Shaare Zedek to Honor Rabbi Chait at Banquet

Congregation Shaare Zedek of South Providence will tender a banquet in honor of Rabbi Leon Chait, the Synagogue's spiritual leader, on Sunday evening at 5:30 P. M. in the Synagogue ballroom.

Rabbi Chait was appointed to the Congregation shortly after the unification of the three South Providence synagogues — Congregation Anshe Austria, South Providence Hebrew Congregation and Congregation Tifereth Israel.

Since Rabbi Chait officially accepted his duties in May 1955, he has spearheaded an active program of religious, cultural and educational projects for the South Providence community. Among his accomplishments has been the establishment of a new Talmud Torah; a Sunday pre-Hebrew School; a new Men's Club; cultural youth programs including Sabbath junior services and a special Oneg Shabbat for youngsters; a girls youth group, B'nai Akiva; a study group for post-Bar Mitzvah boys, and an Adult Educational Institute.

Installed — Harry D. Jagolinzer was installed as president of the Zionist District of Providence on Wednesday evening at Temple Emanuel. Also installed by Maurice W. Hendel, past president of the Zionist Region, were Louis B. Rubinstein, first vice-president; Martin Temkin, second vice-president; Thomas W. Pearlman, recording secretary; Dr. Ilie Berger, financial secretary; Dr. Joseph Smith, treasurer, and Herman A. Caine, corresponding secretary.

Who Has Bentzil Kasper's Coat

Who's got the coat? That's the mystery confronting the General Jewish Committee and its staff of hard-pressed workers today.

Young Bentzil Kasper of 26 Larch Street, says he's willing to give his "all" for the cause—but not his new coat.

A solicitor in Y-Day last Sunday, Bentzil was given a ride to Sargent Avenue. It was a warm day so he left his coat in the car. The driver was supposed to pick up Bentzil at 11 o'clock but failed to show. Bentzil finally went home minus his coat.

Bentzil asks that anyone knowing of the whereabouts of his coat please call his home—Union 1-4368 — or the GJC headquarters—GAspee 1-4111.

STARS PUT ON HOMES

TEL AVIV—Stars of David are being printed on the doors of apartments inhabited by Jews in Cairo and Alexandria, as a part of an organized campaign to brand "possible traitors."

To Represent Providence Bureau At National Education Conclave

The Providence Bureau of Jewish Education will be represented at the third national conference on Jewish education to be held in Washington, D. C., according to an announcement by Alter Boyman, president.

Irving Brodsky, Henry Hassenfeld, Max Winograd and Dr. Harry Elkin will attend the sessions which will deal with the theme, "The Manpower Crisis in Jewish Education", to be opened at the Willard Hotel on Thursday.

As one who served as chairman of the regional conference in New England last spring, Brodsky was invited to head one of the six workshops which will be conducted at the conference. "How Can We Make the Teacher's Work Professionally More Significant and Personally More Satisfying?" will be the theme of Brodsky's workshop.

Among the featured speakers at the conference will be Philip M. Klutznick, president of B'nai B'rith, and Herbert R. Abeles, president of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds. Dr. Leo L. Honor of Dropsie College will deliver the keynote address.

The conference aims to cope with the critical shortage of Jewish educational personnel and hopes to emerge with concrete proposals which will be presented to the American Jewish community. The conference will also (Continued on Page 5)

Women Set for M-Day

Some 400 volunteers are set for M-Day on Sunday.

M-Day—the intensive one-day house-to-house canvas for contributions—is the final major event of the Women's Division of the 1956 campaign of the General Jewish Committee.

With contributions already ahead of last year at the same date, Mrs. David Meyers, general chairman, said that Women's Division leaders are confident that contributions on M-Day will swell the final totals to a substantial increase over the 1955 mark.

"The entire campaign thus far has been marked by an exceptional degree of enthusiasm and determination and all indications point to a tremendous success on Sunday," Mrs. Irving L. Solomon, M-Day chairman declared.

M-Day chairman declared.

The one-day solicitation will begin with a breakfast for all workers at the Narragansett Hotel, where headquarters once again will be established. Following the breakfast and a final briefing by Women's Division leaders, cards to be solicited will be passed out to the M-Day workers. As soon as the cards are covered, the workers will report the results at headquarters.

Mrs. Solomon said that a car pool has been set up and transportation will be provided for the workers to their destinations. Stickers identifying the workers also will be provided.

Two attractive prizes will be given for attendance, Mrs. Solomon added.

D-Day Gifts Show Increase; Campaign Total Now $415,000

More than 350 volunteer workers conducted one of the most successful D-Day drives in the history of the General Jewish Committee last Sunday.

Approximately 1,200 contributions were made during the one-day house-to-house fund raising drive that was marked by increased giving in nearly all cases. The overall total, with many cards still to be solicited, was $11,000—an increase over last year of $1,500. This swelled the present total contributions in the 1956 campaign to $415,000.

That total is expected to be boosted substantially after the tally is completed of contributions recorded last Wednesday at the special report luncheon held at the Narragansett Hotel.

Ben Ruttenberg, D-Day chairman, expressed delight with the enthusiastic turnout of workers and the results of the one-day drive in the Greater Providence area.

Henry J. Hassenfeld, GJC president; Benjamin Brier, general campaign chairman, and Joseph Galkin, executive director of the GJC, also spoke briefly to the workers.

Because of the warm, sunny weather many residents were not at home. As a result, Sunday's solicitation represents only partial results. Many cards have been reassigned to be covered within the next few weeks.

Ruttenberg announced that three sets of prizes have been donated by friends to be awarded to the set of buddies who cover the most cards and acquire the biggest percentage increases. He said that the prizes will not be awarded until all the cards are covered, pointing out that cards reassigned for solicitation also will count in the final totals.

As in previous years, the workers were given breakfast at the Narragansett Hotel, where headquarters were set up, before they spread out in the Greater Providence area to cover the cards assigned to them.

At the same time, more than 100 workers of the Young Adult (Continued on Page 5)

Vote Complete Ballot

The League of Women Voters urges all citizens to vote a complete ballot in the coming election. Many voters overlook the local candidates, and pay little or no attention to the candidates for school committee and to the bond issues. To make the most of your vote, you are urged to consider each of the 11 Providence bond issues, and in school districts A, D, and F, to give careful consideration to your choice of a candidate for school committee.

There is still time to practice the proper use of the voting machine at City Hall on Monday, November 5, from 10 A. M. to 4 P. M. and to get complete non-partisan information on all candidates and bond issues.

The new Rhode Island state law requires that you bring your Voter Identification card with you when you go to vote on November 6th.

For complete non-partisan voting information, such as where to vote, who the candidates are for offices, and what your rights and privileges are at the polls, call the League of Women Voters of Providence at GAspee 1-5443 on Election Day.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

A World of Splendor

By BERYL SEGAL

In the Chasidic homes of my childhood a man was prepared to meet the Sabbath Queen as she descended from her heavenly heights to this earth, by doing three things.

He chanted the Torah portion—the Sidra—of the week, with its commentaries.

He completed the 150 songs and hymns of the Book of Psalms.

And he "looked" into the Zohar, the Book of Mysterious Splendor.

As for we youngsters, while we were quizzed on our studies of Chumosh and Gemoro, we were not allowed to come near the Zohar. Not that we were unable to understand the Aramaic dialect in which it is written, but because we were not ready and still too immature to enter the Pardes—the sublime Garden of Wisdom.

Yet I still remember the warmth that enveloped my whole being when as a Cheder boy I sat with my father and listened to the words of the Rebe, the saintly Jew, who came to our little town. It was the twilight of a Sabbath, and the Rebe was sitting at the head of a long table, and the Chasidim—the house was full—listened in rapture to his weak but musical voice, as he lingered at the Third Meal of the Sabbath.

"The Holy Zohar says: Just as man was created of body and soul, so is the universe created of body and soul. Just as we can see the body but can only feel the soul in man, so can we only see the body of the universe. The soul of the universe is invisible and hidden from our eyes. Only when a man studies the Torah, and his heart yearns to know his Creator does his soul behold the great light—the soul of the universe."

Little did I know then that what I had heard was a centuries-old mystical doctrine that thrilled generations of Jews—the mysticism of Kabbalah.

And now many years later, I am again listening to a modern Rebe, a professor of philosophy and Jewish mysticism in the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. This time it is not in a humble room in the twilight of Sabbath, but in a spacious study in Wilbur Hall, on the campus of Brown University, where the Department of Religious Studies is housed. And the voice of the man who speaks to me of the Zohar is just as gentle as the voice of the holy Jew of my childhood. He is Professor Gershon Sholem, a visiting member of the faculty at Brown for one year.

Recognized as the world's greatest authority on Jewish mysticism, Professor Sholem is the possessor of the largest collection of books and manuscripts in this field, some 6,000 of them, carefully watched over by the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. And Professor Sholem discovered this world of Kabbalah for himself. Trained as a mathematician at the University of Munich, Germany, he became interested in the Talmud, the Midrash, and Kabbalah as a hobby. By the time he was ready for his Ph.D degree it was no longer a hobby, but a work to which Gershon Sholem was to devote his life and all his talents. The Ph.D dissertation was written on Jewish mysticism.

The University of Munich where he studied and prepared his thesis was particularly suitable for this scholarly work. In Munich, Dr. Sholem tells me, was concentrated the most important collection of Jewish mystical literature in Europe. The Munich before Hitler—a seat of Jewish learning.

Now we are sitting at a long working desk in Wilbur Hall, in front of a window, in full view of the campus and the golden autumn foliage of the elm trees. On the table are books and manuscripts, and the proofs of a book Professor Sholem is preparing for publication in Israel very soon, a book dealing with a movement in Judaism and of a man, Shabbat Zvi, who was misunderstood and unjustly treated by Jewish historians.

And I asked of Professor Sholem:

"What should I, who know so little about Kabbalah, tell the readers who might even know about this less than I do? Could you help me out with a brief statement on the essence of Kabbalah?"

"Very simple", replied Professor Sholem. "Say that Kabbalah relates everything in this world to the Divine."

Very simple, indeed.

But as I thought about this definition, I realized that this is what the Rebe of my childhood, the holy Jew, meant when he spoke of the soul of the world towards which our own soul yearns. You and I and the things around us are part of a divine world, a world of beauty and wisdom, and of great splendor. And man yearns to cleave to this divine world.

Professor Sholem relates a story that illustrates how little we know of the "world of splendor" that once thrilled the Jew for many generations.

A Yale professor of philosophy gave the book "Major Trends in Jewish Mysticism", written by Professor Sholem, to some of his Jewish students. The students came back very disturbed and shook their heads, saying:

"This is not Jewish thought. Jews have no such beliefs."

And the Yale professor writes to Sholem:

"Were it not that I know you to be an honorable man I would think that your book is a hoax."

Jewish scholars of this generation and of the past were inclined to minimize the importance of mysticism in Judaism. But Dr. Gershon Sholem insists that Kabbalah was a time-honored attempt to re-interpret the Torah in mystical terms, and it had a continued development of at least 1000 years. Oriental Jews are still steeped in mysticism.

I might add that the world of my childhood, a world alive but yesterday, was well immersed in Kabbalah. The mysticism of the Kabbalah concerning Creation, God, Man, Soul, Good and Evil, were more real to the Chasidim of my little town than the Czar and his decrees, the police and their taunts, and the burden of eking out a living.

On that evening I told of my hour spent with Dr. Sholem to Rabbi William G. Braude, who, by the way, is in no small measure responsible for Professor Sholem's visit to Brown, and I asked him for a definition of mysticism to suit the layman. And Rabbi Braude said:

"The first time I read the Zohar, the Book of Splendor, I felt as if I were lifted out of the narrow confines of the world, and were suspended in a limitless space."

"The second time I read the Zohar I heard a song welling up within me."

Vast spaces and heavenly voices. This is the reward of those who delve in the world of Kabbalah.

Professor Sholem is teaching Jewish mysticism to rabbis and to graduate students at Brown twice a week. But you and I may have a glimpse of these infinite spaces and perhaps hear the strains of the heavenly song when Professor Sholem gives his four public lectures on "Some Aspects of Jewish Mysticism." The first of these public lectures is to be given on the 29th of October. We are all invited.

We might not fully understand the ideas of Jewish mysticism, but we will be led into this World of Splendor by one who can guide us well, a man who is at home in this mysterious world as we are in the streets and avenues of our home town.

The Riddle of the Merchants Club

By HAROLD BRAVERMAN
(Reprinted from The ADL Bulletin)

PART I

No one knows today—85 years after the event—whether the five New York merchants who declared their intention to incorporate the Merchants Club on September 26, 1871, were concerned with one another's religious creeds, or those of the Club's members-to-be.

In their certificate of incorporation, the five men—William Turnbull, William L. Pomeroy, Samuel Keyser, Hewlett Scudder and James M. Dunbar—showed no intention of organizing a snug retreat fully protected from Jews. The certificate's purpose clause merely stated: "The business and object of such society or company shall be to promote social intercourse among the members thereof, and to provide for them a pleasant place of common resort for entertainment and improvement."

No one knows whether the five sires of the Merchants Club deliberately planned a Judenrein association. What is known, however, is that in its 85 years the Merchants Club has never admitted a member of the Jewish faith.

The fact is that the Club goes far beyond the mere exclusion of Jews from membership. Club members are not free to bring Jewish guests into the main dining room. If they have business to discuss with a Jew, they have to take him elsewhere or rent one of the Club's expensive private dining rooms.

Many Merchants Club members articulately reject any notion of personal anti-Semitism. They are quick to point out that some of their best friends—and customers—are Jewish. But in the history of the Club no member is known to have seriously challenged an anti-Jewish tradition that began in the 1870's.

Over the years, many individuals in the cotton textile industry have questioned the propriety of this policy. But Merchants Club members have argued that their club is a private group, that like seeks like, that men have a right to group themselves on the basis of common religious beliefs, etc. In short, they have said that the Merchants Club is, in substance, a social organization whose members enjoy a close, almost family relationship.

The arguments would be impressive were it not that the Merchants Club itself has gone to great pains to repudiate the designation of "social club" and involved itself in litigation to prove that it is a quasi-public, strictly business organization, with no "social features at all."

The United States Internal Revenue Code provides for federal taxation of dues and initiation fees collected by social, sporting and athletic clubs. In 1928 the Club asked for repayment of taxes paid on members' dues totalling more than $20,000 on the ground that it was not a social club. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue allowed the claim, which was repaid the Club by the Government in June, 1934.

But in November, 1942, and January 1, 1943, the Internal Revenue Bureau officially notified the Club that as of January 1, 1943, it would be considered a social club and that its receipts would be taxable. Barely two weeks later, on January 12, 1943, the Merchants Club amended its purpose clause to read: "The purpose of the Club shall be to establish and maintain quarters and accessories convenient to its member's places of business wherein such members, their associates, clients and business friends may obtain their mid-day meals amid quiet surroundings and have available private rooms suitable for business conferences."

Two years later, on February 5, 1945, the Merchants Club brought action against the United States of America to recover some $12,000 in taxes which had been levied in the intervening two years. Obviously, the brief submitted by the Merchants Club to the Court of Claims made no mention of the curious fact that Jews were unwelcome as members or guests of the Club. Indeed, the brief dismissed out of hand any contention that there was anything "social" in its operation.

To demolish the idea that the Merchants Club was a group bound together by social ties, the brief insisted that the Club was " . . . an important and necessary cog in the business of distributing the nation's output of cotton textiles . . . performing a strictly utilitarian function . . . a function which is comparable to that performed on a more elaborate scale by the New York Stock Exchange in the marketing of securities."

In any event, these arguments were persuasive enough to win the Merchants Club a favorable verdict and a refund of $12,016.-

81, plus interest. This established the paradox of the Merchants Club. The government agreed with the Club's own estimate of itself—that it is strictly a "utilitarian" business organization. Yet, for more than three-quarters of a century, its members have defended the policy of exclusion of Jews on the grounds that the Club is a social organization whose members enjoy a close family relationship.

Dear Friends,

Sherwin J. Kapstein is our Non-Partisan candidate for re-election to the Providence School Committee.

We feel strongly that Mr. Kapstein is the finest candidate for this important office. He is a product of the Providence Public Schools and a graduate of Brown University. He had wartime training at Notre Dame University and Ohio State University and later served overseas.

He has been interested in, and has served well, the cause of better education for many years as President of the Providence Public Education Council, a member of Mayor Reynolds' School Survey Commission, President of the R. I. Association of School Committees, Chairman of the Joint Educational Conference and a member of the Providence School Committee. He formerly taught in the High Schools of Warwick. Mr. Kapstein, without doubt, is the best man for the job!

School Committee elections are non-partisan. YOU HAVE NOT FINISHED VOTING WHEN YOU HAVE INDICATED YOUR CHOICE AMONG THE CANDIDATES ENDORSED BY THE POLITICAL PARTIES. YOU MUST VOTE SEPARATELY FOR YOUR SCHOOL-COMMITTEEMAN. Sherwin J. Kapstein deserves to continue in that office. Vote for him on November 6th.

MRS. DEBORAH HUNT PHILBRICK
 MRS. JOYCE WETHERSALD FAIRCHILD
 Co-Chairmen

Mrs. Deborah Hunt Philbrick
Mrs. Joyce Wethersald Fairchild

SCHOOL COMMITTEE ELECTIONS ARE NON-PARTISAN. MAKE YOUR VOICE COUNT FOR SHERWIN J. KAPSTEIN BY PULLING THE LEVER TO THE RIGHT OF HIS NAME SO THAT AN X APPEARS IN THE SMALL BOX TO THE RIGHT OF HIS NAME.

Farm Candidate!

I'm Roy MacKenzie . . .

A Lincoln Woods Farms Dealer salesman who brings such great farm finds to so many farm homes every week in

CRANSTON

I am a Farm Candidate and proud of it, because most of those wonderful products that I deliver come fresh from fertile farmlands.

In any election, there always are debates on a number of issues. That's a healthy sign but there is no debating the high quality of the finds we deliver to you.

Occasionally, you even will hear discussions on the relative merits of butter versus margarine. Well, we handle both and without any reservation, we can highly recommend both to you. Try our butter or margarine and you'll see what we mean.

And, of course, we give our unqualified support to our other wonderful products, such as:

Wills Extra Large Eggs, Cream Cottage Cheese, Condensed Milk, Orange Juice, Brand-A-Air, Baster, Dip, Wells-J.

You'll find scores of new uses for our farm finds, you'll be cutting down on the cost of living, you'll be safeguarding your health, you'll be adding variety to your meals, and—incidentally—you'll be doing me a real favor, because during this month my sales earn me votes and if I get enough votes, my reward will be a trip for me and my wife to see how all the politicians and the statesmen are operating at our nation's capital.

To Begin Bible Series Monday

"The Book of Exodus" will be the theme of the first in a series of discussions sponsored by the Bureau of Jewish Education and the School Council. Rabbi Aviva Egros will open the first session on Monday at 8 P. M. in the conference room of the Bureau at the Jackson Building.

Other discussion leaders and their themes are Benjamin Efron, "The Minor Prophets", Nov. 28; Prof. Israel Kapstein, "The Book of Job", Dec. 15; Rabbi Nathan Rosen, "Book of Proverbs", Jan. 24; Rabbi Abraham Chell, "The Five Megillot", Feb. 25, and Rabbi William Brant, "Book of Psalms", March 25.

The program is open to the public.

Plan Art Classes For Youth at JCC

Art classes for young children and classes in sketching and painting for older children will be conducted at the Jewish Community Center beginning late in October. It was announced today by Arthur Eisenstein, JCC program director.

Classes will be directed by Miss Wianick Bonta, former instructor in the subject at the Rhode Island School of Design and at Camp Allegro. Classes for third, fourth, and fifth graders will be conducted on Monday afternoons, from 4 to 5 P. M., at the main Center building and will include drawing, modeling, painting, and other art media. Classes for sixth through ninth graders in sketching and oil painting will be conducted on Wednesday afternoons from 4 to 5 P. M.

Registration for a series of ten classes will be open to Center members and non-members.

Since size of all classes will be limited, parents interested in enrolling their children are urged to do so immediately at the office of the main Center building.

R.O.S.E. FAMILY CIRCLE

The first meeting of the R.O.S.E. Family Circle was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Max Egan in Chelsea, Mass. Sunday night, Oct. 24. Plans were made to have a Chanukah party for the members and their children in December.

Contribution For A No-Hitter

On the morning of Monday, October 8, a man hurried into the Congregation Chevra Misch-nayes Anshai Emeth in The Bronx, New York, not far from Yankee Stadium, and asked whom he had to see in order to make a contribution. Such things are easily arranged, and so soon the visitor was face to face with the necessary official of the synagogue.

The man was in a hurry. He had to get to the Stadium rather early for the World Series pre-game activities, and since he was a sports writer by profession, he would want to get out on the field and talk with the players well before game time, which was 1 o'clock.

That being the case, it is doubtful whether he elaborated on the purpose of his visit to the synagogue; but if he did, the official or officials before him surely would have listened in open-mouthed wonder. The name of the contributor, for one thing, would occasion surprise, whether they of the synagogue followed baseball or not; and the reason for the gift in itself was a stopper.

If the full story were told on the written receipt for the contribution, it might have read thus: "Received from Don Larsen, five dollars, in anticipation of a no-hit game he expects to pitch on this date."

The morning incident, which has been described as it may have happened, was the aftermath of a conversation the night before, between the Yankees' pitcher and his close friend, Arthur Richman, a New York Mirror sports writer.

The Series was tied at two games, and Larsen had been announced as Casey Stengel's hurler for the important fifth game. Therefore, Larsen was getting to bed early after an evening out with Richman. It was just past midnight as they returned to Don's hotel. For the pitcher, this was early.

In the cab on the way to the hotel, Larsen remarked to his friend: "Don't be surprised if I pitch a no-hitter!" And he added: "I don't go to church very often, but maybe I should have gone today."

With that, Don pulled out a five dollar bill, handed it to Richman, and instructed Arthur to present it to his synagogue.

Believe it or not, that is what happened, and how it happened. This playboy ball player, who had not lasted two innings in the second game of the World Series, and who had confided to friends that he already had spent the losers' share of the Series money, somehow got the idea that he might pitch a no-hit game the next day. And the feeling grew so strong within him that while it was too late for him to visit a church, he still felt impelled to do something about it.

The congregation in The Bronx will never receive a stranger contribution than the one presented by Arthur Richman in Larsen's name—on the day Don pitched his perfect game.

One final, and local, note on the recent World Series—a sad note, if you will, involving as it does those poor souls who not only did not get their money's worth out of the Series, but who had nothing at all to show for it.

Take fans like Irving and Evelyn Glatt, for example. Their plans were made weeks in advance. Ticket arrangements were completed, flight schedules to New York checked and re-checked and reservations made—and they had ideal seats behind first base.

Only one thing went wrong. They had to make a choice of which game they wanted to see from among the second, third and fourth contests. Their selection was the second game. On the appointed great day, the nurse arrived to take care of the baby, and Irv and Evelyn flew in to New York, and happily entered the subway for the trip to Ebbets Field.

Not until then did they learn the sad news—that the game had been called because of rain! The subway was not nearly deep enough in the ground to match the depth of their spirits. Because of the baby, they could not remain in New York, and so they missed their game.

To the Glatts, and to all similar sufferers, belated sympathy is hereby extended.

Hail the Golf Champs

Presenting . . . the winners and new champions of the Herald's sixth annual Golf Tournament. "New champions" is what me mean, too, for there are no past winners represented.

Championship Division—Saul Lerman.

First Division — Ralph Semonoff.

Second Division — Ronald Rose.

Third Division—Walter Weisman.

To put things in their proper perspective, Lerman won the championship by defeating Julie Bloom 2 and 1; Semonoff won by the same margin over Phil Shaulson; Rose took a 6 and 5 decision over Joe Dickens, and Weisman edged Harold Aven 2 and 1.

The interesting thing, to this column's way of thinking, is that all but two of these men were making their first appearance in the finals of a Herald tournament. I haven't checked my previous records as yet, but offhand I can recall only Julie Bloom as a definite finalist in the past, and I believe Ralph Semonoff has been there previously. So you see, there has been almost a complete turnover in the finals department.

All the eight men named will receive trophies, which will be presented shortly. All concerned will be notified as to the date, time and place.

The Championship Division presented an interesting situation this year. Saul Lerman, a youthful, top notch golfer in his own right, is the father of Marvin Lerman, who has risen so high in Rhode Island amateur golf circles the past few years. Marvin, as a matter of fact, went to the finals in last year's Herald tourney before losing to the veteran Murray Trinkle. This year he did not enter the competition because of the lateness of the tournament, which interfered with his schooling. He is now attending URI.

So it was the senior Lerman who took up the competitive burden, and there will be an impressive trophy on display in the Lerman home to bear witness to how well he fared. Saul has entered most, if not all, of the previous Herald tourneys, but this year marked the first time he has gone all the way to the finals—and the title.

In that Lerman - Bloom match, both men were hot over the front nine, posting scores of 38 and 39. They slipped off on the back nine to 42 and 43. Lerman held a 1-hole advantage going into the 17th. He then proceeded to par that hole and clinch the championship.

Wherever a fellow human being suffers, wherever a child is hungry, wherever a father is ill, a family homeless — there you will find the compassionate help of the women of Providence.

Through their own division of the General Jewish Committee of Providence, our women have given hundreds of thousands of dollars to help our fellow Jews everywhere.

Their contribution, however, cannot be measured in dollars alone. They not only give on their own, but they also work on their own. Their faithfulness — their unceasing efforts — their enthusiasm has become a vital part of the complete campaign.

To our Jewish women of the General Jewish Committee we say with deep and heartfelt sincerity — thank you — God bless you.

M-Day—the one-day house-to-house canvas for funds for the 1956 campaign of the General Jewish Committee—by the Warwick Women's Division will be held on Sunday.

Mrs. Louis Jainchill, M-Day chairman, said the intensive Warwick area-wide drive will start with a breakfast at the Topps Mayfair on Post Road near the State Airport at 9 A. M. During that time the workers will be briefed on the methods to be used in solicitation. The cards to be covered will then be distributed to the various volunteers.

Mrs. Jainchill said 22 women have volunteered their services for the day and are set to conduct the biggest fund-raising drive in the history of the GJC in Warwick. Mrs. Irving Zaidman is co-chairman.

The following workers were named by Mrs. Jainchill:

Mesdames Max Bezan, George Bezan, Morris Charifson, Bernard Feld, Milton Filler, Bernard Goldstein, Carl Knee, Albert Litchenberg, Israel Marks, Israel Moses, Jack Mossberg, George Posner, Kenneth L. Ross, Donald Swartz, Lewis Seltzer, Bernard Silver, William Spaniel, Samuel Stayman, Curt Sternweiler, Abraham Tobin, Bernard Wiatrak and Rubin Zeidman.

A prize will be given for attendance.

P. T. A. Program At Day School

A P. T. A. program was held at the meeting of the Ladies Association of the Providence Hebrew Day School Tuesday, October 23, 8:30 P. M. in the school. Mothers of students enrolled in the school were given the opportunity of discussing any questions or problems pertaining to their children, personally with their teachers. Rabbi Akiva Egozi, principal, greeted the parents.

In charge of the refreshment hour were Mesdames Joseph Kapp, Henry Fleisher and Maurice Gereboff, ex-officio.

Brown Announces Lecture Series

The Department of Religious Studies at Brown University announced this week a series of University lectures by Professor Gershom Scholem, visiting professor of Religious Studies. Prof. Scholem is professor of Philosophy and Jewish Mysticism at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

The lecture schedule includes "Messianic Idea in Jewish Mysticism", on Oct. 29; "The Ideal Figure of the Saint or Righteous Man", on Dec. 13; "The Mystical Meaning of the Torah", on Jan. 10, and "The Impact of Jewish Mysticism on Christianity During the Renaissance (Christian Kabbalism)", on Feb. 7.

The series will be held on those dates in Upper Manning Hall on the Brown Campus at 8:15 P. M.

The public is invited to attend.

Pioneers Welcome Israel Returnees

A regular meeting of Pioneer Women was held Monday Oct. 22 at 1:30 P. M. at the Biltmore Hotel. A welcome home was given to Mrs. Aaron Klein, Mrs. Martin Gross, Mrs. Max J. Richter and Mrs. Nathan Yarmuder who recently returned from Israel.

A report of the New England Regional Conference of Pioneer Women held in Boston, was given by Mrs. Meyer Rudnick, president. Delegates to the N. E. Regional Conference were Mrs. Beryl Segal, National Board Member; Mrs. Joseph Greenberg, membership chairman; and Mrs. Abraham Grebstein, Builders Founder chairman.

Alternate delegates were Mesdames Alter Boyman, Louis Gleckman, Charles Loppin, Albert Sokolow, Herman Wenkart and Philip Phillips.

BETH AM WOMEN

D-Day Volunteers—Part of the more than 350 volunteer workers who participated in the annual D-Day of the 1956 campaign of the General Jewish Committee last Sunday. This photograph was taken at the breakfast at the Narragansett Hotel prior to the start of the city-wide successful solicitation that boosted the campaign total to $415,000. Incomplete returns show that more than $11,000 was contributed by Greater Providence residents in the D-Day drive.

Registration—Shown here is part of the crowd of more than 100 youthful workers registering for Y-Day at the Narragansett Hotel headquarters last Sunday. The Young Adult Division of the 1956 campaign of the General Jewish Committee reported a successful one-day drive for funds marked by increased giving.

Official Portrait—Officers and board of directors of Cheshed Shel Emes Association are shown after their election. Front row, left to right—H. Weiner, S. Shindler, J. Resnick; J. Newman, president, I. Lazarus, vice-president; L. Troston-off, J. Alprin and P. Leiberman. Second row—B. Resnick, A. Paull, S. Wald, L. Korn, J. Mandell, L. Himmelfarb, R. Sugarman, C. Bresler, C. Holland and I. Priest. Back row—L. Fishbein, D. Woodman, S. Goldberg, J. Chorney, A. Boyman, N. Cohen, A. Aden, S. Pepper, S. Kaufman and M. Sugarman.

Sackin-Shocket Sweeps
 Warren Memorial Meet

Sackin-Shocket bowlers dominated the Harold Warren Memorial Men's Doubles Tournament conducted last Sunday at the Legion Bowladrome in Cranston under sponsorship of the R. I. Jewish Bowling Congress.

The top two-man total of 713 was turned in by Larry Koffler and Jerry Waksler, although they bowled in the second tier, the 200-210 class.

The leading total in the 211-220 class was rolled by Vin DeCesaris and Warren Foster with 704, while the 199 and under category was paced by Gilbert and Herbert Fain of Beth Israel with 652.

The tournament committee, headed by Sid Dressler of AEPi, limited teams to a 220 high combination of averages.

Koffler had the high individual total of the day with 379, while another Sackin-Shocket kegler, Irving Tragar, rolled the best individual single, 141.

In all, 108 bowlers participated in the tournament, which was held as a tribute to one of the outstanding Jewish bowlers in Rhode Island, who died earlier this year.

Assisting in handling tournament statistics were:

Mike Miller of Cranston, Noah Temkin of AEPi, Morty Miller of Harold Bloom, Alie Shatkin of Beth El, Si Aron of Warwick and Leo Sackin of Cranston.

Friendly Circle Has Initial Meeting

Eleven couples from Massachusetts and Rhode Island gathered recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Ritch of Providence for the first meeting of the Friendly Circle. Refreshments were served by the hostess after the meeting.

Name Shows for Children's Theatre

General ticket sales for the Jewish Community Center's 1956-57 Children's Theatre Series opened this week according to Mrs. Stanley Myerson, general chairman for the current series.

This season's series will include five professional children's entertainment programs presented by some of America's leading children's theatre troupes with admission open to all children in the community of school age.

The season's performances are "Jack and the Beanstalk", by the Suzari Marionettes, Sunday, Nov. 18; "The Snow Maiden", by the Edwin Strawbridge Players, Sunday, Dec. 16; "Ali Babi and the Forty Thieves", by the Rockefeller Players, Sunday, Feb. 16; "Puss 'n Boots", by the Salome Gaynor Players, Sunday, March 31; "The Pied Piper", by the Traveling Playhouse, Sunday, April 28.

All five of these productions will be presented at the Nathan Bishop Junior High School auditorium with two performances scheduled for each of the above dates—one at 2 and one at 4 P. M.

Admission to the programs will be by season ticket only. No individual admission tickets will be sold.

Tickets may be purchased at the JCC building, Roth's Ticket Agency, East Side Pharmacy, Gladdings at Wayland Square, and the Star Delicatessen on Douglas Avenue.

Mail orders for tickets will be accepted at the main Center building only if accompanied by full payment for the tickets ordered. Seating at both performances will be limited.

8 Isaac Stern Here
In Nov. 7 Concert

Isaac Stern, noted American violinist, will be soloist with Francis Madeira and the Rhode Island Philharmonic at the first concert of the winter series on Wednesday, Nov. 7, at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium at 8:30 P. M. Mr. Stern will be the soloist in the Brahms "D Major Violin Concerto." The artist will perform here on his own priceless 250-year-old Guarnerius.

Francis Madeira, the Philharmonic's music director, has returned to Providence to conduct the orchestra's first winter series concert after completing a four-month tour conducting several symphony orchestras in Europe. He has chosen for his program the Berlioz "Roman Carnival Overture", the Brahms Concerto with Mr. Stern and Howard Hanson's Symphony No. 2, the "Romanic" Symphony.

Tickets for this performance are available at the Rhode Island Philharmonic office, 49 Westminster Street; the Avery Piano Company and Axelrod-Music, Inc.

FOR
SCHOOL DISTRICT
"F"
NOVEMBER 6, 1956

"Our children of today will be the citizens of tomorrow. Their early training will determine the character of the men and women who will guide the destiny of our state in the years to come. Any investment in education will bring huge dividends to the taxpayers in the terms of better education for our children.

"During my term as a member of the Providence School Committee, I have advocated and supported modernization of our school buildings and the construction of new elementary schools in populated areas close to the homes of our children. I have also advocated and supported increase in salaries and improved working conditions for teachers, custodians and clerks; open meetings so that our educational policies and problems might become known to our citizens; closer relationship between the school, home and community; an accident insurance program for students and employees; an athletic program for girls; the use of school buildings by youth-serving organizations; the appointment of a music director (and I have publicly commended him for his excellent performance since coming into our school system); a greater emphasis on Math and Science courses; and many other issues beneficial to the health, welfare and education of our children."
