Israel Remains Calm Despite Mid-East Tension

JERUSALEM — Premier David Ben Gurion opened the winter session of the Israel Parliament last week with a long review of the Middle East situation and of Israel's foreign policy in which he carefully avoided any strictures on pro-Soviet Syria and was relatively mild in his references to the Soviet Union. Observers described this avoidance of extremes as a crystallization of Israel's posture in foreign affairs.

Ben Gurion's speech made seven major points: first, there is no change in Israel's foreign policy; second, Israel's intentions are peaceful; third, military victories are insufficient to achieve a solution in the Middle East; fourth, Israel's primary task is the internal social and economic consolidation of the country; fifth, the importance of developing closer relations between Israel and the countries of Asia and Africa; sixth, the time is not far off when Israel will use the atom for agricultural and industrial purposes; and seventh, arms in Arab lands, whether from the communists or from the West, are actually aimed at Israel.

Ben Gurion congratulated "Russian science and the people" on the successful dispatch into space of an earth satellite but noted that "our joy over this scientific and technological milestone has, however, been overshadowed to no little extent by the resultant increase in world tension which is associated with the artificial satellite either as a cause or consequence."

He said Israel could not help but be concerned by the increase in tension in the world and in the Middle East whether or not it was connected with the satellite.

He expressed regret that there had been no improvement in Soviet-Israel relations "despite all our efforts to improve our relations with this mighty power which contains some three million Jews and is one of the decisive factors in world policy."

Ben Gurion expressed belief that the day would come when the Arab states recognized the existence of Israel. He noted increased understanding and support of Israel's aims by many countries and expressed regret that Premier Nehru's government in India which, he said, stood for the strengthening of peace with all nations continued to discriminate against Israel.

Campaign Total Reaches $463,962

Augmented by contributions from D-Day and M-Day, the 1957 General Jewish Committee campaign total has reached $463,962.

This total compares with $375,546 in 1956 from the number of contributors in the 1956 GJC fund-raising drive for 52 Israel, overseas, national and local beneficiary agencies. Joseph K. Levy, general campaign chairman, announced. The present total, which is an increase of 24 percent, represents pledges or contributions from 4,015 persons in the Greater Providence area.

Mr. Levy said he is pleased with the results of the 1957 campaign thus far but pointed out that there still are many cards unreported and urged all workers to solicit their cards immediately and report the results to the GJC headquarters.

He pointed out that recent word from Israel indicates that the young nation faces an economic crisis because of the increased diversion of funds to defensive military needs.

The fifth in a series of weekly report luncheons will be held next Wednesday.

Israeli Ministers Injured by Bomb

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister David Ben Gurion and four of his ministers were injured when a bomb was thrown from the gallery during a meeting of Parliament Tuesday night.

Social Welfare Minister Moshe Shapiro was wounded seriously with head, stomach and chest injuries. The Prime Minister, Foreign Minister Golda Meir, Health Minister Israel Barzilai and Communications Minister Moshe Carmel were injured less seriously.

Moshe Ben Jacob Douek, a 25-year-old Jew, who threw the bomb, was seized in the gallery. Authorities said Douek was unbalanced mentally and had tried to burn an Israeli hospital a year ago. He was quoted as saying he had a grudge against the Youth Aliyah.

Mrs. Meir had been speaking when the bomb was thrown from the gallery and landed near the speaker's dais. There was a flash of fire and a cloud of smoke. Although visitors in the gallery rushed for the doors fearing another explosion, they were not allowed to leave until the police arrived. The Knesset was adjourned for two hours.

Douek was seized by Moshe Greenfeld, a maintenance employee, who was making a tour of inspection.

UNEF Members Visit 6 Detainees

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld last week informed the Israel delegation at the UN that the Egyptian authorities have permitted members of the United Nations Emergency Force to visit the six fishermen detained by Egypt since Sept. 25 when coast guard units seized the fishing trawler, Doron.

Hammarskjöld told Mordecai Kidron, deputy chairman of the Israel delegation, that the UNEF members who visited the arrested crew members found them in good health and well treated. Israel is seeking the release of the ship and of the crew which is composed of five Israelis and one Italian.

Y-Day Drive—Completing plans for the Y-Day drive Sunday of the Young Adult Division of the General Jewish Committee are Jeanette Silberman, co-chairman of North End District; Ruth Green, Y-Day secretary; Dorothy Zura, co-chairman of South Side District; Thomas W. Pearlman, Y-Day chairman; Dan Adler, co-chairman of Greater Providence, and Irving Weinreich, co-chairman of North End District. Also active in Y-Day, but not present when photograph was taken, are Mel Levin, co-chairman of Greater Providence; Norbert Fessel, co-chairman of East Side District; Herman Torman, co-chairman of South Side District, and Marilyn Grossman, administrative assistant.

To Conduct 'Y'-Day Drive Sunday

Sunday is Y-Day, the one-day intensive house-to-house canvass by the youth of the Greater Providence area for the 1957 General Jewish Committee campaign.

Thomas W. Pearlman, chairman of Y-Day, said that some 300 volunteer workers are prepared to conduct one of the most successful one-day campaigns in the history of the Young Adult division of the GJC.

The young workers will gather at the Narragansett Hotel for breakfast and final instructions. Following the breakfast each worker will be given a definite number of cards to solicit. As soon as each worker completes his or her card coverage the results will be reported to Y-Day headquarters to be set up at the hotel.

Mr. Pearlman is being assisted by Mrs. Joan Temkin and Lawrence Y. Goldberg, co-chairmen of Y-Day organizations, and Mel Levin and Dan Adler, co-chairmen of Greater Providence.

As an added incentive several prizes will be awarded to the workers who do an outstanding job, Mr. Pearlman announced. The prizes will consist of suitably inscribed trophies and banners.

One award will be given for the club which has the greatest number of workers in the one-day drive and another will be presented to the organization which has the highest percentage of its members as participants.

On Sunday evening, a Y-Day Victory Dance will be held by the Young Adult group at the Jewish Community Center on Sessions

Israeli Team Finds Evidence Of Jews In Ancient Egypt

HAIFA—An Israel archaeological team—which spent weeks studying the terrain around Jebel Musa in the Sinai Peninsula before leaving the area as the United Nations Emergency Force moved in—found evidence of Jewish, Roman and Byzantine life in ancient Egypt over the centuries, one of Israel's top scholars reported this week.

Addressing the opening of the 13th annual congress of the Israel Archaeological Society, Prof. Benjamin Mazar, president of the Hebrew University and head of the scientific mission which sent to the Sinai, said that the Israeli team had to leave the area before it could establish scientific support for the Biblical story of Moses and the Israelites wanderings in the desert. However, Prof. Mazar said, the scenery around Jebel Musa (Mount of Moses) corresponds to the Biblical description of the area where God gave Moses the Ten Commandments.

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, who addressed the opening session, hailed the achievements of Israeli archaeology which, he said, had proved in the last few years that Israel was no stranger to the Middle East. "Every stone and find indicate that our forefathers lived, prayed and fought here in ancient times too." He pointed out that the Jewish people are "legitimately returning to this country. No other people have showed such faithfulness in the course of numberless succeeding generations as the Jews towards Israel", the Jewish Agency president asserted.

Sunday Is "Y" Day — Young People All Out For GJC

We Need Not Loan Our Children

By SAMUEL ROTHBERG

Recent Jewish history abounds in "lost generations." Faced with the immediate need to adjust to the new environment, to strike fresh roots, the bewildered immigrants had little time, less money, and still less know-how for planning intelligently the perpetuation of Jewish values and Jewish loyalties among the growing generation.

For a while the vision of the Jewish Renaissance served as a powerful factor in assuring Jewish continuity—particularly in a period when traditional religious practices were weakened. Many of the young were infected by the Zionist climate, if not always imbued with the deeper significance of the Zionist movement. But far too many were lost by the wayside.

Today's generation of adults has come by its Jewish loyalties in a variety of ways. Religious affiliation accounts for a large percentage of cases. But a good many acquired them through the double-pronged accident of their people's agony and rebirth. The Nazi holocaust swept back into the fold many who had not even been aware they had strayed. Others were shocked into Jewish consciousness by the miracle of the restoration of the Jewish State. The awakening was real enough, reaching deep, and creating a good deal of emotional heat, although perhaps not always accompanied by intellectual light or knowledge.

But this is not the kind of event, or process, that can be counted on to repeat itself in every generation. Already the smoke from the Nazi crematoria has been dissipated. After nine years the novelty of the establishment of Israel has largely lost its magic. Our children have never known the day when there was no Jewish State, just as they cannot conceive of a world when there was no television. To them, Hitler and, lehavdil, Herzl and Werzmann are shadowy figures, on a par with Torquemada, Maimonides and Israel Baal-Shem-Tov—assuming they heard of those names. So is the reality of Jewish life in Europe, so recent in point of time and family association, now as remote and as unreal as Babylonia or Spain.

The better Jewish schools are making brave attempts to transmit the heritage and implant emotional attachment to the Jewish people and its values. These efforts are worthily aided by the educational camps sponsored by religious and communal agencies, but these affect but small numbers. Our educators tell us that, in the case of the vast majority of our children, they bear pitifully little

Israel Trains Blind For Unusual Jobs

JERUSALEM—There are many occupations which the blind can fill as well as other persons, and employers will be convinced of this if they show an unprejudiced attitude, ministry of social welfare officials said.

There are between 4000 and 4500 blind persons in the country. Of the Jewish blind, 95 per cent were born abroad, with 65 per cent of these coming from Iraq, Libya and Yemen.

Of the Jewish blind, 65 per cent are fully or partially supported by the state or by public institutions—43 per cent fully. Only 18 per cent are fully employed.

Train Blind

The ministry is attempting to train the blind for occupations other than the traditional ones of brush making, wicker work and weaving. It has been particularly successful in training them as telephone operators and citrus packers, reports the Jerusalem Post.

Other occupations for which the ministry plans to train blind persons are typists (using dictaphone machines), stenographers (using shorthand machines), poultry and dairy farmers, social workers, masseurs and in light industry.

Different Problems

"The vast majority of Jewish blind, in addition to having to cope with the difficulties presented by their handicap, must, as newcomers to this country, find their feet in a new society with a different set of values, a different language, different conception of time and speed, different work habits and tools, and an utterly different social and cultural setting from those in their countries of origin," the survey states.

Plans call for printing a Hebrew Prayer Book and parts of the Bible in Hebrew Braille.

Dr. Abram Sachar To Open Series

Temple Emanuel Institute of Jewish Studies will present Dr. Abram Sachar, president of Brandeis University, as the opening lecturer of its 30th anniversary series on Wednesday at 9 P.M. Dr. Sachar, lecturer, author, and history scholar, will discuss the subject, "Survivals That Speak".

Dr. Sachar is one of the pioneers of the Hillel Foundation now established on more than 200 campuses and for many years was its director and chairman. He is a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and he holds honorary degrees from seven universities.

Preceding the lecture, the Institute study courses will meet at 7:45 P.M., and a tea and reception will follow the lecture.

Ephraim Frankel To Lead Session

Ephraim Frankel of Fall River will lead the second session in the Teacher Education series on Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the Bureau of Jewish Education study room.

"The Teaching of Reading" will be the subject of Frankel's presentation which is open to all teachers in the Greater Providence Jewish schools. The series is sponsored by the school Council and the Bureau of Jewish Education.

Calls For Guarantee Of Frontiers

LONDON — Hugh Gaitskell, chairman of the Labor Party, last week proposed a guarantee of the frontiers of Israel and her Arab neighbors by the great powers, including the Soviet Union and the United States.

The Arab states, Gaitskell declared, must be assured that "Israel will not be allowed to expand at their expense," while Israel is "entitled to a guarantee of protection against attacks by her Arab neighbors," reported Drew Middleton in the New York Times.

Gaitskell's idea of a frontier guarantee is the first concrete suggestion for settling the Israeli-Arab dispute by a British leader for 18 months, according to Middleton.

Proposal by Eden

Early last year Anthony Eden, then Prime Minister, suggested revision of the boundaries between Israel and the Arab states, a suggestion which was greatly criticized in Israel where it was interpreted as a move to force Israel to withdraw to the frontiers originally defined by the United Nations.

In suggesting that Russia be invited to help guarantee the borders, Middleton noted that the Labor Party has frequently asked that the Soviet Union be consulted if peace is to be achieved in the Middle East.

Gaitskell emphasized that the Arab-Israeli conflict is the greatest danger to peace in the Middle East, but said there was an "overwhelming case" for the sending of UN observers to the Turkish-Syrian frontier to investigate Russian allegations that Turkey is building up for an invasion of Syria.

He thought that UN officials ought to report whether the Russian charges are facts and whether there is real danger of hostilities breaking out.

Seen as Setback

The Labor Party's critical attitude toward Government policy in the Middle East has been stiffened by the belief that Premier Macmillan's visit to Washington this week is a political setback, says Middleton.

Labor Party spokesmen said last year that they were more faithful to the UN in the Suez dispute, and this made them more acceptable to the Administration in Washington than the independent and nationalist Conservatives. Since then, Macmillan has had one conference with President Eisenhower at Bermuda last March, and now is having another one.

Middleton wrote that Laborite policy-makers feel that a Labor government headed by Gaitskell, with Aneurin Bevan as Foreign Secretary, would aim at a "more venturesome attitude," including more frequent negotiation with Russia on international issues and would alter the British attitude to existing military alliances.

Finds Evidence

Dr. Yigal Yadin, Israel's most famous archaeologist and the first Chief of Staff of her Army, reported on the excavations on the Galilean mountain peak which was the site of the ancient city of Hazor which in its day sat astride the main trade route between Mesopotamia and Egypt. The exploration is now in its third consecutive year, the largest single project of its kind ever undertaken in this country. Two hundred laborers and 45 specialists are hard at work bringing to light the remnants of life in Biblical times.

APPEALS TO UN

NEW YORK — Rabbi Judah Nadich of Park Avenue Synagogue appealed to the United Nations to call together "a world communion of great religious leaders" to find a solution to "the moral issues" in the launching of the Soviet Union's earth satellite.

Tel Aviv Press Looks At Sputnik

TEL AVIV — Moscow's man-made satellite stole both the headlines and the comment in the Tel Aviv press but there were wide differences of approach.

"Nothing to boast about," is Haboker's (General Zionist) dictum. The paper goes on to explain that the Soviets beat the Americans to it because they sacrificed adequate housing, nutrition, sanitation and the welfare of agriculture and industry. America on the other hand, has been looking not only to the welfare of its population but to that of the backward peoples as well. In dictatorships the primary aim is to show the outside world their strength and prowess. But the past 30 years have shown that not every display of force ends in ultimate triumph.

Ha'aretz (non-party) finds that this achievement puts all petty human disputes in the shade: political and social differences and bickering are rendered puny by the great technical development that has made it possible to launch this man-made satellite. The gap between the progress of science and that of international relations has now widened still further.

Lamerhav (Ahdut Ha'avoda) expresses the hope that this extraordinary achievement will now lead to peace and introduce a new historical paradise in which human society will destroy war forever.

Aguda Hamodia writes that we should glow with pride over the progress science has made in contracting space and developing latent powers for the good of mankind. But experience teaches that scientific progress tends to be exploited mainly towards terrorizing populations. This is why this new step forward fills us with fear.

Weisman-Sholovitz

Miss Edith Sholovitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Sholovitz of 152 Sumter Street, became the bride of Samuel Weisman, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Weisman of 33 Temple Street, at a candlelight ceremony at the Crown Hotel on Oct. 27. Rabbi Abraham Chill officiated at the ceremony. The soloist was Mrs. Lester Friedman.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a princess gown of Chantilly lace and skinner satin with a square neckline and long sleeves of lace. The gown had a fitted torso and a full skirt with lace over satin ending in a chapel train. The bride wore a cap of lace floral motif with small pearls and a fingertip veil. She carried a prayerbook with stephanotis and an orchid.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Martin J. Posner, sister of the bride, who wore an emerald green velvet ballerina gown with a V-neckline, an Empire bodice with a satin trim ending in a bow back and a full skirt. She carried a cascade of fall flowers of bronze and gold color.

Miss Ann Sholovitz and Miss Molly Greenbaum were bridesmaids. Junior bridesmaids were Miss Nancy Weisman and Miss Betty-Anne Weisman. Miss Sandra Lee Sholovitz and Miss Elaine Weisman were flower girls. Elaine Weisman were flower girls.

The bridesmaids were dressed in emerald green velvet ballerina gowns with a V-neckline, an empire bodice with a satin trim ending in a bow back and a full skirt. They carried arm bouquets of bronze and gold flowers. The junior bridesmaids wore American beauty red velvet and white nylon dresses with matching headdresses. They carried colonial bouquets of matching flowers. The flower girls were dressed in pink nylon lace with pink headbands and carried baskets with white flowers and pink rose petals.

Daniel Weisman was best man.

Engaged—Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Comras of 131 Evergreen Street announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara A. Comras, to Herbert M. Rice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Rice of 4 Harian Road.

Miss Comras is a graduate of Hope High School and Boston University. Mr. Rice was graduated from Beverly Hills High School and Los Angeles City College.

Ushers were Louis Weisman, Herman Sholovitz, Charles Weisman, George Sholovitz, Benjamin Weisman, Joseph Posner, Irving Glasberg and Max Sholovitz.

The mother of the bride wore a beige dress of imported lace and taffeta with a portrait neckline, three-quarter sleeve, a fitted bodice and flared skirt. The mother of the groom wore a mink brown dress of imported lace with a square neckline, fitted bodice, cap sleeve and full skirt. Both wore orchid corsages.

Court Refuses Kasper Review

WASHINGTON — John Kasper, anti-Negro and anti-Jewish agitator, must go to jail as a result of the U. S. Supreme Court's refusal last week to review his criminal contempt conviction. He will serve a one-year penitentiary sentence.

The sentence was imposed on Kasper for interfering with the integration of students at the Clinton, Tenn., High School in 1956. Last June a U. S. Court of Appeals upheld the sentence. He then demanded that the Supreme Court review the case and remained free on a $10,000 bond. He used his freedom on bond, terminated by this week's court action, to carry on incitement against Negroes and Jews.

Recently, Kasper led a group of pickets in front of the White House to denounce President Eisenhower for using troops at Little Rock, Ark. Kasper then told White House newsmen that he considered Jews "worse than Negroes." He alleged that the Negro problem was originally created by "Northern Jews" who brought Negro slaves to the South and sold them to plantation owners.

The Government urged the Supreme Court to send Kasper to jail. In a brief filed by Solicitor General J. Lee Rankin, the Government maintained that Kasper's behavior went beyond "the limits of free speech" protections. The Government said the Constitutional safeguards did not include a right to exhort mobs in the manner performed by Kasper.

Engaged—Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Gladstone of 212 Oakland Avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Marlene Gladstone, to Linwood Volpe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Volpe of Providence. ## Post Office Offers To Show Film

The Post Office is finally going modern, Postmaster Raymond A. Creagan of Providence says.

The film "Men, Mail and Machines" is a pictorial presentation of the new electronic and super automatic devices now being installed in some of the major post offices of the nation. Postmaster Creagan invites all civic, church, school or social clubs in this area to contact him if they are desirous of showing the film at their meetings.

He added that even if automation is not installed in the Providence Post Office the program will greatly accelerate out of town mail in this area because mail will move far more swiftly through the large gateway post offices of the country.

Fred Spigel Store Makes Newsletter

Fred Spigel's Kosher Food Center was the subject of a story in a recent issue of the "Certified Lighting Inter-ChangeR," a news bulletin devoted to commercial lighting.

The story described how Mr. Spigel decided on the modern lighting system in his store, and of the beneficial effect this system has had, and how it has made the Kosher Food Center "always like daylight."

Polish Jews Disillusioned In 'Superiority of Communism'

WASHINGTON — An American rabbi back from a tour of Poland says that increasing anti-Semitism there has resulted in widespread disillusionment among Polish Jews who had hoped their culture and institutional life could exist under communism.

Rabbi Israel Mowshowitz, of New York, in the current issue of "The National Jewish Monthly," reports that Jewish Communists who dominate Poland's organized Jewish community have undergone a drastic ideological change in the last year. The primary reason for this is the rising tide of anti-Semitism which the Gomulka government appears unable to stem.

This was Dr. Mowshowitz' second visit to Poland in the past year. He is spiritual leader of the Hillcrest Jewish Center in Flushing, N. Y. One Jewish Communist leader told Dr. Mowshowitz: "We had a beautiful dream, but that dream seems to be dying."

As anti-Semitism increases, the rabbi says, the Communist-run "Kulturgesellschaft" (the organized Jewish community), has allowed greater Jewish content in Yiddish schools. Even the Yiddish language newspaper, though still carrying the Communist line, has become outspoken in criticism of the government.

"The conviction is growing among many members of the Kulturgesellschaft that Communism has failed in the all-important field of minority group relations," Rabbi Mowshowitz writes.

An example of the change in attitude is the Jewish Communists' reversal in official policy which had previously opposed mass emigrations to Israel.

"They held firm to the opinion that Jews must build a future for themselves on Polish soil," says Dr. Mowshowitz. The opposition to emigration has now weakened considerably, if it has not disappeared altogether.

In the past Yiddish schools did not teach Jewish history as a separate subject on the theory that Jewish history should be incorporated in any general history course. Now, the rabbi notes, Jewish history is being taught in special courses. Another important innovation has been introduction of Hebrew study.

Rabbi Mowshowitz, in summing up the plight of Polish Jewry, declares that emigration, primarily to Israel, is the only "solution in sight."

The increased freedom of expression Poles have won under the Gomulka government has brought to the surface latent anti-Semitism which is now being felt, he says.

Another irritating factor, Dr. Mowshowitz writes, is the influx of some 10,000 Polish Jews — 30,000 more are to return in the next two years—who have been repatriated from the Soviet Union. Of these, 5,000 have already moved on to Israel. But the Polish government, presumably under pressure from Moscow, has closed emigration doors for these repatriates.

"Homes are at a premium in war-shattered Poland," Dr. Mowshowitz finds, "and the general population does not look kindly upon resettlement of Jewish repatriates in their midst."

The right to emigrate is still allowed other Polish Jews, however. In the face of increasing anti-Semitism, the Gomulka regime "has reconciled itself to the fact that there is no other way out."

For those Jews who are leaving, the move is "primarily for the sake of the children," say Dr. Mowshowitz. This also applies to many would-be assimilationists.

In his article in the B'nai B'rith-sponsored periodical, Dr. Mowshowitz tells of a leading Jewish Communist who sent his young son to a summer camp along with another Jewish neighbor's boy. When they returned home the neighbor's boy complained that frequently he had been beaten up.

His own son made no such complaint. When the father asked why the neighbor's boy replied:

"He did not tell them he was Jewish. He attended church regularly."

Shortly thereafter, at a meeting of Jewish Communists, the father announced he was taking his family to Israel.

Morocco Bars Exit Of Nation's Jews

JERUSALEM — The Moroccan Government is maintaining restrictions on the free movement of people from that country which prevents the Jewish Agency from extending assistance to "ten of thousands of Moroccan immigrants who wish to bring their families from Morocco to Israel" the Jewish Agency said this week.

It denied published reports that Morocco had eased its restrictions on Jewish emigration and pointed out that while the Moroccan Government had repeatedly promised to facilitate freedom of movement in accordance with the principles of the Declaration of Human Rights, the experience of the past year had shown that it was not yet doing so.

There is absolutely no indication that the Moroccan Government has relaxed the passport restrictions which were imposed in May, 1956 at a time when 70,000 applications of Moroccan Jews for immigration to Israel were pending," the spokesman said. "Jews of Moroccan origin settled in Israel, who for more than a year have been endeavoring to bring their relatives from Morocco, report no relaxation of any kind. On the contrary, the present situation is that applicants for individual Morocco passports are embroiled in red tape and passport applications have not been processed. In fact, there have been recent cases of passport holders who were sent back from the borders when trying to leave the country."

The spokesman said the Agency had no confirmation of a report that 2,000 Jews were waiting at Marseilles for permission to return to Morocco. He said the Agency had a camp at Marseilles for North African Jews awaiting transit to Israel and reported some 150 persons presently there.

American Jews Do Not Support Religious Bodies, Says Polinsky

CINCINNATI — American Jews were criticized for their "general failure" to give greater financial support to their national religious institutions.

A. B. Polinsky, chairman of the campaign for American Reform Judaism, told 600 Reform rabbinic and lay leaders that this failure to give their religious bodies the same generosity they extend to other Jewish causes was "endangering the continuity of their faith."

Judaism Foundation

Polinsky, a vice chairman of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, told leaders of the Reform movement that of the more than $130 million that had been contributed in recent years by American Jews, for Jewish health, welfare, refugee and overseas programs, "considerably less than $5 million is being made available for institutions that have as their goal the preservation, strengthening and advancement of Judaism." Polinsky emphasized that Judaism was the "foundation for all these Jewish relief organizations."

Polinsky asserted that the national Jewish institutions that serve the three branches of Judaism—Orthodox, Conservative and Reform—"represent our most important communal possessions."

'False Comfort'

He decried what he termed the

"false comfort" arising out of the growth of the Reform movement, which today numbers more than 1,000,000 congregants, saying, "we can take no comfort in growth if at the same time we are being starved financially."

American Reform Judaism in the next 10 years can emerge as the dominant religious force among the Jews of the western hemisphere, Dr. Maurice N. Eisen-drath, president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, said.

Trend To Reform

He told the assembly that "in recent years tens of thousands of American Jews have made their home in the Reform branch of Judaism because it has afforded them a religious way of life wholly in keeping with the spirit of the western world. If Reform Judaism can retain its liberal religious dynamism, uniting the best out of the Jewish tradition with the deepest insights of our best contemporary rabbinic thinkers, there is every reason to believe that Reform Judaism will continue as the most powerful religious movement in the American Jewish community."

A concerted nation-wide drive by the Social Action Wing of American Reform Judaism aimed at the eradication of juvenile delinquency, race hatred, sub-standard housing, and other existing social evils was launched by the Reform leaders.

Israel May Order Seven Giant Tankers

TEL AVIV — The Israel Government was reported to have reached the decision to order construction of seven 50,000-ton supertankers for the Israel merchant fleet. This fleet of tankers would make Israel independent of the big oil firms and carriers in the transportation of oil for the country's requirements.

It was understood that orders for four of the huge vessels would be placed immediately, with three more to be placed on order at a later date. Cost of the vessels was estimated at ten million dollars each. The construction orders would be given to those shipyards in various countries which could make the quickest delivery. It was recalled that the Japanese shipbuilding industry was interested in building tankers for Israel and had been prepared to extend the required dollar credits.

Israel has for some months been moving crude oil into the country, for refining in the Haifa refineries, in chartered American tankers.

JCC Young Adults To Sponsor Program

The 49th program in the current series of "Hi-Fi Music Listening Programs", sponsored by the Young Adult Association of the Jewish Community Center, will be conducted at the East Side Center building this Wednesday evening beginning at 8:15.

The program will include selections from Chopin, Prokofiev, Dvorak, Tchaikovsky and Barber, featuring the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and the Philadelphia Orchestra with Artur Schnabel and Nathan Milstein as soloists.

Children

fruit. Our children do not respond to the remote stimuli of Jewish history. The signals simply do not get through.

Besides, a good many children remain unreached by even the most meager educational programs. The competitive cultural climate of our society places the Jewish community at a distinct disadvantage.

Evidently, what is lacking is something by way of a powerful motivation, a spark that could set the soul of the Jewish child on fire. The question is, where to find it. How utterly strange that this question need be posed at the very time when, not six thousand miles away—some twenty flying hours—a new burning bush has burst into bright flame! In its spectrum burn bright all the major elements of Jewish experience; all the ingredients required for a rich Jewish life. It is real, immediate, and exciting. This is no textbook vignette to be glimpsed through the binoculars of a remote history, but a reality you can smell and touch, and see and hear.

Bringing our children into direct contact with this life-giving reality is a major imperative for our age. To be most effective, the impact must be made when the mind still is impressionable, when lifelong loyalties are still in the making. No long-winded moralizing would then be necessary. The land itself preaches the most eloquent sermon. In the setting of the Ingathering of the Exiles, the meaning of Jewish peoplehood becomes miraculously clear. So does the significance of the Hebrew language, of Jewish tradition, of Jewish learning.

In recent years, children's tours, particularly on a high school level, have been gaining in popularity. A traveler in Europe often runs into groups of young people gallivanting all over the Continent, inspecting English castles, traipsing through Italian museums, marveling at Greek ruins. Rarely, if ever, do these tours, conducted as they are under non-Jewish or commercial auspices, get as far as Israel.

There should be no insurmountable difficulty in recruiting these same young people for a trip to Israel. The cost, certainly, need not be a deterrent. And then there are the thousands upon thousands of youngsters who spend their summers, years after year, in commercial camps, at a cost that comes pretty near to covering the price of a trip to Israel.

Without minimizing the difficulties, the promotional ones at this end, or the technical ones in Israel, such an enterprise is, in my opinion, entirely feasible, provided of course it is conceived in broad, imaginative terms, and boldly and energetically executed. By involving hundreds, and possibly thousands of youngsters annually, it could help transform the spiritual climate among the teenagers of the American Jewish community, and so, indirectly, the adult climate as well.

Often we hear the question asked, sometimes openly, more often tentatively: This giving to Israel, of ourselves and of our substance, is all very well. It is necessary to give. But what deeper meaning, beyond the philanthropic, may we derive from our fundraising activities in behalf of Israel? Isn't there something Israel can give us in return?

The answer, I believe, is simple: Yes. Our children.

Jerusalem Paper Says Reds Stir Up Trouble Among Arabs

JERUSALEM—Israel Communists are stirring up strife among the Arabs of Israel, charges the Jerusalem Post.

We have passed from the age of armed invasion to that of political subversion, an age in which it has become increasingly difficult positively to identify international aggression.

Win Over Arabs

Deliberate attempts are being made by the Israel Communists, who are in effect Jewish-led (though the two Arab Knesset members are encouraged to take a prominent part in affairs), to win over the Arab minority in Israel.

They offer this group what is the nearest thing to a nationalist Arab anti-Israel point of view, and which follows the generally anti-Israel and Pan-Arab policy recently supported in the Middle East by the Soviet bloc.

Spread Disaffection

In order to gain recruits, they are without any doubt deliberately spreading disaffection among Israel's Arab citizens.

They did their utmost to inflame feeling in the Arab districts over the tragedy of Kafr Kassim, which has been duly brought before the courts, and more recently they have been spreading malicious and utterly nonsensical reports that the shell which was accidentally exploded by children from the Arab village of Sandale, and claimed 15 young victims, was placed in a field as the result of Israel's military government policies.

Improve Conditions

Much has been done to improve the position of the minorities, and more will be done in the future. One of the forms of protection to which they have a claim is that political agitators engaged on furthering their own ends shall invade such Arab cities as Nazareth and there fill school children's heads with bloodcurdling lies and incite them to strike and mischief. In the long run, it is this form of subversion that will cost lives, Arab and Jewish alike.

Columnist Reports UNEF Going Broke

WASHINGTON—The United Nations emergency force in the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Akaba area is in serious financial difficulties, according to syndicated columnist Robert S. Allen, writing from Washington last week. Allen says the force is $21,000,000 in the red and that this represents the money owed the countries whose military contingents comprise the peace force. The debt is for the maintenance, transportation and other costs of troops.

Last December, the UN General Assembly voted, 57-8, to provide funds for the police force by a special assessment of all UN members. Their share was to be on the ratio of their payments to the UN.

So far, says Allen, only the U. S., Great Britain, New Zealand, Greece, Pakistan and the Dominican Republic have put up any money. Russia and her satellites have refused to pay. Russia has gone further in asking the UN to repudiate the vote, and make Britain, France and Israel pay all costs, Allen writes. Some smaller nations say they can't afford it.

Temple Beth Am Holds Meeting

More than 100 members and friends attended the meeting of Temple Beth Am Warwick Jewish Community Association on Oct. 21. Mrs. Charlotte Weiner, Jewish humorist, entertained.

It was announced by Marvin Geller, ways and means chairman, that the dance planned for November at the Roger Williams Casino had been postponed until February 1 at Rhodes State Room due to fire.

Bowling for children will take place on the first and third Sundays of each month and roller-skating will be held on the second Sunday of each month according to Nathan Spungin, youth activities chairman.

Jack Mossberg, president, announced that welcoming night will be held in December to accept the Charter of the United Synagogues of America and to greet new members.

TO CANCEL VISIT
TEL AVIV—An "operation visit" by five British Naval Units to Haifa scheduled for Thursday was cancelled and only one ship will make the projected "courtesy call," the British Embassy announced.

The announcement said the original order had been cancelled to "avoid any misunderstanding to which the presence of a large number of ships might have given rise because of prevailing tension."

8 Dr. Sheps Speaks
At Annual Meeting

A plea was made at the 28th Annual Meeting of the Jewish Family and Children's Service, held on Oct. 21 at Temple Beth-El, for young Jewish people to enter into the field of Jewish communal service.

The guest speaker, Dr. Cecil G. Sheps, executive director of Beth Israel Hospital, stated that the personnel needs in the field of health and social welfare will be unfilled for at least ten years according to present vacancies that exist.

Dr. Nathan Bolotow was installed as President of the Jewish Family and Children's Service for his third term.

Mrs. Saul Feinberg was chairman of the reception committee assisted by Mesdames Martin Riesman, Nathan Bolotow, Walter Nelson, Irving Brodsky and Bertram L. Bernhardt.

Club Plans For
Dance In November

The first meeting of the South Side Mr. and Mrs. Club took place at the South Side Jewish Community Center on Oct. 27.

Plans were made for a dance which will take place on Sunday evening, Nov. 17. The members of the committee planning this affair are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gleckman, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Rothenstein and Mr. and Mrs. Murray Sabaloff.

Elect M. Stanzler
To Executive Board

Milton Stanzler, president of the Jewish Community Centers of Providence, was elected a member of the executive board of the New England Section, Jewish Welfare Board, at the 47th annual convention held in Pittsfield, Mass., on Oct. 19 and 20.

The New England section of JWB is the regional body of the national JWB, the parent organization for all Jewish Community Centers and YM-YWHAs throughout the country.

Other delegates who attended the two-day conference were Mrs. Milton Stanzler, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Fox and Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Carp.

PHI DELTA SORORITY

The Phi Delta Sorority held its semi-annual Pledge Tea on Oct. 27 at the home of Miss Marilyn Gorman. Guests were present from Providence, Cranston, and Pawtucket. A gift was presented to Mrs. Sam Gorman in token of the sorority's appreciation for her generosity.

UN, Reality and Potential

Unthinking partisanship can be as damaging to the United Nations as prejudiced criticism. Many things said during the observance of UN Week reflect both extremes and do a disservice to an organization whose failings do not alter the fact that in its potential resides civilized mankind's devout hopes.

For this reason, we hope that last week's criticism of the UN by Senator William F. Knowland receives detailed study at the highest governmental levels of all the UN member nations. Speaking before the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York, Knowland pointed to a number of major defects in the world organization which should be corrected if the UN is not to take the path of the League of Nations.

Among the failings listed by Knowland were: 1. The Soviet Union's abuse of the veto power in the Security Council. The USSR's 81 vetoes, Knowland contends, repeatedly invalidated obligations to the UN Charter.

2. The "double standard" of international morality. Here Knowland emphasized the most recent example of this duality of approach: the course taken against Britain, France and Israel to halt the action in Egypt, and, in contrast, the virtual paralysis of the UN during the Soviet Union's butchery in Hungary.

3. An increase in bloc voting. Again referring to the Afro-Asian bloc, Knowland cited examples of preconceived notions, rather than objective study of the facts, determining the vote and preventing action in the General Assembly.

4. The unwillingness of many UN members equitably to share financial obligations to UN agencies and services, while insisting on a full and equal voice in policy decisions.

Much can be done, in Knowland's view, to improve the UN Charter and remove from the dictatorships and bloc-voters their ability to render the UN impotent. One course he suggested would circumvent the veto power by invoking a proviso in the Charter declaring that a "party to dispute shall abstain from voting." This, he believes, might inspire a Soviet walkout from the UN, but, "if they do, so be it. The United Nations will have a better chance of survival without the Soviet Union than with it if the actions of the USSR during the Korean and Hungarian conflicts are examples of what we must contemplate for the future."

Knowland's cataloging of UN weaknesses is accompanied by praise for the UN's unquestioned accomplishments in many areas. His conclusion is one which certainly all of us will endorse: Human freedom is a greater force than the totalitarian tyranny that is in itself a mockery of the noble words of the UN Charter. And all civilized nations should make a "mighty effort to make UN deeds coincide with the Charter's words."

In The Herald Ten Years Ago This Week

In observance of the 30th anniversary of the Balfour Declaration, Dr. Earl Hollier Tomlin was the guest preacher at the Sabbath Eve service at Temple Emanuel.

The General Jewish Committee's drive was at $775,000.

On the eve of his installation as president of the Providence Zionist District for a second term, Frank Licht pledged himself to work towards the goal of greatly increased membership in the organization and appealed to local Jewry to demonstrate its sympathy with current Jewish problems by actively participating in the Zionist movement.

Simeon Kinsley, executive director of the Jewish Community Center, had been elected president of the R. I. Chapter of the American Association of Group Work.

Twenty Years Ago This Week

The twenty-fifth birthday celebration, reception and tea to remaining charter members of the Jewish Home for the Aged was held. The seven charter members were Mrs. Isaac Woolf, Mrs. Ephraim Rosen, Mrs. William Rabinowitz, Mrs. S. Silverstein, Mrs. Ignatz Weiss, Mrs. Rose Wollen and Mrs. S. Pollack.

Thousands of dollars, it was disclosed at Massachusetts State House hearings, were being collected in Boston every year from hidden donors, and the money was being spent in a propaganda campaign of hatred against the Jewish people.

Mrs. Israel Luber was co-chairman of the candy booth for the Carnival of the Ahavath Sholom Synagogue of Pawtucket.

Samuel Magid, re-elected president of the Jewish Home for the Aged, urged the erection of a new wing for bed-ridden patients.

Fellowship in the American College of Surgeons was conferred on Dr. Eske Windsberg on Oct. 25, 1937.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Of Polar Bear Rugs

and Mink Trimmed Toilet Seats

By BERYL SEGAL

In his best-selling novel Ten North Frederick Street, John O'Hara makes this observation: "There are the luxuries that the rich can afford, and there are the simplicities that the rich can afford if they are the kind of rich who are sure of themselves. The unsure rich buy the luxuries that the sure-of-themselves can do without."

To illustrate this, O'Hara tells of Joe Chapin, millionaire lawyer, most prominent citizen of town, and steeped in aristocratic ancestry, who drove around in a Dodge, when the rage of the times was the Pierce Arrow. He felt comfortable driving the Dodge and that's what he did. He did not have to prove to himself and to others that he could afford a more expensive car. The Joe Chapins need no external means of displaying their wealth to establish their station in society.

This insight into the behavior of the sure-of-themselves and the not-so-sure rich explains many things around us. I have used this O'Hara formula again and again ever since I came upon it during my summer reading.

There was the Jewish teacher who told me that she sensed a change in manner towards her as soon as she gave her address to some parents and to members of her school committee. The smile vanished. The gushing over her ceased. A cold stare measured her up and down. The cold shoulder came soon afterward.

Only after months of wondering did she learn the reason for this change in attitude towards her. The address. It was in the older part of the East Side. A not-sure-of-himself rich would not dream in the worst of nightmares of ever living in that part of the city. Nor would he or she be calling on, or invite to her house residents of that district.

And yet, the teacher would observe sadly, a good number of Brown University faculty members live there. Two of them are next door neighbors. Brown University, the sure-of-itself rich, does not scrutinize the addresses of its faculty. It scrutinizes, to be sure, more essential things about them, their professional competence, their intellectual attainments, their moral levels.

But the cost of their clothes, and the make of their cars, or the location of their apartment, these are not held either for or against them in the circle of the faculty.

One summer evening I was walking with a friend along one of our oldest streets. We passed by a house that speaks to us of a by-gone era, and of a way of life that flourished around the turn of the century. Spacious lawn. Well kept garden. Stately oaks. A curved driveway leading to what used to be the stables. Servants quarters. And the house itself stood majestically in its white simplicity, at the other side of the high stone wall.

My friend who knows that part of the city well named the family that inhabits the house. It was a name linked to banks, railroads, public utilities, and politics. Also a name often found among sponsors of charity drives, welfare funds, and as patrons of the arts in our city.

But a stone's throw from that mansion we came upon a block of dwellings that have clearly seen better days. They are on the way down. A not-too-sure-of-itself rich family would have deserted the street long ago lest someone doubt their ability to keep up with the other not-so-sure-of-themselves rich.

I knew a good physician, highly regarded by his colleagues, but doing very poorly with his patients. One by one they left him and made their appointments with the fashionable doctors in the modern building up on the Hill. But the physician stubbornly held on to his office where he started his practice, and would not follow the fad.

He once told me that two kinds of patients still call on his services. The very poor and the very rich. The very poor come to his office because he has not raised his fees and does not prescribe expensive cures. The very rich send for him because they know of his competence as a physician, and are not disturbed by the address of his office. It was the new and not-too-sure rich among his patients that were in mortal fear of coming to his office in the old neighborhood.

To the friends who repeatedly urged him to give up the old place, to come up to the Hill, and to open a swank office with all the latest gadgets, he replied:

"Will that make me a better doctor? Those who seek my medical advice will find me here, and those who seek social standing are not for me."

In that mad rush for social standing, for proving the ability to spend, for external signs and symbols of wealth, the victims are driven to the most ridiculous lengths.

Bigger houses, longer cars, louder clothes, swankier resorts, longer cruises. Not the more suitable, the more satisfying, the more pleasurable, the more becoming, but the more expensive, the most expensive that counts.

I am told that the latest dictate of high fashion is a rug made of polar bear skins. Wall to wall, of course. And the most important reason for the desirability of such rugs is that they are very expensive, since Polar Bears are not so easily obtainable. I have not come across such rugs as yet, but just as sure as day follows night, these rugs will make their appearance very soon in many homes.

That will happen as soon as the word spreads around that the "rich" cover their floors with Polar Bear skins wall to wall. All who are rich and who are determined to prove it to themselves and to others will not rest until they pull out the old rugs and replace them with the latest fad. The Polar Bears are shivering in their skins at the prospect.

I was told to hang my head in shame the other day when I admitted that I was not aware of the latest rave in bath robes. No, I have not seen the mink trimmed bath robes either on display or worn by a lady who can afford the luxury of such a garment. But I am assured that they are around.

What is more, the fashion experts advise you to trim the toilet seat with mink to match the bath robe. A swank New York store manages to display both without offending; the mink trimmed robe and the matching toilet seat in the salon and a gentleman in evening clothes explains the display in dead earnest to invited "selected" clients.

John O'Hara would have something very clever to say about this ridiculous spectacle.

And Sputnik the First whirls round and round our earth.

(Mr. Segal's opinions are his own. His views are not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

Butcher Challenges Legality Of Ban

JERUSALEM — The Supreme Court of Israel has been asked to rule on the legality and constitutionality of an ordinance by the Municipal Council banning the sale of pig meat in the city of Tel Aviv and its environs.

The petitioner is a Christian Arab butcher of Jaffa who maintains that the effect of the ordinance was to deprive him of business since he supplied such meats to the Christian residents of the city. His lawyer's brief also contended that the ban was also unconstitutional since it deprived Christian residents of the right to eat whatever meats they pleased.

The replying brief filed by the city, contended that the ordinance did not prohibit consumption of pig meat by Christians, but that all it did was to ban its sale or to raise hogs within the city's limits.

Presenting . . .
The Golf Winners

Plagued by threatening and downright bad weather, the Jewish Herald's 1957 golf tournament nevertheless went off as scheduled last Thursday and Friday, and so another tourney is in the books.

This marked the first time that the tournament has been a medal play affair — and the first time, also, that rain interfered. Opening day was a miserable one, even for the hardy golfers; and the almost steady rainfall limited the field to 18 contestants. Friday morning brought with it a threatening appearance that decided several tourney entrants against a trip to Ledgemont. So, when it cleared later in the day, it was too late to attract the large anticipated field.

Result — The contestants numbered in the 40's, instead of the 60-odd who had previously indicated their intentions of competing.

The number of winners, however, remained the same as originally announced — and here they are:

First Division — Low Gross, Dick Loebenberg, 77; Runner-up, Jerry Deitch, 84; Low Net, Maurice Kessler, 73; Runner-up, Murray Trinkle, 74.

Second Division — Low Gross, Sam Winslow, 84; Runner-up, Milt Weissman, 86; Low Net, Walt Weissman, 71; Runner-up, Harry Chase, 72.

Third Division — Low Gross, Hank Darman, 91; Runner-up, Semon L. Blanck, 98; Low Net, Leonard Levin, 66; Runner-up, Harold Levin, 67.

Longest Drive (entire tournament) on the 12th Hole — Milt Wintman, 260 yards.

Drive Nearest to the Pin (entire tournament) on the 14th Hole — Lou Chase, 30 Feet.

Wintman, in addition to getting off a magnificent "longest" drive, was closest to the pin until Lou Chase came along in the group that was the last to play. Lou won by one foot. Behind Wintman in the longest drive competition was Dick Loebenberg, just one yard back.

Trophies, by the way, are now being engraved with the winners' names, and will be ready for presentation next week. The winners will be notified promptly when the presentation of awards will take place, some time within the next two weeks.

One of the trophies will be the Seagram's VO cup, presented annually in this competition by Larry Paley of Eddy & Fisher, Inc. Another is the Alfred Venetsky Memorial Trophy, established for this tournament last year as an annual award by the Fall Class of 1949 of Redwood Lodge No. 32, A. F. & A.M. Si Fain is chairman of the Venetsky Memorial Award Committee.

The Herald Golf Tournament committee found this tourney a profitable one, experience wise, and plans already have begun to jell for next year's competition. More about that at a later date.

For now, our sincere thanks to the members of the committee—Lou Chase, Dick Loebenberg, Leon Mann and Justin Robinson —and to all the contestants who braved the elements to play.

MacDougald Booked
Gil MacDougald, the American League's all-star shortstop for 1957, will be the star attraction at the annual Father and Sons Sports Nite of the Jewish Community Center, scheduled to be held on Sunday, November 17. Gil was signed on Monday of this week to be guest speaker at the Sports Nite program, which, despite the name, is an afternoon affair.

Center officials, in making the announcement, added that the program will include other "name" speakers. The sports nite show is the annual sports awards affair for boys who participate in the JCC year-round sports program.

The ace infielder of the American League Champion New York Yankees holds the unusual distinction of having been the regular second baseman, shortstop, and

Family And Children's Service Gives Counsel, Guidance

By CELIA ZUCKERBERG

The Jewish Family and Children's Service is "interested in strengthening family life, no matter what the problem is," emphasizes Nathan Sklar, executive director of the agency. The Agency is concerned with the problems of children from broken homes and with their parents.

Besides Mr. Sklar there are three professional social workers on the staff — Burton Fliegel, Maurice Gordon and Mrs. Ruth Michaelis — all of whom have Master's degrees in social service work. They give professional guidance and counseling to prevent family breakdown.

The Jewish Welfare Agency, forerunner of the present agency, was formed 28 years ago when the Ladies Hebrew Union Aid, Montefiore and the South Providence Ladies Union Aid merged. It was a time of depression then, and the agency gave direct financial aid to those in need.

As the state and federal government took over much of this direct aid through its social legislation, the agency became a rehabilitation agency and gave professional aid to prevent family breakdowns.

In 1942 when there was no longer need for an orphanage, the Jewish Welfare Agency took over the work of placing children in foster homes and the adoption of any children in need of such aid. Thus, the Jewish Family and Children's Service Agency came into being.

The Agency is made up of the professional staff, the Board of 48 and the officers and 300 members of the community.

Dr. Joel Ordacz is the psychiatric consultant with whom the staff discusses any psychiatric problems which may have arisen. But the agency does not do psychiatric work. If anyone is in need of such help, he is sent to the proper person or place for it. Nor do members of the staff give advice to people who come to them. The agency is simply a counseling service which tries to "help people gain an insight into their own behavior."

A case which is typical of the sort of work the agency does is the case of Mr. A. He had been referred to the agency by a doctor of internal medicine who had done as much as he could medically for the man — but his psychosomatic symptoms showed he needed a different kind of help.

The social worker in the agency

Cong. Shaare Zedek To Hold Luncheon

The Sisterhood of Congregation Shaare Zedek will hold a luncheon on Monday at 12:30 P. M. in the vestry. Mrs. Morris Gales, Mrs. Jacob Pepper and Mrs. Nathan Schwartz are co-chairmen of the affair.

Miss Evelyn Greenstein, program chairman, will be mistress of ceremonies and will give the invocation. She will give a book review on "Love and Knishes." Mrs. Adelle Snyder will give some vocal selections.

Mrs. Josif Kapp is reservations chairman. Hostesses for the affair are Mesdames Lee Millman, William Glassman, Louis Berman, Harry A. Kalver, S. Krakausky, Josif Kapp, P. Kaufman, S. Rappaport, Max Brier, ex-officio, and Miss Greenstein.

accepted his complaints, but helped him to talk about day-by-day adjustments at work and at home. After weekly sessions, which lasted more than a year, it was found that one trouble was that Mr. A. kept his feelings within himself. His feeling of tension and inferiority caused him to leave work undone at his job.

He also procrastinated when it came to doing chores at home, and inevitably when he did his wife would nag. When Mrs. A. was brought in and told the facts about her husband she was able to learn to encourage her husband and to let him blow off steam about his work at home (he had been afraid of being ridiculed previously), and he was able to adjust himself to his work.

The agency, says Mr. Sklar, sticks with the people who come to them for counsel and guidance a long time. Referrals come to them from Rabbis, schools, doctors, Juvenile Court, pediatricians and people will call themselves to ask for help.

They work with the aged and lonely too: as in the case of Mr. B., who was referred by his landlady who was non-Jewish. The man had had a stroke and was paralyzed. He was on public assistance and had no visitors at all. Members of the Jewish Agency visited him, played cribbage and cards with him, brought him special Jewish foods on the holidays. Finally he was helped by the Agency to move to a nursery home where better care could be taken of him.

These cases are not actual cases which the agency has handled but composites of the many with which they have had to cope, and typical of the work which they do.

They have referrals from schools, as in the case of C. She was a thirteen year old girl who had been doing very well in school and who had a high IQ. Suddenly her marks became so bad that she was failing in all her subjects, she started coming to school late; she started having psychosomatic symptoms such as headaches. And so the school referred her to the Agency.

The agency spoke to her parents and found that there was a severe marital problem involved. The main cause of the trouble seemed to be the inability of the father to hold a job. In the past, he had been referred to psychiatrists, but he had refused it and had thought it silly.

The agency saw the mother and father individually. After several

Temple Beth David To Hold Open House

The school committee of Temple Beth David has announced that the week of Nov. 3 through Nov. 9 will be Open House Week for their religious school.

On Sunday morning from 9:30 to 12:30, open house will be held at the pre-Hebrew class under the direction of Miss Carol Salkof; and at the Hebrew classes under Hirsch Jacobson and Miss Elia Ende. Monday through Thursday Miss Ende will be present from 3:45 to 6:30 P. M.

Shabbat Service will be held for the pupils at the Chapel on Saturday from 10 to 11 A. M. under the direction of Mr. Jacobson. Kiddush will follow from 11 to 12.

sessions, they discovered that the father feared that he was going insane. He finally decided to accept psychiatric treatment. The agency helped the mother to understand and accept her husband's trouble — she had thought he was malingering. They gave support to the girl and she accepted the guidance and direction of the case workers who convinced her that her parents loved her. After six months of psychiatric treatment, the father got a job, and now a year later is still holding it. The girl has improved with the improvement in her home life.

They also place children who are seriously disturbed in hospitals where they can receive adequate care such as Belfair, Ohio, and Hawthorne, N. Y. They are in need of special funds for this type of aid since it is very expensive.

The Agency receives all its money from the United Fund. They receive a special allocation from the General Jewish Committee for refugees. This service for refugees started when the agency merged with the former Rhode Island refugee service. In this, they work with the Providence District, National Council of Jewish Women who help greet the refugees, place them in homes, transport them and help them make social contacts. The Agency gives them short term financial help and help in rehabilitation and counseling. There have been about 50 families in the past two years, and they have made an excellent adjustment. 99.4% of the refugees that they have helped are now gainfully employed.

Hungary Demands Release Of Actor

JERUSALEM—Israel was under diplomatic attack last week, from another Communist source as the Government of Hungary threatened to pare Israel's diplomatic staff in Budapest over the refusal of Israeli authorities to halt criminal proceedings against a Hungarian actor charged with molesting a 12-year old girl in Tel Aviv.

The Israel Foreign Ministry revealed that the Hungarian Government has ordered it to recall three members of the Israel legation in Budapest. On October 14, Israel's Minister in Budapest was summoned to the Hungarian Foreign Ministry and told that unless the actor, Zoltan Greguss, were released by Sunday half of Israel's legation staff would be ousted.

The Israel Foreign Ministry subsequently summoned the Hungarian Minister in Tel Aviv and informed him that Israel had been shocked by the Hungarian reprisal threats and resented Hungary's turning the matter into a political issue. Israel, however, has not backed down on bringing Mr. Greguss to trial.

Meanwhile copies of the Hungarian Communist Party newspaper "Nepszabadsag" reaching here carry an interview with Mrs. Greguss, who did not join her husband on his current tour of Israel, charging that the actor had been arrested because he refused to perform an anti-Communist role in Israel.

In 1954 they instituted the practice of charging fees, and it is the only private agency to do so. The agency, says Mr. Sklar, is not for just the poor. It is for anyone with parent-child or marital difficulties.

According to Mr. Sklar, they would actually rather do preventive work, but people don't come soon enough and so it is more difficult to get at the problem.

Temple Sisterhood To Present Script

Temple Emanu-El Sisterhood will dedicate its Nov. 4 meeting to members of its organization who have been doing Braille writing and transcription for the Jewish blind. The meeting will take place at 1 P. M. in the Temple vestry with Mrs. Edmond Goldstein presiding.

"A Gift of Light", a script originally written and produced for the Eternal Light program by Norman Rosten and published by the National Women's League of the United Synagogue of America, will be presented by a cast of Sisterhood members to explain the purpose and nature of Braille work. The cast will include Mesdames David Allen, Sidney August Harvey Berman, Barney Cramer, Sheldon Gerber, Nathaniel Gouse, Leonard Hazen, Harold Kelman, Yvette Ross and Lloyd Weiner.

Immediately following the dramatic presentation, sisterhood members who have been studying and working with Braille since last spring will be honored with certificate awards being tendered them by the National Braille Press, Boston, Massachusetts. This group includes Mesdames Samuel Finegold, Sarah Ritter, Rose Morris, William Pressman, Florence K. Miller and Yvette Ross. Mrs. Ross is organizer and chairman of the Braille Committee and is also chairman of the afternoon's meeting. Mrs. Sherman Price will be in charge of hospitality.

Council Study Group To Meet Wednesday

Albert J. McAloon, executive director of the Commission to Encourage Morality, will be the next speaker at the study group of the Council of Jewish Women on Wednesday at 10:00 A.M. at the home of Mrs. Richard Loebenberg, 196 Taber Avenue.

The first two speakers before the group both questioned the adverse effect of negative media of communication alone on juveniles, and felt that means other than censorship must be used to encourage morality.

Mr. McAloon, on the other hand, feels that his group is justified in using every available means in order to remove obscene material from the newstands out of the reach of children under eighteen.

A & P To Hold Bond Drawings

The second major weekly prize drawings in A & P Food Stores' current $39,500 bond giveaway program will take place at the A & P Super Market, 39 Putnam Ave., Centredale, Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

This Saturday at 5 P.M., each of the 38 participating stores in Rhode Island, will have drawings for $25 U. S. savings bond winners. In addition, 485 more potential winners of the grand $5,000 bond prizes will be drawn.

LOYAL FAMILY CIRCLE

The Loyal Family Circle of Rhode Island Inc. held a meeting on Oct. 27 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Gorman. Doris Levine Kelman, a guest from New York, was welcomed by the organization. The raffle was won by Mrs. Charles Solotoff.

Mrs. Albert Schuster

Home For Aged To Give Fashion Show

A Fashion and Fur Show will be the feature of the Annual Linen and Equipment Event of the Jewish Home for the Aged which will be held on Nov. 6 at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel at 1:30 P. M. Mrs. Reuben Karten is commentator and producer of the show and Mrs. I. Lewis Snyder is the soloist.

Mrs. Albert Schuster is chairman of the event, assisted by Mrs. Irving Beranbaum, co-chairman; Miss Pearl Smith, treasurer, and Mrs. Herman Rosen, special gifts.

Models are Mesdames H. Lewis Gorfine, Robert Klein, Bernard Margolin, Burton Litchman, Myron Elias, A. Lewis Rosenstein, Paul D. Bardach and the Misses Evelyn Jacobs, Joyce Samdperil and Marion Chase.

Hadassah Chapter To Hear Dr. Johnson

Dr. Melvyn Johnson, president of the Rhode Island Society for Neurology and Psychiatry, will be the speaker at the November meeting of the new Cranston Chapter of Hadassah on Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Victor Gold, 55 Alhambra Circle, Edgewood.

Dr. Johns will give a book review on Myer Levin's book "Compulsion." Hostesses in charge of refreshments are Mrs. Irving Rubin and Mrs. David Buckler.

Center Sisterhood To Meet Wednesday

Mrs. Noah Solomon, parliamentarian of the National Women's League of the United Synagogues of America, will address the Womens' Division, Sisterhood of the Cranston Jewish Center, at their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday at 8:30 P. M. at the Center, it has been announced by Mrs. Jerome Herman, president.

A program of Latin American Music by Jean and Val will follow the business meeting.

Providence Chapter Installs Officers

At a luncheon held on Oct. 25, new members were initiated and the charter board of Providence #48, United Order of True Sisters, Inc. was installed. Mrs. Nathan Samors was chairman of the luncheon which was sponsored by the Grand Lodge of New York City.

A cancer service which provides radio-isotope treatments for the indigent patient and a loan closet for terminal patients has been established as the philanthropic work of this order. The Miriam Hospital will receive a grant to provide these services.

Mrs. Burton I. Samors is president of the Providence Chapter for 1957-58. Other members of the board include Mesdames Maurice Kay, vice-president; J. Sidney Shepard, recording secretary; Morris Botvin, financial secretary; Harvey Menco, treasurer; Alan Flink, mentor; Stanley Blacher, warden; Alvin Stallman, guardian; Joseph M. Sagoff of Boston, mistress; Leonard Y. Goldman of Providence, Edward Dangel and Julian Marzynski, both of Boston, trustees.

Meetings will be held on the third Friday of each month at 1 P.M. at Temple Emanuel.

cy in -950 from Essex County, N. J. He was born in Meriden, Conn. where his mother still lives. He received his B.A. from Gettysburg College in Gettysburg, Pa. and his Master's degree in psychiatric social work from the Boston University of Social Work. He spent three years in the army as the Chief Psychiatric Social worker in the Neuro-psychiatric unit in the Army Air Force Convalescent Hospital. He was the chief psychiatric social worker in the Veterans Mental Hygiene Clinic in Newark, N. J.

In 1951, after he came to Providence, with the permission of the board, he organized the Parents Council for Retarded Children in Rhode Island. He served as professional advisor, until at his suggestion, they hired a full-time executive director.

The Agency serves about 350 families in one year. All information is kept confidential. The Board acts only on policy, not on individual cases.

Mr. Sklar's wife, Ruth Elizabeth, is a native of New Jersey, who graduated from the New Jersey State Teachers College and is now teaching in the Warwick School system.

They have three children, Barbara, 12; William, 9½ and Susan, 5. Asked the question which undoubtedly annoys more social workers, pediatricians and psychiatrists yearly than any other—do you have problems with your children and what do you do about them—Mr. Sklar answered that they have the same problems as other parents and "just try to give them the best we can."

Mrs. Julius Irving and Mrs. Samuel Rapaport, Jr.

To Complete Membership Drive

The culmination of the Life Membership Drive of the Providence Chapter, National Women's Committee of Brandeis University, will take place on Friday, Nov. 8, at 1:30 P. M. at a dessert luncheon at the Wayland Manor. Mrs. Samuel Rapaport, Jr. is chairman of the committee and Mrs. Julius Irving is co-chairman.

Members of the committee include Mesdames Archie Albert, Max Alperin, Herbert Bennett, Harry Blacher, Benjamin Brier, Herbert Cohen, Myron Flies, Archie Fain, Irving I. Fain, Irving J. Fain, Samuel Gereboff, Thomas Goldberg, Max Grant, Arthur Levy, A. Budner Lewis, Jacob Licht, Lawrence Paley, Joseph Pulver, Samuel Rosen, Benjamin

Rossmann, Alex Rumpler, Sigmund Saltzman, Judah Semenoff, Edwin Soforenko, Nathan Samors, Samuel Chase, Morris Pritzker, Henry Hassenfeld, Merrill Hassenfeld, Alvin Sopkin, Joseph Ress, Leo Marks, and Burton Finberg.

Mrs. Edward Schaffer, national life membership chairman, of Springfield, Mass., will be the guest of the afternoon.

Syd Cohen

for it took a really hot 273 final string to break the record and bring the Cohen-Green duo the win. Until midway in that last string, the winners actually trailed the combo of Ralph Winn and Sam Friedman.

The latter pair had a six pin lead at the end of the first string, and a 27 pin edge at the end of the second. But they withered in the face of the final blast of the ultimate winners. Green's totals were 123, 101 and 148, for 372; Cohen had 126, 119 and 125 for 370.

Red Sox Change?

Don't be surprised if the Red Sox give Manager Mike Higgins the gate before next Spring. Strong rumors circulating out of New York during the recent World Series had it that the Sox brass was not happy with Higgins' job this past season.

Probably the main reason for this dissatisfaction, if it does indeed exist, is that Joe Gordon is available if Higgins goes. Gordon did a superb job as manager of the Red Sox San Francisco farm team this year. He won the pennant with the club, and was credited personally for the fine performances of several Boston farmhands, including Ken Aspromonte, Leo Kiely, Bill Renna (who may make the Fenway Flock in 1958), and others.

Gordon's strategy, and his judgments of his players, were infallible. All this was not lost on Joe Cronin and his scouts. So, if there is a change next year, that is the background.

Beth El Sisterhood To Honor Rabbi

The second meeting of the season of the Sisterhood of Temple Beth El will be held on Monday in the Meeting Hall. A luncheonette will be served at 12:30 P.M. and the meeting will start at 1:30, it was announced by Mrs. Edmund Waldman, president.

Rabbi William G. Braude, who is about to depart on a Sabbatical leave for Israel, will be honored. Mrs. Charles Potter will show pictures of Israel, and new members of the Sisterhood will be welcomed. The membership committee is headed by Mrs. Hyman Cokin, chairman, and Mrs. Albert Lisker, co-chairman.

Hospitality chairman of the day is Mrs. Sidney Rabinowitz and hostess of the day is Mrs. Daniel Donig. Mrs. Jules Goldsmith is program chairman.

Emanuel To Hold Thanksgiving Dance

Temple Emanuel is planning a Candlelight Ball for its annual Thanksgiving dance which will be held at the Sheraton Biltmore Hotel on Saturday evening, Nov. 16, from 8:30 to 1 o'clock.

A midnight supper will be served and Irving Ives and his orchestra will play. Mrs. Hyman Cotton and Mrs. Leon Temkin are in charge of reservations.

Barney Ross Hosts Open House Featuring "Automatic" Refreshments

Fresh hot meals that include "Everything from Soup to Nuts" are now available out of vending machines. This was demonstrated to the complete satisfaction (and general amazement) of everyone concerned, at the three day open house sponsored last week by Automatic Vending Machines, Inc., and its subsidiaries, Kwik-Kafe of Rhode Island and Automatic Cafeterias, Inc., 55 Fenner Street, Providence.

Guests, who included U. S. Senator Pastore, Secretary of State Cote, Attorney General Powers, Congressman Fogarty, and leaders of business and industry throughout the state, were treated to complete hot meals right out of the vending machines, which are now available for installation in stores, shops and factories.

Barney Ross, who once held three world boxing titles, was official host at the open house. He is general placement consultant for the firm. Lester E. Siegel is president.

- 1.—Vending machines were kept busy throughout the three day open house.
- 2.—Barney Ross explains things to Joseph S. Sinclair, general manager of Radio and TV at the Outlet Co.
- 3.—Attorney General Powers chats with Lester E. Siegel.
- 4.—Barney Ross autographs his new book, "No Man Stands Alone", for Irving Jay Fain as Mr. Siegel looks on.
- 5.—Ross "serves" Congressman Fogarty.

YOUR HOME

Your home stands for comfort, security and your particular way of life. You have protected it against loss by fire and its furnishings against loss by theft. But just as important, have you protected it for your family in case you should die prematurely? You will want to be sure that your wife and children continue to live in their own home among their own friends and neighbors. Life insurance can protect your home against an outstanding mortgage. Sun Life's Mortgage Protection Policy might just be the perfect solution to a very important problem.

I'm sure I can be of service. Why not give me a call? You will be under no obligation.
