UJA Appeals for Cash to Aid Israel; Asks For Big Bank Loans, Advances on Pledges

Swiss Release Jewish Funds

LONDON — Assets deposited in Switzerland by Jews resident in Germany and blocked in that country as German property as a result of an agreement concluded in 1946 between the Allied and Swiss Governments, will be released shortly, according to an announcement here by the World Jewish Congress.

The terms of a new settlement among the Allied Powers, Switzerland and the West German Federal Republic replacing the Washington agreement concerning German property in Switzerland signed May 25, 1946, are expected to be ratified shortly by the Swiss Parliament.

The new agreement provides that assets of persons who "lost their life or a considerable part of their liberty or their full German citizen rights by law, ordinances or measures of the German National Socialist Government" will be released on application without any deduction. In other instances, releases of more than 10,000 Swiss francs (approximately $2,000) are subject to deductions of up to 50 percent. Exemption from deductions for victims of the Nazis is in accordance with representations on the part of the WJC and the JDC.

Scroll Found In Ex-King's Palace

TEL AVIV—An age-old Scroll of the Law, which was recently found in the palace of former King Farouk, of Egypt, was taken by Arab bands from the 200-year-old Hurva Synagogue in Jerusalem, when the Synagogue was destroyed during the Jewish-Arab War of 1948. It has now been learned here.

The Scroll was brought by the Arabs to Farouk as a gift to "the first Egyptian fighter against Israel." An Egyptian scholar stated that it is one of the four oldest scrolls existing in the world today and warned the Egyptian Government again "Jewish spies and agents who will use every means to get possession of this historic Scroll."

Women of Israel Carrying Brunt Of Burden, Says Mrs. Douglas

by SELMA NEWMAN

The women of Israel are carrying the brunt of the burden in the pressing battle to put the Jewish State on a solid economic and social footing, Helen Gahagan Douglas, former actress and congresswoman from California, told nearly 300 women who attended the $100 minimum luncheon of the Women's Division, General Jewish Committee, Tuesday afternoon at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel.

Speaking at the formal opening of the Fall fund-raising drive of the GJC, Mrs. Douglas described how the Israeli women have responded to the task of development by working in the clinics, caring for the children, and teaching newcomers how to live in a democracy—and all this in addition to the vital function of standing in line for hours to obtain their food rations.

Mrs. Douglas revealed that she has been interested in Palestine since her visit there with her husband, screen actor Melvyn Douglas, while on a world tour in 1932. "It was evident even then that the settlers had a 'dedication and oneness of purpose,' and I became a convert then to the establishment of a Jewish Homeland there," she added.

"Israel is a state today because of the foundation laid down years ago by the Palestinians who wanted a state where men and women were to be free; where the whole man could be developed," the guest speaker asserted. She then termed Israel "the most dynamic country in the world."

One of the heartwarming attributes of the Israelis, even in 1932, according to Mrs. Douglas, was their great concern for all people, while other Middle Eastern countries showed a decided lack of similar concern.

In another comparison with other neighboring lands, she told how the Jews of Palestine who had received good educations were willing to use and share their knowledge, no matter where they went in Israel or what job they had to do. She pointed to the fact that many doctors and nurses have been found doing very difficult and dirty jobs.

Mrs. Douglas has her own opinion of "how to prevent war" by "recognizing conditions as they exist and by recognizing the needs of other peoples in the world. Because of our past standards, we (the United States) must be responsible for those homeless people who need us," she said.

She urged her listeners to provide the kind of leadership that is necessary to insure continuance of the job at hand.

"No one can win a war," the former congresswoman declared. Germany, she said, is in a healthier position than Great Britain; Japan is taking away British markets while Britain is busy making armaments.

Mrs. Douglas spoke of the spiritual drive behind every action of the Israeli people, who, "without force or hesitation, opened their doors to all who are homeless and will continue to do so."

"The Israeli is never daunted," she remarked. "Their dedication

With little more than one week to go before the United Jewish Appeal opens an extraordinary two-day National Leadership Conference in Washington, D. C., Jack D. Weiler of New York, Chairman of the UJA's three-month nationwide drive to raise $35,000,000 in cash, today urged communities throughout the country to implement a special three-point plan designed to produce immediate dollar proceeds for presentation to the Appeal the weekend of October 18 and 19 at Conference sessions in the Shoreham Hotel.

Mr. Weiler, in a plea that followed an emergency meeting last week in New York of the UJA's top level National Campaign Cabinet, called upon chairmen and executive boards of local drives to (1) stage full-scale local cash collection efforts, (2) secure immediate large-scale bank loans, and (3) seek commitments and payment now of pledges that would ordinarily be solicited after the first of January.

The UJA National Cash Chairman disclosed at the same time, that, in a last minute effort to attain a mid-October mark of $25,000,000 representing close to two-thirds of the total three-month goal, members of the 36-man National Campaign Cabinet have put aside most of their business and professional interests until after next weekend's Conference in the nation's capital.

He announced that these cabinet members are now on a rigorous schedule of flying visits to communities throughout the 48 States to help negotiate local bank loans and to aid in securing pledges and payments not scheduled until 1953.

Mr. Weiler declared that "this extraordinary effort by the United Jewish Appeal has these two crucial aims: (1) to help the State of Israel meet the winter relief needs of 245,000 dependent immigrants now living in unheated tents and shacks, and (2) to help Israel greatly expand agricultural production thereby halting continued expenditure of her dollar resources for the import of food."

Governor Receives "The Troublemakers"

Governor Dennis J. Roberts inspects the initial copy of "The Troublemakers", latest report of intolerance in the United States, published by B'nai B'rith's Anti-Defamation League. Looking on are, left to right—Joseph M. Finkle, third vice-president, District Grand Lodge, and chairman of the ADL committee of Roger Williams Lodge; Coleman B. Zimmerman, president of Roger Williams Lodge, and Mrs. Morris Cohen, chairman of the ADL committee, women's chapter. The presentation was made prior to the general distribution of the volume to public and school libraries of the State.

Softball Finalists Split Double Header

Broadway Auto and Cranston Jewish Center, finalists in the 1952 playoffs of the Jewish Softball League, split the first two games of their best three-out-of-five game series last Sunday. Broadway Auto took the first game 10-8, with Cranston, league leader at the end of the regular season, rallying for a 17-10 triumph in the nightcap.

Broadway Auto picked up four runs in the first two innings of the opener, but a three run homer by Shocket in the bottom half of the second put Cranston close, and a four run outburst in the third, followed by another tally in the fourth, seemed to wrap up the contest for the Cranston men.

But Broadway Auto came back with rallies of two runs in each of the last three innings to win the seesaw struggle. Jack Steiner helped his own pitching cause by singling home the two tying runs in the sixth, while Bob Goldis poled a long two-run homer in the seventh to win the game.

The second game was loosely played and featured heavy hitting by both sides. Krasner and Pomerantz of Cranston led the hitters.

The teams will meet in another double header Sunday.

Constitution Party
Denies Anti-Semitism

PHILADELPHIA — The newly formed Constitution Party, which seeks the election of General Douglas MacArthur as President and Senator Harry Byrd as Vice President of the United States, is not anti-Semitic even though its statement of principles calls for preservation of "our Christian heritage," its new chairman, New York broker Haliburton Fales, insisted last week.

His statement came after Mrs. Suzanne Silvercrys Stevenson, sculptress and a founder of the Party, resigned with Percy L.

Fredleys Opens New Shop

Fredleys' new shop on Angell Street at Wayland Square, Providence, is now open. Located for many years in the Biltmore Hotel, Fredleys' move away from the center of Providence has fulfilled their desire to provide their patrons with more freedom in which to shop, with a parking area of their own to solve traffic problems.

Situated as it is in a suburban shopping area, the new Fredleys is larger than the original shop at the Biltmore. Fredleys will now be "many little shops within a shop." There will be a new sport and casual shop, a millinery bar, a junior and career girl shop, and special bridal and millinery salons.

HOLLYWOOD — Walter Winchell will make his debut in a new, regularly-scheduled television series over the facilities of the American Broadcasting Company under the sponsorship of Ben Katz' Gruen Watch Company. He will be seen and heard each Sunday evening. The Winchell ABC radio and TV newscasts will reach an estimated audience of 20,000,000, one of the largest program audiences in the history of broadcasting.

When in October, 1951, Winchell signed a life-long contract, giving the ABC network exclusive right to his services as a radio and television personality, he shortly thereafter decided to make his debut as a radio and TV network personality this Fall. Winchell's telecasts will enable millions of Americans to be at his side to watch him beat the hands around the clock, thrilling to the drama of his 200-word-per-minute flashes and the excitement and special events atmosphere which is part of every Winchell broadcast.

According to the poll, her ability to combine "intimacy, ease and warmth" in her songs has been responsible for Miss Shore's maintaining her position as the Number One Vocalist in the country.

The problems in Israel are many, Mrs. Douglas noted. Among them she listed national health, schools, clinics, finding jobs for and training the unskilled, teaching the newcomers a common language, and establishment of new businesses to absorb the 75,000 new people.

She told of the practice of placing a trained Israeli worker in charge of a group of immigrants, and how 30 people, speaking 30 different languages, must be taught and trained.

"The Israeli purity of spirit cannot fail," Mrs. Douglas declared. "In spite of the devastation of war and the ever-present danger of uprisings, they lead a normal, unhysterical life. They live by The Book, with a religious motivation to everything. Their great moral standards should be an example to the entire world."

"Israel can afford democracy in spite of its problems," she concluded.

Mrs. Douglas was introduced by Mrs. Albert Pilavin, executive vice-president of the National Women's Division, United Jewish Appeal.

Mrs. Archie Fain, chairman of the Women's Division, spoke briefly of an episode that took place during her recent trip to Jerusalem, and she commended the women present for wishing to help the "hungry, harassed Israeli immigrant who so desperately needs assistance."

"To live as a Jew is to assume responsibility here and abroad," Mrs. Fain said.

The program opened with the singing of the official campaign song, which was written by Mrs. Miles Alper, by Mrs. Samuel Gerstein and Mrs. Leonard Goldman, accompanied by Mrs. Louis Rubinstein.

Mrs. Benjamin Brier, chairman of the Initial Gifts affair, greeted the guests and introduced her co-chairmen, who are Mesdames Abraham Blackman, Ephraim Feingold, Harry Fowler, Thomas Goldberg, Henry Hassenfeld, Arthur Kaplan, William Meyers, Samuel Michaelson, Samuel Rapaport Jr., Joseph W. Ress, Nathan Samors, Max Siegal and Walter I. Sundlun.

MRS. FRANK DARMAN

Mrs. Leach is wearing a pin tucked dress in iridescent shades of blue, reflecting lights and shadows. A skirt that is lined and boasts of seven tiers, a stand-up collar, sleeves smartly cuffed and is known as the "Rhumba" dress, accenting the Spanish motif.

Mrs. Burrows is wearing a soft black velvet dress with an off-the-shoulder neckline and brief sleeves. Cascading from the waist a full net skirt with bands of horsehair and velvet. A slim belt to circle her waist completes the creation. This dress has its under-skirt of taffeta and net.

Mrs. Brodsky is wearing a iridescent taffeta of deep plum with undertones of changeable blue. A full skirt is topped by a finely fashioned boned and lined bodice. The stole effect which covers her shoulders is removable, transforming this creation into a strapless dress. The cut flowers of taffeta add a touch of beauty.

Miss Berube is wearing a rich black velvet suit dress with a pure silk shantung white dicky that has jeweled buttons. The dicky is inserted in a tuxedo jacket which is outlined in white braid and has a slit back smartly tailored. A slim skirt completes the number.

Mrs. Rosenstein is wearing a red poodle cloth dress, revealing a flattering figure and has a semi-mandarin neckline, $\frac{3}{4}$ length sleeves, cuffed. The skirt is draped coachman fashion and has two smart pockets.

Mrs. Exter is wearing a sheer wool crepe in deep purple, slenderizing with its diagonally buttoned front producing a tunic-like appearance. A velvet and beaded pocket add glamour, as do the buttons carried out in the same beaded and velvet motif.

Mrs. Rosenstein is wearing a slim strapless cocktail dress of soft pure silk taffeta, lovely bodice specked with pearls and rhinestones extending to the back. The decollete is lined and boned. A bow tops the slim silhouette for narrow hips. A brief jacket touches the shoulders making this a versatile dress.

Mrs. Jacober is wearing a tweed wool dress that is reminiscent of needlepoint. The gathered waistline is nipped in with a red elasticized belt for the tiny waist. A diagonally draped bodice with dolman sleeves, a swirling skirt and two slit pockets complete the dress.

Coalition Crisis

Premier David Ben-Gurion's coalition government in Israel has, for the moment, incurred the risk of losing its majority in the Knesset because of the decision of two religious parties—Adugath Israel and Adugath Israel Workers—to quit the government.

The two parties, protesting Ben-Gurion's determination to draft Orthodox women as well as other women for military service, have had two representatives in the cabinet. Rabbi I. Lewin has been minister of welfare, and Rabbi Kalman Kahane has been deputy minister of education.

If the five deputies belonging to Adugath Israel and the Agudath Israel Workers were to decide to align themselves with the government's opposition in the Knesset, there would be an even division of strength in the parliamentary body, with 60 on each side. The coalition government would fall, under such circumstances.

Fortunately, the Knesset is in recess until Nov. 5, and Ben-Gurion has time to seek to resolve the differences that caused the walkout.

It is noteworthy that two more moderate religious parties—Hapoel Hamizrachi, represented in the Knesset by eight deputies, and the Mirachi, represented by two—are staying on in the government.

If the Premier cannot induce the dissidents to return, he will need to appeal to the General Zionists and the Progressive for the backing required to maintain coalition control.

Our hope is that Ben-Gurion, with his usual diplomatic skill, will be able to avoid necessity for governmental re-organization at this time.

"One Man's Opinion"

BY BERYL SEGAL

The Lady and the Dayon

During the ten days between Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur, I was browsing around in a downtown department store one afternoon, when I heard someone call me by name, asking:

"Can I help you?"

I turned around and saw a smiling saleslady standing behind me. I was somewhat embarrassed because I could not remember ever having met the lady. But the good lady came to my rescue, saying:

"I read the Herald," and we both laughed and felt like two people who have something in common. It has been that way many a time. Readers make themselves known to me on the street, in the bus, and at public gatherings, and it never fails to thrill me. The saleslady then commented on a recent article, and suggested a theme for a column she wishes I would write someday.

"I wish you would write about the way some people carry on in Schul during the prayers."

The lady, then, told me how she and her husband had to leave the Schul in the middle of the services because they could not suffer any longer the chatter and the jabber going on all around them. She told especially of one lady who did not even take her seat, but kept promenading among the aisles, visiting with friends, and telling them about her wonderful vacation, about Shirley's wedding, and about her son's graduation. And all this at the top of her voice, drowning out the chanting of the cantor and the words of the Rabbi.

"Why don't you write a column about this?"

On the way home I was thinking of the General Jewish Committee of Providence, Inc., appoint a Nominating Committee consisting of 9 members, 3 of whom shall be chosen from among the members of the Board of Directors of the General Jewish Committee of Providence, Inc., 3 of whom shall be chosen from the Board of Directors of this corporation, and 3 of whom shall be chosen from the community at large. Said Nominating Committee shall within 30 days thereafter file in writing, a slate of Nomination of Directors to be nominated pursuant to Article Fourth, Section 1 (e) of these By-Laws, with the Secretary of the General Jewish Committee of Providence, Inc., and shall simultaneously likewise file a slate of Nomination of Officers to be nominated pursuant to Article Fifth, Section 1 of these By-Laws with the Secretary of this corporation.

(b) The Board of Directors of the General Jewish Committee of Providence, Inc. shall annually, at a meeting to be held the third week in May, elect the entire Board of Directors of this corporation provided for in Article 4, Section 1 of these By-Laws.

(c) The Board of Directors so elected shall, at a meeting to be held directly after their election, elect the officers of this corporation.

ARTICLE SEVENTH:

At all meetings of the Board of Directors a quorum shall consist of one-third of its members, and the affirmative vote of at least one-third of the total number of said Board shall be necessary to effect a vote or resolution.

ARTICLE EIGHTH:

Amendments to the Articles of Association and By-Laws of this corporation may be made at any meeting of the Board of Directors, by an affirmative vote of at least 50 percent of the membership of the Board of Directors, provided written notice of such proposed amendments is sent to all the Directors of this corporation at least 10 days before such meeting, and said proposed amendments have been submitted to and approved by the Board of Directors of the General Jewish Committee of Providence, Inc. in writing prior thereto.

of the saleslady's request, and I tried to dismiss the whole matter. After all, decorum in Schul is the concern of the Rabbi, of the officers, the special High Holidays committee. Where do I, a stranger, come in? Furthermore, how do I know that the story told to me by the saleslady is entirely correct? What if she exaggerated? What if it wasn't as bad as all that? No, I will stay clear of it.

But that same evening, a friend who worships in the same Schul as my saleslady confirmed all the details related by her, and added a few more of his own. I was also told of similar disorders, and even worse, in another Schul, in another part of the city. My saleslady was right after all.

And yet, what can one write or say to these people who come to Schul for a session of gossip, and chatter, and horse-play? It is, first of all, a matter of taste and manners. People of good taste and pleasing manners will not raise their voices, to the distraction of others, either in Schul, or in the theater, or on the bus, or in a restaurant. They will be considerate of others when they sit on the sands of the bathing beach, when they walk on the grounds of a public park, and when they pass by homes on the city streets.

It is so elementary, and yet so many offend.

As for lack of decorum in a house of prayers, the offense is even greater. This chatty lady, and others like her, are not only guilty of poor taste and ill manners, but they also display a lack of reverence. No person has any business to enter a house of worship and to join the congregation without a feeling of reverence for the Schul.

"Know before Whom You Are Standing!"

This phrase was inscribed on many a gate, or framed over many an Eastern Wall in Synagogues I have visited in my younger days.

Well, a Rabbi can build a fine sermon around that phrase "Know before Whom You are Standing." As for me, I am reminded of the story told in our family about one of our ancestors, five or six generations removed.

This great-great-grandfather of mine, so the story goes, was in a habit of wandering out to the woods all by himself in the early hours of the morning. There, in the depths of the forest, he had a favorite spot where he would spend the hours before sunrise in meditation and in prayer undisturbed.

One day the Lord of the Castle happened to ride on his horse through the forest, and he came to the secluded spot favored by the pious man. The Lord of the Castle halted his horse and stood still watching the Jew in his long black kapote, with his long beard and side-curls, leaning against a tall tree, standing motionless deep in thought, only his lips moving faintly, uttering no sound.

"Who are you? What are you doing here at this hour?" the Lord of the Castle finally asked.

My ancestor, the story relates, remained silent, did not turn around, did not interrupt his thoughts, did not even open his eyes. Neither did he move ever so lightly from his leaning against the tree after the Lord of the Castle repeated his questions a second time and a third time.

"Why don't you answer me? Do you know who I am?" This time the Lord of the Castle was angry, and he lifted his whip over the head of the silent man, shouting:

"I am the Lord of the Castle. This forest is mine, and all the fields of three days journey are mine. All the villages and towns and the land on which they are built belong to me, and all the inhabitants in them are my serfs. On your knees, you dog of a Jew, in the presence of your Lord, or I will whip you to death for your impudence!"

Only then did my ancestor open his eyes and let them dwell on the face of the angry Lord, and he spoke:

"My name is Lieber, and I am the Dayon of Berditchev. Well do I know who you are. Truly you are the great Lord of the Castle on the top of the hill, and you are the master of all the fields, and the forests, and streams, yes, and of all the inhabitants of the land of three days journey. It was, I admit, disrespectful of me, and I deserve to be punished. But before you mete out justice, give me permission to ask you a question."

The Lord of the Castle was impressed by the depths in the eyes of the Dayon of Berditchev, and the soft manner of his speech, and he climbed down from his saddle, and he stood on the ground near Reb Lieber, and he motioned him to ask his question.

"If you, my Lord, were to stand before the King in his Palace, would you turn around to answer a trivial question by one of his servants?"

The Lord of the Castle snapped decidedly:

"Certainly not. I would not turn around to answer a question by the Prime Minister himself. Not when I stand before his majesty the King."

Reb Lieber, my ancestor many generations removed, then smiled, and concluded:

"How then, my Lord, could I answer your questions, while I was standing before the King of Kings, the Master of the World, who created heaven and earth and all that is in them?"

What was the end of the story?

Oh, yes, there is an end, and a happy ending it is. But that is well told in many a Hasidic tale. You may come upon the whole story of the Dayon of Berditchev and the Lord of the Castle in your reading some day. Or I may be moved myself to tell the rest of the story on some occasion.

But enough for now. We started to talk about the lady who chatted on the top of her voice in Schul, telling of her vacation, her son's graduation, and of her daughter's wedding.

Reb Lieber knew before whom he stood.

This lady did not.

YES THE SCHOOL PROBLEM AFFECTS YOU!

If you are a taxpayer, you are directly affected by the school problem. Forty cents out of your city tax dollar is spent for schools. Therefore, the amount spent for schools, in large measure, determines what your taxes will be.

All of you are taxpayers. If you own a home or any other real estate or if you own an automobile—you pay taxes directly. If you are a tenant, you pay taxes when you pay your rent. If you buy any food or clothing or anything else in any of the stores in Providence, you are a taxpayer because part of the price that you pay includes city taxes.

Whether you are a landlord or a tenant, an employer or a worker, rich or poor, young or old; if you live or work in Providence—you are a taxpayer of Providence. Therefore, this all-important problem of schools affects your pocketbook.

POOR SCHOOL ADMINISTRATION

... it may be stated with reasonable assurance that (1) too many schools are being operated, (2) too many inadequately trained teachers are employed, (3) too much is being paid unqualified teachers and too little is being paid the qualified teachers, (4) too many teachers have too many free periods, (5) too much deferred building maintenance has been permitted to accumulate, and (6) too little effort has been made to adjust the school program to the particular social and economic requirements of the community. While all of these assertions may be denied, this Bureau has studied and appraised school operations closely for almost twenty years, and it is doubtful if any other outside agency has had greater opportunity to be more familiar with the facts. It is with a considerable degree of confidence therefore that these statements are made." (Report from Providence Governmental Research Bureau)

BUILDINGS DETERIORATED

"Though some school buildings have been modernized in part, very many have been allowed to deteriorate because of inadequate appropriations. There is need for repair at many buildings of sidewalks, playgrounds, landscaping, fences, roofs, brickwork, window sills, and many other parts; for further painting inside and outside; and for replacement of floors, lighting systems, classroom furniture, and like requirements. It is estimated that this would involve an annual expenditure of $125,000.

It is estimated that it will require at least $1,500,000 at the present purchasing power of money, to rehabilitate the school buildings designated by the city plan commission for retention, so as to make them as nearly as possible like new school buildings. These include some of the larger elementary schools and all of the junior and senior high school buildings." (Providence School Survey Commission Report—April 1952)

YOUR TAX DOLLAR — SPENT WITHOUT KNOWING FACTS

"... In each of the past five years, the City Council has deemed it necessary to appropriate, for school purposes, a sum of money in excess of the amount required by the so-called Strayer Act, although the City Council possessed no adequate information on either the needs of the school department or the manner in which its operations were being administered..."

(Resolution 141, Passed February 16, 1951, by the Providence City Council and approved and signed by Mayor Reynolds.)

TAXES UP

"The tax rate has gone from $25 to the present $29.40 since 1948. School costs, which jumped $1,200,000 in that period, were responsible for much of the advance. If those costs were to be permitted to rise another $500,000, still another tax rate increase, boosting the figure well over the $30 mark, would be necessary." At the first organizational meeting of Habonim, L.Z.Y., held on Oct. 1, Shirley Stollman, a representative of the national office, discussed programming and leadership for the coming year. Leaders for the season are Mrs. Dorothy Sokolow, Temple Beth Israel group; Mrs. Irma Krasner, Young Israelis Chapter; Joseph Teverow, Joseph Trumpeldor Chapter; and Mrs. Gloria Lake, Congregation Beth-David group.

Plans were formulated for a closer tie with National Habonim in relation to joint programs. Additional groups will be organized in Pawtucket and Cranston. There will be a combined group celebration in November, which representatives of the New York office

It's a mighty fine business

A savings and loan association does two things that I think are pretty fine:

1. It helps people save money.
2. It helps people finance homes right in your own community.

It takes in the savings of thousands of people and pays dividends on these savings. It lends a part (only a part) of this money at a moderate rate of interest to folks who want to build or buy their own homes.

I don't know of any business which is better from the standpoint of helping people, and it is a business in which I am proud to put my savings. That's why I keep my savings in First Federal Savings of Providence.

Bias Case

Arouses Johannesburg

JOHANNESBURG — A blatant case of anti-Semitic discrimination in employment in this city has incensed the Jewish community following its disclosure by the Zionist Record. The paper printed a letter from a local firm turning down a job applicant on the assumption that she was Jewish. The applicant had been interviewed and verbally accepted for a position with H. W. Wedderburn, Ltd., a scale manufacturing firm, but upon reaching her home found a letter from the firm stating in part: "I assume that you could be Jewish. If my assumption is correct I regret that I must cancel the arrangements made."

SYD COHEN:

The Big Game

On the way home we agreed—Harold Israel and I—that our World Series trip had been well worth while, despite the trouble and discomforts that went with it. For Saturday's duel between Allie Reynolds and Joe Black was a great game, a highly dramatic and thrilling affair. And Sunday's classic, that 11-inning heart-stopper, must go down in the books as one of the greatest Series games of all time.

This was baseball at its best, its very best. This was drama that no Broadway show downtown could rival. The situations would be worthy of a Hollywood scenario writer, the suspense reminding of Alfred Hitchcock.

Both these games were worth the sleeplessness they cost, the discomforts they brought. There was trouble with train schedules due to a track derailment in Boston, and a resultant wild morning ride by car; there was trouble with the car outside the Stadium, with loss of time and lots of added fatigue; there was trouble over hotel reservations; there was irregular eating. Nothing but trouble, pouring at us from all sides.

But all these things were endured without complaint or show of temper, because these particular two World Series games would have been worth even more personal distress.

I shall never forget the mass state of shock that enveloped Yankee Stadium when Carl Erskine curved the final strike past Yogi Berra. The umpire's fist jerked up in the strike sign, and the game was over. Yet, so wrought up was the crowd—so hopefully or fearfully expectant, following Mize's unsuccessful bid for a second home run—that everyone stood in silence for a few seconds, as if unable to comprehend that with this one little gesture the game finally was no more. Yogi stood at the plate, not moving, unwilling—no, unable—to accept the realization of what had happened.

Then the shock wore off, and the Brooklyn rooters went wild.

I'm not trying to tell you about the games in themselves. You heard them on the air or watched them on TV or read about them in the papers. But no TV camera could compare to the actual scene of battle, and the radio announcers who had the privilege of doing the broadcast certainly were not capable of their responsibility.

TV, with a hundred cameras, never could have done justice to Johnny Mize's three-run homer that put the Yanks ahead briefly in the fifth. Never was there such excitement, such pandemonium, such high drama. Jose Ferrer, Laurence Olivier, Gregory Peck would have drooled in envy at the way Big Jawn swept that tremendous crowd. It was immense, a once in a lifetime occurrence that would have been sufficient for any one game or series.

They will talk about this one game, I think, as long as our generation is mentally competent. There were so many angles on it that someone should write a book just on that game alone. It was a game of inches, and as Mel Allen always says on his Yankee broadcasts, "Baseball is a game of inches." An inch here, an inch there, and a ball game is won or lost.

SERIES MEMORIES

After watching Joe Black lose out in a 1-0 duel with Reynolds (Joe allowed only one run while he was in there), Hal Israel and I realized that here was the true relief pitcher. Never allows a hit with men in scoring position. The only Yankee runs off him in 16 innings came by two homers, and a triple and a long fly when he was ahead.

That, of course, was before the final game, when even the tireless Black found his arm unable to match his heart.

Talk about that old college spirit. Can anything match an unrelated, unorganized group of baseball fans rooting for their ball club? Did ever a college team have such devoutly and violently loyal followers? Nope. I'd have to see it first, and even then I wouldn't believe it.

Out in the spacious, sun-baked bleachers of Yankee Stadium were some 20,000 tightly packed fans, many of whom could and did tell you stories by the hundred of previous World Series classics they had witnessed from these same seats as far back as 1923, when the Stadium was first opened. Most of them were none to bashful in letting you know which team they were rooting for.

There was the moon-faced, beaming gent with the rather small Dodger pennant, who planked himself down front in the bleachers and occasionally twatted his plaintive whistle to let the crowd know he was there. Once he attracted attention, he proudly held up his banner in defiance of the overwhelming number of Yankee fans who surrounded him. He was pelted with old newspapers, paper containers, fruit peelings. He led a charmed life, wasn't hit once in two games; but his immediate neighbors must have hated him.

There were the crude signs hastily painted or drawn on manila sheets of paper, the sides of cardboard boxes, or anything that was handy, letting the world know about their makers' feelings regarding the day's proceedings. A sign held aloft praising the Yanks was followed immediately by a bigger one in behalf of the Bums.

It was incredible. It was tremendous. It was a privilege.
