Ground Is Broken For New Buildings Of Temple Beth El

Construction of the new Temple Beth El at Butler and Orchard Avenues began this week following the ground-breaking exercises held late Monday afternoon before 250 members of the temple.

Max L. Grant officiated at Monday's ground-breaking and dedication ceremonies as master of ceremonies. Rabbi William G. Braude conducted the religious program. Taking part in the ceremonies were Walter I. Sundlun, temple president; Norman M. Fain, building committee chairman; Arthur J. Levy, building plans committee chairman; Mack M. Forman, campaign committee chairman; Archibald Silverman, A. Henry Klein and Samuel A. Kaplan, past presidents; Mrs. William Matzner, sisterhood president, and Arthur Markoff, brotherhood president.

Bertram L. Bernhardt, vice president, was arrangements committee chairman.

The new temple will include three buildings, the temple itself to be known as the Alphonse J. Lederer Memorial. Other construction will include a school building, the John J. Rosenfeld Memorial, and a connecting building containing a social hall, library, rabbi's study and chapel.

The completed Temple Beth El is expected to cost $1,325,000.

Contracts for the project, scheduled to be completed late next year, were signed last Wednesday with E. Turgeon Co., Inc., general contractors, who will erect the buildings.

Paper Assails Village for Denying Permit To Temple

CLEVELAND — Action of the Beachwood Village Council in denying permission to the Euclid Avenue Temple to build its new center in the village was condemned here by the Cleveland Plain Dealer in an editorial which termed the village council's action "inexcusable and indefensible."

The temple has brought action for a writ of mandamus against the council to compel it to grant the necessary authorization. The newspaper said the council decision had been taken on the grounds that the temple would not serve the public convenience and welfare and would injure appropriate use of adjoining property.

"It is a strange conclusion," the editorial said, "that the religious center would not serve the religious welfare. It most certainly would, not only to members of the Jewish faith but to all residents in its area as it has done in Cleveland, for more than 100 years, where it is the oldest Jewish congregation."

The editorial declared that the temple should "have the aid of all who are convinced that exclusion forms no part of the religious or political tradition of America."

Israel Journalist Dies in Montreal

MONTREAL — Itzhak Triwaks, prominent Israel journalist, who came on a visit to Canada in the interests of the Encyclopedia Hebraica, died from a heart attack here while stepping out of a taxi. He was 60 years old.

500 Hear Ambassador Describe Israel's Economic Development

When the ancient Israelites were nearing the end of their 40 years of wandering in the desert, following their deliverance from slavery in Egypt, Moses sent a commission to investigate the Holy Land promised by God. The majority report of this commission revealed that the land was barren and would destroy its inhabitants.

The minority report, however, described the Promised Land as one "flowing with milk and honey"; and it was this latter opinion that proved to be correct when the Israelites finally inhabited the land that is now the State of Israel.

Tracing the history of Israel from that meager beginning, Abba Eban, Israel's ambassador to the United States, addressing a Bonds for Israel rally Monday evening at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel, described the immense wealth — "vast and inexhaustible deposits" —that have only recently been discovered in the rocks and deserts of the Jewish State. These mineral and chemical deposits, he said, justify the investments that have been made in the Holy Land and constitute a strong reason for further investment and development.

Israel's Ambassador addressed a gathering of some 500 persons in the hotel's ballroom, following a private dinner attended by Mayor Walter H. Reynolds, leaders of the Providence Jewish community and officials of the Rhode Island Bonds for Israel drive.

He was welcomed to this state by Lt. Governor John S. McKiernan, representing Governor Roberts, who is attending the Governors Convention in Texas.

Tension Remains In Tunis Following Anti-Jewish Rioting

PARIS — Continued tension was reported here this week from Tunis in the aftermath of several days of attacks on Jews by young Arab extremists. The attacks resulted in the death of one young Jew, the wounding of many others and some property destruction.

Responsibility of the disorders was attributed to extremists of the Neo Destour Party, the Tunisian Arab nationalists, seeking to force the Jews to join in their anti-French demonstrations. The French Foreign Office charged that Neo Destour extremists were at fault but spokesmen for the party here and in Tunis condemned the attacks. A party spokesman here said that "We strongly condemn the incidents which have taken place in the Jewish quarter of Tunis where the two elements have always lived together in accord." He warned Tunisians of both faiths to guard against maneuvers of "provocateurs seeking to create a diversion which will serve the ends of the enemies of the nation."

The New York Times reported from Paris that neutral observers of the Arab-Jewish disorders in Tunis agreed that they were "out of character." These observers pointed to the fact that the Bey of Tunis had refused, during the Petain regime, to enforce the Petain anti-Jewish laws in Tunis, and that during the Palestine war, Tunisia had remained free of anti-Jewish incidents such as had occurred elsewhere in Moslem countries.

Demonstrates Against Showing of Film

FREIBURG, Germany — Arnold Goldberg, a Jewish student at Freiburg University, has gone on a hunger strike against the showing here of films made by Veit Harlan, producer of anti-Semitic films for the Nazis.

Goldberg's action is part of a student movement to have Harlan's films banned from the town's cinemas. The student council has decided not to participate in any "conciliation with Israel" or "olive tree" campaigns for the relief of Jewish victims of the nazis until Harlan's films are removed.

News Round-up

NEW YORK—Columnist Max Lerner charged in the New York Post this week that the main purpose of the so-called Committee to Secure Justice in the Rosenberg Case was to "spread the communist legend that the American Government is anti-Semitic."

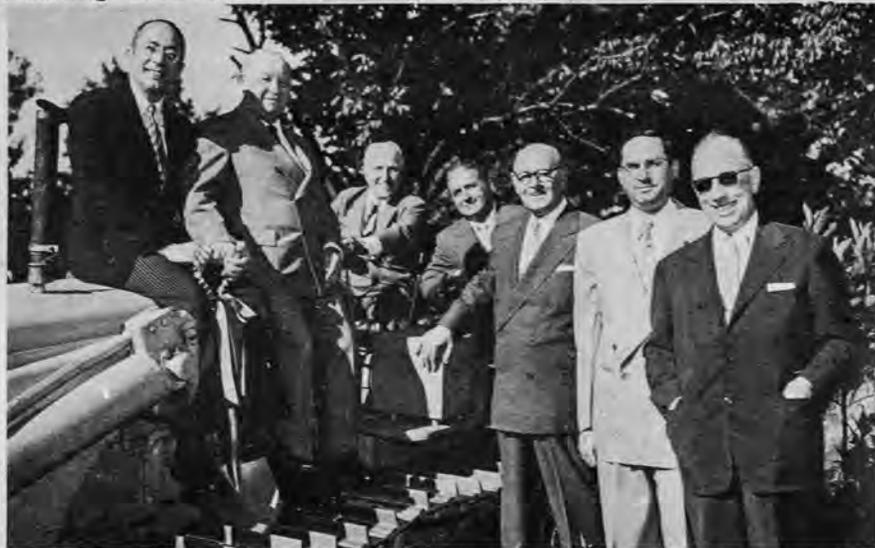

Describing a meeting held by the committee in Brooklyn, Prof. Lerner assailed communist efforts to "exploit the fears and sensitivities of American Jews." Citing a letter from Julius Rosenberg likening his fate to that of the six million Jews murdered by the nazis, Lerner declared, "It is time that someone called this the lie that it is. What has happened to the Rosenbergs has nothing to do with their being Jewish."

He declared it "unforgivable" for the communists to keep spreading the lie about the Rosenberg case and called it "an insult to the overwhelming number of American Jews who hate every form of totalitarianism and a mockery of the millions of Jewish martyrs in Europe."

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio — The Youngstown Jewish Community Day Camp will be operated this summer at St. Edward's Junior High School, a Catholic school made available to the Jewish group by Msgr. William S. Nath, pastor of St. Edwards Church.

The day camp was unable to use the school building it had in past years because it is under repairs. Msgr. Nash made the Catholic school building available without charge. The Youngstown Jewish Times, in an editorial, hailed this as "intergroup relations at work."

WASHINGTON—The American Council for Judaism will attempt to influence the Republican Party on any convention plank bearing on assistance for Israel and the Arab-Israel question, it has been learned here. The Council will send representatives to Chicago to distribute anti-Zionist material among delegates and they will seek to testify before the convention platform committee.

WALTHAM, Mass. — Contributions amounting to $2,192,000 were received by Brandeis University during the past year, it was announced here by Dr. Abram L. Sachar, president of the university. The university conferred its first academic degrees to 101 students of its first graduating class.

NEW YORK—Rabbi Simon G. Kramer was re-elected president of the Synagogue Council of America at its annual meeting here. The Council represents reform, conservative and orthodox Judaism.

WASHINGTON—Paul Ginsberg, national commander of the Jewish War Veterans, asked President Truman to veto the McCarran-Walter omnibus immigration bill. He called at the White House to report to the President on a world-wide trip in which he consulted with government leaders of many nations.

The White House also received a telegram signed by 20 editors and publishers of foreign language newspapers in New York urging President Truman to veto the McCarran-Walter bill. The telegram was sent following a meeting of the group in New York at which Ben Touster, president of HIAS, was one of the principal speakers.

SAN FRANCISCO—A fact-finding study of Jewish agencies in the fields of family welfare, child care, health and medical, recreation, care of aged, Jewish education and community relations will be launched here by the Study Committee on Jewish Community Planning.

The study committee will make a detailed inquiry into the entire question of the planning and financing of local Jewish communal services in San Francisco, the Peninsula and Marin County.

PHILADELPHIA — Consolidation of the Community Health Center with the Albert Einstein Medical Center, completed here this week, was hailed as heralding the inauguration of a broad program of preventive medical service. All the services of the 31-year-old health center will be continued under the new arrangement, which, it is expected, will permit creation of a greatly expanded service of preventive medicine and public health.

DETROIT — Representatives of Detroit's orthodox community and the board of directors of Sinai Hospital are now discussing demands by the orthodox elements for observance of kashruth in the new Jewish hospital which will open this fall.

The hospital board invited the orthodox leaders to discuss their demands following a meeting of synagogue delegates here convened by the Council of Orthodox Rabbis which called for kashruth in the hospital and named a committee to confer with the hospital board.

PHILADELPHIA—Creation of a single migration agency serving the Jewish community of Philadelphia was approved here by the board of directors of the Allied Jewish Appeal. The new agency which will come into existence in early fall will consolidate the service programs of the Philadelphia branch of HIAS and the Service to Foreign Born of the Philadelphia Section of the National Council of Jewish Women.

The new organization will be known as HIAS and Council Migration Service of Philadelphia. It will be financed by the Allied Jewish Appeal, which has been supporting the work of both agencies in the past.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y.—Resolutions calling for the strengthening of traditional Judaism in this country and in Israel were adopted at a convention of Mirachi Hat-zair, Mirachi youth organization, by some 200 delegates representing 15,000 members in the United States and Canada. The parley also demanded preservation of the religious education system in Israel. Seymour N. Chefer was elected president of the movement.

PITTSBURGH—An experimental project in home care of the aged ill will be launched here by Montefiore Hospital under a three-year grant of $150,000 from the Sarah Mellon Scaife Foundation, it was announced this week.

The project will be patterned after a similar program tried in two New York City hospitals. It will make it possible for a selected group of patients who are suffering from long-term illness to be transferred from the hospital to their homes for a continuation of care there under constant medical supervision.

The patient, except when in direct need of specific hospital facilities, would be able to receive all necessary treatment in home surroundings. Medical care, visiting nurse services, equipment, etc., would be supplied at the home by the hospital. It has been found that the patient can be maintained in the home environment at lower cost than in an institution bed.

Cranston Jewish Center and Technoprint split their twin bill, Cranston winning the first game 6-4 and losing the second, 5-4, in eight innings. The printers jumped off to a three run lead against Lefty Davidson, but a six-hit, five-run third by Cranston put the game out of their reach. Mickler featured the outburst with a home run, his only hit of the day. Max Levy and Shocket were the best hitters for Cranston, getting two each. Bader was the big hitter for the losers. The Technoprint infield pulled off two double plays.

Overcoming a 4-2 deficit with two out in the last of the seventh, Technoprint pulled into a tie, aided by Winn's pinch single and some fine base running by Greg Karambelas. In the eighth, a hit by Rifkin and walks to George Karambelas and Dostoglos set up the winning run, which was singled home by Bader. George Karambelas, with three hits, and Bader with two, led the winners. Greg Karambelas was outstanding in the field. Leven pitched well in the clutch. Waldorf took a pair from Broadway Auto to move into a tie for first place. The scores were 8-2 and 14-9. Herb Goldis' wildness led to a big five-run first inning, and from there on the Tuxedo boys coasted to the first game win. Abe Lobel's four hitter should have been good for a shutout, both of the losers' runs being unearned. Friedman was the leader at bat and in the field. Reitman was outstanding for Broadway.

In the second game Broadway overcame a seven-run Waldorf lead with a seven-run fourth inning, to tie the game at 9-9. Abe Lobel then came in, put out the fire and went on to win his second game of the day. Tetreault in the field and Friedman at bat were the big men in the win. Joyce had a homer for Waldorf.

M&F Insurance also swept two games, taking luckless Natcor 15-8 and 13-10. Natcor blew the opener after holding a 7-3 lead in the fifth inning. Nate Ludman was wild early in the game, but settled down after allowing eight walks in the first three innings. Houston and Ludman each collected 5-for-6 for the winners.

The insurance men came from behind again in the nightcap, scoring five runs in each of the last two innings, to overcome another 7-3 deficit. Rose was the outstanding hitter for M&F, while Labush and Rothschild, with three hits each, led Natcor.

Ambassador Eban

ing—a group of less than 100 persons purchasing $32,550 at the dinner, and another $18,850 being pledged at the rally.

Israel, whose unlimited immigration policy for homeless Jews everywhere is the "symbol of our national glory", requires assistance in developing industry and agriculture to permit the settlement of those and future newcomers. Eban asserted as he appealed for American support of the $500,000,000 Bond drive.

These investment dollars, he added, will speed the day when Israel will be able to stand on its own feet economically.

As to the solvency of his Government, and its ability to repay, Eban proclaimed: "Despite the four anguished years of Israel's travail, we have not forfeited one cent of any financial obligation!"

The Ambassador listed among the nation's major needs "making good the adverse balance of trade from external sources," and "earning for Israel reserves of foreign currency by the export of skilled goods."

As an example of this adverse balance of trade, he pointed to the $100,000,000 that Israel is forced to expend annually in the United States for food alone. This deficit, he said, can be wiped out in three years.

Key to Peace

Pointing out that Israel's financial and economic consolidation is the "key to regional peace", Eban reminded his listeners that it is the "only democratic center in the Near East, a factor of extreme importance to the United States."

He added that economic stability and a favorable balance of trade are essential for the hostile surrounding Arab nations to realize that the Jews are in the Middle East to stay. "They (Arabs) will not then hesitate to make peace with us".

Albert A. Levin, Cleveland attorney and Jewish communal leader in that city, reminded the audience that "it is only by a trick of fate that you and I were not among the six million victims of Hitler. And if we had been lucky enough to survive, we would be in the camps waiting to go to Israel—the only place in the world that opened its doors, with the aid of money from the U. S. A."

Sells With Head and Heart

Joey Adams, nationally famed comedian and author, humorously described his recent honeymoon trip to Israel. He noted that everywhere in Europe sightseers are directed to ancient ruins, symbols of past glories and historic monuments.

"But who wants to look at monuments and ruins?" Adams said. "In Israel everything you see is new and growing. They are not living in the past there, but building for the future."

As a result of his visit, Adams said, he now can sell Israel Bonds "with my head as well as my heart."

Alvin A. Sopkin served as master of ceremonies at the rally. He first introduced McKiernan, who compared Israel's recent battle for independence with that waged by Rhode Island in earlier days. He praised Eban for leading the fight for freedom, and added: "We of Rhode Island in earlier days. He dependence. We love it."

Ben R. Albert presented a scroll to Eban on behalf of the Jewish community of this state in commemoration of his historic visit.

National Council of Jewish Women Gives a Party for Ellis Island Children

In the sober confines of Ellis Island, where thousands of would-be immigrants are detained each year because of questions about their health, visas, political affiliations and other matters, an unusual party relieved the daily routine recently. It was given for children of the detainees by the Service to Foreign Born Advisory Committee of the National Council of Jewish Women, which was celebrating the first anniversary of the opening of the island's playground. Council furnished part of the play equipment for the room last year as a memorial tribute to its pioneer social worker on the island, Anna M. Kaufman.

The play-school room, which was hailed on its opening as a step towards "humanizing" Ellis Island, is "worth more than tons of propazanda material sent abroad", according to Mrs. Irving M. Engel, National Council president. "Thousands of people, young and old, get their first impressions of America here", she declared. "Some will stay on and become citizens of our country, and the first impressions they receive play a tremendously important part in molding conscious and unconscious attitudes towards American democracy. Others will be returned, and they will be carriers of good or evil reputation for the United States."

A 20-piece children's band from Staten Island Public School 39 helped provide the entertainment for the party, and a delegation of pupils from Joan of Arc Junior High School, New York City, came bringing gifts made and purchased by children in their own and other schools for their contemporaries at the island. Hostesses were 13 Councilettes, members of Council's teen-age division.

"PROTOCOLS" IN SPAIN

Nazis who escaped to Spain after the fall of Hitler are sponsoring the publication of the notorious anti-Semitic forgeries, the "Protocols of the Elders of Zion," in a prominent Spanish newspaper, and may be responsible also for the outbreak of antisemitism in Costa Rica, an exclusive report just received here from Spain discloses.

The newspaper is called "La Noche," and it is an afternoon daily which appears simultaneously in 5 cities in the province of Galicia: Orense, La Coruna, Vigo, Santiago and Ferrol.

Beginning on May 10, "La Noche" has been publishing daily installments of the "Protocols" under the title, "La alianza secreta de los capitalistas hebreos." The forgeries are subtitled "Financiacion del comunismo," and are allegedly written by "Hilary Cotter" and "R. De Roiste." All the old, oft-exposed charges of alleged plots to dominate the world with the connivance of such alleged international bankers as Warburg, Kuhn Loeb and Company, and others are raked up again.

According to our correspondent, the Nazis in Spain have lost none of their Hitlerian viciousness despite the exile and have enough money to keep up their racist, anti-Semitic propaganda.

L'AFFAIRE MESTROVIC

The letter by Dr. David De Sola Pool in the N. Y. Times, appealing for funds to build a memorial to Jewish victims of Nazism, brings up once more the controversy raised by the selection of Ivan Mestrovic as the sculptor of the monument. A fund of $500,000 for the monument, which is to be erected on Riverside Drive, in New York City, is being sought—mostly from Jews.

Last year Mestrovic, a Yugoslav sculptor of international reputation, denied being a Nazi collaborator after charges had been published against him by Max Sokol in the London Jewish Chronicle. Sokol cited documentary evidence to prove that the Nazis exhibited the work of Mestrovic in the Reichstag Building in Berlin in 1935. He quoted the catalogue of the exhibition in which Mestrovic was hailed by Hitler, Goering and other top Nazis as one of the great "Aryan" artists in the "fight" against "destructive, harmful Jewish cosmopolitan art."

According to the catalogue, the exhibition of sculptures and drawings by Mestrovic was presented by the German Academy in conjunction with the Verein Berliner Kuenstler (artists) and the Gesellschaft der Freunde Deutschlands in Agram (Friends of Germany in Zagreb, Croatia). Named in the catalogue as directors (Schirmherr) of the honorary committee (Ehrenauschuss) are: "Herman Goering, Preussischer Minister-president, General der Flieger (air force general); Dr. Josef Goebbels, Reichminister; Dr. Eberhard Hanfstaengel, Direktor der National-Galerie;" and such other prime Nazis as Reichminister Neurath and the Lord Mayor of Berlin, Heinrich Sahn.

Against this incontrovertible evidence, there is only Mestrovic's unsupported word that the exhibit was held by the Nazis—and all his works collected in Berlin—without his knowledge and against his will at a time when he was in Paris.

We have no desire to quarrel with Mestrovic's explanation. But given these facts, we have a right to ask: "Is Mestrovic the kind of an artist for a Jewish organization to employ on a purely Jewish memorial? Can the people of the City of New York—in all good conscience—allow erection of a monument recording the annihilation of European Jewry, which is created by an artist who was honored by the very murderers of those Jews?

On Being A Millionaire

By DAVID SCHWARTZ

I recently saw a list of some of the top bracket buyers of Israel bonds. Joseph Cherner of Miami has bought close to a million dollars worth; Wm. S. Paley, head of the Columbia Broadcasting System, and the Levitt brothers, the big town developers, have purchased fairly astronomical amounts.

It seems there are a few millionaires still left. I was beginning to be afraid that the millionaire was becoming something of an extinct species. With government taxation what it is, it is not an impossibility that the millionaire may be relegated like the dinosaur to the field of history. A hundred years hence some archeologists may dig up one and seek to reconstruct it. There will be a great curiosity as to just what a millionaire was.

Just what does it mean to be a millionaire? Lucien Wolf once, bumping into Baron de Hirsch, said he would like some day to come down to the home of the great philanthropist and find out just what it is like to be a millionaire.

Baron de Hirsch told Wolf that he could tell him all on the spot—all there was to know. People without much money, said Hirsch, thought that you could buy every thing with money, millionaires knew this wasn't so.

The answer doesn't entirely satisfy me. I know that every time I get another $25,000 or so, I feel different. The same clothes, the same face—but still different. It's like the glow you get from the third Martini or the feeling that comes to you when you have done what you thought was a particularly noble deed. I always detect in the after glow of an act of righteousness a faint resemblance to that resulting from inebriating spirits.

How does one get to be a millionaire? Everybody wants to be one. Remember the story of the Jew who was weeping and wailing following the cortege of the Russian Jewish millionaire Brodsky?

"Are you a member of the family of the deceased?" he was asked.

"No", he replied, "that's why I am weeping."

Everyone wants to be a millionaire, but if you want to study to be one, the colleges offer no courses. You can't even take a correspondence school course.

Or is it as Julius Rosenwald maintained, that being a millionaire is a matter of luck. The great mail order king held that brains and work won't make you rich. It was 90 percent luck, he thought. He used to tell the story of the man who boasted that he had won a big jackpot in the numbers game by using his head. "It was this way," he explained. "In my dreams, one night, I saw the number 9 and the following night I saw the number 8 so I used my brains, added the two together and got 14—so I bet on that number."

A story once told by Baron Edmund de Rothschild seems to leave the implication that it is not all luck. The Baron was chiding the younger generation on its impatience and want of persistence. "I have been taught differently," he said. "I know what endurance and waiting mean. When I was very young, my father of blessed memory, Baron James, entrusted me with an important mission. I was to go to Bern to negotiate with a group of Italians for the sale of a railway line belonging to the house of Rothschild. After my father instructed me in detail on the demands and conditions I was to present, he said to me: 'Here, you have a sealed package. When you have carried negotiations for 40 days and if by that time, insisting on your demands without giving in, and you are still unable to obtain your terms, you may open this package, where you will find out to what extent you may make concessions.'"

The Rothschild testimony seems to imply that self discipline, patience, tenacity in bargaining are required. Rosenwald said it was largely luck. If it is 90 percent luck, what does the remaining 10 percent consist of? William James said that the differences between the people were small, but the small differences were very important. You can see the whole subject is wrapped in mystery. Maybe that's why the colleges don't teach how to become a millionaire.

Study Ownership of Confiscated Stocks

LONDON—Legal experts in The Netherlands are trying to decide who owns some $22,500,000 worth of stocks and bonds confiscated from Dutch Jews by the Nazis and sold to an estimated 150,000 persons, it was reported here from Amsterdam.

A committee representing the original owners of the securities is meeting to decide on steps to ensure they are returned to the rightful owners. The government is expected to introduce emergency legislation to cover the situation.

The situation became pressing last month when a Dutch court ruled that all such securities must be returned to the original owners. The Amsterdam stock exchange closed for a week in protest against the court decision which, exchange officials said, would result in economic chaos if carried out in all cases. Although the strike was called off at the government's request, Amsterdam stock brokers say the situation is "becoming acute."

A Russian in Cattle Car
In the days of the Czar, a Russian conductor was irritated by the number of Jews on the train. He grumbled about "too many Jews" and "no elbow room for a real Russian."
At the next station he flew into a rage when he saw another Jew boarding the train.
"You belong in a cattle car," he shouted at him.
"I saw you here and took it for granted that this is the cattle car," the Jewish passenger replied.

Benefiting from Books
In reply to an editorial query as to books that have been most helpful, a reader wrote: "My mother's cook book and my father's check book."

The Old Herring Story
Remember this famous herring story?

A Jew who kept a delicatessen store in Paris was visited one day by a Frenchman, who asked him why Jews are cleverer than other people.

"It's because they eat herrings," replied the storekeeper.

The Frenchman was duly impressed, and for the next few days visited the store regularly and ate herrings. One day he entered the store with a puzzled and seemingly indignant look on his face.

"Why is it," he inquired of the delicatessen man, "that you sell herrings at five francs each when I can get them down the street at three?"

"Ha," replied the Jew, "What did I tell you? You see, it's beginning to work."

LOS ANGELES—The board of directors of the Los Angeles Jewish Community Council has adopted a report of a special committee recommending that the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital grant a special hearing for three physicians who were not re-appointed to its staff last December.

The committee, headed by Max Firestein, was named after the three physicians had charged they had been dismissed because of political activities and had been denied a special hearing. The committee found that the hospital had acted in accordance with its by-laws, but held that a special hearing would be in the best interests of the community and of the hospital itself.

Expose of "Headlines"

Reeking with anti-Semitism, "Headlines", a pamphlet issued by notorious Jew-hater Joseph Kamp, is the latest smear-sheet in the presidential campaign.

Under the headlines, "Reds, New Dealers Use Ike in Plot to Hold Power", the 16-page hate sheet defames openly Jewish leaders and organizations, casually passing them off as "Red" and "front organizations."

"Headlines" claims it is opposed to smear literature. But, the pamphlet hastens to add, it is just as dangerous, unethical and un-American to hurl the opprobrious terms "scurrilous" and "smear" in an attempt to discredit truthful charges. (Which is what the Eisenhower people are doing, shouts Kamp.)

Just what are these "truthful" charges?

They are: Eisenhower joined Reds in Stand Against Loyalty Oath for Teachers, Ike Coddled Communists While President of Columbia University, Sidney Hillman and Anna Rosenberg fathered "Ike-for-President."

Another of its charges is that Eisenhower liked Harry Hopkins. What is Harry Hopkins to "Headlines"? "A registered socialist, a confirmed Communist and a slavish idolator of Red Russia." Also, "Commy-Lover Stanley M. Isaacs Is Out for Ike." All Reds are prominent Jews in "Headlines".

Page 4 of the smear-sheet is "it"—the height of name-calling and anti-Semitism. Last fall Leonard Finder, former director and secretary of the New York Anti-Defamation League, wrote for Collier's an article, "Why Ike Will Run." Grabbing this fact, "Headlines" charges, "Ike's First Sponsor Acted for Powerful Secret Subversive Group."

To prove its "fairness" the sheet says that B'nai B'rith is a Jewish fraternal organization with many outstanding patriotic Americans in its membership. But the Anti-Defamation League? For "Headlines", it's captured by Communists.

"The ADL", rants Kamp, "is internationalist and anti-American in its policies. It maintains a lecture bureau that features Communist party-line speakers. Its literature is authored by a stable of Communist frontiers. It floods the newspapers, the magazines, the radio, the schools and colleges, the churches, with its propaganda. It maintains its own spy network. It employs the smear to intimidate and terrorize pro-Americans."

These are the "facts, truths" of "Headlines".

'Peace, War, You': Davis' Powerful Plea for Amity

Jerome Davis' "Peace, War and You," (Henry Schuman, publisher 20 E. 70th, N. Y. 21), is a daring book, and because it courageously presents the most serious issues facing mankind, it is thought-provoking and is practical in its proposals.

Mr. Davis, one of whose ancestors was a signer of the Declaration of Independence, believes that peace can be attained. He favors disarmament and the use of atomic energy for constructive purposes. He believes in world government and advances this point:

"Over a century and a half ago American leadership asserted the principle: 'All men are created equal.' Is it not time to implement this noble declaration by another: 'World peace under world law'?"

In a number, of hints on approaches to peace he urges his readers not to fall victims to propaganda and to read both sides of world questions, not to be cynical, to work for peace, to read peace books, to encourage peace organizations, to strive to take profits out of war.

He advocates international cooperation and warns that "the suppression of democracy usually means the end of effective cooperatives." Deploring the suspicions with which this country treats Russia, he writes that "we can destroy the seeds of Communism only by really establishing all over the world the four freedoms which we said we were fighting for in World War II. He endorses the proposal that was made by Bernard Baruch for the creation of a top-level group to work out a plan for genuine peace. Friendship with other governments is strongly urged.

'From Palestine to Israel': Canadian Jew's Analysis

Moishe Dickstein, one of Canada's outstanding Labor Zionist leaders, described the fascination of his recent visit to Israel in a series of articles in Yiddish. In an English translation by the noted Canadian Jewish poet and communal leader, A. M. Klein, these impressions now appear in a volume under the title "From Palestine to Israel," issued by Eagle Publishing Co., Ltd., Montreal, Canada.

Although he wrote as a newspaper reporter, Dickstein's interesting observations and splendid manner of narration make his collected essays valuable not only as current literature but also for future historians who will find great interest in the views of an able student of Jewish history.

In his description of his tour, Mr. Dickstein devotes a chapter to "The Jews in Paris," as an introduction to his arrival at Lydda. The work of Histadrut in Israel, the functions of the Israel government, the personalities who make up the Israel Cabinet, are viewed with keenness. The fine rendition into English adds value to the work. It will be found useful by tourists to Israel, by students of history and by all lovers of Zion.

Fate of Dutch Jews Feared As a Vanishing Community

By NORMAN KURLAND

(Mr. Kurland, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Kurland, of Huntington Woods, Mich., is currently in Holland with his wife on a scholarship. Both are instructors at the University of Michigan.)

The Jewish community in Holland is weak—due not only to the Germans who reduced Jewry from 120,000 persons to only 20,000, but also to a great defection among those who survived.

In Holland, before the Christian festival, St. Nicholas Day, on Dec. 5, it is customary for children to receive their initials in large chocolate letters. This year for the benefit of Jewish parents a confectioner sold Hebrew chocolate letters.

This paradoxical display typifies the Jews of post war Holland, who do not know whether to cling to or to abandon their faith and traditions.

Many Jews survived the war because even before the Nazis they had abandoned their ties with Judaism, made alliances with non-Jews and so had little trouble finding friends to give them safe hiding places.

Others intermarried and were left alone until the last deportations. There was not enough time to have them murdered and they survived. Generally, this group is not interested in the affairs of the Jewish community.

But even among those whose ties were strong before the war there has grown an embittered feeling, a loss of faith in God and a disinterest in Judaism. Still, many other Jews refuse to identify themselves as Jews. In Holland, all residents must register, and are asked to state their religion. These files were available to the Germans and were used to identify Jews who were subsequently massacred. Hence, the reluctance to admit religion and to avoid contact with fellow Jews.

During the war many Jewish children were taken for safe-keeping into non-Jewish homes. Some of the foster parents now refuse to give up the children to the Jewish community, and they are being raised as Christians.

This problem is being projected into the future because of the difficulty in providing adequate religious training for the young. All schools here are state supported. Besides the municipalities, any group fulfilling specified requirements and having enough members can receive state money for teachers and buildings.

This has developed three types of schools: Catholic, Protestant and municipal schools. The latter is the poorest since both state and church money is poured into the religious schools.

There are two Jewish schools, but most youngsters attend non-Jewish schools. After school Jewish training in Amsterdam, The Hague and other large centers is offered, but there are not nearly enough teachers to send to smaller communities. Children there are growing up with no Jewish education or contacts.

Community leaders are plainly worried, but they can not see how to cope with the problem. This typifies the Dutch Jewish leadership, which reflects the weakness of the community. With most of its pre-war leaders destroyed, discredited or disillusioned, present leaders are unaggressive and overwhelmed by immediate problems.

This weakness has added to the general sense of insecurity and is shared by Jews throughout Europe. All that are able are leaving—the old to Canada, the young to Israel. Reports of the rigorous life led in Israel, however, has slowed the movement to the Jewish state.

There is much interest in Israel. Funds are collected. Near Amsterdam is an Halutz training camp. Young people are preparing for life in a kibbutz. Before the war Dutch Jews were isolated from world Jewry, but wartime experience and the bond with Israel has broken this isolation.

Prior to the Nazis, Amsterdam had seven large and many small synagogues. Today three are used. The rest are shells, with swastikas still painted on them. Only one synagogue was left completely untouched—the 230-year-old Portuguese Synagogue, which has long been classified as a Dutch national monument because of its historic and architectural value.

The Portuguese Jews (actually they were Spanish, but adopted the former title when the Dutch were at war with Spain in the 16th and 17th centuries) before the war were an aristocratic group, holding themselves aloof from the rest of the Jewish community. Many did not consider themselves to be in any way related to the "hordes" of German and Eastern European Jews who had come to Holland poor and uneducated from the eastern ghettos.

Today the handful of Portuguese Jews still remain apart from the community. They have had a long and colorful history, but unless a miracle occurs, this generation will be the last. Whether the rest of the community will have a better fate cannot yet be determined. It hangs in the balance which is deciding the fate of Europe and Israel, and also in the ideals of the present generation.

Abdul Rahman Azzam Pasha Reveals Existing Enmity for Israel, England

By DR. MAEANNA CHESERTON-MANGLE

Editor's Note: Dr. Cheserton-Mangle, whose articles on Christian-Jewish relations have been published in The Jewish News, is a member of the Christian Palestine delegation that visited Arab countries and Israel. She has secured this exclusive interview for The American Jewish Press and has written it during her present stay in Tel Aviv.

It is not everyday that an American woman may sip orange juice and hot wassal tea with His Excellency Abdul Rahman Azzam Pasha. The Secretary General of the Arab League is a big man! One had only to see the attentiveness of his assistants, who seemed to sense his every wish, to know that. He picked up a cigarette, and a lighted match appeared from nowhere. When his water glass was partially empty, it was filled again.

His excellency is also a keen man. He is at once gentle and adamant; quiet of voice but firm of expression. He parried our questions with others. Yet he was not loath to express himself. To our query "When can we hope for peace between the Arab States and Israel?" he asked, "When can we hope for peace between the U. S. and Russia?" He continued, "There can be no peace with Israel until the Arab refugees of Palestine are returned to their homes and given back their property . . . Jews were never on the coast. It was all a pretext . . . A whole nation was robbed of its heritage. As long as we live as Arabs, we will not make peace under these conditions. Peace is something you like and have a desire for. We do not like peace that deprives us of our own. Arab nations have been living together 5,000 years, even if not united. Yet, they are more united today than is England."

Ah, here was the sore spot—England. On our way to the Pasha's headquarters we had seen the slogan "DOWN ENGLAND" emblazoned on walls seared by the fires of the January riots. Casual as we tried to be we had seen everywhere the burning, irrational hatred of everything that is British and some things which are American.

The Pasha continued: "Britain declares that Egypt is anxious to annex the Sudan. The frontier was never fixed. It has varied with the years. Sudan was always a part of Egypt. We have no idea of annexing Sudan. Egypt is simply sentimental about the Nile. But if the Sudan wants independence, we are ready to give it to her."

The question was posed: "Is there possible a compromise with the Suez?" With a curl of his lips he replied: "It must be given over to Egyptian control. It is not so that the victory of the Western nations over Russia depends upon the Suez Canal. It was not used during the last war at all. The East can be bombarded from Chicago! Yet Egypt will be an important factor in the next war. We have 2,000,000 people to help. There is great strength in the Arab people although no one wants to be strong. We did much for the Allies during the last war and England seemed grateful; but not later. Now we are not accepted as her ally. She has proved herself to be an exploiter. There are 100,000 British troops in the Gaza strip. We have learned that recently. By supporting Britain, the United States is not following principles but rather it is being guided by expediences. We have never seen the fact of America. Always we see her under the mask of England, France or others. In the United Nations case on Morocco, we had a majority but we were defeated by the United States. We want nothing from the U. S., but to be fair and neutral."

Those of us present at the conference shifted in our seats. We realized that Egypt is the most influential of the Middle Eastern countries, and there is being created a vast vacuum of power. It may be because of the spirit which follows the legend that "He who leads the British away, we shall take his hand and he shall lead us."

The British too have a case. We had been told that "The Allied Joint Chiefs are in accord that the Suez Canal itself is not as essential as the Base of the Canal, as the greatest military depot on earth . . . There is no such thing as British Occupation. The Treaty of 1936 actually brought the occupation to an end. The British hold the Suez for the time only as the Americans occupy bases in Norway and hold air fields in England . . . In 1945 Egypt wanted a revision of the Treaty, and talks were continued until August when Egypt suddenly abrogated the Treaty . . . We (the British) offer a new idea in Egypt, current elsewhere in the world, of cooperative defense. We do not intend to intervene in Egypt but we will protect our nationals against violence."

Thus speak the leaders. Meanwhile the newspapers of every hue use the slogan "Evacuation and Unity." They are working toward mid-May when the elections will put back into power the fiery nationalist Waft party. The question is will King Farouk dare to postpone the elections again or rig them against the Waft. The meaning for America is poignant. Egypt is a land of immense potential. Its civil service is largely composed of American-educated members. Women are being emancipated. Egypt is accepting the Point Four program with alacrity. If the main tributaries of the Nile are made to provide hydroelectric power for irrigation, the country may be made to blossom where now it lies hot and sandy, unproductive. Egypt is also looking for the hand that will lead the British away. Will it be the United States' hand? Or will we still continue to hide behind the mask of another?

A Waste of Money

A rich, but very stingy man, was asked to contribute for a new cemetery fence. He refused, claiming that to build a cemetery fence is a waste of money, because those who are outside do not want to go in, and those who are inside cannot get out anyway. So why erect a fence?

Prospects Good for Israel-Soviet Trade

TEL AVIV — Good prospects exist for Israel-Russia trade relations, the Israel Minister to the Soviet Union, Shmuel Elyashov, said here yesterday, addressing the Commercial and Industrial Club. The Israeli diplomat is here on a visit.

Mr. Elyashov pointed out that

Israel's exports of citrus products and bananas to the Soviet Union had proven very successful and that the Russians are prepared to increase the importation of these products. He said that there has been no change in political relations between Russia and Israel during the past year, adding that Russia's attitude towards the problems affecting Israel is not colored by any hostility to the Jewish State.

Although the Soviet Government has made no reply to an Israel note on the question of Jewish emigration from Russia to Israel, Mr. Elyashov said that this question should not be regarded as closed.

June Havoc in "Rain" at Theatre-by-the-Sea

June Havoc as Sadie Thompson stars in "Rain" beginning Monday, July 7, at the Theatre-by-the-Sea. Sadie Thompson is the Somerset Maugham character from his short story "Miss Thompson" dramatized by John Colton and Clemence Randolph into one of the most famous plays of contemporary dramatic literature, "Rain." The star, June Havoc, is now recognized as one of the finest dramatic actresses on stage, screen and television after years of success in vaudeville and the musical comedy field.

June Havoc is no stranger to the character of Sadie Thompson. In 1944 she starred in the musical version of "Rain." Her rise in stature as a dramatic actress has been so bright in the past few years that it threatens to eclipse her success in the musical comedy field. When only two years old she won a $5.00 gold piece in a dance contest in Seattle. She made her first movie as a moppet at the age of three and then settled down to a steady career on the stage. Her childhood was spent backstage and at the age when children are in grammar school, she was being billed on the vaudeville circuits as "Dainty June."

that he had written Gen. MacArthur on April 14 and again on May 26 drawing his attention to anti-Semitic material being distributed by Winrod in support of a "draft MacArthur" movement.

In his first letter to Gen. MacArthur, Rabbi Silver said: "I am told that this material has been distributed in a widespread fashion throughout the nation. I can scarcely believe that you are in any way associated with this organization. As one who served under your command on the island of Leyte, I think I know your principles pretty well."

In his second letter, which also went unanswered, Rabbi Silver said that "To all your admirers it would be unthinkable for you to refrain from condemning a group whose aims are inimical to the cause of democracy. I hope that it will be possible for you to publish a clear-cut disavowal from you."

MacArthur Ignores Request to Repudiate Anti-Semite Backing

CLEVELAND General of the Army Douglas MacArthur has taken no action on two letters sent him asking his position with regard to anti-Semitic material sent out in support of his candidacy by an organization called "Defender, Inc.," headed by Gerald B. Winrod, it was revealed this week.

Foods To Remember

By LEAH W. LEONARD

SALMON and PEAS

- 4 salmon steaks (size to suit)
- 2 large onions, sliced thin
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon white pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon paprika
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup ketchup or thick tomato sauce
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1 package quick frozen peas
- Sliced lemon and parsley for garnish

If fresh salmon slices are used, wash them in cold running water and pat dry with a towel or paper napkins. Arrange the sliced onions in a shallow baking dish. Combine the flour, salt, pepper and paprika in a paper bag and then split the bag open so that each of the salmon slices can be dipped in the mixture. Pat the dry ingredients in well on both sides of the fish. Arrange fish over the sliced onion, dot with butter or substitute and pour over all the mixed ketchup and milk. Bake 40 minutes at 350° F, basting once or twice with the sauce. When ready to serve, unfrost the peas quickly by turning them into a sauce pan over moderate heat and bringing them to a boil. Arrange fish on platter, surround with peas, garnish with lemon slices and parsley and serve hot. Or, if this is to be used as the main course of a picnic meal, let the fish cool in the baking pan then chill in the refrigerator about 2 hours before wrapping well with aluminum foil. It will keep cold and flavorful for hours. Use canned peas instead of the frozen variety—just open the can on the picnic grounds, drain off the liquid and serve. Of course, potato salad makes a "natural" with this picnic meal. Serves 4 to 8, depending on size of salmon steaks.

Eternal Light Starts Summer Series

The first program in the new summer series, "The Words We Live By," will be presented by The Eternal Light (NBC Network) on Sunday, July 6 from 12:30-1:00 P. M., according to The Jewish Theological Seminary of America, under whose auspices the program is conducted. The Eternal Light, a coast-to-coast radio program, is presented as a public service of the National Broadcasting Company.

The text for this first program will be taken from the forty-second Psalm, to be narrated on this occasion by Raymond Massey. This psalm recites the lament of an exile, yearning to return to the sanctuary of the Holy Temple in Jerusalem. Doctor Ben Zion Bokser, Editor of the Eternal Light, will preach a nine-minute sermonette on the interpretation of the Forty-second Psalm.

Music for the program will include selections from the works of Mendelssohn and Ernest Bloch.

Hold Summer Party At Home for Aged

The first in a series of summer parties planned by the Ladies Association of the Jewish Home for the Aged for the residents was held at the Home June 24.

Refreshments were served and favors distributed. Games were played on the lawn. Sixty residents were present.

Hostesses included Mesdames Samuel Michaelson, Rose Cowan, Edward H. Lavine, Fred S. Pinkney, M. Louis Abedon, Benjamin Rakatansky, Nathan S. Rakatansky and Herman Bromberg.

The next party will be held at the summer home of Mrs. Thomas H. Goldberg July 15.

The Herald's deadline for news items is Tuesday noon. We cannot guarantee to insert stories received after that time.

SYD COHEN:

JCC May Get A New Health Club

The men of our Jewish community may soon—very soon—have the opportunity of joining a new, modern and complete health club all their own, within the walls of the Jewish Community Center.

While this is the first word that has been printed on the subject, this health club is already well past the talking stage. Space has been selected, plans have been drawn, and the operation of the club figured closely as to makeup and cost.

If the plan goes through, the health club will contain a steam room, shower room, locker room, lounge room and exercise room. There will be an electric cabinet and violet ray and other heat lamps. Facilities will include rowing machines, bicycle (stationary), weights, mats, dumbbells and other equipment. It is hoped that room can be allotted for a handball court.

To top it all off, a private masseur will be on duty, at the exclusive service of health club patrons. The lounge room will contain cots, so that a man may take a nap following a soothing massage.

The club could accommodate a membership of 400, with a flow of 20 men at a time. It would be open on Sundays from early morning until early afternoon, and evenings till 9.

This health club is the doing of the newly organized but already dynamic Men's Association of the Jewish Community Center. Specifically, it came out of the mind of Saul Geffner, who is chairman of the executive board of the Men's Association. Saul had only just been elected to that post when he came up with the idea. He discussed it with Julius Michaelson, president—and Julie took to it enthusiastically. Since then the two men have spent countless hours working out details, talking to experts, seeking support and advice—actually, living and dreaming the health club.

Saul and Julie went to Ira Raskatansky, told him the story, and without delay Ira drew up the plans. Even the cost of the project has been figured. In short, all angles have been surveyed.

At a recent meeting the Men's Association unanimously voiced its approval of the plans for the health club. All that remains to be done, as I understand it, is approval by the Center's Board of Directors, and the Board was to have met two nights ago to discuss the matter. The Board has had the plans for some time.

I have learned that it is entirely possible to have the health club in operation in October. If the plans are approved, it will be located on the second floor of the Center, with one element—the exercise room—set up on the third floor, and connected to the whole by a private stairway.

In exchange for the four or five rooms that would be taken over on the second floor, the Men's Club would, at its own expense, remodel two rooms in the basement for the Center to put at the disposal of clubs or other activities.

I am reliably informed that this entire project will cost the Center not a single penny. Furthermore, once the health club is in operation, with the building costs out of the way and the operating costs following a set pattern, it will be turned over to the Center, which then can figure to net some three or four thousand dollars yearly from health club income. Expansion of the club and its facilities would be possible without going in the hole.

That's right—the Men's Association does not intend to run the health club and take out the profits. Control definitely will be turned over to the Center. A wonderful contribution to our community.

But that's not all. Even after the health club has been taken over by the Center, the Men's Association will keep a watchful eye on it and support it. Should a deficit arise, for example, the Men will endeavor to sponsor activities that will bring in the necessary funds.

How can you lose with a setup like that?

Now, of course, the health club will require funds to get it started. Saul Geffner says the cost of the entire operation—including everything that has been mentioned here—the entire works—will be approximately $7500. Should it be decided to set up a four wall handball court—a plan which is under consideration—the cost will mount by approximately $4500.

The handball court, if it is added to the plans, may not be built for a year. It probably would wait until funds are available. So for now let's deal with the $7500.

Present estimates are that all expenses can be met, and a surplus built up, provided 250-300 men join the health club and pay dues in advance—that would mean early this summer. This surplus would guarantee against any last minute snags or unexpected expense, and would permit the club to go into operation—a factor which, after all, is necessary for the club to gain its popular appeal.

Don't get the wrong idea from that last paragraph. Even though some membership fee may be required to start, no man who is a member of the Jewish Community Center will be barred from the use of the health club.

Any member, for instance, will be permitted to walk in for a massage or any other service. He will pay only the cost of the activity he desires, in accordance with the minimum rates set up by the committee that will govern the health club.

Fees have been discussed but not arranged, Geffner says. There probably will be a few rates, depending on the amount of service a man receives. Club members—those who pay their dues in advance this first year—will not have to pay these fees, of course.

Details will be left to the health club committee, which will consist of members of the Center's Board of Directors and the Men's Association.

As far as Geffner and Michaelson are concerned, the Men's Club's health club should provide a stimulus to bring new members into the Center and revive interest among members who are not active. It will be a powerful answer to those men who ask what the Center has to offer them.

The health club idea would be great if the Men's Association were an old, established organization on a firm financial basis. That it should come from a group that is not yet three months old is positively sensational.

The column's hat is off to Saul Geffner, Julie Michaelson and all their co-workers and assistants. It goes without saying that we hope their project is adopted by the Center—and the entire community.

AUXILIARY MEETING

The season's final meeting of Gerald M. Clamon Auxiliary 369, Jewish War Veterans, was held recently at the Jewish Community Center. Plans for a dessert bridge to be held in the fall were discussed. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Emma Simon, and Mrs. Irene Cohen poured.
