GJC Ups D-Day To Sunday In Emergency Fund Drive

As part of the crash program to raise as much money as possible in the least possible time for the Israel Emergency Fund, leaders of the General Jewish Committee will conduct D-Day this Sunday, June 18, starting at 9 a.m. at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel.

GJC officials said that never before has a D-Day — the one-day intensive house-to-house canvass — been undertaken on such short notice. Usually weeks of planning and lining up of workers precede it. Milton Dubinsky, D-Day chairman, declared that time is so important in this crisis that he has been working all week with campaign leaders and the GJC staff for rapid mass mobilization of workers.

D-Day captains and workers will convene at the hotel to be briefed by campaign leaders and assigned pledge cards for solicitation. The workers will then cover their assignments and report back to the hotel. The usual D-Day breakfast will be eliminated this year, coffee and Danish being served instead.

Free parking will be provided on the Meyers Brothers parking lots, on Mathewson Street between Washington and Fountain streets.

All prospective contributors have been asked to remain at home Sunday morning to greet D-Day workers and make a generous contribution to the Israel Emergency Fund.

D-Day encompasses the Greater Providence area, including Cranston, Warwick, West Warwick, East Greenwich, East Providence, Barrington, Warren and Bristol.

All former D-Day workers from these areas who have not been contacted are asked to come to the hotel headquarters to participate in the drive.

Judge Frank Licht, new GJC president, and Robert Riesman, general campaign chairman, said that the results of the combined Israel Emergency Fund and General Jewish Committee campaign thus far have been electrifying and exhilarating.

"Never has there been such a response. The entire Jewish community has literally opened their hearts to the urgent needs of the brave people of Israel. The Jewish people in Rhode Island are giving 10, 15 and 20 times more than their usual annual gifts," they said. Mr. Riesman said that many unsolicited gifts have been made voluntarily by non-Jewish residents of Rhode Island.

Merrill L. Hassenfeld, past GJC president, who attended the Pace Setters United Jewish Appeal meeting in New York last weekend, reported today that Providence has set an example for the entire country.

GJC campaign leaders have been busy throughout the state, speaking at fund-raising rallies in Pawtucket, Woonsocket and Newport.

Syria Calls Break With U.S. 'Eternal'

DAMASCUS, Syria — The Damascus radio said that Syria's break in relations with the United States and Britain would be "eternal."

"We shall never restore relations with the Anglo-American pirates who aided the Israeli aggressor," the radio added. The announcement was repeated at intervals.

Both the radio and the press said that Syrian forces had resisted the Israeli attack "heretically all along the line." They said the Israelis had suffered "enormous losses in human life and in equipment" at El Quneitra.

Both also stressed the Soviet warning of sanctions against Israel if the "aggression" were not halted, but they reported Secretary General Thant's statement that the Syrian and Israeli forces had observed a cease-fire last night.

Aid From Around World Being Readied For Israel

NEW YORK—Volunteers from numerous countries are rushing to Israel to aid in various ways.

More than 6,000 volunteers for civilian service in Israel have registered at the Israeli Embassy and at special offices opened for this purpose in Paris. The first group of volunteers left last week.

More than 200 young Canadians, some of them non-Jews, have volunteered to go to Israel to help in non-military capacities. The volunteers include electricians, lawyers, nurses and other medical personnel. They will work in industry, agriculture and in other capacities, freeing Israelis for military service.

Some 200 volunteers who have joined the summer work in Israel program in kibbutzim to replace those entering the armed forces enrolled at a rally in the Institute of Jewish Education in Los Angeles. A number of rabbis aided in the interview of applicants for the service. Noted author Michael Blankfort, a member of the audience, told of his son-in-law, daughter and three grandchildren

Israel Organizing For Peace As Negotiations At UN Begin

NEW YORK — While the withdrawal of Israeli forces from the Arab states was being asked for this week at the United Nations by the Soviet Government, Israel began to administer its conquered territory west of the Jordan. The United Nations Relief and Works Agency commissioner general asked his Geneva office to send antibiotics and other medical supplies to the Middle East on an emergency basis, for more than 800,000 Arab refugees in the Gaza Strip and Jordan, and the International Committee of the Red Cross disclosed that Israel had reported names of about 350 Egyptian and 350 Jordanian prisoners of war. The UAR list was not yet in Geneva.

Jordan accused Israel of having driven thousands of Arabs out of occupied territory, and speculation has grown that Israel allowed some refugees and encouraged others to leave.

The United States and Britain told the ministerial council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization that a limitation on the sale of arms to the Middle East is essential to peace there. Oil reprisals are threatened against the United States and Britain by the Arabs, who may also unite in a blanket boycott of goods and companies of the two countries.

President Johnson said that the ways of achieving peace will depend a good deal on the nations directly involved in the conflict rather than on any peace formulas advanced by the United States. He believes that the political existence of Israel must be accepted by the Arab states and that steps must be taken to insure for Israel unobstructed passage through the Suez Canal and the Gulf of Aqaba and protection against Arab terrorist raids.

The United States is hopeful that in return for such guarantees Israel will moderate her demands so that the issue of "territorial integrity" of the Arab states will not arise.

President Nasser of the UAR has agreed to take part in a conference of Arab leaders, though he rejected such a suggestion the week before the war. The last Arab summit meeting was in 1965 in Casablanca. President Houari Boumediene of Algeria flew to Moscow on Monday for talks on Soviet intentions toward the Arab nations.

In Warsaw Israeli diplomats paused in their document burning to read letters and telegrams expressing Polish admiration for Israel, which Poles feel is in much the same position as their country, surrounded by hostility.

Premier Levi Eshkol asked the Soviet Government, which severed diplomatic relations with Israel last Saturday, "how she as a member of the United Nations, reconciled her declared policy of solving international disputes by peaceful means with the bestowal of massive armaments and military assistance on states that have publicly declared their intentions of using these armaments to destroy a sovereign state, and how her policy is comparable with open support for the aggressor during the fighting."

He denounced the 1949 armistice agreements as time-gaining expedients used by the Arabs to prepare for renewed warfare, and declared that Israel will not retreat within her prewar frontiers.

General Moshe Dayan and General Itzhak Rabin, chief of staff, spoke to their army, air force and navy commanders at a ceremony in the Old City at the Walling Wall, the only remnant of the Temple of Solomon.

"The best of our comrades, the bravest of our fighters, the dearest of our sons have fallen in action," General Dayan said. "The sands of the desert and the rocks of Galilee are drenched with their blood. Victory is ours — and so is bereavement."

He reminded the commanders that peace was yet to be established.

Eisenhower Compares Israeli Forces To Washington's Revolutionary Army

GETTYSBURG, Pa.—The Israelis are like the patriots' army who stuck it out through the winter at Valley Forge, said Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower last week. He compared the dedication of the Israeli military forces to that of George Washington's troops.

The former President and World War II commander of the Western Allied forces in Europe was speaking in his office on the campus of Gettysburg College. He had invited a group of journalists to discuss his new book of memoirs, "At Ease: Stories I Tell to My Friends," which was published last week. Someone asked how he accounted for the recent success of the Israeli forces.

General Eisenhower reflected a moment, then said: "We had one brigade of Israelis in World War II. They were great fighters." This was a reference to the Jewish force recruited in Palestine and attached to the British Army.

Mayor Kollek Hopes To Begin Tours Of 'Old City' Within Week

JERUSALEM—"We're in King Hussein's office," the Israeli military governor said on Tuesday. "Just six days ago the King was sitting in it. It's hard to believe."

Brig. Gen Chaim Herzog, Military Governor of the West Bank, of occupied Jordan, is a 48-year-old son of a rabbi, with a sense of humor. His job is to direct, from an office in former Jordanian Jerusalem, the restoration of order in the occupied area. "But do you know what my biggest problem is? It's the Jews."

"They want to go to the Walling Wall and they want to see their old homes and they want this back and that back. It's very difficult."

The office, situated on one of the main streets, was used by King Hussein during visits to the Arab-held section of Jerusalem.

From the window, General Herzog can see Israeli soldiers checking passes as Arabs and Israelis arrive at the office with a spectrum of problems. The Arab shops across the street remain tightly shuttered.

"We have restored the water and electricity," General Herzog said. "The entire municipality is working. The Mayor has come back and we even have 40 Jordanian policemen at work."

General Herzog is an army reservist whose usual occupation is representing the interests of Sir Isaac Wolfson, a British business leader, in Israel. He became known to most Israelis, before his appointment last Wednesday a week ago for a series of broadcasts during the fishing.

His broadcasts analyzed different aspects of the fighting and they reflected a personal approach. His comparison of the Israeli and Arab air forces ended, for example, with the suggestion that he would rather be sitting in Tel Aviv than trying to reach it in an Arab jet fighter.

General Herzog said that his advice to Israeli governors in Arab towns, now that the fighting was over, was: "Use plenty of common sense and plenty of Arab labor. We don't want separate Israeli administrations."

"The Jordanians have been amazed at our approach. The former Governor, Anwar el Katib, told me he was flabbergasted. They expected the conquest to be something quite different."

The result, he said is that while many Jordanians fled, many have also returned. The flight across the Jordan River continues, he said, but the majority of residents have remained and "we hope they will soon open their shops."

He said that much could be done if the Jordanian Government in Amman would deal directly with him.

"In any case, we don't want the United Nations in here," he said. "My view is that the U.N. has been a divisive force, not a unifying one. They've become a vested interest here. I'd like to work without them."

General Herzog said Israeli instructions were broadcast on expanded Arab transmissions, displayed in bill posters and announced over megaphones after the curfew, which begins at 3 P.M. in the cities and 6 P.M. in rural areas.

An Israeli Arabic newspaper is being distributed in the occupied cities along with the English.

LEO GROSSMAN

Funeral services for Leo Grossman, 77, of 294 Budler Avenue, who died Saturday, were held on Sunday at the Max Sugarman Memorial Chapel. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery. He was the husband of the late Bessie (Prague) Grossman.

He was born on June 14, 1888, in Pokratz, Hungary. When he was 17 years old, the family emigrated to Providence, where he began work as a watchmaker's apprentice. At the time of his death, he was board chairman of Lebanon Mills in Pawtucket, a worsted knitting firm with offices in Pawtucket, New York City and Los Angeles, which his sons now operate. Sales recently passed the $20,000,000 mark.

Mr. Grossman had a lifelong interest in community affairs, and was one of the founders and a former president of Temple Beth Israel, a member of the board of the General Jewish Committee and the Jewish Home for the aged, and other civic groups. He made six visits to Israel in the last 12 years, and contributed generously to Jewish causes.

When he and his late wife celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1960, he established a $5,000 fund at Brown University for a visiting professorship in Judaic studies for one term.

After several years in the jewelry business, he started the Hope Knitting Mills in 1927. Ten years later, the firm merged with Lebanon Mills. Since then, the growing business has been known for its good labor relations and its ability to expand and modernize.

The mill was Mr. Grossman's principal interest and hobby. Even in the later years, as his sons took over the major share of the work, he would come to the office at 6:30 in the morning and work until 1 p.m.

To overcome his lack of formal education he spent about 10 years taking night courses at Brown to improve his English. He read on the average of one serious book a week. His favorite work was Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables."

Survivors are five sons, Edward Grossman of Westport, Conn., Clinton Grossman and Stanley Grossman, both of Providence, Max Grossman of New York City and Albert Grossman of Los Angeles; two sisters, Mrs. Clara Bonci and Mrs. Lotte Dolan, both of Providence; 10 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Poll Finds Few Jews Consider Afterlife

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Less than 1% of the 2.7 million adult Jews in the United States believe in preparing for life after death as a main concern of life, it is revealed in the current issue of The Catholic Digest on the basis of a Gallup Poll survey covering the three major religious groups in the country.

In 1952, the Jewish concern with afterlife was eight per cent.

Interestingly, Protestants are revealed to make a better showing with respect to attitudes about afterlife than Catholics with a percentage of 53 as against 46. At the same time the survey revealed that there had been but a minor decrease—3 per cent—in the attitude of the religious toward afterlife since 1952, when the same question was asked in a Gallup Poll. The Jewish decrease was considerably higher, about 7%.

In Hollywood . . .

By Barney Glazer

It wasn't easy checking out Artur Rubinstein's religion. Members of RCA Victor's Red Seal recording department either said, "I think so" or "I don't know," hardly an answer for readers of this column. Even Dimitri Tomkin, a giant among Hollywood composers, replied, "With that name he has to be Jewish. You'd be safe to say he is."

No factual consolation there, either.

One day, actor Hugh O'Brien staged his acting awards at UCLA. A girl and a boy won $500 each. The boy gave me my answer to Artur Rubinstein's religion. The boy's name: John Arthur Rubinstein, youngest of four children born to Artur and Anieta (Neta) Rubinstein. The famed pianist resents "Arthur," which he labels a career affectation dreamed up by an ambitious manager. His real name, he surprised is Arthur.

John answered my question in detail:

"My father was raised in an orthodox Jewish family. His ancestors lived in Lodz, Poland. My mother came from a strictly Catholic family. To this day, my father is absolutely Jewish. Any rumors that he had converted are absolutely false.

"Religion was not imposed on any of the children. Our parents waited until we reached maturity to let us make our own decisions. I am 20 and my sister, Alina, 22. Neither she nor I have made our decision as yet.

"My older sister, Eva, who created the role of the older sister Margo on Broadway in 'Diary of Ann Frank,' was married to Yale University Chaplain William Soane Coffin, Jr. (Presbyterian.) Only then did she decide. Obviously, she adopted her husband's faith.

"Paul, 32, married Leslie, Rabbi Nussbaum's daughter, in Jackson, Miss. I am not certain if Paul became Jewish but it is safe to assume he did."

John Rubinstein attends UCLA's famous theatre school. True to his father's tradition, he too plays piano, but on the other side of the fence. John plays jazz and pop. He wrote the music for "The Short and Turbulent Reign of Roger Ginsburg," with David Colloff.

Single, never married, John is going all out for the life of an actor. If he doesn't cut the mustard, he'll revert to family form and pursue his musical career. He hopes that won't become necessary, so wrapped up is he in acting.

He says that his Hugh O'Brien acting award earned him calls from MGM and Universal but nothing came of it. He's openly critical of the Hollywood casting system. "In New York, I do an audition. If they like me, they hire me right there. In Hollywood, the casting director rejects an actor without hearing him read or seeing him act. They want a certain type.

"They judge the actor without hearing him read or seeing him act. It's discouraging. It's a sad comment. There should be a more honorable and worthy way of casting."

John won the Hugh O'Brien award with a cutting (condensation) of the last scene in "Luv," where Ellen leaves Harry Berlin. He thinks that the Berlin character is one of the best ever written for an actor. Jack Lemmon recently completed the role for the Columbia Pictures film version.

Young Rubinstein advised that his celebrated father commutes between Europe and America. He recently celebrated his 80th birthday, with all of his children in attendance, the day after playing in concert at Carnegie Hall.

As I've said repeatedly, Bernie Schwartz may have changed his name to Tony Curtis for motion picture imagery, but he is always a Jew. SPECIAL: Tony visited Russia four years ago strictly on a culture kick. At that time, he agreed to attend the upcoming Moscow Film Festival. This week, Curtis wrote Moscow, "I can not, will not visit any country that sponsors a belligerent country against Israel." The popular star intends to stick to his guns unless Russia lifts its assist to the Arab nations. He also hopes that other Jewish and non-Jewish stars, who have accepted Moscow's invitation, will follow suit.

Keep your eye on news that reports American stars who attend the Moscow Film Festival. Particularly, observe if any Jewish actors appeared. If so, write them later and protest. I'll furnish the proper address.

Meanwhile, gentlemen, let's all doff our yarmulkehs to Tony Curtis. Here is an American first, a Jew always. Love yuh, Tonilahl!

Huge Hotel To Replace

Tel Aviv's 'Red House'

TEL AVIV—A longtime Tel Aviv landmark, the "Red House" of the Histadrut, Israel's labor federation, will be torn down and replaced by a multi-story popular-priced hotel.

Yehoshua Levy, head of the Histadrut Hotel Corporation, said 140 rooms would be built in the first stage and 200 rooms later in the second stage. Funds for the project will come from Histadrut and the Government.

In another building development, a group of British investors invested about $350,000 in a huge commercial center now under construction in Tel Aviv. The purchase will give the investors the entire ground floor which they will furnish and equip for resale.

'MIDDLE EAST POLICEMAN'

WASHINGTON—Sen. Jacob K. Javits, New York Republican, in a major speech on the Senate floor, urged the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to hold hearings on U.S. policy in the Middle East, warning that a "parallel with Vietnam" exists and that the United States may become "the policeman in the Middle East as well as the Far East."

ISRAEL BEEF

Young Executive Group To Hold Workers' Rally

The Young Executive Group of the General Jewish Committee will hold a workers' rally for the Israel Emergency Fund on Sunday evening, June 18, at 8 o'clock at GJC headquarters in downtown Providence.

Milton I. Briar and Harris N. Rosen, co-chairmen of the Young Executive Group, have urged all members to attend the rally to aid Israel. Pledge cards in the general solicitation division in this group will be distributed.

Melvin G. Alperin and Lawrence Y. Goldberg are associate chairmen of this event.

Rabbi Rubel Conducts Service At Institution

Jewish patients and their guests attended Shevuos holiday services at noon on June 9 in the Dr. Sidney Goldstein Chapel, Rabbi Charles M. Rubel, who has been a coordinator of the Jewish activities at the Institute of Mental Health, and will soon leave for a North Miami, Fla., congregation, conducted the services. Dr. Max B. Fershtman, supervising physician in psychiatry, called Rabbi Rubel "a strong leader" of activities there.

The late Mrs. Sarah Fishbein was commemorated at the service, and a bronze plaque will be erected in her memory. She was one of the founders of the Festival Committee when it was organized in 1949 by members of the Ladies Union Aid. Mrs. Rose Sheffres, a member of the original group, gave a resume of Jewish activities at the institutions since 1949. She said that Mrs. Fishbein knew all the Jewish inmates by name, and would prepare food for as many as 100 or 150 persons at her home during the Jewish holidays.

Members of the Fishbein family were present at the services, which were followed by a collation.

Herald Recipes

TONGUE WITH SWEET-AND-SOUR SAUCE

Pickled beef tongue (4 to 5 pounds)
 Water
 1 onion, sliced
 1 garlic clove
 1 bay leaf
 3 tablespoons shortening
 1 onion, chopped
 2 tablespoons flour
 1/3 cup cider vinegar
 1/3 cup honey
 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
 1/4 cup seedless raisins
 1/4 cup slivered blanched almonds
 1 lemon, thinly sliced

Wash pickled tongue. Cover with water; add sliced onion, garlic, and bay leaf. Cover and simmer for about 3 hours, or until tongue is tender. Drain and reserve 2 cups broth. Skin tongue and discard root and other bones. Slice, and keep warm. Melt shortening and saute chopped onion until golden. Stir in flour. Gradually stir in reserved broth. Add remaining ingredients and cook over low heat, stirring constantly until smooth and thickened. Pour sauce over sliced tongue. Makes 6 servings.

MUSHROOM BARLEY SOUP

6 dried mushrooms
 1/4 cup pearl barley
 2 quarts water
 2 teaspoons salt
 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 2 onions, chopped
 3 tablespoons butter
 2 tablespoons flour
 3/4 cup milk

Soak mushrooms in cold water for 10 minutes. Slice. In a saucepan combine mushrooms with barley, water, salt, and pepper. Cover and simmer for 1 hour. Saute onions in butter. Add to soup. Cook for an additional 30 minutes. Gradually, while stirring, mix flour with milk. Add mixture to soup. Cook, stirring, for 15 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

CHICKEN FAT AND GRIBENES (Cracklings)

2 cups fat and skin of raw chicken, duck, or goose
 1 onion, chopped
 Cut fat and skin into small cubes. Fry slowly, stirring occasionally, in a skillet over medium heat. Drain fat as it fills pan. When fat is almost rendered, add onions and continue cooking until onions are golden-brown. Drain through a fine sieve. Store fat and use as rendered chicken fat. Reserve gribenes and use mixed into chopped chicken livers as a spread on bread to be served with soup, or as a snack tidbit. Makes 1 cup clear rendered chicken fat.

CHOPPED CHICKEN LIVERS

1/2 pound chicken livers
 Salt
 1 medium onion
 2 hard-cooked eggs
 1 teaspoon salt
 1/8 teaspoon pepper

Rendered chicken fat
 Lettuce and tomato

Score chicken livers with a sharp knife. Wash, drain, and sprinkle with salt. Broil chicken livers for 3 to 5 minutes, or until cooked. Grind livers finely with onion and hard-cooked eggs. Add salt and pepper. Add enough chicken fat to make a mixture that is smooth and has the consistency of mashed potatoes. Serve on lettuce with a wedge of tomato. Makes 4 appetizer servings.

CJC DETECTIVE

TORONTO—A private investigator, who said he had been hired as a detective by the Canadian Jewish Congress, told a court trying Canadian National Socialist leader John Beattie and two other men for conspiracy that he had been the chauffeur for a car used by Beattie and his cohorts for placing swastika placards on the homes of prominent Jews in Toronto. The witness, John Charles Gerrity, testified that he infiltrated Beattie's organization on behalf of the CJC, and said he had reported the swastika excursion to the police. The incident, he said, happened last Sept. 1, to coincide with a march staged in Chicago by George Rockwell of the American Nazi Party.

GOLDENE YOICH (Golden Chicken Broth)

1 stewing chicken (4 to 5 pounds), and giblets
 Boiling water
 1 tablespoon salt
 1 1/2 cups diced carrots
 3/4 cup chopped celeriac or celery
 1/2 cup diced parsnip

Use a fresh-killed fowl with a yellow skin with plenty of fat. Use gizzard, heart, and chicken feet if they are available. To clean chicken feet scald them in boiling water. Peel off membranes. Quarter chicken. Place chicken with gizzard, heart, and chicken feet in a large kettle. Cover with boiling water. Add salt and vegetables. Cover and simmer slowly. Do not remove scum. Simmer for 2 to 3 hours, or until fowl is tender. Remove chicken and serve separately; or place chicken pieces in a soup bowl and spoon soup over the top. Before serving soup, remove excess chicken fat and season to taste. Noodles may be added if desired. Makes 6 to 8 cups.

BRISKET OF BEEF

2-pound boneless fresh brisket of beef
 Fat or shortening
 2 cups dried beans, navy or Lima, soaked overnight
 Salt and pepper
 1 bay leaf
 1 large onion, chopped

Brown meat in fat. Add drained beans. Add salt and pepper to taste, bay leaf, and onion. Add enough water just to cover the beans. Cover tightly and cook over low heat at a slow simmer, stirring occasionally, until meat and beans are tender, approximately 2 to 2 1/2 hours. Can also be baked, tightly covered, in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 2 to 3 hours. Makes 8 servings.

SCHAV (Sorrel Soup)

1 pound schav (sorrel or sour grass)
 2 onions, minced
 8 cups water
 2 teaspoons salt
 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
 1/4 cup sugar (optional)
 2 eggs

Dairy sour cream
 Wash sorrel, and shred. Place sorrel, onions, water, and salt in a large deep saucepan. Bring to a boil, lower heat, and simmer, covered, for 45 minutes. Add lemon juice and sugar, if desired. Beat eggs and gradually beat into soup. Chill; serve garnished with sour cream. Makes 1 1/2 quarts.

Afroyim To Regain Citizenship Revoked For Voting In Israel

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Supreme Court ruled recently that Congress may not revoke the citizenship of a naturalized American because he voted in an Israeli election. The decision held that Beys Afroyim, 73, a native of Poland who was naturalized in the United States in 1926, may regain his citizenship.

The U.S. State Department revoked his citizenship in 1960 because he voted in an Israeli election. The U.S. vice-consul at Haifa issued him a certificate of loss of U.S. citizenship when he sought to return to America.

The Supreme Court ruling maintained that an American cannot be stripped of his citizenship unless he voluntarily renounces his allegiance to the United States. The five to four overruled a 1958 decision that a person's citizenship may be taken away for voting in a foreign election.

Justice Hugo Black said, "We hold that the 14th Amendment was designed to, and does, protect every citizen of this nation against a Congressional forcible destruction of his citizenship, whatever his creed, color, or race." The ruling said "citizenship is no light trifle to be jeopardized any moment Congress decides to do so."

Justices dissenting from the ruling were Byron R. White, John Harlan, Tom C. Clark, and Potter Stewart.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Linsky of Providence were North and South. North was dealer, no one vulnerable. The bidding:

N E S W
 2D P 2NT P
 3C P 3NT End

North and South were using the Weak Two Bids which gave North, the dealer, an easy opening bid. South, with stoppers in all the other suits plus a good fit in the Diamonds, immediately envisioned a game in No Trump provided his partner was on the upper side of her bid. He could find this out by making the artificial bid of Two No Trump, a forcing bid which could also find out if North had a four card Heart suit. The hand would play even better there with four opposite four.

North's responses to the question were automatic. She had made a limit type bid and was now in the hands of her partner. With a minimum she would simply rebid her suit but with a maximum she must bid some other suit, the only stipulation being that if she bids a Major as her rebid, she must have four cards in that suit. For that reason, North's rebid of three Clubs gave this message: "Partner, I have a maximum Two Diamond bid with no four card major but I have said nothing about my Club suit".

South now had heard enough and contracted for game in No Trump, with West leading the Club Queen, East winning the Ace and continuing the suit. South won the King but before playing his next card, stopped to consider his chances. Admittedly they looked very good but being a careful player he said to himself, "My only problem is that the Diamonds may split four - zero, otherwise I have my nine tricks." "If East has them all, nothing can be done about it but if West is the culprit, North's little 7 becomes a tremendous card."

To avoid blocking the suit, just in case West did have all four, as he actually did, Declarer carefully led his 10, going up with the Ace when West did not cover. When East showed out he played a Spade to his Ace and led the Diamond 8 which West covered. Now Declarer returned to his hand with his other Ace and played his last Diamond, the 2. It mattered not what West played this time for if he played low, the 7 in Dummy would win and if West played high there would be no problem at all.

Most of the other Declarers played their 2 on the first Diamond trick, not allowing for a four - zero break. When West covered the second one they had a blocking situation when they tried to get to Dummy to run the suit for their own 8 was higher now than Dummy's 7 and when this time West did not cover it, they either had to win it in their own hand and have no entry or else by

THE SHOCK OF RETIREMENT— THIS MAN MOVED, AND CURED IT

The fellow had been fighting retirement all the way. Since age 63, when the company had sounded the two-year warning bell, he had become a conniver.

He tried to keep people from knowing he was 63. He refused to talk about retirement with anybody. He angrily rejected any literature or information on retirement that came his way.

Most men in the neighborhood who had reached 60 would drop by now and then and casually discuss their future as they sat on my front steps. But not this man. From age 63 on he dropped what little friendliness he had once shown, and made it a point never to be seen with me.

The boom fell, as it always does. He was handed his watch and pension. He had apparently failed in some rather frantic efforts to have part-time work with the company.

"The fellow is badly shook up," a friend of his said to me a couple of months later. "He stays in seclusion, and will hardly talk even to his wife. And then it's to yell that she had better stop spending money."

The friend wondered if he should have a doctor... maybe a psychiatrist. I told him that was for the family to decide. But that this wasn't the only man who ever went into shock over retirement. And that I never knew of one who couldn't come out of it on his own.

In general, there are two things that shake a man up when he retires. One is that he has let his job become his emotional crutch. For 40 years he's had a job, and like the baby with its thumb he has come to allow it to mean more than a means of making a living. It has told him what to do, and when, has influenced his loyalties; frightened him; rewarded him. It has been a Great White Father, not just a job.

Take it away and he's in trouble.

The second thing, oddly, is snobbery, which most men have a little or a lot of. The more the worse. Retirement usually takes away most of the snob items: the title at the company, a chance for better furniture than the neighbors (or at least better taste), the civic, church, and social status built up over the years. Men suck their thumb on these things, too, about in proportion to the level of their snobbery.

The friend of my neighbor, working with the neighbor's family, helped lay the groundwork for him to sell his home and move to a small Kentucky town where his Grandfather had once been a prominent citizen.

His friend later told me: "The commotion of the move was a tonic for him. And two weeks after he was settled in Kentucky he had snapped out of his blues. He was himself again, only better, because his wife said for the first time in 20 years he was beginning to relax. There were no reminders of the company. There were no people on the street to remind him of his vanished status."

overtaking it, made the Jack in West's hand good. Try it yourself and see what happens.

Moral: Bridge is a game of percentages. Even though the possibility of something happening may be extremely remote, as little as one percent, getting it down to zero is still better when possible. Often the percentage differential is much greater.

The Fruits Of Conquest

Israel's quick and decisive victory has delighted many around the world who watched in disbelief when she declared her independence in 1948, restored the desert lands to their ancient fertility and struck swiftly when threatened by her Arab neighbors. After all the cries of "aggression" from the Moslem nations closing in around her borders, it is strangely satisfying that the tiny country surmounted the weight of arms and people against her by capturing in less than a week of war an area totaling four times her previous size.

In a world where territorial rights have generally been determined by force, and only within quite recent times by the consent of nations, it is understandable that Israel should talk of retaining the land she took by conquest in a war forced upon her. To say that Israel must give back the territory won by force of arms, because it was not hers before the brief war, is in some ways akin to saying that because the tiny nation was carved anew in 1948, it has no present right to existence. The countries that talk so nobly of violated rights may generally find within their own histories records of worse violations.

There are indications that much of the conquered territory may be used as a bargaining point for water rights in the Suez Canal, for acknowledgment by the Arab nations of Israel's right to exist and for the guarantee of international water rights in the Gulf of Aqaba. Although Israel has set up machinery for governing her new quadrupled area, this may be a temporary expedient. Her bargaining position either with the Arabs or the United Nations cannot but be greatly improved by the war, but one of her important conquests may not be relinquished, the holy city of Jerusalem. It was a city sacred to Jews long before Christians or Mohammedans claimed it, and one which Israelis are loath to see divided again. Israel may also keep the heights of Syria and Jordan, from which attacks have been mounted so often against her border settlements.

General Moshe Dayan wants to deal directly with the Arabs on peace terms. He would keep the Gaza Strip, the western part of Jordan and a united Jerusalem, and would leave Israel troops controlling the Strait of Tiran until Israel was sure of free air traffic forever from Sharm el Sheikh to Elath. The engineer of what a local paper called "last week's war with the Arab nations" said that he was speaking as an individual (he was finally sworn in, after the war, as Defense Minister).

Perhaps most important in any reassessment of the Middle East, and of the United Nations role there and elsewhere, will be the knowledge that Israel will not wait upon the world to protect her, and that though the endless talk at the UN during the past two weeks may have prevented a world-wide eruption, it did not prevent one of the shortest wars in history.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

SHAPED ECONOMY
 "In view of the pressures of the Mideast on top of Vietnam, do you see the pace of economic activity in the second half of 1967 rising faster than the administration has been predicting?" I asked my luncheon companion, a nationally-known economist with close ties in both Washington and the business community.
 "How deeply will the U.S. be involved in both areas in the next six months?" was his response.
 "Admitted, that's the great unknown, but don't you think that an income tax increase is just about a sure thing now?"
 "Don't you think it was becoming a near certainty anyway because of the huge budget deficits and the inflation dangers we're facing?" he countered.
 "Talking about inflation, wouldn't you agree that this new development will add substantially to forces accelerating the pace of price rise from now on?"
 "I've been expecting the acceleration all along. But again, I ask you how deeply will the U.S.

be involved in both areas?"
 "Well, one thing that is encouraging to me is the way the stock market recovered after the initial sell-off," I said. "What would have happened if the institutional investors had tried to dump stocks in major volume? Wow!"
 "Considering the inflation outlook, why should institutional investors dump stocks? What safer places are there to invest money under circumstances existing today?"
 "You've answered every question with a question," I protested. "My questions revealed my thinking but you're ducking."

Lift Up Your Eyes . . .

By Beryl Segal

The Prophet Isaiah, about three thousand years ago, spoke thus:

"Lift up your eyes round about, and behold: All these have gathered themselves together, And have come to you. . . . Then shall you say in your heart:

Who has begotten me these? And who has brought them up?"

And we, too, say it when we see American young Jews go up to Israel to help her in her most tragic hours.

These young men and women are not going up as tourists. They do not fly in luxury planes. No comfortable hotels await them in Israel. They will not feed on the fat of the land.

The young Jews know what is awaiting them. Nothing but sweat and tears and toil.

They will go the villages and help gather the crops until the farmers can leave the armored tanks and take up the tractors and the plows and the pruning hooks again.

They will take their stations in the hospitals to bring healing to the sick and the wounded until the doctors and the nurses return from the battlefields to pursue their day by day duties.

They will replace the men and women in the factories and shops to supply the land with the daily needs.

They will stand in the place of the teachers in the class rooms of the nation until the educators can take off their battle fatigues and return to the peaceful occupation again.

They will see to it that electric power and gas and oil flow freely for the needs of the nation at war.

The young American Jew who goes up to Israel now, knows all this, and more.

He also knows that he endangers his very life.

And yet thousands were besieging the Israel embassies and they rejoiced when they were told that passage was available for them.

Who could have foreseen this miracle?

Who knew of this idealism in the hearts of American Jewish youth?

If at any time we thought and spoke lightly about Jewish youth in America, we now bow our heads before this youth and ask their forgiveness.

And we also stand with heads bowed low before the spirit displayed by Jewish people in America in the present crisis in the life of Israel.

The young women offered of themselves to the land of our fathers, and their parents have given of their substance.

How they responded to the call for aid from their brethren in Israel!

How they flocked to the offices and stations bringing their money!

How they doubled and tripled and quadrupled their usual contributions!

All this will be told by fathers to their children and by the children to their young ones, too young to remember.

And how they came with broken hearts and with eyes filled with tears to their Synagogues and Temples. This, too, we should not forget. They came to be with fellow Jews in that dark hour and to unburden their troubled hearts in unabashed weeping.

Said one Rabbi to his congregation:

This morning I wept and rejoiced. I wept because I took my oldest son to the airfield from where he will go up to Israel. And I rejoiced because he went by his own free will to help Israel in whatever capacity he can.

Said another Rabbi: Please do not come to your Rabbi and ask him to talk your sons and daughters out of going to Israel in the present hour of her need. The Rabbi will give them his blessing. You ought to thank God that your children have hearts that feel and minds that heard the call to come to help of the Land of our Fathers in this most tragic hour.

And a third Rabbi urged his people who came to the prayer for peace:

Pray for Israel, and give to Israel. For when Israel is lost, we are lost, too.

And so Jewish parents held back their tears and said farewell to their sons and daughters.

And so Jewish men and women went home determined to give more than they ever gave.

We have cause to weep for joy, now.

Israel fought with all their hearts and all their might and prevailed against their adversaries.

May we hope for better days when we meet again in the Fall.

The Lyons Den

by Leonard Lyons

WIT: Dorothy Parker was a poet, author, playwright and foremost wit. For two generations varied groups laughed at stories whose punch lines began, "And then Dottie said. . ."

We spent much time in the same places, where I often was earwitness to those punch lines. I heard her say, when she was introduced to the 23-year-old Orson Welles: "It's like meeting God, without dying." And she said of a Londoner who spoke in clipped accents: "Whenever I meet one of those Britishers I feel as if I have a papoose on my back."

In the Stork Club one night she sat next to a table occupied by four visiting Governors, and said of their conversation: "Sounds like overwritten Sinclair Lewis."

She described Kaufman and Hart's "The American Way," in which the authors never identified the enemy as "anti-Graustark propaganda." She criticized a young reactionary: "Stop looking at the world through rose-colored bifocals." In her play, "Ladies of the Corridor," she used the line "The days go so slowly and the years so quickly."

One actor did poorly in his audition for "Ladies of the Corridor." His agent later apologized, "He's trying. At least he's trying." Dottie said: "Very. . ."

I once asked her to describe her Bucks County farm in two words. She did: "Want it?" She spoke of a director she disliked as "a cad. A card-carrying cad." A playwright who'd been copying her themes described his new play to her: "It's hard to say—except that it's a play against isms." And Dottie said: "Except plagiarism."

At the reception following her remarriage to the late Alan Campbell she beamed: "People who haven't talked to each other in years are on speaking terms again today—including the bride and groom."

When she was in the hospital and wanted to dictate letters to her secretary she pressed a button marked "Nurse," and said: "This should assure us of at least 45 minutes of undisturbed privacy." And she suggested to a friend whose cat had to be destroyed: "Try curiosity."

"Is it hard for you to write a short story?" she was asked, and Dottie said: "It's hard to write even a postcard. . ."

Dorothy Parker's will bequeathed the bulk of her estate to civil rights causes. . . Budd Schulberg tells of showing his 13-month-old daughter to Dorothy, who said: "I'll bet she never sees 11 months again." . . . Sam Goldwyn once asked her: "Do you really say all those things the papers report you as saying?" Dorothy replied: "Do you?"

George Oppenheimer took her to see Max Reinhardt's over-produced "Midsummer Night's Dream" at the Hollywood Bowl. After legions had marched down from the mountainside on cue and assorted animals lined up onstage, an actor spoke some lines. Dorothy nudged Oppenheimer: "That's Shakespeare. . . . She once told a selfish star who was inconsolable about the death of her pet dog: "Next time why don't you try adopting one?"

PERFORMER: Shirley MacLaine was asked, in London, about the film version of Joyce's "Ulysses." She said of Barbara Jeffords' portrayal of Mollie Bloom: "If I'd played that role I'd have done those things on-screen instead of talk about them."

MESSAGE: Mayor Lindsay used Gen. David Sarnoff's original Morse telegraph key the other day in celebrating the increase of WLIB's power to 10,000 watts. Lindsay referred to Morse's original message: "What hath God wrought?" then he revealed the message he'd tapped out in Morse code on Sarnoff's key:

"As I looked around City Hall Plaza, crowded with landord pickets and those involved in the Middle East—please God, don't wrought any more. . ."

ANOTHER MESSAGE: Julie Wilson and Mairin O'Sullivan were on the Circle Line cruise the other day, to help launch the "N.Y. Is a Summer Festival" season. Miss Wilson mentioned to Mayor Lindsay that Mairin was flying to Ireland soon and suggested he send a message to Dublin's Lord Mayor. . . Lindsay wrote: "Dear Lord Mayor, let's switch. . ."

VENTURE: This week the Austrian government is to announce a gambling license to Timothy Holland of London, for a Las Vegas casino in Vienna. Top U.S. entertainers will be imported and a series of charter flights from American cities to the casino will be launched.

State Department Backs Complaint

NEW YORK—The United States delegation to the United Nations recently made a complaint to the Soviet delegation about "anti-Semitic aspersions" by a Soviet delegate against an American member of the Human Rights Commission of the United Nations.

The complaint was made on orders of Secretary of State Dean Rusk. It was an outgrowth of a meeting on March 23 at Geneva when the Human Rights Commission adopted a recommendation for the creation of a United Nations Commissioner on Human Rights.

At that time, Yakov Ostrovsky, the Soviet delegate, accused Morris B. Abram, a member of the commission who is also president of the American Jewish Committee, of "obeying the orders of the Zionists and Jews of America," and of "serving two masters."

In an earlier exchange on March 21, during the same debate, Mr. Ostrovsky also scored Mr. Abram when he raised a point of order. At that time, Mr. Ostrovsky, according to the stenographic record, remarked: "You may interrupt people at the American Jewish Committee, but this is not a meeting of the American Jewish Committee."

In his reply to the Soviet delegate, Mr. Abram, according to the stenographic report, said that Mr. Ostrovsky had made use of the library of the American Jewish Committee, at 165 East 56th Street.

Mr. Abram also said that the Communist parties in Poland, Rumania and elsewhere "fight anti-Semitism."

Aaron Goldman, chairman of the National Community Relations Advisory Council, a coordinating body of 9 national Jewish groups and 79 local Jewish councils active in community relations, protested to the State Department.

In a letter dated April 28, Mr. Rusk told Mr. Goldman that the State Department had received a report of the incident "with equal concern."

Mr. Rusk wrote that Mr. Abram's response had disposed "very effectively of the anti-Semitic aspersions" made.

The Secretary of State added that the United States had "made formal representations to the Soviet Mission in New York, at a high level, to make it absolutely clear that Mr. Ostrovsky's conduct was considered to be a regrettable departure from the standards which should prevail, and which normally have prevailed, in United Nations bodies."

Sapir Notes Cost Of War Economy

NEW YORK—Pinhas Sapir, Israel's Finance Minister, in the United States last week to inform American Jews of the possible economic consequences of the Israel-Arab conflict, said that Israel has enough essential food supplies and raw materials for six to 12 months, but that a prolonged military confrontation could seriously damage the country's economy.

According to "The New York Times," Sapir said that the call-up of reservists to the armed forces had the immediate effect of reducing the national production from an estimated annual level of $3.5 billion or $4 billion.

Hello Again!
Sports News By Warren Walden

COOL THOUGHTS, ANYWAY—Is it always hot when the Circus comes to town? It was steaming last Monday... The American League, by the way, will operate with an Eastern and Western Division setup. Providence, Springfield, Hershey and Baltimore will be in the Eastern section; Buffalo, Rochester, Cleveland and Quebec in the Western. It will play a home and away series with the Pacific Coast League, the R. I. Reds being scheduled for their only five games on the West Coast when Ice Capades play in Providence. And does the ice part of hockey thoughts make you feel cooler?

DOWN BUT NOT OUT—If you saw the eight-column line and the picture of Floyd Patterson on the canvas in last Sunday's New York Times, you might have recalled the old saying "down but never out" while thinking of the sport of boxing. It has been down before and has come back and the ancient art of leather pushing will never be permanently out of the picture while fellows like Joe Celletti and Phil Addison and Frankie "Chichi" Travis are on the scene. "We have a title match coming up," Joe Celletti was saying the other day. The "we" referred to Joe and one of his star proteges of the ring, Hector Rodriguez. Hector dropped a close split decision to Beau James in Portland, Maine, recently but he looked so good in that bout he was offered the chance to meet Vic Rinaldi of Pittsfield in Pittsfield for the New England Lightweight title. It's scheduled for next Friday night, one week hence. According to Mr. Celletti's exciting predictions, it may turn out to be worthy of the name of "Battle of the Berkshires." And, if you notice a bit of a bump on the bridge of Joe's nose, don't ask him if he's been training for a comeback. He slipped on the tailboard of his truck.

AND NOW THERE ARE FIVE—Sixty five years ago, Tim O'Neil organized the Providence Junior Baseball League with eight teams. The youngsters of the sandlots had been playing a hit and miss schedule and Tim's idea was to assure teams of games in their class each weekend. The League was so popular that another and another were formed until at one time Mr. O'Neil had seventy-two amateur baseball teams, graded according to age and calibre, playing each Saturday in and around Providence. There were more than 1,000 players and spectators numbered each week in the vicinity of 25,000. Recently a very well written article by John Hanlon in Providence Evening Bulletin explained that although the major leagues claim to be thriving, baseball on the sandlot level is in difficulties. There weren't enough teams to form even one league of eight. The Tim O'Neil Providence Amateur League is now operating with a roster of five stalwarts. Let us all hope that they keep going and encourage more to join the fold. Tim O'Neil used baseball as a medium for building better citizens, for encouraging clean living and play. The game is still a better pastime than many others today. Go! Go! You are valuable in our community, you Providence Amateur Leaguers.

A NOTE OR TWO (And then I'm through)—Norman Rosa, who operates that ice making machine between the hockey game periods, suffering from an eye injury sustained while mowing the lawn and everyone hoping he'll be better soon... And Max Greenberg of the late, late pharmaceutical Greenbergs at Star Pharmacy, is sticking with the Yankees to win the pennant. Which year, Max?... And now that I've made Bob Sauber read all the way to the end, congratulations are in order for his son Richard, recent recipient of a Brown University Alumni Award. Dick plays football, basketball and tennis at Moses Brown... And Hear Ye: "Enthusiasm is a basic key to the success of a person."—CARRY ON!

U. S. Arms Aid Greater To Arabs

WASHINGTON—A spokesman for the U.S. Defense Department said early this month that the United States had not yet delivered the jet bombers America last year promised to sell to Israel. He could not state when delivery could be anticipated.

Through the fiscal year 1966, the spokesman told the press, Israel received $27.6 million worth of U.S. arms.

Israel has orders on the books at present for a "modest amount" of purchases including Hawk missiles, jet aircraft, recoilless guns, small arms, other weapons, ammunition, vehicles, communications and other equipment.

The U.S. has supplied arms worth $345.9 million, much of it free, to Moslem countries backing Egypt, the spokesman said.

In addition to the substantially larger military aid to the Arab countries, the U.S. also furnished military training for hundreds of Arab officers.

WORLD JEWISH CONGRESS
MILAN—A declaration on behalf of Jews in 65 countries, pledging "unswerving support" to Israel in the current Arab-Israeli crisis, was issued here by Dr. Nahum Goldmann, World Jewish Congress president, at a conference of the European section of the organization. Among those who joined in the declaration were delegates of Jewish communities in Rumania and Yugoslavia and observers from Hungary, as well as representatives from West European Jewish communities.

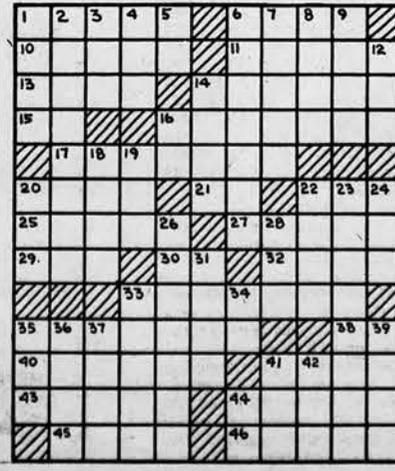

After stating that they could not believe that the great powers would deny Israel the right and means of defending herself, the delegates called in their declaration upon the great powers, the United Nations and the maritime states to uphold the right of access to the ocean.

Ashkenazic, Sephardic Jews Establish United Organization

NEW YORK—The establishment of a World Conference of Ashkenazic and Sephardic Synagogues to deal with major problems of Jewish religious and social life was announced here recently.

The organization, which will bring the Orthodox groups together for the first time, was announced by Rabbi Joseph Karasick, president of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, before the 1,000 religious and lay leaders who attended the union's annual dinner.

The new organization "will bring a united voice to Orthodox Jews throughout the world," Rabbi Karasick said. "This will be the first time in Jewish history that both Ashkenazic and Sephardic synagogue groups will have a joint forum for the major problems affecting world Jewry."

Ashkenazic Jews stem from Eastern and Central Europe, while the Sephardic Jews include the Jews of the Oriental lands and the descendants of those Jews who flourished in Spain and Portugal until their expulsion in the 15th century. The Sephardic Jews then migrated through the south of Europe to the Balkan countries, the Orient and America. Ashkenazic and Sephardic are the Hebrew words for both groups.

Rabbi Karasick announced that an international leadership meeting of the new group would be held in Geneva sometime in June, to formulate plans for the establishment of an international headquarters.

He said that the group would not deal with religious issues affecting Jewish Orthodox life.

Silver of Taft Avenue, a student at Hebrew University, has worked at the Hadasah-Hebrew University Medical Center in Jerusalem as a volunteer during the war emergency. Here she entertains a hospitalized child. At the request of YAAL, the women's hospital auxiliary, she also pasted gauze on windows, folded bandages and arranged medical stores. A student under the American Student Program, she refused to leave when the American Embassy advised all Americans to go. "My place is here," she said. "Volunteering to help here in this hour of need is the fulfillment of an obligation to a country where I was received so generously as a student."

Our Cemeteries

Look at a small church cemetery and you will think perhaps automatically of those "who have gone to their heavenly reward." In a highly poetic and sentimentalized way, the old church cemetery was a reminder of the implications of death.

But look at any modern cemetery and you will realize we Americans are not interested in heavenly rewards but rather we are interested in "taking off into the wild, blue yonder."

I have described the cemeteries where sweet music is piped constantly. If there is such a thing as an outdoor theatre lobby, the modern cemetery is it. We have become much like the Egyptians who used to entomb with the departed pharaoh his wives, dogs, plentiful food and wine as well as his riches so he wouldn't be embarrassed when he arrived at his final destination.

Togetherness now invades our cemeteries. It is as though loved ones have never left us, so intense is our concern for their comfort.

Yet it is bootless. Whether it is a vanishing church cemetery, a profit-making expanse, or a mutually-owned cemetery, like some stocks and bonds, the dead are gone for good. In addition to which the cemetery tradition is now crowding upon the corporate tax structure of thousands of towns and cities and suburbs. Cemeteries take away needed realty taxes and in many areas the town simply will not appropriate the land or let it be deeded to a cemetery corporation no matter what its fiscal coloration.

There is a sameness about cemeteries these days like there is a sameness about wills. All men do not die in the same way nor are they ready for death in equal measure. The Cemetery Associations conclude rightly that the church cemetery is on the way out because the entire American Culture is becoming rapidly secularized.

But I think it sad that when a man says, "I swear on my mother's grave" he is speaking rhe-ferry service between Israel and Venice. The vessel, which accommodates 500 passengers in a single class and has drive-on facilities for 120 cars, was rechristened prior to her first trip under the Zim Lines houseflag. Built in Belgium in 1964, the DAN is one of the newest passenger liners employed in regular service on the Mediterranean.

Kibbutz Youth Regrets Not Capturing Ski Slope

DAN, Israel—A kibbutz youth, asked last Saturday if the Arabs might not prepare for more attacks in 10 years, answered "They can try. They tried this time, too."

The youth, Zvi Porath, said that the Syrians came with 200 meters of the kibbutz guns, but "We got two of their tanks, then the air force came in and yesterday we started up the hills. This is the first time we eat in the dining room in a week."

He said that the luncheon was apple juice dipped out of a trough with a ladle, potato soup and chicken. He added that the kibbutz was 29 or 30 years old, he didn't know which, and that some of the founding members were already visiting captured Syrian villages. They had friends there, Zvi declared with a shrug.

"Come let me show you some of the Russian equipment we captured," he said. "Some machine guns and rifles. The tanks are in a valley, so I can't take you there."

The captured weapons stood near the settlement's children's house. A woman, possibly a teacher, was explaining what they were to six small children. Zvi said the Hebrew sign said not to touch because they had been taken from dead soldiers.

Windows in the dining room had been smashed and a half dozen apartments had been demolished in the bombardment and tank attacks.

"We were all in the shelters, so nobody was hurt," Zvi said. "It happens enough. So we know what to do." Did he think Israel would keep the hill?

"Yes, certainly, but not the Sinal (peninsula). We give that back, maybe we keep the west bank of the Jordan though."

"Too bad we didn't take Mount Hermon for the winter skiing."

For And About Teenagers

THE WEEK'S LETTER:
"Please give me a good answer. I have a boyfriend that I like very much and he likes me. How much I do not know. He goes to see other girls and sometimes takes them out. He comes to see me two or three times a month. Sure, I know he is often busy or sick. But not that much. He gets mad over things that are not important. Often I have tried to give him up and forget him, but it is not easy. People say, "Don't drop him unless you really want to." I don't want to. I care for him but I feel I am being used. Do you have a good suggestion? Should I drop him or give him another chance?"

OUR REPLY: Whether you are being "used" or not depends upon the relationship and the understanding that exists between the two of you. For example, you say that he sees other girls. Does he, at the same time, expect you to see no one but himself? Have you agreed to go steady? Has he promised not to see other girls?

If you have no understanding about your relationship, you are not being used — and you should have other boyfriends, just as he has other girlfriends.

If you enjoy seeing him, even if it is two or three times a month, continue to see him and don't break up just because you feel he should visit more often.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFORD, KY.

New, low water heating rate!

Now... the average family can enjoy carefree, automatic electric water heating for less than $1 a week!

The average family uses about 1500 gallons of hot water a month. That's 350 gallons a week. At the new, low electric water heating rate of 9.5 mills (less than 1¢) per kilowatt hour, you can heat as much as 400 gallons a week for less than $1 a week.

Only a flameless electric water heater is so completely automatic and carefree. Super-speed heating units, inside the tank, heat the water directly. Thick insulation keeps the water hot inside, the tank cool to the touch outside. It operates independently. No need to run a big central heating system just for hot water in summer.

And remember—you can rent an electric water heater for just $2 a month. Come in or call for more information.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Derive Zeal, Courage From Study Of Torah, Dean Jehuda Tells Parents

The following letter was sent last week to parents of children at the Providence Hebrew Day School, by Rabbi David Jehuda, dean of the school. He wrote:

"Out of the mouths of babes and young children has thou founded strength to refute Thine enemies and to still an avenging foe." (Psalm VIII:3) In time of peril and crisis, as we turn to God for help, our people always knew to derive comfort and zeal from seeing our young children study Torah and meditate in our schools. This morning, as the sounds of guns and mortar fire ricocheted from the streets of Jerusalem through the T.V. and radio sets at a world tense with anxiety for the peace of our beloved homeland, the students and teachers of the Providence Hebrew Day School were locked in prayer for safety and security in Israel and peace throughout the world.

Our children seem to grasp the gravity of the situation and wish to involve themselves in whatever they could do to help. Even as their parents write to the President and Senators urging support of Israel, some of our students will be writing letters to the children of Israel, now out of school in a war-torn state, to encourage them and show their solidarity. And even as their parents contribute to the GJC Emergency Campaign, our children will do all they can to turn their charity money to the same cause.

Some of the members of the faculty who are exchange teachers are, understandably, more affected by the situation. As Principal of the school, I wish to assure the parents that we will do everything possible to continue our studies with even greater intensity until the end of this school year. For through learning of Torah, our people derive zeal and courage.

Within a day or so, I shall communicate with you concerning some matters pertaining to the happy conclusion of this school year and preparation for next year. In the meantime, let us all join in prayer to the Guardian of Israel who most certainly will not forsake us. "The Lord will give strength unto his people, the Lord will bless his people with peace." (Psalm XXIX: 11)

Sponsors of the bill were Assemblymen Seymour Posner, Louis F. DeSalvo, Joseph Kottler and Senator Whitney North Seymour Jr.

The New York Board of Rabbis and its Advisory Council were among the active organizations that labored for passage of the bill.

Present at the signing were Rabbis Edward T. Sandrow, president, New York Board of Rabbis; Harold H. Gordon, executive vice-president, and I. F. Hollander, associate director; William Kaufman, president, Advisory Council of the NYBR; Samuel Hausman, co-chairman of the Council's Committee on Legislation and Jack D. Weiler, Council board chairman.

ley Steingut, the Democratic boss of Brooklyn, was at the Four Seasons. He told of his predecessor, his late father, Irwin Steingut, who was a horse player. One day Steingut conferred with Gov. Lehman about the state budget. Fifteen million dollars was needed to balance the budget. Steingut told the Governor he knew of a solution.

Steingut mentioned a horse running later that day at Aqueduct. He suggested that the Governor have the Controller give him a check for $5 million: "The horse will bring three-for-one" . . . Lehman laughed it off. The horse won, and paid three-to-one.

INITIALS: Ray F. Kelly, president of Dynamics Corp. of America, lunches regularly at the Algonquin. He heard his waiter say, excitedly: "Bobby Kennedy is here; Bobby Kennedy is here" . . . Kelly looked around, and asked, "Where?" . . . The waiter said he didn't know—but a big limousine outside had license plate "RFK" . . . Kelly returned to his lunch; The car was his.

BATTLE: David Merrick, the producer, described the way the Israeli army met, then repelled the Arab invasion: "Israel returned the kickoff to their 10 yard line. . ."

MEMOS: Chaim Topol, star of the London production of "Fiddler on the Roof," left the show to fly to Tel Aviv, where he's in the army's special service division. Topol promised he'd be back in 10 days—when the war would be over. . . Martha Raye's tour of Vietnam in "Hello, Dolly!" will be a tab version playing a frontline route different from Mary Martin's. . . Rita Tushingham and Lynn Redgrave make their singing debuts in "Smashing Time."

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

economy to come. For instance: (1) Military spending will continue to dominate our federal budget and pressures for cuts in non-defense spending will intensify. A realistic judgment, though, is that Congress will be unwilling to reduce civilian spending programs by more than modest amounts.

(2) Our total federal budget will be swollen far beyond what seemed wild guesses only a few months ago. Estimates on the budget deficit to be forecast for the year to begin next month are centering in the $20-$25 billion range now, dwarfing all budget deficits since World War II in the 1940s.

(3) This flood of red ink will be adding to already obvious inflationary pressures. The rate of rise in the cost of living, as measured by the government's consumer price increases, will speed up and Washington experts are no longer saying that 1967's increase will be less than 1966's 3.3 per cent. "We have been making our projections for the cost of living on two assumptions," remarks a Washington authority. "One assumption has been that the Vietnam war would end; the other that it would continue. Now there are so many possible assumptions that we're junking our projections and starting over."

(4) Against this background of the budget and price trends, it's hard to see how the President can avoid calling for an income tax increase on both individuals and corporations. And in view of Congress' probable failure to slash the non-defense budget, it's hard to see how our lawmakers can refuse to approve a tax hike. The question is turning from "if" to "when" and "how much."

(5) Another "credit crunch" as devastating as last summer's is unlikely but the Treasury's enormous demands for money plus other credit demands plus Federal Reserve anti-inflation policy will keep upward pressure on interest rates. (Distributed 1967 by The Hall Syndicate, Inc.) (All Rights Reserved)

Hugh O'Brian's tab version of "Guys and Dolls" in Vietnam will include Betty Linton, Linda Michele and Lawrence Keith. He'll have four musicians playing 12 instruments . . . Jules Munshin will leave "Barefoot in the Park" for three weeks to play Fagin in "Oliver!" at the Dallas State Fair. . . Barrie Chase may star in the London production of "Cabaret" . . . Barbara Streisand was to sing Hatikva at Sunday's UJA rally in Hollywood Bowl.

Trenches were dug on the ground of Israel's Sports Center for Disabled, at Ramat Gam, built by Sam and Bella Spewack. . . Ken Hyman's first major step as production head of Seven Arts will be the purchase of a Western, "North to Yesterday" . . . Chevalier will fly in from Paris; Benny, Hope and Kaye from Hollywood, to join Zero Mostel, Steve Lawrence, Eydie Gorme, Belafonte and Ustinov at the UJA rally at the Garden Sunday.

FAME: Jack Waldron, the veteran comic, said at Shor's that he would be on the Sullivan TV show Sunday. "Working onstage, that is," he sighed. "I'm not famous enough yet to be show from the audience."

MEMENTO: S. Hurok lunched at the Cote Basque with Miss Edgeworth, of the British Arts Council. They wrote figures on the tablecloth, and came to terms. Miss Edgeworth had Hurok sign the tablecloth, then took it with her for permanent display at the Arts Council.

COMPLICATIONS: John Bruno Jr., the restaurateur, said of a waiter who complicates all orders: "If he'd been with Moses on Mt. Sinai, we'd have had Twenty Commandments." (Distributed 1967, by The Hall Syndicate, Inc.) (All Rights Reserved) lished and told them: "Return your swords to your scabbards, but keep them ever ready, for the time has not yet come when you can beat them into plow-shares."

General Rabin, addressing himself to the families of the fallen, said: "The countless generations of Jews murdered, martyred and massacred for the sake of Jerusalem say to you: 'Comfort ye, O our people; console the mothers and the fathers whose sacrifices have brought about redemption.'"

A few hours before the ceremony at the Wailing Wall, eighty Arab Legionnaires had been hiding in a monastery not far away emerged to surrender with their arms to Israeli soldiers.

There was no trouble in any of the territories occupied by the Israelis. The army prohibited entry "to the region of the Syrian heights" along Israel's north-eastern border, saying that mines in the area "endanger life."

In his speech Mr. Eshkol offered Israel's neighbors the fullest cooperation if they chose peace.

"We did not take up arms in any joyful spirit," he said, addressing himself directly to the Arab people.

"Just as you have a right to the land that has been yours for generations, Israel in dispersion maintained its spiritual and material links with this country. It was never severed from it even when it went into exile."

Spasmodic Violence Follows Actual War

ADEN — The body of a Jew who had been beaten to death was found by the police here earlier this week. Later that day, British troops shot and wounded an Arab who they said had been caught setting fire to Jewish-owned property.

The shooting took place in the Arab quarter of Crater, where nearly a score of Jewish-owned premises have been damaged or destroyed in recent attacks.

The showroom of the Routes Motor Company in Crater was burned out and four Jewish-owned shops and a Jewish school were damaged by fire on Sunday.

As British patrols moved around Crater, they were fired on by snipers and were the targets of grenade throwers. The patrols suffered no casualties.

CASABLANCA, Morocco, — The authorities reported today that two Moroccan Jews were slain in the Jewish quarter of the city of Meknes on Sunday.

The police said a gang attacked a 19-year-old girl and a 24-year-old man, shot them and slit their throats.

A search and roadblocks in the area failed to find a trace of the slayers, the police said.

Moroccan King Blames Defeat On Arab Sins

RABAT, Morocco — King Hassan of Morocco told his people that the Arabs lost the war with Israel because of disunity and the "faults and sins" of Moslems.

"God Almighty has punished us," he said in a radio broadcast to the nation. "God has directed us to be united, under pain of going into decline. We are disunited and failure has been the result."

"We have turned away from God and God has turned away from us," the King added.

The King said he hoped God would restore to Arabs "our power, our honor and our dignity."

lish-language Jerusalem Post. "They would like to start their own newspaper and I am in favor of it," General Herzog said.

Israeli soldiers remain on duty throughout Jerusalem and other cities. There are few Jordanians wandering around, but those who do seem to move freely. General Herzog said that after Tuesday, the last day to turn in weapons, "we will have find them house-to-house."

Jerusalem continued to shake with the rumble of unexploded shells being touched off by demolition experts. An occasional shot is heard, usually an Israeli soldier firing after curfew has fallen.

Burned-out tanks, trucks, buses and cars remain abandoned in many streets, although the main roads are all open in Jerusalem. Glass and other rubble litters the streets, but there seems to have been little major civilian damage in the fierce fighting for the city. Many walls, separating the two parts of Jerusalem have been leveled.

Bulldozers cleared a huge plaza in front of the Wailing Wall, Judaism's holiest site, at a remnant of the Temple of Solomon, and tens of thousands of ordinary Israelis made a pilgrimage there for the first time on Shevuos.

Mayor Teddy Kollek, whose domain may some day extend beyond the Israeli sector of Jerusalem, said that he expects to begin tourist services to the Old City in one week.

AID WITH WEAPONS

NEW YORK — Jacques Torczyner, president of the Zionist Organization of America, issued a plea, before recent hostilities, to the United States and the Free World to furnish Israel with materials and weapons. At the same time he stressed the urgent need "to unite all Jewish organizations in the United States to adopt a common program of action" to aid Israel in this grave peril threatening her security.

Widespread Lands Sending Israel Aid

A number of Belgian Jew, not all of them young, left for Israel on their own initiative and at their own expense soon after war broke out.

PARIS — French Jewry will raise $10 million for aid to Israel by July 1 and deliver the money to Prime Minister Levi Eshkol personally, Baron Edmond de Rothschild announced here at a special meeting of 1,000 leaders of French Jewish communities from all parts of France.

Baron de Rothschild said that he and Theo Klein, accompanied by several other French Jewish leaders, will leave for Israel for a brief "visit of solidarity." Mr. Klein, an attorney, is secretary-general of the Committee for Coordination of Solidarity with Israel, which convened the meeting.

Fiery speeches expressing support for Israel in the present crisis were delivered at the meeting by Chief Rabbi Jacob Kaplan, Prof. Andre Neher of Strasbourg, Alain de Rothschild and Israel; Ambassador Walter Eytan. Mr. Klein reported the details of a vast campaign in support of Israel, including not only the collection funds but also wide mobilization of public opinion through the press, radio and television.

The meeting was also informed that a group of members of the French Chamber of Deputies, representing various political parties, will go to Israel this week as representatives of the French Parliament's committee on foreign policy.

In Johannesburg, an emergency fund-raising campaign to aid Israel was decided upon at a mass rally attended by 1,000 leaders of South African Jewry from all over the country.

Judge Israel A. Maisels, president of the South African Zionist Federation, who was chairman, announced that the Federation offices had been "undated" by offers of South Africans, including non-Jews, who wanted to volunteer for non-combatant duty in Israel. He said the first contingent of South African volunteers would leave for Israel, under the leadership of Joseph Daleski, veteran vice-chairman of the Zionist Federation.

No Russian Prisoners, Says Army Spokesman

TEL AVIV — Israel's chief army spokesman denied on Tuesday that any Russians had been taken prisoner by Israeli forces in the Sinai desert or in Syria.

Commenting on reports that five Soviet officers had been captured on the Syrian front the spokesman said: "There were no Russians captured."

Rumors have been circulating for the last few days about participation of Russians in the war on the side of the Arab armies.

The Israeli Army spokesman said, "We have no evidence to support these rumors." He said, however, that Soviet experts had been acting as instructors and advisers to Syrian forces.

DEMONSTRATIONS

TEL AVIV — Unemployment demonstrations were held here and in the all-Arab city of Nazareth by demonstrators who gathered in front of the Labor Exchanges.

Open House To Mark Completion Of Beth Israel's New Social Hall

An open house marking completion of Temple Beth Israel's new social hall will be held on June 25, David Yanover, building committee chairman, announced today. Members of the congregation and others interested in the new facility, an addition to the temple proper, are invited to attend.

Coleman B. Zimmerman, a past president of the congregation, is general chairman. Irving A. Ackerman is program chairman, with Fred Kelman, Samuel Tippe, Seymour Ladd and Mrs. Celia Bochmer as co-chairmen. The affair will begin at 7:30 p.m. with a champagne cocktail party and will include a musical program. Speeches will be restricted.

The social hall will accommodate more than 250 persons for weddings, Bar and Bas Mitzvahs, meetings and cultural activities. Included in the facility are a large modern kitchen, lounge rooms and bride's and bridegroom's quarters, with easy access to the temple. The social hall is air conditioned.

Construction began last fall after a fund-raising campaign and approval of the plans at a congregational meeting. Work continued through the winter and spring. A three-day formal dedication will be held in September coincident with the High Holidays.

Egyptians Urged To Work For Restoration Of Economy

CAIRO—The rout of its land and air forces has left the United Arab Republic a confused and exhausted nation.

The four-day conflict with Israel saw the mood of the people swell through enthusiasm, heady war fever and fierce patriotism. It reached a peak in the vast crowds jamming the streets on Sunday to demonstrate in support of President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Now the fever suddenly dropped, and an air of torpor reigns over this sprawling capital, which, along with Alexandria and Suez, lived through the wall of sirens, the thump of bombs and the pounding of aircraft fire.

Now along the banks of the Nile and in the many squares, Egyptians sprawl in the sunlethargically. Mainly, they seem to be confused. The Cairo radio continues to talk of regaining the lost Sinai area "inch by inch" although the United Nations ceasefire has been accepted and the number of Egyptian dead, wounded and prisoners is large.

Brick walls and sandbag emplacements were still being built near the center of the capital last weekend, though the "resistance to the last" spirit had evaporated with the cease-fire.

The Egyptians are puzzled by the commentaries being broadcast over the radio. It seems clear that the radio is putting the emphasis not on a reopening of the war, but on the diplomatic battle that will follow.

The radio has declared that Cairo has a three-pronged objective; not to lose an inch of its territory, not to give up an atom of its sovereignty and not to let Israel profit by her "bargain-price victory."

A strong guard has been placed around the President's home.

People are being urged to "fight the battle of production."

The exhortations to produce more came as independent economic analysts reported here that the five-day campaign against Israel had been ruinous to the Egyptian economy. The analysts, who declined to be identified for publication, noted that the fighting had left the Suez Canal blocked, prospects for foreign credit and tourist revenues bleak, and the military arsenal badly depleted.

(In Amman, King Hussein called on all Jordanians to resume their work "in a spirit of discipline and courage," Reuters reported.)

Egyptian newspapers published a proclamation by President Nasser's political party, the Arab Socialist Union, stressing that the country's military future depended on the economic efforts made now.

The loss of manpower from casualties in the fighting is less damaging to the economy, economic analysts said, than several other effects of the hostilities that will badly aggravate Egypt's shortage of foreign exchange and may in turn cause shortages of imported goods such as tobacco and grain. This could lead to disaffection among the populace.

Blockage of the Suez Canal, whose tolls have been the largest single source of foreign exchange, could cause considerable economic hardship. A report by Mashour Ahmed Mashour, chairman of the United Arab Republic's Suez Canal Authority, said the waterway was blocked by a series of Israeli air raids that sank a number of naval and civilian vessels, including tugs.

Traffic through the canal was reported to have declined as tension mounted before the war broke out. The number of ship passages in recent weeks is understood to have been considerably below the normal rate of 90 to 100 vessels a day.

Independent analysts estimated that the reduction had been costing Cairo more than $1-million a week before traffic was entirely interrupted. The normal weekly revenue is roughly $4-million.

A Government report last month said that Egypt had only about $40-million in foreign exchange on hand.

The United Arab Republic's losses in military equipment also represent a severe economic blow.

Tourism was the country's third largest hard currency earner.

Shortage of credit is another major problem. It seems unlikely that foreign banks, notably those of the United States, will be willing to make credit available to Cairo. However, it is expected that the Soviet Union and other Communist nations will extend further aid.

Censored For Hinting Of Israel Atom Bomb

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Authoritative sources in Tel Aviv say that Israel's next major military move will be to make the atom bomb.

When a Canadian Press reporter tried to report this from Tel Aviv, the entire dispatch was killed by the censor.

Israel censors all press dispatches in peacetime as well as wartime. The censor, an Israeli army officer, said he could not pass the dispatch because he did not know whether it was true.

Asked whether he knew it wasn't true, he went away and made a telephone call and returned to say he could not allow the dispatch to be filed.

Sources in Tel Aviv say it is likely that the Israeli Government will make a formal decision to join the nuclear "club" as soon as a Middle Eastern peace agreement is worked out.

Israel is said to feel she can no longer accept any guarantees for her security from any of the major powers and therefore must build the bomb as protection mainly against the Arab states.

WASHINGTON — While Israel is generally credited with the technical capability of developing an atomic bomb, United States officials have no indication that the Israeli Government is intent on joining the nuclear powers.

With a somewhat secret reactor near Beersheba, Israel has the capacity to produce a limited amount of plutonium. Israeli scientists and engineers also are presumed to have the technical knowledge of how to fabricate the plutonium into a weapon.
