Daughter of Lombroso

Gina Lombroso Ferrero is with us. Those whose memories are sufficiently elastic to stretch back to the scene of 15 years ago, recall who Gina is. She is the daughter of the late Prof. Caesar Lombroso of Italy, a Jew and an Olympian of his day.

Prof. Lombroso's name was very much newspapered about in those days. Particularly did discussion rage about his theory that the criminal was a definite biologic type. Another one of his thesis was that which was also espoused by Max Nordau, the kinship of genius and degeneracy.

Lombroso's theories today, I believe, have crashed in the stock exchange of scientific values. Fifteen years ago, you couldn't have bought them at 90; today they go begging at about 2 or 3, if you get what I mean.

Yet, in his day, he no doubt helped to forward the scientific spirit.

Deplores Emancipation of Women

His daughter, Gina, married the famous Italian historian, Prof. Guglielmo Ferrero. And now the two are here visiting and lecturing. And in an interview, Mrs. Ferrero laments the "emancipation" of women. Here is what she says:

"The women of the world are in a tragic position today. Machinery has forced them to leave the homes where they are happy and to emerge into a world where they are unable to fulfill their deepest needs. The position of modern woman is one of the tragedies of progress."

The only rainbow discernible in the sky, strangely enough, for women, is the fact that there is so much unemployment today. That may be doing a good thing to woman, she declares, by forcing women out of industry and back into the home.

The Old Domesticity

Personally, I am afraid that Gina's lament is a vain one. The old domesticity, whose passing she laments, is, I fear me, dead, beyond resuscitation. Not that, perhaps, woman might not have been happier under the old dispensation. But I cannot see how you can bring back the old domesticity unless you bring back the old conditions—until you put back the laundry into the home—ban can foods and put back the wife in the kitchen as in days of yore. And as far as women being forced out of industry by unemployment, I rather think, it is more likely that the forcing will be heaviest on the men, for the effort will be to retrench on expense and woman works for less.

Marriage and Monarchy

The statement has been made that marriage provides something like a private little monarchy in every home. The husband is king of the home, the wife his royal spouse, and the children his subjects. And since every man wants to be king, marriage enabled him to satisfy this want in quite a social way.

But the trouble, it seems to me, is that the monarchical system is going out of fashion. The world today belongs to the republic, and maybe that's why so many husbands and wives want a new slate after four years.

JUDGE JEROME HAHN TAKES SEAT IN THE SUPREME COURT

Mother and Wife Witness Ceremonies; Prominent Members of the Bar Attend

Judge J. Jerome Hahn on Monday was sworn in as an Associate Justice of the Rhode Island Supreme Court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Chester W. Barrows. Both his mother, Mrs. Rose Hahn, and his wife, Mrs. Catherine Hahn, were among those present for the simple ceremony marking his elevation from the Superior Court bench.

Attorney General Benjamin M. McLyman formally announced Judge Hahn's election after Chief Justice Charles F. Stearns, upon the opening of court, announced that he understood that the Attorney General had a matter to present. Mr. McLyman requested that the jurist's commission signed by Governor Norman S. Case be read and after the clerk, Bertram S. Blaisdell, had read the commission, Judge Hahn was escorted before the bench by Deputy Sheriff George W. Rhodes. The clerk then administered the oath.

A brief recess was declared following the ceremony and Judge Hahn went over to his mother and wife, who were seated within the lawyer's enclosure, and kissed them both. He then received the congratulations of members of the bench and bar present for the ceremony.

Among those attending were Judge Jeremiah E. O'Connell of the Superior Court, Attorney General McLyman, William B. Greenough, chairman of the Providence County Court-house Commission of which Judge Hahn is a member; Philip C. Joslin, Ira Marcus, Thomas F. Cooney, John J. Cooney, James E. Smith, Edwin J. Tetlow, Philip S. Knauer, Walter Adler, Frank H. Wildes and Joseph J. Cunningham, members of the bar, and Daniel J. Healey.

Following the recess Judge Hahn took the seat formerly occupied by Judge Barrows at the extreme left of the Chief Justice.

SPRINGFIELD MEAT MAN SUES CHIEF OF ORTHODOX RABBIS

Says Rabbi Silver Ordered Four Schochim to Refuse to Slaughter Cattle for Him

Springfield, Mass., Mar. 20.—(JTA)—The suit of Henry Cohen, local Kosher meat dealer, against Rabbi Eliezer Silver, President of the Union of Orthodox Rabbis of the United States and Canada, and leading local Rabbi, to restrain the latter from alleged interference with his (Cohen's) meat business, went into its second day in the Superior Court here on Tuesday.

Under direct cross-examination Cohen testified that Rabbi Silver has ordered four local shochtim to refuse to slaughter cattle for the plaintiff because he had failed to respond to a summons for a Din Torah. Cohen also told the court that Rabbi Silver had threatened to drive him out of Springfield if he did not comply with Rabbi Silver's orders.

SAYS JEWS AGREE TO LEGION CONVENTION ON YOM KIPPUR

Detroit, Mar. 20.—(JTA)—While a local committee of Jews is endeavoring to have the date of this year's convention of the American Legion changed from Sept. 12, which is Yom Kippur, to some other day, Colonel Alton T. Roberts, Executive Vice President of the American Legion convention preparations committee, recently informed the Jewish Telegraphic Agency that Jewish members of the Legion had agreed that the convention's opening date should not be postponed since the Jewish delegates will only have to miss one convention session.

Colonel Roberts declared that Jewish members had suggested a special Yom Kippur service for Jewish Legionnaires to accommodate their stay in Detroit.

JEWS OF DENVER HONOR RETIRING CATHOLIC BISHOP

Was Presented With a Page in the Synagogue Golden Book Because of Kindness to Jews

Denver, Mar. 20.—(JTA)—A Catholic Bishop was honored by the Jews of Denver in a Synagogue Wednesday evening, March 18th, when the Rt. Rev. J. Henry Tihen, retiring Catholic Bishop of Denver, was the guest of honor at a meeting in the Beth Ha-Medrosh Hagadol Synagogue, sponsored by the Men's Club of the Congregation. Leading Catholic, Jewish and Protestant members of the community participated.

A prominent feature of the evening was the presentation of a page in the Synagogue Golden Book to the Bishop by Rabbi C. E. H. Kauvar. Other speakers were Bishop Charles L. Meade of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Rabbi William S. Friedman of Temple Emanu-El and the Rev. Father Hugh L. McMenamin of the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception.

The meeting was inspired, according to officers of the B. M. H. Men's Club, by Bishop Tihen's kindly and tolerant attitude toward all creeds, and was in the nature of a farewell to Bishop Tihen after a long ministry in this region.

Bishop Tihen took an active interest in every religious and civic movement for the betterment of our city and state, during his stay in Denver," said Rabbi Kauvar. "On more than one occasion he participated in Jewish celebrations, and the Jewish community takes this opportunity to express to him their gratitude for his blessed ministry.

BOOK STORE WITHDRAWS BEN HECHT'S BOOK FROM SALE

Detroit, Mar. 20.—(JTA)—Byron, Inc., a prominent Detroit book store, recently announced that it has withdrawn from its shelves Ben Hecht's "A Jew In Love," because it is an unnecessary and offensive attack upon the Jewish race." J. Bernard Senie, of Byron, Inc., in making the announcement, declared that Rabbi Leo M. Franklin has been consulted in the store's action.

Mr. Senie's statement follows: "We wish to go on record as stating that Byron's, in the Fisher building, have withdrawn from general sale, Ben Hecht's latest novel, 'A Jew In Love.' All books, of course, are merchandise with us, but in this particular instance it has been pointed out to the management here that this book is an offensive and unnecessary attack upon the Jewish race."

Colonel Joseph Samuels Honored By State And City At Biltmore Dinner

Joseph Samuels Dental Clinic Dedicated Wednesday Afternoon at Rhode Island Hospital; Donor Praised for Great Gift to Humanity

Wednesday was Colonel Joseph Samuels Day in Providence, and in the coming years every day will be his day in the hearts and thoughts of grateful children, whose lives have been made happier by this generous business man and humanitarian.

In the afternoon the Joseph Samuels Dental Clinic, an institution unique in American hospital history, was dedicated at the Rhode Island Hospital.

In the evening Colonel Samuels was tendered a testimonial dinner at the Biltmore Hotel, where 500 fellow citizens and distinguished guests gathered to pay fitting tribute to him and to tell him that a grateful state and city and the kindred professions realize that the unique institution that he has made possible not only will be the means of more effective work to relieve or prevent human suffering, but likewise will promote equality of opportunity throughout the world.

The new clinic for children is the first of its kind in the country, furnishing a liaison between a completely equipped hospital and dental clinic.

No other clinic in the country provides such complete co-operation between dentists and an expert medical staff and the formal dedication of the Samuels structure is considered by the two professions to be one of the greatest forward steps of recent years.

The clinic is for the treatment of poor children only, those youngsters who could not secure attention for their teeth except through the aid of a welfare organization.

At the dedication exercises, Harris H. Bucklin, Vice President of the hospital, presided. Dr. Philip A. Duffy, President of the Rhode Island Dental Society, was the first speaker.

He was followed by Dr. Percy Howe, director of the Forsyth Dental Infirmary of Boston; Dr. William J. Gies, professor of bio-chemistry at Columbia, who about seven years ago was placed in charge of an investigation by the Carnegie Foundation of dental schools in the country; Dr. Charles V. Chapin, Superintendent of Health of this city; Dr. Harvey J. Burkhardt, director of the Rochester Dental Infirmary; Dr. Herman C. Pitts, President of the Rhode Island Hospital Staff Association, and Mrs. Mary S. Gardner of the Providence District Nursing Association.

Colonel Samuels was called upon for a response at the close of the exercises, when he officially turned over the keys of the clinic to Vice President Bucklin.

Colonel Samuels Praised at Dinner

At the dinner in the evening, Colonel Samuels was eulogized and lauded from all sides for his great gift to humanity. The Colonel in his simple, modest way in response, explained that "the people of Rhode Island have been very good to me and I know of no better way to show my appreciation of their goodness."

Colonel Samuels was awarded the 1931 scroll and medal of the Rhode Island Dental Society.

This honor, bestowed each year for distinguished services to dentistry, was given Colonel Samuels because "his exalted ideals, his devotion to children, his vision of promoting a closer alliance between medicine and dentistry through a dental clinic which should be an organic part of a hospital, and the potent influence which his philanthropy will ever wield in the professional, educational and civic programs of dentistry, make him worthy of the honor which the Rhode Island State Dental Society has conferred upon him."

Colonel Samuels Responds

Responding to the address of Dr. Beckett in presenting the medal, Colonel Samuels said:

"What can I say to you at this time which will adequately express my appreciation for the great honors which have been conferred upon me tonight? The attendance at this banquet of so many of my friends from all professions and occupations, the glowing praise which has been accorded to me by so many distinguished speakers and finally, the presentation of this medal and scroll, have all contributed to make this one of the happiest events of my life."

"After I had resolved to found this dental clinic I requested an appointment with the President of the Rhode Island Hospital, U. S. Senator Jesse H. Metcalf, and told him that I wished to make this gift and that I desired, if it were possible, to have the dental clinic connected with the Rhode Island Hospital so that there would be a permanent supervision by the trustees and the medical staff of the Rhode Island Hospital interested in dentistry and dental clinics. He immediately arranged for a conference with Dr. Peters, that true gentleman whom we admire so much, and again, from him, I received a most cordial welcome for the proposed clinic."

"As soon as the plan for the clinic was announced the dentists in this state unselfishly offered their most cordial approval and co-operation. Under such kindly and favorable auspices the gift and construction of this dental clinic began and I am tremendously gratified that it has ended under the same kindly and favorable auspices on this day which marks the completion of this clinic."

"For myself I desire no praise because of my contribution to this dental clinic. After all, the people of Rhode Island have been very good to me and I knew of no better way to show my appreciation for their goodness."

"The presentation of the medal of award and scroll of the Rhode Island State Dental Society is an honor, gentlemen, which I feel that I do not deserve. I understand that in the past it has been conferred only upon distinguished members of the dental profession and therefore the honor you pay me tonight is still more undeserved."

"I desire in closing to thank the members of the society in behalf of Mrs. Samuels for your beautiful gift of roses. She is listening in at our home and I know she would wish me to express her sincere gratitude for your gift and for the kind sentiments which accompanied its presentation."

"I thank you, my friends."

To Governor Norman S. Case and Mayor James E. Dunne, however, the clinic stands not only as an asset and source of pride to Rhode Island and Providence, but essentially as a means

The Rabbis Look at Einstein's Cosmic Religion

By J. MAX WEIS

This article presents the reactions of Orthodox, Conservative and Reform Rabbis to Professor Einstein's ideas of cosmic religion as presented specifically in a new book "Cosmic Religion" (Covici-Friede). This analysis obtained by The Jewish Herald and the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, points out how the apparently radical ideas of the great Jewish scientist were received by the American Rabbinate—Editor's Note.

Einstein has said:
"I do not believe in a God who rewards or punishes."

"I do not believe in a personal God."

"I believe Buddhism more than any other religion, reveals a sense of cosmic religion."

"I believe that moral religion is carried further in the New Testament than in the sacred writings of the Jewish people."

"I believe religion and science are irreconcilable antagonists."

It is remarkable that none of the Rabbis questioned his Jewishness.

Professor Einstein, though conceding that the cosmic element may be found in the Psalms of David and in the Prophets, claims that it is stronger in Buddhism. He grants that the Bible of the Jew has gone far beyond the religion of primitive peoples, the religion of fear—"fear of hunger, of wild animals, of illness and of death." But he finds the social or moral idea of God "carried further" in the New Testament.

These views did not call forth any adverse criticism. The Rabbis still adhere to their contention that he is "Israel's most distinguished son living" or professes to see "the Jewishness of Einstein."

Einstein disapproves of a code of morals that has any relationship to God, either as the one who reveals or sanctions its underlying principles, or as one who rewards or punishes. He asserts that a moral code requires no support from religion. He does not think that man is a free agent who can be held accountable for his deeds. He sees man as a creature who acts in accordance with "an outer and inner necessity," and therefore not any more responsible for what he does than an inanimate object for the movements it makes.

Since man is not a free agent, Einstein would substitute for a code of morals with divine sanctions, a system of social relationships worked out by man's intelligence on the basis of his growing experience, applied through education and with sympathy.

And yet, a Rabbi of American Israel declares:

"The religion of Albert Einstein will not be approved by certain sectarians, but it must and will be approved by Jews."

On a moment's reflection one might be tempted to say that the Rabbis who include Einstein in the religious fellowship of Israel instead of excluding him, are Reform Rabbis, who are not exacting as the Orthodox or even the Conservative. This opinion is overwhelmingly controverted by the comments and lectures of several Orthodox, Conservative and Reform Rabbis, who are a unit in refraining from denunciation and bent more upon demonstrating that Professor Einstein's views, as expressed in his book, "Cosmic Religion," are fundamentally those of Judaism.

Dr. David de Sola Pool of the Spanish-Portuguese Synagogue of New York City says:

"Passage after passage in the Bible shows that Einstein's cosmic religious sense is the heart of the Bible's religious teaching. The Rabbis carry this on further. Let us one searchingly significant quotation suffice. Rabbi Jose ben Chalafat, in interpreting the Biblical phrase, 'bold space is mine held that space is a aspect of the infinite omnipresence God; that we cannot limit God and declare that the world is His place.' And Dr. Leo Jung of the Jewish Center of New York asserts: 'The Jewishness of the Scientist Einstein seems to me to be expressed in his passionate quest after unity and in my sense of humility and awe in contemplation of the universe.'

Turning from Rabbis who represent Orthodox Judaism, we ponder the observations of one who is known as a Conservative teacher. Rabbi Louis Goldstein, on the faculty of the Jewish Theological Seminary, holds that the world will have to be better organized and educated before the scientist's religious experience can be made universal. Einstein, speaking as a scientist, says nothing about the reality of God, perhaps he holds that human experience can give us no understanding of His essence. In that he is once again in agreement with most of the mediaeval Jewish philosophers though they held that ignorant as we may be of the ultimate nature of God, we must be convinced of His existence by the nobility and marvelous order which are revealed in nature and in the world of thought."

The same insistence on linking the essence of Einstein's cosmic religion with the essential spirit of Judaism is voiced by a Reform Rabbi, Dr. Nathan Krass, of Temple Emanu-El: "The religion of Albert Einstein will not be approved by certain sectarians, but it must and will be approved by the Jews. Einstein has no sense of religion in the sense the professional religionist uses the term, nor even in the sense of the peasant, but his cosmic sense of awe at the mystery of the universe is but a modern translation of the songs of the early biblical psalmists."

Dr. Louis I. Newman, another Reform Rabbi of Temple Rodeph Shalom, pleads that Einstein and religionists are not at variance: "Einstein is stirred by the awful mystery of the universe, though he refuses to explain it in terms of a Personal God. Religion makes a mistake if it seeks to force scientists to compromise with their own severe standards of logicality, trial and experiment. If the scientists express religiously-motivated sentiments merely in order to allay the suspicion that they are anti-religious, they are false to their chosen calling. Science and religion are not enemies, but they are brothers of different temperament and occupation."

One is tempted to inquire: "Why do the Rabbis look at Einstein so laudably?" Are the Rabbis of today indifferent, or are they themselves imperceptibly succumbing to an inescapable logic of scientists such as Einstein? Our historical knowledge projects the picture of a Baruch Spinoza who was excommunicated by the Rabbis of his day: "He was cursed by day and night; in sleeping and rising; in going out and in coming in; with all the curses with which Joshua cursed Jericho and Elisha cursed the children."

Our question arises from a distorted view of Spinoza's excommunication. Modern scholars, such as Alexander Marx, Max L. Margolis and Leon Roth, maintain that the act of excommunication with a "political" move on the part of a community that had just gained the prize of tolerance and feared that it would suffer unless it separated itself from one who taught heresies which were resented by the world at large. Our Rabbis are not manifesting an unusual reaction. They are exemplifying an attitude that has colored normal Jewish life and thought throughout the centuries.

What Einstein has said about an ethical code not requiring support from religion, a code with divine sanctions, is a point of view that has found expression among some of our Rabbis. Rabbi Bernard J. Heller, in addressing the Central Conference of American Rabbis last summer, cited Rabbis Mordecai Kaplan, Solomon Goldman and Herman Lissauer as the apostles of Jewish Humanism who affirm that "the ethical and social strivings of man need not and must not be linked up with any theistic creed or God-idea. The basis and sanction of any ethical act, say they, must be its utility to the individual or to the group."

Are the Rabbis mentioned by Rabbi Heller the prophets of a new ethical approach in Judaism that coincides with the opinion of Professor Einstein?

We might also inquire whether Professor Einstein, in his reference to the New Testament, has not been preceded in his views by recognized Jewish scholars. The fact is that we can find many statements in the writings of Kaufmann Kohler and Claude G. Montefiore that are in accord with that of Einstein.

It is of passing interest that, whereas Professor Einstein is an ardent Zionist in spite of his acknowledgment of the superior ethical religion of the New Testament, a professor at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem Joseph Klausner, while conceding that Jesus surpassed Hillel in his ethical ideals, asserts that two thousand years have proven that the Jewish people did not err in rejecting the teachings of Jesus, which severed from the national life of the Jew, "for Judaism is a national life."

Many of the Rabbis have discussed the cosmic sense of Einstein, as presented in his article on "Religion and Science." They have not taken up his ideas of a moral code divorced from religion or of the superior moral ideas of the New Testament. Does their silence betoken a trend toward Einstein and Montefiore in their appraisal of Jesus as an ethical teacher or toward the opinions of Klausner. Will they agree with Einstein and Rabbis Kaplan and Goldman that moral codes require no divine sanctions and are essentially principles of human relationships evolved by the race out of its experience through the centuries? Will they submit to Professor Einstein's silence on the reality of God, and be satisfied with an approach to the universe that is a state of mind, a cosmic religious sense that impelled Kepler and Newton, and, aye, Einstein himself to the unraveling of the mysteries of the universe?

RABBI SAMUEL M. GUP TO SPEAK AT NEXT MEETING

RABBI SAMUEL M. GUP The following program has been arranged for the next meeting to be held Tuesday evening, March 24th: 7:30 p. m., business meeting; 8:15 p. m., class initiation; 9 p. m., Rabbi Samuel M. Gup, topic, "What Is Reform Judaism;" 9:45 p. m., Bingo party and refreshments.

The committee on speakers, headed by our good brother, Joe Keller, is to be congratulated for their arrangements in having Rabbi Gup speak for us.

Rabbi Gup needs no introduction and suffice it to say that he is considered one of the most forceful speakers in this part of the country. He has done more to bring about a better understanding between Jew and Gentile in this state than any other man I know.

Last summer while I was up in Montreal, Canada, I met a Gentile from Ohio. My name and no doubt my countenance suggested my Hebrew origin and the first thing he said to me was, "I have enjoyed listening to your Rabbi Gup's sermons over the radio."

At this meeting we expect to initiate about 25 candidates, using the new ritual work. Those of you who have not seen the musical equipment used in our new ritual work should be on hand to enjoy it.

Have you ever played Bingo? If you have not, you are missing a thrill or what have you. You must come to our Bingo Party.

Since the start of the membership drive, which ends April 10th, about 65 applications for membership have been turned in and many more to follow.

It is rumored that a divorce is pending between the principal characters of the wedding we staged some months ago. For further particulars, come to the next few meetings. If you have latent talent, you should bring it out. You may be another Rudy Vallee or Helen Morgan. See Teddy Max or the writer.

NAZI PARTY COUNCIL VOTES TO INCREASE ANTI-SEMITISM

Berlin, Mar. 20—(JTA)—A decision to increase the anti-Semitic agitation of the National Socialists was adopted at a meeting of the council of the party at Munich under the chairmanship of Adolf Hitler, the Central Association of German Citizens of Jewish Faith reveals. The Munich meeting was held last week.

The move to increase the anti-Semitic propaganda of the party was taken in order to counterbalance the growing impatience of the Nazis, particularly the storm squads, since the Fascist bodies walked out of the Reichstag recently. As a result of this meeting, Nazi gatherings are now more anti-Jewish in spirit with such slogans as "Hang and Shoot the Jews" common.

The heightened anti-Semitism of the Nazis is a departure from Hitler's pre-election policy. At that time he preferred to appear abroad as a diplomat and an apostle of national morals but since his hopes for a Nazi government has been frustrated he has resumed agitation among the masses through the anti-Semitism.

FIELD-SERVICE FOR RABBIS

The romantic story of the Indiana reverend, who has generously tried to preach to those small Jewish congregations without Temples or Rabbis in two small towns near his own church, has captured the popular imagination. The story is further embellished by the coincidence of this Rev. S. L. Martin's meeting there with a blind guest Rabbi, one Michael Aaronsohn, whom he had known in France during the war. This preacher, at the Rabbi's suggestion, has undertaken to minister to two small Jewish congregations.

At once we must commend the idealism and generosity of the Methodist preacher, who is anxious to learn about things Jewish and to teach them in turn to the assembled Jews. At the same time, it is quite obvious that a Methodist preacher cannot hope to be an adequate spiritual leader for a congregation of Jewish families. He has not the background, he has not the implicit understanding of the laws and the customs of the religion, and he has fundamentally no solid faith in Judaism. If he had, he would not be a Methodist minister.

On the other hand, such religious training is better than none at all. It is perhaps hard for Providence Jews, with their large and splendid facilities for worship, to understand the plight of those Jews in small and distant communities who cannot afford a regular Rabbi. Even the radio cannot hope to supplant the influence of a living personality in a congregation, and a man like Rev. Martin can become a vital force in the lives of these Indiana Jews.

One must concede that where the force would not be one of evil, it might certainly affect and thin the quality of Judaism among them. It might cause intermarriage, it might do any number of things that would destroy the reality of their Jewishness. The solution lies in a more concentrated field-service for the itinerant American Rabbi. The Rabbinical schools are turning out more Rabbis than there are Synagogues to hold them all. The surplus might well be diverted to towns like those in Indiana and throughout many of the Western States. Their work is important and undoubtedly worth doing. The remuneration should be sufficient, and should be supplied by national funds or by all the small congregations visited in the course of the year. It is a matter to which the Conference of American Rabbis has given its attention. It is certain that more effort should be shown in such field-service by the American-Jewish Rabbis as a whole, because no Jew should ever want for spiritual guidance where it is possible to give it to him.

Tidbits and News of Jewish Personalities

By DAVID SCHWARTZ

to Louis Popkin, publicity surveyor.
Every Passover, Sarnoff makes it a rule to have a Seder with the old folks in Brownsville.

The last Passover, however, Sarnoff was absent from the maternal roof on the Seder night.

A week later, he showed up at the home. His mother said: "David, why didn't you come for Seder?"

"Mother," said the radio chieftain, "I was busy—I had to have a conference with Mr. Rockefeller."

"David," said his mother, "why do you go to goyim, when you can come here?"

Sandler and Genius

Well, they are planning a memorial service for Jacob Sandler, author of "Eli, Eli." They would have done better, had they gathered a little money for him during his life.

Sandler, of course, committed the error of not knowing after he had written his famous song, that he had done anything worth while. I rather think this is a fairly general condition among first rate genius. I doubt very much whether Shakespeare had any very exalted idea of the plays he was turning out at so rapid a rate. Certainly, he had not the least hint that posterity would esteem them so highly.

And it is perfectly natural, for one who does things with ease, as Shakespeare did, to have no exaggerated opinion of the work. We esteem only those things, which come to us hard.

Another Illustration

And the genius, I believe, works with comparative ease. That is why he is a genius.

Let us take another illustration—Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. In that address, Lincoln said: "The world will little note or long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here." A number of the New York papers the following day agreed with him. They said the address was not much.

Both Lincoln and the papers were wrong. The average man hardly knows what happened at Gettysburg, but he knows what was said there. There is generally a simplicity about greatness that is deceiving. You may fall in love at first sight, but greatness requires time to fall in love with.

No Sandwich— No Editorial!

Today, the Jewish Daily Forward is a very successful paper, but it was not always thus, as a little story told me by Bernard G. Richards the other day, bears out. A member of the Forward staff—and a very prominent member at the time, was the Jewish poet, Lessing. Besides writing verse for the paper, he was also one of its chief editorial writers. But half of the time, the editorial staff was not paid. One day, there were no editorials. Lessing had not been paid, and he was not at the office. The heads of the paper went about the East Side, scouring for Lessing. Finally, they found him in a cafe eating a sandwich. "Mr. Lessing, come back and write some editorials."

Lessing looked up grimly: "Ob ihr viri nisch betzahlen fer dem sandwich vet nisch sein kein editorials." "If you do not pay for the sandwich, there will be no editorials."

This and That

Felix N. Gerson, editor of the Jewish Exponent, authored a book of verse some years ago and he knows the King's English.

Don Glassman, scribe, as predicted in these columns, has wed a Bostonian, Miss Pollen—one of the cast of Eva LeGallienne's Civic Repertory.

David Faber, New Orleans verse maker, is a brother of Rabbi Abraham Feinberg.

Lawrence Levine has written a book exposing Third Degree.

Harry Saltzman, former book reviewer of the New York World, has linked with the New York American.

Dr. Joseph Tennenbaum, who authored book on Sex and lately Mad Heroes, is at work on another tome.

Charles Edward Russell, who wrote a book on Haym Salomon, thus replied the other day to some who picked flaws in Salomon: "Well, some pick flaws in Lincoln."

of dentistry and has brought about the betrothal, if not the marriage, of medicine and dentistry."

United States Senator Jesse H. Metcalf, President of the Rhode Island Hospital, was not present, because of the recent death of his sister, Mrs. Eliza Greene Radeke.

Dr. John M. Peters, Superintendent of the Rhode Island Hospital, and Dr. Ernest A. Charbonnel, director of the new clinic, were the other speakers. Dr. Herbert P. Beckett, a Past President of the society and a member of the medal award committee, presented the medal and scroll to Colonel Samuels. Dr. Ambrose Lynch was toastmaster and Dr. Philip A. Duffy, head of the Rhode Island State Dental Society, presided.

Above all else, the new clinic is a wonderful opportunity to the dental and medical professions, Dr. Howe said. It will make possible the solution of problems of child health and welfare, outstanding research, and the methods of providing for the health of the entire community.

As it is the first of its kind in the world, the clinic undoubtedly will be operated not only as a therapeutic institution, but as a place which will "create and stimulate a new interest in making child life more healthful and happier," Dr. Burkhardt said. The clinic, he declared, should lead the world in initiating projects and promoting health measures.

President Clarence A. Barbour of Brown University lauded Colonel Samuels for his gift and said it will be an everlasting monument and that the thanks and blessing of grateful children will be his benediction.

The entire evening program was broadcast through Station WJAR.

JUDGES' DECISION FOR THIRD PLAY POPULAR

The auditorium of the C. J. I. Community Center was taxed to capacity last Sunday evening for the fifth annual dramatic presentation by the Emma Lazarus Club and the Newport Chapter of A. Z. A.

Three one-act playlets, "The Two Goyem," by Samuel Grossman; "The Burden," by Emma Ehrlich Levinger and "When the Whirlwind Blows," by Essex Dane, were given. Mr. Irving Warshawsky, the Executive Secretary, announced that the best play would be selected at the close of the performance by the judges, Mrs. Harold Watson and Mrs. Edmund Pardes, to represent the Jewish Community Center of Newport at the Dramatic Tournament of District Six, Associated Y. M. and Y. W. H. A.'s, which will be held here April 19th. The winner will then be sent to the New England contest for the final decision. The decision of the judges for the third play, which was directed by Mr. Raymond W. Taylor, was popular, the second play being the second choice and the first play being the third choice. Edward Loder's Hawaiian string ensemble furnished the music with Miss Eva Baltimore the soprano soloist. The effective scenery was the work of Leslie Clarke.

"The Two Goyem," under the direction of Mr. Warshawsky, depicted the life of a Jewish family in this country and was well given by Maurice and Celia Ginsburg, Benjamin Novick, Sophie Nemtzow, Sallie Siegal, Max Berman and Abe Peisechov.

"The Burden," also under the direction of Mr. Warshawsky, is a pathetic sketch depicting the difficulty the older Jews have in adapting themselves to conditions here. This sketch was given by William David Hyman Feldman, Evelyn Kusinitz and Joe Levin.

"When the Whirlwind Blows" was a side light on the Russian Revolution, strongly dramatic and well staged. The entire cast was heartily applauded as this play was the decision of the judges as the winner of the evening. Mrs. Marie N. Smith as Madame Elizabeth Androya, wife of General Androya, of the Russian Army; Miss Ida Frant as Josefina, mother of Oswald, a blacksmith, and a member of the Workmen's Council, and Miss Alyce Rosenthal as Anna, former maid to Madame Androya. This play will be presented on April 19th in the Dramatic Tournament.

the Hadassah for its excellent work. Mrs. Schon-Holzman spoke of the endeavor of the Jewish people to make Palestine their Homeland and urged continued support of the project, saying that the Hadassah, which is seeking to help others, regardless of creed or color, is doing a great humanitarian work in the Holy Land.

A successful bridge was held on Tuesday evening, March 17th, at the C. J. I. Community Center with quite a number of tables in play. Beautiful prizes were presented to the winners at each table. EMANU-EL
SERVICES

On Friday evening, March 20th, Rabbi Goldman spoke on the subject, "The Shylock of Shakespeare and the Shylock of Lewisohn," based on the novel by Ludwig Lewisohn, "The Last Days of Shylock." On Friday evening, March 27, which will be the Sabbath before Passover (Shabbas Hagadol), Rabbi Goldman will preach a Passover sermon.

TEMPLE BOARD TO HOLD
BREAKFAST MEETING

This Sunday morning, March 22nd, at 9 o'clock, the Board of Trustees of Temple Emanu-El will hold an unusual meeting in the form of a breakfast gathering. Mr. Philip C. Joslin, the President, has invited all the members of the Temple Board and has also extended a special invitation to Mr. Sam Rosen, Chairman of the Men's Club Carnival Committee, and to his committee to attend. Over 40 members are expected to attend. Such meetings have been held before at the Temple and have always proven most novel and interesting.

At this breakfast meeting matters of the most vital importance will be taken up and all those who have been invited are requested to be sure to attend. The meeting will be preceded by the morning services in the Chapel at 8 for those who wish to attend.

RABBI GOLDMAN CLOSES LECTURE COURSE

Thursday evening, March 26th, Rabbi Goldman will close a successful course of ten lectures on the "Ten Greatest Jews of History." The average attendance of these lectures has been upward of thirty and has attracted members as well as non-members of the Temple and several non-Jews.

The closing lecture will deal with Moses Montefiore and Theodore Herzl. A cordial invitation is extended to all to this closing lecture.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL COURSE BEGINS

The High School Department of the Religious School of Temple Emanu-El began a new course on Post-Biblical Jewish Literature last Monday afternoon under Rabbi Goldman. The High School Department is required to take three courses every year. The other two courses followed this year so far are: American Jewish History and Biblical Literature. The text-book to be followed in this new course is Professor Halper's "Post-Biblical Jewish Literature."

"KITCHEN KABINET" ACTIVE

The Men's Club Carnival Committee is continuing its busy meetings every Sunday morning under the chairmanship of Mr. Sam Rosen. Because all the available space in the Temple is used for the school on Sunday morning, the large Carnival Committee has made the kitchen of the Temple its meeting place, some one dubbing this active committee with the title of "Kitchen Kabinet."

FLORAL OFFERING

Mrs. Max Temkin, chairman of the floral offering committee, reports that the floral offerings for this Sabbath are the gifts of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Hilfer, in memory of the late Mathilda Pearlman, and also of Mrs. Louis Guny, in memory of her father, Kopel Berger. May their memories be for a blessing.

Salvatore Ruggirello, lambasting Italian heavyweight pugilist, who is slated for a return 10-round with Jose Santa, big Portuguese, at the Providence Auditorium this Friday evening, displayed his "Mary Ann" much to the glee of some admirers in a brisk workout at the Auditorium Tuesday.

Sal kayoed one of his sparring mates in the second round, wearing the big 16-ounce gloves, and the crowd cheered him to the rafters. After he slammed the little and big bag for several rounds, he knocked the latter off its moorings with a terrific punch. He declared he will again stop Santa.

MACCABEE ASSOCIATION MAKES BID FOR MEMBERS

The Maccabee Association of America is ambitious. The heads of that branch of the international organization are desirous of inculcating into the minds of our Jewish youths the spirit of the Jewish Youth Movement. Towards this end they have promulgated an elaborate program which includes a nation-wide tournament of track, soccer and basketball teams. All of which is in preparation of the forthcoming Jewish Olympic games, which will be held in Palestine next year. Hopeful of sending teams across the sea, Mr. Minsky of 150 East 116th street, New York City, Secretary of the Maccabee, has sent out a broadside for membership. The organization, although not turning down individuals, is more interested in taking over a body, clubs already formed. These adoptions will not affect the identity of the clubs, they will be permitted to retain their name, but will merely prefix it with that of Maccabee and will adapt the principles of the parent society. New chapters of the Maccabee are being formed in Boston and Chicago and anyone wishing further information about the Maccabee need do nothing more than drop a line to Mr. Minsky.

HARRY WOLF WINS SQUASH TITLE FOR SECOND TIME

Harry Wolf of New York City, national amateur squash champion, retained his title this year by defeating Rowland Haines in the final round of one of the most exciting squash tourneys ever held in New York.

The 23-year-old title holder kept his crown in place only after the hardest kind of a struggle and for a time the crowd, which filled the galleries of the New York A. C. court, thought they were going to see the Jewish boy dethroned. Losing the first game and being within one point of dropping the second and third, the champion showed his mettle and batted his way to a win. The scores were 16-15, 18-17, 18-17, 15-4. It was a superb exhibition of gamesmanship on the part of Wolf. He is the only Jewish boy who ever won a championship in this sport.

SAMMY BEHR BREAKS SHOT-PUT RECORD

Sammy Behr, one of the famous Wisconsin University Behr's, ruined the oldest record on the books when he shoved the 18 pound shot 49 feet, 9 1/4 inches, for first place in the Western Conference indoor track championships, held at Madison last week. Sammy's big push broke a record made 11 years ago by Arlie Mucks. The big Jewish boy's put landed a full foot farther than Mucks. Mr. Mucks, acting as judge of the event, was present to see his record smashed.

HORWITZ PLAYS LAST GAME

The final chapter in one of the most noteworthy achievements of Yale athletic annals, was written when Ed Horwitz led the Eli basketball team against Cornell for the last game of the season.

Horwitz is a triple rarity among Eli sport heroes, for his is one of the few local New Haven boys to captain his team and was awarded this honor when only 17 years of age. On top of that unusual achievement Eddie happens to be the only Yale athlete outside of Bill McDuffie, water polo star, who has been honored by Phi Beta Kappa election.

His brilliant record has been made in the face of heavy odds. In addition to playing a stellar role on the Varsity since he was 15, Eddie has been forced to spend a great deal of time to outside work to bolster his finances so he could remain in college.

Horwitz has never lived in the dormitories as has Albie Booth, fellow-townsman, who has made his place in Yale sport history. Eddie goes home for lunch and to study at night when he is not busy tackling jobs. Horwitz failed to shine when the Blue passers faced Fordham here during the Christmas holidays, for he had just completed a 10-hour stretch on his feet working in the post office.

Booth and Freddy Loeser were Freshmen in high school when Eddie was just a sixth grade grammar school pupil beginning to show the brilliance that has enabled him to finish college a year ahead of Albie with an average just shy of 90.

He was not a sensational court performer at Hillhouse High, but since he came to Yale, has been the outstanding tosser, although only five feet nine inches tall. He is, however, one of the fastest men in the league and has an uncanny ability to come to an abrupt halt from a full speed gait. This gives him many open shots, which may have accounted for his role of high scorer. In 1929 he led the league and in 1930 and 1931, finished third.

CHATTERINGS

James Dokton caught the papers handing out some misinformation. He writes me that when they stated "Ray Conger was beaten for the first time in two years, when he finished second to Carl Coan, in the one-mile championship," they were wrong. Conger was beaten by a Jewish fellow named Leslie Flaksman, who once represented Harvard on the track. The defeat came within the two-year period, in fact it happened on Sept. 13, 1930, at the Boston Tercentenary meet. It just goes to show you how careful you have to be.

Another letter from Mr. P., complaining about my alleged disparaging remarks concerning the ability of Al Friedman, the retired heavyweight. This time I got documentary proof, but I still persist in stating that Al was only a fair to middling fighter. Another thing Mr. P. states, "Thank Heaven there is still a group of us left who are ready to step forward and stop insults from being handed from a Jewish sport writer, etc." He also tells me that he was urged by Jew and Gentile alike to voice their protest at my perfidy. Incidentally, all this fuss over a heavyweight is silly. There isn't a man in that division fighting today that could possibly be classed as a real fighter and even my correspondence doesn't claim that Friedman was near the top of his class.

Lou Bender, ace of the Columbia basketball team, has been elected a captain of the team for 1932. Bender led the Intercollegiate League in scoring both in 1930 and 1931. He is a forward, a New York local boy.

JEWISH JUNIOR LEAGUE

The Jewish Junior League presented three one-act plays at the Temple, Sunday, March 15. The League comprises the boys and girls of high school age. Under the leadership of Mr. Joseph Fogel, it has been making noticeable strides in serving as a definite Jewish society connected with the Temple.

The Book of the Month Club held its last meeting at the home of Miss Hazel Kessler on Atlantic avenue. The book discussed was "Nathan the Wise" by Lessing.

RABBI IN THE COMMUNITY

Rabbi Gup has accepted an invitation to address the Providence Fraternal Association, March 24, on the subject, "What Is Reform Judaism?"

The Jewish Chautauqua Society has invited the Rabbi to address the students at the University of Maine, University of New Hampshire, and the Farmington Normal, Farmington, Me. The invitation is extended upon the request of the U. S. Commissioner of Education, the purpose being "to provide competent lecturers to deliver public addresses on subjects referring to the history, life and literature of the Jewish people."

ORATORICAL CONTEST

The Oratorical Contest sponsored by District 6, Y. M. and Y. W. H. A.'s will be held on Saturday evening, March 21st, at 8 o'clock, at the new Fall River Jewish Community Center on 456 South Main street. The chairman of the evening will be Mr. Joseph Finberg of Attleboro, who is Treasurer of the District.

The judges will be Judge Sam Barnett of New Bedford, Rabbi Morton Goldberg of Fall River and Joseph A. Cohen, Esq., of Fall River.

This event is the culmination of a series of oratorical contests which have been taking place in the various constituent cities of District Six. The cities who will be represented by a winner of its local contest are Brockton, Worcester, Providence, New Bedford, Newport and Fall River. The two winners of the District contest will appear as District Six contestants at the New England Associated Y. M. and Y. W. H. A.'s contest to take place in Springfield on the following day, Sunday, March 22.

Suitable trophies will be awarded the winners in all contests.

All members of Y. M.'s and Y. W. H. A.'s in District Six cities will be admitted free by presentation of their local membership cards. A nominal fee will be charged to others.

Mr. Eli Kogos, Executive Director of the Fall River Community Center, is in complete charge of this contest.

R. I. State College

Delta Alpha Psi 20, Alpha Epsilon 19. The boys of A. E. Pi might have lost possession of the basketball trophy, but Delta Alpha knew they were in a fight. The boys never fought so hard all season, and even if we say so, they should have won. The score was 19-18 in A. E. Pi's favor, with 30 seconds to play, when out of nowhere came Goodwin of Delta Alpha and sank the winning basket. Capt. Kefler and his team have played wonderful ball all season and deserve every bit of credit in the world for the brand of playing they have displayed. The men who played during the season were: Capt. Harry Kefler, Milt Hyson, Micky Fliescher, Sam Stein, Arky Brosofsky, Mort Gross-man and Bob Krovitz. Sammy Meyers coached the team.

With the close of basketball we are now at the beginning of the baseball season. Harry Kefler, for two years a regular on the Varsity, is slated again to hold down the keystone sack for Coach Keaney.

The Freshman baseballers find Sammy Myers, the Brockton flash, turning his attention from the court to the diamond. Sammy was one of the best high school players in greater Massachusetts last year and should have little trouble in making the Yearling team.

O. H. C. News

IMPORTANT MEETING HELD

An important meeting was held last Sunday to make final plans for the tenth annual dance to be held at the Arcadia Ballroom on the last night of Passover, Thursday, April 9. Members are reporting that tickets have been widely circulated and that every one promises to be there. This O. H. C. affair attracts unusually good crowds each year.

The O. H. C. Bowling League is on its last lap of the 1930-31 season. The league consists of four teams of five men each that bowl every Thursday evening at the Majestic Alleys.

At present Waldman's team is in the lead, but first place is not definitely clinched. Individual honors are held so far by Morris Filler, who is first in individual averages with over 102 to his credit. Filler also holds the high three-string of 364, while I. Saxe holds the high single of 139. With five more weeks to go new scores may be set up any week. At the end of the season the league plans to hold a banquet and theatre party.
