UNITED STATES

Nikita S. Khrushchev's rise as top man in the Soviet hierarchy, writes Samuel Schneiderman in the Jewish Day, bodes ill for the Jewish peoples. Khrushchev, he says, was the man who idolized the notorious anti-Semite Bogdan Chmielnitzky (1648) and made him into a national Soviet hero. Chmielnitzky was the Hitler of his day . . . The shifts in the Kremlin leadership, which saw Khrushchev nominate Marshal Bulganin as Premier, had their mainspring, political leaders say, in the "Jewish Doctors' Plot" in 1953—a "plot" which the part-Jewish Lavrenti P. Beria had exposed as a fabrication . . . Alexander Kerensky, the anti-Bolshevik head of the Russian revolutionary movement that succeeded Czar Nicholas II and who now lives in New York, expressed the belief this week that the change in Soviet leadership may result in Moscow's persuasion of Red China to be more cautious in the Pacific . . . The Red Chinese, some observers hold, may begin to take matters in their own hands . . . To the chagrin of Roy M. Cohn, the Army has reinstated Barry S. Bernstein, suspended civilian radar expert at Fort Monmouth. In reply to a protest by Cohn, an Army spokesman in Washington said that "a suspended Army civilian employe is reinstated only after complete and exhaustive investigations and hearings . . . Rabbi Benjamin Schultz, Executive Director of the American Jewish League Against Communism, has announced the election of columnist George E. Sokolsky as the League's new president.

nas issued a comprehensive "Almanac" describing the life of Jews in that country. It is the first such compendium to be published since 1940 when Yugoslavia was drawn into World War II . . . Rabbi David Hollander, president of the Orthodox Rabbinical Council of America, has sent a memorandum to the Armed Forces asking the Government to make provisions for kosher kitchens in installations which maintain Jewish chaplains.

ISRAEL

The Turkish-Iraqi Treaty, so bitterly opposed by Egypt, will be signed this month in Baghdad. The Treaty, which obligates the two countries to "collaborate in order to oppose by joint measure any aggression directed against them, whatever source, creates the first wedge within the Arab League . . . In Cairo, Egyptian Minister of National Guidance, Major Salah Salem, ridiculed the timidity and indecision of the leaders of the other Arab States who failed to take a definite stand against Iraq . . . Major General E. L. M. Burns, Chief of the UN Truce Staff, has presented a plan to Israel and Jordan calling for closer contact between local commanders in the Jerusalem area.

EUROPE

The Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra, half of whose members were Nazis and whose temporary conductor, Herbert von Karajah, was an active Nazi, is coming to the U. S. late this month for a tour of 19 cities. Gerhart von Westernman, the orchestra manager, also a Nazi, when questioned about the possibility of U. S. opposition, stated: "It is possible there will be no objection to us. We must prove that music has nothing to do with politics."

Sun Life Report Lists Advances

MONTREAL — More than six billion dollars of life insurance in force, and new business during 1954 amounting to nearly $700 million—an increase of $120 million over 1953 — are among the outstanding figures in the 84th annual report of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada released here by George W. Bourke, president.

The new business was the largest sold last year by any Canadian company, much of it being in the United States where Sun Life has 36 percent of its business in force, and branches in major cities from coast to coast. Included in the new business figure was $239,619,000 of group insurance, representing an increase of $68,841,000 over 1953.

Bourke announced new dividend scales which, for the sixth consecutive year, will result in a considerable increase in the total amount to be paid in dividends to the holders of participating policies. The company will pay out an increase of more than $2,000,000 in dividends in the year ahead, a total of approximately $26,000,000 over the previous year.

Urge Establishment of Reform Judaism In State of Israel

NEW YORK — The establishment of a Liberal or Reform movement in the State of Israel is needed to meet the religious needs "of a great many Jews in that country who in good conscience find themselves incompatible with the rigid tests of Orthodox Judaism," Rabbi Herbert Weiner, spiritual leader of Temple Israel, South Orange, N. J., this week told the 43rd Biennial Assembly of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations at the Hotel Statler.

Rabbi Weiner, who recently returned from a five-week survey of religious problems in Israel, emphasized in his report that "the tragedy of religion in Israel is that in the minds of most Israelis, religion is completely identified with a pattern of action and thought which expends so much passion on dietary laws that it seems to have little time left over for concern with the laws which deal with the problems of man living with man."

WINNIPEG EXTENDS UJA

WINNEPEG — The danger of dissolution which has been facing the United Jewish Appeal in Winnipeg because of financial difficulties has dissipated, and the organization will continue operating in 1955, it was announced here by organization officials who said the one year extension was subject to review and reevaluation of the UJA campaign results in 1955.

Brier-Yuloff

Miss Evanne Miriam Yuloff, daughter of Mrs. Harry Yuloff of 116 California Avenue, was married last Sunday at 3 P. M. to Richard Lewis Brier, son of Mrs. Harry Brier of 16 Clarendon Avenue. Rabbis Abraham Chill and Eli A. Bohnen officiated at the ceremony which was held in the State Suite of the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel. Approximately 65 guests attended the reception held afterwards.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, Samuel Goldstein, was attired in a floor length gown of imported ice blue Chantilly lace, studded with iridescent sequins, and fashioned with a portrait neckline and taffeta cummerbund. Her fingertip illusion veil fell from a crown of iridescent sequins. She carried a white satin-covered Bible with a white orchid and trailing stephanotis.

Miss Arlene Gumbiner and Miss Elayne Rosenberg, maids of honor, wore pale pink lace and carried bouquets of blue flowers and matching flowered headpieces. Mrs. Gerald Gralnick was matron of honor. She chose a pale pink floor length gown and a blue bouquet.

Stanley Brier was best man for his brother. Ushers were Maurice Brier, another brother; Abbott I. Yuloff, brother of the bride; Lee Zetlin and Robert Dwares.

The mother of the bride wore a cocktail length gown of Dior blue tissue taffeta. Mrs. Brier chose a navy blue cocktail length gown. Both wore white orchids.

After a wedding trip to the Nevele Country Club, New York, the couple will reside at 155 Partition Street, Warwick.

DOES YOUR ORGANIZATION NEED MONEY??

IS YOUR WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE WORRYING ABOUT HOW TO RAISE FUNDS?

HAVE YOU THOUGHT OF HOLDING A THEATER PARTY THIS SUMMER?

Over the years it has been proven that theater parties are the easiest, most pleasant way of raising money. You don't need several committees to do all the back-breaking work. It isn't an exhausting, pleading job — it's fun — it's easy — it's pleasant — and best of all it's profitable for your organization.

Broadway has been doing it for years — why don't YOU try it? It doesn't matter how small or how large your organization.

Israel Bond Leadership To Hear Dr. Heller

Dr. James G. Heller, chairman of Community Relations for the State of Israel Bond Organization, outstanding American Jewish leader and educator, will come to Providence to address an Israel Bond leadership meeting on Wednesday, March 2 at 8 P. M. at the Jewish Community Center, it was announced by Abraham E. Goldstein, general chairman of the Providence Committee for State of Israel Bonds. The meeting will be devoted to the formulation of plans for Providence's 1955 Israel Bond campaign.

"The presence of Dr. Heller at this meeting will serve to spark our community's 1955 drive for Israel's second Bond issue — the Development Issue, which is being sold in this country, Canada, Western Europe and Latin America," Goldstein declared.

Miriam Equipment Event to be Launched

The Miriam Hospital Women's Association will launch its annual Linen and Equipment Event on Monday, Feb. 28, at 12 Noon in the Hospital auditorium. Luncheon will be served to all committees and workers.

Mrs. Simon Greenberg and Mrs. Jacob Stone are chairman and co-chairman, respectively, of hospitality for the day. Mrs. Samuel Schneider and Mrs. Ephraim Feingold are in charge of a skit to be presented at the affair.

Mrs. Sidney Weinstein, chairman of the Event, is assisted by the following members of the executive committee: Mesdames William P. Weinstein and Archie Fain, patronesses; John Sapinsley and Eugene Nelson, outlying districts; David Field and Herman Gross, publicity; Edward Seltzer, secretary; Henry Mason, reservations; Harold Summer, printing; Greenberg and Stone, hospitality; Oscar Klemer, luncheon; Perry Summer, decorations; Raymond Laurans, gifts; David Litchman, retention; Howard Brown, contributions; Israel Mandell, honorary chairman; Joseph Seefer, ex-officio, and Nelson, hostesses.

Announce Program For Women's Meeting

Parents' Association of the Jewish Community Center will present a special program at their monthly meeting to be held in the Center Auditorium on Tuesday evening, beginning at 8:15 o'clock. "This Is Your Life," a program paralling the TV program of the same name, will be the evening's entertainment. The surprise honored guest will be a person who has been extremely active in Center and communal affairs. Master of ceremonies for the program will be Morton Blender, WPRO radio announcer.

Admission to the event will be open to members of the Association and the Center, as well as interested friends. Mrs. Harold Chase is chairman for the evening's program, and will be assisted by the following committee: Mrs. George Katz, general program chairman, Mrs. Daniel Podrat and Mrs. Maurice Miller, refreshments co-chairmen; and Mrs. Nathan Schwartz, Mrs. Bernard Podrat and Mrs. Hyman Goldstein, ex-officio program committee members.

Max Surkont Speaker At Men's Club Affair

Max Surkont, Pittsburgh Pirates pitcher, was the principal speaker at the sports night program of the Men's Club of Chaw Sholam Synagogue held Feb. 15 in the Synagogue vestry. Surkont told of his experiences in the major leagues, and of important games in which he played.

Other speakers included Kenneth Davis, Zello Toppazzini and Andy Brannigan of the Rhode Islands Reds Hockey team. Russell Sabby, social director of the Boys' Club, provided other entertainment. Movies of the 1954 World Series were shown. Gut Parmet, sports commentator of WHIM, was master of ceremonies. Gifts were presented to the guests.

Refreshments were served by members of the committee which included Samuel Weiner, Albert Max, Hillel Spanglet, Leo Max, Howard Rosenberg and Daniel Hecker.

'Adventures in Ideas' New Center Series

"Adventures in Ideas" is the title of a new series of six discussion programs for women to be sponsored by Parents' Association of the Jewish Community Center on alternate Wednesday afternoons, from 1:15 to 3:15 o'clock, beginning March 2. Admission to the program series will be open, at no charge, to all women who are members of the Center or of Parents' Association. Advance registration will be necessary, since the size of the discussion group will be limited.

The first program in the series is "What Every Consumer Should Know," and will feature James D. Bromley of the University of Rhode Island as discussion leader. Bromley will consider how food gets from the ground to the family table; how processing affects the prices you pay, and how to shop in a food market.

The second program will feature Prof. Gerold Sharpe of URI in a discussion of "The Pleasures of Reading." The programs to follow will include "Glamor in Cooking"; "The Layman's Role in Planning Schools in our Community"; "Hot Issues in the News," and "Jewish Education— for What?" Women interested in registering for the discussion series may do so now at the JCC office.

North End Nursery Begins Sessions

The Jewish Community Center's North End Nursery School has begun regular afternoon sessions at the Congregation Beth David Synagogue, it was announced by Arthur Eisenstein, JCC program director. A near-capacity enrollment for the two-day-per-week sessions has been attained, but a limited number of registration openings is available to parents of children from 3 to 5 years who are interested in a nursery education program. Mrs. Ruth Nulman is director of this JCC extension program.

Up to Mr. Eisenhower

President Eisenhower's creation of a new five-member committee to prevent discrimination in government employment is welcome news.

The committee will be directly responsible to him. This may or may not prove an advantage; only time and the President's general attitude toward expressing himself on matters of policy can tell the story.

Heretofore, Mr. Eisenhower has been criticized by even his staunchest supporters on the way in which he has failed to assume the full responsibilities of Chief Executive. Only last week, he was severely scored for refusing, until the last moment, to spell out our government's foreign policy with regard to the defense of Formosa.

In the final analysis, therefore, the strength or weakness of the new committee he has created will rest in Mr. Eisenhower's hands.

Forthcoming Publication

The American Jewish Tercentenary Committee has finally announced that its ten-volume documentary history of Jews and their contribution to the U. S. during the past three centuries will definitely be published as a memorial of the current celebration.

This is certainly good news, for such a history will prove invaluable. There is a fair number of one-volume works, but none of them can take the place of a detailed research project that would give us a clear picture of Jewish development here.

Many historians and sociologists, for example, continue to lament the lack of a decent reference source on participation of Jews in American wars. Others are disconcerted over the dearth of information on Jewish contributions to the making of our frontier.

Farmer O'Toole and His Twelve Goats

By BERYL SEGAL

This story comes from the West Coast, and it was reported in the Yiddish newspaper "Forverts," and I am telling it here in the hope that you may chuckle over it as I did.

Farmer O'Toole lives on a ranch in Paradise, California. Farmer O'Toole is a Bible reading Irishman and he is as familiar with the hills and valleys of the Holy Land as he is with the lakes and glens of the Emerald Isle. And both are as dear to him as the soil of his California ranch.

Whatever else the birth of the republic of Israel might mean to you and me, to farmer O'Toole it is a fulfilled promise and a vindication of the words of the Holy Scriptures. The return of the children of Israel to Mount Zion is the first sign of the coming of a good era on earth, the time of the Millennium.

But until that glorious time comes, people have to eat and little children need milk, and farmer O'Toole heard that there is no milk in the Holy Land. O, times! No milk in the land of which the Bible says that it is a "Land flowing Milk and Honey!"

Farmer O'Toole cannot do much about the lack of honey, but he can do something about the milk. Farmer O'Toole raises goats on his ranch in Paradise, and goats' milk is good.

So one day farmer O'Toole went out among his herd of goats and he picked twelve of his finest animals and he led them back to the barn. These he will send as a gift offering to the Holy Land. There they will prosper and multiply and be a blessing to the land.

Now you wonder why twelve? And why goats? There is a reason for both. Farmer O'Toole knows his Bible well.

The number twelve stands for the twelve tribes of Israel. A goat for a tribe, a goat for a tribe.

And as for the goats? These animals are spoken of again and again in the Holy Bible.

In the Book of Exodus, what does it say?

"And Moses spoke unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, saying: 'This is the thing which the Lord commanded, saying: Take ye from among you an offering unto the Lord, whosoever is of a willing heart, let him bring it, the Lord's offering: gold, and silver, and brass; and blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen, and goat's hair.'

Out of these materials the Tabernacle was made, the Tabernacle which the children of Israel carried with them on their journey in the wilderness. Goat's

SHATKIN FAMILY MEETING

Games were played under the direction of Steve and Leon Shatkin, at a meeting of the Shatkin Family Association held Feb. 15 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Shatkin, 252 Freeman Parkway. Plans were made for the group's annual dinner. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Carrie Shatkin, hostess, and Mrs. Charo Fishbein and Mrs. Anna Sonion.

And again in the Book of Leviticus farmer O'Toole read:

"When a ruler sinneth, and doeth through error any one of all the things which the Lord his God hath commanded not to be done, and he is guilty: If his sin be known to him, he shall bring for his offering a goat, a male without blemish. And he shall lay his hands upon the head of the goat, and kill it in the place where they kill the burnt offerings before the Lord; it is a sin-offering."

Did farmer O'Toole offer a sin-offering for the sins of so many rulers and people in high places when he sent his twelve goats to Israel?

And farmer O'Toole knows well about the Scape-Goat that was sent away into the wilderness to carry off all the transgressions and the iniquities. The lowly goat chosen to cleanse the hands and the hearts of mankind of all sins and to unburden these sins in waste places away from human habitation.

And perhaps farmer O'Toole had more down-to-earth reasons for sending goats to Israel. He knows his animals, and he knows the land of Israel, and he might well have deliberately chosen the goats as the domestic animal best suited to the climate and the contour of the land.

Now the goats must be transported from Paradise, California to Israel. Paradise is a long way from Israel. The journey these goats must take is frightening. They must cross the whole width of the United States, from coast to coast. They must cross the Atlantic Ocean to England, and perhaps Ireland. And from there the journey is still long and devious, along the shores of many lands before the goats will set their feet on the soil of the Holy Land.

But farmer O'Toole reads his newspapers and he knows his way around in this modern age. So he wrote for advice to the United Nations in New York. They have difficulties in solving many a problem in the United Nations, but they may be able to solve the problem of farmer O'Toole's twelve goats.

And they did. A member of the Israel delegation took up the matter, and the goats were duly transported from farmer O'Toole's ranch in Paradise, California, to New York.

There the story ends. The goats, we hope, had a pleasant journey and are doing well in their new land, feeding serenely on the hills of Judea.

But farmer O'Toole is not content with his gift offering alone. In letters to newspapers and in talks with neighbors he urges ranchers to send more goats to Israel, and Jews of California he asks to finance the transportation of the flocks to their destination.

Remember "Bundles for Britain" of war days? This is "Goats for Israel" initiated by a farmer from Paradise, California.

It is an amusing story in a sense, but also a touching one. In Hebrew we have a word for a man like farmer O'Toole. Ish Tomim is the word, and it means a naive man, also an unspoiled man, a whole man, and a pious man. So simple are the problems, and so simple the solutions to an Ish Tomim. Israel needs food. Farmer O'Toole has enough and more than he needs. Why not send some of the food from where it is not needed to where it is needed?

If only the diplomats and the politicians and the rulers of the world could find such simple solutions to the problems that entangle us and bedevil this planet of ours!

But, then, hardly a politician or a diplomat is an Ish Tomim like farmer O'Toole.

(The opinions expressed by Mr. Segal are his own. His views are not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

SYD COHEN:

The Greatest Catches

A few weeks ago, this column was privileged to be invited to conduct the commentary before a showing of the 1954 World Series movies at a meeting of the Men's Association of the Jewish Community Center. It so happened that I had been following with some interest a discussion on these movies that has been growing nationally since the films first were released about two months ago. I figured this showing would mark a good chance to see how the dispute would go locally. The results were satisfactory.

This concerns the fabulous catch made by Willie Mays in the opening game, the catch that broke the Indians' backs and saved the ball game and turned the tide for the World Champion Giants.

You'll recall that with the game tied 2-2 in the eighth inning, and two runners on the bases, Vic Wertz powdered a ball to deepest center field that would have been a home run almost anywhere.

But Willie Mays, the player of the year beyond a doubt, raced back, caught the ball over his shoulder near the center field wall, whirled and threw back to the infield, effectively killing the rally, and paving the way for the Giants' four straight triumphs.

At once Mays' catch was proclaimed as the catch of the century, the greatest ever made — a miraculous catch, since he made it at the wall; and his off-balance but accurate throw likewise drew acclaim. Willie modestly said he knew he had the ball all the way, while Leo Durocher, his manager and staunchest booster, said Mays made several like that during the year.

There was general acclaim in all quarters until the movies came out. Then a concerted mutter of disagreement started to grow from coast to coast. Several writers went back into rhapsodies about the catch, but a significant group disagreed, and stated that the play was over-dramatized, that it was not all that it had seemed at first glance.

What do the movies actually show? First, that Mays played the ball perfectly. When he looked up after a long run far out in deep center to see where it was, he was in perfect position to make his over-the-shoulder catch, face high, running away from the plate.

There are, however, two significant deviations from on-the-spot reports of the play. While the movie commentator is proclaiming—from a prepared script, of course—that Mays caught the ball just one step from the wall, the film shows clearly that Willie, after making the grab, took three running steps before coming to a stop, and was even then a comfortable 10 to 15 feet from the wall.

Furthermore, after grinding to that stop, he whirled and threw—and the force of the throw, coming on top of that sudden turn, threw him off balance. He did not, as excitedly reported at the time, throw while falling.

In short, it was a perfectly executed play, but I have no doubt that Willie has made many others that were more difficult. Abe Lobel, the Center's athletic director and I coincided in our opinions that Willie was more spectacular in scooping up those ground balls in the infield manner than he was in making the celebrated catch.

True, not all center fielders could have caught that ball, but don't forget that Mays was playing in his own back yard, where he knows how far back he can range without fearing a crash into the wall.

Similarly, in Brooklyn's Ebbets Field, none can compare with Duke Snider, who has perfected the technique of leaping against the wall, getting his spikes on the strip of rubber that juts out some three or four feet off the ground, and then sparring drives that no other fielder can come near.

While many will disagree, it would seem that it was the importance of the play, the timing, the emotional impact, that turned this play into a miraculous one.

There is a parallel in another miraculous outfield play that occurred in the 1947 World Series, when with Brooklyn leading the Yankees 7-4 in the late innings, Joe DiMaggio came up with two men on, and smashed a long drive that seemed certain to drop in the bullpen for a game tying home run. Even DiMag scuffed the dirt around second base in disgust when Al Gionfriddo caught the ball.

It was said everywhere that this was the greatest catch of all time. Tony Petronella, who saw the whole Series, told me it was the greatest catch he ever saw. Yet, the official movies disproved this thesis. They showed that Gionfriddo stumbled backwards uncertainly, backpedaled almost all the way, and seemed to misjudge the ball. He finally reached up and grabbed it—and still had plenty of room in which he could have maneuvered before reaching the railing. The only way that ball could have entered the bullpen would have been on the bounce. For a one-run double, and even that is problematical.

The Dodgers won that game 7-4, and the catch took on even more importance. Yet, several weeks later, a persistent reporter got DiMaggio to admit that Gionfriddo had played the ball poorly, that he should have been playing deeper in the first place for the famed Yankee Clipper.

Get it straight — this is not meant as a discredit to Willie Mays. It merely amounts to an opinion—that is growing nationally—that this was not his greatest catch.

And in closing, you might be interested to know that Duke Snider proclaimed only a few weeks ago that Mays is not now and never will be as good an outfielder as Joe DiMaggio. Now if that isn't fuel for a terrific argument, I'll be doggoned.
