Tidbits and News of Jewish Personalities

By DAVID SCHWARTZ

The Democratic Publicist

The forgotten man is Charles Michelson. Michelson likes to be forgotten. He stays behind the scenes and directs the act.

Michelson, who formerly served as the chief correspondent in Washington of the New York World, has been the publicity strategist behind this whole turnover which resulted in the displacement of the Republican majority in Congress with Democrats.

And now in a little office at the Biltmore, Michelson is trying to do the trick of supplanting the Republican President with Roosevelt. There probably is no more competent man in the country for the job than Michelson. And if Roosevelt is elected President, there are those that say that President Roosevelt will have a Jewish private secretary, named Charles Michelson.

His brother, the late Albert Michelson, was the man who discovered how fast light can travel.

If Charles can make Democratic light travel as fast as the cosmic rays, he should be sure of the job.

The American Mind

A young Jewish writer, who likes to startle his readers, who in one of his books was an ardent Communist and now has evolved a new ism of his own to solve the economic ills of the world, recently wrote a book trying to prove that the American mind and the Jewish mind are identical and both bad. We haven't read this latest effusion of this writer, but we did get a glimpse of an excerpt which was recently broadcast in the weekly Jewish press.

The Jew, the writer went on to say, has no spirituality. And he points to the Old Testament. At least, he says, you must admit the New Testament has spirituality. But if he concedes that the New Testament has spirituality, then it seems to us that his whole thesis of Jewish want of spirituality is challenged, for, of course, the writers of the New Testament were Jewish.

And pray, by what processes of reasoning does he arrive at the conclusion that the Old Testament has no spirituality? Is there no spirituality in Job, in Isaiah, in an Amos?

Magistrate Goldstein

Rules

Magistrate Jonah J. Goldstein has precipitated a controversy which threatens to become world wide and rock the cosmos on which we dwell. Judge Goldstein exonerated three or four young men, who were brought before him charged with having let down the shoulder straps of their bathing suits.

At the same time, another New York magistrate before whom several other young people were arraigned on the same charge, proved less lenient. He fined them $25 each, and in the absence of money, they are now serving out the fine in jail.

The controversy has now become sharp. In England, the question whether it is permissible to remove the shoulder straps has brought forth at least one strong masculine outburst for this fuller shoulder strap freedom for men. And Rose Macaulay, the woman writer, says if men are to be permitted this privilege, women, too, must be accorded the right.

A Hygienic Argument

What may, if the winds blow favorably, be turned into a veritable social revolution is thus involved in the decision.

The New York Times quotes one of the speakers before the recent Physical Therapists convention to the

A STATEMENT

The Community Chest Executives request that our membership drive be carried on without much publicity or intensive campaigning, which might interfere with the Community Drive in October. I have, therefore, asked Mr. Charles Brown, Chairman of our Membership Committee, to dissolve all teams for the present. Only a small group of men will continue to enroll members at their convenience.

With cordial greetings on behalf of the Home for the Aged.

Respectfully,

SAMUEL M. MAGID.

Z. O. A. ARRANGING REMAINS TRANSFER OF PROF. SCHATZ

Noted Artist's Body to be Conveyed to Palestine Where It Will be Interred

New York, Sept. 16—(JTA)—Morris Rothenberg, President of the Zionist Organization of America, announced that arrangements are being completed for the conveyance of the body of the late Professor Boris Schatz, noted pioneer Palestine artist, from Denver, Colo., where he died some months ago, to Palestine, where his historic work of organizing the creative arts was launched and where his remains will be interred.

Mr. Rothenberg stated that the Zionist Organization of America, in conjunction with affiliated Zionist national bodies in the United States are providing the necessary funds to defray the expense involved and that there is no need for action by others in the situation.

The details of the shipment of Professor Schatz' remains will be announced after a conference with the son of the late Professor Schatz, who is now on his way to New York from California.

Chicago, Sept. 16—(JTA)—At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Zionist Organization here, several hundred dollars were raised to defray the expenses of the removal to Palestine of the body of Professor Boris Schatz, Jewish sculptor and founder of the Bezalel School of Arts and Crafts, which has been kept embalmed in a Denver mortuary since his demise in March.

John Rissman was named chairman of a committee and was scheduled to depart for New York to consult with officers of the Zionist Organization of America regarding this matter.

The annual Chicago Zionist conference will be held on Nov. 13th. Morris Rothenberg, President of the Zionist Organization of America, has been invited to be the guest speaker at the conference.

OVER 34,000 JEWISH CHILDREN ATTEND PALESTINE SCHOOLS

Budget of Jewish Agency Maintains Education for More Than 23,000 Children

New York, Sept. 16—(JTA)—There are 34,154 children enrolled in the Jewish schools in Palestine, according to statistics made available by the American Palestine Campaign. The figures were made public in connection with the opening of the new school year in this country, with an appeal for funds to make possible the continuance of the Jewish Agency institutions.

Of the total number of Palestinian school children, 23,145 are in schools maintained directly by the funds of the Jewish Agency. This marks an increase over the 22,533 reported in the previous year. Due to the decline in income of the Jewish Agency, the education budget was reduced to £109,443, as contrasted with the budget of £132,847 of the year before.

According to the American Palestine Campaign statement, the following schools are maintained by the Jewish Agency: 140 kindergartens, 110 elementary schools and six other schools, comprising teachers' seminaries and trade schools. The Jewish

The Outlook for German Jewry

By GEORGE KARESKI

Former President of Berlin Jewish Community

As the representative of the Jewish People's Party, under whose banner about a third of German Jewry is gathered, I speak with a sense of responsibility, realizing the difficulties of the situation. Vital decisions are pending in Berlin.

I will not allow myself to be tempted into prophecies about the possible political developments in Germany. We have to face the remarkable fact that we Jews constitute within the German nation only a small group of 550,000 people, and yet the Jewish problem in Germany is the center of world interest. It is a situation that can scarcely be explained in a normal way.

It would certainly be dishonest to deny that German Jews have had an anxious time in the last weeks and months, both as Jews and also as German citizens.

I want to say here that so far the legal position of the German Jews has not yet been touched. Today the Constitution of the German Republic still safeguards the rights of all citizens, including the Jewish citizens. Today the government still stands firm, as it has demonstrated repeatedly, even during the last few days, on the principle of protecting the lives and property and the rights of also the Jewish citizens in Germany.

The question of what will succeed this government is one that no one can answer. Much of what has been reported about the Jewish situation in Germany is exaggerated—it sounded as if a Jew risked his life by venturing out in the Kurfuerstendamm, or the Friedrich Strasse, in Berlin—in actual fact things are not at all like that. I warn against exaggeration, because it must inevitably weaken the force of the appeal if the time should come when we have really serious things to report. One should exercise a double measure of responsibility in such matters.

The present government has inscribed the protection of the Jewish citizens on its banner. But with the best will in the world on the part of a government, it cannot get over the fact that fourteen millions of the German population have subscribed to a program that preaches hatred of the Jews.

The growth of the Nazi movement in Germany is not to be explained solely by its anti-Jewish feeling. This movement, which has grown in a very short time, like an avalanche, does not constitute a united entity. Among the fourteen million National Socialists there are a number of people—Keyserling, for example—who must be measured with quite a different yardstick. The problem is—who will come out on top in the end.

When we ask ourselves how this storm of anti-Jewish hatred arose, we must begin by confessing that even well-meaning people say that the Jews are to blame. We are accused of having in our midst financial jackals and irresponsible economic leaders, and that a number of business scandals are associated with Jewish names. Another charge is that Jews have been all on the side of political radicalism.

We are not to blame. It is true that there have been Jewish fraudulent industrialists and bankers, and that a number of financial scandals were unfortunately associated with Jewish names, but those who know the facts know that they were exceptional cases, and that many similar things have happened in which non-Jews were concerned, and the great mass of German Jews regret and condemn such manipulations, just as much as all decent people do.

We might reproach the German Jews that they did not express their condemnation of the ramful people in their own ranks with sufficient public emphasis. This may have been a slight sin of omission, but it would be an altogether wrong conclusion to believe that if we had made a kind of scapegoat avowal we could in any way have stemmed the rise of the National Socialist movement.

The National Socialist movement has grown parallel with the economic distress in Germany. And here I would like to warn against another false conclusion. Do not believe that at the moment economic prosperity revives you will find the anti-Semitic wave receding. That is impossible, for this economic collapse has left something behind it.

The middle class in Germany has broken up. If non-Jews are able to bear the collapse more easily than we, it is due to our peculiar sociological economic make-up, which does not correspond with the general average, but is much more one-sided. German Jewry of the pre-war period was a middle-class Jewry, and since the whole of the middle class has broken up, and the tide of economic history cannot be turned back, it means that German Jewry in its totality has broken up, while the non-Jewish population, though important parts have been weakened, is still able to function. It is only among us Jews that the entire mass of the people will find itself on the scrap heap, unless we are able to divert it into new economic channels.

On top of this state of affairs, which has come about automatically, without needing any special anti-Jewish push behind it, there is also a deliberate process of shutting Jews out of economic life. The livelihood of Jewish officials is menaced. That is to be deplored, on account of the legal position with regard to our equality of rights, but the economic collapse of the Jewish middle class is a much more serious and tragic factor.

There is something else. Even if we assume that it will be possible in ten or twenty years time to restore a normal economic life in Germany, we must remember that the youth who are saturated as a result of the teachings in the German schools and high schools with the spirit of anti-Jewish hatred will then be the adult population of the country and the harvest of that seed will be for the coming generations to garner. If we want to be clear about our position, we must think also of these things whose full effect will be felt only in ten or twenty years time.

It has been well said that the Jewish branch in Germany is on the verge of bankruptcy. German Jewry in the past was accustomed to place its organizational and material means at the service of the Jewish community as a whole. Today it must learn from other Jewish branches to find a way out of its economic impasse. We must, as Jews in other countries have shown us, try to reconstruct by means of a Jewish co-operative system, in order to find an outlet for Jewish individual existences, by replacing individual economic life with collectives. It is a grave fault of German Jewry that this field of activity has been left till only in the stage of very small beginnings, and that it has needed an overwhelming catastrophe to open the eyes of our people to realize something which must have long been apparent to German Jewry.

At the same time, I am fully conscious of the fact that we German Jews must necessarily see things in a somewhat different light than the Jews in the countries of Jewish mass settlement. There is a tremendous difference between a country in which there are a million Jews among a total population of 15 million, and a country in which there are more than 60 million people and only 550,000 Jews.

The idea of a Jewish economic autarchy, which may have some justification in the countries of Jewish mass settlement, has no relevance to us German Jews.

We know that in our present situation the only thing that we can do is to endeavor with what is left of our economic strength to help a small part of our people to reconstruct their lives, while for the great mass of our people in Germany I fear there is very little that we can do.

That is the economic situation of the German Jews.

If I am now to say whether under these circumstances it is right to take a stand for a Jewish World Congress, I can only answer, yes. Even if I cannot promise that it will mean salvation for sorely-tried German Jewry. But if there is anything at all that

Sium HaTorah Ceremony Sunday, Sept. 25th

Ushering in the period of the Solemn Holidays preceding Rosh Hashonah, a real religious survival will be carried out at the Jewish Home for the Aged on Rhode Island on Sunday, Sept. 25th, at 2:30 p. m., which falls on the first day of Selichos. The entire Jewry of the state is invited to participate in the ceremony of a Sium HaTorah, the installation of a new Torah into the Synagogue of the Home.

Such ceremony is of great spiritual importance to the Jew, for there is nothing more important to him from a religious standpoint than honoring the Torah.

The ceremony is very impressive and has been carefully worked out by a special committee consisting of George Samdperil, chairman; Charles Silverman, Isaac Wolf, Alter Boyman, Rabbi H. D. Bachrach, Rabbi Joshua Werner, Rabbi O. W. Werner, Rabbi I. Bick and Rabbi I. Schisgal.

Many traditional features are involved, and it is considered an honor and a religious duty to participate in such an event. While a band of music is playing, the new Torah is received at the building by a group of venerable citizens, carrying the old Scrolls, and the actual reception is made under a canopy or Chepe. After the new Torah is brought into the building, it is unrolled, and prepared for the Sabbath use. A number of ladies are appointed to sew the parchment together, while the Scribe completes the actual Bible passages of the Torah. Each letter inscribed has a traditional significance and carries a memorial in accordance with the initials of the names desired to be commemorated.

When the Torah is completed and made ready for the Sabbath reading it is then actually used in the congregation, with several portions being read and is finally installed in the Ark.

This entire ceremony will be carried out in detail, and those present will be addressed by the Rabbis heading congregations in the state, as well as by a number of representative citizens.

The committee extends a cordial welcome to every Jew and Jewess in the state to be present at this occasion.

BOARD MEETING

The Board of Directors' meeting of the Home has been postponed to take place on Monday, Sept. 19th.

Paramount School of Practical Art Offers Innovation

A new type of training for students of commercial art has been introduced in Providence — always rated as an artistic and educational center. The Paramount School of Practical Art has instituted a radically new method of teaching — as well as a novel system for study.

It is of especial local interest because the course is the work of Donald Cowell, for many years a well-known commercial artist here. The new institution, although not quite a year old, has already achieved results that amply justify its original methods. For practical training, the "studio-apprentice method," developed by Mr. Cowell, advances an idea that may prove of interest to educators in other fields. Its departure from old forms, combined with the practical experience of the author, presents a unique opportunity for persons with ambition to become professional advertising illustrators. The revolutionary nature of the teaching system seems destined to attract attention outside the borders of our state.

Examine Your Feet for Health's Sake, Says Dr. H. I. Goldman

With the passing of the vacation season no time is more fitting than the present to give some thought to the condition of the feet.

During the summer months our feet were exposed to such things as sharp, jagged rocks on beaches, and some may have received painful cuts which may not have healed so readily; some may have been slightly infected. There is an infection which is very common and is known as "athlete's foot." No one is immune from that condition. Do not wait until it has become deep seated and has spread over the entire foot. Do not subject anyone else to it, as it is transmitted very easily.

Dr. H. I. Goldman, Podiatrist, of 76 Dorrance street, will be pleased to examine your feet, without charge, and he will present you with a set of exercise charts on "How to Develop Strong, Acheless Feet."

N. J. REFORM CONGREGATIONS CONDUCT MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

Newark, Sept. 16—(JTA)—Under the auspices of the Greater New York Committee of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, Reform Synagogues in New Jersey have united in a collective membership campaign.

This is the first time in the history of the state that there is such a drive, which is expected to terminate with the advent of the High Holy-days.

TEMPLE EMANU-EL

SERVICES

Sabbath morning services will be held from now on in the main Synagogue and will be conducted by Rabbi Goldman and Cantor Bettman at 9 o'clock. Daily services and Friday evening services will be conducted in the Chapel.

HIGH HOLY DAY COMMITTEE

The High Holy Day Committee will be at the Temple prepared to meet members and to issue admission cards for the Holy Day Services, on the following days:

Sunday morning, Sept. 18th, from 10:30 to 12:30; Tuesday evening, Sept. 20, and Thursday evening, Sept. 22nd, from 7:30 to 9. The members of the congregation are urged to come on any of the above stated times to get their admission cards. The officers of the committee are: B. D. Bask, chairman; A. L. Jacobs, vice chairman, and Ernest Blazar, secretary.

MESSRS. TIEMAN AND WEINER MEMBERSHIP CO-CHAIRMEN

The Membership Campaign Committee, of which Michael Tieman is Chairman, and Alex Weiner, is Co-Chairman, has been functioning throughout the summer and has made great progress. A very intensive program of the campaign was mapped out at a special meeting of the Membership Campaign Committee, held Tuesday evening, Sept. 13th. The congregational membership is limited to a definite number and it is urged that new members join the congregation before the quota is filled for after that time it will not be advisable to admit new members.

The committee feels confident that before very long all membership vacancies will be filled.

HEBREW SCHOOL IN SESSION

The Hebrew Department of the Religious School is already in full swing. The school has been divided into seven classes and all are taking up the curriculum assigned. At a joint meeting of the School Board and the Committee for the Advancement of Jewish Education, held Thursday, Sept. 15th, it was reported that a total registration of over 100 is surely expected for the Hebrew Department this year.

There are about 30 members on this committee and a greater number of them was present. The joint committee's main function at present is to propagate among parents, the idea of the importance of Jewish education for their children.

ANNUAL CEMETERY VISITATION

The congregation is launching a new practice this year, that of holding an annual Cemetery Visitation on the Temple Cemetery Grounds the first day of Selichoth, which will be held this year on Sunday morning, Sept. 25th.

The cemetery visitation will include first the visiting of individual graves and secondly the congregational service in which the Rabbi and Cantor will lead. This service will be of short duration. This practice of Cemetery Visitation is widely spread among the leading Conservative Congregations of the country. Jacob Hochberg, Chairman of the Temple Cemetery Committee, and Rabbi Goldman will issue more detailed announcements later.

RENOVATIONS

During the summer months, many parts of the Temple building were renovated under the direction of Morris Rotman, Chairman of the House Committee. Different parts of the building were repainted through the generosity of Al Green. The big electric torches outside of the Temple are being regilded through the generosity of Morris Sackett.

CONGRATULATIONS

The congregation is happy to extend congratulations to the following members: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Koppelman, upon the marriage of their daughter, Florence; to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, upon the marriage of their son, Dr. Joseph Smith; to Mrs. Joseph Young, upon the marriage of her daughter, Rose.

MEMORIAL TABLETS

Samuel Goldberg, chairman of the Memorial Tablet Committee, announced that during the summer months the following named plates have been placed upon the Memorial Tablet of the Congregation: Esther Raskin, Samuel A. Olevson, Hyman Cohen, Lazarus Lipschitz, Isador Pritsker. May the memories of these dear departed ever be for a blessing. The Memorial Tablet Committee urges all who are intending to inscribe the names of their dear departed on the Temple Emanu-El Memorial Tablet to do so at once so that the plates may be ready for the High Holy Days Service. Please get in touch with Mr. Goldberger (Angell 1596), or with the Temple Office.

CANTOR AND CHOIR

As in previous years, Cantor Bettman, who has been with the congregation from its beginning, will officiate at the High Holy Day Services, assisted by the famous Temple Emanu-El Choir, under the leadership of Professor Arthur Einstein, who has also been with the congregation from its very inception. For the past few months work has been going on in preparation for the musical service for the High Holy Days. The music at the Temple is of the finest classical nature and only the works of the greatest Jewish composers are used. It is a particular pleasure to announce this in view of the fact that so many congregations are omitting choral music this year.

TEMPLE BULLETIN

A special Rosh Hashonah number of the Temple Bulletin is now being prepared for print, which will be the eighth consecutive year of its publication. A special feature of this year's Rosh Hashonah number will be New Year's Greetings from the members of the congregation for which a nominal fee is charged.

The committee consists of Mrs. Maurice Felder, chairman; Mrs. John Solomon, Mrs. Israel Edelstein and Mrs. Abraham Blackman. All members who want to insert New Year's Greetings must get in touch with the members of the committee or the Temple Office no later than Wednesday, Sept. 21st.

SISTERHOOD BOARD TO MEET WEDNESDAY

The first board meeting of the Sisterhood of Temple Emanu-El will be held at 2 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 21, at the home of the President, Mrs. Nat C. Cohen, on Elton street.

Maplehurst Hotel Continues Open for Sept. and October

In answer to requests from scores of patrons and friends, the Brenners of Woonsocket, owners and operators of Maplehurst Hotel at Bethlehem, New Hampshire, have decided not to close their popular hotel this year until the latter part of October.

The ever popular Maplehurst is enjoying this year the best season of its brief existence, which attests to its fine service and culinary departments. Rhode Islanders, who have been guests at Maplehurst, are loud in their praise of the Brenner family who, by their unusual personal solicitude for every guest, have made their hotel one of the most popular in the White Mountains.

The late summer and early fall is the best season in the mountains and truly is the ideal place for those who are in need of a good rest away from the city and midst the beauties of nature's wonderland. The Maplehurst appointments are the same as in any big city hotel, large airy rooms, with private baths, hot and cold water and steam heat in every room for cool, clear nights. Of course, the Jewish dietary laws are strictly observed with fresh eggs and vegetables from the Maplehurst farm.

Bethlehem this year is the ideal place to spend Rosh Hashonah and Yom Kippur, because of its beautiful permanent Synagogue, which is but a few minutes' walk from Maplehurst.

Plan to spend a week or two now at Maplehurst for a vacation and rest which will prove to be one of great benefit for your health and will mean much to you for the coming months ahead.

The Brenners will be happy to send you information in regard to Maplehurst and its low rates. Address them at Bethlehem, New Hampshire.

OUR COLLEGE YOUTH — 1932

The higher schools of learning will open their doors within the next few weeks to a group of men and women with far different attitudes and aspirations than those of their predecessors of some few years past. For, within the last few years, economic conditions have so changed the spirit within the college walls that it is safe to assume that higher learning has really begun to earn its title in America. Chastened by straitened circumstances, impelled by a newer and more serious aspect of life, thousands of men and women are facing their own problems in the classroom while they study the problems of the world.

The feeling that education is an opportunity rather than a mere accomplishment must have come to many. The determination to be at the top in a period of crumbling towers will be responsible for finer and sincerer work. The knowledge that Israel has gained through centuries of suffering, discrimination and bloodshed has been quickly acquired by our college youth. How lasting this knowledge will be is a vital question.

Within the last few decades, our Jewish young men and women have entered college in ever increasing numbers. Certain schools have been said to have found their unrestricted enrollment unfeasible; and the unsavory arguments pro and con regarding the situation were responsible in many instances of creating situations which never existed before. At the present moment, it is certain that our young people are feeling as keenly as the others the leanness of the time; and many of them will probably be compelled to sacrifice education until a more auspicious year.

One fact, however, is certain. Young Jewish men and women are far more in need of education than ever before. Our college men and women of today should have their full share of Jewish competition, as well. In times of economic upheaval, the Jew falls back upon his heritage as the scholar. Only as a professional man may he exercise the law or medicine. In the political distresses of the world, he must likewise stand ready and equipped to help the situation of his people. Germany needs courageous and intelligent college men and women to plead the Jewish cause; and to analyze the sophistry of political opportunists like Hitler. England needs college-bred Jews to fight for the treaty rights of the Holy Land. America needs to have college-bred Jews so that they may fight to bring about the ideal of our democracy which has never been fully attained. In the coming college year, it is to be hoped that our youth will bend their mental energies toward the study of those major Jewish problems which are becoming of world importance. Then only will we feel that college has begun to have a realer meaning for those who find courage and inspiration within its gates.

effect, that while he has no particular theoretical sympathies with nudism, the fact remains that the skin is a breathing organism and needs air. Which, we should say, is score 1 for Magistrate Goldstein.

The Economic Argument

On the other hand, the argument is urged, that if the shoulder straps are permitted to be removed, the next step, that of swimming in trunks alone is inevitable. This will mean a further cut in the amount of wool used, and will only intensify the economic distress of the sheep-raising farmers of the Middle West, who will be bound to turn against Hoover, and maybe revive dangerous old Populism.

Jonah and His Whale

But the question has other angles. The moralists point out. We have exposed the ankle, we have exposed the calves, and now they would have us expose the chest. Are we all to be glorified like the Ziegfeld girls? It is immoral. It is indecent.

Strangely enough, their side is also taken by the burlesque producers and venders of erotica. If we permit the removal of the shoulder straps, you will kill our business, these gentry say. People will get so callous to the anatomy, that they will have no curiosity to be capitalized.

You can see for yourself, what a "whale" of a controversy Magistrate Jonah let loose.

A Successful Failure

They have just buried Henry Klein. He belongs to that group of really distinguished who never receive their proper credit from history. He was a true pioneer, an original thinker. If you don't happen to know who he was, then it's because you don't weigh 300 pounds or more. For every person blessed with that amount of corpulence, knew Henry Klein. He was a specialist in the making of clothes for the ultra-fat.

I don't know what made Klein turn to this specialty of tailoring for the ultra-heavy. It must have been the attraction of opposites. He himself was six feet tall and weighed only 120.

But the heavy gentry of New York called him blessed. They lost a dear friend in him and a useful friend.

And Klein did not have to wait for his reward in passing. He was richly rewarded in life. He achieved success. He achieved prosperity.

One dream of his life, he never achieved. He tried so hard, but he couldn't do it. He tried to put on weight.

of intensifying and expanding the Hadassah preventive health program while gradually transferring the curative work to the Jewish community of Palestine will constitute one of the major problems of the convention. It is expected that considerable discussion will also center about Hadassah's association with the Hebrew University in Palestine in a project to make of the Hadassah hospital in Jerusalem a central unit of the proposed medical division of the university.

In connection with the convention a special Hadassah sermon will be preached by Rabbi Israel Goldstein at the B'nai Jeshurun Synagogue, 257 West 88th street, Saturday, Sept. 17. On the same afternoon Mrs. Nathan D. Perlman will be hostess to out-of-town guests at her home, where there will be discussions on Zionism. Sunday's sessions will be devoted to national reports and a symposium on Jewish educational problems, led by Dr. Kaplan. In the evening the New York Chapter of Hadassah will give a reception to the convention delegates at Temple Rodeph Shalom, 7 West 83rd street. Rabbi Wise, Rabbi Newman and Mrs. Edward Jacobs, National President of Hadassah, will be the speakers. At a luncheon on Monday, Professor Winslow and Dr. Yasky will talk on "Economic Work in Palestine." Judge Mack and Mr. Rothenberg will speak at a banquet in the evening. Election of officers will conclude the sessions on Tuesday.

can keep us standing upright in these tragic days, faced by a world of enmity and hatred, it is the fact that together with our own feeling of worth and dignity and our pride in our past, there are in the world 15 million people like ourselves, with the same aims, and the same hopes, and that the things which the Jews of one single country may be too weak to do, the whole of world Jewry may find possible—to save valuable and perhaps large sections of our people for a better future.

It is in Germany that anti-Semitism has today reached its peak, and it is in the nature of things that a country that has a surplus in any particular branch tries to export it abroad. So that we find efforts to export anti-Semitism being made everywhere, in Austria, Roumania, Belgium, Holland, even in Switzerland. It may be that some of it will be dumped. There is a demand for it in a number of countries.

But that kind of export will not bring about an improvement in Germany's trading balance. It will probably make it worse. The position of the German Jews will certainly not improve to any extent in the near future. We German Jews are today in a similar situation as Russian Jewry was immediately after the Revolution, when the Jews were thrown out of economic life and had to find new branches of economic activity. Up to the present moment very few sections in German Jewry have realized this position, and nothing has yet been done to transfer German Jews to self-help activity.

We do not know what is coming. For another thing, we have to fight in the ranks with the rest of German Jewry, with such who do not want to say too loudly that they are Jews, and who think that the enemies of the Jews can be deceived by denying our Jewish distinctiveness.

We know that only the truth can regulate the relations between ourselves and the rest. We are of the opinion that this Jewish World Congress when it comes about will be a powerful call to the Jews of all countries and of all sections, to create a possibility for us to declare in the face of the whole world that we are what our fathers were, and that we have a right to maintain our distinctive Jewishness.

There are a number of organizations which are not yet represented here. They will come in later on. This conference must give a start to the unification of world Jewry.

To the assimilationists in Germany I say this:

Today you are still able to write in your press and to speak at your meetings, but no one knows how long that right will be left to you, and then there will be only one way of speaking to the world—through the Jewish Congress. We hope that this voice will resound so loudly that the conscience of the peoples will again awaken and perhaps even those who are today in authority in Germany will find the courage to speak out as Senator Borah in his message to us has spoken.

COMMITTEE FORMED TO HELP PALESTINE SAVINGS GROUPS

New York, Sept. 16 — (JTA) — A temporary committee to consider plans for the organization of an Advisory Council of Palestine Savings Groups was appointed at a meeting held recently at the Hotel Bedford.

Letter to the Editor

Editor of The Jewish Herald:

Whenever I undertake to render service for some worthy cause or institution, I am pleasantly reminded of the indisputable fact that The Jewish Herald has established itself as an invaluable medium through which a weekly message may advantageously be transmitted to the entire Jewish population of our state.

I, for one, am exceedingly glad of this public opportunity to commend in the highest terms the owners of your paper for giving up so much valuable space gratis for every spiritual and social endeavor in Rhode Island and nearby Massachusetts.

But at the same time I wish to call the attention of your readers to the fact that only extolling the owners of The Herald for their magnanimity will not keep the wolf from The Herald's door even with the protection of a Mezuzah. Paying subscriptions promptly, when due, and urging others to subscribe, also will prevent starvation. For I am reliably advised, by a noted dietitian, that even publishers and editors of Jewish weeklies must eat at least once a week.

And now, my dear Mr. Editor, lest you surmise that I have a selfish motive in praising The Herald, I shall refrain at this time from repeating my excellent advice to the Jews of our state to "PUT AWAY A NICKEL A DAY" for tickets for the Jewish Home for the Aged Ball that will take place at the Biltmore Hotel next Christmas. And I have no intention of stressing the fact that it will be the most novel and elaborate entertainment of its kind presented here in many years—and I am not presumptuous in making that declaration. Consequently, I shall postpone making that statement to a more opportune time in the near future.

Respectfully yours,
BERNARD M. GOLDOWSKY.

READY FOR WINTER ACTIVITIES

The Jewish Community Center stands ready to open its doors for the eighth fall and winter program. In 1925 the Jewish Community Center was incorporated and since then has achieved remarkable success in drawing to itself various elements in the community.

As a communal organization, with a program that appeals to all in the community, it stands as the shining beacon which radiates light to all corners in Providence. Its program appeals to the child, young man and woman and to the adult. The present Center membership is almost 1100, the largest in its history.

BOARD TO MEET

Next Wednesday evening, Sept. 21, the Board will hold its first meeting of the season under the chairmanship of Jules P. Goldstein. Reports will be presented by various committee chairmen and Executive Director Jacob I. Cohen, who is preparing a wide program of activities that will include many new features.

RELIGIOUS SCHOOL TO OPEN

In view of the High Holidays, which fall on Sundays, it has been decided to open the Jewish Center Religious School, Sunday morning, Sept. 25th, to allow the school to get a good start. Following the opening the next sessions will be scheduled for Sunday morning, Oct. 9th. The school will again re-assemble for regular Sunday sessions, Oct. 30th. During the last season the school carried an enrollment of more than 200 children and it is expected that a large number will avail themselves of the opportunities offered by this well organized Jewish School.

A staff of 13 experienced teachers is ready to offer instruction in Jewish history, customs, ceremonies and observances of Jewish Holidays and other subjects. A staff meeting of teachers will be held Thursday evening, Sept. 22nd, to discuss plans and a program for the school. The curriculum is under the personal supervision of Executive Director Cohen. Mr. Henry Hassenfeld is chairman of Jewish Activities.

CLUB PROGRAM TO START

The Jewish Center is occupying a unique place in the community because of the large number of clubs it houses under its roof. Every club is manned by an experienced leader. In addition, the club activities are supervised by a trained club director, Nathan E. Pass, who has been appointed to that position for the fifth successive season. Clubs who met last year and new clubs should get in touch with the Center at once.

AN ATTRACTIVE HOUSE

The interior of the Center has never received so much attention as it did this season. Every corner of the building has received attention with the result that everything within the Center shines and sparkles. Come in and see for yourself.

REMEMBER THE DANCE

Don't forget the big Yom Kippur Dance at the Arcadia Ballroom. Monday evening, Oct. 10th. Visitors from all over New England will be present as well as everybody in Providence. Here is your chance to say, "Happy New Year," to all your friends at this largest social event of the season. Af-

NEWS WRITTEN FOR THE JEWISH HERALD by GEORGE JOEL

BAER BEATS SCHAAF

Who the leading Jewish heavy-weight is has finally been determined. The entries were Maxie Baer, California butcher boy, and King Levinsky, Chicago fish peddler. The former defeated Levinsky on two occasions, but Levinsky had won some important fights. Now that the Baer-Schaaf bout is over there is no longer any doubt that Baer is by far the best of our heavies.

In Chicago a fortnight ago Baer met Schaaf in a ten-round bout. The Boston fighter hailed and acclaimed as the most promising of all the younger heavyweights, was an odds on favorite to win, but to every one's amazement, Baer not only outfought the Boston lad throughout the bout, but with two seconds to go in the tenth round, Baer landed on Schaaf with such power that Schaaf was knocked flat on his face and was out for the count. The bell saved Schaaf's record, but his seconds had to drag him from the ring. It took fully three minutes to revive him. Unfortunately for Baer the record books will list the fight as a "decision" bout, but the crowd that witnessed the battle know how Baer actually won.

It took Baer three rounds to get going, but after that it was just so much glove throwing. Schaaf was completely outclassed. The victory means that Baer will find plenty of work in the big time rings during the coming winter, and if he can continue to win in so impressive a manner, he will find himself in a position where he can challenge the present incumbent, Mr. Jack Sharkey, of Boston.

THE MEN'S NATIONAL SINGLES

Out at Forest Hills last week the men's national singles tennis championships were held. I assume you read the papers, so I don't have to go into details about the results, but I thought you might be interested in what our Jewish tennis players accomplished. Not very much is the sad answer. After the third day of play there were no Jewish players left.

Eddie Jacobs of Baltimore went out in that round at the hands of Sutter, the intercollegiate champion, in straight sets. Gab Lavine of Pennsylvania University, was also a third round elimination, but he had the honor of being trounced by the defending champion, Elsworth Vines, in four sets. Vines walked through the first two chapters with the loss of but one game. In the third set he became wild and before he knew it, Gab, who is a good college player, had the set won. The fourth set was Vines, but not until Gab had knotted the score 5-5. Julius Seligson got a bad break in the draw. Last year he ran into Perry, the English Davis Cup player, in the first round. Mangin beat him in three straight sets.

I saw the match and after the second act it seemed as though Julius was anxious to finish as soon as possible. All in all it was a most exciting week for the Jewish tennis players. It is to be noted that in the past three years not one new Jewish player has moved up into the senior ranks. Even the veterans' tournament was without its Jewish stars. Last year, Dr. Rosenbaum made quite a stir, but this year he went out in an early round.

CHATTERINGS

Miss Betty Kronman of Washington, D. C., writes to acclaim the news that Lillian Copeland, winner of the discus throw in the recent Los Angeles Olympic games, is a member of our race. The young lady also tells me that Reba Kirson of Washington was one of the Jewish ladies who performed in the Women's National Tennis championships. Thanks, Miss Betty. . . . A female mail this week another letter from Miss Clara Leibson of Boston, who writes: "I don't like the remarks you make about Jewish girls in your column. There are other things more important than athletics." You're telling me? It's a good thing I don't feel editorial! . . . Miss Millicent Hirsch of New York is playing in the National Girls' Singles at Philadelphia, and at this writing, is a semi-finalist. Did you realize that in girls' tennis there are only two classes, girls and seniors? I guess they can't have a junior class because the gals are sensitive about their age after 16.

Ira Singer, who has been very quiet in track circles this year, will make an appearance at the coming Knights of Columbus games to be held in New York City. Ira, once the indoor national 50-yard champ, will compete in the century.

No matter what else happens in sport, Sam Stein, the wrestler, continues to grapple for his living, and current rumors have it that he is eating large and regularly.

How far away Maxie Baer has pulled from Levinsky as a fighter can be ascertained from the results of a fight Levinsky had recently with Risko. The Cleveland baker, who has fought them all with little success in the past few years, is attempting a comeback, and started up again by defeating Levinsky in a 12-round go at Cleveland. Though when I come to think of it, Risko beat Levinsky last year in Boston.

Football practice has started in earnest at New York University. Among the Jewish boys reporting to Coach Cann were Natie Grossman of last year's team, a back; Sol Fuchs, Gerald Friedman, Abe Itzkowitz and Tom Arnowitz, the last two, first string linemen of 1931.

Signs that the depression is lifting—two charters for Jewish country clubs in Long Island were filed. . . . From six eastern colleges comes word that more Jews have made application than last year. . . . Abe Klein, manufacturer of basketball uniforms, says that business is going to be better. Abe, a well-known character around the basketball courts in New York, hasn't smiled since stocks took that little dip in 1929. He was caught laughing out loud the other day.

Bainbridge Colby Calls for Nomination of Col. Lehman for Governor of New York

New York, Sept. 16—(JTA)—Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State in the Cabinet of President Woodrow Wilson, in a signed article, which appeared in a recent issue of "American," calls upon the Democratic party to unite behind the candidacy of Lieutenant Governor Herbert H. Lehman for Governor of New York State.

"For the Democratic party to nominate any other candidate than Lieutenant Governor Lehman to succeed Government Roosevelt is to repudiate the Roosevelt policies that have won popular confidence for the Democratic party," he declares.

"BO" CALLS TEAM OUT

"Bo" McMillin, as he was known when he led the "praying colonels" of Center college, Kentucky, has lined up some promising material for the new season at Kansas State college, where he now officiates. The future quarterback in the picture is Jere Robert McMillin, ten months old, who shows considerable aptitude in learning signals, according to his proud dad.

N. E. Podiatry College to Commence Its Fourth Year, Monday, Sept. 19

The New England College of Podiatry, located at 8 Greene street, will begin its fourth year, Monday, Sept. 19. Founded in the year 1929 by Dr. S. N. Pennine, its President, the college has in a short space of time attracted interest throughout the country.

The college offers a complete course of study in Podiatry, which gives the student a well grounded preparation, a fundamental background, a strictly scientific knowledge, enabling him to pursue the work in his profession.

The faculty, headed by Dr. Byron U. Richards, former Commissioner of Health, and member of the Medical Examining Board of the State of Rhode Island, has more licensed medical men on its teaching staff than is usual with most schools of Podiatry. The non-medical science is taught by men thoroughly capable, some holding other very prominent positions.

The college maintains one of the largest foot clinics in the country. These clinics are conducted by men of experience, some of whom have made enviable records in the profession.

OVER 34,000 CHILDREN ATTEND PALESTINE SCHOOLS

Agency employs 917 teachers. More than 100 of the schools are located in three cities: Jerusalem, which has 35; Tel Aviv, 50, and Haifa, 17.

In a statement accompanying the statistics, Louis Lipsky, National Chairman of the American Campaign, said:

"One of the most important functions of the Jewish Agency is the maintenance in Palestine of the educational structure which is so vital a part of the Jewish National Home. One of the gravest aspects of the critical financial situation faced by the Jewish Agency today is the possibility that the great majority of these schools may have to be closed down, thus depriving tens of thousands of children of the technical and intellectual equipment they must have to participate adequately in the upbuilding of the Jewish Homeland. I hope that American Jewry will provide the funds to avert such an eventuality."
