

'Planned Miracle, James Bond War,' Says Shai Tadmor, Home From Israel

By LOIS D. ATWOOD

After the cease-fire, volunteers came every day to Israel. They landed by sea and air in the hundreds, coming from every part of the world. Shai Tadmor of Providence, who had spent several days before he flew to Israel in processing the applications of those who wanted to go from this area, spent the five weeks from June 8 through July 14 doing much the same thing in Israel.

He arrived when the cease-fire with Jordan and Egypt was in effect, but was there for the two days, Friday and Saturday, when battles continued between Syria and Israel. The administrative director of the Jewish Community Center of Greater Providence, Mr. Tadmor was engaged in Tel Aviv at first, and later in Jerusalem, "with the operation of the many volunteers who came into the country, in terms of screening them, placing them, directing them to various parts of the country. They were grouped according to the language . . . English-speaking in one place, and so forth." Many went to help in the kibbutzim as so-called relief hands, to get in the harvest.

Mr. Tadmor worked under the auspices of the Jewish Agency, which arranged transportation funds for many volunteers. Elial Dopkin, one of the leaders in the Jewish Agency in Jerusalem, has written to thank him for the work he did, which was of great importance to the country.

During the course of his duties he interviewed reporters, including some from a Swedish "Life"-like magazine who were hunting a well-known European plastic surgeon there with his own team. He also met representatives of "The New York Times" and "The Wall Street Journal," who wanted to know how Israel planned to take advantage of the wave of volunteers, and whether Israel might not now surprise the world with the greatest prosperity it has ever known.

A total of 20,000 volunteers were clamoring to get into Israel, which hopes to use them as ambassadors when they get back to their own countries, and also to make them want to live in Israel. Their average age was 21-22 and they "showed strong feelings to settle there," noted Mr. Tadmor.

The first 5,000 volunteers in Israel, at least, were a concern of his and he soon discovered inadequacies in the original questionnaires and in the information available.

The system of transfers was not good and much more background knowledge was needed, so a one-day census was declared. He got 120 students and a number of vehicles and divided up the places where volunteers were working. The new questionnaires were prepared and coded for L.B.M. processing, a typically American method of working, except that Yeshayahu Tadmor was born in Jerusalem. He has lived in this country for about 13 years. With the new system, he said, there will be enough information to be able "to utilize what we have in terms of volunteers" and, hopefully, for resettling many of them, later on, in Israel.

Not only were the original volunteer questionnaires not informative enough, but in some places, including Rhode Island, no plans and machinery for processing volunteers had been organized in advance. Shai Tadmor compared this unwillingness to prepare for war (or possibly, to believe that it was coming) with the foresight shown in Israel, where street signs in Hebrew went up all over the Old City on the day after the city's unification. Telephones, electricity, sewage and garbage were arranged for at once, new pipelines were started right away, and for the first time in the history of the Old City, water ran in the faucets.

Dr. Carol Silver Wins National Photo Contest

A Providence doctor has received first prize in the national Carte Blanche Travel Photo Contest for a color photograph, "Travelers Resting in Dyushambe, Russia." Dr. Carol M. Silver snapped the fur-hatted and booted Tartar traveler with his red-robed wife and children squatting at a roadside in the Pamir mountains in southern Russia, during his trip last September. He submitted the picture and another, of a mosque in Samarkand, some four months ago and forgot about them.

In the July 11 letter which informed him that his picture was awarded first prize in its category, Frank M. Hiteshew, publisher and editor of "Carte Blanche Magazine," advised Dr. Silver that he "will receive a trip for two to Japan via Japan Airlines with 10-day accommodations for two at the Tokyo Hilton. The trip and hotel stay will be available to you anytime during the period of October 1, 1967 to April 1, 1968. . . . Again, congratulations for your very fine photo, which the judges selected as the winner from among more than 1500 entries."

Dr. Silver is well-known locally for the many "arm chair travelogues" he has presented.

Ambassador Urges That U. S. Supply Arms To Israel As War Deterrent

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The United States should return to its former policy of supplying sufficient arms to Israel and the pro-Western Arab states to maintain a balance of military power, said Abraham Harman, Israel's Ambassador to this country, on Tuesday. He recommended, as a deterrent in the "one-sided arms race" developing in the Middle East, that the U.S. make arms shipments to Israel. Such shipments are informally frozen at present.

In the past, the United States has not been a major arms supplier to Israel, which has relied primarily on French weapons.

President Johnson said at a news conference on Tuesday that no progress had been made in obtaining agreement among the major arms suppliers on public registration with the United Nations of their arms shipments to Middle Eastern nations. He had advanced the proposal for such a public accounting on June 19 as a first step toward limiting arms shipments.

The proposal, the President said, was discussed with Premier Aleksei N. Kosygin at the summit meeting in Glassboro, N. J., but "as of now, there has been no agreement."

Mr. Harman endorsed the Johnson Administration's basic objective of reaching agreement with the Soviet Union and other arms suppliers on a limitation of military assistance and sales to nations in the Middle East. In the absence of any agreement, however, he said, the Soviet Union is "pouring back large quantities" of arms into the United Arab Republic and other Arab nations.

It is reported that since the end of the war the Soviet Union, either directly or through Algeria, has supplied about 100 MIG fighters and slightly more than 100 tanks to Egypt.

Mr. Herman said the United States should take steps to assure that arms shipments to the Middle East do not turn into "a one-way street." As "the need arises," he said, Israel should be "given the opportunity" to obtain arms from the United States "to maintain a minimum level of deterrent strength."

Although no decision has been made, State Department officials expect that the Administration will proceed with the sale, agreed upon last year, of two squadrons of 36 A-4 Skyhawk attack bombers to Israel. These are scheduled to be delivered late this year.

Reports from the Middle East indicate that the Soviet Union's massive rearmament policy may make Egypt a serious military threat to Israel within a year.

500 Arabs Petition To Be In Israel

TEL AVIV — A group of 500 Arab notables of the town of Bethlehem, in the territory south of Jerusalem, formerly held by Jordan and now occupied by Israel, has sent a petition to the Israeli military governor of the area asking that the town be incorporated into the municipal territory of Greater Jerusalem, which now includes the Old and New cities and the surrounding towns and villages.

When the limits of Greater Jerusalem were set, Bethlehem, a famed site since biblical and pre-biblical times, was not included.

In the petition, the Bethlehem group stressed that their request was based on social and economic reasons.

In other parts of the former Jordanian territory now occupied by Israel, full cooperation has been established between the Arab local authorities and the Israeli military governor with nearly all civic services restored to normal operation.

The military governor also indicated that local Arab police in the areas would soon be armed again to enable them to carry out their duties.

Moroccan Jews To Get Passports

CASABLANCA — The Moroccan Government ordered that passports be granted promptly to Jews who ask for them, after some applicants, particularly Jewish youth, reported difficulties in making applications.

Considerable fear was reported in the Casablanca Jewish community after the Jewish Community Center in Fez was the target of demonstrations against the Israeli victory.

Meanwhile, it was reported here that the Tunisian Government had given reassurances to the 20,000-member Tunisian Jewish community, some of whose members wanted to emigrate.

The Government reiterated warnings against attacks on Jews after 180 demonstrators set fire to the Tunis synagogue and Jewish-owned shops on June 5.

The demonstrators will be brought to trial and face a possible death penalty on conviction.

The Government also said that those responsible will have to make good the damages.

In another statement, the Government said, "No form of racism will be tolerated and we do not seek to exterminate the Jews."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Legal 'Guide To The Perplexed' Explains Re-Establishment Rights Of Israel

(A covering note accompanied the letter below, written by the senior partner of Dann, Rosenbaum, Bloom & Kaufman, a Detroit law firm. In it he writes of the great disservice Henry P. Van Dusen does "to the large majority of good Christian friends of Israel" by his letter to the editor in "The New York Times" of July 7. The letter "indicates the need to protect the public against half-truths and vicious misrepresentations, especially when made by a 'past president of the Union Theological Seminary.'" — Editor.)

To Readers of Jewish Herald

Re: Mid-East Misunderstandings
It is unfair for commentators to make 'drug store' diagnoses and analyses of highly complicated legal situations. In 1946 two legal authorities on International Law, Jacob Robinson & Benjamin Akzin, authored an extensive Brief, over 100 pages, on the legal rights that supported the re-establishment of Israel, alias Palestine, as a Jewish State. This Brief was filed with the U.N. in 1947.

Because of my legal experience and participation in connection with that Brief, the following is offered as a "Guide to the Perplexed." These rights may be briefly summarized as follows:

- (1) Right of Conquest.
- (2) Right of Purchase (at excessive prices).
- (3) Rights under United Nations Resolution of 1947, etc.
- (4) Rights under 1922 League of Nations Mandate.
- (5) Rights of Eminent Domain.

(6) Biblical rights from time immemorial (both Old and New Testaments).

A discussion of these rights do not readily lend themselves to brevity. No country in the world can establish all of these as a 6-way combination of its right to existence, one of which is sufficient.

THE PALESTINE MANDATE GAVE THE JEWISH PEOPLE THE POLITICAL RIGHT TO RE-ESTABLISH PALESTINE AS A JEWISH STATE. It was not a gift of land to Jews. It did not take away any land or homes from Arabs.

PALESTINE WAS NEVER IN ALL HISTORY AN INDEPENDENT ARAB STATE. It was at various times, from time immemorial, a Jewish State.

TRANS-JORDAN NEVER EXISTED AS A STATE PRIOR TO 1922. In 1922 Britain unlawfully carved out of Palestine, Trans-Jordan, alias Jordan, contrary to the fiduciary obligations she assumed as mandatory power "in" all of Palestine to establish all of Palestine as a Jewish State.

THE SAME PROMISES CONCERNING PALESTINE WERE NOT MADE TO BOTH JEWS & ARABS. In the 1920's the Arabs supported Britain's right to establish, outside of Palestine, 5 additional Arab States in the Middle East by her "right of conquest".

The Balfour Declaration, and later the League of Nations Mandates, specifically provided that all of Palestine, consisting of approximately 50,000 square miles, was intended to eventually become a Jewish State. At the same time, the same authorities established five additional Arab States outside of Palestine under the Mesopotamia & Damascus Mandates. This undivided area of approximately 1,200,000 square miles was established for the benefit of approximately 10 million roaming Arabs as part of the 4 million square miles of the Mid-East which extended from the Mediterranean Ocean to the Black Sea, an area larger than the United States. Prior thereto, the inhabitants of this area were all subjects of the Turkish Em-

Israeli Attorney Describes Plans For Integrating Arabs

(Mr. Feller, an Israeli attorney, wrote the following letter to his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Farber of Providence. Originally from Lwow, Poland, he went to Israel before World War II, learned Arabic and English so he could take the bar examinations there. His mother and sister were killed by the Nazis, and one of his brothers died after fighting with the Russian army. In the six-day recent war, his son and son-in-law came back safely from their armed service—Editor)

Well, the war which has been thrust upon us is already over, and I, so to say, being history minded, try, by comparison, to see in the events that took place and are taking place, daily before our eyes, one of the nicest and most interesting epochs in the history of our Nation.

On the surface, life is resuming its normal course as if nothing occurred. One is tempted to think that we had returned to a simple and uneventful life as it happened to be yesterday or the day before yesterday. Far from it. In fact the fundamentals of the old pattern had been rocked and a new challenging structure is being shaped.

The contact with people, whom you, a couple of days ago, considered to be your enemies, is in itself fascinating. Places that were but yesterday hermetically closed and fanatically guarded suddenly extend to you their invitation rendering a free and unobstructed passage. You do not believe your eyes. A familiar and menacing signpost suddenly disappeared.

It is our Government that should be credited with the change

Many Other Good Values
BUFFING & WAXING DONE

The Lyons Den
by Leonard Lyons

ROMANCE: When Ellsworth Bunker, our 72-year-old Ambassador to Vietnam, married Arthur Hornblow Jr., the producer, send wine back: "In fact, I once saw Arthur send back an orange-Julius."

STAR: I took Vivien Leigh to El Morocco one night, her first visit there since the night she'd opened on Broadway in "Romeo and Juliet," with Laurence Olivier. They'd been married only briefly then—a ceremony performed by a justice of the peace who, when he learned their names, pronounced them man and wife, then added "Bingo!"

"Something funny's going on at our house. Grandpa keeps telephoning Katmandu, Nepal, and keeps calling somebody there 'Darling' all the time."
PROJECT: Peter O'Toole was at the Ground Floor the other day, with his "Ski Bum" producer, Joe Levine. O'Toole has his own project, Brendan Behan's only novel, "The Scarpener." He acquired the film rights from Mrs. Behan, and Jack Hawkins will produce it. They worked on the script during a long cruise from England to Mexico.

She told me of a role she'd wanted and lost, Cathy in "Wuthering Heights." William Wyler signed Merle Oberon for Cathy, and offered Miss Leigh another part, urging: "You will never have a part like this offered to you again as long as you live." She turned him down.

O'Toole gave the briefest interview in the history of Mexican TV. He was asked about his immediate plans, and his reply referred to his tourist-stomach woes—just as he was cut off.

A few days later she told Wyler she'd accepted another role, Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind."

MUSIC: The photo of Leonard Bernstein and Isaac Stern performing at Mt. Scopus last weekend showed Prime Minister Ben-Gurion in the background. He last saw them perform together at the opening of the Fredric Mann Auditorium in Tel Aviv. That was when Mrs. Ben-Gurion nudged him, to point out Israel's President — asleep in his seat.

I visited them one day at Nutley Abbey, the estate endowed by Henry V. They improvised scenes, such as that of the moment when Henry took possession from the abbot. They named the animals on the estate after characters they'd played. "We're sure to know how old each animal is," she beamed, "because Larry and I can recall each role and the date."

Ben-Gurion replied: "And for this you wake me?"

Community Planning Committee Appointed

PRODUCER: Ray Stark, producer of "Funny Girl," was in Lindy's describing the hazards of period films: Barbra Streisand will be filming the Baltimore railroad station scene in Hoboken, N. J., because Hoboken's looks like a 1915 station. And in two weeks Hoboken is demolishing it.

Merrill L. Hassenfeld, past president of the General Jewish Committee, was named chairman of the GJC Community Planning Committee last week, to succeed Arthur J. Levy.

YOUTH: Liza Minnelli and her husband, Peter Allen, spent their last night in town at Arthur. They're off to tour Australia, for four weeks' work... Liza began the Lord's Prayer in deaf-mute language, taught her by Mia Farrow — who'd learned it for her role in "Johnny Belinda."

Others appointed to the committee are Max Alperin, Mrs. Bertram L. Bernhardt, Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen, Norman M. Fain, Stanley Grossman, Paul Leviner, Arthur J. Levy, Judge Frank Licht, Dr. Samuel Pritzker, Robert A. Riesman, Alexander Rumpel, Edwin Soforenko, Sheldon S. Sollosy and Max Winograd. Melvin L. Zurier and Joseph W. Ress are ex-officio members. Joseph Galkin is secretary, and Professor Sidney Goldstein, head of the Sociology Department at Brown University, is consultant.

Miss Minnelli mentioned her being compared to Streisand: "I adore Barbra. There is no similarity in our voices or style. If there were, I'd be jealous of her instead of being a fan."

The committee was set up to serve as a channel for cooperative community study, planning and action, and to coordinate the work of existing services, locate unmet needs, and, if indicated, provide services to meet these needs in the fields of health, welfare, and education.

MEMOS: Sir Alex Guinness was invited to the Moscow Film Festival. He declined with a letter explaining it was because he disapproved of Russia's Middle East position... Joe Pasternak's first film for 20th-Fox will be "The Sweet Ride," about the psychedelic age... Warner's will film "The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter" in N.Y.C... Josephine Baker has been signed to headline the Folies Bergere's 100th anniversary show.

The Community Planning Committee's aim is a better community through better planning.

News will be made by a 14-year-old, auditioning for "Henry, Sweet Henry"... Ely Landau, who produced "The Pawnbroker," is en route to Moscow to prepare his film production of "The Nutcracker"... Hannah Troy, the dress designer, soon will be a bride... James Michener's new novel will be set in Spain... Mrs. Yehudi Menuhin has written 15 verses to Saint-Saens' "Carnival." They'll be recorded.

At Grace Mansion's formal summer dinners the Mayor wears white jacket and black trousers, Commissioner Bud Palmer wears black jacket and white trousers... Consolidated Cigars will introduce the industry's first mentholated cigar... The Richard Burtons canceled their July 18 visit to N.Y... When Liberace appears at the Concord July 29, it will be the first Saturday night in Catskill history that a male will be more expensively dressed than any female.

In Hollywood . . .

By Barney Glazer

Producer-director Roger Corman will donate 25% of the profits from his movie "David and Goliath" to Israel. The top-budget film will be made in semi-documentary style. Corman made 20th-Fox's "The St. Valentine's Day Massacre," a good one.

ALEX Dreier's television editorial, "What Is a Jew?" heard originally here in Los Angeles, invited a quick demand for reshooting around the country. Feelings were mixed.

Some said they were thrilled. Others felt that it directed unwarranted attention to Jews, doing more harm than good. The latter opined that the message is of emotional strength for better use among our own to stir us into fund raising. Choose your side.

ACTOR Richard Harris should be in Israel by this reading. The star of Warner Bros. "Camelot" intends to make a documentary film about Israel's post-war life . . . A Boston travel columnist applied the old cliché, "Have we lost our sense of humor?" to justify his usage of sick jokes about the Israeli-Arab conflict. A better cliché for the gentleman's use, "There's a time and place for everything."

ROSALIE and Joseph E. Levine hosted the Hollywood premiere of Embassy's "Woman Times Seven" and looked every bit the handsome couple they are. The former Bostonians, who now live in New York but will never get their hometown out of their hearts, related that everytime they or their charming daughter are mentioned in this column, a dozen or so mishpocha always manage to mail them clippings.

Emcee Army Archerd, a handsome, talented young columnist for Daily Variety, introduced the stars, including: Jack Kruschen, wearing his "I Spy" goatee; Shirley MacLaine, who plays seven women in Levine's short-story type film; and Barbara Bain, Martin Landau, Agnes Moorehead, Stanley Baker, Mark Goddard, Susan Strasberg, Claudia Cardinale and others.

A sumptuous late supper followed at the Beverly Hills Hotel. Guests at our table included Miriam Hopkins and Ruth and Bob Goodfried. He's chief of Hollywood's Paramount publicity department and one of the most beloved executives in the industry. When Bob's son, Larry Goodfried, reads this in the Baltimore Jewish Times, he'll undoubtedly beam with justifiable pride, "That's my dad!"

DAVID COLLOFF, who participated with an assistant in the Hugh O'Brien Acting Awards at UCLA, won in his division. Paradoxically, Universal Studio handed out a contract, not to Colloff, the winner, but to his assistant, Cliff Potts, who wasn't even entered in the competition! Potts has been renamed Cliff Potter.

Colloff is a dedicated rabbinical student who consumedly wants to be a rabbi. At the same time, he wrote a musical show in collaboration with actor-pianist John Rubinstein, is continuing with his acting career, and if he gets a pending major movie role at 20th-Fox, may well be on the way to stardom.

It hasn't happened before — a combination of rabbi and movie star but it may well become a reality. In that event, the ultimate choice may prove a difficult one.

BARBRA STREISAND practically snarls when repeatedly baited with this question, "Don't you resent co-starring with an Arab?" That refers, of course, to Omar Sharif, who plays Nicky Arnstein to Barbra's Fanny Brice in Columbia's "Funny Girl." Barbra's reply is concise, no, she doesn't resent an Arabian co-star, Sharif is ever the gentleman, he treats her with dignity and she returns the attitude. What's more, he is further proof that the Jew and Arab can work in harmony.

USSR's Kosygin Cites Jewish Deputy Premier

NEW YORK — At the press conference preceding his departure from the United States, Soviet Premier Alexsei N. Kosygin answered a newsman's question about increased anti-Semitism in the USSR by making use of a device often favored by Russian officials: He said one of his own deputy premiers is a Jew.

Veniamin Emmanulovich Dymshits, 56, as one of nine deputy premiers is the highest-ranking Jew in the Soviet Government. He is in charge of the state committee on material and technical supply, and is often mentioned by Soviet officials who deny the existence of anti-Semitism in Russia.

Another Jew, Lazar M. Kaganovich, who had been deputy premier and also a member of the party's Politburo, was ousted by Nikita M. Khrushchev in 1957 for belonging to a so-called anti-party group, together with Molotov and Malenkov.

Not too many Jews have held important government posts in the Soviet Union, although many have distinguished themselves in the fields of science, art and economics.

Yevsei G. Liberman, architect of Russia's current economic program, and Lev Landau, a Nobel prize-winning physicist, are Jewish, and so are cellist Mstislav Rostropovich violinist David Oistrakh, pianist Emil Gilels and writer Ilya Ehrenburg.

The man who translated Kosygin's remarks during his recent visit in the United States, Viktor M. Sukhodrev, is also a Jew.

CAMP AT KIBBUTZ
 NEW YORK — The first kibbutz-based summer camp in Israel for Americans and Canadians, 13-15 years old, will open this summer. Israel Kibbutz Camp, at Kibbutz Geshar Haziv, on the Mediterranean, is co-sponsored by the Histadrut Foundation for Educational Travel and Habonim Labor Zionist Youth, which operates a network of nine summer camps in North America.

LIZ, RICHARD AID ISRAEL LONDON — More than 600 Jews and non-Jews of the entertainment world packed the Cafe Royal here and in 15 minutes raised a total of 300,000 pounds sterling ($840,000). Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton promised a gift of 200 pounds. Another rally, held in East London, brought 100 pounds in gifts that included wedding rings, and candy allowance from Jewish day school pupils.

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

An astute observer could read the minds of the various declarers after they each received a Club lead. A gint came into their eyes as the prospect of an extra trick outweighed the possibility of a disastrous switch defeating the hand. All but one declarer gambled and lost.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Roberts of Pawtucket were North and South, East dealer, no one vulnerable. The bidding:

The above bidding was very easy. Those who did not open the South hand One No Trump found that each partner had a problem thereafter but most pairs did reach the same contract and most received a low Club lead. This was Duplicate where an extra trick means so much, so the other Declarers decided that there was a good possibility that West had led away from the King and that the Queen would win the first trick. When they failed to play the Ace and East won with the King, they were now in danger. Most Easts had the right idea of how to continue the defense and switched to a Heart. The pairs who stuck to that suit eventually were able to score three Heart tricks and the Diamond Ace in addition to the trick already won and so set the Declarer.

Mrs. Roberts said to herself before playing to the first trick, "I am in a good contract and can guarantee nine tricks if I play the Club Ace for should the King be wrong, a Heart switch can ruin me." Following that thought, she won the first trick and knocked out the Diamond Ace. After East won that he did switch to the vital Heart suit but now it was too late. Declarer had her nine tricks.

I will agree that in Duplicate those who tried for the overtrick did have some reason for endangering their contract for they did have certain factors in their favor but in Rubber Bridge, never. However, this, as said before, was a good contract and even though this pair had no difficulty in reaching it, they felt that some pairs might get tangled up in their bidding so this Declarer settled for cash.

Moral: In bidding, always visualize future possibilities. When

SIR BARNETT STROSS DIES

LONDON — Sir Barnett Stross, a prominent Jewish physician and Parliamentary Secretary to the Health Ministry in the last Labor Government, died here at the age of 67. Born in Poland, Sir Barnett came to England after the First World War. As a physician, he was often called on to attend emergency cases by his colleagues in Parliament.

He did not seek reelection to Parliament at the last election because of his falling health. He was honored by the Czech Government because of his efforts in the rebuilding of the Czech town of Lidice which had been destroyed by the Nazis early in the Second World War.

YEARN TO RETIRE ABROAD? A REPORT ON FRANCE, SPAIN

ALL SORTS of people are wanting information about retiring to some of the glamor countries of Western Europe. Can they do it? Can they continue getting the American money due them? Will they like it?

In brief, they can do it. They can get their money. And they will like it if they like that sort of thing. The normal, red, white and blue American wouldn't like that sort of thing.

Here is a first-hand report, with some personal observations, on two of the more glamorous of the countries—France and Spain.

Hundreds of Americans are now retired to these two countries, most of them maintaining their American citizenship. The international mechanics of arranging such a life aren't difficult. These people as a rule are having no trouble getting their American Social Security checks, pension and dividend checks, and other mail they would normally get back home.

They are liking it if: (1) they genuinely love France and Spain and their people; or (2) they are snobs and are finding ways to show off their snobbery not to natives but to other Americans; or (3) they have family roots in the ground, such as being children or grandchildren of people who lived there.

Most Americans do not fit these three situations and thus are finding no lasting happiness on foreign soil . . . as a rule.

If they speak the native language well they are likely to be fairly happy for a while. If they don't they are in a ridiculous situation—they can't even find anybody to fish or play bridge with. In either case they gravitate toward their own tongue in the community, first the Americans and then the English. The Americans on the scene usually have already pulled themselves into a private enclave and drawn the curtain on the natives. The English are friendly, unless there are a lot of them.

In the better cities of France and Spain, the better-class men wear suits, collars and tie. The women wear clothes pretty much as Americans do. The farther away you get from these cities the more informal things become. In Southern France (not the Riviera) and Northern Spain, for instance, men wear sandals without socks, cheap slacks, and sport shirts for everything but weddings and funerals. Women wear sandals, no hose, casual dresses, and something underneath, but not much.

Social intercourse is largely public instead of private, with families gathering at parks in the evening to talk, smoke, and sip local soft drinks. It starts getting late about 10 P.M.

To most retiring Americans, Ft. Dodge, Ia., and Acworth, Ga., would be a better bet.

'The End Of The Jewish People?'

The weakening of religious belief of native-born Israelis and of Jews elsewhere in the world where assimilation is common may eventually lead to the end of the Jewish people, according to a distinguished French sociologist, Georges Friedmann. His recent study of the Israeli state makes a sharp differentiation between Jews and Israelis, who are, he says, a new breed, pragmatic, technically-minded, forward looking. They are without the anxieties and the unease that characterized their parents, he writes, and "with few exceptions they possess little of the ascetic, idealistic and motivating force that drove the early pioneers of the communal settlements—institutions that remain even today one of the unique achievements of Israel life."

They are not without devotion and dedication to Israel, but they want a modern, successful, industrial state and a "normal" life. They distrust ideologies, and are impatient with "socialistic paths" and "Talmudic quibbling." Most of them resent the interference of religious orthodoxy in their political and social relationships. They cannot and do not share the ideals of the pioneers in Israel, who found spiritual values in returning to the soil and visualized the rejuvenation of the Jewish people through manual labor. Author Friedmann says that they are the creation of a secular state, and are primarily Israelis rather than Jews.

The high losses in Western countries where there are comparatively few restrictions are quoted also: he says that 70 per cent of the children of a mixed marriage are lost to the Jewish community, and that religious practice is weak even though synagogue membership is high. Where Jewish communities are most free, they are becoming least Jewish, according to this estimate.

The sharp differentiation between Israelis and Jews made by Mr. Friedmann is disturbing, as is his description of the Israeli spirit, and the conclusion which he seems to find inescapable, that Israel may flourish but without the faith on which she was founded. He writes of the hardening of the country into a modern nationalistic state. When Israel's existence has been so recently at stake, and is far from being assured, the sociologist's concern may seem untimely, yet it is her continued existence as a Jewish state that he sadly questions. If he is right in his analysis, some means of reversing the trend must be found, both in the United States and in Israel.

Uncle Hymie And Best-Sellers

Writing successful books has its humorous and rewarding aspects far beyond the royalties you receive. It establishes a relationship among friends and relatives that is sui generis. Or as a famous novelist more simply put it once: "Woe to the writer who has a brother who wants to write a book."

All relatives, of course, are not that ambitious. Take my Uncle Hymie, now in his seventy-third year. For over forty years, or as long as he has been reading English, Uncle Hymie only read the house organ of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union. He was an official of that organization before his retirement six years ago. He kept up with the news of the world in the Yiddish press, Uncle Hymie being among the last of that vanishing breed who were stalwarts of the Yiddish press, theatre and literature.

But ever since I wrote "Only in America," Uncle Hymie reads with consuming interest the Book Review sections of the entire metropolitan press, including the Saturday Review.

"How come," he asks me, "Dutton has run four ads on four successive Sundays and your publisher has only run one?" Uncle Hymie is now thoroughly conversant with the publishing trade jargon and with every publisher's spring and fall list. He regards each publisher as a personal threat to me, his nephew, and to him, my uncle.

"I don't know why they gave Vance Packard such a good review," he will tell me, or "Read one Herman Wouk, you've read them all." His voice on these occasions sounds shaky, as though Vance Packard and Herman Wouk were pointing separate pistols at our joint heads.

And he watches those best-seller lists like an eagle. If a book of mine has a short stay on that list, Uncle Hymie acts as though I had offered him a mortal affront, as though I, personally, were the cause for his mortification! When I meet him he is diplomatic on the subject, but the concern is there.

Nor is he above offering post-mortem advice. "I don't think you should have included that story about Southern politics," he says. "It hurt sales. It didn't do us any good."

Over and above these admonitions is Uncle Hymie's constant expectation and trepidation. He is worried about other publishers, other writers, all reviewers and always the next book.

"Tell me," says Uncle Hymie, "I see where Random House and Knopf have some fine non-fiction coming out. How do you think we'll do this year?" (Copyright 1967 by Harry Golden, Distributed by Bell-McClure Syndicate)

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

HEALTH RESEARCH AS AN INVESTMENT

Life expectancy in the U.S. has doubled during the past century. Our infant mortality rate has been slashed in half in the past 30 years. Polio has all but disappeared from our catalogue of dread diseases. Artificial kidneys are now in use, soon will be joined by artificial hearts.

These are just a sampling of the glowing facts with which President Johnson roused an audience of young people to a pitch of applause in Baltimore a fortnight ago. Add to them the fact that medical researchers have made more progress against heart disease in the past 15 years than in all previous recorded history; that the death rate from hypertension has been slashed by 46 per cent in just one decade; that nearly 1,500,000 Americans, victims of formerly fatal cancer are now leading productive lives; that successful new treatments have reduced the number of patients in state mental institutions by a dramatic 100,000 in 10 years alone.

Impressive? Yes, says Dr. Michael De Bakey, Houston's famous medical researcher and pioneer in the surgical treatment of diseases of the heart and arteries, "but the job has just begun. We still do not know, for example, why the heart beats, why some cells grow wild, or why some babies are born deformed. . . . We do not even understand fully the mechanism or relief of pain by one of the oldest and most widely used drugs, aspirin."

The danger is that the strides we have made in the quality of medical care will obscure the still enormous way we have to go, De Bakey argues. The even greater danger is that the well-publicized advances are leading to the naive notion that our medical researchers are loaded with funds and are squandering much of the money on dubious research projects.

What are the facts? Federal spending for medical research has jumped 50-fold since the post-World War II period to $1.5 billion in 1967. But total federal spending in 1947 was an insignificant $27 million, and thus the huge percentage increase simply reflects the appalling fact that we spent almost nothing before.

Today, 15,000,000 Americans suffer from heart disease; but the National Heart Institute's entire budget for research on heart disease is a scant $122 million a year. Hypertension now afflicts 17,000,000 American adults; but the Institute's total spending for research into its cause is a tiny $9 million a year.

Despite increases in federal funds for medical research, one out of every two applications to the National Institutes of Health for research grants is rejected, many solely because funds are lacking. In the 1967 fiscal year, 2,834 approved grant applications had to be held up for lack of funds.

Despite headline after headline boasting of our great medical advances, we stand 10th in the list of nations in the prevention of infant death, 14th in our death rate from diabetes, 13th in our death rate from heart disease.

What return could we, as individuals and as a nation, reasonably expect from a much bolder investment in basic medical research and in a much broader application of our present knowledge?

Outside of any humanitarian consideration, recent cost-effectiveness studies have concluded that every additional $1 spent on arthritis research and diagnosis would bring an extra $38 to the nation's economy, primarily in added income resulting from longer and more productive lives of 13,000,000 patients. Every extra $1 invested in early detection of uterine cancer would bring "savings" amounting to $9.

Prevention of disease is far more economical than treatment. Warns Dr. De Bakey: "Like the risk of executing an innocent man, the risk of bypassing a worthy research project is too great for our society to afford."

pire. It is the least populated area in the world.

CIVIL AND POLITICAL RIGHTS. The Balfour Declaration is important only because it was incorporated by reference in the Palestine Mandate. This League of Nations Mandate was agreed to by all the countries of the world, including the vanquished Turkish Empire, of which Palestine and the other areas of the Mid-East was then a part. Since the United States was not a member of the League of Nations it was approved and adopted in 1924 by a Joint Resolution of Congress.

The benefits and purposes of the Palestine Mandate were also agreed to by the Arab peoples of the Mid-East via a "mutual assistance pact" entered into between King Fezal in behalf of the Arabs, and Mr. Weitzman in behalf of the Jewish people. This "mutual assistance pact" is also referred to as the "Fezal-Weitzman Agreement".

Under the Fezal-Weitzman Agreements it was agreed that the Jews and Arabs would assist each other to establish additional Arab National Homelands (Lebanon, Syria, Saudia Arabia, Iraq and Yemen), in the area of 1,200,000 square miles outside of Palestine, in return for which the Arabs agreed to assist the Jewish people to re-establish Palestine (consisting mainly of slums) in 50,000 square miles, both Cis and Trans-Jordan, as their Jewish National Homeland, in keeping with "Jewish Zionist Aspirations" - The Judenstat - The Jewish State.

ZIONISM: was a movement to re-establish Palestine as a Jewish State.

A Zionist is anyone who supports that "Movement" - be he Jew or non-Jew. Every U.S. President since 1920 was a Zionist.

Not an inch of land was taken from any Arab in Palestine under the Palestine Mandate. This Mandate merely gave the Jewish people the naked political right to re-establish all of Palestine as a Jewish State. Jews paid a high price for every inch of land they bought from the Arabs, in pursuance thereof.

EMINENT DOMAIN, Under the doctrine of Eminent Domain, it is the greatest good for the greatest number that controls, not any individual inconvenience.

The foregoing arrangement was considered eminently fair to all the Arab People as a whole, because in addition to the many then-existing Arab States, the Arabs as a whole people (including those in Palestine) were given an added 5 Arab States in 1,200,000 square miles for the benefit of approximately 10 million Arabs, where they could go, as compared to only the political inconvenience that might result to the comparatively few Arabs who chose to remain in Palestine . . . where their civil and religious rights were protected.

The Palestine Mandate specifically provided that those Arabs who remained in Palestine could do so, with full protection of their civil and religious rights. Their political rights were deliberately excluded and expressly given to the Jews. The Arabs could keep or sell their homes as they chose. (Comparable civil, property and religious rights were not guaranteed under the Mesopotamia Mandates to the Jews then living in the Arab areas of the Middle East. Jews eventually had to abandon their property in these Arab States and flee to Israel to save their lives.)

The great number of Arabs in the Middle East who gained and received five additional Arab States in an area of over 1,200,000 square miles, more than compensated for the comparatively few who remained or left Palestine since 1922, or who may have been inconvenienced politically.

RIGHT OF CONQUEST. Many countries, including the United States, Britain, France, Russia, et al hold areas of land by "right of conquest".

Those Arab countries outside of Palestine were never, at any time, given any rights to any areas of Palestine which they now claim the right to regain and hold, by "right of conquest" in the war they declared on Israel and the U.N. Resolution in 1947.

The Allies, being the victors in World War I, had the right to dispose of the land and political rights to 50,000 square miles of Palestine to the Jews, just as they had the right to dispose of the far greater 1,200,000 square miles (land and air) to the Arabs, because of the recognized principle of Common and International Law that "To the victor belongs the spoils".

It is by this same right of conquest that Jordan crossed the Jordan River in 1948 and invaded the Cis Jordan area and took possession of Old Jerusalem and other areas this side of the Jordan, which she has held contrary to the 1947 U.N. Resolution since 1948.

Egypt likewise invaded Palestine in 1948 and took possession of the Gaza area of Palestine. Egypt claimed the right to hold Gaza by the same "right of conquest," which same right she now denies to Israel.

CONTINUED POSSESSION AND ADMINISTRATION BY ISRAEL of all the areas now occupied by her is the only real and practical assurance Israel can rely upon for continued peace. Experience of the past establishes that she cannot rely upon promises, tri-partite agreements, idle gestures or threats as a substitute.

Prior to June 5th, Israel had no extra-territorial designs, but this is not inconsistent with her present right to retain all the spoils of victory and profits of war illegally and immorally imposed upon her by her enemies. To hold otherwise would encourage and permit aggressors to attack with impunity.

Arab "refugees" regardless of Arab nations' guilt in their creation (in their creation and/or continuation) must not be returned to their previous frustrating existence. Arab countries for 20 years refused to admit or rehabilitate them and kept them in concentration type of refugee camps at the expense primarily of the U.S. Therefore, the only logical solution of this problem is for Israel to promptly make entire Sinai and Gaza areas a province of Israel with limited representation in Knesseth and political rights presently, but eventual extension as conditions justify.

As part of the rehabilitation program, these refugees should

Jews Contribute $5,000 For Arabs, Other DPs

NEW YORK — The American Council for Judaism Philanthropic Fund announced it had contributed $5,000 for Arab refugees and newly displaced persons in the Middle East. The gift was presented to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency, which is seeking aid for victims of the recent war between Israel and Arab countries.

The fund also made a gift of $5,000 to the Shaare Zedek Hospital in Jerusalem. Charles J. Tanenbaum, president of the fund, said facilities of the 300-bed Orthodox hospital had been over-taxed by casualties from both sides.

Another official of the council, an anti-Zionist organization, said it was not the first time the council had made gifts to Arab refugees or the hospital. The philanthropic fund was established in 1955 to aid Jews and non-Jews.

UAR GENERALS

TEL AVIV—A pledge by President Nasser was partially fulfilled when two Egyptian generals reached Tel Aviv, as promised by the Egyptian President, but not quite in the manner he planned it. The two generals, captured last month, were taken to Israel's largest city as prisoners of war and under guard. They visited a Tel Aviv cafe and chatted with their escorts while watching the Saturday night crowds on Dizengoff Square.

URGES N. Y. REPEAL
NEW YORK—Torah Umso-rah recently appealed to delegates at the New York State Constitutional Convention to repeal the "Blaine Amendment" in order "to shatter the unholy principle of discrimination against nearly 1,000,000 children" in non-public schools in the state. Hello Again!

Sports News By Warren Walden

HOW?—And that's what the Indian said and it's what I'm asking now while referring to populations of cities represented in the major baseball leagues. Cincinnati was considered the smallest big league town for a number of years. Now, how does Cincinnati stand? Has it lost its distinction as the smallest? Is it bigger than Kansas City that lists a population of 475,539 in Missouri, which is smaller than 502,550 tabulated for Cincinnati? Or should Kansas City, Kansas, be added to Kansas City, Missouri? If so, add 121,901 and K.C. will be bigger than Cincinnati.

HOW ABOUT MINNESOTA? The population of Minneapolis is 482,872 which is smaller than Cincinnati. And the population of St. Paul is 313,411 and that is also smaller than the Redleg town—but add the Minneapolis and St. Paul figures and you'll have 796,283 and you know that the Twins represent two cities and are called Minnesota which you also know is a State and not a City.

CONSIDER ATLANTA—There's a population of 487,455 which is smaller than the Cincinnati total. And so it seems that after all these years, the Redlegs have lost the distinction of representing the smallest city in the big leagues. Ah yes. But look at some of the other records for Cincinnati! The first professional baseball club was there in 1869 and the first "ladies day" was held there in 1876! The Reds were the first club to option a player to the minors in 1887; they were the first to have a farm system in 1895; they were the first to travel by air in 1934; they were the first team to play a championship game at night in 1935; they were the first team to participate in a televised game in 1938; and they are charter members of the National League!

MORE ON CINCI—Crosley

Field, formerly Redland Park, has been a pro baseball home since 1884. It was there that Tony Mullane pitched a game in ambidextrous fashion using both arms; and it was there that Bid McPhee was the last major leaguer to give up playing without a glove; (Yes, bare-handed) and it was there that the Reds won their first pennant and followed it up by beating the "Black Sox;" and it was there that Fred Tony pitched a 10-inning no-hitter in a game in which Jim Vaughn of the Cubs pitched a nine inning no-hitter; and it was there that Johnny Vander Meer pitched successive no-hitters; and it was also at Redland Park that the great Christy Mathewson managed the Cincinnati team in 1917 and started building the 1919 champions! And now! There! There are skeletons in everyone's closet.

I CAN ROW A BOAT—Can Oo?—Bob Elliot in the Herald-Traveler says Canoeing on the Allagash is a rare experience. Anybody ever tell you about canoeing on the Pawtuxet or from Barstow's on the Ten Mile? . . . Or have you ever heard of Kirwin's Beach? (tsk tsk) . . . Lee Taylor, holder of the water-speed record, predicts a 600 M.P.H. speedboat. He averaged 285.21 miles an hour. Wonder if he's related to the Lee Taylor who played on the Worcester team with Jigger Higgins when roller polo was in flower? . . . Speaking of speed, you can witness demonstrations that rival the GRAND PRIX at the junction of Fruit Hill and Olney Avenues in North Providence; also on dead-end Belcourt Avenue when Police are not looking.

BOW WOW—They're expecting 2696 entrants at the International Dog Show in Chicago tomorrow and Sunday! . . . You may not be aware of it but Doty Fothergill, a North Attleboro Miss, is sensational on the ten pin lanes. She holds the second highest Professional Women's Bowling Association average in the country . . . (And right in your own back yard, too, m'goodness) . . . Baseball thrills—Gabby Hartnett's homer in the twilight to give the Cubs the pennant just seconds before the game would have been called because of darkness . . . Youth is not a time of life; it is a state of mind! CARRY ON!

Israeli Frogmen Struck At Egypt

TEL AVIV—The important role played by Israeli frogman commandos in the Arab-Israeli war is now being acknowledged as further details of their exploits are revealed.

Led by 43-year-old Yochai Bin-Nun, former, Commander-in-Chief of Israel's Navy, the commandos attacked Egyptian naval installations with efficiency and swiftness.

They destroyed all but two of Egypt's submarines as well as the dangerous flotilla of fast, missile-carrying patrol boats, by the use of mines. Apparently not a single Egyptian vessel succeeded in firing a shot, it was reported by the "London Sunday Times."

Before the eruption of hostilities on June 5, Egypt owned at least 10 former Soviet patrol boats, each equipped with two 15 mile sea-to-ground missiles, and more than 40 motor torpedo boats which might have played a major tactical part in the Sinai campaign at El Arish and other locations.

By eliminating Egypt's naval force, the frogman commandos relieved Israeli ground troops of one of their principal worries, since the small size of Egyptian vessels and their maneuverability would have made it difficult to hit them from the air. Israel's long coastline and slim hinterland would have been easy targets for rocket attacks from the sea.

Yochai Bin-Nun took charge of the secret marine troops in January, 1966. While the official version of his post was that of director-general of the Government oceanography agency, no one in Israel believed that the best-known military man after Moshe Dayan was devoting himself exclusively to academic research.

He had been experimenting in secret with a new commando operation using both frogmen and paratroopers, as well as submarines and landing craft.

He has stated that by the use of conventional tactics alone, Israel's fleet could not hope to compete with the larger and more modern Egyptian Navy, but Egyptian intelligence obviously ignored these remarks, since President Nassar's naval forces turned out to be completely unprotected against frogmen.

Only two Egyptian submarines were spotted by the Israelis after June 5, and the fate of Egypt's six destroyers is unknown.

For And About Teenagers

THE WEEK'S LETTER: I am 13 years old and the boy I like is 15 and will be 16 this year. All of my girlfriends, and boys as well, want us to go steady. Is he too old for me? Do you think he and I should go together? He said he likes me and I like him. What am I to do? I'm new at this school. There are lots of boys trying to get in with me. He is one. Who am I to go with? I like him better than I do any of the rest. Do you think he and I are meant for each other? Please give me a reply.

OUR REPLY: At both your ages, you are definitely not meant for each other. It should be many years for each of you before you find your "one and only".

Our recommendation is that you do not go steady with any boy — until you are older. If you like this boy best, tell him so, but let him know that you expect to have other friends as well.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

be employed in various development projects, viz: building roads; desalination, irrigation and tree planting projects; implementation of Lowdermilk Plan; and widening, deepening and dredging of Jordan River; building of houses and O.R.T. type schools; building of Suez type canal from El Arish to Elath, etc. The annual cost over the next 20 years will be less than Israel has spent in defending themselves against this potential danger and what the U.S. has spent to keep them idling away in refugee camps. Above all, it will rehabilitate these Arabs and restore their self-respect, for which there is no prospect in returning them to their "former status quo" — which would only lead to another war.

CONCLUSION. The Brief referred to analyzed the important words of every relevant document. The conclusions reached by this lengthy Brief are supported by legal authorities and justified by the record. This record clearly establishes that there were no "similar" legal rights or promises to both Jews and Arabs as far as the area of Palestine was concerned.

large it imposed upon its shoulders.

Hardly a fortnight passed since the war ended and the victors treat the Arabs as if they were devoted and good citizens longing to live under Israeli rule. We are providing them with all the facilities necessary for a civilized life, we allow them freely move without fear and molestation. The Government set up a commission with the task of preparing housing projects for the refugees, I can assure you that in the next future a substantial part of them will live in houses they never dreamt of.

Our Bar Association granted the Arab Lawyers a period of grace for two years for the usual exams. In other words such a Lawyer is entitled to practice law immediately so as not to lose his clients.

Hundreds of other small things are done for our neighbours that are not so typical for victors.

Therefore, we did not worry so much about the outcome of the diplomatic battle at the United Nations. No one could compell us to act against our vital interests again to subject ourselves to sabotage and murderous attacks of guerilla warfare. We do not intend to surrender a square meter of the occupied land, unless the Arabs are ready to sit down with us round a table, tresh out all the problems and conclude a lasting peace for the benefit of all parties concerned.

Of course, we are thankful to your Government for its firm and unequivocal stand at the United Nations and the help it extended to us in reaching the resolutions. I think, that the United States have a magnitude of interest in the Middle East. Therefore they are also interested to have here a strong and prosperous Israel. To gain a foothold in Southeast Asia,

In releasing statistics today on the first year of operation, Arthur F. Hanley, Blue Cross executive director, said that the local health plans paid a total of 105,809 Medicare claims for the nearly 100,000 Rhode Islanders enrolled in the government program.

More than $12,300,000 was spent for 18,083 in-patient hospital claims, $3,318,295 for 67,697 claims for doctors' services, $251,745 for 8,083 Home Health Agency claims, $105,552 for 11,620 hospital out-patient claims and $85,191 for 326 claims for extended care facility services, which have been available only since Jan. 1. More than 72,000 claims were processed which resulted in no payment. . . mainly cases where the patient had not met the Medicare deductible.

Shai Tadmor Returns

Prina Tadmor, also a sabra, thought it was wonderful that he wanted to go and finally could . . . and wished she could join her husband. Her mother, Mrs. Nechama Spivak of Tel Aviv, returned with him for a visit here. She tells about the women-baker mother one of them who baked cakes in the thousands and distributed them to the soldiers.

"Those energetic ladies did this, and it was dangerous for them," said Mrs. Tadmor, whose nephew worked seven days a week distributing milk, collecting garbage, and doing other jobs — like other boys too young to fight, but they kept vital services going during the emergency.

"It was like a one-man nation . . . not only the army but the citizens, everyone did his share calmly, carefully." There was a saying, "The whole nation is the army and all the land is the front" and this was true. By contrast, friends in Tiberias wrote that they found "poor Arab soldiers chained to their tanks" to make sure they would fight, while their Egyptian officers had run away. Israeli casualty lists were "small but dear . . . you see many officers among them. They are always in front." During the 1948 war Shai Tadmor was a seren in the Israeli army, a rank comparable to that of captain in our army.

SUMMER SAFETY

Boats are great fun, but . . .

Each summer brings its share of needless accidents and tragedies on our beautiful Narragansett Bay and inland waterways. Live to enjoy your boat by observing a few rules of safety.

1. Don't go boating alone. Be sure that at least one person in the boat is fairly expert in handling it.
2. If your boat needs frequent bailing, stay close to shore or keep it at the dock.
3. Don't overcrowd a small boat. One splashing wave or sudden movement can spell disaster.
4. If you must boat alone, WEAR your life jacket.
5. If your boat capsizes, stay with it. It's safer than attempting a long swim to shore.
6. Don't start your outboard engine without clearing gas fumes. Ventilate inboard engine compartments before starting, too.
7. Carry at least one bucket on a lanyard for bailing and as a fire extinguisher.
8. Every powered boat should carry at least one fire extinguisher in good working order near the engine area.
9. Always inform someone on shore just where you expect to cruise, and when you expect to return.
10. Keep alert. Clear swimmers and other boats by a safe margin.
11. Don't speed in rough waters, "buzz" other boats, or cut across the bow of a larger craft for sport.
12. Carry a bell, horn or noisemaker for fog and distress signals.

"Numbers did not count and will less count in the future. It's a matter of equipment." Early this year, speaking of the War for Independence, he had characterized it as almost a primitive war, both in Israel's weaponry and in the enemy she faced. This war, however, was "in many respects a James Bond war. The surprise was not on our side so we had to plan it in very special ways."

The whole thing seems like a dream, the war, the volunteers, the unification of Jerusalem, where he wandered through the streets and saw the Holy Places, even visiting mosques. Drinking Turkish coffee near Rachel's tomb, an Arab of Bethlehem spoke with him. The Arab's Hebrew wasn't very good, but another Arab nearby said, "Don't worry. He'll soon talk it very well." And when an Israeli jet went by overhead, when he was in Jericho, an Arab commented, "It's one of ours."

"I felt it was a question of my own obligation to myself — and the Center gave me its blessing," said Shai Tadmor of his trip "I went with the intention to do whatever is needed. It was, shall we say, a planned miracle that it happened so fast. It's good that it ended fast, and that we accomplished whatever we were trying to accomplish. There was no great need for me to stay any longer."

The Arabs of the West bank of the Jordan (now called Ha Gadah) are people who want to till their soil or carry on their business, he found. They are unlike the refugees who have been "planted with seeds of hatred" in the sterile, dreary camps, but these should be brought from their mud huts, he believes, and put on good land with the opportunity to make a livelihood, to have something to build for, to feel they belong. The vineyards and rich land of Hebron are still fruitful, grow large, juicy grapes, like those carried to Moses on a staff between two men.

Both with refugees and with prisoners of war, Israel was trying to demonstrate her way of life. "These prisoners will be our ambassadors, and if they're treated well, will spread the news that Israel is good."

Other ambassadors will be the volunteers, it is hoped, some 20% of them from the United States. Now that most immigrants to Israel are no longer under pressure but can come with their assets and be part of the economy rather than a burden upon it, new and greater prosperity is hoped for.

Mr. Tadmor, a teacher at the Temple Emanu-El Religious School, mentioned the attitude of Israelis toward the Jewry of the world: they appreciate, and feel it is very important, that such great financial aid has been given to Israel, and such effective public pressure exerted, especially by the Jews of the United States. Mrs. Tadmor sent copies of petitions signed and forwarded to Senators Pastore and Pell, which "brought results. Public opinion was rather strong."

The general feeling, which he thinks will prevail after the mistakes of 1956, is that the nation's security must not be endangered by giving back territory which served as a base for menacing Israel. The U. N. building, he noted, will be rented to the United Nations. Other scattered impressions include the sight of Arabs entering the new city of Jerusalem, where they stood and clapped when the traffic lights changed. (The Old City had no signal lights.) The Arab countries were flooded with goods from Red China; a Russian bayonet brought to him from Sinai had the red star erased. Russian vehicles were very low and got stuck in the sand.

There was no scarcity of anything but cigarettes during the first few days after the war, and the attention to detail of the Israeli planners was marvellous. The Chief Rabbi of the Army made sure that everything was done properly and himself inspected, paying attention even to small details like overlapping signs at a monument.

During the Center's camp program this summer, Mr. Tadmor "will bring to the attention of our campers what happened in Israel, the war, slides and stories... and so will share them." The Jerusalem Y, now almost completed, is being helped by the Center here, which feels it is a bridge between Jews all over the world. A considerable sum has been pledged in its support, which is being collected. More will be collected during the camp season, to fulfill the pledge, he said, and added that there is now the feeling that every Jew in the world can contribute in one way or another to Israel.
