of the sun they returned and stood before the Throne of Glory.

And the angel who stood to the right of the Throne said:

"In my flight across the face of the earth I came upon a burning bush. On the top of the bush was a nest of birds. They were small, and naked, and frightened, and an older bird flew up and down all around the burning bush, and cried for help. But when no help came, the bird began to carry the young ones out of the nest. Back and forth the older bird flew carrying a young one to safety, and all the time the flames came up closer to the nest. But the bird did not turn away, and came back again and again until only the last of the young ones remained in the nest. The flames had already reached the opening of the nest when the bird came back for the last time, tired, exhausted, but flying straight into the sheet of flame. In a second the fire would have consumed both the older and the young birds. Then I swooped down and carried them both to safety."

The Creator listened, and all the angels listened, and they said that it was good and beautiful.

And the angel to the left of the Throne said:

"In my flight across the face of the earth I came upon a mountain, and on the slopes of the mountain I saw a herd of animals racing down merrily. Then I saw a boulder, and a young animal, very tender, and very careless, jumping over the boulder, and falling as it jumped, and one of its legs being held fast by the boulder. All the others raced down the slope toward the green valley and the still pool of water below, and the young tender animal lay helpless all alone."

"Then I saw an older animal returning up the slope and looking in anguish for someone, and there, in the grip of the boulder, was the one who was missed. The older animal pushed at the boulder, pulled at it, and when all was to no avail, lay down beside the young one and licked it tenderly, and comforted it, and looked into its eyes with great love."

Thus they lay side by side, the older caressing the young one, and the young one no longer afraid, until the herd returned from the valley below, and all together the animals freed the young one from the hold of the boulder."

The creator listened to this story and the angels listened, and they all said that it, too, was good and beautiful.

Then spoke the angel who stood in front of the Throne of Glory:

"In my flight across the face of the earth I came upon a narrow brook. It looked like a shining thread of silver from above, and I liked it, and I came closer. Across the brook, from one shore to the other, lay a dry twig like a bridge. Across this twig walked, one behind the other, two ants. The bigger one carried a load and right behind walked a smaller ant."

"The two reached the end of the bridge, and the first ant was safely on the shore, finding its way among the grasses, toting the morsel of food across all kinds of obstacles. But before the smaller ant could set foot on the shore, a wave pushed the twig away from the shore, and the ant could not reach it. Only a little distance separated the twig from the shore, but, oh, what a wide stream it seemed to the small ant!"

"The little creature turned this way and that way, it ran backward and forward along the twig, it stretched out its legs, it waved its antennae, but all to no avail. Then I saw the bigger ant returning in haste to the shore, and it was greatly alarmed on seeing what had happened. The big ant ran about all along the shore. It motioned to the stranded ant on the twig. It climbed on top of blades of grass, and ran down again. It came down to the very edge of the water and almost fell into the brook. Then it rushed off and came back with a thin, dry weed, twice the length of its own body, and held it out for the stranded ant to walk across. But the weed fell into the water and was washed away."

"The big ant did not give up. Hours on end it ran about tirelessly, doing many things to rescue the little one on the twig. Then I pushed the twig ever so lightly with my wing, and the bridge was back in place as before, reaching the shore, and the little ant ran ashore, and the two ants walked off together, waving their antennae happily."

The Creator listened, and the angels who stood around the Throne of Glory listened, and they all said that this, too, was good and beautiful.

Then spoke the Creator:

"Let us now finish our work of creation. Let us make a living thing that will have all the love, and the devotion, and the patience, and the goodness, and the beauty of the bird by the burning nest, and of the animal by the boulder on the mountain, and of the ant by the broken bridge. And let us call this living thing MOTHER."

And it was so.

Golda Myerson Recalls Her Dangerous First Days In Israel

Minister of Labor, In Brief Visit Here Describes Importance of Bond Drive

Golda Myerson, Israel's Minister of Labor, is seen here as she relaxed in her hotel suite at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel during a recent brief visit to Providence. Mrs. Myerson will be her nation's representative at the Israel Independence Day exercises here next Wednesday.

Coinciding with the celebration of Israel Independence Day here in Providence on May 16 will be a public appearance by one of the truly great women of her time—Golda Myerson, Minister of Labor in the cabinet of Israel. Mrs. Myerson, who has been touring the Western Hemisphere on behalf of the Israel Bond Drive since April 15, will be making one of her final appearances before departing for Israel on May 20.

Practically a native of the United States—she came to this country at the age of eight—the Labor Minister took up her permanent residence in Israel—then Palestine—when she was 21, and she has since worked unceasingly on behalf of the ideal of the establishment of the Jewish State.

It all seems part of Golda Myerson's routine. Completely and selflessly devoted to the cause of Israel, she will do anything, go anywhere, as long as her services contribute to the welfare and future prosperity of her nation.

During a brief visit to this city a few weeks ago, Mrs. Myerson reflected on the differences in the conditions existing in the Holy Land when she first came there, and now. She also explained her government's stand with regard to the forthcoming $500,000,000

Bond drive.

"Israel is short of initial investment capital," the cabinet official declared. "A survey of the Jewish position in the world leads to the belief that in the next three years another 600,000 Jewish immigrants will have to be brought into Israel. We have worked out a three year plan based on this survey, and for that we will need capital totaling one and a half billion dollars."

Her nation is prepared to assume its share of this burden, Mrs. Myerson asserted. Israel hopes to raise half a billion dollars through private capital; another half billion is expected from industry and "free gift money," with the United Jewish Appeal playing an important role in this regard.

"The remaining half billion we must raise through the sale of Bonds," she concluded.

"Bond money will be used only for development projects," Mrs. Myerson stated. "It will thus carry a return, enabling us to repay it."

"We promise to repay, we are convinced we will repay—plus interest," was the determined way in which she summed up the Bond issue.

Both the Government of Israel and the people, she said, are depending on the successful outcome of the Bond drive in the U. S. "We see it as the main avenue of economic development and stability in the country, based upon continued substantial immigration into Israel."

Israel has made a sound development in agriculture, transportation and industry, Mrs. Myerson went on. She noted that the Government is conducting experiments, "which are not discouraging," to locate natural resources in the country. All this requires investment capital.

Labor in Israel

Since she is a government official of cabinet rank—along with having the rare distinction of being one of the few women in the world to hold so important a post—Mrs. Myerson was asked to comment on the set-up of her department.

The Labor Minister thereupon listed the following duties as coming within her province: factory inspection, labor legislation and relations, housing, public works, social insurance, and co-operatives. The latter, she explained, can take the form of "kibbutzim," industrial plants formed and operated by groups of workers, etc. She also is concerned with health, old age pensions, unemployment, invalidity pensions, maternity care, and grants for new-born babies.

The Labor Minister added here that she is working on a social insurance system similar to the Beverage Plan in England, and hopes to have it in operation before the end of this year.

In reply to a query, she said that the labor movement is strong in Israel, but that it operates "in full co-operation with the Government."

Immigration Goes On

The question of immigration brought out the following comments:

A thousand immigrants are still being received daily in Israel from various countries of the world. They come mostly from the Moslem countries and from Eastern Europe. About 8000 still arrive monthly from Roumania. That number used to be the quota allowed to emigrate from that country for an entire year. She estimated that Roumania still contains 300,000 Jews.

From Iraq come a total of 20-25,000 every month. By June, however, it is thought that all but a small minority will have left that land.

Pioneer In Israel

Golda Myerson spent most of her years in America in Milwaukee, with brief periods spent in Denver, Chicago and New York. A school teacher, she became interested in relief activities in Jewish life during the First World War, and subsequently became interested in Zionism.

She left the United States for Palestine after the riots of May 1, 1921, at a time when the population of 80,000 Jews lived in a continual battleground. She recalled that they had to be careful not to go too far out of their settlements, or into Arab villages. She related that the second of November—anniversary of the Balfour Declaration—usually brought rioting with it. It was a good day to be inconspicuous and out of sight.

Mack M. Forman, general chairman of the Temple Beth El Building Campaign Committee, has announced that Temple members now have in their possession a complete brochure illustrating and describing the facilities of the proposed new Temple, Religious School and Meeting House planned for Butler Avenue.

The brochure contains architectural drawings of various elements of the new buildings, released for the first time, illustrating the design and decor of many of the interior facilities, and includes a ground floor plan and plot plan reproduced above.

In speaking of plans for The Loyalty Dinner Sunday night at the Sheraton-Biltmore, Walter I. Sundlun, chairman of the Fund-Raising Committee said that the 150th pledge had already been signed, and anticipated that many more would undoubtedly be announced at the Sunday dinner.

Architect Percival Goodman is finishing final working plans, according to Arthur J. Levy, chairman of the Building Plans Committee. Mr. Levy said that the plans have been unavoidably delayed because of a decision to revisit structural elements in order to eliminate the use of critical materials. Mr. Goodman will be at The Loyalty Dinner to outline progress on the plans.

SYD COHEN:

Bowling Windup

As this is written, the three Temple men's club's bowling leagues have not yet met for the 1951 Herald trophy. Even so, this annual tournament has become such an accepted part of our community's sports life that it cannot be permitted to pass unregarded. A tournament is not a small affair when 60 men take active part, and these 60, don't forget, are but a portion—the top portion—of the playing personnel of the three leagues.

For that reason we have dusted off the Herald's files all the way back to 1946 in order to compile a brief history of the annual tournament. Here are the highlights, followed by a recap of the first five years.

Temple Emanuel inaugurated the series with an 8-7 win over Temple Beth El. Temple Beth-Israel tallied one point. The match was decided in the C-team competition. Beth El was leading 7-6 at that stage, and the string was in doubt right down to the final box. Enter the hero—Jack Platkin, who picked up an amazing spare in his final box following a difficult break, to win the point for his team.

Jack was the difference, as the two C-teams had split the first two strings, with Emanuel piling up a lead in pinfall. In other words, had Beth El taken that one string, it would have won the tournament.

Individually speaking, Lou Chase took high three honors with 358, while his Emanuel teammate, Leo Miller, had the high single of 135.

Beth El made its second strong bid for victory, tying Beth-Israel in earned points with six each, while Emanuel, the defending champion, could tally but four. The difference came in total pinfall, where the Beth-Israelites had an advantage of 6067 to 6009. Again the so-called weaker teams dominated the picture. Beth-Israel's C outfit took three big points, plus a wide edge in pinfall that eventually proved to be the winning margin.

The Trinkel trophy went to Leo Borenstein of Beth-Israel, with a 347 total. Leo took the cup by one pin over Lou Chase of Emanuel and W. Meierowitz of Beth-Israel.

Beth-Israel made it two in a row via a thrilling 8-7 battle with Emanuel. Here again the lower echelon paved the way. Beth-Israel's D team won by one pin in the third string—and, believe it or not, that was the difference in the entire match. Here's how this column summarized the affair last year:

"Frank Merriwell had nothing on Beth-Israel's Myer Epstein in that 1948 edition. As anchor man for his D team, Myer came forward to roll his final two boxes with a 30-pin deficit staring him in the face. He rolled a strike—then a spare on the strike—and that tied it up. And on his last ball he got one single pin on that spare—and that one pin turned out to be the deciding factor in the tournament.

"Overall, Emanuel's four teams had the best total pinfall, and but for that one bad string by its D's, the East Siders would now boast a 3-1 edge over Beth-Israel."

Sam Segal of Beth-Israel ran away with individual honors, posting highs of 147 and 382. Segal took the Trinkel trophy only after a bitter battle with his teammate on Beth-Israel's A team, Oscar Dressler, who racked up 144 and 382.

For the third time in four years Beth El made a determined bid for the cup, but again Lady Luck looked the other way, and Emanuel came out on top to even the count with Beth-Israel. After two strings had been concluded, Beth El led Emanuel 5-4. Then the East Siders got hot, took three of the four team strings, plus another two points for total pinfall, and won going away. Beth-Israel couldn't make a fight of it this time.

Emanuel's Abe Press took the Trinkel cup with 384, but high single was chalked up by Joe Chernick, also of Emanuel, with 151.

This one was all Emanuel as the first Herald trophy finally was retired. Emanuel led all the way, and a desperate Beth-Israel third string rally fell considerably short, the East Siders winning with ten points to the Niagara Streeters' five. This one lacked the excitement of the previous tourneys simply because Emanuel's keglars made it so. They dominated the picture from the beginning and by the middle string there was little doubt as to the eventual outcome.

Alfred J. Abrams of Beth-Israel's C team won the Trinkel trophy with a creditable 379. Kaufman of Beth El's D's rolled 157 for high single. Amazing, isn't it, how often the lower teams grab the headlines.

Five Year Summary

As the boys took to the alleys Tuesday night, here was the five year picture of the tournament. Emanuel won three times, Beth-Israel took the honors twice. Beth El made three gallant bids, but fell just short each time.

On an individual basis, no winner has repeated, whether in the high three or high single department. Five years—five different winners of the Trinkel cup. And only one man—Sam Segal—has made a sweep of both high single and high three.
