ISRAEL

It is now fully known in Israel that most of the new Egyptian arms were supplied by Britain, despite the Tripartite Declaration of May 1950 in which the U. S., Britain and France undertook to supply arms only for the maintenance of internal security and legitimate self-defense. So far, Britain has supplied Egypt with about fifty Vampire jets — two of which Israel shot down last week—and forty Centurian tanks. It appears then that Britain herself is violating the Treaty, as she had originally violated the Mandate by having set up the puppet Jordanian kingdom without consulting the U. S. . . . Jerusalem and Tel Aviv are still without any Mayors. Though the Mapai gained the largest percentage of votes in these cities, B. G. is using these two important posts as bargaining points in his government coalition negotiations. Israel's Attorney General, Chaim Cohen, has appealed the Rudolph Kastner court decision to the Supreme Court. Kastner had been accused of collaborating with the Hungarian Nazis at the expense of thousands of Jewish lives. . . . Premier Moshe Sharrett has called for a "determined and sustained effort to accelerate the pace of immigration" of Jews from North Africa. . . . A Jewish Agency Committee has recommended bringing 40,000 North African Jews to Israel in the coming Jewish calendar year.

PEOPLE

Semah Cecil Hyman, Israel's new Consul General of New York, arrived recently to assume his new duties. 56 years of age, Mr. Hyman was born and educated in London. During World War I he joined the First Jewish Battalion of the Royal Fusiliers serving in Palestine. Mr. Hyman's wife, Dr. Anne Foner-Hyman, has served as a researcher at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. . . . Herman Wook, the renowned Orthodox Jewish author, has written a new book, "Marjorie Morningstar," his fourth novel. It is based on his own experiences from the age of 16 onward and he has given Marjorie some of his own extensive Jewish background. . . . Desider Holisher is the author of the first picture book published in this country which gives through photos and text a comprehensive view of the development of the American synagogue as a religious, social and communal institution. Titled "The Synagogue and Its People," the volume will be published on September 9 by Abelard-Schuman, Inc., New York. Maurice Schwartz, renowned (Continued on Page 14)

Dr. Henry Wriston to Get B'nai B'rith Service Award

Levy and Fain to Direct GJC Trades and Industry Groups

Reception, Dinner On September 21

Rabbi Llyveld To Make Award

Roger Williams Lodge, B'nai B'rith will present its Distinguished Service Award to Dr. Henry M. Wriston, President Emeritus, Brown University, on Wednesday evening, Sept. 21, at a dinner to be held at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel.

Presenting the award on behalf of the Lodge will be Rabbi Arthur Llyveld of New York City, national director of the Hillel Foundation. Guests will include Governor Roberts, Dr. Barnaby C. Keeney, newly-elected president of Brown University, and Mrs. Keeney; Joseph M. Pinkle, president, District 1, B'nai B'rith; Father Slavin, president of Providence College; Provost and Mrs. Samuel Arnold of Brown; Dr. Carl Woodward, president of the University of Rhode Island, and Mrs. Woodward; Rabbi Nathan Rosen, director of Hillel Foundation of Rhode Island colleges, and Mrs. Rosen.

The dinner and award marks recognition of "the close ties existing between the local Jewish community and Brown University, appreciation of the national reputation and merit of a local citizen in the field of education, commemoration of years of service to the nation and community upon Dr. Wriston's retirement, and the establishment of Hillel at Brown during his administration."

Coleman B. Zimmerman, past president of the Lodge, is chairman and toastmaster of the dinner. Reservations may be made with Burton Finberg, treasurer of the committee.

IRVING J. FAIN

JOSEPH K. LEVY

The reappointment of Joseph K. Levy as chairman and the appointment of Irving J. Fain as co-chairman of the Trades and Industry Division of the General Jewish Committee's 1955 fund-raising campaign, were announced today by Alvin A. Sopkin, campaign chairman.

Levy and Fain, both experienced campaign workers, will direct the efforts of some 17 commercial sub-divisions in the forthcoming campaign. Levy, in addition to serving as chairman of the Trades and Industry Division last year, also served as D-Day chairman.

The Trades and Industry Division plays an important role in the annual GJC fund-raising drive. Included in this category are a great many of the large business and industrial establishments in the Greater Providence Area and a large portion of the campaign contributions comes from this division.

In once again accepting the chairmanship of the Trades and Industry Group, Levy said: "We are cognizant of the urgent needs of our community and our fellow brethren overseas and in Israel. It is imperative that these people both at home and abroad receive the needed assistance and we will make an extra effort this year in our campaign drive in the Trades and Industry Division.

"In the past, leaders in the trades and industries in the Greater Providence area have responded in a most generous manner and I feel certain that this year's response will be even greater."

Levy said chairmen and co-chairmen of the various commercial sub-divisions will be named as soon as possible so that plans for the campaign can proceed without delay. Organization plans for the Trades and Industry Division for the campaign, distribution of cards and methods of contacting prospects in the various commercial trades and industries will be announced in the immediate future, Levy added.

Dinner Chairman

ALEX RUMPLER

The 1955 Blackstone Valley United Jewish Appeal Drive will be launched with a dinner on Sunday, Oct. 23, at Temple Beth El, at 6 P. M. Al Saltzman, chairman of the drive, announced the appointment of Alex Rumpler as dinner chairman. He will be assisted by his co-chairman, Oscar Zetter; Mrs. Mitchell Sack, who heads the Women's Division, and Mrs. Leo Marks, dinner chairman for the Women's Division.

Rumpler said, "the results of our efforts at this dinner are of crucial importance. It will bring into focus the important role of the United Jewish Appeal in preserving Israel's economic capacity to receive and absorb large numbers of immigrants from distress areas in North Africa and elsewhere. A great turnout at the dinner will assure the success of our aims."

Boyman Heads GJC Area Division

Alter Boyman will head the Area Division of the General Jewish Committee's 1955 fund-raising campaign, it was announced today by Alvin A. Sopkin, campaign chairman.

Sopkin pointed out that due to a continued movement of Jewish families to suburban areas of the state, this division has taken on an added significance in the success of the 1955 campaign.

Cities and towns included in this division are Cranston, Warwick, West Warwick, East Greenwich, Warren and Bristol. With a tremendous movement of the Jewish population toward these communities — particularly Cranston and Warwick — during the past year, this division is an important aspect of the 1955 campaign.

Boyman, now serving his fifth year as treasurer of the General Jewish Committee, asserted that he is fully aware of the added importance this division has assumed during the past year and expressed confidence the drive in these communities will surpass last year's figures.

In once again accepting the

chairmanship, Boyman said that "with more and more Jewish families moving to the suburban areas, it is necessary to place more stress on the Area Division to assure a successful 1955 campaign. It is very important that

Trinkle, Lovitt Are Golf Champs

Murray Trinkle became the 1955 champion of the Herald's annual Golf Tournament last Friday when he defeated Marvin Lerman 3 and 2 in the climax match of the Championship Division.

Sidney Lovitt annexed the Class A title by triumphing over Irv Chase 2-up.

Trinkle moved smoothly to his first Herald title at the expense of the man who earlier had knocked off two previous tourney champs. The 17-year-old Lerman eliminated Maurice (Moe) Kessler, 1955 champ, and Dick Loeenberg, two-time winner, and a finalist every year until this. Friday Marv was no match for the veteran Trinkle, who parlayed a steady game and cool determination into a brilliant triumph.

The Lerman family just had no luck against Murray. The new champion, in his first round, had eliminated Saul Lerman, Marvin's father.

Trinkle was on the fairway with every drive, and his short game was near perfect. His few difficult recovery shots were perfectly executed. Lerman outdrove Murray, but his drives were just enough on the erratic side to throw him off, and he was consistently short with his approach shots and putts.

Trinkle took the lead at the second hole, and stayed in front the rest of the way. He added to his margin at the fifth, eighth and ninth for a 4-up lead at the end of the first nine. Lerman cut into that advantage at the tenth and fourteenth, but Murray resolved all doubts by going back into a three hole lead at the fifteenth. When the men halved the 16th it was all over.

Trinkle traversed the course in 76. Lerman did it in 79.

The story of the Lovitt-Chase match will be reported next week.

MRS. ALVIN N. BIENER, who was married last Sunday in the ballroom of the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel, is the former Miss Edith Yvette Oelbaum.

Oelbaum of Warrington Street, was married to Alvin N. Biener, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Biener of Flushing, Long Island, N. Y. The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Leon Chait, Morton Berkowitz and Fabian Schoenfeld.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. Her gown was of imported Chantilly lace with a square decollete neckline, fashioned with a long bodice, Victorian style, touched with pearls and dropped crystals. Her scalloped lace bouffant skirt, with shirred nylon tulle flounce, fell into a court train. A Juliet cap of seed pearls held a fingertip veil of illusion. She carried a cascade of phalaenopsis and stephanotis.

The mother of the bride chose a floor length gown of navy blue Chantilly lace with a nylon skirt, sweetheart neckline and bodice of lace with sequins. Mrs. Biener wore a floor length gown of pink chiffon with a sweetheart neckline. Both wore white orchid corsages.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will reside in Flushing.

She carried a prayerbook marked with baby orchids and stephanotis.

Dickman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie C. Dickman of 9 South Flagg Street, Worcester, Mass. Rabbi William Braude officiated at the 6 P. M. ceremony. A reception which followed in the Garden Room was attended by 160 guests.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in silk taffeta, princess style, with a full train. The accented square neckline was studded with pearl and the pleated waistline punctuated the bouffant skirt. Her veil of French illusion hung from a silk taffeta cloche cap studded with pearls. She carried a cascade of pink roses centered with a pink orchid.

Mrs. Frederick N. Musen was matron of honor for her sister-in-law. She chose a champagne pink gown, in a new Dior fashion of a combination of dainty bands of taffeta and net, a sculptured shirred bodice and matching net stole. Her bouquet was a cascade of pink roses. Miss Shelia Dickman, the bridegroom's sister, was maid of honor. She wore a powder blue net gown, the skirt of which consisted of yards of tiny ruffles under a tunic of white Chantilly lace, a fitted bodice and a matching net stole. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses with tiny blue flowers.

Rosh Hashono--New Year

Rosh Hashono, the Jewish New Year, will be observed in homes and synagogues throughout the world, beginning at sundown, Friday, Sept. 16.

Keynote of the holiday, the beginning of a ten-day span known as the High Holydays, is the belief that human nature can be improved by the application of divine ideals to daily life. Religious services on the holiday stress the theme of the possibility of overcoming weaknesses and faults. This idea is embodied in prayers, preaching and liturgy.

Worship services on Rosh Hashono feature the sounding of the Shofar, or ram's horn, used as a bugle in times gone by. It summons the worshipper to do battle against his faults.

According to legend, this year's observance marks the beginning of the year 5716 since the creation of the world. Jews do not make use of the Hebrew calendar on which this reckoning is based except for the timing of holidays and religious milestones.

Climax of the High Holydays is Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, which falls this year on Monday, Sept. 26. Synagogue observance of Rosh Hashono takes place Friday evening and Saturday morning in Reform temples; in Orthodox and Conservative synagogues, the New Year is celebrated for two days.

Darwin's Theory Would Never Upset Our Rabbis

The play in which Paul Muni is now starring, "Inherit the Wind," goes back to the famous Scopes trial. The state of Tennessee had barred the teaching of evolution. A test case was made with William Jennings Bryan upholding the anti-evolution law and Clarence Darrow standing up for freedom of thought.

There is the story of the rabbi of Walkowisk. His son was explaining Darwinism to him. The rabbi reflected a moment, "So," he said after the pause, "according to Darwin, we are descended from monkeys. Well, my son, I am not, but maybe you are."

As a rule, Jews are tolerant about such matters. If Bryan had been a Jew, I think he would not have directly opposed the teaching of the evolutionary theory. Instead, he would have tried to show that the idea of evolution does not really contradict the account of creation in the Bible. Jews, I think, taken as a whole, have a great deal of respect for intellectualism and where that brings forth heresy, their tendency is to seek to reconcile.

A Jew once said to Rabbi Pinchas Korteiz. "Do you know that Spinoza contends that man and animals have identical natures?"

"Let me ask you," responded the rabbi, "do you know of any animals who produced a Spinoza?"

It may be said that this alleged Jewish tolerance was not manifest in the case of Spinoza, who was excommunicated by the Jews. The synagogue did excommunicate Spinoza, but there is some evidence for the belief that the Jews were animated by a desire to protect themselves rather than to punish Spinoza. The outside world was beginning to look with horror at this heretic who denied their most sacred ideas and the Jewish community of Holland, relatively new in the country and insecure, sought to disassociate itself from him.

It is told of Rabbi Elehman Spector that once when he was believed to be dying, doctors forbade all visitors, but the rabbi asked that an exception be made in the case of a young chemist, an admitted unbeliever. The rabbi recovered, and the chemist, puzzled why the rabbi had singled him out, asked for an explanation.

"Well, you see," said Spector, "I thought I was dying. I expected to see my other friends in Heaven, but since I never expected to see you there, I thought I would like to see you for the last time."

The sincere unbeliever was not hated. It was different though for the vicious, spiteful infidel. A scoffer said to the Malbim, "Rabbi, we are told that when a rabbi passes, one should rise; we are also told that when a dog passes, we should sit down. What I would like to know is what we should do if a rabbi and dog pass simultaneously?"

"That is easy," said the rabbi, "let us both go out in the street and see what the people do."

Jordan Rejects UN Suggestion

LONDON—The Jordanian government has received a note from the United Nations Conciliation Commission suggesting the establishment of an office in the Old City of Jerusalem to discuss Arab property in Israel, and to become acquainted with the opinions of owners of such property with regard to compensation. Arab circles have shown interest in this note, it was reported here from Beirut, but the Jordan government rejected it because it considered the proposal a "violation of the UN resolutions which provide for the return of refugees or compensation for those not wishing to return."

Study Calls Israel Unifying Factor

NEW YORK—The existence of the State of Israel is playing a major role in cementing the scattered members of the Jewish people and in motivating Diaspora Jewry to reconsider the problem of Jewish survival, according to a new study just published by the World Jewish Congress' Institute of Jewish Affairs. The study, which is the first and conclusive part of the IJA's "Survey of Events in Jewish Life in 1954," is devoted to an analysis of "Consolidation and Cultural Developments" in Jewish communities throughout the world during the past year.

In Jewish tradition the first of Tishri ushers in the Days of Awe, known in Hebrew as the "Yomim Noraim."

Israeli Brainpower on Show; Scientific versus Cultural

By MAURICE CARR

PARIS—Never has Israeli culture been seen here to greater advantage than at the recent exhibition of Israeli scientific publications, first shown in London some months ago.

Of course, Israeli prestige was earlier much enhanced by the successive visits to Paris of the Ohel theatrical company, of Habimah and quite recently, of the Israeli Philharmonic Orchestra. But if the truth be told, the loud applause which their performances drew from the predominantly Jewish public and especially from the non-Jewish French critics, was not wholly an expression of art appreciation. There was in it also an element of encouragement to the gallant representatives of a small nation resuscitated, reconstituted miraculously from assorted remnants of world Jewry scattered over the face of the earth.

This sympathy, for the most part tacit, was for once quite openly formulated by the music critic of Paris-Press, whose notice of the initial concert given by the Israeli Philharmonic Orchestra stated flatly that here was no occasion for musical appraisal at all, but for reflections of a humanitarian order: how wonderful to think that the orchestra was composed of refugees from so many different lands, what a fine thing was Judaism, that most charitable of all religions, and so on.

Mismanagement

What Paris witnessed of Hebrew art struck an emotional note which in some respects seemed odd, if not false, to French sensibilities. Ohel, one must admit, was excessively emphatic in an outmoded East European manner. Habimah was not the Comedie Francaise. As for the Philharmonic Orchestra, it was unfortunately the victim of mismanagement on the opening night in Paris, as a result of which it had a poorish press, although at two later concerts — too late, alas, for publicity purposes — it proved its mettle as one of the world's great symphonic orchestras.

It was Paul Paray's conducting that spoiled things on the first night. This eminent Frenchman, after his years with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, has developed a style of showmanship distasteful to most Parisians. From the outset, it was a shock to hear the Marseillaise so blarneyly executed at machine-gun-fire tempo, followed by a Hatikva so slow, so lachrymose as to be almost embarrassing. His readings of Paul Duka's Sorcerer's Apprentice and of Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony were equally peculiar. At the same time, if the ear suffered, the eye was fascinated by Paul Paray's frenzied physical interpretation of the music, not only with his baton, with his arms, with his perspiring face, but with every fibre of his body, to which the orchestra responded with martial discipline.

Under Paul Klecki, the orchestra the following night and again some days later with Marian Anderson as soloist, gave the measure of its musical prowess. His surprisingly gay rendering of Beethoven's Seventh Symphony — so very different from the superbly conceived version of Toscanini — made one yearn for the thrill of listening to the Israel Philharmonic under a Toscanini or Bruno Walter.

In the case of the scientific publications exhibition, nothing, absolutely nothing went wrong. Prince Louis de Broglie, permanent secretary of the French Academy of Science, Professor Francis Perin, high commissioner for atomic energy, and other luminaries of this country's intellectual firmament, who either stood up and sang or sat listening to the praises of Israel at the inaugural ceremony, were altogether favorably and deeply impressed by the collection of nearly 3,000 learned disquisitions printed in the State of Israel during its seven years of existence.

To obviate any possible misunderstanding, let it be stressed that there is no attempt here to imply any superiority of science over art. A brochure revealing that it is possible to use just potato-eyes instead of whole potatoes for seed, thereby saving storage space, and a lot of potatoes for consumption, is not more but less important, to be sure, than a movement from Beethoven or a scene from the Dybbuk. But it is easier to put across Israeli science than Israeli art, for intellect alone is more easily conveyed than intellect combined with feeling.

Of the multitudinous subjects dealt with by Israeli technologists and scholars in the publications displayed — from induction motors and fly-wheels to cancer research and antibiotics, from methods of conquering the desert to means of vanquishing human ailments — perhaps the most interesting is the one concerned with the metabolism of the brain. After 15 years of investigation and experimentation, research workers in the department of physiology of the Hebrew University have, it appears, succeeded in constructing an apparatus which isolates and regulates blood circulation in the brain as distinct from the general circulation. With the help of this instrument, so far used only on live cats, significant new facts concerning the functioning of the brain have been ascertained: for example, the interrelation between the cerebral consumption of oxygen and the intensity of cerebral activity, the interdependence of brain and liver, and so forth.

Prof. Henri Baruk, the distinguished French-Jewish psychiatrist, who delivered a lecture at the Israeli scientific exhibition, drew attention to the veritable messianic potentialities of this field of inquiry. He has in his own works demonstrated, among other things, that mental disorders are for the most part caused, not by defects in the brain, but by toxic matters carried by the blood stream through the head. The madman may be likened to the drunkard whose mental faculties are clouded, whose self-control is gone because his grey matter is suffused with alcoholic poison. Prof. Baruk, by eliminating from the system certain poisons produced by faulty liver or glands, has been able to overcome some hitherto incurable forms of insanity. Conversely, he has been able to induce psychopathic conditions in animals simply by injecting the appropriate poisons into their veins.

It is conceivable, indeed perfectly feasible, that one day a disintoxicant or series of disintoxicants will be produced that will heal every or almost every kind of lunacy. The asylums will then be emptied; but that will be only the beginning of the drive for universal lucidity. For according to Prof. Baruk — and it needs no specialist to establish this — the world is full of countless uncerifiable maniacs who are far more dangerous to society than the poor creatures who get themselves put away under lock and key or clapped into strait jackets.

If and when the new wonder serum is produced, before sufficient quantities of it became available for everybody, the first doses ought to be rushed as a top priority to the leaders of mankind, to the heads of governments, the diplomats, the politicians, to the troublemakers in critical areas. The difficulty would be, of course, that the more a man, particularly a great man, needed treatment, the less disposed he would be to accept it. But as sanity gradually spreads, the task would become progressively simpler.

At last, the lower ranks of humanity would be reached. At that stage, it would do no harm if a shot in the arm were given to the gentlemen of the press who reported that the Israeli Philharmonic Orchestra failed in Paris because the Israel Ambassador, Ya'acov Tsur, did not do enough to boost it, whereas he did more than enough, giving a brilliant reception in its honor besides spending several hundred thousand francs on tickets for VIP Frenchmen and foreign diplomats to attend the first concert. Then again, the impresario who, for the last concert, issued complimentary tickets strictly to non-Jewish, non-Israeli newspapermen alone, might also benefit from an injection. And is the writer of these lines prepared to hold his arm out to the hypodermic needle? In this journalistic profession one can certainly do with it!

To Conduct Survey On Religious Rights

WASHINGTON—Any citizen of the United States who cares to state whether he believes his religious rights, guaranteed by the Constitution, are being properly interpreted and adequately protected, will be able to do so in a survey on this subject now to be undertaken by Congress. It was emphasized here by a spokesman of the Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights which will conduct the survey.

An eight-point questionnaire will be sent to anyone who asks for it. No mailing list has been prepared.

NAME MICHAELSON

NEW YORK — Julius Michaelson of Providence has been named to the 1956 biennial national convention committee of the National Jewish Welfare Board (JWB). It was announced here by Charles Aaron, Chicago, JWB president. This is the committee planning JWB's next convention, to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York, April 5-8, 1956. The committee is composed of 200 Jewish community leaders from all parts of the country.

10 Consumers Choose
Manischewitz Product

With virtually no exceptions, a wide cross-section of consumers consistently have chosen Manischewitz Gefilte Fish over all other varieties, packaged and home-made, because of its lake-fresh, luscious quality, its uniformly tender texture and gently seasoned, "old-fashioned" taste.

The fish itself — a blend of choice freshwater varieties—is in the jar, cooked, vacuum-sealed and ready for shipment, often within as little as an hour after it is caught.

This special Manischewitz combination of skill and quality results in a gefilte fish of uniquely delicate flavor, well-calculated to make a gourmet's mouth water and turn the proudest cook into a devotee of ready-to-serve, incomparably delicious Manischewitz Gefilte Fish.

British Not Pleased With Egypt's Reply

LONDON — The British Government considers the Egyptian reply to its protest against the shelling of the British freighter Anshun in the Strait of Akaba July 2 "unsatisfactory," R. H. Turton, Parliamentary Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said in a written reply to a query from an MP on the Anshun incident. The Egyptian note is "at variance with the facts" about the case, Turton wrote, and as soon as the case is studied further the government will make new representations to Egypt.

Need Leaders for Center Program

Leadership recruitment for the Jewish Community Center's 1955-1956 season is under way, according to Arthur Eisenstein, JCC Program Director, and the call is out to the community for men and women and young adults interested in serving as volunteer or paid leaders for Center youth and children's activities.

Young men and women with some leadership skills or group work background, or those interested in undertaking some group leadership on a part-time basis are asked to communicate with Mr. Eisenstein at the JCC office.

Leaders are needed for children's clubs, teen-aged groups, crafts instruction and hobby groups, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Cubs and Brownie organizations and canteen supervision at both the Sessions Street building and the South Side building soon to be opened.

The Center's children's and youth group worker, both volunteer and salaried, are the backbone of the Center's program, according to Morris Kritzman, JCC Executive Director. Mr. Kritzman stated, "Although our active committees and our staff members are most effective in planning adequate children's and youth activities programs, these activities cannot be implemented without the help of a large corps of interested, qualified and willing group leaders."

Plans will shortly be announced for the Center's young leadership training program for 1955-1956, the Junior Aides of Center (JACS).

Our Wonderful Teen-Agers Come Out Fine in Survey

The "teen-age problem" does not seem to be serious as far as Jewish teen-agers are concerned.

Judging from a survey conducted in New York among Jewish children of lower and middle class families, the following picture emerges. Eleven-year old girls use lipstick and 13-year old boys are already smoking. They wish to be considered sophisticated adults. However, they do not like to go to places where the crowds are "rough".

They know little about Jewish religion because religious practices in their homes are often confused.

About fifty per cent of them take lessons in singing, dancing, music and art.

Among the tenth-graders there is a surprising number who hold after-school jobs—such as baby-sitting, newspaper routes, delivery, sales, and volunteer jobs in hospitals. Most of them do not work for the money, but because they want to be "independent". These jobs involve working two or more afternoons a week and sometimes all day Saturday. Home work takes a good part of most of the youngster's weekday evenings. Most of them manage to see at least one TV show nightly. Homework is sometimes a social affair as group of friends study together. The youngsters go to the movies at least once a week.

What do they want to do in the free time left them? Dates take priority. For the boys sports also rate high. When asked how many times they would come to a Jewish center if offered the kind of activity they wanted, the reply was from once a week to once a month.

Many thought that the centers were for delinquents and not for "people like us." Others thought there are too many adults watching them in the centers — "too many snoopers." A large proportion of the boys said they joined after-school centers maintained by the Board of Education to play basketball at a fee of 50c a year.

The survey, which was conducted among Jewish "teen-agers" of 13 to 16 years of age, established that Jewish boys avoid association with "wild" youngsters in their neighborhood, while the girls prefer to be in the company of "nice Jewish boys."

Foods to Remember

SUM-SUM COOKIES

- 2 cups flour
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup vegetable shortening or salad oil
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 sesame seeds (obtained at large food stores)

Sift flour and baking powder into a mixing bowl. Make a depression in the center and add the sugar, shortening or oil and one egg. Mix with a heavy fork till a compact mixture is formed. A very little cold water or fruit juice of any kind may be added if necessary to form a ball of dough. Turn out on a lightly floured kneading board. Knead gently and form into half-inch-thick rolls. Cut into half-inch pieces. Grease the cookie sheet or line it with aluminum foil. Beat the remaining egg yolk in a shallow bowl, and the egg white with a pinch of salt in another bowl till it is frothy. Have the sesame seeds in still another flat bowl. Now form a ball of each bit of dough in the palm of your hand and press it into a flat, round cookie not more than 1/4 inch thick. Dip each into the beaten egg yolk lightly and then into the sesame seeds. Place on the prepared cookie sheet and with the fingers press the seeds down gently to help them stick. When all the cookies are placed, brush lightly with the frothy egg-white, using a pastry brush (or fingers). Bake 15 minutes at 350° F. or till lightly browned. Store, when cold, in cookie jars. Yields approximately 50 cookies.

And, speaking of baking time, we're reminded that some of the baking for the coming High Holidays can be done long in advance. For instance the following fat-free Honey Cake which improves with a couple of week's storage in cake box or refrigerator.

FAT-FREE HONEY CAKE

- 1 pound honey
- 2 teaspoons baking soda
- 1 cup strong black coffee, hot
- 3 eggs
- 1 cup sugar
- 3 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, all-spice and ginger

Beat honey in a deep sauce pan or top of double boiler till it begins to bubble then stir in the baking soda. Stir down when it fizzes and stir in the hot coffee. Remove from heat to cool to lukewarm while preparing the remaining ingredients. Beat eggs till creamy, add a little sugar at a time till light and thick. Sift together flour and spices three times. Combine the creamed mixture with the cool honey and coffee combination. Stir into the dry ingredients. Line a 14 x 9-inch baking pan with aluminum foil or wax paper and turn in the batter. Bake at 300° F. for 50 or 55 minutes or till set. Test by inserting a wooden toothpick in center of cake. If it comes out dry, the cake is done. Remove from oven. Let cool in the pan, set on a wire cake rack. Cut into squares or diagonal pieces when ready to serve. For storing in the refrigerator, wrap the cake in aluminum foil. For cake box storage, wax paper will serve adequately. Another tip: Cut the cake in two and wrap separately for space saving.

PLAN SPECIAL FUND

JERUSALEM—The Israel Government will raise a special fund of 40 million pounds to aid in financing the immigration of Jews from North Africa to Israel, it became known when the Treasury on Monday announced a new tax impost, the proceeds of which will be assigned to this fund.

The Treasury said the new tax would be levied on building materials. This is expected to bring in about 14 million pounds.

B'nai B'rith to Aid Flood Area Victims

STARLIGHT, Pennsylvania — B'nai B'rith emergency relief funds will be used to help victims of the recent floods, Philip M. Klutznick, president of B'nai B'rith, announced today at Camp B'nai B'rith, located here in the Poconos just outside the flood area. He made the announcement at a meeting of the B'nai B'rith Administrative Committee, part of the organization's governing body, which opened with a review of reports submitted by members from the stricken areas. The meeting was attended by representatives from every section of the United States and Canada.

B'nai B'rith is contributing over $15,000 for relief of the sufferers. The money, contributed by the Supreme Lodge, Districts and local groups, will be made available to B'nai B'rith branches in such hard-hit areas of District One as Waterbury and Ansonia, Conn., and Woonsocket, R. I., and will be distributed by them in cooperation with local Red Cross chapters and emergency relief committees. Joseph M. Finkle of Providence is president of District one.

SYD COHEN:

Odds and Ends

A couple of Big League notes this week before we swing into our bustling local scene. First of them is the recollection of a prediction, this one made during spring training by Fresco Thompson of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

use him, the Dodger official said, and they would not be afraid to use him.

Since the Brooks openly have been seeking a star Jewish player to bolster that sagging gate, this sounded like the usual propaganda. And when Koufax promptly came up with a sore arm that limited him to one brief appearance over the first three-quarters of the season, the whole matter was forgotten.

It seems now, however, that Fresco knew whereof he spoke. Koufax finally got his arm in shape and was given a starting assignment a couple of weeks ago. You'll recall he turned in a classy shutout, with no less than 11 strikeouts, high for the National League season. And he followed that up with another shutout job.

Early in the year I devoted one column to a discussion of the Dodgers' search for a Jewish star, and traced the progress of the Jewish boys in Dodger domain. Koufax, of course, headed the list; and it now appears that he may be the long-sought gate attraction—as well as one of the finest pitchers in the league. Certainly, he seems to have the stuff.

Softball Playoffs

Because of the sporadic return of late-season score sheets, we have been hard pressed to keep up with the Sunday doings of the R. I. Jewish Softball League. For that reason, two recent issues have carried no results and no standings. Now, however, it is official. Superior Fuels defeated Technoprint twice on the final Sunday of play. Beacon split with M & F, and Broadway Auto gained two wins on forfeit from the disbanded Merchants.

As a result, Superior wound up in first place with a healthy lead. Broadway edged into second place, and Beacon lost a chance to tie Technoprint for third because of its split. Here are the final standings:

Team	W	L
Superior Fuels	19	1
Broadway Auto	13	7
Technoprint	12	8
Beacon	11	9
M & F Insurance	5	15
Merchants	0	20

So that brings us up to the playoffs for the league championship—playoffs that will involve the first and fourth clubs (Superior and Beacon) going at it, and the second and third outfits (Technoprint and Broadway) tussling, each in the best two-out-of-three. The eventual winners will meet in a three-out-of-five series for the title.

Superior Fuels and Beacon will meet at Hopkins Park, while Technoprint and Broadway Auto will play at Bucklin Park. First games will start at 10 A.M.

Double header triumphs this Sunday would cut short the playoff season, and make it possible for the final series to start next week. Past league history is against such an outcome, however. Two of the four clubs usually manage to go the limit of three games.

In addition to the league playoffs, the Superior and Broadway Auto clubs will represent the Jewish Softball League in the Class B playoffs of the Amateur Softball Association, scheduled to start this week. Watch the daily papers for news of these contests.

Old Timers To Play

While the softball playoffs are being conducted at Hopkins Park and Bucklin Park, the Old Timers will be playing their first game at Sessions Street Field. With two fruitful practice sessions under their belts, the veterans this week issued a challenge to the M & F Insurance Company team. Game time will be 11 o'clock.

There was no lack of playing personnel or talent in last Sunday's Old Timers' squad, which played a practice game with Broadway Auto Sales. Pitchers included Tex Rabinowitz, Jack Platkin and Harold Hirsch, author of the only no-hit game in the history of the Jewish Softball League. Sam Stepak was behind the plate. Among the infielders were Rabinowitz, Sid Jacobson, Jimmy Shocket, Norton Rappaport and Leo Miller; and patrolling the outfield, Rappaport, Sid Green, Syd and Dave Cohen. Herb Goldis was sidelined by the leg injury suffered last week. Missing were Bob Goldis, Harold Moskoff, Lou Weiner, Steve Espo and Bernie (Lefty) Davidson.

Considering that all these men have been inactive at least this year, and in many cases quite a few years, the Old Timers played pretty good and definitely sprightly ball. According to the score card, Manager Jack Schreiber's boys were on the long end of a 3-2 count in the game. If you don't believe they can still play good ball, come on down Sunday and see for yourself.

The Old Timers will practice from 10 o'clock till game time.

The Golf Tourney

The Herald's Golf Tournament ground swiftly toward its conclusion during the past week. Already settled are the contests in the Championship and Class A Divisions, won, respectively, by Murray Trinkle and Sid Lovitt; while in Class B—the largest grouping—the match play was at the semi-finals stage.

Paired in the next to the last round were Nat Alterman vs Len Blazar (Alterman qualified by downing Jack Dreyfuss), and Mel Bloom vs Walt Weisman.

The Beaten Eight and Sixteen groups also are down to the finals. In Class A, it will be Ben Abrams vs Harry Chase, and in Class B Jack Bilow vs Lou Goldstein.

EVENING DANCE GROUP

At a recent meeting of the Pioneer Women's Evening Group, plans were discussed for a Yom Kippur dance to be held on Monday, Sept. 26, at Rhodes-on-the-Pawtucket's Annex State Room.

Rabbi Schwartz Edits Volume of Sermons

The 420-page volume of the best sermons preached by American rabbis during the year appeared this week in New York under the editorship of Rabbi George Bernard Schwartz of Providence. Published annually by the Rabbinical Council of America, the leading organization of Orthodox Rabbis in the world, the current volume is dedicated to the Chief Rabbi of Israel, His Eminence Doctor Isaac Halevi Herzog, who wrote the preface.

Ordained into the rabbinate by the Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Seminary of the Yeshiva University of New York in 1949 with the highest honors in his class, Rabbi Schwartz was awarded a fellowship in Rabbimics at the same school one year later. In addition to editing the volume, which includes 112 Sermons by 102 Rabbis, some of them internationally known, Rabbi Schwartz has written the sermon on "The Signal of Forgiveness."

Rabbi and Mrs. Schwartz are the parents of a son and reside at 144 Oakland Avenue. Mrs. Schwartz is the former Miss Rosalie Poupko, daughter of Rabbi Eliezer Poupko, dean of the Philadelphia rabbinate. She is a graduate of the Beth Jacob College for Hebrew Teachers.

First Impressions of Israel

By Lenore Resnick

Editor's Note: In last week's issue of the Herald, Miss Resnick, who recently returned from a six-week tour of Israel, described some of her visits. Continued below are descriptions of other high spots in her trip:

From Haifa, we travelled south to Jerusalem which in my estimation is the most beautiful city. The first day in this Holy City we went on a tour which included Ramat Rachel on the Trans Jordanian Border. Much fighting took place there. This kibbutz to begin with had 250 men, now they only have 80. They have trenches and they are still keeping watch in case of an attack. We also went up to Mt. Zion which is a holy place for three religions. For Christians because it was the place of the last supper and where Mary died; for Jews and Moslems because of the theory of the existence of King David's tomb. The next day we journeyed to Mt. Herzl the sight of Theodore Herzl's last resting place. We also saw an exact duplicate of his Vienna study. This room is located in the Jewish National Fund Building.

Israel today is not all beautiful buildings and monuments for there are still living in Malborato or transition camps, over 200,000 new immigrants. These unfortunate people are living under the most difficult conditions but there is the hope that they will be resettled in the near future.

the six communities in this division be thoroughly canvassed and that every single Jewish family make a contribution to the best of its ability. The success of the drive in these communities, in my opinion, will have a direct bearing on the final results of the 1955 campaign."

Boymann announced that he will name the chairman of the various cities and towns in the division as soon as possible and will start work immediately on plans for the campaign in the Area Division.

Young Artist Describes Career, Travels

BY ANNA T. RICHARDS

A $12 investment when she was ten years old has paid off in two United States Government Fulbright Grants for study abroad for Miriam Beerman of Sixth Street. Over coffee and pound cake, Miriam, with underlines from Mama (Mrs. William Beerman), told of the evolution of her artistic career — from lessons on Saturday at the Rhode Island School of Design to her present study under the Fulbright Grant with William Stanley Hayter, one of the most famous of the world's etchers and engravers. Hayter, incidentally, who has worked with Max Ernst, Picasso, Miro, Braque, and others equally well-known, was influential in getting a renewal of Miriam's grant.

Miriam described the Fulbright, which lasts for a year. It pays for transportation to and back from the host country, it covers room and board and materials, and rent of a studio. "There were only two in New England to win the award in art, and Miriam was the only one from Rhode Island." Miriam looks at Mama, and Mama says, "Well, if I don't tell her, you won't."

Taught and Exhibited

Up to the time of her sailing last year on the Queen Mary for Paris, Miriam had a succession of teaching positions, one-man shows and exhibitions. In September, 1954, Bradford Swan commented in The Providence Journal on the work of four young Rhode Island artists. Of one he said, "Of excellent quality, as usual . . . Miriam Beerman paints like a streak."

Miriam had also exhibited in a one-man show in 1946 in the Arcade, under the sponsorship of Contemporary Artists.

An exhibition of her work at the Brooklyn Museum in New York caught the attention of the American Federation of Arts. Two of her woodcut prints were chosen for a tour throughout the United States and Canada.

She was only 23 years old when she taught art at Miami University in Ohio.

While teaching part-time for the Swansea, Mass. public school system, she had a studio at the Art Center on 30 Benefit Street, where her work was seen in exhibition in 1953. Earlier, she had spent three years teaching art in the public schools of Central Falls.

Even while she was home this summer, her work was being shown in Paris at the American Embassy by the Fulbright Committee.

Other scholarships which Miriam won included those at the R. I. School of Design, the Art Students' League in New York, and at Highfield, Falmouth, Mass., and more.

Woe Be the Modern

Some of Miriam's work is so modern that even those who are supposed to know once hung one of her pictures upside down. At the School of Design exhibition her "Bird in Flight" became "Bird Running Along the Ground." Modern artists sometimes have to label the backs of their paintings, "top" and "bottom" just to prevent this sort of thing, she related.

Miriam's apparent gentleness does not show in her work, which for the most part is forceful, strong and emphatic. But her gentleness was evident in the way she fondled Isak, the Beerman's cat and master of its household. "And Miriam won't even kill a ladybug," Mama says.

A $12 Education

"I wouldn't part with that one," Mama says and points to the lovely oil of a seated woman which her daughter did at the beginning of her career. The $12 Mrs. Beerman spent for her young daughter's art lessons was about the only money ever expended for Miriam's education. Ever since then, she has won scholarships and grants and prizes which took care of any fees involved.

Describes Europe

A petite brunette, her graceful artistic hands fluttered like two small birds as Miriam described the beauty of Europe. "Florence is full of color and light, an artist's haven . . . and, oh, the ruins of Rome . . . the Italians are warm and friendly people . . . their simplest meals are banquets."

The coffee perked as Miriam in her soft gentle voice told of her tour through the Riviera in the Spring . . . of the little towns of Valauris and Antibes which are filled with things Picasso in honor of the man who once worked there.

She also saw the studio of Cezanne, which has been kept just as he left it when he died.

With her soft brown eyes crinkling with laughter, Miriam told of the time in Paris when she ate at a restaurant recommended for its fine inexpensive food. Of course, it was cheap, she says, horse-meat doesn't cost much even in Europe. And then the time in Italy when a taxi driver took her around to look for an apartment. They travelled for what seemed miles. And she paid what seemed a fortune. The next day she found out that the building was only a three-minute walk from the station where the now-rich taxi-driver had picked her up.

When Miriam returns this year (she sailed on August 27) on the French ship Flandre. She plans to visit those countries she missed last time—Spain and Greece and the British Isles—all of these are on her list.

Of Future Value

Mama poured more coffee for the photographer as Miriam described her method of making block prints on cloth. "She made me a beautiful tablecloth," Mrs. Beerman says, "and you should see the draperies."

Woodcuts and printmaking has now become Miriam's specialty. She studied in New York with Adja Yunkers at the New School, and she will continue her study of the art form with Hayter in Paris.

Printmaking, she explained, is popular among artists since 25 to 30 prints may be made from one woodcut. Many of the struggling Van Goghs earn extra money this way.

The interview was drawing to a close when this reporter spent her last few dollars on a Beerman print entitled "Embrace," first because we liked it and then because Mama believes that Miriam really will be recognized in a few years and "just think how valuable it will be."

Another Story

We said goodby and someone mentioned Janet, another Beerman "enterprise" who, in her job as a social worker, is uniting an immigrant Greek family with their father in Pawtucket. But that's another story, and besides, Mr. Beerman is the one to see for editorial comment on that one.

The Rabbis of old, fashioned the first day of the New Year into an occasion on which every human being strives to reconcile himself with fellowman.
