ANTHENEUM PRESS IN NEW York plans to release today an American edition of Richard H. S. Grossman's book, "A Nation Reborn." Grossman was one of two British M.P.'s who had served on the Anglo-American Commission of Inquiry into the Palestine problem in 1945. In his book he tells the story of Israel's rebirth.

DR. ISAAC KISH, NOTED scholar and Zionist, has been named by Queen Juliana to the Dutch Supreme Court. The new appointee is the only Jew on the high court.

ORTHODOXY IS GAINING strength in Western Europe, it was reported in Paris at a meeting of the permanent committee of the Conference of European Rabbis. The parley in a resolution urged the Jewish Material Claims Conference to augment financial aid to meet the religious needs of European Jewry, particularly in the area of religious education.

POLICE COMMANDER, ABRAHAM Selinger, who is head of the special police bureau assembling data for the trial of Adolf Eichmann, left Tel Aviv for Europe to obtain more documentary material on the Nazi killer's role in the extermination of European Jewry. Joseph Nahamias, police inspector general, said Selinger would visit several countries but he did not specify which countries. The Israeli press expressed cautious optimism over the possibility that President Frondizi of Argentina will change his adamant position with regard to the Eichmann case when he returns from his present European trip back to Buenos Aires.

A GROUP OF GROSSE POINTE residents went on record in Detroit as strongly opposing the "point system" used to bar Jews and other "undesirables" from the exclusive area as "an affront to the standards of decency in human relations." The group expressed its view in a letter to Corporations and Securities Commissioner Lawrence Gubow who is holding hearings on the Grosse Pointe housing bias practices. It commended the commission for "searching out the truth." The signatories to the letter said they "hold firmly to the belief that racial religious and national prejudices have no place in our democracy."

THE HOMES OF THREE Jewish Families in Absecon N. J., were defaced with swastikas and anti-Jewish slogans warning the Jewish occupants to leave town. Two of the three homes had been similarly defaced last February. Police said that they believed adults were responsible.

MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE Moshe Dayan told the Parliamentary Economic Committee that no new agricultural settlements would be established in Israel during the next four years except where security considerations prevailed or where settlement could be effected without having to bring in water from other sources.

Name Prosecutor
In Eichmann Trial

JERUSALEM — Gideon Hauser, new Attorney General, will act as chief prosecutor in the trial of Adolph Eichmann, Hitler's specialist in the mass murder of European Jewry, it was disclosed this week.

Police officials meanwhile indicated that the investigation of the Nazi and collection of material in preparation for the trial may last longer than had originally been anticipated, possibly as much as a year.

Draft Amendment

In the meantime, the Israel Ministry of Justice is drafting an amendment to the Lawyers Ordinance to make it possible for non-Israeli attorneys to defend Eichman in an Israel court.

Under present law, only locally registered attorneys can appear in Israel courts. Foreign attorneys can appear only as aides to Israel lawyers or as "friends of the court." In the latter role, the court recognizes the counsel as working without remuneration. Such a development was considered unlikely to happen in the trial of Eichmann.

Assistant Executive Director
Appointed At Home For Aged

Charles Vogel has been appointed assistant executive director of the Jewish Home for the Aged of Rhode Island it was announced by Max Winograd, president of the Home, at the June board meeting. Born in New York City, Charles Vogel was graduated from the Yeshiva University in 1948 with a B.A. and B.H.L. in religious education. He is now a candidate for the degree of Master in Social Work at the University of Connecticut School of Social Work.

Mr. Vogel, who assumed his duties on July 15, was formerly a principal of Jewish Schools in Lewiston, Maine, and in Holyoke, Mass. While preparing for social work he was a staff member of the Jewish Community Center in Springfield, Mass. and the Hartford Neighborhood Centers in Hartford, Conn. where he supervised youth programs, summer camps, and acted as adviser to Golden Age groups who engaged in recreational, educational, and social activities. He is a member of the American Camping Association, the National Association of Jewish Center Workers, and the National Association of Social Workers.

Charles Vogel

Mrs. Vogel, the former Rita Feder, is a graduate of the University of Colorado. The couple have three children, David 10, Judith 6, and Paula 4. They will reside at 153 Chace Avenue.

Rabbis' Intervention In Politics
Causes Trouble, Says Reporter

JERUSALEM — The introduction of Reform or Conservative Judaism in Israel would not cure the sickness of religious life in the Jewish State, according to a Jerusalem Post columnist, Geoffrey Wigader.

The trouble with organized religion in Israel is, according to the Jerusalem Post columnist, that the obscurantism of the Israel rabbinate as well as its intervention in politics has robbed it of respect in the sight of the majority of the young people. We are witnessing the tragic spectacle of the ecclesiastical authorities living in a world that is basically out of touch with modern realities, Wigader wrote.

Neither the synagogues nor the rabbinate as a whole have anything to do with youth work or education, Wigader wrote. His article continues:

We are always being told that our youth is "groping for something." Some of them doubtless are, but it is time that we realized that only a minority is groping for religion. Religious reform might help to save the category of those who drift from orthodoxy, and, if they find no alternative, will inevitably land in secularism. For this comparatively small group, Reform might provide a cushion. But the great majority has no pull to religion whatsoever.

U. S. "Revival"

The much-vaunted religious revival in the United States is partly the result of social pressure and partly the outcome of a sick society. It is little more than a desperate clinging to a reed.

Attempts have been made to institute Reform and Conservative but it is significant that such services, although presented attractively according to Reform tenets, have had no appeal to the Israeli and the meagre congregations are drawn largely from ex-Americans and ex-Germans.

Comes From Within

It would be apparent that any spiritual regeneration will have to come from within and will not be kindled by modes of worship introduced from outside.

The problem goes deeper than the external forms of worship. Basically there is no sign of a religious awakening. The Israeli is finding his values in different worlds — some in the world of nationalism, some within the framework of general Jewish culture.

The craze for archeology in this country is understandable when it is realized to what extent archeology and the preoccupation with

Says Soviet Union
To Continue To
Send Arms To UAR

VIENNA—Nikita S. Khrushchev said here last week that the Soviet Union will continue to send arms to Arab countries, particularly the United Arab Republic, because some Western countries are continuing to rearm Israel.

He told a press conference before concluding his state visit to this country that the Arab states needed arms to protect their "positive neutrality" in view of the "aggressive intentions" of the Western Powers.

The Soviet leader asserted that he had proposed to the Western Powers to stop all arms shipments to the Middle East but, he claimed, the West only wanted to block Soviet shipments without halting their own arms shipments to Israel.

Can't Advise B. G.

The Soviet Union, he argued, thus was compelled to give support to countries in the Near East in order to preserve the balance of power.

Khrushchev became sarcastic when asked by a correspondent what Israel could do to improve relations with Moscow. He snapped back that he could not advise Prime Minister Ben Gurion since he believed that Ben Gurion neither sought his advice nor would be pleased by that advice if it were given him.

He made no reference to repeated attempts by Ben Gurion to visit Moscow and meet with him.

Khrushchev was infuriated by another question dealing with the status of the Jews within the Soviet Union. When he was asked if he would permit Russian Jews to leave the Soviet Union to be reunited with family members in other countries, he angrily replied that the Soviet Foreign Ministry had not received a single application from a Russian Jew for an emigration permit. On the other hand he asserted, it was receiving many applications from Israel asking permission to immigrate into the Soviet Union.

In any case, he said, "reuniting families" was a vague expression which did not mean anything.

Rio De Janeiro Opposes
Citizenship For Cukurs

RIO DE JANEIRO—The Rio de Janeiro city council went on record last week as opposing the granting of Brazilian citizenship to a former Latvian Nazi SS officer, Herbert Cukurs, who has been charged with killing 32,000 Jews in Riga during World War II. The council voted unanimously to ask the Minister of the Interior to reject Cukur's citizenship application.

The council also decided to request the Minister of Justice to institute proceedings against Cukurs in accordance with the UN Convention on Genocide, to which Brazil is a signatory, and turn the former Nazi over to Israeli authorities for trial. An extradition agreement is in force between the two countries.

The Brazilian Government turned down a similar citizenship application by Cukurs nine years ago after a strong protest was lodged by the Rio De Janeiro Federation of Jewish Institutions.

Cukurs, who operates a transportation firm in Sao Paulo, testified at a recent hearing on his application for naturalization that he hated Jews because they received the Russians "jubilantly" when Soviet troops marched into Riga in 1940, and because "Jewish Communists exiled 15,000 Latvians to Siberia".

First Jet Plane
Delivered To Israel Air Force

TEL AVIV — The first jet plane ever assembled in Israel — a French Fouga Magister jet trainer — was delivered to the Israel Air Force last week by Israel Air Industry, Ltd. formerly the Bedek Co.

The plane was assembled with components shipped from France. Eleven more trainers will be assembled here on this basis. Al Shwimmer, head of the aviation company, said all parts will be manufactured locally except for the engines which will continue to be imported from France.

The use of jet trainers will shorten considerably the time needed to train pilots for the Israel Air Force.

Initial Gifts Co-Chairmen — Samuel Rosen, Initial Gifts chairman of the 1960 campaign of the General Jewish Committee, today announced the appointment of Ira S. Galkin and Sol Koffler, as co-chairmen of Initial Gifts for the forthcoming annual Fall fund-raising drive. Both Mr. Galkin and Mrs. Koffler have played an active role in past campaigns.

Irving Jay Fain Named To Board

Irving Jay Fain of Providence was recently elected by the Union of American Hebrew Congregations to serve on the Board of Governors of its seminary, the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion in Cincinnati. The UAHC represents 605 Reform temples in the U. S. and Canada with a membership of 1,000,000 with headquarters in New York City. Mr. Fain, a Rhode Island businessman, is vice-chairman of the UAHC and was recently elected chairman of the Union's Commission on Social Action of Reform Judaism. He is president of Temple Beth El in Providence.

Present 'Monique'
 At Matunuck Theatre

Elizabeth Wilson is featured as a scheming woman doctor, who employs her medical knowledge to perpetrate an ingenious murder in "Monique," the macabre and fascinating thriller that is being presented by John G. Holmes in association with George Quick at the Theatre-by-the-Sea, Matunuck, nightly at 8:30 through Saturday, July 23, with a Saturday matinee at 2:30. In this suspenseful melodrama, which held audiences breathless when it was seen on Broadway in 1957, the strong-willed Monique ruthlessly plots a "perfect" murder with elaborate skill. John Ramondetta will have the role of the apprehensive husband, dominated by the purposeful and sinister physician, and Mary James will play the frigid, jealous wife who stands in the way of his happiness. Others in the cast will include Joseph Warren as the inquisitive friend who suspects that things are not what they would appear on the surface, Susan Trustman in the role of a romantic, adolescent neighbor, William Harahan as the unsuspecting brother of the murder victim, Stuart Damon as a talkative and good-natured carpenter and Louise Blakemore as a family servant with a penchant for stealing from the household larder.

Hope To Complete First
 Pipeline Stage By 1963

TEL AVIV — The first stage of the Jordan-Negev pipeline, Israel's largest irrigation project, should be completed by the end of 1963 if the current work pace keeps up, according to Aharon Wiener, chief engineer of the Israel Water Planning Authority. The pipeline is being constructed to bring the waters of the Jordan River to the Negev. Israel's plans to divert some of the Jordan waters have evoked threats of war from President Nasser of the United Arab Republic and announcements of plans by Lebanon and Syria to divert tributaries in their territories of the Jordan River. Large volumes of Jordan water will begin irrigating parts of the Negev on completion of the first stage of the project at the end of 1963, Weiner said.

VISIT NAVAL HOSPITAL
 Members of Roger Williams Chapter, B'nai B'rith, visited the Newport Naval Hospital on July 14. Mrs. Morris Ratush, chairman, was assisted by Mrs. Louis Blattle and Mrs. Morris Kramer. Miss Wagner, the American Red Cross field director, and her workers, assisted the visitors. Games were played with the patients and refreshments and prizes were given out. Religion In Israel

the past have become religion-substitutes. The Bible remains the source-book of the people — it is the Bible as literature, as history, as the foundation of the people, but not the Bible as inspiration or as the basis of Judaism.

Jewish Values

Religion is not to be salvaged by concessions to form in Israel as in the rest of the world. The main challenge today is to ensure that the coming generations will be raised on the basis of Jewish values. Israelis steeped in such values will build something worthwhile irrespective of whether they observe the mitzvot to a greater or lesser degree.

The danger facing the nation is not so much secularism as the negation of Judaism.

For this reason, the introduction of the teaching of "Jewish Consciousness" into the schools was a step in the right direction, although the question of its practical application still remains to be solved.

Already the role of religion in Israel — as in any modern, progressive state — is minor. The only way to ensure that the future face of the country will remain Jewish is by inculcating a Jewish culturalism — the appreciation of traditional Jewish values as exemplified in the experiences and expressions of the people.

Bohnen and Rabbi Morris Schussheim officiated at the 6 P. M. ceremony in Temple Emanuel. A reception in the temple's social hall followed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in imported silk organza over taffeta designed with short sleeves, a sequined bodice and full skirt. Her crown of pearls held a French illusion fingertip veil. She carried a lace covered Bible with orchids and stephanotis.

Miss Myrna Shore was maid of honor and Mrs. Sidney Richman was matron of honor.

Myron Raisner was best man for his brother. Ushers were Sidney Richman, brother of the bride; Fred Raisner, the bridegroom's brother, Aaron Priest and Howard Lovett.

The couple visited the Pocono Mountains for their wedding trip.

Melamut-Rabinowitz

Temple B'nai Moshe in Brighton, Mass., was the scene of the wedding of Miss Diane Rabinowitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Louis Rabinowitz of Newton Centre, Mass., to Charles Leon Melamut, son of Mrs. and Mrs. Jack Melamut of 175 Irving Avenue on June 26. Officiating at the ceremony were Rabbi Joseph Shubow and Cantor Boris Schiffman. A reception and dinner followed the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in floor length white chantilly lace with a scalloped sabrina neckline with roses embroidered on the lace with lustrous pearls. Her tiered veil,

UAR'S Anti-Israel Campaign Assumes Anti-Semitic Pattern

JERUSALEM — The United Arab Republic's anti-Israel campaign under President Nasser's regime is assuming an anti-Semitic pattern reminiscent of Nazi Jew-baiting during the Hitler era, it was declared here by expert analysts of the propaganda which has been emanating from Cairo in recent months.

Indicative of the anti-Semitic pattern, it was pointed out, is the fact that Nasser himself last month borrowed a Nazi phrase when he said that U.S. aid to the United Arab Republic was "in the style of Cohen."

Cohen, in Nazi semantics, was a synonym for Jew. He made the snide remark against the background of Washington disclosures that the U. S. since the start of this year had contributed more than $60-million in aid to the UAR.

Another practice attributed by Nasser to the U.S. was practice of "usury" against his people. Here, too, was an anti-Semitic under-tone. In addition, Cairo Radio recently in a program for children blamed "Cohens" as people who were extracting money from "starving peasants."

The broadcast ended with a choral expression of hope that "every Cohen in this world die." Further evidence of Cairo's unmistakable anti-Semitic direction was seen in the fact that the Egyptian press utilized the Adolf Eichmann seizure as an opening for violently anti-Semitic and pro-Nazi outbursts.

Weizmann Institute Scientist Turns To Crime Detection

(The services rendered by the Weizmann Institute scientists range from fuel research, geophysical survey, the isotope investigation of underground water, to aid to Israel's industry. Even the Police Department makes use of the brains of the Weizmann Institute. Recently Dr. Joseph H. Jaffe, Head of the Infrared Section was called upon to solve a crime and explain a suicide which baffled official investigators.)

It may seem unlikely, perhaps even incongruous, that the Weizmann Institute of Science, with its almost cloistered atmosphere, conducts investigations, not only into the laws of nature, but into the nature of crimes — among them, homicide, arson, rape and burglary.

For several years now, the Institute has quietly rendered immeasurable assistance to the police and courts of Israel for whom it has unravelled the most complex and unorthodox problems of physical evidence.

Twentieth century crime detection relies largely on the apparatus and special skills of the modern world. Clearly, the Israel Police Force could not afford the scientific personnel or equipment which the Weizmann Institute has frequently placed at its disposal. A telling example of this cooperation is in the sphere of emission spectrography — which detects and identifies minute traces of various materials, such as glass fragments, paint smears, etc.

The celebrated instance of a police spectrographic examination conducted at the Weizmann Institute was the case of the priceless antiques stolen from the Bezalel Museum in Jerusalem. The gold ceremonial objects had been melted down in order to prevent identification, and to make easier their disposal. We suspected that this was done at an upholsterer's shop where they had first been filed down. An iron file was eventually discovered on the premises, and sent on to Dr. Jaffe for examination in the Institute's large Littrow Spectrograph. The spectral lines of gold were clearly discernible on the spectrograph, giving us circumstantial proof of our suspicions.

Dr. Jaffe has worked with equal success on the side of the defense. Contrary, perhaps, to rumor, the Police Force is eager for this kind of expert defense testimony.

But the spectrographic examinations are only one aspect of help given by the Institute. Institute scientists have served us well also in an unofficial consultative capacity particularly in intricate problems of physics, to name just one other field. A man's body was once found at some distance from a building. The pathological examination revealed that it had been smashed by a great force which might be explained either by a traffic accident, or by a fall from a building. The traffic accident theory was ruled out because of the location. It seemed impossible that, at this particular spot, a car could work up sufficient speed to cause such physical damage, or that the body had fallen from the nearest building because the distance between them was too large.

Dr. Jaffe was called in. He figured out that if the deceased had run fast enough — taking a running jump from the nearest building — we could account for gested by motivational factors, was proved by scientific calculations which could only be made by the most highly qualified scientists.

Foods To Remember

▲ BROILED FISH PATTIES

- 3 to 4 pounds fresh fish (filleted and chopped)
- 1 1/2 tablespoons salt
- 1 large onion, peeled & grated
- 1 large carrot, scraped and grated
- 1 cup diced celery, leaves too
- 3 slices stale bread (Challah), soaked and squeezed dry
- 3 eggs
- 1/2 cup fine cracker crumbs (or Matzo Meal)

The filleted fish may be put through the fine blade of a food chopper for best results...takes less time, too. Add salt, grate in the onion and raw carrot and then put through the grinder again with the diced celery and the squeezed out bread. Into this work the eggs, one at a time. Form the mixture into patties 3 inches in diameter and about 3/4 inch thick. Make the patties smaller if desired, but we have found the 3-inch ones best for serving, allowing two per portion. Dip each in crumbs. Line a shallow baking pan or cookie sheet with aluminum foil, and arrange the patties about an inch apart each way. Slip under the broiler flame or oven for 10 minutes at 350 deg. F. or till lightly browned on top. Turn to brown under sides. Serve hot or cold with relishes to suit the taste.

Serves 8 or more. If a double or triple recipe is prepared, wrap the unused Patties in aluminum foil, several together and freeze. May be served re-heated or unfrosted at room temperature.

While you have the oven on, why not bake the following tasty cake?

▲ PINEAPPLE CAKE

- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 cup vegetable shortening
- 3/4 cup granulated sugar
- A dash of ground ginger, optional

- 2 eggs
- 3/4 cup canned crushed pineapple, undrained
- 1 cup semi-sweet chocolate morsels (6oz. package)

Sift together the 4 dry ingredients into a mixing bowl. Blend the shortening and sugar till smooth and sprinkle in the ground ginger. Beat into the creamed mixture one egg at a time, using rotary beater for best results. Add the dry mixture alternately with the undrained crushed pineapple and chocolate morsels, mixing well. Spread the batter mixture in a greased pan, 15" x 10" x 1" and sprinkle the following combination topping over as evenly as possible. Bake in a pre-heated oven 25 minutes at 375 deg. F. Let cool in the pan before cutting into 3" x 2" pieces. Or omit the topping and sprinkle some chocolate "shor" over top of batter just before removing from oven.

This cake, cut as above, serves 25.

TOPPING

- 1/2 cup canned crushed pineapple, undrained
- 1 cup shredded cocoanut, tinted with vegetable coloring to suit the taste

Combine before starting cake mixing for best results. Spread as directed in recipe.

Why Do Americans Leave Israel?

Unless he is an immigrant from Ireland, none of the "Anglo-Saxons" has ever considered theocracy an advantage of a modern, democratic state. In Israel, he is exposed to it on the evening of his first Sabbath.

Assuming that he has accepted the six-day week as a necessary thing in Israel's economy, that the hours for starting work should be early because of the climate, that the hour for ending work should be late because of the long lunch period and that egalitarian wages are justified, the American oleh must still accept more. First and foremost is the Orthodox Sabbath. No sports, no entertainment, no fun. As Hal Lehrman has said, you rest despite yourself. On the only day on which you can sleep late, you have no reason to, as there was little for you to stay up for on the night before. On the only day can see the country, there is no way to travel except by private car which you will not be able to afford or by "sherut" taxicabs which are still steep. If you go to the beach, you must walk to and fro.

But even if the oleh can learn to accept a required day of rest and a predominantly kosher meat diet, he is still faced with further demands. He must either worship in an Orthodox Synagogue or none, for he will not find any of the less strict American forms of Jewish religious identification to which he is accustomed.

Totally aside from the religious issues, there are other fundamentals which we in America are used to accept as a matter of course. Israel has no trial by jury, there is prior censorship, based on security needs, but sometimes going beyond the scope of military realities. I have also seen a newspaper banned for publishing a speech by its party secretary which had previously been published in full in Israel's parliamentary record, Divrei Haknesset. Leaving Israel is not easy either. An exit visa costs an arm and a leg. A huge tax is added to the ship or airline ticket. The red tape, which requires the departee to collect documents from agencies scattered all over the country, adds to the burden. I actually had to pay for a blanket and a bed (which I never received) before the Jewish Agency would certify that I had no obligations to them.

But censorship is the most direct form of irritation. Almost every letter one receives or sends has gone through someone's hands. Every package is checked. On entering Israel, the agent questioned my King James Bible. On leaving Israel, the agent fought with me violently over the carbon copy of my master's thesis, even though the original had long since been deposited on the open shelves of my university library.

The Israeli impression of Israel's freedoms may stand up very well when compared to other areas in which we Jews have lived, but for the settler from the Western democracies there are unpardonable gaps in the rights of the Israeli. Personally, I feel that a jury trial is not ideal and that there are valid arguments for bench trials. I may also agree with other aspects of Israel's constitutional system. But to most Americans, some of these things come as distinct shocks. If one is not from a traditional Jewish background, the religious strictures, in particular, are difficult to associate with freedom.

But there is still another difficulty. A form of anti-Americanism constantly hits the oleh from the States in the face. He is criticized because the Jews in America have not come to live in Israel. It is like the teacher who scolds the pupils who come for the absentees. The oleh is blamed for the foreign policy of the United States and is expected to defend the United States position on McCarthyism, lynching, Little Rock, "restricted" housing, and all other things which liberal Americans also criticize. The American oleh is never fully accepted as an Israeli and always remains an American. This is discrimination in reverse. For the Israeli, the American is an enigma. He cannot understand why more do not come, yet cannot comprehend why they come at all. He is catered to as a tourist or a temporary sojourner, but never regarded as an equal. If he is successful in surmounting the obstacles, American money is given the credit. If he is a flop, it is because he is an American.

I know an engineer whom I consider an outstanding example of an oleh who tried to stick it out. He spent eight months working on the railroad with a sledge hammer. He made little rocks out of big ones. The various offices could find nothing better for him, although he has a magna cum laude from MIT. So now he is working in New Jersey.

A Boston girl cried when she met me on her return from Israel. She was unable to find work in other than menial chores. Her year in the Negev had been spent in a kitchen. Six years with various punched card procedures were listed on her applications for employment. Meanwhile, the Israelis were spending precious time and money training people to run its data processing machines. Ap-

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

ARE WAGES PRICING US OUT OF THE WORLD MARKETS?

A fallacy which shows dangerous signs of becoming folklore in our land is that our climbing wage rates are progressively pricing American products out of the world's markets -- that, in short, because of our far higher wage levels, our products are less and less competitive with the goods of "cheap labor" nations.

Another fallacy which shows equally dangerous signs of becoming folklore is that our wage level is rising much faster than the wage levels of the major nations of Western Europe, and thus the wage spread between our country and European countries is widening and making our competitive position worse and worse.

It well may be that you believe these fallacies; they certainly are being publicized widely enough. But they cannot be supported by facts. Rather, new statistics just brought out by world-respected sources emphasize that:

Wages in Western Europe are rising faster than in the U.S., and the likelihood is that they will continue to rise faster -- thereby closing, not widening the labor cost gap.

Although Europe's wage levels are substantially below our wage levels -- as they have been for generations -- many factors other than wage levels decide the total cost of a product, and these other factors make it possible for a long list of products to be produced cheaper in our country despite our higher wage rates.

These facts are underlined in a new study by the French National Institute of Statistics and Economic Studies and are considered so "important" by New York's giant Chase Manhattan Bank that it is sending them in a report to all "U.S. businessmen considering investments in Western Europe." They surely will be of interest to you too.

To begin with, the fact which is the basis for the fallacies about our problems in the world's markets today is that our wage level is still so much above Europe's. Our hourly average of $2.68 compares with $1.08 in Sweden (highest in Europe) and with 57 cents in the Netherlands (lowest average in Europe). These comparisons include fringe benefits or social charges which, incidentally, account for a much larger part of total labor costs in Europe than here. In Italy, for instance, social benefits account for 43 per cent of total labor costs.

In view of this central fact, how can it be argued that wages are not pricing us out of the world's markets? Here is how:

(1) The hourly wage figures may often, as the Chase Manhattan Bank puts it, "understate actual

The Lyons Den

by Leonard Lyons

The Los Angeles political gathering was a convention to end all conventions -- as well it might, or should. Bickerings, dealings, artificial "demonstrations" reminiscent of the "applause" signs once held up by announcers at second-rate radio and TV shows, and cliché-ridden nominating speeches, except for McCarthy of Minnesota, which made you suspect that the orator, in most cases, would wind up with "Sunny Tufts."

On one room door of the Biltmore Hotel, the convention headquarters, was placed a sign, "Men" -- and inside were two nude women. A pompous newspaperman saw the "crummy" suite assigned him and complained to the hotel's manager: "There must be some mistake." The manager said: "That's right. There has been a mistake. You've been given the Governor's suite. Your room is down the hall." When Perle Mesta asked David Lillenthal, ex-head of the AEC, "Are you a Republican? You look like one," he walked out.

Because no liquor was permitted to be sold at the Sports Arena convention site, Ed Pauley, the California oil man, had a trailer set up nearby, with a well-stocked bar for the convenience of friends. Paul Butler, the chairman, had the trailer removed during the night. Pauley went to Gov. Brown, obtained a liquor license from him, then removed the trailer's wheels so that Butler couldn't move it.

Ex-Solicitor General Philip Perlman, who was co-chairman of the Platform Committee, had contributed $1,000, which entitled him to two tickets. Perlman received only one ticket and the co-chairman's badge issued to him misspelled his name. Adlai Stevenson's supporters lined the streets outside, carrying banners, but were warned that anyone caught bringing a banner inside would have his ticket taken away. Some women smuggled the signs in under their dresses.

The unenthusiastic air matched the tone of the early speeches. Most of them were more fitting for a Rotarian convention. The bands played "Yellow Rose of Texas," "Missouri Waltz" and "Dixie." Outside the arena a group chanted "Glory, Glory Hallelujah," and over a mike an engineer roared: "What? Who is Zsa Zsa Gabor for?"

Eleanor Roosevelt had no official invitation to the convention. Her ticket, in the stands, came from a N.Y. friend. Her doctor wandered the convention hall alone because, he told me, he couldn't keep up with her activities. Before her plane left Idlewild, she chatted with two other passengers, Martin Gabel and Gen. David Sarnoff. They couldn't find her during the flight because she was in the tourist section.

At the N. Y. caucus, Lyndon Johnson paid particular tribute to Rep. Anfusio of Brooklyn, who had decided to support the Texas Senator. Johnson said: "It took as much courage for him to support me in Brooklyn as it would take for me to support him in Johnson labor costs." Our workers can turn out more goods per hour because they have more equipment behind them and they are more effective than equivalently skilled European workers.

(2) Other costs beyond wages must be considered -- such as the cost of fuel, power, construction, raw materials -- and these other expenses frequently are higher abroad than here.

(3) The trend is toward a more rapid rise in wages in Europe than in our country. Between 1950 and 1958, the wage rise in six European countries averaged almost 8 per cent a year against about 5 per cent here. And European labor unions are tightening their organizations, building their financial resources, pressing harder for more pay, shorter hours.

What is hurting us in the world markets is not our always superior wage scale. What is hurting us is our lack of real selling, our inferior if not deteriorating servicing of our products, our unnecessarily tough credit demands, our complacent indifference to top-notch planning to compete with our alert, vigorous, aggressive European competitors.

To accept the fallacy that we're being priced out of the world's markets by our wage rates is to accept defeat. We certainly are not going to slash our wage rates, and it will be a long time before Europe's level reaches ours. The answers lie in our common sense and courage, qualities American industrialists are supposed to possess in abundance.

City, Texas."

Johnson told of a political leader who, during the depression, notified a judge that his job had been abolished. The judge asked who was responsible for this decision, and was told the mayor, the department store owner and the local banker were responsible. The judge said he'd been sitting on indictments for stuffed ballot boxes in the mayor's election. As for the store owner, the judge said he'd been stalling off the man's creditors who held overdue notes.

And regarding the banker, the judge said he'd been deterring the grand jury from indicting him for loan frauds. The political boss quickly told the judge it was all a joke -- that the job really was his for life, irrevocably. "Then why," asked the judge, "did you make me tell those lies about my dearest friends?" And so, said Johnson to the delegates, if they gave him their votes he'd be spared from having to talk about his dearest friends, Stu, Adlai, Jack.

Prof. Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., friend and adviser to Stevenson in both campaigns, visited the Minnesota caucus to urge votes for Kennedy, whose cause he had joined. He lingered to hear Stevenson address that caucus and then the Pulitzer Prize-winning historian and Harvard professor wept. Real tears, too. Too soon perhaps, had he believed Stevenson's avowal of disinterest, "The more I see of this terrible mess, the more I want to be President less."

Much of the excitement came from the parties which offered a rare combination of politics and screen stars. At Gore Vidal's party to the N.Y. delegation at Romanoff's, Gina Lollobrigida showed up as a red head for her current role of a tart. It was odd to hear Miss Lollobrigida tell Don Murray that she'd seen his new movie in her home town -- "You know, in Toronto."

SAFE IN CONGO RIOTS

JERUSALEM — Concern was felt here last week over the fate of an estimated 2,500 Jews living in the Belgian Congo, scene of widespread anti-European rioting.

The Jewish population of the newly proclaimed state is organized in eight communities affiliated with the central community in Elizabethville.

All members of the Israel diplomatic staff and advisers assigned to the new state, about 10 in all, were reported safe in Leopoldville although some of them had been molested by insurgent soldiers.

Vacation Talk

Thoughts saved up by a man about to get out of town for two weeks:

This column has never been willing to admit that there is anything to the premise that the National League is stronger than the American. Now, for the first time, doubts are beginning to creep in. The climax, of course, was the double barreled setback in All-Star game competition last week.

Now the score begins to add up in no uncertain terms. The 1950s, of which 1960 is really the tenth and last year, were pretty even when you look at the record, till you omit the first three years, and concentrate entirely on the last seven. The sight that then evolves is enough to make any old AL fan shudder. Me, for one.

Starting with 1954, the NL has won four World Series, lost only two. The Nationals had required fourteen years to achieve four wins prior to that. The early lead of the Americans in All-Star Game competition has fast been whittled down from a once impressive 12-3 to a skimpy 16-13.

You can't ignore strong evidence like that!

Imitation being the sincerest form of flattery, the National Leaguers must indeed be beaming, for the Americans have decided to adopt their early opening of 1960 next year. This story is a sad one, and is mindful of the fact that one Joe Cronin is guiding the destinies of the American League. It is generally agreed that the main trouble in Boston is that the Red Sox are still feeling the effects of the Cronin administration that hampered them for so many years.

When the Nationals decided to open a week earlier, it was with a cogent reason. Because of their Coast-to-Coast schedule and the strain this put on all the ball clubs, the extra week provided the schedule-maker with the chance to insert more open dates here and there, giving the players a needed breather.

American League baseball writers chafed because throughout that first week, newspapers, radio and TV devoted most of their space to the new NL pennant race. The AL teams were left out in the cold. The writers have argued since that by permitting the older league to the AL owners were being foolish gain a march on them, and all the publicity, and all the attendance, etc.

So now the leagues will start at the same time, a week early, and this is utterly ridiculous. In the first place, the early start of the National League had two very favorable results for the Americans. The average fan got his baseball appetite whetted by reading and hearing about the NL games, and he was readier than ever to start going to the ball park when the season opened the following week. It is a fact that April attendance in the American League was surprisingly good.

Second, that first week, being only the second week in April, was rainy and cloudy, damp and uncomfortable. Several NL rain-outs attest to that. The week the AL opened, it was beautiful and warm—and the fans responded.

The teams played every day, and the fans came.

Nevertheless, the owners are nagged by the yelping about the other league getting all the publicity for a full week; and so the American has moved to join the early movement.

Which brings up the third ridiculous element in this tale. In only one city, Chicago, is there more than one team. So what difference could it possibly make in attendance that one league started at a different time. The AL should remember how slim are the crowds when the teams are playing in blustery cold April weather. But that's too much to expect of any organization headed by Joe Cronin.

A Lack of Power

In the 29 years (barring one, because of the War) that the All Star Game has been played, there has never been a time that all the fans or all the writers or all the managers or all the players were satisfied with the selections. Some team is always burned up because its local hero was not picked.

Countless ways of picking the All-Star teams have been tried, down through the years, and this time the players picked the starting lineups, except for pitchers, and the managers filled out the rest of the squad with their own picks.

That is not news. But this is.

Around the American League, generally speaking, it is agreed that the best first baseman is Vic Power of the Cleveland Indians. Vic is a fine hitter, a steady hitter, who can bunt and hit for distance, pull the ball over the fence and slap it to the opposite field. But more than that, Power is regarded as one of the most accomplished defensive first basemen to come along in many years.

The man is a marvel with his glove, has tremendous speed and range, and drives baserunners crazy with his pick-off maneuvers. (Once, earlier this season, he picked off Yogi Berra and Elston Howard in successive innings on the same play, while the first base coach stood dumbstruck. The Indians won that particular game by just one run, which gives you an idea.)

As I said, Vic Power is regarded BY THE PLAYERS as the best first baseman in the League.

Yet these same players selected Bill Skowron of the Yankees to represent them in the All-Star Game!

Why? That happens to be a very good question. Believe it or not, the only answer you can get around the League is that "the players don't like him."

Which is a heck of a way for the ball players themselves to pick their All-Star team.

As this column prepared to leave for Fort Devens, two questions that have plagued me all year in regard to the rejuvenated Red Sox remained unanswered.

All season, Tom Brewer has been strictly an in-and-outer as a starter. Every good game is punctuated with two or three or four bad ones. Nobody knows the reason, but Tom cannot win as a starter.

In the spring, it will be recalled, Billy Jurgens and Sal Maglie had spotted Brewer in several relief efforts; and here (Continued on Page 11) the curve-baller was superb. He took to working out of the bull pen as if it were the most natural thing in the world. His every performance was a superior one. It seemed that a new relief star had been born.

But then Judges started to worry, and later Higgins came back, and all that has happened to Brewer is that he has gone back to his old ineffective ways — as a starter. Maybe the team is short of starters, and feels it can't spare Tom in the bullpen; but then you remember several games that were lost in the late innings when the relief hurlers failed to hold the opposition, and you wonder even more.

The fate of another Bosox starter, Jerry Casale, is my second question unanswered. It is obvious that Casale is having a bad sophomore year. He has cost the club heavily because of his inability to go more than three, or two or even one innings(s). Last time I looked, he was finally demoted to the bullpen.

But how can this brilliant pitcher of 1959 get enough work to regain his control, his effectiveness and his confidence while he sits and rusts in the bull pen? Jerry is young, needs lots of work. The only place for him to get that is the minor leagues.

In other words, Casale should, for his and the Sox' own good, be optioned out for the rest of the year, so that he could resume pitching regularly, and concentrate on a good start in 1961. As a matter of fact a month or so in the hinterlands might result in Casale's return to Boston later this year, to help in the fight for a higher position in the standings.

Random Comments

Watch carefully when you take in a ball game, and see how many times the double play at second base is made with the middle man off the base when he gets the ball. It's a flagrant violation that all umpires seem to condone as a part of the game. None ever call it.

It happens more often than you think. The second baseman picks up the ball, shovels it over to the shortstop, who skips over the bag and is already a step or two on the first base side of second when he takes the throw and gets ready to toss to first.

I've nothing against Ike Delock, and certainly do not wish him any hard luck. It's just that I was amused at the recent three day suspension Joe Cronin imposed on the pitcher for his obnoxious behavior on the mound.

The loss of three days' pay was legitimate enough, although it hardly is enough to worry a man earning Delock's salary. But the suspension was a laugh. Three days! All that amounted to was the normal rest period for any pitcher between starts. Ike was available for his regular turn the day after the suspension ended.

The band that paraded on the field at Rhode Island Day at Fenway actually misplayed the National Anthem. One section of the brass omitted an entire passage of the anthem, and refused to get back on the beam. In the discordance that followed, the other sections finally yielded and went along with the offender(s).

So many Americans don't pay respect to the flag and the anthem these days, that the happening may have gone largely unnoticed. It annoyed me, though, almost as much as watching the gross inattention and disrespect accorded the anthem by youngsters and adults alike at many sports functions.

Release Zionists In Czechoslovakia

TEL AVIV — Four prominent Czechoslovak Zionists who were imprisoned in Prague in 1951 on charges of conspiring against the State have been released from confinement, it was reported here last week. Five others, convicted along with Mordechai Oren, Israeli journalist, in the same "conspiracy" are still imprisoned.

The 10 men and women were arrested in 1951 during the period of intense anti-Zionist, anti-Jewish communist activity which culminated in the "doctors' trial" in the Soviet Union and the trial and execution of Josef Slansky, Communist Party boss in Czechoslovakia.

Oren served in Czechoslovak prisons from 1951-56 when he was finally released. He said on his return from a visit to Europe that he had learned that four of the other defendants had been released recently.

Oren named the four as Ernst Verna, a leader in Czechoslovakia of the Hashomer Hatzair, a Zionist Group; Mme. M. Brzeinitzova, an official of the Palestine Office in Bratislava; Mordechai Stern, leader of the Jewish National Fund and of the Mizrahi Workers Party, and Adolf Reich, an official of the Hebrew education organization.

Oren said that he had raised the fate of the nine people who were his fellow-prisoners during discussions with European socialist leaders. He expressed belief that the release of the four now might have been the result of their intervention. He said he would continue efforts to secure the release of the remaining five prisoners.

People confuse us. A man will live three houses from his neighbor (or in an apartment on the same floor)...their total contribution to neighborliness will be a grunted greeting and an observation on the weather. Let these same two check into the Sea Crest...they'll Talk a storm. We Saw This Happen...

Two gentlemen were treading water a few yards from shore while their families relaxed in beach chairs. We overheard... "you know, I've been everywhere but never swam in water like this...it's tepid yet it tingles...it's warm yet it exhilarates... On coming out of the water one turned to us to say..."you know that fellow lives down the street from me...we said more to one another in the few minutes we were in the water than we've done in the ten years we've been neighbors"...

Come to the Cape • The Sea Crest will bring out the friend of your neighbor in you. You'll want to Stay and Stay-by-the-Sea on-the-Sand under-the-Stars of Old Silver Beach on Captivating Cape Cod.
