Estimate 600,000 Jews Now in Red Concentration Camps

GJC To Hold W-Day Breakfast

A new campaign activity—in the form of a "W-Day Breakfast"—has been injected into the General Jewish Committee's fund-raising drive in behalf of the United Jewish Appeal as the campaign entered its final stages and edged up close to the $600,000 mark.

The affair, a combined breakfast and one-day solicitation, is scheduled for Sunday, Feb. 1 at the Narragansett Hotel at 9 A. M. Henry J. Hassenfeld, campaign chairman, announced this week.

"C-Day," "M-Day," "Y-Day" and "D-Day" have become familiar GJC campaign solicitation techniques in recent years—but the "W-Day Breakfast" in many respects represents a new approach, Hassenfeld declared.

"The 'W' in 'W-Day' represents 'windup,'" he said. "And that's exactly what this novel breakfast-meeting solicitation will help to bring about—a windup to our current campaign."

Hassenfeld emphasized that the affair was "the final formal activity of the drive." Invitations to a selected corps of devoted workers are being mailed out, he said. "These men—all willing to sacrifice half a day to insure complete coverage of our greater Providence Jewish community—will meet on Sunday morning, Feb. 1, and, after breakfast, will be assigned several cards each to canvass, and report back by noon or early afternoon."

Hassenfeld noted, however, that GJC headquarters will welcome "any volunteer worker at the W-Day Breakfast who might not be on the mailing list." He suggested that volunteers phone the GJC office (GA 1-4111) so that advance reservations may be made in sufficient time.

The cards represent potential donors who either have not been contacted yet by GJC solicitors or who delayed making their pledges when first approached. "Coverage of them will mean that we have exerted every effort to record on our donors' honor roll every member of the community," Hassenfeld noted.

ZOA Asks Russia to Permit Emigration of 2½ Million Jews

NEW YORK—Dr. Irving Miller, president of the Zionist Organization of America, this week called upon Soviet Russia and its satellites to permit its 2,500,000 Jewish residents to emigrate to Israel, asserting that "the Zionist Movement will gladly undertake to carry out such a transfer en masse."

The call by Dr. Miller was coupled with a warning to international Communism that its campaign against Zionism, which he termed a "new phase in the cold war against the free world," will fail to intimidate or sway the free people of Israel and the Zionist Movement in their resolve to continue their alliance with the forces of democracy and peace.

Dr. Miller led other top-ranking leaders of the American Zionist movement, including Dr. Emanuel Neumann, member of the Jewish Agency Executive, and Mortimer May of Nashville (Tenn.), chairman of the National Administrative Council of the ZOA, in denouncing in sharp terms the anti-Semitic campaign launched in the Iron Curtain countries "as an instrument of terror . . . to divert public attention from their own failures and shortcomings." List Significant Occurrences in '52

Communist anti-Semitism, now adopted as official Kremlin state policy, has swept into Soviet concentration camps an estimated 600,000 Jews out of about 2,000,000 still alive in Russia. This is reported in the 54th annual volume of the American Jewish Year Book, 1953 edition, to be published next week by the American Jewish Committee.

The new Year Book asserts that the increase in "popular anti-Semitism" throughout the Soviet Union was particularly marked during 1952, adding that this trend had the official endorsement of the Red regime.

A number of significant occurrences in Russia during the last 12 months are cited by the Year Book report as evidence of the Kremlin's approval of anti-Semitism. These include:

1. Mass deportations of Jews took place during 1952 from the Ukraine and White Russia. All Jews were rounded up and removed from some districts such as Rovno and Zdobunov.

2. Jewish servicemen demobilized from military service were not reinstated to any professional positions as physicians, engineers, etc. Those who refused to accept menial jobs were arrested as "vagrants" or "anti-social elements" and deported to forced labor camps.

3. Jews were losing their jobs on the pretexes of "sabotage," "nepotism," "slowing down production," "engaging in illicit economic activities," etc.

4. Graduate schools in Soviet universities for training of officers and diplomats began to refuse applications of Jewish students.

5. Anti-Semitic clichés and stereotypes appeared with more and more frequency in Soviet periodicals and books. History books were rewritten and unsavory characters were identified as "Jews." Villains in novels were being identified as "Jews."

6. The names of officials of Jewish origin were omitted from the Soviet "Diplomatic Encyclopedia."

7. The "Soviet Encyclopedia" in 1952 gave much more space than usual to many anti-Semitic characters in Russian history. One example was the unusual amount of space given to Bogdan Chmielnicki, 17th century Ukrainian general responsible for many pogroms in which thousands of Jews perished.

8. Relations between the Soviet Union and Israel deteriorated sharply. Soviet propaganda, particularly at the Czech purge trial, attacked "Zionism" and called Israel "a colony of Western imperialism." Members of the Israeli government were repeatedly denounced as "imperialist agents." In the meantime, Arab movements in the Middle East enjoyed Soviet and Communist support as "movements of national liberation."

The Year Book confirms the complete absence of Jewish cultural organizations, periodicals, schools, and theaters in the Soviet Union. It says that practically no Jewish religious life is known to exist in the Soviet Union now except for a few isolated synagogues, one of them in Moscow, which is "evidently maintained mainly for the purpose of demonstrating to foreign visitors that there was freedom of religion in the Soviet Union."

Community Problems

Considerable discussion is now taking place in Jewish communities throughout the country on ways and means of increasing sources of communal income in addition to the annual campaigns of the local federations . . . In some communities the question is being discussed as to whether fees should not be charged in community centers, Jewish schools, child care agencies, aged institutions and clinics . . . All this is part and parcel of the picture of a continuing decline in funds raised by the federations and welfare funds.

In this connection some communities are also re-examining their policies of including or excluding various agencies in their campaign . . . The aim is to establish whether the campaigns continue to include agencies automatically without re-examining the justification for their support . . . Also whether other agencies, possibly more worthy, are being excluded from allocations only because they were not included before.

The communities are also trying to clarify for themselves whether they make their decisions on allocations as a result of planning or pressure . . . In other words: are decisions based on facts and demonstrated needs, or on individual or group interests and influences?

The basic question is—are the communities acting largely on the basis of last year's decisions, or are they taking into account each year the changes which occur in needs and programs? . . . Are they acting on a basis of across-the-board cuts, or are they supporting each agency in accordance with its changing needs, possibly increasing support for some while decreasing support for others in the same year?

Of course, Jewish philanthropic contributions are not confined to federations and welfare funds . . . They are made through a variety of other channels for local, national and overseas purposes . . . This year for instance, sixty-two (Continued on Page 6)

ALIENS JAM HIAS OFFICES TO COMPLY WITH McCARRAN ACT

Close to 100,000 non-citizens of the U. S. during the month of January jam-packed the offices of HIAS, Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society, to receive assistance in filling out alien registration reports required annually of non-citizens. In cooperation with the government, and in the interest of non-citizen immigrants who were threatened with fine, imprisonment, or possible deportation for failure to register, HIAS established special alien registration bureaus at its world headquarters at 425 Lafayette Street, New York, and at its branch offices throughout the country. Ben Touster, President of the Society, invited all aliens, regardless of race or creed, to call at the offices and receive assistance in complying with the stringent regulations.

GRIM WARNING POSTER is studied carefully by an immigrant family being temporarily quartered at the HIAS Shelter. Parents were required to register all children under fourteen years of age.

HIAS WORLD HEADQUARTERS. The historic old building of the sixty-nine year old global migration agency. Migrants from 48 different nations were assisted in their registration. Multi-lingual aides were assigned by HIAS to ease the problems of registrations for the strangers within our gates. During the period of registration the reception and consultation rooms of the famous old building were often packed to capacity, and on Sunday mornings the street in front was alive with the multitude who awaited their turns to be admitted.

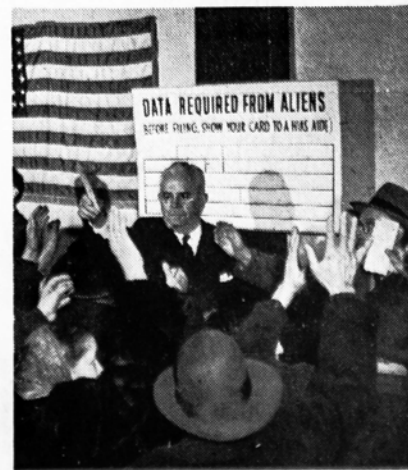

ANXIOUS COMPLIERS who arrived at the HIAS offices in surging waves were registered by HIAS personnel at the rate of one every two minutes. Eighty-five percent were registered during the first half of January.

MISSING DATA. Hundreds of aliens, unable to supply essential information concerning date of birth, arrival, etc., were referred to the HIAS documentation center where the data was obtained for them.

SUNDAY CROWD. Thousands of registrants who could not get away during the work week to register, availed themselves of the HIAS Sunday office hours to fulfill the McCarran Act requirements. HIAS, which is closed on Saturdays and all Jewish holidays, extends its free services on Sundays. HIAS has traditionally made its services available on Sundays for those who could not apply for information or assistance during the week. "When in doubt, go to the HIAS office," has been a popular saying among American Jews for decades.

OFFICIAL BRIEFING. Edward J. Shaughnessy, District Immigration and Naturalization Service Director, hands out registration cards at HIAS after explaining the required data with the aid of an enlarged replica of the official form.

Plantations Bank Net Profit Up 19% In 1952

Net 1952 profit before taxes of the Plantations Bank of Rhode Island was $212,200, or a 19 per cent increase over the previous year, Henry B. Cross, president, reported to stockholders this week at their annual meeting.

Federal income taxes were substantially higher during the year, amounting to 63.5 per cent of the net profit, he explained.

Ernest A. Peel, vice president and treasurer, reported total operating income for 1952 of $92,658, an increase of $70,000, or 7.6 per cent, over the previous year. He said total operating expense of $702,528 increased $41,000 or 6.2 per cent.

Net operating earnings, after an income tax deduction of $135,000 (equal to $5.14 a share), amounted to $155,130, or the equivalent of $5.91 a share. They compared with $163,532 in 1951, equivalent to $6.23 a share. Net profit after reserves was $77,200.83, equal to $2.94 a share.

Securities Earnings Up

Earnings on the security portfolio in 1952 averaged 1.75 per cent as compared to 1.56 per cent the previous year.

Total deposits outstanding were $388,000 more and the total loans outstanding were $1,288,000 more than in 1951. Cross explained that 60 per cent of the bank's deposit total represents demand deposits and 40 per cent time deposits.

He said that of the approximately $11-million in loans outstanding, about one-half is represented by consumer credit loans, 23 per cent by commercial credit loans, and 27 per cent by real estate mortgage loans.

Two New Directors

The stockholders elected two new directors and re-elected 26 incumbents. New on the board are Howard R. Merriman of Providence, a partner in the investment firm of Miller & George, and Berthelot A. Leclair of Woonsocket, an attorney.

At a subsequent meeting of the directors, officers for the year were re-elected and a dividend of 35

Beth Israel Cops Bowling Tourney

To the Temple Beth Israel Bowling League goes the honor of winning the first tournament sponsored by the newly formed Rhode Island Jewish Bowling Congress. Beth Israel placed first among ten entries in the March of Dimes handicap tourney staged Sunday afternoon at the Casino Alleys.

The winners will receive a trophy, which will be presented at the annual banquet of the Congress, to be held later this year.

Here is the order in which they finished: Beth-Israel, Fineman-Trinkle Post JWV, Temple Beth El, Congregation Beth-David, Cranston Jewish Center, JWV Post 23, A E Pi Fraternity, Providence Fraternal, Knights of Pythias and Temple Emanuel.

The tournament involved the top 20 bowlers of each league, and was based on total pinfall plus handicaps worked out in advance. Beth Israel, posting the second highest pinfall, took advantage of its 210 pin handicap to win by 32 pins over its nearest rival.

Temple Beth El's Brotherhood actually posted the highest pinfall, 6488 to Beth Israel's 6417; but Beth El had only an 18 pin handicap to work with, and that wasn't enough. Temple Emanuel, seeded first in advance of the competition and therefore giving up handicaps to all other leagues, had to stand or fall on its own pinfall, and the 6250 total that resulted was far from enough. In fact, it was only fifth best.

Figures of the top clubs, including first their own pinfall, then the grand totals, follow: Beth Israel, 6417 and 6627; Fineman-Trinkle, 6331 and 6595; Beth El, 6488 and 6506; Beth-David, 6187 and 6505.

Individual honors were copped by Saul Ladow of Knights of Pythias, who posted the high single of 152, and Irv Solmer, Emanuel's top keglar, whose 390 paced the three string field. Solmer rolled 122, 120 and 148, the latter being second best single string.

Other high threes were chalked up by Peddle, Beth-David, 387; Fellman, Post 23, 380; Feldman, Fineman-Trinkle, 379; Weisman, A E Pi, 371; Mickler, Beth El, 362; Miller, Beth David, 361; Goldberg, Emanuel, 360; Himmelfarb, Fineman-Trinkle, 357, and Trinkle, Beth El, 355.

High singles included, in addition to Ladow and Solmer, Myrow, Beth Israel, 146; Segal, Beth Israel, 145; Bloom, Beth El, 142; Goldberg, Emanuel, 142; Berlinksky, Knights of Pythias, 141; Chernenick, Beth-David, 140; Peddle, Beth-David, 139, and Fellman, Post 23, 139.

The bowlers operated in shifts, five leagues rolling from 1 P. M., and the other five picking up at 3 P. M. The players followed the progress of the tourney from a giant 6' x 6' blackboard-scoreboard, posted in the alleys, which included the names of all keglars and teams.

Foods To Remember

by LEAH W. LEONARD, (Author of "Jewish Cookery")

An inquiry comes from Mrs. Dora Gordon of Dorchester, Mass., asking if "MINCE MEAT" pie (apparently the commercial kind) is Kosher. She adds: "If Mince meat pies can be made Kosher, please print a recipe in your column so that some of my friends can read it, too."

The commercially produced Mince meat is made with beef suet. To be certain of the Kashruth of Mincemeat, make some at home according to the following recipe to be used in pies or tarts. Here is a very easy-to-follow recipe:

HOME MADE MINCEMEAT

- 1 cup lean chopped beef (Hamburger grind)
- 1 cup cold water
- 1 teaspoon cracker crumbs
- 1 cup seeded raisins
- 1 large orange, seeds removed
- 2 cups diced tart apple
- 1 cup diced pear
- 1 tablespoon each of candied citron and orange peel
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon allspice
- 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/2 cup pickling vinegar (or use liquid from pickles)
- 1/4 cup brown sugar or dark syrup
- 1/4 cup brandy

Combine chopped beef, water and cracker crumbs. Cook over low heat in a covered frying pan for 15 to 20 minutes or until the meat is tender. Put the raisins, cut orange (peel included), diced apple and pear, and the candied fruit through the moderate blade of your food chopper. Combine with the cooked beef and add all the other ingredients except brandy. Cook 35 to 40 minutes over moderate heat. Have two pint jars ready. Add the brandy to the mincemeat mixture and turn into sterilized jars. Seal. Sufficient for two 8 or 9-inch pies, or eight 3-inch tarts.

PASTRY FOR PIES OR TARTS

- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 3/4 cup vegetable shortening or oil
 - 5 to 6 tablespoons ice water
- Sift together flour and salt. Cut in shortening and combine with the water to form a ball of dough. Chill before rolling out. Divide dough in half. Use a lightly floured board or pastry cloth. Roll out dough in two rounds for a pie. Place one pastry inside an ungreased pie pan, press gently to fit tightly, cut away the overhanging edge and prick the bottom of pastry with the tines of a fork to prevent blistering. Brush with diluted egg yolk or beaten egg white. Turn in one pint of Home-made Mincemeat and adjust the top pastry, pressing the edge with the finger to seal. Turn back the overhanging pastry and form a fluted rim. Pierce the top crust of pie with a fork or point of knife in a leaf design. Bake 30 minutes at 450 degrees F or until nicely browned. Yield: 8 or 9-inch double crust pie.

TARTLETS: Fit rounds of rolled out pastry over the bottoms of 3-inch muffin pans, prick the pastry lightly with a fork and bake 8 minutes at 500 degrees F or until lightly browned. When cool, fill with mince meat, adjust pencil thin strips of rolled out pastry in any design over the filling. Return to oven for 5 minutes until nicely browned on top.

Try this Cabbage Soup any cold day this month. You'll love it.

CABBAGE SOUP

- (Called Borscht by some, Chiorba by others)
- 1 1/2 to 2 pounds brisket, "flanken" or short ribs of beef
 - 1-large onion, diced
 - 1 1/2 pounds cabbage, shredded or chopped
 - 5 cups boiling water
 - 1 teaspoon salt (or to taste)
 - 1/4 cup cider vinegar or lemon juice (or use citric acid crystals)
 - 1/4 cup dark brown sugar
 - 2 tablespoons schmaltz or other shortening
 - 2 tablespoons flour

Sear the meat until nicely browned, using the same heavy pot to be used for the soup. Add diced onion, stirring until light brown. Add shredded or chopped cabbage and cook over reduced heat, stirring until the cabbage is lightly browned. Add boiling water, salt to taste, vinegar or other souring agent, brown sugar and cook over moderate heat 1 to 1 1/2 hours or until meat is very tender. Make a thickening or "einbrenn" by browning the flour in hot melted Schmaltz or shortening of your choice and stirring in about a cup of the soup, cooking until smooth and thick. Add this to the cabbage soup and cook 5 minutes longer before serving hot with a plain boiled potato per plateful. Serves 4 to 6.

Variation 1: Add a cup tomato sauce after adding the "einbrenn."
Variation 2: Add a shredded

carrot for added flavor. | cabbage for the white or green
Variation 3: Substitute red variety.

Advice for Segal

Editor:
May I express the opinion that a good many of the present and future controversies that Beryl Segal gets himself into would be averted if your paper were to enlist the services of a capable drama-music critic. Much as I appreciate what Mr. Segal is trying to do in his campaign to elevate public performances of Jewish nature, I could more wholeheartedly applaud his efforts except for a certain apprehension of mine—to wit: Are the Jewish theatre, the roster of Jewish artists of stage and concert, and the caliber of their repertoire subjects on which Mr. Segal is really familiar?

I say this in no disrespect for Mr. Segal. He writes on some other topics, and one man can't be an authority on everything. You may remember a column Mr. Segal wrote a few years ago in criticism of some Jewish artists whose records were then being played on radio programs. In his own word, these were "abominations." Among these artists were Michel (Gémez) Rosenberg and Belvedere Aaron Lebedeff. Then he went on to endorse other artists and other recordings. I showed this column to a well-known Boston writer-critic of drama-music who has the records of every Jewish artist in his library—a professional authority in the stage and concert field. I regret to tell you that his comment on Mr. Segal's piece was this: It was very apparent to this critic that Mr. Segal's knowledge of those he endorsed and those he condemned was practically nil.

It was no surprise, therefore, for me when I read Mr. Segal's unqualified praise of the "high caliber of the entertainment" provided in a show last fall in which appeared both Michel Rosenberg and Aaron Lebedeff doing what he termed a few years ago. By what metamorphosis did this switch in his opinion come about? Was this the first time he heard a performance of these artists?

To people who have attended as many Jewish shows as I have, Mr. Segal's comments on this subject do not carry a real stamp of authority. This is not said to diminish anyone's sensibilities. Rather, I hope that in the death of a more qualified drama-music critic he will carry on. But I do suggest that he learn more about the subject, and above all take no opinions second-hand or by hearsay. If Mr. Segal will go to New York more often and see the shows on which he will pass judgment, I'm sure his column and his campaign will benefit.

Asks Immigration

Addressing an all day joint meeting of the National Executive Committee and National Administrative Council, held this week at the Hotel Plaza, New York, Dr. Miller, in a statement unanimously endorsed by the assembly, declared that the "Zionist Organization of America repudiates with contempt the fantastic charges against the Zionist Movement and Israel which are being fabricated by Communist propagandists in Eastern Europe." The statement voiced profound "alarm over the fate of millions of our fellow Jews in Eastern Europe who have been placed in jeopardy by the current Communist campaign of intimidation and employment of anti-Semitism as an instrument of terror is a well known technique of totalitarian regimes who seek to divert public attention from their own failures and shortcomings. Whatever their political motives the Communist governments have assumed a fearful responsibility before history."

Between You and Me

national and overseas agencies—not including the UJA—reported that they raised $25,000,000 from contributions in the past year. These very same agencies received $9,000,000 in addition from welfare funds. The same is true of capital fund campaigns, most of which are conducted outside of the annual welfare fund drives. In some communities, amounts pledged for capital fund campaigns on an annual basis in the last few years have exceeded the amounts raised in the regular federation drives. And there is every indication that capital fund-raising will continue on a substantial scale in a number of cities for some time to come.

Plantations Bank

Net Profit Up

19% In 1952

Net 1952 profit before taxes of the Plantations Bank of Rhode Island was $212,200, or a 19 per cent increase over the previous year. Henry B. Cross, president, reported to stockholders this week at their annual meeting.

Federal income taxes were substantially higher during the year, amounting to 63.5 per cent of the net profit, he explained.

Ernest A. Peet, vice president and treasurer, reported total operating income for 1952 of $92,658, an increase of $70,000, or 7.6 per cent, over the previous year. He said total operating expense of $702,528 increased $41,000 or 6.2 per cent.

Net operating earnings, after an income tax deduction of $135,000 (equal to $5.14 a share), amounted to $155,136, or the equivalent of $5.91 a share. They compared with $163,532 in 1951, equivalent to $6.23 a share. Net profit after reserves was $77,200.83, equal to $2.94 a share.

Securities Earnings Up

Earnings on the security portfolio in 1952 averaged 1.75 per cent as compared to 1.36 per cent the previous year.

Total deposits outstanding were $388,000 and the total loans outstanding were $1,288,000 more than in 1951. Cross explained that 60 per cent of the bank's deposit total represents demand deposits and 40 per cent time deposits. He said that of the approximately $11-million in loans outstanding, about one-half is represented by consumer credit loans, 23 per cent by commercial credit loans, and 27 per cent by real estate mortgage loans.

The stockholders elected two new directors and re-elected 26 incumbents. New on the board are Howard R. Merzman of Providence, a partner in the investment firm of Miller & George, and Berthelot, A. Leclair of Woonsocket, an attorney.

At a subsequent meeting of the directors, officers for the year were re-elected and a dividend of 35

The Eagles, playing with two men short, were easy victims for the Falcons. Bill Belllove's 128 and Haskell Strelow's 125 paced the victory. Sam Yanku and Harv Pollack, with 111 and 121 respectively, led the league-leading Hawks to two out of three over the Vultures. Other good singles were bowled by Charlie Kilberg 116, Sid Jacobson 114, Al Snell 111 and Ken Resnick 110.

Council Fashion Show March 17

Mrs. Herbert J. Cohen, chairman of the 1953 annual Fashion Show of the Providence Section, National Council of Jewish Women, announced this week that the date of this year's event will be March 17.

Communist Anti-Semitism

Evidence has continued to pile up throughout the past week that the Kremlin planned its charges of a "doctors' plot" as the detonator for the giant bomb of anti-Semitism. Perhaps there was too much skepticism about the alleged Zionist angles of the Slansky case in Czechoslovakia and something even more dramatic had to be done. Now the leader of the Jewish community in Hungary, Lajos Stoeckler, has been arrested. Jewish community centers in East Germany have been closed and the flight of Jews from all the satellites is in full course.

London's Communist Daily Worker says that reports of anti-Semitism in Communist countries are a myth invented by Americans. The Americans can hardly have invented this week's outburst in the Moscow newspaper Trud, which declared: "Zionism has become the weapon of the American and English warmongers. The monopolists of the United States use widely, for their dirty purposes, Jewish Zionist organizations, including the Jewish bourgeois nationalist organization, JOINT, which acts at the instruction and under the direction of American intelligence."

Even Hitler in his more frenzied moments made less of an attempt to involve the world's Jewish community with the whole fabric of charges of "warmongering," "imperialism," "cosmopolitanism" and "espionage." Trud is obviously setting the tone for the Kremlin, and to say that this tone is ominous is to understate.

We are watching the unfolding of another great human tragedy comparable to nazism at its worst. Moscow has obviously gone back to pogrom mentality, but in the meantime has developed refinements of brutality and torture of which even the Cossacks were innocent. We have seen Communist purges before. This one bids fair to be the most savage of them all.

The shock and horror with which we view this outbreak comes in part from the fact that it is not merely a political maneuver, however Communist papers may fulminate about international connections. It is a drive against a group of human beings. It is coldly calculated genocide.

The Communist basis for anti-Semitism has its roots in the character of the Communist dogma itself. The Jewish faith is an expression of moral and religious loyalty. So is every other religious faith. Communist dogma permits only one loyalty and therefore identified religionists, of every faith, are its enemies. Unhappily, the Jews are in a position where they can be reached by Communist killers. They are, in very truth, suffering for us all.

It may be observed that the superficial reason for the present use of anti-Semitism by Moscow is to woo the Arab world and to revive a fanaticism in East Germany. These are temporary considerations. Beyond them is the hard fact that Soviet communism has long since ceased to be a body of economic and political theory. It is a war on civilization, and religion is a part of the enemy to which the Communists are implacably opposed.

Dr. Friedlaender Sought Harmony Among US Jews

By RABBI HERBERT PARZEN

In the galaxy of fascinating men who pioneered the Conservative Movement, Prof. Israel Friedlaender presents the pattern of a distinguished scholar who, at the same time, was a masterful man of action. He combined the meticulous exactness to detail of the true scholar with the necessary attributes of leadership, teaching men to understand and to pursue his program.

He shared in the struggles that aimed to fashion a democratic Jewish community in this country, based on the totality of Judaism embracing every phase of Jewish culture: "religion plus nationalism, diaspora plus Palestine."

Israel Friedlaender was born in Russian Poland, in 1876. At the age of 18, he left his native land to study for the rabbinate at the Hildesheimer Seminary in Berlin. Soon he abandoned his rabbinic plans and devoted himself to Semitics. He received his doctorate at the University of Strassburg, and was appointed lecturer.

By the time he departed for America he was acknowledged as the intellectual leader of Jewish students in Germany. Coming here in 1903, Israel Friedlaender joined the faculty of the Seminary as professor of Biblical literature.

At 27 he had already earned a reputation as a scholar and popular pedagogue with excellent experience as a publicist and interpreter of Jewish affairs. In this country his influence and activity extended quickly to every sphere of Jewish life, academic and intellectual, cultural and political. Thereupon he became one of the recognized intellectual figures in the Jewish community.

His principal thesis assumed that the Jewish problem in the Diaspora was not physical survival, but Judaism, the cultural and spiritual rebirth of the Jewish civilization on American soil. He argued that the religionists (Reform Jews) and the nationalists can live together in harmony in one community; their common enemy is assimilation, the disappearance of the Jewish way of life.

He was a fervent Zionist; but in accord with his general convic-

A Date With History

Next year we celebrate. The year 1954 is to be a great year, a year of anniversaries. I sincerely hope that you and I and all of us will be here to take part in the festivities.

Three hundred years ago the first handful of Jews settled in these United States. The year 1654 was the year of birth for the Jewish community in this country. The year 1954 will therefore be the 300th birthday of the American Jews, and all of us will observe this date as is right and proper.

But it so happens that this same year 1954 is also a birthday of our own. One hundred years ago, in 1854, the Jewish community was born here in Providence; for on that year a charter was granted to the first congregation of Jews to worship and to gather for study in a house dedicated to that purpose.

That charter, and the names of the pioneers who signed their names to the document, are duly recorded in the archives of the State of Rhode Island, and the congregation established by that charter one full century ago has been here, and is still with us to this day, as Temple Beth El on Broad Street.

So, while the rest of the country observes one birthday, we in Providence will have a double celebration. A Tercentenary—a 300 year, and a Centenary—a 100 year, celebration.

You will admit that it is not too early to start preparing for this double birthday. We want to celebrate this important year in the life of the American Jewish community. We want to mark this year of birth in the life of our own Providence Jewish community.

We want to celebrate it with our neighbors, with whom we have lived in harmony one hundred years. We want to celebrate it with our brethren in every state of the land of which we are a part. It is to be a celebration in which all of us, our old ones, and our young ones—yes, and our very young ones—will take part, so that they may remember and find tion he was a cultural Zionist. In his innumerable lectures on Zionism he stressed this aspect of the Zionist movement. He advocated a cultural center in Palestine, even after the Balfour Declaration, that would radiate creative Hebrew ideals and values to sustain the Diaspora and to enrich human civilization.

In the Jewish Congress controversy he had a leading role in the efforts to create conciliation and unity between the Zionists and non-Zionists. However, when all mediation efforts failed, he took his stand boldly with the Zionists. He was elected the delegate of the United Synagogue to the Congress session.

In the organization of the United Synagogue, he served on both the propaganda and education committees and was among those men who advocated an intensive program for the Union, that would seek to foster a community of interest among constituent congregations. He spoke often and frankly for constructive interpretation of Jewish law so that a mode of Jewish life might evolve along Conservative lines.

He was active among the youth organizations of the country, being vitally interested in Young Judaea, the intercollegiate Zionist organization, the Menorah movement. He even helped to found Young Israel.

When the Civil War in Russia, with the rampant pogroms broke out, Friedlaender instantly volunteered his services to go abroad on a relief mission. His wish was granted. On July 5, 1920, he was murdered by bandits in the Ukraine. A very great mind and soul in Israel perished!

strength and inspiration in it.

It is to be a celebration of the people—by all the people, and not by each organization, or congregation, or society or agency setting a table of their own, and celebrating by themselves.

This birthday of a community must be celebrated by the community, by the whole community.

On an occasion such as this, a community does three things:

It looks back.

It pauses to remember.

It looks ahead.

To look back means to take stock of the accomplishments as well as the failures of the past. It is the past that belongs to all of us here today and to all who may come to dwell among us.

To remember means to honor the memory of pioneers and great spirits who helped shape our community. A community must not forget and must not be ungrateful.

To look ahead means to plan for a healthy creative communal future. Mere celebrating is not enough. Mere looking back is deadly for a community as for an individual. A past that does not inspire high goals for a future may as well not be remembered.

So, you can readily see that for this kind of Tercentenary and Centenary celebration we must begin to prepare and to plan now. We still have a full year ahead of us, but it is a short year, indeed, if the celebration is to be planned well, and done right—and above all, to be of our own planning and our own doing, and not tailor made for us.

In this connection I wish to tell you here of two organizations, one national, and the other local, who have begun thinking of these celebrations and who are ringing the bells for the year of anniversaries right now.

The national organization is the American Jewish Historical Society. Though little known, this society has been in existence these past 60 years. It is a society devoted to the collection, the preservation, and the study of documents pertaining to the history of the Jewish people of America. The Society publishes a scholarly journal, maintains archives of historical documents, and brings forth books of historical interest.

In a month from now the American Jewish Historical Society will hold a convention in Boston. We hope to be able to tell more and at greater length about the work of this society, and particularly how it prepares for the great year 1954, the Tercentenary of the American Jews.

The local organization is in existence only one year, and it is known as the Rhode Island Jewish Historical Association. The objectives of this association are the same as those of the mother organization. It too collects, preserves, studies, and hopes to publish documents and materials pertaining to the history of the Jewish communities in our state.

In this connection, I am very happy to write about one man who has dedicated himself to the task of making the bricks out of which the history of the Jewish people of Rhode Island will be built. He is David C. Adelman, a scion of an old and pioneering family in our city, an attorney by profession, and historian by choice.

Ever since the formation of the local Historical Association, David Adelman, its president, has given as much of his time and talents to the history of the Jews of the state, as to his practice of law. He spends hours and hours digging up records, copying yellowed state documents, searching old court cases, following up clues, talking to people, corresponding with descendants of old residents, collecting booklets, pictures, newspapers, minutes books, and anything that might add a link in the chain of events that brought us from the meager beginnings to this day.

The scope of his work, and the devotion of the man to his work, and his incredible patience in tracking down the minutest detail, his zeal for absolute historical truth, and the great intellectual pleasure he takes in his work, are beyond description. Only those of us who see him at his work know it and stand in awe before it.

This attorney-historian knows more today about the history of the Jews of Rhode Island—and he knows it from first hand sources, from his own research—than any other living person in the state.

I have before me a stack of his manuscripts on the past of our community that would do credit to a professional historian. If I were to tell of the contents of these manuscripts, all the result of original research, I would need double the space of this column.

Other members of the R. I. Historical Association contribute of their studies to complete the story of our beginning and growth in this state. You, too, can become a partner in this work. There is enough work for everybody. There is enough room for everybody. And an invitation is extended to all who see the importance of this work. If these lines move you to become a member of the Historical Association, write to 52 Power Street, Providence and ask for an application.

Together we will prepare the material for the Centenary celebration. Together we will make the anniversary meaningful.

B.V.C.C. Endorses Bldg. Fund Appeal

At the meeting of the Blackstone Valley Jewish Community Council last week, which was presided over by Hyman Coken, president, the Council whole-heartedly endorsed and pledged support of the 1953 Building Fund Campaign for the Jewish Home for the Aged of Rhode Island. Mr. Herbert Pansy was appointed Chairman of the Building Fund Committee, assisted by Harry Schwartz, Morris Espo and Benjamin Sinel, who were appointed Associate Chairmen. The drive, which will start in April, will be coordinated with the state-wide drive throughout Rhode Island.

Mr. Pansy currently is also chairman of the Membership Committee for the Blackstone area and serves as a member of the Admissions Committee.

In attendance at the Blackstone Valley meeting were Jacob I. Felder, president of the Home, and Irving Fain, chairman of the Admissions Committee. Mr. Felder and Mr. Fain acquainted the Pawtucket group with the Home's problems and the pressing need for expansion.

Why Building Expansion

by JACOB I. FELDER

Jacob I. Felder, President of the Home, in a keynote speech to the newly appointed Building Campaign Committee, outlined the need for building expansion as follows:

"No sooner had we dedicated our Building Expansion Program in June of 1949, which doubled our capacity from 45 to 90 residents, than I had to point out in my annual report of that same year that the Home was filled to capacity and that the demand for our facilities was so great that either we had to limit our intake or expand our facilities.

"The following year, in 1950, I appointed a Committee headed by Dr. Ilie Berger, to study our present facilities and to make concrete recommendations. In November of 1950, this committee recommended, among other things, that a committee be appointed for the immediate planning of an additional building unit to provide for the increasing number of aged people who need institutional care.

"That same month, Herman J. Aisenberg, then chairman of the Admissions Committee, pointed out in his annual report the lack of space in our infirmary section and urged that we consider the building of additional facilities. The waiting list began to form that year. In his 1951 report, the Chairman reported 16 on the waiting list, and the committee as a whole recommended to the Board of Trustees that the Home expand its facilities as quickly as possible. I thereupon appointed last December, Alexander Rumpel, Chairman of the Building Planning Committee, which has met frequently since December 1951, and has now approved blue prints for the construction of a 60-bed addition.

Expansion Overdue

"It is my sincere conviction that this building expansion is overdue. The number on the waiting list has been mounting steadily, and from the point of good community relations which the Home has so successfully built up over the past seven or eight years, the growing waiting list is a detriment. The selection of the most needy applicants often leads to misunderstanding, since each family consider their father, mother, uncle, or aunt, one most in need of admission. It is also psychologically tough on the applicants who have to wait until an opening is created by the death of a resident in the Home.

"Another disadvantage which the selection of the most needy person brings, is that the Home loses a great deal of revenue by denying the admission of persons who are able to pay, who need the Home for health or religious reasons. At present, we have only ten among our ninety residents who pay their way in full.

Reasons for the Demand For Institutional Facilities

"What are the reasons for the sudden increase and demand for our Home's facilities? There is first of all the general increase, both in number and proportion, of our older citizens. Then, secondly, there was the change in our admission policy in 1947, when we started admitting the physically handicapped and chronically ill. This brought an increasing number of that category of deserving applicants who no longer could obtain the care and comfort they needed in the homes of their children and relatives.

"The third factor was the change in the community's attitude toward the Home, by the wider use of the Home by all classes. I have always felt that the Home is not alone a haven for the poor, but for every aged person from all walks of life, who no longer can get along socially or physically in the community. This philosophy, which four or five years ago appeared new, has since been adopted by all social agencies here and all over the nation, and even on the international scale.

Not Overbuilding

"There is no doubt that when we are adding sixty beds, we will not be over-building, because I know of many cases who would apply, but refrain from doing so because they know that there are no vacancies and because they

SYD COHEN:

The Twin Triplets

Probably the most unusual pair of ball players who will grace a big league training field next month are the Charnofskys of the Binghamton Triplets, member of the celebrated New York Yankee chain.

Let it be understood—these two players may not be the best who show up—they may not even last long enough at the Yanks' tryout camp to miss a single practice session with the Binghamton club; but under any conditions they certainly are the most unusual.

Hal and Stan Charnofsky are twin brothers. What is more, they form a second base combination. Can you recall the last time a couple of brothers, let alone twins, came along in a combination like that and made it stick? Well, these kids have done it.

The Charnofskys were signed by the Yanks just about a year ago. They attracted attention, not as brothers, or even as twins, but as a double play combination. Yet brothers they are, and twins at that—and to give the story a good punch, the twins played last year with Binghamton, whose team name is the Triplets.

Hal and Stan Charnofsky are no accidents. They moved right in at Binghamton and in their debut as pros became the regular keystone pair for the entire season! And let it not be forgotten that the Triplets finished strong, swept the league playoffs—and won the championship—all with the twin brothers holding down the fort at shortstop and second base.

Hal finished the campaign over the 300 mark while playing in almost 90 games. Brother Stan was respectable with a 291 mark. So remarkably did they progress that George Weiss and Casey Stengel of the Champs invited them to a special pre-training Yankee camp. They should be interesting to watch.

NAMES IN THE NEWS: Take them for what they are worth, but the following names appeared in the list of leading pitchers and hitters in all departments of Organized Ball during 1952. For instance, leading the Evangeline League in pitching percentage was a kid named Marv Rubin, who pitched for a town named Thibodeau in Louisiana and posted the very nice record of 14 wins and only three defeats.

Leading the same league in earned runs was Marv Holleman, who plays for Abbeville, somewhere in the wilds of Louisiana, I think. In the Longhorn League, the ERA king sported the name of Israel Ten, and let's see you figure out the guy's "mishpocha" from that handle.

The leading hitter in the Inter-State League, with a 318 mark, was Wilbert Israel of Harrisburg; while Lou Heyman of Wilmington socked 30 home runs to pace the Inter-State loop.

Might just be the makings of a couple of future major leaguers in that crew.

This is the time of the year that is despised by sports writers. With all that is going on, there just isn't much to write about. The average reader puts down the paper after going through the sports section and mumbles something about nothing worth reading. Not only is he right, but that is how many columnists feel about it.

This is in-between season. Football is gone, baseball is dead from the standpoint of the 1952 season, and not yet alive on the new front; hockey and basketball just don't lend themselves to the effusion of copy that do the others.

As a result, it isn't too surprising to find that small, insignificant items should be blown up out of all proportion to their relative value. Here is a prime example from last week's "news:"

The nation's tailors recently named Henry Greenberg, impresario of the Cleveland Indians, otherwise known as Hank, as one of the ten best dressed men in the nation. That did it! The writers, desperately searching for just such an opening, immediately pounced on their typewriters for a bit of sport.

They itemized Greenberg's entire wardrobe, which sounds like a healthy year's salary, right down to his alleged 20 canes. They compared him with other prominent well-dressed baseball men. And after all that, one writer put his tongue in his cheek, chewed on it for a while, and then ventured the opinion that Hank would trade a couple of cutaways, some hats and a grouping of assorted spats for a good shortstop for his Indians.

The Big Dinner

This also is that time of the year when the big sports dinners are held throughout the country; and while Rhode Island has no baseball writers chapter, it does have Words Unlimited, the statewide association of sportswriters and sportscasters. And with that introduction we come to the annual sports dinner held by that sports fraternity, of which this column is a member.

The 1953 affair will be held at Johnson's Hummocks on Thursday, Feb. 5. It will feature the usual awards to player, coach and schoolboy of the year. But it is far more than that. The Words Unlimited dinner is the public's best chance of the entire year to hobnob with the sports greats and personalities of this state and selected other areas.

Last year well more than 300 persons laughed themselves sick at Bill Summers' umpire stories, listened with pride to the then challenger Rocky Marciano, thrilled to the honors heaped on the boyish Chet Nichols. Veteran observers came away saying this affair was among the finest they ever attended.

Well, it is no different this year. Experience is a fine teacher, and the programs improve all the time. This is no plug to buy your tickets from me. I merely want to place the reminder about the affair before those who may be interested. It is definitely worth the price of admission, which also includes one of the better meals around town.

JWV Undertakes Blood Campaign

An extensive campaign to enlist the services of at least 200 volunteer blood donors will be undertaken by the officers of the Department of R. I., Jewish War Veterans, it was announced this week by Irving Ross, JWV hospital and blood co-ordinator.

A Bloodmobile visit will be made by the American Red Cross at the Jewish Community Center on Thursday, Feb. 12 from 11 A. M. until 3:30 P. M., Ross said. Donors who register with Ross, JA 1-8908, Philip Simon, DE 1-9667, or Herman Feinstein, PL 1-7788, will be notified of their appointments well in advance. Blood donors also may contact the blood chairmen of any organizations they may belong to, he added.

Feinstein is co-ordinator for all Jewish organizations.

Two tickets to any show at the Castle, Hope or Avon Theatres will be offered to each blood donor. "This is an appeal by the U. S. Government for blood that is urgently needed for our fighting wounded men in Korea and all boys in the armed services," Ross stated. The blood you give costs you nothing, but it may save a soldier's life. Only 50 minutes of your time and one pint of your blood may bring someone's son back to health."
