MAX STEIN, NOTED COMMUNAL leader and philanthropist, has given $1,000,000 to Yeshiva University to start its $25 million Midtown Center development program, it was announced in New York by Dr. Samuel Belkin, president of the University.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT, IN a letter to Congressman Seymour Halperin, New York Republican, reiterated its intention not to resort to "coercive tactics" to secure Arab compliance with the anti-discrimination provisions of the Mutual Security Act.

MORE THAN 400 PEOPLE CAME to pay tribute to Itzhak Mager, noted Yiddish poet, dramatist and novelist, on the occasion of his sixtieth birthday and his publication of collected works of prose. Highlighting the occasion was a message from President Itzhak Ben Zvi of Israel lauding Yiddish creativity and Mr. Mager's place in the pattern of Jewish artistic growth.

SPECIAL PRAYERS OF REPENTENCE for the sins of Adolph Eichmann, Nazi butcher now on trial in Israel, were read recently in all Catholic churches in West Germany. More than 21 million Catholics were urged by their bishops to come to worship and beg "forgiveness" for the Nazi crimes against the Jews.

PREMIER DAVID BEN-GURION, at a three-hour session with his Cabinet, reported on his visits to the United States, Canada, Britain and France, where he conferred with top government figures. The cabinet approved a blackout on the report. A report by Foreign Minister Golda Meir on her tour abroad was also kept secret.

THE MAYOR OF COVENTRY has received a number of anonymous telephone calls that he and his family would "pay dearly" if he did not abandon his scheduled opening of an exhibit of Nazi atrocities in the death camps. The callers said they were members of an organization called "The Friends of Eichmann."

THE UNITED STATES OF America "has not changed its policy toward Israel in the last thirteen years," it was declared in Jerusalem by Walworth Barbour, new U. S. Ambassador to Israel, as he arrived to assume the post left vacant by the resignation of Ogden R. Reid. Mr. Barbour, who was received at the airport by representatives of the Israeli Foreign Ministry and of the U. S. Mission here, is expected to present his credentials next week to President Itzhak Ben Zvi.

AGREEMENT WAS REPORTEDLY reached last week between West German and Austrian negotiators on a West German contribution of $80,000,000 to an Austrian fund for the payment of compensation to victims of the Nazi era in Austria.

Makes First Non-Stop Flight To Israel

NEW YORK — The first non-stop flight from New York to Israel was made here by a jet plane of the El Al Israel Airlines which started out from Idlewild International Airport carrying 100 passengers. This is the longest non-stop flight in commercial aviation. It is estimated that the plane will land at Lod Airport in Israel 10 hours and 20 minutes after leaving Idlewild.

El Al non-stop service between New York and Tel-Aviv is now scheduled for departure every Thursday evening, bringing the passengers to Israel the next afternoon.

A dinner and ceremony attended by prominent personalities marked the first take off. The guests attending the dinner prior to the take off included a number of personalities who were on hand in May 1927 to see Charles A. Lindbergh start his history-making non-stop flight to Paris.

Says Exposure By Press Impairs John Birch Society's Chances

KIAMESHA LAKE, N. Y.—Arnold Forster, general counsel of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, said last week that the exposure of the John Birch Society by the nation's press had sharply impaired its chances for success.

Forster told 2,000 delegates attending the 109th annual convention of the B'nai B'rith District 1 at the Concord Hotel that the program of the Birch Society was "as dangerous to American democracy as the communism it purports to fight."

Speaking at the dinner session, Forster said that the limelight now focussed on the society "denies it the secrecy of operation" that its founder, Robert H. Welch Jr., "deems essential if it is to avoid the failure of its predecessors."

He contended that because the John Birch Society was able to operate in secrecy "it is the only current Right-Wing anti-democratic group that has grown into a well organized and financed movement with actual programs and status."

Forster labeled the society "the spiritual successor to the American First and McCarthy movements."

He termed the society's program an "absurdity," asserting that "it looks upon such disparate matters as fluoridation of water, the NATO treaty, integration, Social Security, and income taxes as Red plots, thereby hoping to attract to its ranks the dissidents of our society."

The Birch Society, Forster said, does not answer two basic questions "to justify its existence as a legitimate organization in a free society." He gave these questions as, "Does it describe the problem it confronts with factual accuracy and honesty?" and "Is the remedy it offers made with a sense of responsibility and within the framework of American constitutional concepts?"

The society failed "both tests," he asserted. Communist subversion in this country "is exaggerated and distorted out of recognition."

AJ Committee Testimony Centers On Efforts Of Arab League Nations

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The American Jewish Committee, in testimony before a congressional body here last week, urged that U. S. loans or grants be "withheld from any country which discriminates against American citizens."

The Committee's testimony on this year's foreign aid bill before the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, was centered particularly "on the efforts of Arab League nations to invade and thus prejudice the rights of American citizens, because of their religious faith, freely to travel and engage in commercial relationships."

James Marshall, prominent attorney, former president of the New York City Board of Education and a vice president of the American Jewish Committee, asserted that the Arab League action is "not only an affront to Americans, "but" an arrogant interference with their rights of citizenship." He stressed that the U. S. should "not deny equal protection of the law to any American" even on the ground of "diplomatic expedience."

Emphasizing that he was not discussing the boycott against Israel "which is for the Israelis to deal with," Mr. Marshall pointed out that the scope of the boycott has been vastly extended.

Today, procedures of intimidation and discrimination directed from offices in Damascus and the British-protected Sheikdom of Kuwait, are applied in varying degrees by Arab League governments, Mr. Marshall stated. They include such measures as:

1. Blacklisting most companies having Jews among their officers, owners or directors, even if they conduct no business in Israel.
2. Refusing visas to Americans of the Jewish faith and forbidding them to disembark in some Arab League countries.
3. Preventing American servicemen and civilian employees of the Jewish faith from serving at American military installations in one of the Arab countries.
4. Preventing the employment of Jewish personnel by American firms doing business in Arab countries.
5. Refusing visas to many Americans intending also to visit Israel.

In his testimony, Mr. Marshall asserted that "in granting or lending to foreign countries funds derived from tax revenues," the President and the Congress should seriously consider "the persistence of systematic discrimination and repression against the "free exercise of the rights of American citizens." He added:

"The foreign policy of the United States should never appear to tolerate the denial to American citizens of rights guaranteed to them by our Constitution. No action of foreign states should be permitted to do even indirectly what the Constitution of our country forbids our own government to do."

Philanthropist Gives Million To Yeshiva Univ.

NEW YORK — Max Stern, New York philanthropist, last week gave $1,000,000 to Yeshiva University here to start Yeshiva's $25,000,000 Midtown Center development program. Stern's gift raises the total he has given to the University, since 1941, to $2,500,000. In 1954, he gave the initial gift of $500,000 for establishment of the university's Stern College for Women, the nation's first liberal arts college for women under Jewish auspices.

Stern is a member of the board of overseers of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, which he was instrumental in establishing. Stern is president of Hartz Mountain Products Corp. of Chicago. Until seven years ago he resided in Chicago.

Knesset Ends Requirements For Exit Visas

JERUSALEM — The fourth session of Israel's fourth Parliament — its life cut to less than half of its legal tenure by the Government crisis and resignation of last January — was adjourned with attention to its members focused on campaigning for the general elections Aug. 15.

The session concluded with the passing of legislation abolishing exit visas for Israelis and permanent residents and a law turning over the Government-owned ports of Haifa, and Tel Aviv to a public authority. The ending of the requirement for exit visas will take effect next Oct. 15, according to the new law.

The port authority law which was passed also met with the wishes of the World Bank which promised a loan of $27,500,000 conditioned on relaxation of Government control of the ports. The law provides that each port will have a degree of autonomy and each will determine its own budget to be self-supporting. The overall port authority will be operated by a council of 11 to 13 members with a majority of public figures and a minority of Government civil servants.

The World Bank loan is aimed particularly at development of a deep sea port at Ashdod which is scheduled to become a major port. The Government will name the chairman of the port authority. General Haim Laskov, immediate past Chief of Staff, is a candidate for the post.

Other bills approved included one setting up an Academy of Arts and Sciences modeled after the French Academy, a law granting pension rights to prison guards, a measure to overhaul completely the Israeli Bar and its governing bodies, and technical measures concerning the Aug. 15 elections.

Speaker Kaddish Luz extended good wishes to all deputies and outlined the progress made during the fourth Knesset. He announced a contract for work on a permanent building for the Knesset which will be awarded next week. The new building will be financed from a bequest from the late James Rothschild and will be completed within 30 months.

The Speaker expressed the hope that the campaigning for the Fifth Knesset would find a "golden middle" between public responsibility and party differences and that the Fifth Knesset would exist through its full four-year tenure. The final session was attended by most members of the Cabinet, including Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion.

ing local federations and welfare funds to financially support such schools, was adopted at the closing session of a ZOA-sponsored two-day national conference on Jewish education last weekend.

The Story Of 'Prikaz Number 31'

by Eliahu Ben-Horin

The story about "Prikaz Number 31," which I am about to recount, took place in Odessa, the Russian Black Sea harbor, deep in Eastern Europe. It so happens, however, that Dublin, at Europe's western extreme, provides a good beginning for the story.

Together with a colleague from London I visited Dublin, in 1938, on a Zionist political mission. The first evening in Eire's capital we spent at the home of Mr. Walsh, the director of foreign relations under Prime Minister De Valera, who entertained us at dinner. Our host, a handsome and highly cultured bachelor in his forties, and, of course, an ardent Irish nationalist, offered us a most unexpected "dessert": phonograph records containing Hebrew lessons by David Yellin. In answer to our surprised looks, Mr. Walsh explained that he was trying to learn Hebrew.

This experience was but one indication of the lively interest in Hebrew among the Irish nationalists. In our subsequent contacts with leading statesmen of Eire, they would time and again come back to the question of the Hebrew language. They would ask: "How did you do it? How did you manage to revive a 'dead' language after two thousand years and make it again the language of everyday life?"

Some of our Irish friends had a theory that Gaelic was related in some way to Hebrew. This belief of theirs might have been responsible to some degree for that intense interest in their "grandmother-tongue." However, the main explanation was to be found in the current realities of Irish life. Eire was facing the very same problem that the Zionists did in the eighties of the last century. They, too, were trying to revive a "dead" language--Gaelic--which was designed to replace English.

Their efforts were not successful. In the Dail (parliament), I read a notice warning the Irish parliamentarians that they had only one year more to learn Gaelic. After that, speeches in English would no longer be permitted. At the time, I was told, only two or three members of the Dail could claim mastery of Gaelic. One of them was De Valera. So far, English was solidly entrenched in every sphere of life and it was defying all efforts by Irish nationalism on behalf of Gaelic.

No wonder that the Irish were interested in the eminently successful Hebrew experiment in Palestine. The more so, because the Zionists--unlike the Republic of Eire--had no powers of compulsion. The revival of Hebrew and its supplanting of the many languages spoken by the Jews had to be achieved by voluntary means alone. Yet it was a success, while the Irish--with all the state instrumentalities at their command--found the going tough and progress extremely slow.

My friend and I willingly told our Irish interviewers about the methods employed by Zionism to revive and revitalize the Hebrew language. We also told them of Eleizer Ben-Yehuda, of his kanaut (fanatical devotion) which had inspired the coming generations to follow in his footsteps and be uncompromising in making Hebrew the language of school, street and home.

However, one episode out of my own experience in Bolshevik Russia particularly impressed our Irish listeners. As revolutionaries and fighters for freedom and independence, this episode, "Prikaz Number 31," was peculiarly suited to their interests.

It took the Bolsheviks well over two years to establish their power in the Ukraine. Odessa, the city where I lived, had changed hands innumerable times in the course of the civil war. Early in 1920, however, the Soviets were in complete control and they could turn their attention to internal problems.

As an aftermath of the revolution and the prolonged civil war, Russia was in a state of complete disorganization, economic dislocation and political anarchy. There were unquestionably many more pressing problems to engage the thoughts and energies of the Soviet government than the question of the Hebrew language. The fact remains, however, that they found the time to issue a prohibition against Hebrew.

The prohibition took the form of "Prikaz (order) Number 31" of the Narobraz, the Soviet Ministry for Public Education. Declaring that Hebrew was a counter-revolutionary language, the order brusquely warned all and sundry that, henceforth, anyone caught teaching or studying the language would be subject to punishment by law.

To this day, I believe, after more than four decades of Communist rule in Russia, accompanied as it was by terror, prohibitions and suppression of individual and group freedoms, this taboo of the Narobraz occupies a unique place in the history of Bolshevik oppression. No other language except Hebrew had gained that rare distinction of being proclaimed counter-revolutionary per se.

Odessa's large and strongly Zionist Jewish population (from whose midst emerged--to mention just a few of the most outstanding--Ahad Ha'am, Bialik, Ussishkin, Jabotinsky) was stunned by the Soviet edict. Not that the Zionists entertained any illusions as to the Bolshevik attitude towards nationalism. Nor could they expect any favors from the Yevsektzia (the Jewish section of the All-Russian Communist Party). If the new regime had prohibited the study of the Bible or prayers in Hebrew, it would have still been a bad blow to Russian Jewry. However, nobody could have denied the consistency of such a prohibition with Bolshevism's avowed anti-religious position. But to outlaw a language?...

The Zionist youth was not willing to take it lying down. The Histadrut Hatalmidim Hazionim (organization of Zionist high-school students) of Odessa, over which this writer presided at the time, decided to stage a one-day strike of protest of the Jewish students in Odessa's schools and a public meeting where the protest would be voiced.

Young as we were, there was a full awareness of the grave dangers involved. The red terror was at its peak. Human life was of no value. "K Stenke" ("To the Wall," meaning execution by a firing squad) was the slogan of the day. In the cellars of the Cheka (the secret police), thousands met their death without trial. Whoever expressed the slightest opposition to the Soviet regime, was branded counter-revolutionary and could easily face the death penalty. Indeed, I vividly recall the expression of sheer panic on the face of an older Zionist leader, when we told him of our protest plans.

The man--we shall call him Mr. X--looked aghast at the two youngsters who came to invite him to be the main speaker at the public meeting of the striking students. Although the conversation was taking place in Mr. X's home, with the doors and windows securely closed, the host had shown all the signs of a trapped animal. Nothing

UJA's Young Leaders' Mission Brings 140 Youths To Israel

JERUSALEM -- The United Jewish Appeal's first young leadership mission which brought 140 young Jewish communal leaders to Israel for a two-week visit, has been so successful that the U.J.A. intends to bring over such a mission every year in the future, Rabbi Herbert Friedman, U. J. A. executive vice-chairman, told the press on the eve of the mission's departure.

Instead of the usual conferences with lectures, the group, which comprised communal leaders aged 30 to 40, made an intensive tour of the country -- sometimes 16 hours a day -- seeing immigrant arrivals, settlement and development projects. The members of the group were particularly impressed with the growing number of new immigrants and by problems of security. The Israel Army provided liaison officers for the group, who quickly found a common language with them.

During the entire visit, the young leaders were never exposed to speeches. Instead, numerous meetings were held, during which the members of the group questioned Israel's top leaders, including Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, former Premier Mosie Sharett, Finance Minister Levi Eshkol, Education Minister Abba Eban, Giora Josephthal, Air Force Commander Ezer Weizmann, Foreign Ministry Director Haim Yahi' as well as numerous other personalities in Israel's cultural and social life.

Rabbi Friedman announced that the U. J. A. hopes to collect $32,000,000 cash by the end of the month.

was left of the fiery oratory for which he was known.

Needless to say, Mr. X (who, by the way, lives now in America and is still active in Zionist affairs) rejected our invitation as we rejected his efforts to dissuade us from organizing the protest. We found only one man among the mature Zionists courageous enough to take an active part in our anti-Soviet demonstration. His name was Joseph Fisher.

Fisher, who was at the time one of the leaders of Hechaver (the organization of Zionist university students), later active in Zeirei-Zion, and still later associated with the Jewish National Fund for many years, was the main speaker at the meeting. (If Joseph Fisher reads these lines--a belated tribute to his courage four decades ago--he will know that brave acts live on in people's memories).

The strike and the meeting went off without a hitch. The five-man strike committee sent flying squads to all the gymnasiums with large Jewish enrollments. They stationed themselves at the schools' entrances and diverted the pupils to the Torgovaya Shkola, where the meeting was to take place.

At the Torgovaya Shkola, as the hall was filling with boys and girls of the 7th and 8th grades, the nervousness kept mounting. We had no doubt that the news of the strike must have reached the authorities, and we had every reason to expect the worst. However, there was no

NEW YORK — Rabbi Bernard Bergman, president of the Religious Zionists of America, urged that the United States Department of State "should cancel the scholarships and academic privileges of Arab students in the United States." Rabbi Bergmann said such action should be taken because the Arab students "have been abusing the hospitality of this country, in a variety of illegal and wanton acts. These students recently picketed the conference of President Kennedy and Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion to the everlasting humiliation and disgrace of our government," he said.

Israeli Arab Visits United States

NEW YORK — Seif El-din Zaub'i, mayor of Nazareth, who arrived in the United States last week to attend the international conference of mayors told the leadership of the National Committee for Labor Israel at a reception that "if anyone should seek to harm our country, we Israeli Arabs will resist it to the utmost."

Mayor Zaub'i, born in Nazareth 48 years ago, was elected to the Knesset when Israel was founded in 1948, and served seven years. After an interlude of farming on his family estate in Galilee, he was elected mayor of Israel's largest Arab community in 1959. A member of the central committee of the Union of Local Authorities in Israel, Mayor Zaub'i is also active in Histadrut affairs.

Declared the mayor: "The Arabs of Israel seek to be equal and loyal citizens of their country. When President Bourguiba, of Tunis, recently stated that he expected Israel to suffer the same fate as Algeria and that the Arabs would engage in guerilla warfare against the State of Israel, he apparently did not know the situation in Israel. If he depends upon the Arabs of Israel to begin such a war, he will have to wait a long time. We Israeli Arabs do not want such a war, and if anyone should seek to harm our country, we shall resist it to the utmost.

"Any efforts of this kind will not last out a day. Apparently, Bourguiba bases his views on the Arab press and he thinks that all that is lacking is a match to light the fuse. He could not be more mistaken. The Arab minority in Israel is free to criticize its Government and our free press merely proves that Israel is truly a democracy.

"Histadrut has done a great deal for the Arab workers and peasants. It has gradually raised the wage level of the Arabs, so that it equals that of the Jewish workers. It has brought water and electricity to Arab villages and has cooperated with the Government in bringing about such improvements.

"In my own city of Nazareth, Histadrut has been very active. We have recently laid the cornerstone of a new Histadrut Cultural Center and of a Kupat Holim Medical Center. Temporarily the work has been suspended for lack of money, but we expect to get the funds soon and resume construction. Moetzet Hapoalet, the Histadrut Women's Council, has established clubs for our women, where they receive training in various crafts and also cultural activities.

HOLD INSTALLATION

Mrs. Mary Mushnick was installed as president of the Sisterhood of Temple Beth David for her seventh term at a meeting held recently at the Temple. Mrs. Charles Coken, her daughter, served as installing officer.

Other officers who were installed include Mesdames Benjamin Resnick, honorary president; Henry Brill, first vice-president; Samuel Horowitz, second vice-president; Yetta Cutler and Huded Gladstone, honorary vice-presidents; Bernard Perelman, financial secretary; Fred Robinson, treasurer; Rebecca Shapiro, honorary treasurer; Morris Blazer, sunshine chairman; Clara Lerner, publicity chairman; I. Talon, hospitality chairman; Rebecca Greenfield and Annie Adelman, trustees.

"There are even schools for our young people and successful cultural activities at all age-levels. Histadrut has helped our artisans and small shop-owners to establish cooperatives

"As you know, ancient Nazareth now has a twin city — Upper Nazareth, where recent Jewish immigrants are being settled. There are 25,000 Christian and Moslem Arabs in the Old City, of which I am mayor. There are 7,000 Jews in the new city, which is governed by a temporary commission. There are close economic and cultural ties between these twins.

"It is a living example of how Jews and Arabs, as equal citizens in the democracy of Israel, can live in peace and friendship. You Americans who support Israel and especially the work of Histadrut, should continue to do so, as Histadrut deserves every ounce of support, so that it may continue its work successfully."

Jewish Culture While You Wait

by Bernard G. Richards

When word of the new enterprise of the community, which someone had designated as "Operation Jewish Culture," reached the Top Notch Tavern on Upper Broadway, the little group of habitués that assembles to discuss current problems was again faced with the questions of who, what and when in the proposed innovation.

The habit of cafe-sitting sans cocktails is of course declining; the Lend-A-Word Club, formerly of Division and Canal Streets and now in anachronistic exile on the West Side, is meeting less and less frequently, and there are dire predictions that the society is disintegrating and going the way of the landsmanschaften, the lodge rituals, the coffee-katches and other ancient institutions. Now that the world is more or less placed on a firm foundation, the debating societies may as well be dissolved.

But there are still occasional gatherings and the discussions are as heated and inconclusive as ever. This time the new society to establish Jewish culture was mentioned and Mr. Karabas, as usual, began with Genesis, wanted to know who had sprung the idea and where it would land. Keidansky, the speaker of the house, was ready to oblige.

"The idea," he said, "comes as a donation from the charity and welfare workers, who are full of noble impulses and intentions to serve the commonplace good. The immediate tasks of relief and rehabilitation for our people at home are practically at an end, especially as many of our charitable and philanthropic endeavors have been taken over by governmental agencies. With the advent of the welfare state and social security measures advancing further and further, our charity workers may suddenly find themselves out of employment and bereft of the means of expressing their benevolent instincts. Therefore new outlets for their altruism had to be found."

"But why begin with culture?" asked Mr. Levinsky, the reformed poet. "Could they not start with a better Jewish press, advanced education, a higher type of attractive booklets for eager but bewildered Jewish youths, or generally with more advanced adult education?"

"I know," replied Keidansky, "there are a lot of things to be done in spreading a wider knowledge of Jews and Judaism and we are all far from graduation, but 'culture' is such an impressive, resonant, fine-sounding and mouth-filling word that it carries the day. It's on everyone's lips now, and the temptation to sound it off on all occasions is irresistible. What was the phrase that won an award of $10,000 for the advertising copy from the tremendous tycoon, Albert Lasker? Yes, I remember, it was 'so round, so firm, so fully packed'—as a description for a cigarette. 'Jewish Culture' is just such a limpid phrase and it too has won its reward—this time from the Jewish charity trusteeship."

"Everything is culture now," continued Keidansky, "from reading a tawdry novel of Jewish life, to listening to a record of a Yiddish folksong, to attending an Einig Sabbath devoted to a discussion of the Arab boycott. The young woman who was late for an appointment said she had devoted the afternoon to Jewish culture by taking part in the dedication of a new home for the aged. So the make-believe and artificial notion of Jewish culture, with its enticing phraseology and slushy slogans, has become a new means of widely diffused obfuscations."

"But is not all this talk educational?" interrupted Mr. Karabas, the retired high school teacher.

"Of course," retorted Keidansky, "everything is in a sense educational—even crossword puzzles, watching TV comedies and melodramas, our conversations here—but what does it all lead to? Culture evolves, and it cannot be talked or written or ballyhooed into existence. It's not a matter of promotion and campaigning. And culture cannot spring full-blown from the brow of a committee. It's a matter of several and various elements, ingredients, basic components, and each one has to be made, produced separately and by itself. To produce the several elements of culture, to advance the purpose of culture generally, there would have to be a number of ideas, different approaches with some notion of an ultimate synthesis. A number of groups at work, each one going all out, even going somewhat meshuge for some higher cultural objective, would make independent and significant contributions to a cultivated society. These separate efforts would combine to form what ultimately is called culture. It cannot be done in a hurry. Culture cannot be supplied while the customer waits.

"The new purveyors of culture, catering mainly to parvenus and mistaking excitement for intellectual activity, apparently aim to lump all parts of culture together. I am afraid that the whole flood of ink from the duplicating machines, all the publicity and proclamations, will produce nothing but a mass of inanity with a lot of fluster and flurry hovering about it, and no

British Ratification of UN Convention Under Examination

LONDON — A spokesman for the British Government declared last week in response to a query from Sir Barnett Janner that the question of British ratification of the United Nations Genocide Convention was under new examination.

Sir Barnett raised the issue with a reference to testimony at the trial of Adolf Eichmann in Jerusalem. "Clearly, the civilized world has to ask itself how this happened and what could be done to prevent a recurrence," he said.

Sir Bennett emphasized that more than 12 years had passed since the then Foreign Secretary had declared that the British Government hoped shortly to reach a decision on ratification of the Genocide pact but the decision still had not been taken. Pointing out that 63 countries had signed the convention, Sir Barnett declared that "surely it is time the United Kingdom was also included."

Undersecretary A. Godber replied for the Government that all persons "shared abhorrence for the revolting crimes" committed by the Nazis and that the British Government had always made it clear they regarded it with "disgust and horror."

Adding that the Government realized that a decision had been long delayed and that the delay was liable to misinterpretation, he told Commons:

"The whole question of whether or not the British Government should become a party to the convention was being examined afresh and the House will be informed when a decision is reached and the necessary legislation will be brought forward."

Approve Bias Ban At Northwestern

EVANSTON, Ill. — A decision adopted by the Interfraternity Council of Northwestern University here, setting Nov. 1, 1963, as a deadline for removal of discriminatory clauses from national fraternity constitutions, was unanimously approved here last weekend by the Council on Undergraduate Life.

The council recommended, in approving the previous student action, that the university take "immediate action" if, by Nov. 1, 1963, "the Interfraternity Council does not bring about freedom of the local chapters at Northwestern to select their own members without regard to race, religion or ethnic origin."

panic. Two speeches were delivered and received with thunderous applause. We even had time to start marching in a huge demonstration, when word reached us that the Cheka squads were on their way. We dispersed in the nick of time.

Thus the only strike on behalf of the Hebrew language had ended. The strike committee summed up the exciting events of the day at a session held under open sky, on the grass in Odessa's Central Park. It was the only place where the Cheka was not likely to look for us.

This was the story which appealed to our Irish listeners in Dublin. Would it also appeal to Jewish readers in America, particularly to the young generation, who enjoy all the freedoms, know of no prohibitions, and so often take for granted all the blessings of democracy?

Ceylon Minister Promotes Trade With Arabs

NEW DELHI, India — The Minister of Finance in Ceylon issued a directive to the Treasury that all Government requirements of cement should be obtained from the United Arab Republic and that all transfers for the supply of cement should include a condition that only offers from UAR sources will be considered.

The purpose of this directive is to promote trade between Ceylon and the UAR as envisaged in the trade agreement recently entered into between the two countries.

Circles interested in both Ceylon and Israel affairs are disappointed by the continued misunderstanding in Ceylon-Israel relations caused by the unilateral steps taken last year by the Government of Ceylon. While maintaining diplomatic relations with Israel and professing interest in continued friendly ties, the Government last year canceled the accreditation of its Minister to Israel.

While the reason for the step, unprecedented between countries not in conflict, has never been fully explained, it seems to have been motivated mainly by Ceylon's desire to avoid antagonizing the Arab states and jeopardizing its considerable tea exports to those states. It had been hinted, however, that the accreditation of the Ceylon diplomat had been effected in an irregular manner by a previous government and that his recall was designed only to remedy that administrative flaw and was not to be construed as a concession to Arab boycott threats.

It had therefore been hoped that a new Ceylon envoy would soon be accredited to Israel in a regular fashion. As such a remedial step has not been taken by Ceylon, the feeling is gaining ground that the recall was motivated by Ceylon's desire to appease Arab boycott threats.

This impression damages Ceylon's international standing and prestige, it is believed here.

Jewish Culture While You Wait

"What's the harm in trying?" interrupted Mr. Karabas in a new flush of tolerance, "any old way?"

"Any old way" retorted Mr. Keidansky, "is not the right way. You cannot play fast and loose with matters that have to do with the intellectual advancement of a community. 'Es bet sich a gedank,' as the tenacious Yiddish poet used to say—'you have to have a thought'! You cannot package ideas and sell them wholesale. This is a retail business. Every separate element of culture has to be handled, treated, developed and delivered separately. Poets are not made, they are born. Culture, too, is born—out of the elements of human cultivation and the graces of life. It never comes out of a mimeographing machine. I am afraid it is an awful sign of the lack of cultivation to prate so loosely and vaguely about culture, as a sort of monolithic plastic production. There are many things to talk about and they would make more interesting and less monotonous subjects of conversation."

"What are some of them?" interrupted Mr. Levinsky.

"We have some, and could have more, organizations and enterprises devoted to literature, to the arts, to history, to the maintenance of archives, to the providing of scholarships and fellowships, and so forth. Every thoughtful and capable Jewish group, every community that enjoys sufficient leisure and opportunity, should cultivate and make a hobby of some educational or, if you must use the work, cultural project. These separate activities should be helped and encouraged and even egged on to vie with each other for achievement. Competition is the

Community In Congo Returns To Normal

NEW YORK — Community life for the 700 Jews in Elizabethville, Congo, is gradually returning to normal according to a report received by the World Jewish Congress here from the Jewish Congregation of Katanga. The report is from Mr. J. Soriano and Mr. J. S. Capelluto, the president and general secretary of the community.

All religious services at the local synagogue have been resumed and the community center is "coming back to life, little by little," the two community officials report.

A census of the Jewish community is still incomplete but the number of Jews in Elizabethville is put at 700, a decrease of about 20 percent over last year's figure.

Recent celebrations marking Israel's 13th anniversary, in which the Congo Government leaders participated, have been an impetus to community activity. The report notes that the Society of Jewish Women, WIZO, Maccabi, Hahonim and the Zionist Organization are all resuming their work.

In addition, a new group is active, a mutual aid committee, whose task is to help rehabilitate those who suffered damage in the recent past. The community in Elizabethville has not yet been able to establish regular contact with Jewish communities in other Congo centers. Under the Belgian Government, the Congo Jewry totaled 2,500.

life of trade, and often the death of the competitors, but this does not apply to creative intellectual endeavors. Thought is free.

"Culture should grow from the bottom up and not be handed or pressed down from above by a centralized or federated octopus. You can have your concentration, high-powered efficiency and ultimately even automation in your huge machine of social work, but culture is not created, not even advanced that way."

"What's going to happen?" asked Mr. Karabas.

"Lots of things" said Keidansky. "There will be prospectuses, reports, announcements, outlines of plans, memorandums sent to all organizations and welfare funds throughout the country. American Jewry will be inundated with paper. To justify the movement and the new official machinery, the mythical culturists will attempt to annex some existing educational undertakings. This will assure them of a place in the scheme of synthetic culture and will surely prevent them from developing any separate character and distinctiveness."

"What will all this lead to?" finally asked Mr. Levinsky.

"I hope" concluded Keidansky, "it will lead to a perfect disgust with ballyhoo, publicity, palaver, make-believe organizations and built-up leadership. Then we may begin to think, to analyze conditions, talk sense and truth. We may then get somewhere."

Aharon Cohen To Testify In Own Defense

TEL AVIV — Aharon Cohen, a Mapam leader accused of espionage for a communist country, began testifying in his own defense in Haifa District Court.

He began his testimony after the prosecution tested its presentation and the court ruled that the charges must be answered by the defense. The defendant was charged with meeting a foreign agent and passing classified information to him.

Another spy trial, that of Lt. Col Israel Beer, also was resumed. All sessions in the Beer trial are being held in camera with secret service personnel giving evidence. The Beer trial is being held in Tel Aviv.

Hits Ben-Gurion's Loyalty Remarks

NEW YORK — A charge that Israeli Prime Minister Ben Gurion is "unintentionally using the poisoned arrows of all anti-Semites" by his suggestion that one could not be a fully loyal Jew and a loyal American, was made here last week by Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, veteran American Zionist leader, the Associated Press said.

Speaking at an Israel Bond Dinner, Rabbi Silver, who is chairman of the board of governors of the bond organization said, "When the head of the Israel Government, in the heat of controversy, striking at some political rival over the heads of American Zionists, blunderingly suggests that one cannot be a loyal Jew and a loyal American at the same time, he is using the poisoned arrows of all anti-Semites."

Go After the Kind of People You Want in Your Store

BUSINESS is a battle. And the master of business is the man who thinks—plans—directs the fight with the cool and calculating eye of an experienced general. Competition is daily becoming keener in every line of trade. Scientific methods are demanded in every department of business. And all commercial organizations lead to definite and centralized effort.

This accomplished, you next seek an economical and efficient vehicle of publicity for the marketing of your goods. The selection of your medium should be made with regard to the character of the merchandise you are offering. If you are engaged in distributing goods of the better grade, you know that your logical field of sale is that of the substantial, prosperous class of people—the folks who can appreciate and afford your wares.

Your problem is to reach possible buyers — and no others.

Bohnen and Rabbi Joseph Warren, assisted by Cantor Jacob Hohenemser, officiated at the double ring ceremony which took place on June 4.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a pink mist gown of peau de soie, fashioned with a scoop neckline, elbow-length sleeves designed in seed pearls, and a fitted bodice and full skirt embroidered in seed pearls terminating in a chapel train. ## Youth Representatives Of Orthodox Synagogues To Meet In New York

NEW YORK — Over three hundred youthful delegates representing one hundred and twelve orthodox youth chapters from twenty-eight states including California and Florida are meeting in New York City and Fallsburg, New York from June 22 through 25 for the four-day Eighth Annual National Convention of the National Conference of Synagogue Youth, the National Youth Movement of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, according to Harold H. Boxer, of Forest Hills, Chairman of the Union's Joint Youth Commission.

The convention serves the dual purposes of setting the policy and program and electing the leadership for Orthodoxy's synagogue youth movement, as well as to provide the top leadership of NCSY with an opportunity to meet with outstanding Rabbinic and lay personalities for study, discussion and re-evaluation of their local programs.

Among the highlights of the program are addresses by Moses I. Feuerstein, President of the UOJCA, spokesman for America's 3,000 orthodox synagogues who will speak to the teenage delegates on the "Challenge of the Space Age."

Dr. Samson R. Weiss, Executive Vice President of the Orthodox Union, a foremost religious thinker and educator, will introduce the Convention Theme, "Grant our Portion in Thy Torah," this morning. Dr. Weiss will emphasize the need for making the synagogue a center of religious studies for young people.

Harold H. Boxer, Chairman of the Joint Youth Commission, and prominent New York attorney, will address the youngsters on the "Art of Being Different" — an art which orthodox teenagers must cultivate if they are to triumph over the prevalent conformist atmosphere of today's teenage society.

Other major addresses will be delivered by Rabbi Zalman Schachter, Director of the Hillel Foundation at the University of Manitoba in Canada; Rabbi Nathan Bulman of Congregation Adath Jeshurum in Newport News, Virginia; Rabbi Israel Wohlegelernter, Rabbi of the Inwood Jewish Center in Inwood, N. Y.; Rabbi Pinchas Stople, National Director of the UOJCA Youth Division and of the National Conference of Synagogue Youth who is in charge of the convention; and Rabbi Aaron Gewirtz, Hillel Director at the University of Connecticut.

A major convention event is the National Oratorical Contest, scheduled for Friday evening on the Topic: Conflict Between Torah and Science — Fact or Fiction? Ten contestants representing ten different youth regions will enter the discussion which will be moderated by Mr. Steven Goldman, a physicist who is the Executive Director of the Association of Orthodox Jewish Scientists.

During the Sabbath the delegates will hear Mr. Avraham Carmel, of London England. Mr. Carmel who recently wrote a book on orthodox Judaism, is a 'Ger Zedek', a convert to Judaism from Catholicism. Mr. Carmel had been a priest before his conversion.

Dr. Nehemiah Mark, sculptor and scholar will display his unusual work, and lecture on Jewish art and Jewish youth.

A program of Jewish music and entertainment will feature the "Kol Simcha Quartet" led by Leib Gilden. Mr. Dan Ronen of the Education Department of Jewish National Fund, Miss Thea Odem of the UOJCA staff, and Mr. Irv Schraub will participate in the musical program.

Barney Glazer Mourns Death Of Jeff Chandler

By Barney Glazer

I feel positively horrible over the death of Jeff Chandler.

I had dropped him a line during his hospital stay saying I hoped to visit him soon. He passed away before the "No Visitors" sign could be lifted.

I hope Jeff received my note in which I stated also that I was constantly praying for his recovery. Jeff Chandler was one of the finest men I have ever known while covering the Hollywood beat.

He was forever tolerant, sympathetic, cordial and above all a real genuine guy.

Whenever I found need to check an item about him, he was always prompt in replying. He always told me what I wanted to know, never withheld the facts.

If he wasn't ready to talk, he'd apologize and assure me I'd have the information when it was possible to release it. He never failed me. I never had to prompt him further.

I don't believe I was Number One Newsmen on his list but I have always felt Jeff and I had a complete understanding about certain matters. I cherished his friendship dearly.

It isn't easy making friends in Hollywood. There are too many "users" hiding behind the term. Jeff and I weren't intimate friends. Neither were we nodding passers. There was just enough between us to know we could depend on each other when the chips were down.

I remember my first meeting with Jeff Chandler.

He had just completed a starring role in an Israeli-type film. I immediately recognized his vast potential. It was the same feeling I encountered when I first met Clark Gable while playing a bit role in one of his early movies in 1931.

When open season was announced for the casting of "Exodus," Chandler was seriously in the running but Preminger and Company finally selected Paul Newman. It was my personal opinion both at the time of the casting announcement and after I had previewed the film that Newman was an excellent actor but Chandler would have made the movie role more believable by appearance and performance.

I talked to Jeff about this at a theater one night and he merely shrugged his shoulders. One thing was sure. He definitely wasn't a complainer. He did admit he would have welcomed the opportunity to meet the role's challenge.

On occasion, Chandler used to call me to discuss his brief sally into the pops recording field. I thought his voice was real hep and I told him so. We agreed that he was no Sinatra or Como, but if he could develop a commercial appeal, he could run it into a parlay somewhere along the line.

As it was, nothing ever came of his singing career but those were the days of rock 'n' roll. More seasoned vocal vets than Chandler had been choking in the dust kicked up by a ridiculously young generation who were one-hit-record-bleating themselves into an early fortune.

I caught Jeff's performance in "Return to Peyton Place" and despite the opinions of some critics that he wasn't their idea of a New York book publisher, I felt he played the part to the hilt and gave it all the finest shadings at his command for the best performance of his all too brief career.

I also noted that in the film he looked gaunt and tired. His cheeks were sunken and there was an air about him that indicated sub-par health. Prior exacting roles and his spine injury, no doubt, had sapped him of the resistance he so sorely was to need later to help him win his fight against the ravages of his ill-fated surgery.

I don't have many close friends in Hollywood, but Jeff Chandler was definitely one of them. Sadness shrouds the town and the cortege of his mourners will be long.

I'll miss this great guy well beyond tomorrow. His passing leaves a void difficult to fill.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

A new version of an old joke goes this way. A stock broker calls a customer and tells him that such-and-such stock is being offered at $1 a share and is heading for $2. The customer says, "Buy me 10,000 shares."

A few days later, the broker calls again, reports the stock has hit $2, is on the way to $5. The customer says, "Buy me another 10,000 shares."

A week later, the broker calls a third time, announces the stock is at $5. The customer says, "Sell." Asks the broker: "To whom?"

It's a bitter joke and the significant point to me is that I've heard versions of it twice before--during the height of the gambling spree in new issues in 1953-54, and the height of the spree in 1945-46. Both binges ended shortly thereafter, and in the years since many of the hottest of the hot new stock issues of those periods have sunk to next to zero or become entirely worthless.

Perhaps the fact that the joke is circulating now is an indication that Merrill Lynch is right in its suspicions that 1961's wild movement also may be "running out of steam." Whether it is or isn't, though, one point is clear: A joke of this sort can do more to remind the greedy and gullible that they can lose their shirts in unknown stock issues than a thousand stern lectures and warnings.

The lectures and warnings are coming too.

The Securities & Exchange Commission has just mailed an eight-page questionnaire to the more than 500 members of the American Stock Exchange demanding intimate details of their finances and activities since July 1956. With the questionnaire, due back at the SEC by June 30, went a letter informing the members that supplying false information to a federal agency is a criminal offense.

The questionnaire surely suggests that the SEC's investigation of the American Exchange so far has uncovered evidence of violations by the members of the securities laws or the SEC's regulations or the exchange's own rules or all three.

A week from Tuesday, June 27, a House subcommittee, headed by Illinois Democrat Peter F. Mack, will open hearings on a bill that would authorize the SEC to launch the broadest investigation of the various securities markets since the 1930's. Testimony at these hearings will make plenty of headlines and surely the revelations will at least hint at major loopholes in the laws, gaps in the regulations, lax enforcement of rules, outright violations of the law.

Is the policing of the securities markets today adequate? NO!

There is a dreadful gap in the requirements for reporting by companies with shares traded in the over-the-counter market and an awful gap in control over credit extended on unlisted securities. The possibilities for abuses are tremendous.

There are the (at best) borderline activities of some investment advisers. There are known instances of advisers building big positions in a security, recommending it in a market letter, then unloading at a profit as the public buys. To curb this, as of July 1, the SEC will require investment advisers for the first time to keep full records of dealings involving their own funds and securities.

There is the deceptive to fraudulent advertising of some advisory firms. The SEC at last is starting to clamp down in this area.

There are the openly illegal operations of some underwriters of new issues--for instance, the tie-in sales under which a customer is allotted a block of a new stock issue on condition that he buy an equal block in the open market days or weeks later. This supports the price of the stock while the insiders clean up and clear out.

I've just submitted a sampling of what could and should be brought out at the House hearings to pave the way for the probe.

This may be news to Congress and to you. It isn't news to responsible sources in Wall Street. The policing is not good enough, the rules aren't stiff enough, our protection isn't strong enough.

In Hollywood . . .

By Barney Glazer

It was Lou Edelman, not Jackie Cooper, who finally ripped Barbara Stanwyck's lace dress at the TV Academy Awards. Seated a few rows in front of Barbara, I watched the struggle and later asked her: "How badly torn is your dress?" She replied: "I don't know but I'll tell you this--my Emmy is in excellent condition" . . . Dinah Shore, the kiss thrower, finally implanted one with direct contact. The lucky guy was Sammy Weiss, the kbitzing drummer who has played for some of the greatest in showbizz, including Jimmy Durante, Jack Benny, Paul Whiteman, Al Jolson, Frank Sinatra, etc. Following the Emmy awards, we all marched from the Moulin Rouge, crossed Sunset Boulevard, and on the way to the big tent at the Hollywood Palladium, there was Sammy Weiss and his jazz band at the corner of Sunset and El Centro serenading the press and celebrities. Which is where Dinah handed Sammy his kiss in person.

WASN'T ROD SERLING the popular winner, though? He's a wonderful lad to know, is short in height but has more talent per lineal inch than some of the biggest alleged giants in Hollywood. Rod's "Twilight Zone" TV show is always a masterpiece of surprise. When I congratulated him later, I said: "Win another next year." He replied: "This will keep me for a while." He's won two straight now.

JOEY BISHOP made every-unscheduled incident count during the Emmies. The sad-faced one knows how to ad lib ad libs and fame couldn't rest easier on a nicer lad. . . Line I loved at the Biltmore Theater here during the staging of "Majority of One" when a guest asked Gertrude Berg if the soda pop was Diatonic. Replied Gertrude: "If you want Diatonic, drink water."

ONCE UPON a time a funny fellow stood upon the stage of the Moulin Rouge and, instead of being funny as he was paid to be, he suddenly decided that he was a political sage. So he announced that our nation of bigoted electors would never, never vote Catholicism into the White House. So, recently, when Pres. Kennedy invited only one entertainer for his birthday dinner at the Washington, D.C., Armory, guess who got the bid. Yup! the comic who wasn't being funny when he predicted that like a snowball in Hades, Senator Jack Kennedy would have no chance in the Capitol. His name? Jerry Lewis.

STEVE LAWRENCE and Eydie Gorme opened here at the Coconut Grove and what a talented and smart couple they make! Without a doubt, this young Jewish couple, who are married to each other, are the nonpareil of boy and girl acts in the world today. At the press party following the Grove opening, Steve Allen reminisced how Steve and Eydie were originally featured on his local TV show, "Tonight," the forerunner of the Jack Paar show. The program went national, Allen told me, whereupon the sponsor decided that Steve and Eydie weren't big enough names. "Get rid of them" he told Allen. "As you say," replied Allen, "but who else can we get to do the job so well?"

The sponsor concentrated for a few days but couldn't come up with a topper. The kids stayed.

YES, I LOVE Jack Benny, the actor, and Jack Benny, in person. But I can't accept his TV show being presented as a re-run without the channel and the newspapers telling us it's a re-run. It takes 10 minutes to realize it's been shown before and that's fraud.

boat. "I want to sail it to Havana," he said, "just to walk into a tobacco shop there and order 200 cigars."

Billy Wilder, the screenwriter-director who won an Oscar for "The Apartment," will be a judge at the Berlin Film Festival. . . Cole Porter, who's been at the Medical Center for months, was host at a champagne and caviar birthday party there recently. . . A famed comic who lost $80,000 at the casinos of Las Vegas, started paying off the debt in $75-2-week instalments. He explained that this is all the Internal Revenue Dept. allows him.

Joseph P. Kennedy sat with some friends and members of his family. He listened to a discussion of another vastly wealthy family, whose fortune is as large as the Kennedys' but whose members are involved in varied and sometimes conflicting interests. "Yes," the senior Kennedy said about them, "they do have money--but no DIRECTION."

Shirley MacLaine will star in the screen adaptation of the Marcel Achard-Harry Kurnitz play, "L'Idiot." Anatole Litvak will direct it. . . Mamie Van Doren may succeed June Havoc in the American Repertory Theater Guild tour of South America next month. . . Mike Nichols will co-star with Phyllis Newman in e.e. cummings' "HIM." They will introduce it, under George Morrison's direction, at the Spoleto Festival.

San Marino officials, checking the authenticity of the 100-year-old letter from Abe Lincoln--accepting honorary citizenship--discovered that all succeeding U.S. Presidents rate the same honor. The demands of San Marino's Communist legislators that Khrushchev be accorded this same honor was denied. JFK will become an honorary citizen this summer.

Warner Bros. is bidding for the forthcoming Jules Styne-Comden & Green musical, "Subways Are for Sleeping" . . . Robert Preston, who played "The Music Man" on Broadway for 882 performances, refers to the movie version as his 883rd performance. . . Gov. Rockefeller has named Nick Atlas to a committee of lawyers to make a study of New York's criminal laws. They'll make recommendations for eliminating outmoded rules.

Sir Tyrone Guthrie, the director, is involved in a hectic varied schedule. This week he'll arrive at the Stratford Festival in Ontario, to stage Gilbert & Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance." Then he'll come to N.Y. to direct "Gideon," go to Oberlin College to supervise the local theater, then fly to Ireland for the film, "Judith Hearne." He's booked up to the summer of '62, when he'll direct the movie, "The Fool Killer," with Arthur Kennedy.

Let's Make Up

By Jack Stein
 MAKE-UP ARTIST

There is an old adage about women wearing glasses which is not worth repeating. At one time a woman with glasses was pictured as a prissy school marm. Today we know better. Glasses are worn because people need them to correct their vision or to eliminate sun glare. If you do wear them, make the best of it and include them as part of your wardrobe.

See your optometrist first for your eyes' sake and make sure that you have the proper prescription. Then for beauty sake, ask to see frames that will enhance your features and match your wardrobe.

If for any reason you feel strongly about wearing glasses, consult your optometrist about contact lenses. This wonderful new invention can change the color of your eyes as well as give you clear vision all day. At one time, it was difficult to wear these for more than a few hours. Now it is possible to go through the day without any ill effects to the eyes.

For those who have difficulty hearing, science has created an eyeglass frame that also acts as a hearing aid. These are smartly styled and so compact that no one can detect your secret.

Take into consideration several factors when selecting the frame for your glasses--your complexion color, shape of face and whether you will be wearing them all the time or just for reading. The hair-style should be such as to give full freedom to the glasses. For example, too low bangs will create a very sheepish look to the face. If you must wear bangs, keep them high on the forehead.

If you are wearing glasses all day, stay away from bright colors and gaudy designs. Of course, if you can stretch your budget for a few pairs of frames, you will find it advantageous. Actually the investment is not so great and you can add them to your wardrobe the same way as you might add shoes. Over a period of time you will find that you have acquired several pairs to wear for varied occasions.

The lenses should be large enough so as not to cut off the outer part of the eyes. Too small frames will give a pinched look to the face. The high styling in the temples to modern frames enhances the sides for fashion in profile. You can select from many shapes to blend with the contour of your face.

1. For a large nose choose frames with a bridge that curves down low for an illusion of shortness.

2. For a short nose the bridge should curve up to add length.

3. In a narrow face use long horizontal lines to help create the illusion of an oval.

4. A harlequin shape should only be worn by those who have a full face, since it creates angles and encourages the illusion of narrowness.

Don't have the frames compete with flowers, veilings or over ornate earrings. Eye make-up is very important to the person wearing glasses. A magnifying mirror will be of great assistance for the application of Mascara and eye shadow.

Remember to choose your glasses as carefully as you would the most expensive piece of jewelry.

Urges Racist Bigot Be Quarantined

NEW YORK — A report on organized anti-Semitism and on the activities of racists and bigots in the United States was published last week by the American Jewish Committee. The report offers a four-point plan for community action in dealing with the hate-mongers.

The report deals, with racist agitation in the South, in the wake of the Supreme Court's desegregation decision of 1954; hate-mongers on the political scene; Arab and neo-Nazi propaganda in the U. S.; synagogue desecrations; and a "case history" of the activities of George Lincoln Rockwell, commander of the American Nazi Party.

The AJCommittee urges the following program to combat bigots:

1. For the bigot who thrives on publicity the "deadliest weapon"

Observers See No Break Between Moscow, Cairo

JERUSALEM — Sharp charges and counter-charges exchanged recently between the United Arab Republic and the Soviet Union seem more intense than similar disputes in the past, but do not necessarily denote a serious rupture of Moscow-Cairo relations, according to political observers here.

There was speculation here that UAR President Gamal Abdel Nasser is permitting his controlled press to publicize those exchanges, in the hope that he would make the United States believe there is a chance of wooing Egypt from the Soviet orbit by giving the UAR greater political and economic support.

Observers here point out that the question of UAR treatment of native Communists has always been a matter of dispute between Cairo and Moscow. The Soviet Union gave asylum to Galed Bakhdash, who escaped from Syria after it was joined to Egypt, and permitted Bakhdash to publish anti-Nasser articles in Soviet mazines.

However, it is noted here, the Soviet Union has always been ready to forget about maltreatment of Communists in foreign countries, as long as the Governments of those lands suited the Moscow Communists.

After each flare-up of apparent disagreement between Moscow and Cairo, it is pointed out here the rapprochement and cooperation between the two countries seem to grow closer. It is remarked here as noteworthy that, despite the current spate of Moscow-Cairo, charges, Soviet arms shipments to UAR have not been interrupted.

is quarantine — relegating him to obscurity. No response should be made even to his most frantic provocations for they will only succeed in adding to the public attention he craves.

2. Covert bigots — who quietly give financial aid to hatemongers — should be publicly exposed.

3. Where bigoted action violates Federal, state or local laws, the facts should be presented to the appropriate authorities.

4. When a bigot hides behind false facades of patriotism and religion, repudiation by the very institutions he claims to protect are usually extremely effective. Condemnation by communal, civic or religious leaders have been found to be valuable antidotes.

Try Infiltration

"In the last decade various attempts have been made by hate-mongers to infiltrate ultra-conservative movements," the report stated. "Recently such organizations as the John Birch Society, which disclaims religious bigotry, have become objects of their support. Still functioning is the National States Rights Party, an organized racist, hatemongering movement cast in a political format. To date, most of its efforts have been concentrated in the South."

Reviewing the Arab anti-Jewish propaganda in this country, the report said that official Arab propaganda confines itself largely to insinuations of "dual loyalty" on the part of American Jews. The terms "Zionist" and "Jew" are used interchangeably in derogatory context.

The Organization of Arab Students briefs some 4,000 young Arabs at colleges and universities here for speaking appearances, student seminars and other persuasive contacts with Americans. The Arab Information Office, propaganda arm of the Arab League in the United States, also makes pro-Arab speakers widely available and distributes a wide variety of literature the report stated.

Shohams, Formerly Of Providence Fly From Sharon To Sharon

by Murray Greenfield

(Executive Director, Association of Americans and Canadians in Israel)

On a visit to their home town of Sharon from the plains of Sharon in Israel where they retired over three years ago, are Jeanette and Morris Shoham.

Officially retired, the Shohams lead a busy and exciting life in Israel. Their home is a tourist attraction for all visitors from the Boston-Providence area. Mr. Shoham supervises the management of his small citrus grove at Kfar Saba and is in constant demand as a public speaker. One of his pet hobbies is helping youngsters with their school work, an aftermath of his many years as educational director of Temple Beth Israel in Providence and Temple Israel in Sharon.

Mrs. Shoham's career is literary. She has to her credit the publication of the translations of two novels "People of Exodus" and "He Who Returned" by M. Perlow, and "Silent Tears", a collection of poems by Eliezer Kalir.

Both are active members of the Tel Aviv Branch of the A.A.C.I., Mrs. Shoham is Program Chairman, which represents almost 10,000 American and Canadian settlers in their integration into the life of the country and assists them in financing of housing, guarantees for customs, etc. A growing overseas membership throughout Canada and the U.S. which helps support American Aliyah avails itself of its information service and regularly receives an information bulletin published by the Association.

Before taking up residence in Israel, Mr. Shoham was president of the Farband in Providence, vice-president of the Rhode Island Zionist Region and president of the Woonsocket Zionist District.

Mrs. Shoham was executive secretary of the General Jewish Committee in Providence, president of the Hadassah Chapter in Woonsocket and secretary of the Providence Zionist District.

Mr. and Mrs. Shoham are taking advantage of a charter flight leaving Israel on 29th June, organized by the Association of Americans and Canadians in Israel, to visit Mrs. Shoham's two sisters, Mrs. Haskel Mark and Mrs. Max Greenberg both of Providence.

State Department Reiterates Stand On Coercive Tactics

WASHINGTON — The State Department has reiterated its stand against "coercive tactics" to secure Arab compliance with the anti-discrimination clause of the Mutual Security Act. In a communication to Rep. Seymour Halpern, N. Y. Republican, the State Department criticized the resolution adopted by the New York State legislature calling for American action against Arab blacklisting of U.S. ships carrying cargo to Israel.

While recognizing that the "general purpose" of this resolution was "wholly consistent with U.S. Government attitudes," the State Department pointed out that "certain promises therein are not wholly accurate." The communication to Rep. Halpern was signed by Brooks Hays, Assistant Secretary of State for Congressional relations.

Mr. Hays said it remained the view of the State Department that efforts to tie U.S. aid to requirements that Arab lift discriminatory policies would intensify restrictions and "play into the hand of the Soviet bloc by exacerbating Middle East tensions."

Mayor Treated Over Anti-Nazi Exhibition

COVENTRY, England — Although he had received a telephone call threatening him and his family, Lord Mayor William Callow last week officially attended the opening of an exhibit at St. Mary's Hall here, of photographs depicting life in Nazi concentration camps.

Callow notified police that a man who had telephoned him told him, "if you and your stinking Jewish friends open this exhibit, you and your family will suffer." The caller, said the Mayor, identified himself as speaking for "friends of Eichmann" and concluded his message with "Seig Eichmann!"

The exhibit consists of 80 huge photos depicting life in concentration camps, and includes other items from some of the former Nazi death camps. It pictures various atrocities practiced against camp victims, and shows gas chambers and crematoria.

There has been considerable controversy here since the planning of the exhibit was announced.

Harold Williams, provost of the Coventry Cathedral, has called upon all Christians to boycott "this exhibition of bitterness." Callow, however, denying the exhibit was an attack against Germany, said, "we protest not against any one nation, but against an evil philosophy, against man's inhumanity to man the world over."

Form More Than 100 Anti-Semitic Groups

LONDON — More than 100 organizations with "Jewbaiting or racialism" as their background have been formed in Britain since 1945, according to a study conducted by Maurice Orbach, former Labor Party Member of Parliament. The results of the study were published here last by the London Committee for Inter-racial Unity.

Orbach has found that, while the British Union Movement, headed by Sir Oswald Mosley, is the largest of these organizations numerically, the British National Party is more than the former's equal "in the virulence of its attack on Jews." The British National Party, Mr. Orbach reported, is distributing its hate literature in the United States.
