Israel Presses UN On Doron Seizure

UNITED NATIONS—Israel continued to press the United Nations last week in an effort to force Egypt to release the 70-ton fishing trawler, Doron, and its crew of six seized Sept. 25 by the Egyptian Coast Guard in the Mediterranean.

For the second successive day, leaders of the Israel delegation here conferred with Dag Hammarskjöld Tuesday morning.

They were understood to have told the UN official that unless Israel obtained satisfaction in regard to the seizure, it would take the issue to the Security Council.

Eban was reported to have pointed out that Israel has had no news whatever about the whereabouts or condition of either the ship or crew since the seizure.

Mr. Kidron met with Hammarskjöld Monday, and the Israel delegation apparently had hoped that the Secretary General might have had some word from Egypt about the sailors and ship.

Hammarskjöld was understood to have promised again to do everything in his power to get at least some information about where the sailors were being held and about their treatment, as well as about the ship and its costly deep sea fishing equipment.

Mr. Hammarskjöld reportedly asked Eban to delay action on the request for a Security Council meeting in hope that some positive developments might be achieved.

Ex-Nazi Cancels United States Trip

WASHINGTON — Official U. S. sources received word from Essen, Germany, that ex-Nazi industrialist Alfred Krupp has cancelled his trip to the United States to address an international industrial conference in San Francisco. Mr. Krupp's visit had been protested owing to his convictions by a U. S. war crimes court. The State Department had received a number of complaints.

To avoid possible embarrassment, the German industrialist used the excuse that he could not come because he was still in mourning for his mother who died last month. The State Department issued a visa to Herr Krupp in August for the visit. Previously, owing to his record as a leading Nazi, he had been refused admission to the U. S.

To Present "David Award" — The "David Award" of the Brotherhood of Temple Emanuel will be presented to Rabbi William Gordon Braude, Ph.D., on Friday, Nov. 1, at Temple Beth El at 8:15 P. M.

The award, made to the person who in the opinion of the committee is most deserving thereof by reason of distinguished services rendered in behalf of the congregation, will be presented to Rabbi Braude by Saul Zarchen, president of the Brotherhood, it was announced by Harold Robert, chairman of the award committee.

Campaign Total Rises To $421,000

The 1957 General Jewish Committee campaign total is $421,000.

Henry J. Hassenfeld, GJC president, said the present total compares with $342,000 pledged or contributed by the same number of persons in the 1956 fund-raising drive. The present amount represents pledges or contributions from 1,350 persons, Hassenfeld said. This is an increase of 25 percent over last year's total for the same period.

Pointing out there are still many cards unreported, Hassenfeld urged workers to complete their solicitation immediately and report the results to GJC headquarters. The GJC president reiterated the urgency of this year's fund-raising drive and emphasized the immediate need of additional funds by Israel, particularly in view of the present tense Middle-East situation.

The fourth in a series of weekly report luncheons will be held next Wednesday at the Narragansett Hotel.

Emanuel To Open Institute Series

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Greene, co-chairmen, have announced the full schedule of lectures and study courses for the Temple Emanuel Institute of Jewish Studies which will open its 30th series on Nov. 6 and continue for five Wednesday evenings in November and December.

Dr. Abram Sachar, president of Brandeis University, student of history and the humanities, and still active in the Hillel Foundation movement on campuses all over the country, will discuss the subject, "Survivals that Speak" in the first lecture on Nov. 6.

On Nov. 13, the Institute will bring to Providence, Percival Goodman, Fellow of the American Institute of Architects, and nationally known designer of many religious and community buildings. Mr. Goodman has helped in the planning of the projected, new Temple Emanuel building. His subject will be "Modern Art as Synagogue Builder."

The theme, "Can Modern Jews Live by Jewish Law" will be the basis for Dr. Trude Weiss-Rosmarin's lecture on Nov. 20. Dr. Weiss-Rosmarin is editor of "The Jewish Spectator", widely travelled and a leader in the field of adult Jewish education.

Dr. Morris N. Kertzer, author and lecturer and just recently returned from a trip as a leader of a delegation invited to visit the Soviet Union, will speak on the subject, "Report from Soviet Jewry" on Dec. 4.

The concluding lecture will be presented by Dr. Israel J. Kapstein on Dec. 11. Dr. Kapstein, professor

Asks ORT To Resume Rehabilitation Work

GENEVA — The Polish Government has asked ORT to resume its rehabilitation work in that country, it was disclosed here by one of the agency's officials who said the organization had been asked to conduct an "unhindered" vocational training program in Poland for Jews repatriated from the Soviet Union.

The Organization for Rehabilitation Through Training, ORT, has been banned in Poland since 1949. An ORT mission which recently visited Poland received government assurances that the organization would be able to establish a "no-strings-attached" trade training program for the Jewish repatriates from the Soviet Union, estimated at about 10,000.

Workers To Solicit For M-Day In Providence, Warwick, Cranston

Approximately 400 volunteer workers will participate in M-Day on Sunday morning in the final major event of the Women's Division of the 1957 General Jewish Committee campaign.

Mrs. Louis I. Kramer, M-Day chairman, said that workers have displayed an overwhelming enthusiasm and indications are that this will be one of the most successful one-day fund-raising drives in the history of the Women's Division.

Area chairmen and their workers will report for breakfast at 9 A. M. at the Narragansett Hotel. Mrs. Kramer said that free parking in the lots adjoining the hotel has been arranged and a baby sitter service has been set up for workers needing this assistance. Co-chairmen of the baby sitter service are Mrs. Harold Coris and Mrs. Leo Glecklen.

Workers will receive their final instructions and cards to be solicited at the conclusion of the breakfast. Then the workers will fan out over the Greater Providence area in their intensive house-to-house canvass.

Headquarters will be set up at the hotel and workers will report back with the results as soon as they have completed their solicitation of cards assigned to them. A tentative figure of the one-day solicitation results will be announced as soon as all the workers have reported their card coverage.

Mrs. Kramer has instructed all workers to stress the "double campaign in one" to all potential contributors. She urges all Jewish families in the Greater Providence area to give double in this year's

Censure Rabbi For Leaving Post

LOS ANGELES — A San Francisco rabbi who resigned as chaplain at San Quentin prison in protest against a social view on crime which "put men in prison, instead of hospitals" was criticized this week by another Jewish chaplain for both the resignation and the reason for it.

Rabbi Eugene Gruenberg, chaplain of the California State Department of Mental Hygiene, declared that the resignation statement of Rabbi Julius A. Leibert could leave "an altogether wrong and unfair picture" with the "Jewish and non-Jewish taxpayer."

Rabbi Leibert, in resigning, also had asserted that no rabbi should be a paid employee of the state and that he was revolted at the thought of acting as a chaplain during an execution.

Rabbi Gruenberg retorted that Rabbi Leibert had been appointed as a chaplain and not as a "reformer" or "even a criminologist" and that he must have known when he was appointed that California "has capital punishment on its law books."

Declaring that a chaplain's job "is above all to serve the spiritual needs of his congregants," Rabbi Gruenberg asked what would happen "if every doctor, nurse, psychologist and social worker would throw in the towel and leave the job because he or she did not agree with the managerial and administrative methods."

Rabbi Gruenberg said he took particular exception to Rabbi Leibert's contention that the chaplain should not be paid by the state, adding that the days of "unsalaried rabbis have long since vanished." He added: "Why is the chaplain different in this respect from any other rabbi with a salary?"

Sunday Is "M" Day — Mothers Mobilize for Mercy, Give To GJC

Lehman Calls Faubus 'Foolish'

PHILADELPHIA — Former Senator Herbert H. Lehman said Governor Faubus of Arkansas will be remembered in history "among those foolish and short-sighted men who have vainly tried like King Canute to use their puny authority to hold back the tidal forces of history."

Accepting the Solomon Bullick Public Service Award of the Hebrew University, the former New York Governor said: "Governor Faubus awoke not only the fury of the mobs, which he may have intended to do, but the united determination of the entire country, which he did not envisage."

Praises Courts

Praising the courts, which he said acted alone in contrast to the do-nothing policy of the executive branch of the government and Congress, Senator Lehman proposed a five-point program that:

1. Congress enact legislation in statutory support of the Supreme Court's ruling that segregation is unconstitutional.
2. Congress provide effective safeguards for all citizens against discrimination in education, travel, employment and public facilities.
3. Congress act to protect such organizations as the NAACP and the Urban League against harassment and persecution by state governments.
4. Senate amend its rules to outlaw the filibuster.
5. President Eisenhower, whom he praised for acting forcefully in the Little Rock situation, exercise moral leadership and rally all men of good will, in both the north and the south, in solving the integration problem.

End Segregation

Senator Lehman declared: "Unofficial but effective segregation in the North in housing and in schools must go, too. All segregation must go—liberty and equality for all our citizens must prevail."

Praising the work of Hebrew University, he noted that it has attained world stature as a fount of learning.

Lehman had high praise for the courageous leadership of the Reverend Martin Luther King during the bus strike in Montgomery, Alabama, the officials of the NAACP and the Urban League for their inspired leadership and guidance "on every embattled front in the South." He also praised the "scores of little heroes and heroines, the Negro school children, who with incredible dignity and courage successfully braved angry mobs."

"The villains of the civil rights struggle," the senator declared, were "the Bilbos, Rankins, Talmadges, Eastlands, and Thurmmonds." Most recently, "there is Faubus," he asserted.

Bias In Germany Continues Strong

HANOVER, Germany — One-third of the respondents in recent West German public opinion polls have revealed strong anti-Semitic tendencies in their reaction to test questions. Dr. Carl-Christoph Schweitzer, a high Bonn Government official, reported to a three-day meeting of German intellectuals on "Anti-Semitism and German History."

Dr. Schweitzer, whose department is responsible for strengthening democracy in West Germany and combatting remnants of the Nazi philosophy, asserted that advocates of open anti-Semitism in this country, the avowedly neo-Nazi groups and parties, have declined in strength.

The conference was held under the auspices of the Evangelical Academy at nearby Locoum for 70 persons.

Israel Asks Hague Court To Obtain Payment From Bulgaria

JERUSALEM—The Government of Israel has asked the International Court of Justice at the Hague to start proceedings against the Communist satellite regime in Bulgaria, for the Bulgarian shooting down of an El Al passenger plane in July, 1955, which cost the lives of 58 persons.

The Israel Foreign Ministry said the International Court has been asked to declare the Bulgarian Government responsible under international law for shooting down the plane, and for the loss of life and property which resulted.

Damages totalling $2,658,000 were claimed by Israel in an application which also asked the Court to determine the amount of compensation due from Bulgaria, as well as to decide that all costs and expenses of that court action are to be borne by Bulgaria.

Noting that 58 victims included nationals from Austria, Belgium, France, West Germany, Sweden, Great Britain, The Union of South Africa and the United States, the Foreign Ministry said the International Court also had been asked to notify the governments of those countries concerning the Israel court action.

The Foreign Ministry announcement said that Israel had been seeking for two years to get direct settlement through diplomatic channels, and to persuade Bulgaria to fulfill a pledge to pay for the damages. Despite submission of the issue to the International Court, the Foreign Ministry said Israel was still willing to negotiate an out-of-court settlement with Bulgaria.

The Bulgarian Government at first denied responsibility for the destruction of the El Al airliner, but later agreed to consider claims for damages.

Viceroy's Contain 20,000 Filter Traps

Modern science in real life is just as truly fascinating and wonderful as any story invented by a writer. Let's take something like Viceroy cigarettes, for example. Did you know that a single Viceroy cigarette contains no less than 20,000 filter traps? Yes, 20,000 filter traps are packed together in a single tip of a Viceroy cigarette, twice as many as in the other two largest-selling filter brands.

A Viceroy cigarette contains only the richest finest quality leaf tobacco, deep-cured golden brown and especially blended to give you smoking pleasure.

Court Rules On Support Affidavits

NEW YORK — Affidavits of support signed by sponsors of immigrants to this country are a moral, but not a legal obligation and are therefore unenforceable, according to a ruling by a New York City Municipal Court Justice on Oct. 4.

In the first decision on such a question, Justice Henry Silverman stated that there is no law requiring the filing of such affidavits, and without such a law the Government cannot require sponsors to sign a legally binding contract. He also held that if Congress had intended to require such contracts it would have specified their limitations.

An opposite ruling would have paved the way for claims by state and city agencies for collection of millions of dollars from sponsors of immigrants.

The ruling was made in dismissing a suit by the State of California against a couple who filed the customary affidavit of support guaranteeing that their nephew would not become a public charge.

The nephew was self-supporting for about 2½ years after his arrival in the U. S. Thereafter he suffered a mental breakdown and was a patient in California state hospitals from 1951-1955.

Counsel for the State of California contended that an affidavit of support was a contract with the U. S. Government for the benefit of any community in the country, and could be enforced by the courts.

The Department of State, however, had informed the Immigration Service that the "duration and degree of liability had to be determined by the courts."

Counsel for the defense, in moving for dismissal, cited a number of public statements by the State Department and immigration officials, as well as reports to Congress, that the affidavits were a moral obligation and not legally enforceable.

Joining in the defense, as friends of the court, were United Hias, American Federation of International Institutes, American Fund for Czechoslovak Refugees, Church World Service, Lutheran Refugee Service and Tolstoy Foundation.

Govt. Takes Over Israel Hospital

SAFED—The 130-bed Hadassah hospital for tuberculars here was turned over to the Israel Health Ministry at a ceremony recently. The transfer ceremony included payment of 120,000 pounds by Hadassah into a pension fund for the 60 hospital employees who are entering government service via the transfer.

Established more than 30 years ago, the hospital pioneered in anti-tuberculosis methods and ultimately helped to bring the incidence rate in Israel down to six per 100,000, the lowest rate in the world. During Israel's War of Independence, patients were evacuated under gunfire and the hospital served as an army surgical base, caring for more than 700. Later the hospital resumed its original function with an expansion to meet the needs of tubercular persons coming during the post-war immigration.

A Costly Lesson

The Faubus insurrection and the intervention of the federal government to halt mob rule in Little Rock have inevitably excited speculation about the future of desegregation in our country. One possibility hopefully suggested by some commentators is that the bitter and ugly scenes enacted at Little Rock represent the final outburst of fury that precedes a calm, or a desperate rearguard action to halt the irresistible march toward desegregation.

It is tempting to adopt this view. One finds it difficult to believe that the law-abiding, rational Southerner has not been repelled by the passions that were unleashed at Little Rock or does not perceive now that the consequences of unbridled lawlessness are infinitely more sinister and dangerous than any conceivable result of desegregation.

This indeed, was the view expressed in much of the Southern press. It was also reflected in an address by Florida's Governor Collins to the Southern Governors Conference in which he bluntly warned the South to abandon its "Confederate blanket" and "stop consuming itself in racial furor."—"or die politically and economically." He spoke for the majority of his fellow governors who are leading their states toward compliance with federal court orders to strengthen civil rights.

One should not disregard the importance of these Southern moderates. The stand taken by them, in glaring contrast to those Southerners who rant about President Eisenhower's action as imitative of Nazi and Communist tactics, should point up again the fact that it is an error to view the Southern states as a monolithic entity.

And when we speak of advances in the South, it is well to remind ourselves of the discrimination which continues in the North but which is also yielding to good sense and enlightened understanding. Evidence that such progress is taking place is contained in a survey just published by the American Jewish Congress of "1957 State Anti-Discrimination Laws," which discloses that a number of state legislatures—from Vermont to Washington—have this year enacted significant new laws to outlaw discrimination in employment, education, housing and public accommodations. Such progress constitutes a refutation of the Soviet propaganda that "racialism" is the "ugly reality" of America. The plain fact is that over the greater part of America the fight against racial and religious discrimination is being won. Nevertheless, this should not delude us into believing that we are already nearing realization of the ideals of freedom and equality that we profess.

It would also be a delusion to believe that the Little Rock episode marks a last flare-up of intense resistance to desegregation. Our experience following the Supreme Court's decision outlawing racial segregation demonstrates that the advent of each new school year for some years to come will create stresses at the points at which progress is made or attempted. We must also not lose sight of the fact that there are in all communities a small minority—a rabble—that is easily inflamed by hate-mongers and agitators.

In short, it would be folly not to anticipate trouble in the future or not seek to forestall such degrading events as occurred at Little Rock. Our government has learned a costly lesson: that it does not pay to conciliate men who are conniving at defying the law. To temporize, to compromise in the face of such contrived disobedience is to invite disaster.

Governor Faubus may have unwittingly done this country a favor if his sordid machinations have convinced our government that it should henceforth exercise its responsibility of giving vigorous leadership in the fight on segregation and act with decision and thoroughness to enforce the law of the land.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The Talmud Says

By BERYL SEGAL

One day last September the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court came to the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York for a three-day course in the Talmud. He sat in the class rooms of the Seminary and listened to the great scholars of the Rabbinical and Teachers school as they expounded the laws and the wisdom of the Talmud.

At the end of the three-day session Chief Justice Earl Warren was joined by ex-president Harry S. Truman. The news photographers caught both of them in Yarmelkes partaking of the Sabbath meal together with members of the faculty of the Seminary.

Ever since that day I was awaiting further details about this unusual visit of Chief Justice Warren to a Jewish school of higher learning. Obviously he could not have studied the entire Talmud in the three days.

Scholars devote their lifetime to the study of the Talmud and its commentaries. What, then, did the Chief Justice seek at the Seminary? What in particular did he learn from such great Talmudists as Rabbi Louis Finkelstein and Saul Lieberman? Which laws, what wise observations in the Talmud did Mr. Earl Warren dwell upon during his three day attendance?

The other day I came upon an article written by Rabbi Shurin, in the Jewish Daily Forverts, where one particular item studied by Justice Warren is discussed. It seems that among other laws the Chief Justice and his teachers at the Seminary traced the origin of the Fifth Amendment.

Ever since the famous Senate Investigation Committee's public hearings into subversion, racketeering and other shady affairs, the country became aware of the amendment dealing with Self-Incrimination. The refrain is by now familiar to all.

"I refuse to answer this question on the ground that it may incriminate me, and I invoke the Fifth Amendment." A short while ago the team of Beck and Hoffa, of the Teamster's Union refused to answer the most trivial questions, taking refuge in the Fifth Amendment a record number of times.

Many people were becoming impatient with this procedure, and many were wondering whether this amendment that offers protection to undeserving persons ought not to be revoked after all.

Now Chief Justice Earl Warren looked into the Talmudic origin of this law, and what he learned was quite revealing.

It appears that the Talmud, a code of Jewish civil and religious laws, compiled in Babylonia almost fifteen hundred years ago, has much to say about this "Self-incrimination" device.

Under our own Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution, the prosecution or investigation authorities cannot force a person to admit a criminal offense. If however the person offers the self incriminating evidence of his own free will, the testimony is acceptable, and the person may be found guilty upon signing a confession.

In the Talmud, however, voluntary testimony of a person against himself is not accepted either. A person cannot be a witness against himself or for himself. He cannot accuse himself of a crime, just as he cannot appear as a witness in favor of himself in a criminal case.

The reasons for this strict observance of the "Self-Incrimination" law are put forth in the Talmud and by commentators.

"A man is his own closest relative," says the Talmud. Just as a blood relation, such as brother or sister, father or mother, uncle or aunt cannot be accepted as witness for or against a person, so may a person not appear as a witness for or against himself.

A person may be found guilty only on the testimony of two witnesses, of proven good character, and of whose veracity there is no shadow of doubt. No circumstantial evidence may be submitted in criminal cases. No testimony of the accused or his blood relations carry any weight in criminal cases.

The rule is that "No man can declare himself a criminal."

To do so is against the laws of nature, and against the instinct of self preservation ingrained in every human being. We do not want to be destroyed by others or to destroy ourselves. No one will therefore speak unfavorably for himself.

When a person comes before the court and gives testimony against himself, or presents evidence that leads to self incrimination, this testimony and this evidence is not acceptable. It is against human nature.

That person certainly is not fit to offer evidence. He would not be admitted as a witness against anyone else, nor should he be allowed to bear witness for himself. Such a person is not of sound mind.

Why would a person bring self-incriminating evidence against himself? Why would anyone bring about his own destruction?

There are people who harbor suicidal tendencies. They are disillusioned in themselves. They cannot face the realities of life. They are mentally disturbed, and want to take their lives. Such people will accuse themselves of crimes they have never committed.

If their self-incriminating evidence were to be accepted, the courts of law would be instrumental in taking the life of or punishing severely an innocent person. The court whose function is to seek justice would become a partner in crime.

Furthermore, the objection to self-incrimination which might lead to punishment by death, stems from a religious motive as well as from the point of view of justice.

A man does not own his soul. He might call his worldly possessions his own, and he may do with them as he pleases. But he may not dispose of his soul as he pleases and when he pleases.

The soul which is given to us by God is not our private property. It was breathed into our bodies by the Creator, and will be returned at the appointed time to Him who gave it to us. If, therefore, a man wishes to testify against himself in a criminal offense that may cut off his life and destroy his soul, he must be prevented from doing so by the courts of justice. He sins not only against the laws of nature but also against God.

Thus does the Talmud motivate the law against "Self-Incrimination," which is embodied in our Fifth Amendment.

There is great wisdom in it. There is compelling logic in it.

No wonder Chief Justice Earl Warren said at the end of his visit at the Jewish Theological Seminary when he was presented with a set of the Talmud:

"I shall study the Talmud with great humility, realizing that many laws on our own statutes came to us from these wise men of long ago".

Hope Desalination

Will Aid Shortage

TEL AVIV — Desalination of sea water will soon be undertaken in Israel on a commercial basis, Levi Eshkol, Minister of Finance, said this week at a ceremony marking the 20th anniversary of the founding of the Mekoroth Water company. This, it is hoped, will provide a partial solution of the country's water needs.

Meanwhile, the Haifa Technion inaugurated a new department for research in the distillation of fresh water from the sea. It will experiment with the use of exhaust steam as a by-product of power production by steam driven turbines.

At the Mekoroth anniversary, A. Weiner, Israel's chief water planning and operations engineer, said that if political events interfere with Israel's plan to use Jordan water to irrigate the Negev, the steam plant at Tagbha will pump Lake Tiberias waters into the Negev pipeline.

The Flu Bowl

It was a perfect day for softball—in North Central Upper Lower Slobbovia, that is, it was a perfect day for softball. At Bucklin Park, where the Softball League playoffs were grinding to their conclusion, the weather was so bad that a tacit agreement to declare both finalists co-champions seemed likely, in the event that the series should be tied up at 1-all after the first game Sunday morning. Lenny Yanku's veteran players settled that issue by clinching the championship via a 12-inning 6-5 triumph, thus eliminating the need for the rubber game and any possible sharing of the title.

If the "Bowl" games on New Year's day officially close the football season, the R. I. Jewish Softball League was right in style with its own Bowl game to ring down the curtain on its 1957 activities. Only, this one would have to be called the Flu Bowl. It was penetratingly chilly and raw, with a 20-mile per hour wind blowing in toward the plate.

Sunday's overtime classic rightly deserves all the old, over-worked adjectives that normally may be used for such an occasion. It was tense, thrilling, hard-fought, brilliant, a heart-stopper, charged with emotion.

In the end, the 12-inning game that will be talked about for years to come, and which will be the standard by which all future play-off games will be judged, was decided by the superior battle experience and strategy of the veteran Yankus. The new champs made few mistakes, while the young, speedy and hard-throwing Lobels committed many errors, both in the field and on the bases. These eventually cost them the game, and a chance for the title.

There was one casualty, and that one turned out to be the captain of the champs, Lenny Yanku himself. Lenny was out ill, and so missed being in on the kill.

It should be noted that the Yankus also were the league leaders over the regular season route, so there can be no doubt that the best team won the play-offs. They are hereby congratulated.

marks the windup of the 1957 Herald Golf Tournament. This is the second day of the two-day medal play affair. Full results of the tourney will be listed in this column next week.

As this issue was going to press, the number of entrants was increasing rapidly, and a near-record turnout seemed assured, provided only that the weatherman co-operated.

Home Team Blues

Many writers have noted that this was the third successive year in which the World Series went the full distance of seven games. None of them, however, carried this thought to its odd conclusion: namely, that in each of those three years, the seventh game has wound up in a shutout, and has been won by the visiting club.

In 1955 Johnny Podres tossed his whitewash against the Yankees at Yankee Stadium to give the then Brooklyn Dodgers their first world title; one year ago it was Johnny Kucks with his 3-hit, 9-0 win against the same Brooks at Ebbets Field; and now, this very month, the Braves invaded New York for the big game in Yankee Stadium and won it behind Lew Burdette's second straight shutout.

And speaking of World Series shutouts, Whitey Ford must be wondering what kind of hex he has going against him. As a rookie in 1950, the brilliant Yankee southpaw thought sure he had a shutout against the Phillies when, with two on and two out in the ninth inning, an easy fly ball was hit to left field for what should have been the final out. But Gene Woodling lost the ball in the late afternoon sun at Yankee Stadium, and it bounced off his glove, two runs scoring. Bye, bye shutout!

Again this year, in the fifth game, Ford was the victim of a cruel fate, as Jerry Coleman's misplay of Eddie Mathews' slow bouncer with two out set up the only run of the game, thus ruining another shutout effort.

Nor can Ford forget the sixth game in 1953, when he carried a 4-2 lead into the ninth inning. Here Casey Stengel decided to play safe by installing his Super Chief, Allie Reynolds, to protect the lead and wind up the Series. Reynolds, already suffering from the back injury that forced his retirement a year later, wound it up all right, but not before he was clipped for a two-run homer that cost Ford the win.

Earlier in the Series, Whitey had been lifted after yielding three runs in the first inning. A freak wind and imperfect defense, not Ford's pitching, had resulted in all three runs.

So, if Ford is slightly bewildered over his adverse World Series luck, he has ample reason.

Private Investments In Israel

Business and Sentiment

The general scene, however, remains rather somber and subdued. The P.E.C. and Ampal are not in evidence as actively pursuing fresh sources of capital, although there are some signs that P.E.C. is beginning to stir. Only Rassco, of the major organizations, continues to carry a banner and, apparently, make new inroads in the field. The Economic Department of the Jewish Agency suspended its operations two and a half years ago. The Israel Government has, seemingly, no budget for a public relations job on a national scale to promote the idea of private investment. The Investment Center has a single official, working out of New York, as the only channel of liaison with the investment world. Not one of the major Zionist bodies is sponsoring an economic project of its own or even planning it. We have fallen in line with the general verdict that investment in Israel is nothing more than sentiment and don't seem to have the heart to fight back. We tend to forget that sentiment is a rather broad concept and that we had a sentiment of sorts some five or six years ago that gave us plenty of courage. By our acquiescence we accept the connotation that sentiment means sentimentality. It could mean something quite different—a deep, underlying faith—and by this standard there isn't an investment of record that has ever been made without it. There is no reason to take flight at the mere mention of the word sentiment.

I believe the time has come for the pendulum to start to swing the other way. There is room for action, based on correct planning and knowledge of the facts. Not every so-called investor is a prospect for investment in Israel. Israel is basically a conservative economy and cannot offer 18 per cent a year on second mortgages and liens, and special factoring deals. Friends of Israel have no wish to compete in this area. For that matter, it is worth noting that even in this country the smart money men are not typical of the investment field as a whole. The 18 percenters have not put the savings banks out of business; savings and loans and mutual funds do a thriving business with investors happy to collect 5 to 6 per cent on their money; and advertisements are considered as having appeal when a 7 per cent return is held out. Standard and Poors average dividend on all industrial stocks is still less than 4 per cent per annum.

Now it is a verifiable fact that Israel shares paid for in dollars pay dividends in dollars. You can choose one of several stocks that has not failed to pay at least a 10 per cent dividend for the past few years. If you are interested in still higher returns on Israel shares, you can get full information from the American Palestine Securities Company, which specializes in these securities. The reason orange groves go so well is connected with an interesting tax angle which permits investors to write off as an ordinary business deduction over the first four to five years above 80 per cent of the original cost of the grove. Fully matured groves in Israel are yielding their owners a net of 12 to 18 per cent a year on the average, with many showing much higher returns.

It is possible to buy commercial property in Israel for dollars with a long-term lease back guaranteeing a net return of about 8½ per cent (7 per cent payable in dollars, the balance in Israel currency) with all the assurance of a Government Bond itself. This arrangement has the advantage of a possible long-term capital gain on resale of the property at some later time, in addition to a fixed yearly return.

Practically all Israel firms are critically undercapitalized and a direct offer of participation will reveal some rather interesting possibilities. The Investment Center is the proper address of this kind of query. Rassco offers a diversified investment portfolio with a fixed return of 8½ per cent and chances for capital gains.

If the investor is content to have some capital transferred to Israel and to be employed exclusively there without emphasis on dollar returns, he will find quite a number of situations that would make even our "smart money" boys sit up and take notice. The credit squeeze in the U.S. as compared with the credit squeeze in Israel is like comparing a common cold to a case of double pneumonia. Prime credit risks are reconciled to paying from 10 to 12 per cent for short-term loans available (in limits) from banks. Higher rates are also quite common. The investor can take it from there.

If private investors would come forward with substantial sums to be applied as long-term mortgage facilities in aid of the accelerated housing program, there isn't the slightest doubt in my mind that they would receive adequate guarantees for amortization of capital and interest in dollars, at a rate not less than 6 per cent per annum with first mortgages registered on all properties.

The really pertinent question that we collectively face is not one of devising newer and better projects for investment. It is rather more fundamental? Have the basic conceptions been revised in the light of experience to exclude private investment as a foremost plank of policy and to relegate it to a secondary role? or are the basic platforms as conceived in the first years of statehood still valid and binding? The cynic will duck the issue on the ground that the question is loaded. The faithful will have to re-affirm their faith. Unhappily that divides us once again as between those who have faith and those who do not. And this is after all, nothing new in the archives of the Zionist struggle. Yankus Win Title In Softball Thriller

On the slender margin of a wind-blown triple and a bobbled grounder, Lenny Yanku's Blues outlasted Abe Lobel's Blacks in a thrill-packed, 12 inning playoff classic Sunday at Bucklin Park, and thereby annexed the championship of the R. I. Jewish Softball League.

The score was 6-5, and gave the Yankus a sweep of the best two-out-of-three game series. This club also had won the regular season title.

Played on a cold and windy day that was not even conducive to good football, the game was marked by a gallant come-from-behind rally by the Lobels that turned a 5-0 deficit as late as the sixth inning into an apparent win over the regulation seven inning distance. Failure of the "winning run" to touch home plate sent the battle into its five innings of overtime, and, ultimately, the Yankus' triumph.

Going into the last half of the sixth, Jerry Lobel, on the mound for the winners, had a 5-0 shutout. His mates had tallied twice in the second, registered another pair in the fifth on Jerry Gordon's line shot home run, and added the fifth tally in the sixth. But the Lobels caught up with Jerry in the sixth, scoring four times, and they started out in the seventh as if to wrap up the game in a hurry.

A single, double and intentional walk, all with none out, set the stage for the tying run, which scored on a fly ball. Since all the runners advanced on the drive, another intentional walk loaded the bases for the second time. Then came a fly to left, and a bullet-like but high throw to the plate that gave the runner on third ample time to register the winning run. But Jerry Lobel, backing up his catcher, leaped for the throw, and tagged out the runner who had run past the plate without touching it. That double play sent the game into overtime.

Over the next four innings, both pitchers were superb. With one out in the twelfth, Harry Kramer dropped a fly into short center that the wind helped carry away from the center fielder for a triple. Herb Weintraub then lashed a grounder which the second baseman, in a desperate attempt to make the play at the plate, tried to pick up and throw too fast. The ball was bobbled, and Kramer scored what proved to be the winning run without a throw being made. At best, however, it was questionable whether even a perfect pickup and throw could have gotten the runner.

Both starting pitchers went the route in the two hour and 15 minute game.
