Ben Gurion At Israel Polls In 1st Radio Photo

Germany's War Against Israel Not Over, Says Foreign Office

TEL AVIV — Reacting quickly and firmly to President Truman's recommendation that Congress end the state of war with Germany, the Israeli Foreign Office made it clear that Israel has no intention of going along with the three-power move because "the German war against the Jewish people cannot be regarded as having ended."

A spokesman of the Foreign Office disclosed that Israel had been informed by the Big Three of their intention to proclaim an end to the state of war with Germany and that Israel's reply was a negative one. Declaring that "for twelve years Germany pursued a hostile course against the Jewish people with a ruthless persistence unparalleled in any war," and that "such a course ended with the slaughter of 6,000,000 Jews in Europe," and that "six years after the end of hostilities Germany has not yet made expiation or reparation for the crime committed by the Nazis, nor yet abjured or solemnly dissociated itself from the appalling record of Nazi rule," the Israeli spokesman stressed that "so long as this state of affairs continues, Germany's war against the Jewish people cannot be regarded as having ended."

Flays Zionists For Interference

JERUSALEM — Rudolf Sonneborn, chairman of the United Palestine Appeal, lashed out here against Zionist leaders in America who, he said, "have almost completely divorced themselves from daily practical work for Israel in the United States and have time for constant maneuvering to associate the Zionist Organization of America with the General Zionists in Israel."

He hoped, he said, that the forthcoming World Zionist Congress will establish the relationship between Israel and the Zionist movement outside the Jewish State.

Ex-JWV Chief Bounced; Blames Pro-Mac Stand

CHICAGO (AJP) — One of American Jewry's top ranking military officers was stripped of National Guard units under his command this week and he promptly charged that he was "fired" because "I spoke out in support of General MacArthur's policies."

The military leader, Brig. Gen. Julius Klein of the Illinois National Guard is a past national commander of the Jewish War Veterans. He recently resigned as a member of the national executive committee of the American Jewish League Against Communism after the organization's director, Rabbi Benjamin Schultz, flayed General George C. Marshall and Admiral Chester Nimitz.

General Klein was notified late this week that units under his command would be transferred August 1 to the 133rd Artillery Division. Earlier Klein had been ordered by Illinois National Guard Gen. Harry L. Bolen to "choose between further indulgence in political controversies or membership in the guard."

Immediately following the transfer of units which left Klein without a single soldier to command, the former JWV national commander issued a statement in which he complained of pressure on Governor Stevenson of Illinois by "political" major generals.

"When General MacArthur was fired there was nothing he could do about it. I have been fired and there is nothing I can do about it other than to state what a dastardly trick it is."

Klein added that "this is the culmination of a series of events which began when I spoke out in support of General MacArthur's policies last April."

The Jewish general had served under MacArthur in the Pacific Theater of Operations during World War II.

Jewish Leaders Worried

Iran Blocks Visas For U. S. Jews; Isolates JDC Chief

NEW YORK (AJP)—Reports that American Jews have suddenly encountered serious difficulties in getting visas for Iran was added this week to a mounting list of developments pointing to Iran as the next Arab state likely to expel its Jews.

Any mass expulsion of Iran's 80,000 Jews would pose a tremendous new threat to Israel's already strained immigration program.

Another development was the disclosure that Stanley Abramovitz, Joint Distribution Committee official stationed in Teheran, has been virtually isolated in the Iranian capital. Abramovitz, the American Jewish Press learned, can no longer leave Teheran without police permission.

Both Jewish Agency and United

Jewish Appeal leaders in the United States were frankly worried.

The Damascus radio for the past month has been steadily predicting that Iran would be the next Arab country to institute what it termed "compulsory repatriation" of its Jews.

Another development which increased the worries of Jewish officials about Iran was that state's action in closing its consulate in Jerusalem on July 7. Iran was one of the few Moslem states which did not participate in the 1948 invasions of Palestine.

Heckler of Jewish Players Fined $200

CHICAGO — Nineteen-year-old Louis Passi, member of a gang that made it a practice to abuse Jewish players on the White Sox baseball team, was fined $200 here on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Marvin Rotblatt, one of the Jewish hurlers who had been the target of the gang's abuse, testified against Passi and another youth, who was discharged when none of the witnesses was able to identify him as one of the participants in the campaign of vituperation. Passi was identified by Philip Cohen, one of the Jewish youths who engaged the hecklers in a fight over their anti-Semitic activities at Comiskey Park.

Israel Helpful In Korean Armistice

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—Israel's proposals with regard to solving the Korean conflict have been very helpful in the current armistice negotiations, it was declared here by Dr. A. Bebbler, Yugoslavia's Ambassador to the United States and its chief delegate in the United Nations.

The Yugoslavian diplomat made the disclosure in a radio broadcast sponsored by the Association of United Nations Correspondents.

Ben-Gurion Party Makes Gains; Still Short of Demanded Majority

TEL AVIV (BY AMERICAN JEWISH PRESS CABLE) — The rocketing rise of the middle-class

General Zionists to Israel's second largest party and the refusal of Israel's voters in the second national election this week to give the Socialist Mapai an absolute majority pointed to another uneasy coalition government for the Jewish State.

With slightly more than two-thirds of the more than 850,000 ballots tabulated, Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion's Mapai climbed from 36 per cent in the first elections to the Israel Knesset to 39 per cent in Monday's elections, but it was far short of the absolute majority the white-haired Prime Minister had demanded in a whirlwind tour of every part of his small nation. The General Zionists rose from fifth place to second, collecting about 20 per cent of the turnout on the basis of incomplete returns from Israel's military personnel. The soldier vote will not be tabulated for several more days.

The left-wing Mapam drew 11.8 of the accounted vote; the right-wing Herut, an outgrowth of the extremist Irgun Zvai Leumi, accounted for 7.5 per cent; Hapoel Hamizrachi, 6.3; Progressives, 3.5; Communists, 3.3; Agudah, 2.2; Mizrachi, 1.2, and Poale Agudah, 1.7 per cent.

Despite the bitterness of campaign charges exchanged between the Mapai and the General Zionists, a spokesman for the latter indicated readiness to join in a coalition government with Ben-Gurion.

Observers agreed the Mapai might form a cabinet without the General Zionists by an alliance with the Progressives, an offshoot of the General Zionist Party of Israel.

Hapoel Hamizrachi had run independently after the Religious bloc, which had shared power with the Mapai in the first coalition government, failed to work out a united ticket for the second election.

Inclusion of the Religious Workers Party would, however, present the Mapai with the same problems on religion which had repeatedly rocked Israel's first government. It was agreed that any cabinet which failed to represent the growing middle-class sentiment represented by the General Zionists would have a difficult time getting the entire population to support the austerity regime upon which solution of Israel's economic problems depends.

Softball League Resumes Action

Their one-month hot-weather break completed, eight teams of the Jewish Softball League return to the battlefields on Sunday to resume the 1951 championship competition. The schedule for this Sunday follows:

Waldorf Tuxedo vs M & F Insurance at Richardson Park; Lincoln Woods Dairy vs Richards at Hopkins Park; Mathewson Toggery vs Natcor at Sessions Street; Broadway Auto vs Arden's at Roger Williams Park.

Each team is listed for eight games between August 5 and 25. Postponed games will be played off following that date, but only if they have some bearing on the race for the title.

Here's how the teams stand as they resume action this week:

JOSEPH LEVIN

Funeral services for Joseph Levin, a retired liquor dealer, of Prescott Street, East Providence, were held Wednesday from the Max Sugarman Funeral Home. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

Mr. Levin was a lifelong resident of this city, and had operated Leader's Liquor Store on Weybosset Street for 20 years before retiring last year. He was a member of the Providence Lodge, B.P.O.E., and the United Commercial Travelers, and was one of the charter members of Temple Emanuel.

Besides his widow, Muriel (Cote) Levin, he leaves two sons, Julius Levin of the Army, stationed at Camp Campbell, Ky., and David Levin of East Providence; two daughters, Mrs. Avis Smira and Mrs. Shirley Mills; two sisters, Mrs. Bessie Malin and Mrs. Minnie Blazer, all of this city, and five grandchildren.

MRS. BIRDIE H. GILMAN

Funeral services for Mrs. Birdie H. Gilman, 60, of 490 Angell Street, who died July 26 at Rhode Island Hospital after a long illness, were held July 27 at the Max Sugarman Funeral Home. Burial was in Temple Beth-El Cemetery, Reservoir Avenue.

The widow of David D. Gilman, she was born in Philadelphia and lived in Providence for 35 years. She was a past president of the Sisterhood of Temple Beth-El and an active member of many other organizations.

Survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Victor Baxt of Providence and Mrs. Howard Kane of Miami Beach, Fla.

MRS. SOPHIA LISKER

Funeral services for Mrs. Sophia Lisker, widow of Harris Louis Lisker, who died at her home, 141 Chester Street, last Friday after a long illness, were held Sunday, July 29 at the Max Sugarman Funeral Home. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

Born in Russia, the daughter of the late Eli and Sarah Lisker, she came to this country about 60 years ago. She was a member of the Hebrew Free Loan Association, the Jewish Home for the Aged and the Ladies Hebrew Aid Association.

Survivors include one daughter, Mrs. Rose Lisker; one brother, John Lisker; four sisters, Mrs. Annie Cohen, Mrs. Jennie White, Mrs. Morris Blackman and Mrs. Morris Berry; six sons, William, Albert, Irving, Arnold and Saul Lisker, all of Providence, Samuel Lisker of Oakland, California, and 14 grandchildren.

Letter From UJA Leader Lauds Israel's Achievements, Lists Needs

(The following letter was sent by air mail from Israel to Archibald Silverman. The writer, William Rosenwald, is a national chairman of the United Jewish Appeal. He and Mrs. Rosenwald are making an extended trip through Israel and in this letter they give their impression of the progress that has been made by the new Jewish state.)

DEAR MR. SILVERMAN:

"For the first time I have seen the thrilling results of what we have been helping to achieve in Israel.

"During the past nine days I traveled from one end of the country to the other, from the bleak Negev to the lovely port of Haifa, from gleaming Tel Aviv to the historic Sea of Galilee—looking and listening; talking with men, women and children, with 'sabras' and newcomers. This gave me the chance to see and to meet people from Rumanian cities and the ghettos of the Near East, from DP camps in Germany and little villages in Iraq. They have been pouring into Israel from every part of the globe to find their 'place in the sun.'

"You are familiar with the work of receiving refugees in our own country. You have welcomed newcomers who arrived bewildered and uncertain, but ready to pour all their energy and experience into their new lives. You helped them, provided them with the essentials to make a start, advised and encouraged them.

"This same thing is happening in Israel—multiplied ten times over. While we in the United States prepare to welcome some 20,000 immigrants during 1951, Israel, whose resources are but a small fraction of ours, is opening her gates to more than 200,000 this year.

"While I visited Haifa Harbor a ship from Rumania arrived, her decks filled with joyful newcomers singing and waving to those below. As the gangplank went down, the strains of 'Hatikvah' made a background for the happy—and the tearful—sounds of welcome. As each person was greeted with joy and excitement by his family and friends, I could not help but think of the years of persecution, hope and patient waiting that preceded his arrival, and I realized that, but for the understanding support of the Jews of America, this ship might not be docking and these people might not be here.

"Six hundred thousand immigrants have arrived in Israel since 1948. Another 600,000 will come in the next three years, if present plans are carried out.

"These enormous numbers could not be absorbed without great sacrifice by those already here. Everyone's belt is pulled very tight. Austerity is still the byword. Food and clothing are still strictly rationed. Housing is scarce and, where available, is stringently limited. Many of the amenities we take for granted are unknown. Although the people gladly accept shortages, they naturally yearn for the day when restrictions can be relaxed.

"One figure stands out in my mind: I am told that to feed 30,000 newcomers a month—and they have been arriving at that rate—Israel must import (and pay for, in dollars) an extra 300 tons of wheat a month above her normal imports. The country cannot yet feed the influx of immigrants from her own food resources. Only we in America can help to solve this problem.

"But, in spite of everything, morale is high. Whether one talks with a government official in Jerusalem or with a newcomer at Shaar Aliyah, there is the same earnestness, the same enthusiasm, the same confidence in tomorrow.

"I remember the Maabarah (work camp) at Tiberias, to which newcomers go on arrival, so that they can at once begin to engage in productive activity. As they build their own houses, construct roads and make the earth flourish, they seem to expand like plants in the sunlight. One can almost see them drop their fears as men drop off worn, soiled clothing. Nothing is too hard for them.

"'Seeds of the future' the Israelis call the children. Sturdy, alert, filled with bouncing energy, they are one of the most hopeful sights in this inspiring land. From dozens of countries, they blend and merge in harmony, studying, working and playing together, as I saw them doing at the Youth Aliyah Children's Transit Camp in Ahuza.

"We and our associates can feel a deep and rightful pride in what we have done to rekindle hope and to rebuild dignity; for, everywhere, I have been deeply conscious that much of the activity and the achievement was made possible through the aid of the United Jewish Appeal.

"My sentiments were echoed in talks with many of Israel's leaders. They are fully cognizant of the vital role of the UJA and of the importance of continued gifts of free dollars. They warmly welcome our efforts and appreciate our devotion.

"The Prime Minister spoke particularly of his visit to the United States and of the momentous UJA National Action Conference in Chicago with its 'parade of checks' which brought UJA's cash collection for the month of May to a total of nearly $16,000,000. He asked me, as national chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, to urge our leaders and workers everywhere to keep on in the same spirit of unflagging enthusiasm which he saw in action in Chicago.

"Having seen Israel, having witnessed what our efforts through UJA mean in terms of human beings and growth and progress, I pass on Prime Minister Ben-Gurion's message with my own urgent request that you press forward with the utmost vigor for a successful conclusion of our campaign.

"Here's hoping that the next few months may give us a chance to talk about this face to face. Meanwhile, as I have heard so often, and with so much meaning during the last few days: 'Shalom!'"

Shocked Rabbi Urges Jewish 'Billy Sundays' to Awaken Jewry

CHICAGO* (AJP)— A retired Chicago rabbi, shocked by his observations of New York Jewry during a visit, issued a call last week for some "Jewish Billy Sundays to awaken New York Jews to their responsibilities."

The proposal for some hard-hitting evangelists for the world's largest Jewish community was made by Dr. George Fox, writing in his column, "The Watch Tower," in the Chicago Jewish Sentinel.

Asserting that New York Jews as he saw them "care little about their religion and its meaning," Rabbi Fox said that he had observed incidents of Jewish living which he had never seen in his 50 years in Chicago.

He cited a case of a Jewish family which had a non-kosher kitchen and even ate pork products.

"But the head of the family lays tephillin as does the son and of course with covered head," Rabbi Fox wrote.

He also said he had a friendly discussion with members of the family, who told him they saw nothing strange about it.

"And I was assured that in New York this practice is not unusual," the Chicago rabbi declared.

"What a live bunch of rabbis with guts to stand the gaff could do in New York," he concluded. "We need a few Jewish Billy Sundays to awaken New York Jews to their responsibilities."

Hebrew Day School To Hold Carnival

The Providence Hebrew Day School will hold its third annual Carnival and Country Fair at the Narragansett Pier Casino on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday evenings of August 19, 20, 21, respectively. The affair is being run for the benefit of the School's Scholarship Fund. This Fund is used for those students who cannot afford to pay full tuition or any tuition at all.

Tickets are being sold for a drawing to be held on the last night of the Carnival. There will be three grand prizes as well as free nightly door prizes. A feature attraction will be an auction booth each evening, where new merchandise will be sold to the highest bidder, regardless of value.

Tickets for the drawing can be obtained from any member of the Hebrew Day School Board of Directors or from the parents of the children attending the Hebrew Day School. Admission is free to the public.

Bob Berlinsky and George Labush head the Men's group. Mrs. Isaiah Segal and Mrs. Joseph Dubin are in charge of the Women's group.

Center Campers Entertain Parents

Approximately 400 parents and friends attended Camp Centerland's Parents' Day program Monday, to see the camp in operation and witness a special program called "Gym-Antics," presented by the campers.

The "Gym-Antic" program was prepared under the direction of Ernie Steck, director of Health and Physical Education at the Jewish Community Center. Sam Eisenstadt, director of Centerland, and the counselor staff, assisted. In addition to the group presentations, individual stunts were performed by Ronnie Max, Barbara Goldstein, Susie Newman, Brenda Kritzman, Elayne Ackerman, Eleanor Warren, Didi Warren, Livvy Young and Elaine Siegel.

Visitors' Day committee, consisting of members of the Women's and Parents' Associations of the Center, included Mesdames David Chernack, chairman; Fred Tenenbaum, co-chairman; William Bojar, Irvin Bornside, Raymond G. Franks, Howard Schneider and Isadore Wolf.

Milton C. Kay, chairman of the Center's Camping Committee, reminded parents that there is still time for registration of children during the August periods. For further information, parents may call the Center, DE 1-6730.

Truman Backs Israel on Suez

NEW YORK CITY (AJP)—President Truman is supporting Israel's stand against any blockade by Egypt of Suez Canal shipping destined for the Jewish State, a leading Zionist official disclosed this week following a visit to the White House.

Benjamin Browdy, national president of the Zionist Organization of America, also reported that the President expressed hope that a lasting peace would be achieved in the Middle East.

Referring to the importance of keeping the Suez Canal open for Israel-bound shipping, Browdy said that "Egypt is of course out to hurt Israel, but among the sufferers are not only Israel but the whole international comity, including the United States, Great Britain and the nations of the Atlantic Pact."

Browdy flayed the State Department's proposal to allocate $23,000,000 to Israel as a "poor substitute" for the proposed $150,-

Jews Buy Drugs, Pay Rent For Youth Dying From Leukemia

NEW YORK CITY (AJP)—A little non-Jewish boy whose birthday celebration was moved up one month because he may be a victim of dreaded leukemia before his 10th birthday was still alive this week thanks to three heart-touched Jews, one of whom lost a 12-year-old son to the disease last year.

The puny dying boy, nine-year-old Peter Bena, was in high spirits this week after members of the Naval Recruiting Service sent the boy a batch of magazines with which to pass the hours.

But the generosity of three Jews cheered little Peter and his parents most in the tragic battle against death. Peter's father, John, 30, is a $55-a-week factory worker who found himself unable to come close to meeting medical expenses and paying the $30-a-month rent on the family's four-room cold water flat.

A dry goods store operator, Sam Wein came through to pay the rent for the Benas. Another Jewish businessman, stationer David Levine drove Mrs. Bena "all over town" before dawn Saturday in search of much-needed cortisone—and then gave Mrs. Bena the $36 to pay for the drug.

But by far the most generous gesture came from a Jewish father whose 12-year-old son, Harold, died of the dread disease last year. Sidney Epstein, of Long Island, offered to supply the expensive cortisone and required blood transfusions.

Molly Picon Appears At Pier Bond Show

Molly Picon, celebrated Yiddish comedienne, and her playwright husband, Jacob Kalish, headlined an "All Stars Night" entertainment program that was presented Saturday evening at the Narragansett Pier Casino in behalf of the Bonds for Israel drive. Approximately 300 people were present at the rally.

In addition to the songs, skits and stories of Mr. Kalish and Miss

THE Fifth Commandment, "Honor Thy Father and Thy Mother", means not only during their lifetime, but during your lifetime, and beyond your lifetime. If your children are shown, by example, that you treasure the memory of your deceased parents, keeping alive their memory by the frequency of your visits to their resting place, and making it a symbol of reverence and beauty . . . if they are shown all this from earliest childhood, they will honor your memory the same way in the future.

Any small child taken to a beautiful garden like Sharon Memorial Park, the first all-Jewish cemetery of its kind in New England, will be influenced favorably. The child will learn in a natural way that death is just as normal as life and that the essence of true love lies in a lasting perpetuation of memory.

Sharon Memorial Park means progress; it means that your children will find it easier to visit you, after you are gone, in surroundings of dignity and beauty.

Wisconsin Bars
Bias Resort Ads;
$100 Fines, Jail

MADISON, Wis. (AJP)—Wisconsin had a strengthened state law this week against advertising hotels and amusement places as being restricted against minority groups.

Governor Kohler signed the new law to end advertising of "restricted clientele" or "Gentiles only" which had flourished under the old legislation.

The new ruling provides for fines up to $100 or six months in jail for violation of provisions of the anti-bias resort law.

BEN-GURION AND UJA CHAIRMAN TALK OVER ISRAEL CASH NEEDS

William Rosenwald, National Chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, and Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, in their shirt-sleeves on a warm day in Jerusalem, relive the National Action Conference of the United Jewish Appeal held in Chicago on May 26-27, when 1,000 American Jewish leaders presented the Prime Minister with cash contributions totalling $16,000,000 to help meet Israel's immigration crisis.

The book they are examining is one of a set of souvenir albums of the Conference at which Mr. Ben-Gurion was guest of honor and principal speaker, and which Mr. Rosenwald brought to Israel as a gift to the Prime Minister.

Education Survey

Dear Editor:

As one who is deeply interested in Jewish Education in America, I would like to say that the Jewish community of Providence has performed a valuable service in undertaking a study of the situation in Providence in regard to Jewish education. By publishing a summary of the findings of the Committee, your paper is in turn contributing to a better understanding by the Jewish community of the true nature of the problem and the need for some serious thinking concerning it.

Of course, what has been found to be the situation in Providence can generally be duplicated in any other community throughout the country wherever some form of Jewish life and activity are found to exist to any extent. It is true in regards to such a community as Arlington where thus far there is but one Sunday School and one Hebrew School (both conducted by the Jewish Center here); it is equally true with our big neighbor, Washington, D. C., perhaps even more so because of the multiplicity of various, unrelated Jewish schools of one form or another. For that reason I believe that the study made by Providence and its findings should be made available to all Jewish communities and to all those to whom the problem of Jewish education is one with the entire question of Jewish living and survival. I, for one, would greatly appreciate receiving a copy of the report; both myself and my community stand to gain a great deal from it.

Our Film Folk

By LEON GUTTERMAN

Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis are probably the freshest, the merriest and zaniest comedy team in show business. The ultimate exponents of all the best elements in comedy, satirical as well as slapstick, they have added the attribute of "good taste." There has never been one risqué or off-color routine in their repertoire.

The talented zanies recently completed their fourth motion picture for producer Hal Wallis, "That's My Boy," and they'll soon be seen on the screens of the nation. Their last film, "At War With the Army," was the highest comedy grosser in Paramount history.

The gags and antics expounded by Dean and Jerry are as spontaneous and exciting as champagne bubbles. They work without benefit of script or writers. Their humor emanates from bright, receptive observant minds... their own. In wit and ebullience, they are "naturals." It takes a pretty hard-bitten sourpuss to refrain from howling at them at one point or another.

Straight Man?

Martin is ostensibly the straight man. Yet at the same time he is able through subtle drollery, to send audiences into near hysterics. When singing, however, he has a rich, baritone voice, and if Lewis weren't such a terrific clown, one might object to his breaking up Martin's singing with his antics. The act contains several popular ballads, impersonations, skits and general upheaval. Since there is no prepared material, the boys do a great deal of ad-libbing at each show, consequently surprising each other.

While working on their latest film Jerry turned to Dean and said: "You're not just the right type for this part. You're playing a lover. You get the beautiful girl. But your nose is all wrong. Let's put some adhesive tape on it and build it up."

"Adhesive tape on my nose," asked Dean, "how will I smell?" "I don't know," replied Jerry. "We'll wait till the picture's finished to find that out."

How They Began

The young comedy team was brought together by chance five years ago in Atlantic City. Jerry was appearing at the 500 Club there and one night the owner found himself minus an act. Jerry suggested his friend Dean Martin, a singer. The owner protested that he didn't want a singer and Jerry replied, "But he's more than a singer. He's also a very funny guy, and he'd be a great straight man for me. We could do a lot of funny things together."

Thinking it over, the owner decided he had nothing to lose so he put them on as a team. One week passed and nothing funny happened. The owner of the nightclub wanted to know what

MISS CAROL J. RADOVSKY

Mr. and Mrs. H. William Radovsky of Fall River announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Carol Judith, to Richard Kaplan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kaplan of 498 Cole Avenue.

A graduate of Erskine Jr. College, Boston, Miss Radovsky studied also at Wheelock College and Brandeis University. Miss Radovsky's father is an Assistant Attorney General of Massachusetts.

Mr. Kaplan is a member of the U. S. Army Reserve and an alumnus of Colby College, Maine.

had happened to all that funny stuff they could do together. Then, repeating that he didn't want a singer, he told them they had better get funny fast or they'd both be out of jobs.

Dean and Jerry locked themselves in their hotel room but they were unable to put anything down on paper. When they emerged for the evening performance, they had no script, no planned strategy. But nevertheless they were determined to be funny. And that night, as Dean sang, Jerry started rattling dishes, breaking trays and hitting people sitting at the ringside tables. They acted like madmen and the audience loved it. By the end of the week they had their routine down pat. And, though they have continued to add bits and impersonations since that time, their act has remained as spontaneous and as zany.

Personal Histories

Jerry Lewis, who is six feet tall, was born on March 16, 1926, in Newark, New Jersey. He is the only child of Danny and Mrs. Lewis, who have been in show business for 27 years. Grease paint was in young Jerry's blood and even while attending high school he was putting on amateur shows to raise money for various causes. On October 2, 1944, he married lovely Patty Palmer, former vocalist for the Jimmy Dorsey and Ted Fiorito bands. They have a son, Gary, 5; also a second, Ronnie, 8 months.

Dean Martin was born June 7, 1917, in Steubenville, Ohio. He attended high school, and a couple of years after graduation, when he was 20, his family moved to Long Beach, California. Dean tried a dozen professions before he decided to become a singer. He was an amateur prizefighter, a gas station attendant, a mill hand and a gambling house croupier. About six years ago he took up singing as a career, though he had no previous experience, not even as a child. Six feet tall, Dean is married to Jeannie Bigger, a former model.

After their successful engagement at Atlantic City, the boys appeared in the Latin Casino in Philadelphia. During their run, they broke Ted Lewis' nine-year record for both attendance and gross receipts. Closing night, the management gave them each a new Cadillac as a bonus.

Swamped With Offers

Since forming their team, Martin and Lewis haven't had a day off. They now receive more offers than they can possibly fulfill. It was during their first engagement at Slapsie Maxie's in Los Angeles that their act came to the attention of film producer Hal Wallis of Paramount. He promptly signed them to a motion picture contract, and for their screen debut, he had important roles written into the script of "My Friend Irma." The boys played two eager, ambitious troupers, trying to crack Broadway.

First Wirephoto For English-Jewish Press Flashed By A.J.P. From Tel Aviv To N.Y.C.

The photograph in this week's edition of a highlight from the Israeli national elections marks an historic event: it is the first transoceanic wirephoto ever flashed from Israel direct to the United States for publication by the English-Jewish press in this country.

Use of this news photo, sent by Radio Israeli in bustling Tel Aviv to New York City and rushed to the Jewish Herald by the American Jewish Press inaugurates a vital new feature. Regularly some important picture aspect of the life of Israel will be transmitted to the United States for distribution by the AJP, the press service of the American Association of English-Jewish Newspapers.

The significant addition by the American Jewish Press of wirephotos makes it possible to bring to readers of AJP member-newspapers a pictorial report of Israel at a speed never before attained in the English-Jewish field. Important news events happening as late as noon Tuesday in Israel can appear in the local English-Jewish weekly on Friday of the same week.

Behind this pioneering development lie two fascinating stories, the progress of Israel in building a modern communications network, both inside the tiny republic and with the rest of the world and the advances of modern radio communications.

Israel not only had to rebuild and expand its interior telephone and telegraph facilities to keep pace with the growth of the new Jewish State, but also faced the problem of establishing for the first time its own communications with the outside world.

Under Zvi Prihar, Director General of Posts, Telegraphs and Telephones in the Israel Ministry of Communications, Israel is swiftly becoming one of the most modern communications centers in the star strategic Near East.

Israel's first direct international service, significantly, was not to the Old World but to the New.

One of the first developments was the setting up of radio-telegraph and radio-telephone connections through American relay stations in the international zone of Tangier.

This service, which was on an emergency basis, was replaced on Sept. 1, 1948 by the inauguration of through service to the United States via the Mackay Radio relay station in Tangier. Right now, the radio-telephone circuit operates direct to the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. in New York City. The radio-telegraph circuit to Mackay Radio is operated with the latest radio printer equipment which produces type-written messages.

The radiophoto of the Israeli elections in this week's edition was sent by Radio Israel, direct to New York City by a process similar to television—long distance radio photo sending, sometimes called facsimile, slower than television but fast enough. The radio photo you see in this week's issue required 12 minutes to send. This is how it was done:

The photograph, snapped in the usual manner via special arrangements by the AJP, was rushed to the transmitting room. There it was attached to a cylindrical, which turns at the rate of 60 times a minute while moving forward horizontally at the rate of 128 lines per inch. A beam of light shining upon a small part as the drum rotates and advances, picks up tiny light or dark reflections of the picture and converts these into electrical impulses. These impulses are amplified and applied to a high powered radio transmitter and sent to the United States.

At the receiving end in New York City the electrical impulses are reconverted into a beam of light which shines on a photographic film attached to a cylinder identical in size and speed to the one in Radio Israel. The beam faithfully reproduces in New York the exact light and dark reflections coming from Tel Aviv. When the operation is over, the operator in New York at Mackay Radio develops the film in the usual manner and makes a print which is a true facsimile of the photograph.

This marvel of modern technology now for the first time is at the service of the Jewish Herald, a member newspaper of the American Jewish Press.

Remember.....

 Your Loved Ones and Friends

IN MEMORY of a departed friend or loved one... as an expression of sympathy to those bereaved... to give deeper meaning to precious remembrance... contribute to the Home's Memorial Fund through the purchase of a "perpetual Memorial Tablet."

On Yahrzeit dates the Home, through the lips of aged residents, renders homage to the memory of your loved ones by saying Kaddish and special prayers. Also an individual lamp, attached to the tablet, is kept burning from sunset to sunset.

Four times a year, during Yizkor services, the lamps of the entire memorial tablet in our synagogue are lighted in commemoration of the departed in accordance with Jewish tradition.

By ordering a memorial plate for your loved ones you not only perpetuate their memory in a lasting way, but you also help sustain and bring comfort to the aged in your midst.

Memorial Plates that are purchased during special services at the Home on Sunday, October 7,

B'nai B'rith Services At Famed Cathedral

Special religious services will be conducted Sunday at 3 P. M. at the Cathedral-in-the-Pines, in Rindge, N. H. under the sponsorship of Central New England Council, B'nai B'rith.

Rabbi Roland Gittelsohn of New York, Jewish chaplain with the 4th Marine Division at Iwo Jima during World War II, and a member of President Truman's Civil Rights Commission, will be guest speaker. Music will be provided by the choir of Boston's Temple Mish Kan Tefla.

The Cathedral - in - the - Pines, located high on a promontory at Rindge, overlooking the town of Winchendon, was established in memory of a deceased soldier, and is dedicated to the worship of God by men of all faiths and creeds. Thousands of persons who attended similar services last year, witnessed the dedication of a memorial to the memory of the Four Chaplains.

An American shrine, the Cathedral-in-the-Pines is visited annually by thousands. It is 80 miles from Providence. There is no admission charge, and no solicitation of funds.

Hungary Expells 600 Jews Weekly

TEL AVIV — Approximately 10,000 Jews have been shipped out of Budapest, with about 600 middle class Jews being expelled from various Hungarian towns weekly, it was declared here by a group of Jews who recently arrived here from Hungary.

The immigrants disclosed that some 25,000 Hungarian Jews had already applied for permission to leave Hungary for Israel.

They are founded upon a recently compiled report which, in turn, is based upon the findings and recommendations of a committee appointed in November, 1949 to conduct a thorough survey of Jewish education facilities in Rhode Island's capital city. The survey was directed by, and the report prepared with the assistance of Dr. Uriah Z. Engelman of the American Association of Jewish Education.)

Last spring, the various sub-committees that made up the GJC's Survey Committee on Jewish Education turned in a formal 60-page report to Joseph W. Ress, general chairman of the group, for transmittal to the Board of Directors of the G.J.C.

The report roughly was divided equally between findings and recommendations. The findings were important. They revealed serious shortcomings in the curriculum, enrollment, faculty, physical housing and financing of the 12 schools—six elementary weekday afternoon schools and six Sunday schools—that make up the Jewish educational system in Providence.

But even more important than the findings were the recommendations, for it is comparatively easy to criticize—but not always easy to come up with constructive recommendations that will eliminate, or alleviate to a great extent, the conditions that lead to critical comment.

Weaknesses and Recommendations
The 75 men and women who served on the committee performed their task well. They succeeded in pinpointing in tactful but trenchant language the more important glaring weaknesses of the Jewish school system as it exists today; and they rounded off their study with a host of comprehensive and thoughtful recommendations for correcting these failings.

The committee summed up the findings of its sub-groups in these words: "These reports . . . point to the absolute necessity for strengthening the system of Jewish education in Providence, coordinating its activities and raising its standards."

To best achieve these far-reaching objectives, it was the consensus of all the sub-committees that their various recommendations would most effectively be implemented by the formation of a "Central Community Agency for Jewish Education."

Community Representation

Such a central agency—as visualized by the report—should be an affiliate of the General Jewish Committee of Providence, and should be composed of representatives of all the educational interests in the community, as well as representatives of the community at large.

As outlined in the survey, the central agency would have these broad functions and obligations:

1) It should recognize the right of the several groups within the community to their respective doctrinal differences, and not impose any one dominant curriculum on the various schools.

2) It should endeavor to establish an educational framework within which all elements in the field of Jewish education could work effectively.

3) It would act as a service agency, both administrative and educational, for all the schools—helping to promote registrations; to introduce uniform records of attendance, achievement, promotion and graduation; to achieve and maintain high standards of teaching, facilities and equipment, and to provide expert supervision of the work.

4) It would also act as a service agency for the entire community in developing programs of Jewish education for young men and women, as well as programs for parent education.

5) It would serve, too, in a public relations capacity, by interpreting the value of Jewish education to the community.

Plan of Action

In detail, the report spells out the administrative functions of the proposed agency, the educational services that should be rendered to the schools, and a plan of action to best carry out its role as a service agency to the community as a whole.

A representative board of trustees, a qualified professional director and six standing committees would guide the operation of the agency. In addition, an "advisory educational council," consisting of professionals representing the community's various

THE PROVIDENCE JEWISH HERALD, FRIDAY, AUGUST 3, 1951

A Proud and Important Moment

With this edition, the Jewish Herald joins other leading English-Jewish newspapers throughout the United States, in South Africa and in Israel in marking a "first" in our field of journalism.

For the first time in the history of the English-Jewish press a transoceanic wirephoto flashed by the American Jewish Press, the news service of the American Association of English-Jewish Newspapers, of which the Jewish Herald is a member, appears in our issue. Frankly, it is both a proud—and an important moment.

We are proud because the Jewish Herald shares in the event. As a local representative of the American Association of English-Jewish Newspapers, the Jewish Herald contributed proportionately to the birth of this news service which recently made available its services to the State Department's "Voice of America" for broadcasts aimed at keeping Israelis informed of the activities of American Jewry.

The importance of the latest forward event is obvious. Now, for the first time, readers of the Jewish Herald will be serviced with the latest news pictures direct from Israel with a speed never before attained in the English-Jewish newspaper field. Hours after important events occur in Israel the pictorial version will be enroute to you via the Jewish Herald. In uncertain times such as these this new forward step links closer the people of Israel and American Jewry.

As time goes on the vital importance of this new never-before experienced close tie will make its mark on binding our peoples together.

It is indeed a proud and an important moment.

The Mufti's Hand?

In Israel, where ears are necessarily attuned to what is going on behind the Arab curtain, the suspicion exists that the assassination of King Abdullah had been engineered by the former Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, whose criminal association with Hitler and the Nazis should have brought him to the gallows instead of the international scene.

People familiar with the pattern of intrigue in the Middle East had long known that the Mufti had been hatching behind-the-scenes plots against Israel and against King Abdullah for having pursued a realistic policy toward his Israelite neighbor. The Mufti had for years been feuding with the Jordanian monarch and their mutual animosity was sharpened to the point of dagger when Amman defied the Arab League in handling the historic fact—Israel's existence. We are inclined to accept the view that King Abdullah's assassination was the culmination of the conspiratorial activities of the Mufti in a number of Arab capitals recently.

But whatever interpretations are placed on the development at this moment, the outstanding fact remains that the bullet which killed the monarch may upset the equilibrium in the Middle East. Its repercussions may be a stiffening by the Arab states against UN bids for peace with Israel and, possibly, aggressive designs against Israel, a contingency which has never been ruled out by Israeli officials, military as well as diplomatic.

Israel, we are sure, is guarding its gates. In view of the nationalist wave that is sweeping that sector of the world it would be well for the UN to increase its vigilance now, before the situation gets critical.

Writer Charges Communists With Fomenting Anti-Semitism

Jacob Spolansky, Russian writer who became a confidential agent and investigator and who has exposed Communist activities in this country, gives new accounts of the penetration of foreign agents into our labor movements, into racial struggles, into government, in efforts to undermine confidence and foment conspiracies, in a new book, "The Communist Trail in America" (Macmillan). Mr. Spolansky says of "The Communist Trail in America:

"The book covers every type and phase of Communist penetration in the United States . . . it is addressed to the proverbial man-in-the-street, the man who, while he cannot grasp the intricacies of Communist theory, can visualize the nature of the virus when he reads about the people who have been leading the struggle against him in his own backyard. This is no idle philosophizing on the merits or demerits of Communism: I can say with vigor, 'I was there!'"

He names names and places, tells of the activities of the well known and less known Communist leaders, exposes among others Joseph Kowalski as "The Little Stalin of Michigan."

Mr. Spolansky charges that the Communists were responsible for the race riots in Detroit in 1943 and accuses them of fomenting trouble in Peekskill, N. Y., in 1949. About the occurrences in the latter, in which Paul Robeson plays a role, he writes:

"Two professional agitators, Raymond Burke of the Bronx and James H. Modole of Beacon, N. Y., both prolific writers and distributors of hate literature, were found in the area, distributing their characteristic stickers and pamphlets. They had come, we learned, to explode the tensions and give the disturbance an anti-Semitic and anti-Negro complexion. They, too, had wanted to ride on the crowded bandwagon. In their suitcases, they carried their scurrilous stock in trade, the usual slogans "Behind Communism Stands the Jew," and "For My Country Against the Jew."

He adds: "If it were not for the Communists, Gerald L. K. Smith could not survive, so much does he need them to carry on."

educational institutions "should function in an advisory capacity in close cooperation" with committee on curricula—one of the six standing committees.

To the writer, the committee's blueprint contains all the factors—qualitatively and quantitatively—that make for a well-rounded modern educational system, Jewish or non-Jewish.

Should Pool Resources

In this respect, the word "modern" is used advisedly. It is significant that, in referring to educational services to schools that can be offered by the agency, the report recommends maintaining "a lending library service" of audio-visual aids and equipment.

This "service" would include slides, pictures, records, films, film strips, radio discs, projectors, and portable recorders to be used as aids in teaching in both the weekday and Sunday schools.

Another noteworthy feature of the report—in this reviewer's opinion—is the emphasis placed upon the agency's public relations role in interpreting the value of Jewish education in the community and "in creating a favorable climate for the acceptance of Jewish education."

Schools Retain Independence

But perhaps the most significant aspect of all is the report's care in "affirming the right of the several groups within the community to their respective ideological school differences."

In phrases such as these, the report states and restates this vital requisite: ". . . should not impose any one dominant curriculum on the various schools;" ". . . with due regard at all times to reasonable differences of opinion as to the ends of Jewish education and the means of their attainment;" ". . . the creation of an educational framework in which all interested elements can function effectively."

If the proposed Central Agency of Jewish Education is organized and carries out the committee's recommendations with the same sensitive appreciation of "the right to a reasonable difference of opinion" on the part of all the various groups in the Jewish community of Providence, then its success seems assured.

Long-Range Program

This is not to say that an "orderly and unified school system" will be forthcoming overnight. Considerable time, effort and money must be expended before the program outlined by the committee becomes a full-fledged reality.

But the goal is most worthy. And the Jewish community of Providence has the necessary resources—backed by a reservoir of intelligent lay and religious leaders—to overcome any obstacles that may present themselves.

As Aristotle remarked centuries ago: "The roots of education are sometimes bitter, but the fruit is sweet."

Judge Gives 'Journal' Backers Week To Raise Funds for Paper

NEW YORK CITY (AJP) — Backers of the defunct Jewish Morning Journal were reportedly given until August 10th this week by a Federal Court judge to deposit $140,000 in a bank or lose the right to republish the idle Yiddish daily.

Supporters of a plan to reopen the paper, which closed several months ago in the face of rising costs and falling revenues, reportedly accumulated a total of more than $120,000 in the past four weeks.

A figure of $140,000 had been set by Judge Sidney Sugarman as a minimum for reopening the paper. The jurist was reported to have set August 10th as a deadline for the meeting of the amount.

In the event the backers find themselves unable to raise the money it was likely that Irving Jacobs, son-in-law of the Jewish Day's publisher, would be given approval to dispose of 83 percent of the stock he now holds in the Journal. Jacobs is anxious to sell the stock, it was reported.

Any such sale of stock would doom plans to reopen the idle paper.

Buster Narrator On
Nat'l Radio Show

NEW YORK CITY (AJP) — Millions of radio listeners from coast to coast this week heard a new voice narrate one of the ether's most popular melodramas, "Gangbusters."

The new narrator for the true-from-life crime stories was Randolph Halley, the young Jewish chief prosecutor for the Senate Crime Commission inquiry.

Halley, who is the Liberal and Fusion Party choice in the November elections for President of City Council here, will begin another radio series next month, in addition to his narration chores for "Gangbusters."

Klein to Represent Latin American Jewry

Rabbi Carol Klein, formerly rabbi of Congregation Sons of Jacob, is representing the Latin American Mizrahi Organization at the World Zionist Congress to be held in Jerusalem on August 14th. Rabbi Klein is flying to Israel on August 5 from Buenos Aires, and from Israel directly to Australia, where he will be the guest of Australian Jewry till after the holidays.

Rabbi Klein is scheduled to speak in Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane, Adelaide and Perth. On his way back he will be in New Zealand and the United States. On his trip from Israel to Australia, Rabbi Klein will also visit India and Indonesia, in order to get acquainted with the Jewry of those countries.

Famed Showman Dies in New York

NEW YORK CITY (AJP) — A talented Polish Jew who rose from dish washer to win world acclaim on the stage with his "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," died here this week. Emil Boreo, comedian of the theater, stage and films was 65.

The exuberant, wide-eyed Boreo came to the United States in 1922 following a brilliant European career. He was the first to introduce the "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers."

Boreo was a dishwasher in a London hotel when the late Charles Cochran, an English show producer, heard the Jewish boy singing while he worked. So impressed was Cochran that he urged him to immediately take singing lessons and arranged for Boreo to study in Paris.

Several years later Boreo appeared as half of a comic horse in a hilarious French circus; graduated to roles in the Opera Comique and worked his way upward to share billings with such stars as Sarah Bernhardt, Maurice Chevalier and Mistinguett.

Boreo appeared in several films and until his illness two years ago, he had been active in radio, the Jewish theatre and night clubs.

1st American Jewish College Opened In 1855 with 14 Students

By JUDAH GILEADI

Zion College, the first school of higher learning to be established in this country, opened in the fall of 1855 with 12 Jewish and two Christian students. It was founded in Cincinnati by the Zion College Association which was formed by Dr. Isaac M. Wise, founder of the Reform Jewish movement in the United States.

Financial difficulties forced the closing of Zion College in 1857.

While Zion College was sponsored by the Reform Jewish elements, Maimonides College, which was founded in 1867 in Philadelphia, was the creation of the Orthodox group.

Other unsuccessful attempts were made to found Jewish Colleges in several American cities. Hebrew Union College, Dropsie College, Jewish Theological Seminary, and Isaac Elchanan Yeshiva were among the first schools formed that have survived all obstacles. Brandeis University is another pride of American Jewry.

On the INTERMARRIAGE Front

Love Isn't Enough, Rabbi Says Urges Mixed Marriage Courts

NEW YORK (AJP)—Love for a Jew by a non-Jew is not the same thing as love for Judaism and it is for this reason that responsible rabbis refuse to perform conversions in cases of intermarriage.

So argues Rabbi Solomon Weinberger, writing on "Conversion for Marriage" in the current issue of Orthodox Jewish Life, the official publication of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations.

Rabbi Weinberger, who was selected to make a survey of that practice in American Jewish communities, said there had developed an "unfortunate tendency to regard the ritual of conversion as a satisfactory solution to the ills and problems of intermarriage."

As far as traditional Judaism is concerned, there is "ample evidence that conversion for marriage has no validity in Jewish life," the Babylon, N. Y., rabbi declared.

"Deep-rooted spiritual conviction, intellectual integrity and emotional sincerity" were listed as the only basis for any conversion by Rabbi Weinberger, who added that "conversion where these elements are lacking is a ludicrous and preposterous mockery of a sacred ideal."

Terming present conditions a confused and chaotic state of affairs, he proposed the establishment of a system of centralized specially — authorized rabbinical courts "that will have sole power to act on all aspects of conversion and related family matters."

He said this was the only plan that would "check the present ill before it assumes the proportions of a plague."

Rabbi Weinberger said he believed that both rabbis and parents would have good reason to welcome such a system.

Such courts would handle impartially problems of conversion which are too much for the individual rabbi. "Under the proposed plan, the rabbi confronted with a serious problem will simply direct or refer the interested parties to the nearest court."

"Interested parents or friends, too, will no longer be compelled to seek the doubtful advice of unauthorized counsellors, but will instead turn to the official rabbinical courts," Rabbi Weinberger explained.

Assembly Delegates

Esther Tillinger and Rosalie Jacobs have been appointed as delegates from the Providence Jewish Community Center to the 1951 Assembly of the National Jewish Youth Conference, to be held at Camp Wel-Met, Narrowsburg, N. Y. from August 30 to September 7.

At Camp Wel-Met, the delegates from more than 300 local, regional and national Jewish youth organizations, will work with the theme "Jewish Youth at Mid-century—Developing a Program for Jewish Living," mapping out means of achieving the growth and development of a democratic, creative American Jewish community.

The Assembly will also adopt a constitution, formulate a policy on social action, and elect the national chairman and executive committee members. Workshops in music, dance, drama and journalism will be led by experts in these fields.

NEW YORK (AJP) — Leading religious leaders of the nation's three major faiths turn thumbs down on "mixed" marriages, a leading professor writing on the controversial subject told an audience of millions last week through the media of a national magazine.

The professor, Dr. David R. Mace, professor of Human Relations at Drew University, tackled the thorny topic in two pieces in the Woman's Home Companion. Through interviews with leading Jewish, Catholic, and Protestant clergymen, Doctor Mace found that for the most part the men who perform the ceremonies and invoke the traditional blessings give intermarriage less than an even chance of "making good."

Doctor Mace's findings were followed up by the magazine with a shorter piece on how one "mixed marriage" succeeded. The partners, a Catholic and a Protestant, were married despite objections of parents, and slowly overcame religious problems to establish a happy home.

SYD COHEN:

Second Guessing

Maury McDermott wins a brilliant 16 inning game; Frankie Frisch resigns or is fired as manager of the Cubs; Paul Dean prepares a magazine article telling about "Me and Diz;" Bill Veeck shops for a new manager. And these events combine to provide the inspiration for a column.

This one has to do with managers and their weaknesses, their records and their fitness to run big league outfits. It is, frankly, a column of second guessing.

What makes a manager? Why is he hired? Why, in the face of no results, is he often kept on? Let's not answer these questions directly, for while we often defend managers who get the business unfairly, we all "know" of managers who, we feel, should be selling hot dogs and ice cream under the stands instead of masterminding from the sanctity of the dugout. Here are some examples.

Frank Frisch, the old Fordham Flash, was a great ball player. A feared hitter, fine defensive man, a scrapper all the way, Frisch left a brilliant record behind him, and was highly thought of as managerial timber. He has never had to look very hard to find a good job in the game.

As a manager, Frank ran the Gas House Gang of St. Louis in the days of Dizzy Dean, probably the greatest pitcher of the 1930's. With all his fight and his team's guts, Frisch won only one pennant, and he would have been better off if he had failed to take that one.

Any way you look at it, it was Frank Frisch who wrecked Dizzy Dean's marvelous arm. It was Frisch who made a has-been of Dean at the age of 27. It was Frisch who sent Paul Dean into the rag-pile at an even earlier age with a dead arm which once had seemed so mighty.

The Cardinals had no business winning for Frisch in 1934. The Giants should have repeated, but Bill Terry asked if Brooklyn was still in the league, and got an affirmative answer on the playing field. And the Cardinals rode in BY ALTERNATING DIZZY AND PAUL DEAN ON THE MOUND EVERY OTHER DAY FOR A WEEK!

That's right! To win the pennant, Frisch used only two pitchers, the Dean brothers. Each tossed three games in six days. The strain, and possible effect on their arms, bothered Frankie not at all. Fortunately, neither pitcher suffered any ill effects at the time, although Paul was through as a winning pitcher just a year later.

In 1937 Dizzy was hurt in the All-Star game. Everyone knew that he should give his foot complete rest for a few weeks, but Frisch asked him to work, in and out of turn, as usual, and the Great One obliged. His foot was so painful he altered his delivery to ease the pressure—and thus pitching unnaturally, wrecked his arm. Dizzy never was any good after that.

What do I think of Frisch as a manager? Guess.

Fourteen years later we have the case of Steve O'Neil letting a stringbean like McDermott go first 17 innings, then 16, barely a few weeks apart. Mickey admits that his arm is not yet recovered from the effects of the 17-frame affair, and says it was shot in the 16th last week. Why was he permitted to go either distance, particularly the latter, in view of his previous overwork? Why is he still called in for relief, when he needs every ounce of rest and strength that can be provided for him? Will his arm hold up? I hope so.

The genial, smiling, elephantine O'Neil also ruined Dick Wakefield. Dick was mollycoddled, pampered and indulged. He could do no wrong. The front office of the Tigers grudgingly agreed to let Steve take this method of firing Wakefield to action. Too late, it was discovered that stern disciplinary treatment right from the start might have salvaged what once looked like a highly promising career.

In all his years as a manager, Steve O'Neil won exactly one pennant—that in 1945, during the war, when manpower was scarce, and when Hank Greenberg returned from the war just in time to spark the drive to the flag with a tremendous display of clutch hitting. Plus Newhouser and Trout, who were 4F. O'Neil had nothing to do with it.

Next case: Zack Taylor and the St. Louis Browns. You say right off that Taylor cannot be blamed for the Browns' position, and I quickly agree. This one is different. It has to do with Taylor's lack of self-respect, at least as reported in the papers.

Bill Veeck, new Brownie owner, praises Zack to the skies as having done an adequate job with the scant material at his disposal in St. Louis. It would seem to follow naturally that if the man has been worthy of praise with poor players, he should rate a chance when the good ones start to arrive. But Veeck announces that when he gets good players, he wants a manager who is better than adequate, and that therefore Taylor is through.

It is Veeck's business whether he does or not consider Zack a good manager. But why insult him openly as incompetent after praising him for having done a good job? Certainly, no manager could have done better with the Browns than Taylor did. My argument is that Taylor takes the slap by turning the other cheek. He approves what Veeck is doing, he says. He is enthusiastic about the future of the club, and will get another job with the organization. It seems to me that I would be forced to take the insult as an insult and resign at once. Where is Taylor's self-respect?

Bob Feller is always hit hard in Boston. Yet, Manager Al Lopez continues sending him in to be slaughtered.

Last is the case of Bucky Harris, who is so popular with newspapermen that when he does make a terrific blunder his alibis immediately become the law of the land. I could write a whole series of articles on what I think of Bucky, and it isn't good. His stupid, unorthodox strategy cost Floyd Bevens his no-hit game in the World Series of 1947. His stubbornness and dislike of Aaron Robinson almost lost the entire Series and made the Yanks look like bums.

For now, consider only the case of Randy Gumpert, one of the Americ League's better pitchers, who once wore a Yankee uniform. In 1946, the year before Harris took over the Yanks, Gumpert won 11, lost 3, with an ERA of 2.30. Most of his wins were complete games during the last half of the season.

But Harris didn't like Gumpert, and refused to start him. As a relief pitcher Randy was no star. He needed regular work. He never got it. He won 4, lost 1 in 1947, and had practically no record at all in 1948 before he was traded to Chicago. Bucky explained to the papers that Gumpert was good only in the bullpen while warming up. But the day after he was traded, Gumpert pitched a 3-hit game. He has been a star ever since.

And Bucky Harris wonders why he was fired.
