Tidbits and News of
Jewish Personalities
By DAVID SCHWARTZ

Judaism as Medicine

You have heard of people professing to have been cured by Christian Science. I suppose our friends, the Jewish Scientists, claim similar restorations.

And our Chassidic friends, of course, point to numerous cures by the "Rebbe." But have you ever heard of good old time Judaism effecting a cure? So listen to this—a story I get from Rabbi Solomon Metz of Washington.

X Takes Pills and Powders

X had been ailing for some years. He went to one doctor—to another, and still another. One doctor gave him a tonic; another, pills; a third, a powder; a fourth, recommended the removal of his tonsils; a fifth, thought his molars ought to be drawn out. Now this is no funny story. As I have said, Rabbi Metz vouches for it.

The long and short of it is that X went around, despite all his doctoring with a wry face. He had pains in the region of his stomach. That looked like stomach trouble. But in another moment these pains would switch to his back, and he thought it must be lumbago. Then the aches would go to his feet and he was sure it was rheumatism.

Well, to make a long story short, one day X was sitting quietly sipping bicarbonate of soda and chewing aspirin as he mused over his aches and his pains, when Joe came along.

Sam and Christian Science

"Hello," said Joe.
"Don't hello me, Joe. If you had my aches and pains you wouldn't hello so much," said X.

"Too bad. You ought to go and see the doctor," said Joe.

"Listen, Joe," said X, "if one one apple a day keeps a doctor away, then during the last year, I did not eat over a hundred apples."

"Too bad," repeated Joe. "By the way, X, did you hear that Sam, who was sick so long, was cured by taking up Christian Science?"

"Oh, yeah?" said X, sitting up all alert.

Takes to Judaism

Now I may have given the impression that X was a rather simple sort of person. If you have received that impression, you are all wrong, for in an unsystematic sort of way, X was well educated, and as far as Hebrew goes, very well educated.

And when Joe told X that the more simple Sam had been cured by Christian Science, it aroused something in him. It threw something into his machinery. He got up and paced the floor. You could see that he was excited.

I know what you think, reader. You think it gave X the idea that he, too, should take up Christian Science.

But you are all wrong. For the idea, it gave him, was just the contrary. It gave him the idea that he should take up Judaism.

And Healing Comes

X said to himself, if Christian Science, a religion started by a simple woman, can cure Sam, surely Judaism, with all its heritage, with its rich historical, intellectual and emotional content, can cure me.

"Faith of our Fathers, thou shalt heal me," said X, as he brushed the dust off a Gemarah, which had lain unopened for years in his book case.

X began to go to schule. If you don't know what a schule is, let me tell you that a schule is a synagogue. It was around Succoth time,

Louis Dembitz Brandeis

By ELIZABETH GLENDOWER EVANS

The author of the following article is a life long friend of Justice Brandeis with whom she has been befriended practically since childhood—Editor's Note.

Louis Dembitz Brandeis, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court at Washington, will be 75 years of age on Nov. 13, 1931. It is hard to say whether he is more loved and honored by the non-Jews of the United States to whom he belongs by the elections of his parents by his own early choice, or by the Jews to whom he belongs by inheritance and by his own later choice. His parents came to this country soon after the revolutionary outburst of Europe in 1848 when it seemed as if the kings of every land would topple from the thrones to which they thought themselves divinely appointed and from which they mercilessly oppressed their people.

It was soon after this revolutionary outburst of 1848 that Adolph Brandeis and his betrothed bride, Fredrika Dembitz, sought this country, members of a group of twenty-six persons who came intending to establish themselves as tillers of the soil in our republic. The group included the family governess and great vases of household furniture, including a grand piano, and the wedding chests of two betrothed brides! The story of this romantic migration has been written by Josephine Goldmark, the daughter of Regina Wehle, who had been a child member of the group under the title, "Pilgrims of '48" and which gives a thrilling insight into the old world culture and the hardships which the emigrants experienced in the sparsely settled Middle West where they elected to try their fortunes. A few of them gave up and went back to the old country. Adolph Brandeis, the Justice's father, finally became a grain merchant in Kentucky and his fortunes flourished with the abounding West. His house with spacious lawns and elm trees and stables became a center where persons of musical and other talents loved to assemble. There Louis D. Brandeis was born and there he grew up.

When the Justice was 18 years of age he entered the Harvard Law School. He was a slim young lad who had suffered from a strain of his eyes and the doctors advised him that his physique should be debar from legal training and practice. But the legal profession was one on which his heart was set, so he hired fellow-law school students to read to him, while he tutored other students to pay his way, his father's fortunes having temporarily suffered in the financial crash of 1873. In the Law School, Louis Brandeis achieved a reputation as the most brilliant student who had ever been graduated. He left Cambridge with a few hundred dollars in his pocket with which to start out in the world after he had repaid the advances which his family had made to put him through the school.

Spent Eight Months in St. Louis

From the Law School, Mr. Brandeis went to St. Louis, where he had connections which led straight to influence and power. But after eight months he returned to Boston, drawn hither by his friendship with a former fellow-student, Samuel Dennison Warren, with whom he entered into partnership, and drawn likewise, I like to imagine, by the rich cultural life which Boston offered. Here the homes of Boston's best "Brahmins" were flung wide open to one of his rare social attractions. At that time the race prejudice against the Jews was not known in this country, and Mr. Brandeis, as American as any in the land, was the last person to feel—"I am a Jew." He had never attended a synagogue, nor been trained in the religion of his ancestors. And it was not until 1910, when he was ranking high in his profession, and likewise high as a "Tribune of the People," a title which he had won from his activities in defending the rights of the American from the encroachments of corporate interests, that a chance meeting with Jacob de Haas told him a story which enthralled his imagination and dramatically changed his future. This meeting occurred at the time that he and A. Lincoln Filene had been called to effect a settlement in a furious strike which had broken out in New York in the Ladies' Garment Workers Trade, wherein he saw some 80,000 workers, most of them foreign born and non-English speaking, manufacturing clothing for the most part in their own homes at sweat-shop prices and under sweat-shop conditions.

Advocate of Trade Agreements

The remedy, as Mr. Brandeis saw it, was clearly for employer and employees to be organized and to make trade agreements. But what help in this for the workers unless they had a closed shop? And could the employers be asked to surrender their right to say whom they would employ? Mr. Brandeis' way of meeting this crux was to create a sort of governing board for the industry with an equal number of representatives from each side and with a non-partisan chairman—a position which he himself occupied for some months when the body was establishing itself in public estimation, "The Protocol of Peace," this settlement was called, and its methods have since then come to be adopted as a way out of the chaos of helplessly sweated labor. By the means of this governing board a solution was found for the conditions which prevailed generally in industry up to twenty years ago. The governing board and the non-partisan chairman is now well recognized and has been adopted by many progressive industries.

The type of mind seen in dealing with this garment strike has been shown in every one of the similar contests with which Mr. Brandeis was called upon to deal—trolley rates, gas rates, rates of railroad transportation, minimum wage laws, Alaskan land frauds, etc., etc. In every such case his mind moved like that of a statesman from some seemingly isolated issue to a basic principle and mapped out ways suitable for general applications. Always his mind moved toward creating a constitutional government in industry, until then carried on by a rule of "scrap," of "catch who catch can." And more and more one sees why it was that Louis D. Brandeis, who had come to Boston to be welcomed by the most well placed and the most conservative, presently found himself leading the fight between the freedom to which we in the United States of America had supposed we were born and the corporate powers which try to throttle it.

It was when Mr. Brandeis had come to be recognized at once as a brilliant lawyer who could be relied upon to defend legitimate corporate interest and likewise as a champion of the people—thanks to his prescience and to his disinterestedness, the streets of Boston granted subway rights of from 20 to 25 years against the 70 and even 99 years asked for by some companies, and that in general corporate interests have failed to own Massachusetts as they have come to own more than one of our 48 states—that there came to him this most unlooked for and most extraordinary experience.

Not Brought Up to Attend Synagogue

Adolph Brandeis nor his children had been brought up to attend the Synagogue nor to practise Jewish ceremonies. In this country they had been ardent sympathizers with the North in its struggle against slavery. In the later struggle of the government to maintain the gold standard, the family both in Kentucky and in Massachusetts had leaped into the ranks behind Grover Cleveland. A mugwump, Louis Brandeis had called himself in those days, and so in politics he might still be called. But in 1910 or thereabouts, he had heard from Jacob de Haas of the efforts of the Jews throughout the world to gather together in the homeland of their fathers and to develop there a culture peculiarly Jewish whose influence should go out to all people of their blood wherever they might be located and who should thus discover what Jews could achieve when working freely together in education, in social service, and in administration. Then came his intervention in the Ladies' Garment Workers strike, in which he had seen some 80,000 of his own race, mostly Russian, German or Roumanian born, strangers in that organization has as fine a musical program been presented as the one by Mr. Tieman, and many local people are looking forward to hearing him again on next Thursday evening. Several other features have been arranged, but the committee intends to hold them as a surprise. Samuel Silverman and his orchestra will furnish the music for dancing. Refreshments will be served during intermission.

Mrs. Bernstein states also that to date several out-of-town parties have informed her of their intention to attend and many more as in previous years are expected from Fall River, Newport, Taunton, Woonsocket and Pawtucket.

POLISH ATTACKS ON JEWS PROTESTED BY BOSTON JEWRY

Mass Meeting Is Held Tuesday at Temple Mishkan Tefila Center in Roxbury

Boston, Nov. 20 — (JTA) — Boston Jewry protested vigorously against the riots of which the Jews in Poland are the innocent victims, at a mass meeting held Tuesday evening at the Temple Mishkan Tefila Center, Roxbury. The meeting was called by the Boston Branch of the Federation of Polish Jews, headed by Harry M. Jacobs.

Impassioned pleas for the speedy restoration of order by the Polish Government and for the use of sterner measures in suppressing the atrocities that have spread throughout Poland were made by Prof. Nathan Isaacs of Harvard University, Rabbi Peretz Halpern of Temple Mishkan Tefila, Samuel Kalesky, President of the Boston Branch, American Jewish Congress; H. Murray Pakulski, Rabbi R. V. Landau and Alexander Brin, publisher of the "Jewish Advocate."

DR. ALBERT KAUFMAN SPEAKS AT HOWELL STREET SYNAGOGUE

Dr. Albert Kaufman, well known journalist and member of the editorial staff of "Opinion," the new Anglo-Jewish literary magazine, which is edited by James Waterman Wise, will speak before the congregation of the Howell Street Synagogue tonight.

Joseph M. Finkle will also speak and will introduce Dr. Kaufman.

ROGER STRAUS OF N. Y. TO SPEAK AT TEMPLE BETH-EL

Will Visit Here Next Friday in Connection With U. of A. H. C.
Annual Tour

On Friday, Nov. 27, Mr. Roger Williams Straus of New York City and Rabbi William Schwartz of Far Rockaway, N. Y., will address the congregation of Temple Beth-El. Their presence is in connection with the annual tour sponsored by the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. Every Reform Congregation in the country will be visited by different individuals in the hope of bringing home the message of the place and function of the Synagogue.

"The Synagogue stands for a group of ideals," announces Mr. David Brown, National Chairman of the tour. "In the wave of post-war depression, that has swept the world," he continues, "these ideals are in danger of being submerged. People are not as responsive as they formerly were. If we build up a faith in the significance of the Synagogue, we will have served the cause of religion and civilization to a very helpful degree."

Mr. Straus is the son of Oscar Straus, a former National President of the Brotherhood, and one of the eminent Jewish laymen of the country.

Rabbi Schwartz is the successor to Rabbi Isaac Landman in the pulpit of the Far Rockaway Congregation.

On last Friday, Rabbi Gup addressed the solicitors and executives of the Community Chest at their noon-day luncheon.

The Rabbi is a member of the advisory board which has in mind the furtherance of the work and aspirations of the Providence Symphony Orchestra.

The Jewish Olympic Games in Palestine

(An Interview With Dr. Alexander Rosenfeld, Vice President of World Maccabee).

By L. FONTAINE

Next year, from March 28th to 31st, from 2000 to 4000 Jewish athletes from all parts of the globe will gather at Tel-Aviv, Palestine and take part in the first world-wide Jewish Olympiad, or Maccabiad, as it will be known. The event is being held in commemoration of the 1800th anniversary of the death of Bar Cochba, the last of the Jewish warriors, who attempted to overthrow the yoke of the Romans.

The event is being staged by the World Maccabee Union, which is the union of Maccabee organizations in 26 countries in every section of the world. Dr. Alexander Rosenfeld, Vice President of the World Maccabee, is now in the United States for the purpose of interesting American Jews in the Maccabiad and also for the purpose of securing support for the erection of a special stadium in Tel Aviv, which will house the Jewish games and subsequently become the property of the Jewish youth of Palestine.

Dr. Rosenfeld was enthusiastic about the forthcoming games and about the Maccabee movement as a whole. Dr. Rosenfeld assured me that the world-wide depression would not prevent the Maccabiad from being held. On the contrary, in view of the situation in Palestine, Dr. Rosenfeld believes that the sight of 4000 Jewish athletes gathering at Tel Aviv next year and the thousands of visitors, will have a heartening effect upon the Jews of Palestine. The World Maccabee Union, he said, was determined to stage the Jewish games in spite of all obstacles. The Jewish youth of Europe and other sections of the world, as far off as Australia, were looking keenly forward to the games and would enter teams and no obstacle would keep them from Palestine next March.

This led Dr. Rosenfeld on to a discussion of the Jew in sports and I obtained the impression that sports and athletics were one of the major activities of the Jewish youth in almost every country in the world. Especially within the last few years the Jewish sport movement had been especially strong and nowhere more than in the various countries in Europe. The Jewish youth in the Maccabee organizations were becoming of extreme importance to the various Jewish communities because they stood for something solid and were a protecting force in case of attacks from anti-Semites. Dr. Rosenfeld stated that the Jewish sport movement in Palestine has grown phenomenally during the past few years. While the sport movement in the Jewish National Homeland used to consist only of soccer games, today track athletics were enthusiastically taken up. So much so that the girls' track team of the Maccabee organization of Palestine had captured several running championships as well as the high jump championship of Palestine.

The foremost sign of the pre-eminence of the Jew in athletics today, is in the number of championships which Jews all over the world have won," Dr. Rosenfeld said. "For instance, in Poland, the Maccabee of Cracow won the water ball championship of the country for seven times in succession. Also, Miss Freda Berson of the Maccabee of Warsaw is regarded as the second best discus thrower in Poland and the third best in the world. In Germany, Daniel Preen, a member of the Maccabee organization, is the tennis champion of Germany. Eli Katz of the Bar Cochba of Berlin was an Olympic champion of Finland and ran with Nurmi and Ritola in the Olympics of 1924. The Vienna Hakoah have also produced some outstanding athletes. Frankel is the 5000 metre champion of Austria. Miss Hedda Bienenfeld is regarded as one of the foremost swimmers in Austria and Fritz Levy is also a former European swimming champion. The Czechoslovakian Maccabee has also produced athletes of the first rank. Their swimmers stand second to none and it has also produced the champion tennis team of Czechoslovakia. Even Australia can boast of outstanding world Jewish athletes. The most famous of them is Chaim Winter, track star, twice winner of an Olympic gold medal and 1924 world record holder of the 15 metre broad jump."

Most of these famous athletes, Dr. Rosenfeld said, would take part in the Maccabiad next year at Tel-Aviv. The Jewish games will rival any world athletic meet ever held. In addition to the Jewish participants there will be Arab teams from Syria and Egypt and British police and military teams from Palestine. In addition to a large program of track, swimming, boxing, wrestling, soccer and other events there will be a tremendous Boy Scout jamboree, in which Jewish Scouts from all over the world will take part. There will also be a horseback riding exhibition by the Maccabee of Palestine and a track run around the city of Tel Aviv by all the track athletes. "Palestine is looking forward with enthusiasm to the Jewish games," Dr. Rosenfeld said, in conclusion. "She expects, in addition to the athletes, thousands of Jewish visitors from all over the world, including America. She would particularly like visitors from the United States. The Maccabee Association of America, which is the newest member of the World Maccabee Union, will soon inaugurate a campaign to get American Jews to visit Palestine in connection with the games. The S. S. Aquitania has been especially secured for a direct voyage to Palestine and a special low round-trip rate has been made to enable every Jew, no matter what his means, to make the trip."

Dr. Rosenfeld said that his immediate mission in America was to raise funds for the stadium in Tel Aviv.

THE BIBLE IN MODERN DRESS

The Bible is without doubt the best-known book in any language. It is commonly called a best-seller. Indeed, as far as we know, parts of it have been translated into 921 languages and dialects. No other book in the world can boast such a circulation. In its English versions alone the Bible numbers over thirty separate translations.

When we consider that the Bible and the Hebrew religion constitute the major contributions of our people to the world's civilization, we must feel anew the importance and significance of so great an historical and literary masterpiece. In the Hebrew of the original, there is a magic beauty which other languages attempt to capture in vain. The sonorous depth, the colorful music, the rich cadences of many parts of the Old Testament have a grandeur as real and as wonderful as life itself.

Because it is so exquisite a document, no people of the world dared to neglect it. In our own day, a few conscientious educators have attempted to preserve the Bible for modern readers. These men justly contend that the sixteenth century English of our present Bibles is not intelligible to the average layman. With the purpose, therefore, of modernizing the text, these men set about rewriting the commonly used Bible. Their version has just been published by the Chicago Press. If it succeeds in interesting modern youth, as it should, the work of these men will have been worthwhile.

Young people today seldom read the Bible. They recognize its glorified position, but fail to realize that it is interesting, not only as a religious document, but as a record of the poetry, the ideals, the civilization and the psychology of the Hebrew people. And more of them ought to read it. The idea that the reader must accept the story before he can comprehend the morality of it has long ago been questioned. A normal and intelligent curiosity should lead every Jew to the point where he must know what is in the book of his people.

One does not easily cast aside a vivid piece of literature with the assertion that it could not possibly have happened. It is not important whether it happened or not, just so long as it contributes to the mental and emotional life of the reader. Until we grant to those young skeptics everywhere that one thought in regard to the Bible, we shall not be able to number many new readers. But it is important that people should read this valuable book for whatever they may find in it. In its simplified modern version, it should be easy and enjoyable reading for anyone. It is our great world contribution; let us endeavor to keep it living and alive.

By the Way

Tidbits and News of
Jewish Personalities

so he bought an Ethrog and Lulav. And at the schule services, you could see him chanting the verses from the Psalms and waving the leafy branch forward and upward and diagonally. And on Friday night, if you went to X's home, there were candlesticks there, and a specially good Shabbath meal. Soon everybody around the synagogue began to look around for X to consult him on this and that. X felt that he had rooted himself—had become one with his environment and past. Rooted, he became relaxed in body and mind.

One day, he chanced to open accidentally the drawer in which he had kept all of his medicines. There they were. He had not touched them since the day he had taken up Judaism.

The faith of his fathers had cured him.

Rooting vs. Rotting

The moral of the story, I presume, is not so much that there are any inherent medicinal values in Judaism or any other religion, but that if you are a Jew, be a Jew.

Peace comes not from isolation. You can't disconnect yourself. Trees cannot grow in the air. They must be rooted. So must you, and you. And there's healing in being rooted. And he who is not rooted, rots.

Brandeis' Birthday

Last week marked the seventy-fifth birthday of the Jew, whom Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia once described as "the greatest Jew since Jesus Christ." Of course, I refer to Louis D. Brandeis. Ordinarily, one celebrates a man's birthday by delivering panegyrics to his merits.

I prefer to celebrate it by noting what I believe is the dominant trait in the person that is Louis Brandeis.

His Way of Life

What is that trait? In his splendid biography of Justice Brandeis, Jacob de Haas says:

"In legislation, in organization, or in common place business, he is apt to advise, 'Go home, select a little thing to do, and do that well; the rest will follow.' If he has a motto, it is Goethe's line, 'In der beschränkung zeigt sich erst der Meister.' He has the craftsman's love for doing things well, rather than the common desire for many vocations.

There's gold 'in them thar words.' —'Go home, select a little thing to do, and do that well.'

Little But Big

It is a little thing—this little bit of advice that Brandeis is wont to give—and yet, I believe, it summarizes Brandeis more than anything else. And perhaps it explains more than ought else the clash in the Zionist world that has at various times revolved about him.

Other Zionists talk of historical consciousness, of cultural Zionism, of political Zionism, and what not. And Brandeis turns aside and says: "There is a little thing to do; do that, and do that well; the rest will follow."

And these academic Zionists cannot understand such an attitude.

They Can't Understand

They cannot quite understand his type. They forget that Brandeis besides being one of the exponents of the labor movement in America was also one of the exponents of scientific efficiency—I believe, it is called the Taylor system. You remember when he fought the attempt of the railroads to raise the railroad rates. You remember the railroads said they were losing money.

Brandeis turned to them. Sure, but you can save a million dollars a day by introducing efficiency. And he showed them how and where. It was a different sort of way of fighting a people's battle—with mathematical figures instead of figures of speech.

If my memory is correct, the Bible somewhere denouncing some of the oracles of its day says: "Our prophets are full of wind."

No one could ever say that of Brandeis. He talks very little; he just sees a little thing to do, and does it well, and the rest follows.

Sponsoring Group of Jewish Center Lecture-Concert Course Meets

At the Jewish Community Center on Benefit street, the first meeting of the Sponsoring Community of the Jewish Community Center Lecture and Concert Course was held last Thursday evening, with Mrs. Joseph J. Seefer, Chairman, presiding.

Following Mr. Workman's remarks, Mr. Jacob I. Cohen, Executive Director of the Center, gave a convincing and inspiring talk relative to the advantages derived from this concert and lecture course, not only from an entertainment standpoint, but from a cultural as well. Mr. Cohen stressed the fact that he was emphatically opposed to any soliciting by the Sponsoring Committee during the beginning of the Providence Community Fund Campaign in order that these two drives might not conflict. It was suggested that solicitations commence not before Nov. 20.

The members of the Sponsoring Committee are as follows: Mrs. Joseph J. Seefer, Chairman; Mrs. Saul Abrams, Mrs. David C. Adelman, Mrs. Samuel H. Workman, Mrs. Jacob Ernstof, Mrs. Harry Covin, Mrs. David E. Feldman, Mrs. Haskell Frank, Mrs. Henry Hassenfeld, Mrs. Louis Hurwitz, Mrs. Benjamin N. Kane, Mrs. Benjamin Salk, Mrs. Louis Kramer, Mrs. Frank Markensohn, Mrs. Alfred L. Morse, Mrs. Harry R. Rosen, Mrs. Milton C. Sapinsley, Mrs. Morris Sydel, Mrs. Louis Temkin, Mrs. Samuel Wachenheimer, Mrs. Jennie Goldsmith, Mrs. Max Tarnapol, Mrs. Henry Weiner, Mrs. Sarah Felder, Mrs. Samuel Chase, Mrs. Frank Goldman, Misses Matilda Goldblatt, Belle Temkin, Claire E. Greenstein, Rebecca Katz, Bess Waterman, Soudie Silverman and Rose Singer.

Yiddish Talkie to be Shown Here on Saturday-Sunday

For the first time in the history of Providence, audiences will have the opportunity of witnessing and listening to talkies in Yiddish. This momentous event will take place at Infantry Hall on South Main street. A matinee and evening performance will be given on Saturday, Nov. 21, and on Sunday, Nov. 22, there will be a continuous showing from 3 to 11 o'clock.

The feature picture will be "My Yiddish Mama," starring Mae Simon, Cantor Schmullik and Seymour Reichtzeit. It is considered a powerful drama of modern Jewish life and is replete with laughter and songs.

LITTLE STORIES from REAL LIFE

"Well", Said Alice,

"A House Can't Run Away, You Know"

They were discussing the headlines at home . . . considering their own situation and comparing it with that of friends and neighbors . . . as married folks do.

With a good deal of satisfaction Alice reminded Carl that he still had a good position and a comfortable home of his own.

Old Colony has a sense of satisfaction in its position, too. This quotation from "Midland Memos" expresses why, about as well as we could hope to—

"First mortgage loans upon improved, well located home real estate, are still the best and the standard form of security. Stocks and bonds may depreciate. Even money may 'take wings and fly away,' but real estate, though temporarily it may sell for less, cannot be stolen or lost altogether, and remains a useful, valuable necessity of life.

"Loans made principally upon the homes of borrowers, are more than mere pieces of property. Families will pay off the loans upon their homes in cases where they will not, or cannot, pay off loans upon other security."

Swami Akhilananda to be Lecturer at Temple Emanu-El

On Saturday afternoon, Nov. 21st, at 2 o'clock, Swami Akhilananda, now a resident of Providence, will deliver a lecture on "Hinduism," in the Vestry of Temple Emanu-El.

Swami Akhilananda, founder and head of the Providence Vedanta Society, came from India about six years ago to spread the teachings of Vedanta, which were started and represented by Swami Vivekananda at the Parliament of Religions at Chicago in 1893.

Followers of all religions have attended the services and are always welcome to learn the teachings of Hinduism without prejudice and antagonism. The teachings are to harmonize the message of different religions and to "make a Christian a better Christian, a Jew a better Jew, a Hindu a better Hindu, a Buddhist a better Buddhist."

All of the previous lectures at Temple Emanu-El have been commented upon most favorably. A remarkable increase in attendance at each, makes it very evident that the Institute of Studies answered a great need in the city, not only to become better acquainted with one's own religion, but to have a better and more mutual understanding of other religions.

The Rollers are certain that their defeat was all a mistake on that day, thus the return engagement.

Joe Schein, star of the Brown line for the past three years, is playing the game of his life in his first year of professional football. It will be a treat to watch these Jewish stars in action on Saturday.

CENTER BROADCASTS

SCHOOL REGISTRATION GROWS

The Jewish Center Religious School registration is growing so fast that the officials of the school are beginning to wonder about space. The total attendance last Sunday was 145, the largest since the school began two years ago. The program was given by Grade 6, Edward Kleiner, instructor. The attendance banner was won by Grade 2, Miss Dora Bazar, teacher. The children voted to donate $20 to the Providence Community Fund. Parents desiring to register children in the school should do so at once, because the attendance is growing so fast that it will be necessary to close registration. School sessions begin at 10:30 and continue until 12. There are classes for children from six years up to 15.

PROF. CROSBY TO SPEAK

The opening lecture in the course will be given by Prof. Thomas F. Crosby, Jr., Professor of Dramatics and Public Speaking at Brown University, will read either "If I Were King" or "Rivals" by Sheridan. Prof. Crosby could well rank with the finest dramatic readers in the country. Due to his modesty and refusal to travel long distances he remained unaffiliated with the lecture bureaus, although he had frequent proposals to travel over the country. The evening with Prof. Crosby should prove to be one of the finest and most enjoyable ones.

RUSSIAN ORCHESTRA ENGAGED

An extra treat has been arranged by the lecture and concert committee, by engaging the Imperial Russian Balalaika Orchestra, a New York group, consisting of 14 persons, including nine instrumental players, three dancers, a singer and a violinist. ### OUR LEADERS

The Spartan Club is more than fortunate in having as its leader a man of overwhelming personality, humor, forcefulness and idealism. Himself a perfect gentleman, A. Louis Rosenstein, has the cultural background as well as experience in work with boys who skillfully make the Spartan Club an interesting and worthwhile organization, fulfilling the desires of the Center.

Mr. Rosenstein was born in Providence, attending the public schools in Providence and East Providence, where he later moved. Graduating from East Providence High School, he entered Providence College, where he remained for two years. ### State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations

Thanksgiving Proclamation By His Excellency, NORMAN S. CASE GOVERNOR

Whereas, by uninterrupted custom it has been our habit to set apart one day in the year to consider the blessings which God has vouchsafed to us as a Nation, to assemble in our homes and in our houses of worship to render thanks to Him and to display our National Emblem from sunrise to sunset as a continual reminder of the liberties and privileges we enjoy under our beneficial government.

Now, Therefore, I, NORMAN S. CASE, Governor of the State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, by virtue of the authority vested in me by Section 4, Chapter 20, of the General Laws of the State, do hereby appoint and designate

Thursday, the 26th Day of November A. D. 1931

As a Day of

PUBLIC THANKSGIVING

Let us have faith. Let us dispel whatever gloom and uncertainty and insecurity overshadows us. Let us re-establish the will to believe and to do. Of the days set apart by the civil authority, none better than Thanksgiving Day can hold the American people closer to the principles upon which this nation was founded, nor better safeguard its future security and prosperity.

We have been passing, and are yet upon our way, through an era of unusual difficulties, conflicting opinions, perplexities taxing the resources of governmental power and bringing discouragement to the strongest hearts. But they are not insurmountable. The fact that our institutions have weathered the storms is indisputable proof of their essential solidarity.

Let us remember that prosperity is not a relative term: it refers to no particular age or period. It must be considered as a whole; not here today and gone tomorrow. Would we dare to suggest, that compared with the First Thanksgiving, we have no blessings; no fruition of industrialism, of economic relationship; no elevation of social welfare, no advance in educational opportunity?

The past may afford no solution of the problems, but it surely does give promise of the things to be. As of old the Psalmist sang "Clouds and darkness are round about Him" but also, "righteousness and judgment are the habitation of His throne." It is to the Great Father of us all to whom we must turn this day in our homes and in our churches; and then turn about to meet our fellow man on the common plane of brotherliness and neighborliness and administer to his needs.

If we have lost ourselves in the swirl of that enveloping blinding thing we call civilization, let us, in His Name, hark back to an intrepid past consecrated to high purpose, and remember that no man liveth to himself. The solution of any crisis in a nation's history, be it political, economic or social, lies in the recovery of a composed, effective and creative citizenship. Willing hands and sympathetic hearts must precede all salutary law.

I commend the problems of the hour, the great needs of our fellow men to your outspoken, never failing generous consideration.

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and cause the seal of the State to be affixed this 10th day of November in the year of Our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one, and of Independence the one hundred fifty-sixth.

(Seal)

By the Governor:
ERNEST L. SPRAGUE,
Secretary of State.

NORMAN S. CASE.

A. Z. A. MEMBERS VISIT WORCESTER

About 15 members of the Woonsocket Order of Aleph Zadik Aleph attended the all-day inter-chapter conference of the A. Z. A., held Sunday in Worcester, Mass., in honor of Philip Klutznick of Omaha, Neb., brilliant young Executive Secretary of the Supreme Advisory Council of the organization.

Mr. Klutznick's address took in every minute point of the fraternity's functions and was especially helpful to the members of the local unit, who were presented their charter a week ago.

At the conclusion of the various speeches a discussion of the coming District No. 1 convention was held. The convention is scheduled to take place in either Newport or Boston.

COLEMAN ZIMMERMAN, CITY'S YOUNGEST ATTORNEY

At the age of 23, Coleman Zimmerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Zimmerman, of 128 Welles street, has successfully passed the Rhode Island Bar Examination, which he took in September, and thus becomes the city's youngest attorney and also one of the youngest in the state. In addition to this, Mr. Zimmerman is also eligible to conduct a legal practice in Massachusetts, having passed the bar examination in the state.

The new attorney was graduated from the Woonsocket High School in the class of 1925 and then attended the Boston University Law School, where, after years of high scholastic work, he was graduated in 1931. Mr. Zimmerman was chosen as first marshal of the graduating class, the highest honor bestowed upon an undergraduate.

DINNER IN HONOR OF CONFIRMATION OF HAROLD POLIKOFF

The Congregation B'nai Israel Synagogue was filled to capacity Friday night when seasonal services were resumed. An exceptional musical treat was provided by Joseph Shlisky, well known Cantor of New York, who officiated, and Machtenberg's famous choir, personally conducted by Conductor Machtenberg, which accompanied the celebrated singer.

Never before in its history has the Woonsocket Synagogue welcomed a more distinguished ensemble, which was presented through the courtesy of Sam Polikoff on the occasion of the Confirmation of his son, Harold, a student at the Yeshiva College of New York.

At the Friday evening services as well as the Sabbath morning services, Rabbi Murray A. Alstret of New York delivered the sermons inducting the young Confirmand into the folds of Judaism. Harold Polikoff also spoke on both occasions.

Sunday night a dinner party at Sunset Lodge, Sharon, Mass., was given by Mr. and Mrs. Polikoff in honor of their son, Harold. Covers were laid for more than 200 guests. Harry Feller sang, and a revue, featuring a group of Jewish actors with Harry Feller, Mary Wolfman, Lea Post, Sara Zafrain and Harry Kurtzman, evoked great mirth and was well received. A song recital was rendered by Cantor Shlisky, who was accompanied by Celia Epstein and Cantor Anshel Heurberg at the piano.

Arthur I. Darman acted as toastmaster and introduced the speakers. Those who spoke included Abraham Kopelman, Attorney Joseph Smith of Providence, who extended felicitations on behalf of his father-in-law, Michayen Finkle, a former teacher of young Harold; the father of the Confirmand, and the youth himself.

As a climax to the occasion Mrs. Archibald Silverman, Deputy Delegate of the Action's Committee of the World Zionist Organization, member of the Jewish Agency for Palestine of America, and Vice President of the American Jewish Congress, delivered the outstanding address of the evening.

After the dinner dancing was enjoyed.

GIVES $50,000 IN SECURITIES TO GALVESTON HIGH SCHOOL

Following the unanimous adoption of the resolution by the School Board, Mrs. Lovenberg presented securities valued at $50,000 to the board.

Mrs. Lovenberg also offered an additional $50,000 to form a nucleus for a teachers' pension fund, but this was rejected by the school board because of its inability to meet the terms of the offer.

CAR OWNERS DEMAND VALUES—not Claims!

MOTORISTS are finding the Greatest Values in Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. Ever since Firestone and Firestone Dealers began advertising the true facts about tire quality and construction and actually demonstrating the Extra Values in Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, distributors of special-brand mail-order tires have grown bolder and bolder with misleading claims and comparisons in the desperate effort to interest car-owners.

Car owners bought more Firestone Tires in May, June and July, than in any like period in history. This clearly shows that car owners are interested in Firestone Extra Values and are not interested in comparisons based on an almost obsolete tire size—confusing laboratory analyses—meaningless definitions—impractical challenges with unfair claims of twenty-five per-cent savings—and deceiving price comparisons.

Why risk a tire of unknown manufacture when you can get the Extra Quality, Extra Strength, and Extra Safety of the special patented construction features of Firestone Tires—Gum-Dipping, and Two Extra Cord Plies under the Tread?

You get these Extra Values—plus our Service and the DOUBLE GUARANTEE of Firestone and ourselves—at no more cost!

Drive in today.—We have sections cut from Firestone Tires, special-brand mail-order tires and others.—See the evidence.—Take nothing for granted.—Judge for Yourself.

SPORTING WORLD

NEWS WRITTEN FOR THE JEWISH HERALD BY GEORGE JOEL

MAXIE BAER'S COMEBACK
Maxie Baer, the Jewish butcher boy from Livermore, is fighting his way back to the top of the heavyweight class. After a disastrous season in the East, the large boned Jewish fighter returned to the West Coast and something in the much publicized climate out there added weight to his blows and effectiveness to his fists. Fighting at San Francisco last week Baer outpointed Johnny Risko of Cleveland in a 15 rounder. It was Baer all the way. A few weeks previous Baer scored a 15 round knockout over Jose Santa.

Maxie is a funny fellow. Most people go to Reno for their divorces, he went there last summer to find a wife and engage in a prize fight which ended disastrously; however, the marriage took. Baer is in his twenties and although I personally don't think he will ever be the champion, there is little reason why he shouldn't amount to a first-rate fighting man.

OTHER FIGHT NEWS
After showing to bad advantage around New York, Ben Jeby, the Jewish middleweight, was taken on a tour through the country by his manager. Stopping off at Pittsburgh the other night, Bennie won a technical knockout over a local boy, Buck McTiernan, in the seventh round of a ten session affair.

Benny Leonard has not given up all hopes for a successful comeback and is training steadily, although a good deal of his time is spent posing for newspaper photographers. The ban against him in New York, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania is still in force. Even at that there are 45 states left in which Benny can make comebacks. I think Leonard's comeback will be artistic failures but financial successes and remembering that the former lightweight champion did not re-enter the ring for sheer glory, he must be receiving satisfaction out of what he is doing to overcome the razzing that has been his.

Dr. Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, the heavyweight champion, is returning to these shores very soon. He will arrive from Germany and will arrange a series of fights for his "boy." While in Germany, Jacobs looked over the professional ring very closely and was impressed with two things—the fact that there are so few German fighters of any ability and the almost total absence of Jewish fighters from the German ring. He said that the appearance of a Jewish-German prize fighter would be the signal for a riot. The anti-Semites in Germany would never permit the news to get around that a Jewish boy was a real fighter. It might be too discouraging to the hoodlums, who believe they are doing things for the Republic when they attack Jews.

As a matter of fact Jewish athletes generally are discouraged from participating publicly. There are many capable Jewish athletes in Germany who could perform, but it is feared that they might win, and that is against all the principles of German sportsmanship.

LEARN TO BE A QUARTERBACK FOR A NICKLE

If you really want to learn something about football and you have a nickle—go out and purchase a copy of the current Saturday evening Post and read Frank Carideo's article, "Knute Rockne's Quarterbacks." The 1930 quarterback of the Notre Dame team explains in great detail all the ins and outs of the great intercollegiate sport. It is well worth the jit, especially if you do not intend to put what you have read into practice. Great stuff for grandstand quarterbacks. Of course you know what "grandstand quarterbacks" are. They are the fellows who run the team from a nice seat in the stands. Something like back seat drivers.

FOOTBALL SEASON ALMOST OVER

Just a few more weeks and the pig-skins, coaches and players will be put back in the camphor for another year. 1931 has been rife with upsets, but very sparing with its stars. For the first time in years not one Jewish player stands columns (newspaper) above the rest of his fellows. Picking an All-American team is going to be tough going, but legion or legions of readers may remain undisturbed. An All-Jewish All-American team will be forthcoming within the month. Hold all kicks until then!

Being in a prognosticating mood here are a few picks: Yale will beat

Princeton, but not by any great margin; Notre Dame will tame Army; Stanford over Dartmouth easily; New York University to trim Carnegie Tech; Colgate will beat Brown; Pennsylvania will beat Cornell; Pittsburgh will win from Nebraska; U. C. L. A. over Florida; Georgia will beat Georgia Tech.

CHATTERINGS

Dr. Phil Weintraub of Chicago, the tooth pulling writer and tennis player, taps the keys to say that mugs like myself are his meat, when it comes to tennis; and if I happen to drop in Chicago someday he will give me a lesson. Brave guy!—he waited until the frost was on the ground to challenge me. I'll play him on ice skates, if necessary, that is, if I can skate to Chicago, which is about the only way I can get there.

Another communication from Chicago comes from Erwyn Marchmont Greenfield, who tells me that, I have overlooked Milton Bill Galatzer, a local boy, who is making good in a big way as a baseball player. Galatzer, so says young Greenfield, was the leading hitter in the Three I League last season and turned in an average of 387. Playing with the Terre Haute team, Galatzer played first base and the outfield. He is 24 years old, plays football, basketball and tennis, besides baseball and will probably get a call from a big league team next spring.

The All-Jewish team of Long Island University is not really all Jewish—a fellow named Murphy plays in the line, but I imagine the boys will soon fix that. L. I. U. hasn't lost a game since the opener and took over C. C. N. Y. here recently.

O. H. C. NEWS

MUSICALE

Members and guests of the O. H. C. are again looking forward to an enjoyable time at the annual O. H. C. musicale, scheduled for Sunday evening, Nov. 22nd.

Samuel Berditch, in charge of arrangements, and Edmund Wexler, social director, have planned a full evening of entertainment and the musicale promises to be a gala affair. Invitations have been extended to a number of organizations and a large attendance is evident. Refreshments will be served.

MEMBERSHIP

Applications of three new candidates were approved at the regular Thursday night meeting, Nov. 19th, and the organization extends a hearty welcome to Mac Broomfield, St. Feldman and Newall Smith. Initiations will be held the early part of December.

THE O. H. C. COMRADE

The December issue of the O. H. C. Comrade will be ready for distribution Dec. 4th. The high interest of the members in this publication has induced the staff to exert unusual effort to make this final issue of the year an outstanding one, and Myron Keller, editor-in-chief, as well as the whole staff, are to be congratulated on its success.

"MYSTERY NIGHT"

Mr. Edmund Wexler, social director, has plans in mind for a New Year's Eve party and a "Mystery Night."

Annual People's Tool Campaign to Begin on Dec. 6

A special meeting was held on Wednesday evening, Nov. 18th, for the purpose of organizing the committee for the Annual People's Tool Campaign, scheduled to start Sunday, Dec. 6th. The committee in charge comprised the following:

James Goldman, Chairman; Arno Wrazlowsky, Campaign Chairman; Benjamin N. Kane, Vice Chairman; Dr. Ilie Berger, Vice Chairman; Morris Beeber, Treasurer; Harry F. Beck, Secretary.

BROWN MEETS NEW HAMPSHIRE UNIVERSITY, SATURDAY, NOV. 21

After the rugged battle with Columbia, the Brown eleven should be able to take things easy this week in view of Colgate's Thanksgiving Day invasion, but instead, Coach D. O. "Tuss" McLaughry will drive the Bruins for Saturday's encounter with the New Hampshire Wildcats at Brown Stadium.

New Hampshire took advantage of McLaughry's experiment of starting his second team last year in order to save the regulars for the Turkey Day clash with the Maroons, and promptly put over a touchdown that proved to be too much for the regulars to overcome when they finally did get into action. The inspired Wildcats fought so hard to protect their 7-0 lead that the Bruins were unable to push over a score, although they did stop New Hampshire from doing any more damage.

Needless to say, Coach McLaughry will not start his second-stringers this week-end, for he realizes that the Granite State eleven, prominently mentioned for New England small college championship honors, will give Brown a bruising battle. Brown is the major game on the New Hampshire schedule, and two victories in a row in Providence would be mighty satisfying to Coach Bill Cowell. But the Bears have been waiting one whole year to avenge their 1930 setback, and they will "shoot the works" against the Wildcats, regardless of the holiday classic with Colgate five days later.

Louis Dembitz Brandeis

a strange land, spurned and spat upon, and with no home country to which they could look back with pride, and something stirred in his own blood. "I am one of these down-trodden people," his heart told him. "Why should I call myself simply an American when through countless generations I am equally a Jew?" Scorning the advantages which he would be giving to enemies who sought every opprobrious name they might hurl at him, he joined the Zionist organization, and from that day to this, he has ranked foremost among the leading Jews in the world. What this cost him one can only guess. That it took him through deep waters was easy to know. But I got one glimpse of the great altitude to which it led him when I saw him on the platform of Symphony Hall, the building crowded to its capacity with dark, alien faces and bodies undersized and misshapen from having lived for generations in foreign Ghettos or in slums in the United States and head the cries: "The new Moses, the new Moses!" resound through the building. And it was as a new Moses that he spoke. "Do you understand what it means to be a Jew," he asked "that you have behind you a great tradition? . . . How dreadful if anyone of you should do a mean or dishonest deed! You are born to greatness. See that you claim your birth-right!" His face shone with an inner light that transformed his whole being.

Needless to say, the position and the genius of the man presently put him at the head of the Zionist movement. At the outbreak of the war a provisional executive committee for general affairs was created in this country with Brandeis as its chairman, which opened a new chapter in Zionism. The spirit which he infused and the new phases of work which developed are a story in itself, and one too far removed from my own thought to be interpreted by me. Suffice it to say that during many of the years of his most strenuous fights for social justice in the United States, he found time to read and to analyze the monthly Zionist reports, to write his comments on the margin, and to make Zionist affairs a part of his daily life.

Many Years Zionist Leader

For some years he was practically the official leader of the Zionist movement. But there were bitter contests, and in 1921 he was retired. Nevertheless, he still stands high in its councils, as I can attest from my function of answering the telephone in his summer household at Chatham where telegrams and cablegrams and radio messages come, perhaps several in one day, especially while the movement is in conference in Europe. Endless details are reported to him, just for his information, while nice questions are referred to him for settlement. And then there are the visitors, sometimes by ones or twos, sometimes in committee. Last summer there was a party of eight, the wives along, who came to stay for several days. The duties of hospitality are lightened for the Justice and his wife by their daughter, Susan, and her husband, Jack Gilbert, both of them ardent Zionists, who live but a stone's throw away, and who served meals with an endless hospitality.

Speaking to the Justice last summer of the intimacy, so lately acquired by him, with foreign lands, and of what he was able to do for those so foreign seeming persons, his face lighted up as he answered, "What I have done for them is as nothing to what they do for me. This interest which it has brought into my life is beyond what I can tell." And this while his leadership in the affairs of the United States is no way abated. It is as if two men had come to inhabit his being, each of them a complete person.

In the early winter of 1916, while Mr. Brandeis' Zionist activities were at their height and while he was still at the top of his contests for freedom in our own country, he was named by Woodrow Wilson as an Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court. What a storm this precipitated! How heads of corporations and of educational institutions trooped to Washington to beseech the Senators to veto the President's nomination, young Senator La Follette, then his father Robert M. La Follette's secretary, told me what a splendid fight President Wilson made; how Secretary McAdoo went to Senator after Senator with the question, "Are you with the President or against him in this matter, which is very near his heart?"

President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University, appealed to write President Wilson recording himself in opposition, made answer: "I have known Mr. Louis D. Brandeis for 40 years, and I believe that I understand his capacity and his character. He was a distinguished student in the Harvard Law School in 1875-78. He possessed by nature a keen intelligence, quick and generous sympathies, a remarkable capacity for labor, and a character in which gentleness and joy and courage in combat were intimately blended.

President Wilson, in justifying his selection, wrote: "I have known him. I have tested him by seeking his advice upon some of the most difficult and perplexing public questions about which it was necessary for me to form a judgment. I have dealt with him in matters where nice questions of honor and fair play, as well as large questions of justice and the public benefit, were involved . . . I have received from him counsel singularly enlightened, singularly clear-sighted and judicial and above all, full of moral stimulation. He is a friend of all just men and a lover of the right, and he knows more than how to talk about the right — he knows how to set it forward in the face of its enemies . . ."

Supreme Court Justice 1916

In June, 1916, Justice Brandeis took his oath of office on the Supreme bench. And thereafter began the long line of decisions in which his passion for public justice, for a chance for the small man in danger of being down-trodden by great powers, has been translated into the legal structure of the nation.

In his private life, Mr. Brandeis is a friend of friends. He is immense in his loyalties to ties both far and near. He has been a rare son and brother. His wife is the friend and comrade with whom he shares his whole mind. Almost 40 years ago, when they were engaged to be married, she accepted his ideal of living far below the scale which his professional income would allow, and leaving sufficient available for their public interests. His abstemious habits have grown on him; but he spends money freely for what he thinks worth while, and he is known to have poured it out like water in behalf of furthering some cause that he made his own. A few old woolen suits and sweaters, a warm corner in which to rest, a great store of books and, until recently, a canoe and a reach of water on which for many years it was his delight to paddle, these have been his only requisites for his holidays.

His relations with his children, Susan and Elizabeth, have been intimate to a very rare degree. From their earliest childhood they have shared their father's seven o'clock breakfast, and as they grew older Susan used to walk with him to his office before she started to school. On Sundays, after his early morning's work was done, he gave himself to their interests, skating, riding, playing tennis, according to the season, yes, and building the playhouse which their joint labors erected behind their house at Dedham where always the week-ends were passed. The girls are now both of them married. But Susan and her father exchange letters, so I am told, every day. And both she and Elizabeth come with their husbands and their children to the summer house at Chatham.

Justice Brandeis' mind was never more swift or more sure than now when he has observed his 75th birthday. His conversation ranges from the times of classic history, of trade routes and the source of food supply of Egypt, Rhodes and Attica, to the affairs of today. He has always been an immense worker; but when the day's work is done, it is done. Only the very rarest circumstances ever entice him into an evening conference. It has been his habit to rise at 5 or 6 o'clock, and even in the summer, to put in some hours of hard thinking and writing before he joined his wife for a paddle across the wide reaches of the bay or up into narrow inland waters, or latterly for a walk across the moors.

The fierce contests of Justice Brandeis' youth lie far behind. As a judge of the court of last resort, he is debarred from taking part in public contests. But he does not chafe at the limitations of his position. An opinion which plumbs to the depths is worth making. If it is a minority opinion, it is worth the making all the same. He was always free from acrimonious contentions. There is no criticism of judges who speak on the other side. The Lord is in Israel, one seems to hear him say—but in imagination only, for his words are unbuttoned by spoken religion. To think problems through to the far end, to speak for the right as he sees the right, that is his greatness. To deal with justice and courtesy to the high and the low that shows the man's innate quality.
