Tidbits and News of Jewish Personalities

By DAVID SCHWARTZ

The Case of Haym Salomon

How Haym Salomon must be turning in his grave! For the one thing on which even Mr. Kohler agrees was that Haym Salomon was a quiet and benevolent minded man. I had an idea if those spirit telephones could be perfected, and we could get the spirit of Haym Salomon on the telephone, he would say—What's all this noise about? Be quiet—did I ever blow my own horn in my life? Monument—no monument, what care I. Be quiet!

The Attack by Kohler

Max Kohler is a very estimable man. He is a son of the late Kaufman Kohler, one of the greatest Jewish scholars that ever lived in America. I happened to live in the same city as Dr. Kohler for some short period—the city of Cincinnati, and I know what respect was entertained for him, even by those who differed with his "weltanschauung." The university boys would tell of visiting Dr. Kohler then, I believe, in his seventies and finding the venerable savant bent over some Hebrew work or some Greek classic—reading both the Hebrew and the Greek in the original. And Max Kohler has carried on in the same spirit of scholarship and devotion to Jewish interest. And so what Kohler says about Haym Salomon is worth listening to.

Takes Middle Ground

Of course, the attack is not altogether new. Worthington C. Ford, some two years ago, made the same charge, except that he was far more extreme than Mr. Kohler. Mr. Kohler, indeed, in his statement on Salomon, spends some time showing how flimsy and inadequate W. C. Ford's investigation was. In other words, Kohler holds a sort of middle ground between the detractors and the extreme hallelujah shouters.

Salomon's Generosity

I said something about the quietness of Salomon himself in a previous paragraph. And to me this silence is very eloquent. Mr. Kohler in his pamphlet declares that it is true that Salomon helped out financially, refusing any compensation, such men as James Madison, "father of the Constitution," Edmund Randolph, Washington's Attorney General, and at least a half dozen others of the notable figures of the Revolutionary period. In truth, the list could be extended much further. Mr. Kohler agrees, and Mr. Kohler thinks this was very noble of Salomon.

Didn't Toot His Horn

Now, what I am getting at is this. Here was a man, who had been in the country only a half dozen years or so—and yet seemingly on familiar terms with all these men of prominence, and yet search his private letters, and we hear not one word of boast—not the remotest attempt to toot his own horn.

Imagine any man of today in such associations. To say the least, he would get somebody to write a book under his name. But here Salomon says nothing at all about it. He continues to put on his "talith" and "daven" at his schule, while Robert Morris continues to consult with him.

JEWISH COMMUNISTS' ANTI-PASSOVER CAMPAIGN STARTS

Demand That No Money be Spent for Matzos Nor Any Time Taken From Work

Moscow, Mar. 27—(JTA)—The familiar annual anti-Passover campaign of the Yiddish Communist press got under way Monday in earnest with the appearance of the pre-Passover issue of the recently established Jewish Atheist publication, "Der Apikoires." The Jewish Atheists' organ calls on the Jews of Russia not to spend a single kopek for matzos and declares that not a single hour should be taken off from work by Jewish workers in the factories during Passover.

While "Der Apikoires" and the daily "Emes" are pounding away on their anti-Passover propaganda, the Jews of Moscow together with those of all Russia are quietly going ahead with preparations for the customary holiday celebrations.

In addition to sounding a clarion call against Passover, "Der Apikoires" devotes a quarter of a column to reports from various parts of Russia describing the progress of the anti-religious campaign among the Jews to which "Der Apikoires" is dedicated. The Atheist spokesman announces that a Synagogue has been converted into a club in Kaidamov; in Linetz a Synagogue has become a school; in Monastirschine a Synagogue is now a culture house for the entire village; in the village of Koitveld in the Stalindorf district, a Jewish autonomous region, the ornaments of the local Synagogue's Torah School have been removed and sold for the use of the local defence fund; in Homel an anti-religious "university" with twenty students has been established and in Lochvitz a Jewish Atheists' Society with forty members has been founded.

ISA KREMER TO APPEAR SUNDAY AT PLANTATIONS CLUB

Acclaimed in Europe and America; Will Render Program in Five Languages

Isa Kremer, famous balladist and folk song interpreter, will make her first appearance in this city under the auspices of the Jewish Community Center, at the Plantations Auditorium, on Sunday evening, in a program of folk songs of various nations. The repertoire includes selections in English, German, Russian and Italian. However, most of her program will be devoted to interpretations of Jewish folk melodies.

"Little Sparrow" in English and "Shein Bin Ich Shein" in Yiddish, the two songs that have brought her world acclaim, will be sung by Miss Kremer among a large group of other numbers.

Miss Kremer's art is unique and striking and although many people refer to her as a recitalist, she really is a balladist and an interpreter. She requires very little costuming for her program, and the entire meaning of her songs is conveyed to the audience, some times by a mere gesture, some times by the movement of an eye lash, and some times by the intonation of her voice.

Since her arrival from Europe a few weeks ago she has received enthusiastic receptions in the leading cities of the country, and especially at Carnegie Hall, New York, where every one of her concerts called forth enthusiastic outbursts.

Miss Kremer finds that the American audiences are enthusiastic and warm hearted, but she doubts whether Americans can respond in such a fashion as the European students. There in Europe it was an often occurrence for her, following a concert, to be carried away from the hall on the shoulders of the frenzied mob who worshipped their great artist.

Miss Kremer was born in Odessa, Russia, where her talent for folk song interpretation was soon noticed, and she was encouraged to cultivate her voice and her art. It didn't take Isa or "Isotchka," as she is fondly called by the Russians, to captivate the hearts of her listeners by her artistic presentations of simple folk songs.

Miss Kremer's concert is being given by the Jewish Community Center as a part of the educational program carried on this season, and completes the course of lectures and concerts arranged by Samuel H. Workman, chairman of the committee.

Isiah Seligman will be the piano accompanist. A limited number of tickets will be available to the public, and they may be obtained at 65 Benefit street, or by calling Dexter 6730.

GOLDMAN CONCERT TO BE IN HONOR OF LATE GUGGENHEIM

This Year's Concerts Are Gift of Daniel and Florence Guggenheim Foundation

New York, Mar. 27—(JTA) — The Goldman Band concerts, which will be given again this summer for the fourteenth season, under the direction of Edwin Franko Goldman, will be known this year as the Daniel Guggenheim Memorial Concerts, in memory of Daniel Guggenheim, who was to a large degree responsible for them. The concerts this year are the gift of the Daniel and Florence Guggenheim Foundation.

The concerts will begin this year on June 8 and continue for ten weeks. Forty concerts will be held in Central Park and thirty on the campus of New York University. The band will again include 63 musicians, besides soloists. During the past few seasons between twenty and forty thousand person have been attending the concerts nightly. The concert programs have also been broadcast on the radio.

Reorganized J. D. C. Starts $2,500,000 Campaign For European Jewry Relief

Nationally Known Speakers Graphically Picture Impressive Need of Jews in Two-Day New York Conference

New York, Mar. 27—(JTA) — A campaign for $2,500,000 for the relief of European Jewry, whose need was pictured by an impressive succession of noted men experts on the economic and social problems of Jews as greater than it had ever been before, was entered into on Sunday by the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee following a two-day convention at the Pennsylvania Hotel attended by 500 delegates from all parts of the United States. The $2,500,000 relief budget for 1931 was unanimously adopted by the delegates; $1,000,000 of the sum will be raised in New York.

The reorganization of the Joint Distribution Committee was announced by James N. Rosenberg, vice chairman. Under the new plan the organization will consist of a National Council composed of 250 men and women prominent in Jewish activities, and of a board of directors of 48.

Felix M. Warburg, chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee, opened the conference on Saturday evening. Rabbi Jonah B. Wise of New York, it was announced, will direct the national drive for $2,500,000, and Albert Ottinger will be at the head of the New York campaign for $1,000,000.

Greetings From Hoover, Einstein
Messages of greeting and good-will were received by the Joint Distribution Committee from President Hoover, Professor Albert Einstein, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and Gilbert Bettman, Attorney General of Ohio.

GERMAN HIGH COURT RULES RABBIS ARE NOT CLERGYMEN

Refuses to Grant Tax Exemption on Rabbi's Home Near Synagogue

Frankfort, Germany, Mar. 27—(JTA)—Rabbis are not clergymen, the German High Court ruled Saturday, March 21, in refusing the request of the Frankfort Jewish community for tax exemption on a Rabbi's house adjoining a Synagogue which is the property of the community. In accordance with Prussian law clergymen or church servants inhabiting houses which are church property are freed from taxation.

In this case, however, the High Court ruled that the law, in referring to churches, means only the Lutheran, Roman Catholic and Free Catholic churches, but not the Jewish. Professor M. Giese, of Frankfort University, serving as counsel for the Jewish community, pointed out that the High Court's decision is contrary to the German constitution which accords equal treatment to all religions without preference or discrimination.

In view of the fact that the High Court is the last instance of appeal, its decision is final and can be changed only by a new parliamentary law.

DAWES TO SPEAK AT AGENCY DINNER

London, Mar. 27—(JTA) — General Charles G. Dawes, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, recently accepted an invitation to be one of the galaxy of distinguished speakers who will attend the dinner of the Jewish Agency here on April 11 in honor of David Lloyd George in whose honor a Zionist colony will be named. Plans for the colony will be launched at the dinner.

Other speakers will be Mrs. Philip Snowden, wife of the Chancellor of the Exchequer; Dr. Chaim Weizmann, who will preside, and possibly Lord Reading.

ver, Professor Albert Einstein, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and Gilbert Bettman, Attorney General of Ohio.

Among the speakers at the convention were former Governor Alfred E. Smith, Lieutenant Governor Herbert H. Lehman, Felix M. Warburg, James N. Rosenberg, Paul Baerwald, Treasurer, whose report told of the disbursement of over $30,000,000 by the organization since 1914; Dr. Cyrus Adler, Rabbi Edward N. Calisch, Joseph C. Hyman, Secretary of the Joint Distribution Committee; James Marshall, Dr. Judah L. Magnes, David A. Brown, Hon. George Z. Medallie, Hon. Albert Ottinger, Rabbi Jonah B. Wise, Dr. Lee K. Frankel, Dr. Nathan Krass, Rabbi David de Sola Pool, Rabbi Israel Goldstein, Bernard S. Deutsch and Jonah J. Goldstein.

The resolution for the adoption of the $2,500,000 as a campaign quota was presented by a committee of which Dr. Lee K. Frankel was chairman; it told of the inception of the relief organization, of its work in years when as much as $15,000,000 had been raised for it here, and of the great need for the present minimum budget.

The resolution stressed the constructive character of the work now being carried on, such as the occupational training of individuals and the supplying of tools and machinery for industrial work.

Praise Julius Rosenwald

The delegates also unanimously adopted a resolution forwarded to Julius Rosenwald, expressing appreciation of the Jews of America for his work in behalf of Jewish agricultural colonization in Russia. The telegram was signed by Lieutenant Governor Lehman, and commended Mr. Rosenwald's "magnificent leadership and generosity in settling over a quarter of a million Jews on about three million acres" in Russia.

President Hoover's greetings to the campaigners recalled his association with J. D. C. workers in Europe. "I have been much interested to learn that you and your associates are continuing the work of the Joint Distribution Committee," he wrote to Mr. Warburg. "I am able to review in memory the period of more than 12 years of its constructive endeavors, many of them in concert with organizations over which I presided. I trust that the national conference of the Joint Distribution Committee will result in continuation of the hearty co-operation and support which have made possible the success that has hitherto accompanied its benevolent activities."

PERMIT SOVIET JEWS TO USE RYE FLOUR FOR MATZOS

Gives Permission Under Rule That Allows Use of Flour for Passover in Times of Distress

Moscow, Mar. 27—(JTA) — Owing to the scarcity of white flour and to the fear that the poor sections of the Jewish population would thus dispense with the use of matzos for the coming Passover holidays, the Rabbi of Briansk recently legalized the use of rye flour for the baking of matzos. As a result of this ruling the matzoh bakeries in various parts of the country are working overtime to fill belated orders.

Last year the Russian Rabbis, abandoning hope of receiving matzos from abroad, permitted the use of leavened flour for matzoh baking under the rule that allows the use of ordinary market flour for Passover purposes in times of distress.

The Center of the World

Dr. Judah L. Magnes, Chancellor of the Hebrew University, in Palestine, has come for a visit to the United States in behalf of the university. His visit brings to the attention of the American public the fact that the Hebrew University has, in the six years of its existence, established itself as an institution of high scientific worth. Something of the character of that institution and of the man who heads it is told in this article secured by the Jewish Telegraphic Agency and The Jewish Herald—Editor's Note.

His son David is at an English university studying horticulture, so that he may return to apply his learning to the soil of Palestine. "You see, my son is a case in point," says the father. "We have no place in Palestine where he may conduct those studies. If the university is able to develop its plans to take over the Jewish Agency's agricultural experiment station, and its further plans in the natural sciences, there may be a proper training school for such boys."

His second son, Jonathan, is on his way to California to study agricultural engineering. While the father addressed a meeting of influential Jews, scientists, men high in many professions, at the Savoy-Plaza Hotel after a dinner given in his honor, the boy—about 18, he still says, "eighteen and a half"—found a place at a table in the very farthest corner of the room. He was more or less hidden by a grand piano. Beside him sat his comrade from the settlement Gevah in Palestine, a young chap with the peculiarly clear skin, the gentle "idealist" face peculiar to a young man from Palestine's settlements. The two young men naturally talked in Hebrew through the evening, though Jonathan's earliest breeding had been in English, and though his companion understood English. The companion was, as is frequent among the chaltzim, a vegetarian. Jonathan's hands attracted the fascinated attention of his table-neighbor. The hands of the university chancellor's son were great broad farmer's hands, for he has been two seasons a farming comrade at Gevah. Someone at the table remembered the name of the place, recalled having visited the settlement. "That's the one that's so well kept, isn't it?" he asked. The eyes of the young agriculturist lighted. "That's the place," he said. And indeed Gevah is known among all the settlements for the bright cleanliness of its houses, its yard, the immaculate order of its barns and stables.

The boy listened brightly to the president of an American university praising his father for his achievement in developing a research faculty of so high a standing within six years. The boy's eyes were cool, observant, detached, and yet passionately interested; the eyes of a good student. His great farmer's hands were shredding bits of paper matches, as a farmer's hands habitually shred strands of wheat.

With the same detached, observant manner, the boy listened to his father tell of the university.

Dr. Judah L. Magnes, the Chancellor of the Hebrew University, spoke with an enthusiasm, a warmth toward his work, that even his own son might rarely have seen. Standing on Mount Scopus, looking through the sultry, vibrating desert-heated air toward the red walls of the Moab Hills that were beyond the Dead Sea, or turning the other way and looking toward strange jumbled Jerusalem, with its medieval wall, its modern buildings spurted without the bounds of the wall, its glided Byzantine towers and its Gothic towers and its hooded low-domed old-city roofs, one might be thrilled to speak as the man in the gold room of the Savoy-Plaza Hotel was speaking.

He told of how he had looked down from Mount Scopus and seen Anathoth, still called by that name, the village where Jeremiah lived; to him this was the city of Jeremiah; he thought constantly of that man, who must have been a wiry, small, stony man, stubborn in his high morality, daily going up and down these hills; that man's time, Dr. Magnes felt, was a turbulent time, a time of a decaying world, of social forms breaking, like our own times.

There, Jeremiah had made his great contribution to human understanding; this Mount Scopus, the hill of Jeremiah and the hill of Moses, was still the hill of their people, was still their creative center.

Amazing, a continual source for wonder, the way all strands seemed to knot together at this one point.

From the very beginning of Jewish legend, and through legends of other people, this had been called the center of the world. On the next hill, on the sight of the Temple, was still a stone pointed to by believers in Islam, as the stone that was at the center of the world.

Certainly a conception that could not be compatible with modern geographical conceptions, and yet, how far incompatible.

Palestine had always been the bridge of armies between Asia and Africa, the landing place for armies between Europe and the continents of the East. Europe, Asia, Africa, had made this their historical meeting place. But, even more curious, modern scientists were to find a basis in geology for that "center of the world" conception.

There is an imaginary line, the chancellor explained, that goes from Senegal in Africa right through Asia to the Great Desert of Sin. On one side of that line are the desert formations of earth, groups of plants, vegetations, worms, insects, animals, of one general adaptation; on the other side of that line are the "Mediterranean" groups, the luxurious growth of plant and animal life.

Sharp as a knife line, that boundary cuts through Palestine, and Mount Scopus is on that line.

On the side looking toward Jerusalem are the Mediterranean formations; rich soil suitable to citrus plants, luxuriant farming, exotic flowers; beetles, worms of the earth, abounding insects; on the other side of the same university hill, toward the Dead Sea, are the desert formations, desert plants, dry farming soils, locusts.

The scientists of the university have segregated plots of land on both sides of the hill. They walk out from the university gates, five minutes toward Jerusalem, and come to their experiment station where the Mediterranean nature is allowed to live freely, where wild plants and insects' nature to the region grow. At all hours of the night and day, the scientists of the university come out to conduct their studies; some with enlarging glasses, some with butterfly nets, at 2 in the morning, at 2 of a hot summer afternoon.

In this simple fact of scientific location, too, there seems something of intended significance. Everything flows together into this knot that is the center of Jewish life, that seems in so many ways the center of the world.

All people are here, all religions, all forms of society from the practical serfdom of the fellah to the communal forms of the new settlers; all languages seem to be spoken here, from the Aramic of a few stragglers that have come to Jerusalem from Jewish tribes isolated in a far Syrian region, the Aramic that was spoken at the beginning of this era, to the modern languages, English, French, German, Russian, Polish, and the re-born Hebrew.

The Hebrew University is growing, slow, surely. The man who speaks tells why he has taken the slow course. True, all over the world, Jews press for results. Jews are kept out of universities; even in the United States they find it sometimes difficult to secure place; in France, there are 800 Jewish students at a single university—they have come from everywhere—and the Hebrew University in Jerusalem has only 200 undergraduate students. Jews press for results—can't there be two thousand students there, can't the giving of degrees be hastened?

But this Hebrew University stands at the center of the world, it is an outpost of science, a link between the old and the new, between the desert and the fertile lands, between Africa and Asia and Europe, between the Christian and Moslem and Jew; it must have deep foundations, deep and secure as the walls of Jerusalem. A few years and a few hundred college degrees is nothing in Jewish history. There must be science first, and truth.

The assembled professors applaud him, the chancellor in an American university expressed amazement at the achievement of the Hebrew University—the youngest in the world, and already, in some departments, the foremost. The young man nods in approval, whispers a word in Hebrew to his comrade, the other young farmer from Gevah.

Jewish Welfare Society Opens New Clothing Exchange

With a case load practically double what is expected in normal times, the Jewish Family Welfare Society is receiving the full brunt of the depression, and is exhausting every possible effort to meet the increased needs due to unemployment and related difficulties. In addition to large increases in its expenditures for relief, the society is seeking aid for its charges in several other ways, including direct appeals to leading Jewish business men for jobs and the opening of a clothing center and exchange.

The Providence Emergency Unemployment Committee has two placement offices, one for women and one for men, and these offices are being used as far as possible. In addition, there are certain kinds of employment and employers where Jewish persons are naturally preferred, if not required, and these sources of work are being sought. Readers of The Jewish Herald will confer direct and immediate aid if they will report openings for jobs directly to Miss Jessie Josolowitz at the office of the agency, 100 North Main street, or by telephone at Gaspee 3424.

The new clothing center is located in the same building as the office. So hard pressed have many people become that clothing with a residue of usefulness left in it is received very gladly by many of the families. The same telephone number will bring about arrangements to receive and distribute clothes for men, women and children where it will do the most good.

Many families who in normal times would hesitate to apply to a public agency for relief are forced to do so by the present circumstances. The employment situation is the direct cause. Where often relatives are approached for aid, they, too, often have no more than they need, and this door is closed. Comparative figures show the situation graphically. In January, 1930, the Jewish Family Welfare Society card for 36 families; in 1931 the number was 105. For February, the figures were 47 in 1930 and 111 in 1931. Already in March of this year, up to March 20, there were 112 families under care, with little doubt that the record, already broken, will reach very serious totals for the month.

Besides the normal needs for relief, the problem is further aggravated by the annual need for Passover relief. This is an annual task which cannot be overlooked or curtailed. Many families which manage somehow to get along without aid fall short when the special needs of this holiday arrive, and the few dollars required for matzos and other foods are not available. The society is meeting this need as fully as possible, and it seems likely that the families which will receive this assistance without notoriety will be much larger than in normal years.

A statement by Miss Josolowitz reveals the salient points of the situation:

"We are straining every effort to meet an unexpectedly large jump in the calls upon us for aid. Even with greatly increased expenditure of time and funds, we cannot meet the needs. Our work will be helped greatly if those who can will help us to find jobs and contribute clothing to our new clothing center. There will be some one waiting with a very grateful thank you from nine until five every day except Saturday and Sunday, either at the door or at the phone."

New York and Washington were present.

In the evening, the informal reception for the members and their guests was held at Jim Smith's Inn, Pawtucket. Covers were laid for seventy-two guests. The fraternity emblems and banners were hung around the hall, giving the Inn a fraternity house atmosphere. Vases of spring flowers formed the table decorations.

Following the dinner, entertainment was furnished by the guests. Too much can not be said about the fine spirit of good fellowship which pervaded the entire evening. The honored guests were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gony of this city. Mr. Gony has been connected with the drug business for many years.

Mr. Charles L. Cohen of this city was in complete charge of the event.

FAMILY SABBATH OBSERVED

Because the Festival of Passover is the time when the whole family gets together and is a festival in which the child plays a most important role, the congregation will observe its "Annual Family Sabbath" on the Friday evening of the Passover week, April 3rd. The whole service is planned so that the boys and girls of the school will sit together with their parents and about twenty pupils of the school will participate both in leading the services and in presenting ideas of what the Religious School is accomplishing. The musical program will consist only of school hymns and the officers of the school council will act as ushers. The following pupils will present the program of this service:

Grade 1B, Milton Richmond, Mil-lard Levy, Beatrice Klibanoff, Claire Samdperil, Leonard Blazar; Grade 1A, Ruth Berman, Shirley Sackett; Grade 2, Edward Lief; Grade 3, Mitchell Blazar; Grade 6, Lester Salter; Grade 5, Melvin Swartz and several others; Grade 7, Maurice Pullman. The above are from the Hebrew School. The following will present programs from the Sunday School: Pre-Confirmation Class, Sylvia Kniznick; Confirmation Class, Muriel Krevolin; School Council, Milton Jacobs; B. M. B., Abbott Lieberman; B. M. S., Hilda Greenberg; Shomrai Tsion, Theodore Sack.

After the services there will be an exhibition in the Vestry of the arts and crafts work done in the Religious School. This will be in charge of Miss Lillian Blistein, the director of arts and crafts in the school. This service attracts hundreds of people annually and the school board most earnestly urges all to attend.

FLORAL OFFERING

The floral offering for this coming Sabbath is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lerner, in memory of their dear departed mother, Mrs. Fanny Leichter. May her memory be for a blessing to all who cherish it.

CLASSES PRESENT GIFTS

As a result of the recent exhibition of Prof. Boris Schatz at the Temple, the Confirmation Classes of 1930 and 1931 have purchased two bronze plaques, one entitled, "Kabbalos Shabbos" and the other, "Haydalah." Mrs. Isaac Woolf was the chairman of the Mothers' Club of the Confirmation Class of 1930.

SCOUTS' PARENTS' NIGHT

Scout Troop 20 of the Temple held a special Parents' night program on Thursday evening, March 26th. Mr. Abe Goldstein is the Scoutmaster and a most enjoyable program was offered before a large gathering of parents.

A play was presented and pins were distributed for one hundred per cent. duty.

Willis S. Pino Seedsman

Pino's Seed Store, located at 41-43 Washington street at Eddy street, in Providence, has for years conducted a well regulated retail seed store, catering to trade requiring strictly high grade Vegetable, Flower and Lawn Seeds, Insecticides, Fertilizers and countless items usually stocked in similar stores in the larger cities.

Flower seeds are among the more important items and one that has required constant study to keep up with the rapidly changing sources of supply and improved types of many varieties. This also applies to vegetable seeds, although this line is dependent more upon care and selection of stocks which is as important in vegetables as the improved types of flowers.

Some of the important side lines stocked are Bird Seed and general supplies, Gold Fish, Aquariums, Fish Foods, Aerating Plants, Flower Pots and Saucers, in a very complete assortment, Tree Tubs and Plant Trel-lis.

Plants of Perennials and Annual Flowers are shown in fine assortment in their season.

The 1931 catalogue is ready for distribution and is yours for the asking.

Dancing was in order from nine to one, and music was furnished by Bernie Siegal and His Alconians. The patronesses were Mrs. Sarah Schlansky, Mrs. Maurice Rubin, Mrs. Shane Schlansky, Mrs. John Shaver, Mrs. Isaac Kibrik and Mrs. David Decter.

The committee in charge of arrangements included Flora Schlansky, chairman; Marion Rubin, Sadye Kibrik, Ida Decter, Alice Kibrik, Anne Dunn, Rae Shallen, Freida Shaver and Mrs. Sarah Daniels.

Y. W. H. A. MEETS

Miss Ethel Finklestein of Providence was a guest at the meeting of the Y. W. H. A. held recently in the Vestry of the B'nai Israel Synagogue, at which time one new member, Mrs. Israel Goldstein, was welcomed into the association.

Mrs. Daniels reported the purchase of the loving cup to be presented to the local winner of the essay contest sponsored by the Associated Y. M. and Y. W. H. A. of New England. A letter of appreciation was received from Abe Hopp, Secretary of the local B'nai B'rith Organization, for the assistance of members who served as waitresses at the organization's installation and supper a few weeks ago.

A special committee to present an entertainment following next month's meeting consists of Misses Rebecca Bletcher, Eva Garelick, Bernadine Lavine, Anne Susel, Charlotte Droll and Esther Golden.

Following the meeting a skit, entitled "Palm Beach," was presented with Rose Helfand, Ada Levein, Charlotte Zimmerman, Esther Cardon and Fannie Dunn participating. Refreshments were served.

A. Z. A. CHAPTER

ORGANIZED HERE

The second step toward the forming of a fraternal association for Jewish youth of this city from the ages of 16 to 21, was taken when a group of boys interested in the movement, met in the B'nai Israel Synagogue and organized an Aleph Zadik Aleph Club.

The first important work accomplished by the group was the election of officers, who will serve for the remainder of the year, as follows: Irving Levein, President; Robert Dunn, Vice President; Zelmor Levein, Secretary; Morris Baker, Treasurer; Paul Cohen, Inner Guard; Joseph Brown, Outer Guard; Nathan Bader, Reporter; Irving Zimmerman, Chaplain.

Joseph Eisenberg, chairman of the special B'nai B'rith Committee, that aided in the forming of the chapter, addressed the boys, explaining the functions of the A. Z. A. He informed the members that it is a well-organized secret fraternity with branches in all parts of the United States and in several foreign countries. The movement is a comparatively new one, the first charter having been granted eight years ago.

Application has been made at national headquarters for a charter and the fraternity will begin its work as soon as word has been received that the charter was granted.

COLONEL SAMUELS' GIFT

It is a great achievement for one man to make his life a source of happiness for others. Sometimes men of genius are given this privilege by the power of seeing into men's lives. They are enabled to create work of art, they are able to write music, they are gifted with the vision that makes possible great novels or plays. In many ways, they are the greatest benefactors of mankind. We shall never be able to estimate the joy and peace which men like Shakespeare and Michaelangelo and Beethoven have given to many generations of humanity.

There is another kind of genius, however, which modern times have not failed to recognize. This is the genius of giving, the ability to see the real needs of mankind and to be able to fill them. Modern philanthropy has become not only a science but an art. In the hands of men like Nathan Straus and Felix Warburg, the act of giving has a grace that is akin to a great painting or a noble piece of music. We see in the establishment of a needed soup kitchen by a wealthy man something of his ardor for mankind, something of his passion for service and something of his heart's best feeling, even as we see in symphony some of the composer's passion and thought.

For Colonel Joseph Samuels there is a similar creative beauty in his establishment of a dental clinic for poor children. The industry and intelligence of the man in business has made this present philanthropy possible. Yet, the significance of it shows a vision and a love of humanity that we associate with genius. Here in this city of Providence, Colonel Samuels, one of our fellow-Jews, has had the vision of a dental clinic associated with a completely equipped hospital such as exists nowhere else in this country. The founding of such a clinic is a step forward in medical practice, inspired as it is by a great and good feeling for the children of the city.

The presentation of the medal and scroll of the Rhode Island State Dental Society to Colonel Samuels shows the esteem in which his work is held. That, however, as well as the speeches of his generous friends are incomplete testimonials of the far-reaching effects of the new clinic. As a newspaper review of a work of art can never tell what influences will be spread by it, so little can the present praises estimate the final value of the clinic. Perhaps the best rewards of the splendid gift will be the many unexpressed words of thanks in the hearts of all those youngsters who will benefit from it in the future. Colonel Samuels has done a fine and notable deed for his city.

By the Way

Tidbits and News of Jewish Personalities

told the story how a messenger from the office of Morris came to Salomon while he was in "schule" at the Yom Kippur services, and said money was needed at once. Salomon approached some of the other members of the congregation, but they said—Nothing can be done—it's Yom Kippur, isn't it? How can we handle money?

And Salomon, who is as orthodox as the rest, says, "Yes, but the government has got to have it."

The Truth of Myths

Now that story sounds very legendary, and may very well never have happened, but, nevertheless, I do not believe, you can dismiss a legend as easily as all that. Scratch a legend, and you will find some truth under it.

Let me give an illustration of what I mean. There are a thousand stories attributed to Lincoln, which, it may be taken for granted, Lincoln never said. Certainly, it cannot be possible that he joked all of his life away, as the numerous stories, attributed to him, would indicate. And yet these stories were born of the spirit of Lincoln—they are Lincolnesque—they typify the man. And when such a legend was woven around Salomon—the course of his life—must have suggested it. This Salomon legend though possibly untrue, probably depicts the man better than any amount of historical research.

Admits Salomon's Imprisonment

Mr. Kohler, in his pamphlet, says he accepts the story of Salomon's imprisonment by the British in the Provost. Well, I believe that was in 1778.

Now consider this: John Adams estimated that about one-third of the people, and that the better class, were loyal to England, even after the Declaration of Independence. And yet here was Salomon, an immigrant, only several years in the country, already in prison—so ardently did he espouse the cause of the Revolution!

Salomon in the Diary of Morris

And take that diary of Robert Morris, the financial genius of the Revolution. When that diary mentions Salomon on almost every other page—what are you going to say about it? Of course, Morris doesn't tell much—it's the laconic—"I sent for Haym Salomon"—and that's about all. Morris was a business man—and he was brief, like all business men, yet the mere fact that his name occurs there more than any other is significant and cannot be brushed aside.

History's Exaggerations

Yet for all that, Mr. Kohler is right in saying, that Salomon's services have been exaggerated. This is probably true about most of the heroes of history. If that were not true, it would not have been possible for all of these latter day biographers to arise. Their meat has been the debunking—and you can't debunk unless there is some bunk.

History always manages to add some myth to the composition of every one of its heroes. Read your modern history of John Hancock, for instance, and find out, how drastic were the efforts to keep that statesman going straight—how Sam Adams continually tempted him with ostentatious posts to satisfy the itch of Hancock for publicity. Read your modern story of Paul Revere, and find out how he was paid for his midnight ride and how his bills for his messenger service were always in need of pruning down.

Enough Is Left

I believe Mr. Kohler thoroughly when he says that it was with great reluctance that he issued his brochure, and I think he has made out a good case against the exaggerations in the Salomon story. He himself thinks a great deal of Salomon, and I believe there is enough left, in the Salomon story, that is unimpeachable, to justify this memorial.

Passover, the Feast of Emancipation

The Jewish people will usher in the celebration of the Feast of Emancipation (Pesach) on Wednesday evening, April 1, 1931, with a joyous service in the home. The "Seder" service is of particular educational interest because the children actively participate in it. According to the Bible, the holiday is celebrated for a period of seven days during which no leavened bread is eaten. It is one of the three festivals of the Jewish calendar when, in ancient days, the Jews of Palestine would make pilgrimages to the Temple at Jerusalem. Today, it ranks as one of the most important holidays in Jewish life because of its historic background and because of its signal message to mankind at large.

The remote origin of this festival may be traced to the time when Israel dwelt in Palestine and engaged in tilling the soil. The return of spring was of special significance to them, since they were an agricultural people. It marked the beginning of the reaping of the barley harvest. The people took the first fruits of their harvest and brought them to the Temple at Jerusalem. There they offered them to God with gladness and thanksgiving. Thus, like most of the Jewish holidays, Passover began as a nature festival.

With the passage of time, however, the appeal of Passover as a nature festival gradually disappeared, and in its stead there was attached to it a story of the deliverance of the children of Israel from the yoke of Egyptian bondage, as vividly depicted in the Book of Exodus.

When mighty Pharaohs ruled over the land of Egypt, they enslaved the children of Israel who dwelt in their midst. Cringing beneath the taskmaster's lash, the slaves labored with the sweat of their brows, building cities, palaces and pyramids. Moses beheld their great affliction, and sought to deliver them from their misery and suffering. Time and again he appealed to Pharaoh to send them out of the land of Egypt as free men; but Pharaoh would not hearken. Fin-

Faith

Oh! world, thou chooseth not the better part,
It is not wisdom to be only wise,
And on the inward vision close the eyes;
But it is wisdom to believe the heart.
Columbus found a world and had no chart
Save one that Faith deciphered in the skies;
To trust the soul's invincible surmise
Was all his science and his only art.
Our knowledge is a touch of smoky pine.
That lights the pathway but one step ahead
Across the void of mystery and dread.
Bid then the tender light of Faith to shine
By which alone the mortal heart is led Into the thinking way of thought Divine.
—Santayana.

ally, when the first-born sons of Egypt were smitten, Pharaoh sent the children of Israel out of his land, and Moses led them through the wilderness, teaching them the laws of God so that they might become a holy people.

Throughout the ages, this vivid account of the Book of Exodus has inspired the Jewish people to keep alive the vision of freedom in the midst of servitude and oppression.

mit the holders thereof to any seat in the orchestra at the Majestic Theatre during the week of March 27th to April 2nd, inclusive.

Two feature talking pictures will be shown on the screen during that period. The first is "Aloha" with a large cast headed by Ben Lyon and Raquel Torres, and the second, "The Costello Case," with Tom Moore and Lola Lane.

Every one patronizes a "movie" at least once a week, and those purchasing tickets from the committee in this instance will not only lend their assistance to a worthy philanthropy, but an excellent entertainment will be enjoyed at the nominal fee of fifty cents.

Tickets may be obtained at the Mathewson Toggery Shop, 127 Mathewson street, or from the following committee members: Mrs. Morris Waldman, 225 Blackstone street; Mrs. Peter Wolf, 381 Lloyd avenue; Mrs. Morris Berry, 97 Babcock street; Mrs. Charles M. Hoffman, 141 Lenox avenue.

SPORTING WORLD

NEWS WRITTEN FOR THE JEWISH HERALD BY GEORGE JOEL

JEWISH WRESTLER TO HAVE CHANCE AT MAT CROWN

Chunky Herbert Freeman, peer of the Jewish professional wrestlers and another "pride of the East Side," will get a chance to become wrestling champion of the world. The only thing Herb has to do is to pin the broad shoulders of Jim Londos to the mat in Madison Square Garden when the two meet next week. Herb's chances of turning this little trick are slight, but in wrestling you never can tell what will happen.

Freeman has been coming along nicely these past months, but not until the other night was he even considered a contender for the championship. It was only after he puffed, tugged and grunted his way to a 39-minute victory over Gino Garibaldi that he was nominated as an opponent of champ Londos.

HAKOAH FAILS TO WIN WAY INTO SOCCER CUP GAMES

After playing bang-up soccer for a few weeks and getting everyone all het-up over their prospects for the championships the Hakoah All-Stars went into a slump which ended disastrously with a defeat at the hands of the Newark Americans by the score of 2-0. Losing that game definitely eliminated the Hakoah team from further cup play. If they had won they would have had to play Sam Mark's Fall River team, the winner to be Eastern representative in the National Challenge Cup competition.

GOLDSTEIN FAMILY DOES ITS SHARE IN BROOKLYN ATHLETICS

The Goldstein family of Brooklyn, N. Y., has compiled a record as an athletic family that is hard to beat. Five of the Goldstein boys have been or still are active in scholastic athletics in that borough. With Sam 26, Manny 23, Raymond 21, Herman 17, Lester 16, this family has had at least one of its members in high school sport since 1920 and that is only part of the story as there are three more almost ready to make their marks—Murray 10, Leonard 8 and Norman 6.

All of the first named five were brought up in the Bensonhurst section of New York, and with the exception of Lester, were graduated from the same public school.

Sammy, Manny and Ray are products of Boys' High School, where they played baseball and soccer. Ray also did a little swimming in addition. Sam, the oldest, caught on the Boys' High baseball team and was succeeded at that position by Manny. Ray was an outfielder.

Continuing his athletic career when he entered the University of Pennsylvania, Sammy was the outside left on Coach Stewart's Intercollegiate title winning soccer team and was considered good enough for professional ball, but turned down all offers to enter Columbia University Law School. He has been graduated from that college and is now awaiting admission to the bar.

Manny and Ray went to Penn's bitterest rival—Cornell. Later Manny attended Brooklyn Law School, while Ray took medicine at the Long Island Medical College.

The current contingent of Goldsteins are at Lincoln High School and are headed by Herman, who was quarterback on the Lincoln football team last fall. Lester subbed for his brother so there was always at least one Goldstein on the field. Both boys are in their sixth term and are candidates for the baseball team. Herman is an outfielder and Lester plays second base. The pair are also members of the swimming squad.

Simon Goldstein, the father of the boys, is a shoe merchant, and his only sport is golf. He claims that he can crack 100 and is very proud of that fact. No word was forthcoming from Mrs. Goldstein except that she thought her family was just about the right size.

By unanimous vote the family agrees that Sam is the best all-around athlete. Lester, who seems to be the most enthusiastic of the boys, says that he is trying to persuade Sam to join an All-Goldstein basketball team, which their father will outfit.

KING LEVINSKY TO TAKE ORDERS FROM HIS SISTER

Prize fight matchmakers were notified recently that if they were interested in securing the services of King Levinsky, the Chicago ex-peddler and heavyweight, they must communicate with Miss Lena Levy, who is a sister of Levinsky. The difference in names is not explained. A Mr. Alvis was the manager of Levinsky until the Tuffy Griffith match finished. After the fight, when the pay receipts were being tossed about the "King" found out that Griffith got $25,000 and Levinsky $2000. Alvis got his walking papers. You can't fool around with a peddler.

MACCABEE DRIVE GETS UNDERWAY

The following is a letter I received from Mr. Minsky which, I believe, will be of great interest to those honestly interested in Jewish sports:

"We are organizing chapters of the M. A. A. in Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia for the present. We also are making a national appeal for all Jewish athletic organizations to affiliate themselves with us. The world-wide Jewish Olympiad is being held at Tel Aviv, Palestine, in the summer of next year, and we expect to send a delegation of athletes. No athlete or club can represent the United States unless they are affiliated with the Maccabee Association of America. Applications for membership in the M. A. A. should be sent immediately to the Secretary, Louis Minsky, 159 East 116th street, New York City. Please do not omit name and address.

Membership in the M. A. A. is open only to strictly amateur organizations. We have had an application from the powerful Maccabee All Stars Athletic Club of Chicago, but we have had to turn it down owing to its being a professional club. We are, however, welcoming the amateur teams connected with that club.

I am happy to say, that over 250 clubs have already applied to the headquarters of the World Maccabee Union in Berlin for permission to send a team to the Olympiad."

CHATTERINGS

Not much room left this week, but just enough to tell you that Jack Grossman, all-around Rutgers athlete, has been elected honorary captain of the basketball for the season just closed. It is an academic distinction.

R. I. State College

The first breath of spring finds fraternity and sorority houses throwing the doors and windows wide open, dragging the radios out on the porch, students lounging about and doing everything but study. It seems that Kingston is the first place in Rhode Island that the trees starting turning to green and birds are seen at random. As we look at the calendar we find that there is approximately eight weeks after the Easter recess before the current school year will be terminated.

Mitch Gertz, '33, of Providence, has just finished the words and music to the new Rhode Island State Fight Song. The song is being well received by the student body and is to be introduced formally by the double quartet at the next concert of the Glee Club.

Harry J. Prebluda, '32, of Fall River, Mass., has just donated a loving cup to the brother of Alpha Epsilon Pi Fraternity who distinguishes himself most in outside curricula activities. Mr. Prebluda has himself taken part in more outside activities than any student at State, and he hopes to encourage others to do the same. The cup is to be presented at the completion of each school year, and is to be the permanent possession of the house.

GRAF ZEPPELIN TO FLY OVER PALESTINE SOME TIME IN APRIL

Jerusalem, Mar. 27—(JTA)—Word was received here recently that the Graf Zeppelin would make a flight to Palestine in April.

O. H. C. NEWS

NOTES

One more member in our midst has seen fit to desert the bachelor ranks and join the merry parade to the altar. This time it was Jack Hassenfeld, who got married in New York last Sunday. We certainly wish you plenty of happiness, Jack.

Harry Dimond has finally landed the honor of holding up the O. H. C. Bowling League—from the bottom. He had a hard fight to beat Rosenberg and Shindler, but finally succeeded. "A prize is a prize, even if it is a booby prize," says Harry.

"Does anyone know anything about a dance that the O. H. C. is running on Thursday, April 9, the last night of Passover?" asks Mr. Irving Schretter, our social director. All those who wish to enlighten Mr. Schretter, kindly be present on that date at the newly renovated Arcadia Ballroom. Let's all make it one big surprise party.

Mr. Joseph Wurafic, former Secretary of the O. H. C., has been chosen as representative of the Sanitary Engineers of the State Board, to attend the annual meeting of Sanitary Engineers which was held in Cincinnati from March 16 to 26. Only 20 states can be represented each year, but Rhode Island has been fortunate enough to be represented two successive years. On his return, Mr. Wurafic may give a short talk to the members.

BOWLING NEWS

The High Five of the O. H. C. Bowling League are representing that club in the Jewish Inter-Club League. By their excellent bowling last week they defeated the Old Timers and resumed their first place in the league, which they have held almost since the league began.

Sees Hope for Jewish Physicians In Socialization of Medicine

Cincinnati, Mar. 27—(JTA) — The "Socialization of Medicine," if and when it is brought about, will solve the problem of discrimination against Jewish medical students, asserts Mrs. Estelle M. Sternberger in the April issue of the B'nai B'rith Magazine, which will appear next week.

Mrs. Sternberger, a member of the executive committee of the National Conference of Jews and Christians, Executive Secretary of the National Council of Jewish Women, and a leader in many other Jewish national bodies, sums up the results of the year-old nation-wide controversy on the admission policies of medical schools as they concern Jewish applicants, in her article, "Are Medical Schools Unfair to Jewish Applicants?" Much can be said on both sides, she feels, and she says it.

"A study of applications to medical schools supplies the unmistakable evidence that Jewish applicants constitute a ratio far in excess of their ratio to the population of the entire country," she concludes. "These figures mean that the Jews have an eagerness to enter the medical profession and to give themselves to the type of service it requires. It seems a policy of folly on the part of society to discourage the ambitions of one of the groups of its population in the direction of medical service, when the signs of the times point to the day when society may go begging for men to enter the medical profession for the welfare of all groups, under a new program of providing medical service. The question of discrimination against Jewish applicants by medical schools is therefore one of wider bearing than that of prejudice against a religious or racial group. Society is, in fact, penalizing young men who have an ambition to serve their fellow-beings."

Jewish Students Win Honors at Harvard, Boston U. and Yale

Burroughs Newboys' Foundation, has been awarded the Jacob Sleeper Fellowship by the trustees of Boston University, the highest honor the institution bestows upon its students. The award carries a gift of $750 in cash, and is given to aid the continuance of advanced study of a foreign tongue.

Mr. Lapidus is at present specializing in the study of the French language in France, and was cabled by the university authorities that he had won the coveted fellowship.

Cambridge, Mar. 27—(JTA)—Four Jewish students have been awarded scholarships at the close of the mid-year period by vote of the Harvard University corporation. Saul G. Silverman of Cleveland won the Ruthford B. Hayes Scholarship, Richard S. Grossman of Chicago won the Williston-Beale Scholarship, and Julius Rosenberg of New York and Emanuel Jacoby of New York were awarded the Harvard Law School Association Scholarships for the first year in the law school.

New Haven, Mar. 27—(JTA)—Over 10 per cent. of the 699 Yale students, Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores and Freshmen, who were named ranking scholars are Jews. Of the total number of ranking scholars 75 are Jews.

CENTRAL VEREIN TO PROTEST NEW HITLERITE OUTRAGES

Berlin, Mar. 27 — (JTA) — The presidium of the Central Association of German Citizens of the Jewish Faith recently decided to make representations to the Government as well as to the federal states regarding the recently renewed attacks on Jews in various parts of the country by National Socialists, particularly the shooting of M. Lassally, a Jewish police officer, in Hamburg, and the stabbing of Arthur Knopf, a Jewish peddler, in a Prussian village.

In addition to intervening with the Reich and Federal governments, the Central Association will organize a number of mass meetings in the provinces to enlighten the populace as to the danger of the Hitlerites' anti-Jewish agitation.
