Palestinian Leader Asks Jordan For West Bank Autonomy Now

JERUSALEM — Hamid Canaan, one of the most influential Arab leaders of the Palestinian West Bank, has publicly renounced any wish to return to Jordanian rule. He challenged King Hussein to grant legal autonomy to the west bank even before the Israeli occupation ends.

In a signed statement, distributed to Arab newsmen this week and published in the East Jerusalem Arabic newspaper Al Quds, Mr. Canaan took bitter exception to the King's public promises to "re-examine" the future status of the west bank after an Israeli withdrawal in a general peace settlement.

"Why after liberation?" said Mr. Canaan, a former mayor of Nablus. "Why shouldn't Hussein right now, in advance of the end of the occupation, amend the Constitution of Jordan, adding a clause giving Palestine the right of autonomy, with the west bank and the east bank united in a federation, not a mere annexation?"

"The people here are very much concerned about what will happen after the Israeli withdrawal. They don't want the catastrophic rule they endured before the six-day war. They remember what the former unity was like.

"We are not begging for autonomy; it is our right, and we insist upon it," Mr. Canaan said. "We will accept no other solution at all."

This was one of the strongest signed statements of Palestinian self-determination to emerge from the occupied territories since the six-day war of June, 1967. It signaled a willingness by a Palestinian notable to come out in public with some of the sentiments that up to now, for fear or reprisals, have been expressed only in private.

Along with Mr. Canaan's

Accept Compensation To Change Race Date

TEL AVIV — The promoters of an international automobile race in Ashkelon accepted "compensation" in the amount of nearly $60,000 to reschedule the contest thereby meeting the demands of religious zealots who had threatened mass demonstrations against "desecration" of the Sabbath.

The deal, which is already being widely criticized in Israel as a "pay off," was negotiated by Mayor Oved Men Aml of Nathanya, who offered his services as mediator to his colleague, Mayor Rahavia Adivi of Ashkelon. Major Ben Aml said he couldn't conceive of world-wide television carrying the spectacle of Orthodox Jews in prayer shawls walling in the streets of Ashkelon, an image reminiscent of the Nazi era in Europe.

The money, apparently raised in Orthodox quarters, compensates the sponsors of the race for the loss incurred by holding it on Sunday, an ordinary working day in Israel.

Only 10,000 of the expected 50,000 spectators showed up. Thousands of ticketholders demanded refunds when the rescheduling was announced.

statement. Al Quds published an editorial by one of its regular columnists in an even sharper tone, arguing that if Jordan and the United Arab Republic accepted the principle of negotiating with Israel, why should not the Palestinians themselves have the right to make their own arrangements with Israel?

Al Quds has been a catalyst recently for independent political expression among intellectuals and notables in the occupied territories, against the criticism and discouragement of other Arab governments, the Palestinian guerrilla organizations and the Israeli occupation regime.

Some local groups, which have not yet been willing to surface publicly, go further than Mr. Canaan in demanding total independence from both Israel and Jordan, with a United Nations trusteeship over the west bank and Gaza Strip during an interim period in preparation for a Palestinian plebiscite.

King Hussein was asked about the possibility of a Palestinian state in an interview with the Sunday Times of London. It was the reports of his reply that seemed to spur Mr. Canaan's anger:

"The future of the west bank and of the Palestinians can transpire only after and not before a general settlement along the lines of the 1967 Security Council resolution," King Hussein told his British interviewer. "Once that has been fully implemented, then we can re-examine the whole question, excluding nothing, even the possibility of the separation of the west bank from Jordan."

For the moment, the King went on, Palestine is under total occupation and there is no real way for the Palestinian people to exercise their right of self-determination.

Jordanian, Palestinian Spokesmen Reject Canaan's West Bank Idea

AMMAN, Jordan — Spokesmen for the Jordanian Government and the Palestinian guerrillas, in separate statements this week, rejected a proposal that the west-bank area of Jordan be granted autonomy while under Israeli occupation.

The idea was put forward in Al-Quds, a Jerusalem Arabic-language newspaper, by Hamid Canaan, a former Mayor of the west-bank town of Nablus.

A Jordanian Government spokesman said that "the nature of the battle (with Israel) and the Israeli challenge make this impossible."

The spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization, the over-all guerrilla group, commented, "Any idea of a scarred puppet entity that might be discussed or thought about will be resisted and rejected by the resistance movement."

The commandos hope to destroy Israel and establish a new nation comprising all of what was British-mandated Palestine.

Both commando and Jordanian government officials contended that there was little or no support for Mr. Canaan's idea, although some Palestinian moderates said it was their impression that such ideas had gained some backing on the west bank since the Jordanian civil war in September between the Jordanian Army and the guerrillas.

Both Jordanian officials and commando executives belittled Mr. Canaan in conversations this week. "He's an upper-middle-class mediocrity," one official exclaimed. An influential executive of the Palestine Liberation Organization commented, "He couldn't form a group of 50 people to support his ideas."

At the Palestine Liberation organization's information office here, a spokesman, identified as Ahmed, made this comment on Mr. Canaan's ideas:

"Our reaction is emanating from the reactions and the stands that we have taken before. Our

Negotiations To Be Delayed

Premier Meir Tells Her Cabinet Additional Clarification Needed

JERUSALEM — Israel's Premier, Mrs. Golda Meir, told her Cabinet Sunday that additional clarification of United States commitments would be required from President Nixon before Israel could agree to resume peace talks with the United Arab Republic.

She appeared to regard the assurances given by the President in a letter delivered last week as falling short of Israel's demands. A Cabinet spokesman said a decision on the negotiations is expected to be delayed at least two more weeks.

Officials said that Mrs. Meir was pressing for a specific promise from Mr. Nixon that a call for a total Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai Peninsula would not be reaffirmed as part of United States formula for a settlement. She has also reportedly asked for a firm commitment that the United States would veto any future resolution in the United Nations Security Council that would undercut Israel's bargaining position.

Mr. Nixon was said to have made general pledges of military and political support, including a promise that the United States would not put Israel at a disadvantage during negotiations.

Cabinet sources angrily rejected the suggestion of foreign newsmen that Israel was delaying the reopening of negotiations, under Dr. Gonnar V. Jarring, the United Nations special representative, in the hope of extracting firmer commitments from Washington. Israel left the talks shortly after they began August 25, charging that Egypt violated the cease-fire.

Israel fears being isolated internationally once peace talks run into difficulties. The Soviet Union is prepared to support Egypt's position fully, Israeli diplomats argue, but the United States does not fully support Israel's views.

Young Israeli Nationalists Fail In Settling On West Bank

JERUSALEM — Three groups of young Israeli nationalists were rebuffed last week in attempts to establish their own Jewish settlements in the West Bank. Each of the three groups, numbering several dozen members each, went to a different place — Tel Ras, Beth El and the environs of Nablus.

They pitched tents and started unloading household equipment, but military police ordered them to pack up and leave. They offered no resistance.

These were not the first individual attempts to settle in the West Bank. The nationalists knew in advance they were doomed to failure because the government had decided on a strict policy of settling the occupied territories only in accordance with its own strategy plan while forbidding — forcibly if need be — any private moves.

It is believed that the private organizers, who call themselves the Organization for Settlement in Judea and Samaria, are seeking maximum publicity. They distributed to the press, early in the morning, stenciled background sheets detailing where they would set up their tents.

An ideologically kindred group calling itself the National Movement organized demonstrations outside Deputy Premier Yigal Allon's home in the Old City of Jerusalem and opposite the Defense Ministry in Tel Aviv.

Rabbi To Go On Trial In New York For Disrupting Religious Service

NEW YORK — Rabbi A. Bruce Goldman, rabbinical advisor to the Radical Jewish Union at Columbia University, and two RJU members will go on trial in criminal court here on Jan. 12 on charges of disrupting a religious service. The charges grew out of a number of attempts by the RJU to present a series of demands to the congregation of Temple Emanu-El, the world's largest Reform congregation, last May. The demands involved support for the RJU opposition to the Viet Nam war and related causes.

Victor Levin, a graduate student, was arrested on the charges after services at the Reform synagogue on May 15. Rabbi Goldman was arrested along with Anne Rosen, a Barnard College graduate, on May 29 when he and Miss Rosen sought to protest the arrest of Mr. Levin.

Gerald Lefcourt, serving as attorney for the three Jewish defendants, had filed a motion with Criminal Court Judge Mitchell Sherwin, either to dismiss the charges, or to replace New York County District Attorney Frank S. Hogan, the prosecuting attorney, on charges of alleged conflict of interest.

The motion charged that the alleged conflict of interest stemmed from the fact that Mr. Hogan is a member of the board of trustees of Columbia University where the Jewish Advisory board declined on July 1, 1969 to renew Rabbi Goldman's contract as rabbinical advisor to Jewish students at the University. Rabbi Charles Sheer was named advisor and Rabbi Goldman was retained on a private basis by the RJU as its rabbinical advisor.

Judge Sherwin refused to disqualify Mr. Hogan, and name a "disinterested party" to act as prosecutor. The charges carry a one-year prison term for conviction on each charge. There are two charges against Rabbi Goldman.

Rabbi Goldman said that the defense is recruiting a number of Jewish scholars to testify at the trial on the Jewish religious aspects of the charge. He reported also that a legal defense fund is being organized to raise the $5,000 needed by the defense for the trial.

Eleven Jews Elected To Office In So. Africa

JOHANNESBURG — Eleven Jews, all members of the United Party, were among the successful candidates in the recent Provincial Council elections. The United Party is South Africa's largest opposition party. Elected to office in Transvaal Province were Issy Kramer, H. Schwartz, D. H. Epstein, A. B. Widman, S. Moss and Aleck Jaffe. Elected from Cape Province were S. L. Gross, C. Brett, B. Lazarus and T. Aronson. H. J. Jacobs was elected from Natal Province.

The Provincial Councils are the most important elective bodies next to Parliament and the election was fought on national issues. While the governing National Party with 118 overall Council seats maintains an overwhelming lead, the United Party with 59 seats, gained six seats. All 22 candidates of the extreme right Herenigde Party, which makes Calvinism a test of membership, were defeated as were all 14 candidates, including three Jews, of the Progressive Party. Moss is mayor of Johannesburg and Widman, deputy mayor. Lazarus is mayor of East London.

Jewish Groups Raise Objections To Compulsory Chapel Attendance

WASHINGTON — Thirteen major Jewish organizations, supported by the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs and the (Protestant) General Commission on Chaplains and Armed Forces Personnel, have asked the United States Circuit Court of Appeals here to prohibit compulsory chapel attendance at the military academies.

They charge that the requirement is unconstitutional and an "archaic vestige inconsistent with American traditions of religious freedom."

The Defense Department replied that "the views of the academies must prevail unless the courts find their policies to be constitutionally prohibited."

The Jewish organizations filing the brief are the American Jewish Committee, the American Jewish Congress, the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, the Central Conference of American Rabbis, the Commission on Jewish Chaplaincy of the National Jewish Welfare Board, the Jewish Labor Committee, the Jewish War Veterans, the National Council of Jewish Women, the Rabbinical Assembly, the Rabbinical Council of America, the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations and the United Synagogue of America.

In addition, 12 of the organizations pressed their position in a letter to Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird under the auspices of the Joint Advisory Committee of the Synagogue Council of America and the National Jewish Community Relations Advisory Council. The Commission on Jewish Chaplaincy declined to support this additional effort.

Shades of Jimmy Durante!

Shades of Jimmy Durante! We can hear his oft-repeated "Everybody wantsa get into the act."

That seems to be what the various Jewish organizations (who have been doing it to a great extent over the years anyway) are doing now.

A few years back, Hasidic Jews in the New York area formed groups of what could be called "trouble shooters." They lived in areas where Jews, as well as the other residents, were being mugged, stabbed, robbed, beaten. And so they came up with what seemed a good idea.

With the cooperation and help of the police they set up roving bands of men who patrolled the streets at night with two-way radios in their cars, so that if anyone were attacked, they could call the police to help and go to the person's rescue. These men worked with the police and were trained by the police, who probably welcomed the extra manpower this gave them. The Hasidim were quite successful for the most part—probably, the greatest help they gave was simply the fact that they were there. Once the attackers knew they would be caught too easily, they would be less liable to attempt anything.

Then the Jewish Defense League came on the scene. Rabbi Meir Kahane, who founded the group, also spoke of protecting the Jews who were being frightened and hurt. He also had ideas of offense as well as defense and his organization has been frowned on by most of the national and local Jewish organizations. But a good part of his program, involves the same sort of action as the Hasidim were involved in. Here, in New England, Rabbi Marvin Antelman, coordinator of the group, feels that this is how the JDL is accomplishing its purpose—by protecting those Jews who live in neighborhoods where there is violence, in cooperation with the police.

Now, the Jewish War Veterans have decided to set up corps of men who will watch over the Jews who are living in their old neighborhoods, the complexion of which has changed, who have neither the money nor the desire to move elsewhere, and who have been threatened or hurt.

In these times, where it often doesn't really matter where you live, you still may have your pocketbook snatched or your head banged in, any protection is good. But . . . it has now come to the point where it seems that each poor old man who just wants to go to his daily morning prayers will be surrounded by five protectors. It seems to be rather overdoing the whole thing. "Everybody wantsa get into the act."

Regardless of the old joke: "Ask 12 Jews for the solution of a problem and you'll get 13 answers," there must be some way in which these people can coordinate their energies.

In some areas it is true there is need for people who will simply watch over those who cannot protect themselves. With all this willing manpower available, couldn't there be some cooperation so that there would be more efficiency and fewer men milling around? The police are always willing to cooperate with those who are simply acting as helpers, not as vigilantes. If, instead of setting up their own cadres, the different groups would get together and ask the police where they were needed most, the results would be beneficent, and they would avoid the possibility of some people causing more harm than good in their zeal to protect their fellow Jew.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

Mexico City: They were gathered here, the delegations from everywhere, for the inaugural of Luis Echeverria as Mexico's 71st President. In the ceremony, Gustavo Diaz Ordaz, removed his Presidential badge of office, in the presence of six of his predecessors, to show the unimpaired transmission of power, and placed it around his successor.

A Washington observer said of the inaugural ceremony in the auditorium at Chapultepec: "I find it odd that here in Mexico City, with the weather salubrious, the inaugural is held indoors, but in Washington when the weather is freezing, the inaugural is held outdoors."

Unlike the previous inaugural there was no such protocol problem as when Sen. Mike Mansfield was LBJ's envoy and therefore outranked the Chief Justice of the U.S. This time Secretary of State Rogers is here, and nobody outranks him. At the inaugural festivities the new President never wears a dinner-jacket, persisting in his pose as a simple man-of-the-people.

This, although Mexico's one-term Presidents are among the nation's wealthiest men.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

Arbeiter Ring at 70

By BERYL SEGAL

Often when I walk on the streets or when I come to a community gathering, people come up and say:

"You don't know me, but I know you."

And then they begin to tell me how mischievous they were in the Arbeiter Ring school, where exactly they were sitting in the class room, and about some particular event in which they played a special role.

That is not surprising. During the twenties and thirties the Workmens Circle had a membership of about 750 souls. The school had about two hundred pupils at a time. Multiply this by twenty years and you will see that a goodly number of people, now in their middle years, were at one time or another in my classes.

750 members. That is about a third of the entire Jewish population at that time in Providence and vicinity. Our city was among the early organizers of a Workmens Circle Branch, as is testified by the number of that Branch. It was number 14. The neighboring New Haven had a number 12 Branch. Like a tidal wave the idea of the Workmens Circle spread from New York all over the country. The early immigrants found in these branches a fire which warmed their hearts, and a substitute for their homes for which they were yearning.

But the Workmens Circle was more than that. It was the school, the college to which immigrants could not go in their youth. The thirst for learning was great among the immigrants, and in the Workmens Circle, they found what they missed in their student years. Here they learned about economics and about government. Here they received practical lessons in democratic living. The "Forwards," the daily newspaper, was their textbook; Abraham Cahn and Eugene Victor Debs were their teachers. The Lyceums, the club rooms of the Workmens Circle, were their class rooms.

I remember the Sunday mornings on Benefit Street where the Workmens Circle had its home. All the rooms were filled with people. There were lectures, debates, rallies, discussion groups. And among all this the Workmens Circle School was filled with pupils. On Sunday mornings, the late Arthur Einstein, the best teacher of music we could find in the city, was singing with the children. The youthful voices rang all over the three-story building. Many of the people present left their discussion groups and came to listen. The sliding doors were opened and the older people, parents of the pupils, stood and listened with tears in their eyes. They themselves had nothing like that when they were children.

I remember the Workmens Circle Summer Camps. It was my good fortune to be in the New York camp several summers. I remember the young people students in their first and second year in college and all pupils of the Arbeiter Ring Schools working there are junior counselors. Now as I read the "Forwards" edition of the 70th Anniversary of the Workmens Circle, celebrated at Hunter College in New York, I recall many of these young men. They are in responsible positions now at Home office of the Fraternal Order. I remember William Stern in his knee pants running around the camp, and who is now Executive Secretary of the Workmens Circle. The President Bernard Backer and the Past President Judge Jacob Zuckerman were also familiar to me. The others are active members in their respective English Speaking Branches.

And herein lies the healthy outlook of the Workmens Circle.

The older generation provided young men and women to take over when their time comes to retire. And they did, these young people.

Here, in Providence, the Workmens Circle was not so successful in providing young people to take over. Not that they did not try. For a short while an English Speaking Branch existed. But nothing came of it. The Second World War played havoc with the organization. The home on Benefit Street was torn down. The South Providence neighborhood is no more. Death took its toll.

And now there are only memories. The members who still recall the happy days of the Workmens Circle cling to the organization. They carry in their hearts the song which they sang at all festive occasions:

And all for one,
 And one for all,
 United together
 For one ideal.

But they too will celebrate the seventieth Anniversary. After all, Providence was one of the few cities who organized branches in their communities.

(Mr. Segal's opinions are his own and not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

Your Money's Worth

By Sylvia Porter

Nixon Shifts the Economic Gears

Your job, your profits and your cost of living in the period ahead will be resting to a significant degree on the shifts now taking place in the economic policies of the Nixon Administration.

The political campaign of 1972 also will be influenced to a major degree by the important economic policy changes already being made and to be made in these closing weeks of 1970.

In briefest summary, the three vital policy shifts are:

(1) Both the administration and the Federal Reserve System are now firmly concentrating on restimulating the economy. Spurring economic growth is now number one on the priority list. The shift from deflating the economy to strengthening it began timidly last summer; it was speeded up early this fall; now, as winter nears, it will go into high gear.

(2) At the same time, Nixon is moving toward a new price-wage policy under which the power of the White House will be thrown for the first time against inflationary price-wage increases. This will NOT be direct controls; they are OUT. It will not even be formal price-wage guidelines; they are too close to the Kennedy Administration policies for Nixon to accept. Nor will it even mean jaw-boning; that would be too close to the Johnson Administration tactics.

But the White House WILL put clear and direct pressure on business and labor leaders for self-restraint. Big price increases will be publicized and investigated; similar, say, to the current probe into the oil industry's price hikes. Inflationary wage settlements will be pinpointed and sharply criticized. Nixon will be moving into the hot-hot area of the price-wage spiral on a scale he swore he would never attempt — even though the new approach may be called by every other name except what it truly is.

(3) And the Nixon Administration will finally be trying to battle inflation on other fronts too: through breaking serious labor bottlenecks (construction, most notably); stricter enforcement of anti-trust laws to intensify competition; encouragement of imports that help hold down prices; improving labor training and job mobility.

The new anti-inflation policies are imperative because economic policies are being shifted back to stimulating growth. And, in turn, the stimulative economic policies are imperative because the 1969-70 recession is now into its 17th month, joblessness is heading toward 6 per cent — and even the most cautious of Nixon's economic advisers agree that unless growth speeds up, unemployment could be reaching disastrous levels before the 1972 election. So:

Federal spending is to rise substantially in the next 18 months — and without any loud squawks from the White House either. The developing enormous budget deficit will be accepted as unavoidable, even desirable, against today's economic background.

Federal spending outside the budget also is to rise sharply, to help housing particularly. Money will be increasingly available for mortgages and mortgage rates will be under down pressure.

The money supply will be expanding at an accelerating pace. The Federal Reserve System's target now is a 5 per cent annual growth in the money supply to make sure businessmen and consumers have funds for economically sound projects and it may boost that target in coming weeks.

The various policies and the business recession have pushed interest rates down sharply — again with Washington's open approval.

Tax increases have been ruled out and emphasis is turning to tax postponements, liberalized tax depreciation rules or even tax cuts that would help buoy the economy.

Will the programs work?

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

Double Dummy defense could have set today's hand before the Declarer ever got in to start his own control of the hand. However, double dummy defense or play and normal are not always the same. Normal defense might even be considered good defense, yet if one could see through the cards he would have done something entirely different. Sometimes a pair might defend like that by mistake. If that happens to you, consider it in Bridge terminology, "a Fix." On the other hand, sometimes what might seem like normal is really quite bad. Such is the case here.

North
 ♦ AK 5 4 3
 ♣ A J 10 6

West
 ♠ 10 7 5 3 2
 ♥ 10 5 2
 ♦ Void
 ♣ K Q 9 8 4

East
 ♠ Void
 ♥ AK Q 9 3
 ♦ Q J 8 7 2
 ♣ 7 3 2

South
 ♠ AK Q J 9 6
 ♥ J 7 6
 ♦ 10 9 6

Only one pair set the hand so no names will be mentioned. All were vulnerable, North dealer. The bidding:

N	E	S	W
1♦	2♥	1♠	P
2♣	P	4♣	End

The final contract was quite normal although there were several different sequences leading to that end. Some Easts refrained from bidding the first time around when North opened with a suit they were so long in. These players did come to life when North bid Clubs. Regardless, South, with that tremendous Spade suit had already decided to go to game there and then leave the rest to his partner. He did this on his second bid. If he did it right away it would show a preemptive type hand, a longer but weaker suit. North had nothing to spare so that was it.

There were two Double Dummy type defenses the opponents could have used to set the hand. First, a Heart lead and a switch by West to a Diamond, ruffed by East. Another Heart and another Diamond ruff takes the first four tricks. Second, a Trump lead by West. If the defenders handle the Heart suit right they can get West in again to lead another Trump and stop South's ever ruffing a Heart, the result, a loss of three Hearts and one Diamond.

No one can fault a partner who does neither of these. What East can envision his partner's being void of Diamonds so as to switch to one at trick two? And what West, on opening lead with a certain Trump winner and no reason to suspect a ruff in Dummy with so many known Trumps in his own and Declarer's, would lead a Trump? So every West led the Deuce of partner's bid suit, Hearts and every East played two rounds and then every one of them switched to the Diamond Queen. Here is where things went wrong. I watched as every West, now sitting with a natural Trump trick, couldn't resist ruffing that trick. Yet what exactly did he ruff? Declarer's losing Diamond at the cost of his own Trump trick. South did not play one of those two high Diamonds when he saw West ruff.

It mattered not now what West returned for South could still ruff his losing Heart as West would have to follow. His lead and follow to the second Heart had shown he had another. South could then cash the Club Ace and ruff one to return to his hand, draw Trumps and claim the balance.

Watch what happens if West resists the temptation and discards a Heart on that first Diamond lead instead of ruffing. South will still have a losing Diamond and West will still have his Trump trick. Also, if South tries to ruff a Heart, West can even make what now seems to be an error and overruff Dummy with his Trump trick but now he just has to wait for partner's Diamond trick. Either way the hand is set.

Moral: A natural Trump trick is always a trick, do not use it unwisely on one of your other winners and end with one trick instead of two.

ODD BUT INTERESTING — Some people just don't understand the scoring in a Roller Derby, a game that came into prominence with television. Teams skate around and around a banked wooden track, bumping, jostling and jolting each other and sometimes being confusing and interesting at the same time. There's one scheduled for R.I. Aud. on Jan. 30th...If you didn't find out, the Globetrotters who were in Prov. a week ago have played their way through 1321 American cities plus hundreds more in 87 countries around the world and cover 75,000 miles in nine or ten months. The wonder is how they have time for basketball.

RICKY MOVES AHEAD — Ricky Raimondi, the popular Providence ring stylist, will be a feature on a boxing card at Boston Garden on Dec. 15th when he'll meet rough, tough Joe Coyle who has been seen in Prov. in action with Larry Carney. Joe Celletti once boxed John Carney who is Larry's father, tiz said.

LIKE GUNGA DIN — Well, sort of because boxing has been battered and flayed but still pushes into the headlines. "Is it coming back?" someone always asks. And the answer is that it just never really went. And so Eddie Imondi will present another ring show at R.I. Aud. on Mon. Dec. 14th that will feature Denny McNamee again; Denny being a young man with a future in the fistie wars. The last show Mr. Imondi offered was filled with fireworks of the padded mitten brand.

MOST ATHLETIC HIGH SCHOOL CLASS — Joe Engle says it was his class at old Boston English High. Joe has always been a sportman who attended all the big events. At one time he always had several front row seats at boxing shows and paid for the tickets. Mickey Roche of Boston English, Joe's class, went into the hockey Hall of Fame and Frank Storey was the first goalie for a Boston professional hockey team. There were numerous others in that famed class who brought it more fame more than 50 years ago. Engle was manager of boxer Benny Glass who was one of the gladiators in the double knockout registered at old Infantry Hall in Providence and mentioned here recently. Tommy Murray was the other.

INTERESTING NOTE — Arthur Cummins of Brooklyn is credited with pitching the first curve ball in the early seventies. He accidentally gave the ball a twist while pitching against the wind. Then, when he attempted to demonstrate, he pitched with the wind and the ball didn't curve. Such embarrassment!

ANOTHER NOTE — The first recorded college baseball game was played in 1859 between Amherst and Williams at Pittsfield. Amherst won, 66 to 32. The men on the Amherst team were chosen by ballot and the game lasted four hours before being terminated by agreement.

OF THIS AND THAT — "Le Tour de la Nouvelle France" — It's Quebec's marathon on bicycles and it will be resumed next year. (My goodness. There are some who didn't even know it had been canceled.) The race will cover 500 miles through the province. Vincent "Pusha" Madonna, probably the outstanding man of sports of all time in this section, could have covered that easily...

PERMISSIBLE KIND — The only kind of hunting I would permit would be with a camera and yet it's the season for the big, daring men of shotguns to shoot every type of fair game they see. Such shooting should be confined to Skeet and Trap and did you know that in the recent 71st annual Grand American trap-shooting championships, 4-thousand gunners fired at more than two million clay targets!...And do you know that because of "Hunters" the Tiger is almost extinct?...Now will you favor cameras over guns?...And will you remember not to say anything if it isn't good? And was the judgment by the promoters good when they selected Pearl Harbor Day to flout Cassius before war veterans? Oh death — CARRY ON!

ORCHESTRA IN BONN
BONN — The Israel Chamber Orchestra, conducted by Gary Bertini, has ended a three-week tour of West Germany. This was its first visit to this country and the West German press acclaimed the tour as a major cultural event reflecting improved relations between the two nations.

TO GIVE KIVEN LECTURE: Dr. W. Gerald Austen, professor of surgery at the Harvard Medical School and chief of general surgical services at the Massachusetts General Hospital, will give the 10th annual Kiven Memorial Lecture on Monday, December 14, at 8:15 p.m. at The Miriam Hospital. He will speak on "The Surgical Approach to Coronary Artery Disease."

The Kiven Memorial Lecture is sponsored by friends of the late Dr. Nathan Kiven, the Miriam Hospital, and the Rhode Island Heart Association. Dr. Kiven was a visiting physician and clinical director of the cardio-pulmonary service at The Miriam Hospital.

INTERFLORA IN ISRAEL

The Israel Unit of Interflora, the worldwide floral delivery network, is one of the international organization's newest and smallest, but it also is among the most progressive.

Only 40-odd of the more than 35,000 Interflora members in virtually every corner of the globe are located in Israel. However, Israel is a growing factor in world horticulture.

The young nation is a large producer of flowers, both for domestic use and export. In addition, the sending of flowers to and from Israel as gifts and tributes is growing.

An April 4 wedding is planned.

Weight Watchers Thank Local Leader

More than five years ago, a woman who knew the unhappiness and restrictions enforced by being overweight, joined an infant organization that was just starting called Weight Watchers. Each week Elaine Robin would journey from Rhode Island to New York to attend the Weight Watchers classes conducted by Jean Nidetch, founder of Weight Watchers.

Because of her success in losing weight and keeping it off with this program, Mrs. Robin began what is now called the Weight Watchers of Eastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island. During these years she has helped others succeed in losing weight. In this time over 60,000 men, women and teenagers have joined the program in this area.

In Foxboro, Massachusetts, recently, a gathering of these people expressed their appreciation to Mrs. Robin, by planning an afternoon like the late television program "This Is Your Life."

Mrs. Nidetch, now president of Weight Watchers International, came to Foxboro to tell of the Elaine Robin she knows. Other guests included Elaine Robin's husband, Will, who handles the business division of Weight Watchers, and their daughters.

Mobile Post Office Located In Mall

Postmaster Harry Kizirian last week opened the Mobile Post Office unit that is located on the Westminster Shoppers Mall.

The Mobile Post Office has been located on the Shoppers Mall during Christmas periods for the past five years. Installed originally on a trial basis, it has proved so popular and well-patronized by downtown shoppers and store and office employees, that it has been returned each year for the period between Thanksgiving and Christmas. Similar units, copied from the original in Providence, have been opened in many cities throughout the country.

The unit, a modified postal vehicle, is equipped for the sale of stamps and the deposit of Christmas card mailings. It will be open for business from 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. daily during the remainder of the Christmas period.

HELP VICTIMS
JERUSALEM — Colombian children, victims of the recent floods in their country, received a shipment of drugs and food from Israel. The shipment was turned over to the Colombian ambassador at Lydda airport and flown to Colombia by El Al transport plane.

MORE JEWS DIE
JERUSALEM — An interesting fact gleaned from the latest data appearing in Israel's "Statistical Yearbook" shows that the mortality rate among Israel's Jews is higher than that among Arabs living in Israel. The mortality rate for Jews is 7.2 per thousand, while the mortality rate for Arabs is only 5.9 per thousand.

Campus Academicians Receive Grants-In-Aid

KANSAS CITY — Harry Barron, executive director of the National Foundation for Jewish Culture, told the organization's 10th annual convention that 147 active on-campus academicians in the United States, Canada and Israel have received grants-in-aid totaling more than $400,000. He told the delegates gathered here for the convention that the academicians include 36 percent with doctoral degrees teaching Judaica at 25 colleges and universities; 58 without doctorates teaching at 48 institutions; 34 studying for doctorates in Judaica at 16 institutions, and 19 engaged in administrative and research projects on 19 campuses. About a dozen of the 147 are studying in Israel.

The American institutions involved include Columbia University, Yeshiva University and New York University in New York City; Harvard and Princeton.

year, 250 young people participated in the program and were placed in development towns and kibbutzim in Israel.

NO EXEMPTION
TEL AVIV — Israel's highest court has ruled that a Jewish girl cannot claim exemption from military duty on religious grounds if she admits to the fact that she fails to do the traditional "benchen" after meals. The decision followed an appeal by an 18-year-old against her local draft board which refused to accord her religious status, a ground for exemption from compulsory duty. One of the decisive factors in the local board's decision was an acknowledgement by the girl that she does not recite grace after meals according to Jewish tradition.

See No Anti-Israel Motive Behind New Reactivation Of Law

JERUSALEM — Political circles here saw no anti-Israel motives behind the recent decision of French authorities to reactivate a law that withdraws French citizenship from persons who willingly accept the citizenship of another country. The law will affect some 10,000 Israeli women from France and Algeria.

The Association of French Immigrants in Israel intends to file a test case in the French courts challenging the ruling. The law applies only to women, apparently because the Paris government does not want to deprive males of French citizenship, thereby releasing them from their obligation to serve in France's armed forces.

The decision to reactivate the law stemmed from a 1968 amendment to Israel's Law of Return which granted new immigrants a three-month period in which to decide whether they wanted to become Israeli citizens. The French say that an immigrant opting for Israeli citizenship is performing an act of free choice whereas before the amendment it was involuntary.

Under the original Law of Return, any Jew settling in Israel was automatically granted citizenship the moment he arrived on Israeli soil, unless he formally rejected it. Political circles here noted that the French ruling applied to former French nationals in many other countries as well as in Israel.

Reveal Slave Trade Between India, Arabs

NEW DELHI — A shocking revelation of modern-day slave trading between India and several oil-rich Arab countries has been made by the "Indian Express," published in New Delhi.

According to the press report, young Indian girls are actually "sold" for service in Muscat, Bahrain, and in Kuwait.

It is estimated that in the past few years no less than 2000 young girls were imported in this fashion from India. At least 45 girls were "bought" last month.

In order to "legalize" the transaction a fiction is employed by which the girls are pro-forma wedded to Arab men who travel specially for this purpose to Bombay. The "grooms" pay up to 2000 rupees ($280) to the agents and middlemen who also conduct the "marriage ceremonies."

The newspaper report also reveals that, simultaneously with the marriage ceremony, the necessary "divorce papers" are prepared to cover the contingency where "the bride does not live up to expectations."

Israeli Pacifist To Tour States

NEW YORK — The Jewish Peace Fellowship decided to cancel its co-sponsorship of a United States tour by a young Sabra pacifist who did not fight in Israel's Six-Day War after a poll of members of its board, the pacifist and draft-counseling agency has reported. However, the JPF newsletter reported, Uri Davis, the Israeli pacifist, will make a tour of the United States this month and next.

The newsletter reported that several members of the JPF executive committee proposed that the 27-year-old Israeli pacifist be invited to speak in the United States under JPF auspices. Several board members disagreed, arguing that they did not believe that the JPF, as a Jewish organization could "assume the responsibility of sponsoring a lecture tour by an individual some of whose points of view may be considered deeply harmful to the Jewish people by many JPF members."

TO CONTINUE FACILITIES The Miriam Hospital will continue to provide clinical facilities for the education of students at the University of Rhode Island School of Nursing, at least until early 1972 under a new agreement between the hospital and the university.

The agreement extends a similar one signed last September for the current fall semester only. This was the first arrangement between The Miriam and a university for the education of professional nurses.

The extended program will include sophomore students as well as registered nurses working towards their baccalaureate degrees. Individual arrangements will be made for master's degree candidates who elect to use the hospital's clinical facilities.

Between 10 and 18 students will participate in the program each semester and they will be giving care to patients as part of their education. The students will be supervised by faculty from the URI program.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By Roger E. Spear

Tax Sale Loss Advised

Q: Can you give me information on Goldfield Corp.? Shares were traded on the American Exchange, but apparently were delisted. C.G. & J.T.

A: The affairs of this company are — to put it mildly — involved. At the 1969 year end, current liabilities exceeded current assets by 2.8-to-1, leaving a working capital deficit of $4.7 million. Operating results were equally dismal, with an 84 cent a share deficit reported. Goldfield, in addition to mining, real estate and other interests, owns 437,000 (16.4%) shares of General Host. The latter firm, in return for purchasing $11 million in Goldfield notes, was granted an option to repurchase its stock until January 31, 1971. Suits, countersuits and other legal procedures have been filed by the two firms in recent months. Suspension of trading in Goldfield shares by the American Stock Exchange hinged on whether shares issued in a 1969 acquisition required SEC registration. Subsequent to this action, Goldfield announced it was seeking to sell the company in question. These shares, now trading over-the-counter around $1, should be sold for a tax loss.

Q: I purchased Putnam Vista Fund. Since it is selling below my purchase price, I am wondering if I should continue to hold. I am investing for long-term appreciation. R.J.

A: Putnam Vista is a fairly young fund, originally offered to the public in 1968. The fund's sole objective is capital appreciation, sought through investing policies which may involve above-average capital risks. Since it has been established such a short time, long-term growth prospects are difficult to assess. In the first year, Putnam chalked up a healthy 46.5% gain in net asset value. However, in 1969 and for the first nine months of 1970, Putnam's total asset value declined 29% and 24.8% respectively. Because Putnam is a small, performance type fund, downside volatility in market declines tends to be greater. By the same token, however, substantial upside action is possible in rising markets.

Consumer Loan Market Looking Up

Q: I am interested in investing in Household Finance. It is now around 38 and I would like to invest about $10,000. What do you advise? C.E.

A: As a leading factor in the personal loan industry, Household Finance should benefit from lower interest rates and the expansion of the consumer credit market. While its principal business is consumer loans, HFC has diversified its operations and now has several subsidiaries in the merchandising, manufacturing and leasing fields. Although earnings for the first half were relatively flat, $1.14 versus 1969's $1.13 per share on a fully diluted basis, the bulk of earnings usually comes in the second half and this year should be no exception. Personal consumption expenditures should continue to increase in 1970 and 1971. And 92%-owned National Car Rental should maintain its previous growth strides adding about 16 cents a share to earnings. Full-year net is expected to reach $3.00 per share, which would represent the eleventh consecutive year of earnings gains. Moreover, the dividend was recently raised to $1.13 a share, up from $1.10, making this the eleventh successive yearly hike. Quality shares may be bought for growth.

Q: We have shares of American Hospital Supply for which we paid $38. Should this stock be held for profits? J.P.

A: American Hospital Supply has had an excellent record of growth. Sales have extended this upturning pattern into 1970, with a 13% increase in volume reported for the first 9 months. Profits, however, have not shown such vigorous growth this year. In the first three quarters earnings were ahead only 3 cents a share to 58 cents. While record earnings for a full year should again be attained, the margin of gain may be narrow, reflecting in part the 1.3 million additional shares outstanding this year as a result of an offering by AHS in 1969. Although a long-time mutual fund favorite, selling has outweighed buying of AHS by the funds this year. Hold shares for long-range growth.

Protracted Recovery Seen for Boeing

Q: In 1968, we purchased shares of Boeing. At this time do you think we should take our loss, or hold and hope for some recovery? S.O. & P.N.

A: Boeing recently reported third-period earnings of $4.4 million, or 20 cents a share, compared with a year-earlier loss of slightly less than $4 million, equal to 18 cents a share. Sales jumped to $913.2 million from last year's $556.2 million. Despite the improvement, Boeing had only a modest operating profit after allowing for $4.2 million in tax amortization. According to company president, earnings will continue at a low level in the fourth quarter also. He attributed the continuing pressures on profits chiefly to reductions in production and delivery rates on the 707, 727 and 737 jet transport programs, continued low profits on government programs, and interest charges on substantially increased borrowings. Prospects of this leading maker of commercial and military aircraft largely depend on the continued acceptance of the 747 jetliner. At present, total program expenses on the airbus are higher than previously anticipated. Moreover, the projected near-term market for the plane has been reduced. While shares have long-range, speculative recovery potential, immediate prospects are uninspiring.

Q: I am a divorcee, age 50, desperately in need of extra income. I have $20,000 in my savings account. What can I invest in which would bring in more money but be perfectly safe? W.M.C.

A: The most suitable investments for you are good quality corporate bonds. I would, however, suggest leaving $5,000 in the bank for liquidity in case of any unforeseen emergency. Without undue risk you can readily secure a current return of 8.8% on the $15,000 balance from your savings. This would represent about a 65% increase in your annual income, assuming you are presently getting 5% to 5 1/2% interest on your savings. Two recommended bonds are: Southern Natural Gas 9 1/8s of 1976 and General Mills 8 7/8s of 1995. Both issues carry A-ratings and are selling at a small premium over par value.

15 Neo-Nazis Lose Election In Bavaria

BONN — The radical right-wing National Democratic Party lost all 15 of its seats in the Bavarian State parliament in last week's elections. The party, widely regarded as neo-Nazi, polled only three percent of the total vote compared to the 7.4 percent it won in the last elections. According to West German law a party must poll at least five percent of the total vote to be seated in the state or federal parliaments. The NPD failed to win the required 10 percent from any one ward and was automatically disqualified.

In the last elections, when the party was headed by Adolf von Thadden was at its political peak, it won 12.2 percent of the vote in Central Franconia. Earlier this month the NPD was voted out of the state parliament of Hesse. The Free Democratic Party, which had no seats in Bavaria, won 11 in this week's election. The Free Democrats are the coalition partners of the Social Democratic Party of Chancellor Willy Brandt. Political observers said a large part of the NPD vote went to Franz Joseph Strauss' conservative Christian Socialist Union, the Bavarian wing of the Christian Democratic Union.

Dedicate Newly-Built Lubavitch Day School

LORANGE, CONN. — A complex of five buildings, built at a cost of more than $1.8 million, to house the local Lubavitcher day school for boys and high school for girls, was dedicated here recently. In addition to providing facilities for the Yeshiva Achei Tmimim and the Beth Chana high school for girls, the complex also will serve as headquarters for all Lubavitcher programs in Connecticut, according to Rabbi Moshe Hecht, the school's headmaster. Reporting that the complex now accommodates nearly 400 children, Rabbi Hecht described the girls school as the largest of its kind in New England. It was founded six years ago. Rabbi Hecht said at the ceremonies that the Lubavitcher school was founded in New Haven 27 years ago with four pupils.

The Golden Vocabulary

The truly wondrous inventory all of us own jointly is the vocabulary, an inventory which is never depleted no matter how hard we move the stock but is rather replenished. This is one of the Saturday mornings in which I call in the clerks, some of them with bloodshot eyes, to "take" inventory. We will count up the new words and phrases which we have begun to zing around since our last checkup.

Perhaps the most important word to fall in the Golden Vocabulary list since "lead pipe" started to describe "cinch" is: Abzuggery. Abzuggery derives from the surname of one Bella Abzug, a Democratic Congresswoman elected in New York.

Mrs. Abzug wore a hat like

Hoss wears on Bonanza and in one day made three speeches to the crusaders of the Women's Lib movement. Abzuggery, therefore, means the passions evoked in a fierce feminine following. One could not say a lady bakes a pie with abzuggery but one could say a PTA vice president argued her point before the Board of Education with abzuggery.

Another handsome word we should treasure is the new adjective: Agnevia. Agnevia also derives from a surname. In this instance it is the surname of the Vice President of the United States, Agnew, and "agnevia" is simply the adjectival form. Agnevia refers to any statement which is alliterative yet somehow unfunny. Any speech by the Vice President will offer examples galore.

One of the remarkable phrases to come our way is: Bleeding Heart Liberal. Clutch this to your bosom it will banish the cliché, "He bled like a stuck pig."

To describe great gouts of blood, to summon immediately the disarray of mayhem, one simply writes, "There was more blood than you would find at a convention of bleeding heart liberals."

Why a political creature who believes in Social Security, Medicare, and opposes Right to

Housing Projects For Orthodox Go Up In Jerusalem Suburb

NEW YORK — Israel's Ministry of Housing and Land Authority have recently designated several sections of land northeast of Jerusalem in the Neve-Ya'acov-Atarot sector to be developed into Orthodox communities. A spokesman for the Jewish Agency in Jerusalem commented that the proposed site had been chosen because "there have been demands to allocate land for the construction of religious housing projects in Jerusalem. These demands came, mainly, from Orthodox rabbis and yeshivot in the United States who planned to build apartment projects for the students and families connected with the particular religious institutions."

But due to the rapid expansion of the Jerusalem area sizable quantities of land for the proposed projects were not available until recently. "The area is now fully planned," continued the spokesman, "and actual building has already begun. The per unit cost of the land is IL 1600 (approximately $460) per 80 square meters. (This cost is in addition to the price of the apartment.) Based upon this calculation, one could calculate the price of land for larger or smaller apartments."

Work Laws and appointment of mediocre judges to the Supreme Court should always be described as afflicted with a bleeding heart, I do not know.

The editor of a dictionary does not try to correct the misapprehension of his friends and neighbors, he tries to incorporate their misapprehensions especially when it will expand the language, thereby "blowing the mind."

The word which concludes our lesson for today is: Epla. Epla is an abbreviation, like los is an abbreviation for "in our society," a convenience we afford scholars writing learned papers. Epla, however, is more than a convenience. Epla is the war cry of the conservatives, and it is shouted to the rafters when conservatives gather to lynch a convention of bleeding heart liberals. Epla stands for "end pornography in America." And everybody in mid-America, huddled in the Silent Majority knows that pornography is sex before marriage.

Another Agency source added that this proposed project is available to Orthodox groups only and not to individuals. Interested individuals, however, can form their own contingents.

Representatives of such groups may contact the Israel Aliyah Center nearest them for further information. The New England office of the Israel Aliyah Center is located at 437 Boylston Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02116.

The Lyons Den

The delegations all headed to Chapultepec Castle, built as the home of Maximilian and his Empress Carlotta. It has the famed Siqueiros murals, famed also because the artist, David Alfaro Siqueiros, was whisked off to jail while working on them. One of the murals shows the villainous Portirio Diaz in a silk hat, leering at a dancing girl.

I visited Siqueiros while he was in jail. Back in 1911, the year Portirio Diaz was overthrown, Siqueiros said, he'd organized his fellow art-students. His program was "to change the art techniques, and also to nationalize the railroads."

"Jail is brutal," the artist told me, "but it's much better for me and my ideas to be in jail than to be out." At Christmas time, once he was free, Siqueiros sent envelopes, each containing 1000 pesos — about $80 — to each of his fellow prisoners still in jail.

"Painting," he said that day in jail, "must be the result of a historical moment of the people producing it, and never a copy of trends born in other countries."

It was his fourth time in that same jail. The first had been after a May Day melee. The second was the day after Trotsky was assassinated. "I had nothing to do with that," Siqueiros told me. "I wouldn't have killed him if I had the chance. It's not useful to kill. Killing belongs in the 18th Century.

he did fight, he said in the Revolutionary Army, along with Orozco and Rivera, two of the others deemed Mexico's giants of art.

We met the new President at the luncheon given by Mr. and Mrs. Romulo O'Farrill. He is the Mexican publisher.

I asked a Mexican cab driver if he likes the new President. He replied: "He is the only President I have."

Hotel Owner Donates Millions To Israel

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — Ben Novack, founder and owner of the Fontainebleau Hotel here, has donated $1 million to Israeli philanthropies. The Histadrut Foundation and the Jewish National Fund will each receive $250,000, with $500,000 to be dispersed through the Isarel Bonds Organization. Dr. Leon Dronish, rabbi of Temple Beth Shalom and national chairman of the Histadrut Foundation, said: "By this bequest, Ben Novack has shown that he fully understands that every American Jew has an additional dependent, aside from his own family. That dependent is the people of Isarel." The Histadrut Foundation will use its $250,000 to help build the Ben Novack Outpatient Clinic of the South Florida Medical Center in Beersheba — planned as the largest and best-equipped such clinic in the Negev. The medical center, now under construction adjacent to the Histadrut Central Negev Hospital, will cost $2 million and be affiliated with the new medical school of the University of the Negev.

AJC Attacks Young Jewish Left For Self-Destructive Activity

HOUSTON — The American Jewish Committee sharply attacked Jewish young people within the New Left "who allow their non-Zionist or anti-Zionist views to be exploited as a vehicle for anti-Semitism and hostility toward Israel."

The criticism came in a resolution condemning extremist elements in the New Left for trying to undermine the "social and governmental institutions of the nation."

The resolution was adopted unanimously at the closing session of the committee's annual meeting.

Passage of the resolution followed an attack on the extreme New Left by Philip E. Hoffman, the committee's president.

"Perhaps the most serious danger of the New Left," Mr. Hoffman said in an interview, "is the studied ease and carelessness with which anti-Zionists and anti-Semitism are used interchangeably."

"Although they are small in number," he said, "the shrill, strident group of Jewish students who mouth destructive slogans, extol violence and take anti-Israel stands are examples of mindless self-destructive activity. By their negative actions, they profane the Judaic background."

Among the groups cited by Mr. Hoffman as exploiting the anti-Zionist views of Jewish New Leftists were the Students for a Democratic Society, the Weathermen and the Black Panthers.

Mr. Hoffman urged the committee to adopt a program to recapture Jewish young people who have turned away from Jewish interests, religion, history and contemporary Jewish problems.

In its resolution, the committee asserted that the New

Leftist groups "seek to destroy" social and governmental institutions alleging that they are "beyond reform through constitutional means."

"We deny," the delegates said, "that American society cannot be reformed by constitutional means, and we reject the proposition that ends presumed to be noble justify ignoble means."

In other action, the 800 delegates called on other Jewish organizations to intensify their efforts for increasing programing in behalf of Soviet Jews.

Give Doctoral Degree For Hebrew Treatise

NEW YORK — For the first time in its 139 year history, New York University has awarded a doctoral degree to a student who wrote his dissertation in Hebrew. Rabbi Grainom Lazewnik, a native of Poland who came to this country in 1947, wrote his thesis on a Talmudic subject — another first at NYU.

A resident of Brooklyn, Dr. Lazewnik analyzed a medieval Hebrew manuscript, using a microfilm copy of the original European document brought to New York University's Library of Judaica and Hebraica, and concluded that it is a commentary on the 11th century Rif Code on the Sanhedrin rather than on the original text of the Talmud as had been believed by many scholars prior to his study.

Dr. Lazewnik, who received his degree from NYU's Graduate School of Arts and Science, did his research in the School's Institute of Hebrew studies under the direction of Dr. David Rudavsky, the Institute's acting director.

Israeli Farmers In Kfar Border Kibbutz Enjoy Peaceful Panorama These Days

KFAR, RUPPIN, Israel — The farmers of this border kibbutz are savoring a peaceful panorama these days, the sights of Arab farmers and shepherds returning to their fields along the muddy waters of the Jordan River, according to a New York Times article by Peter Grose.

For the last two years these fields and orchards were a base and jumping-off point for Palestinian guerrillas, sabotage teams seeking to lay mines and explosives around Kfar Ruppim and its neighboring Israeli settlements.

With the onset of fighting between the guerrilla organizations and the Government of King Hussein last September, the guerrillas had made their bases opposite here pulled back into the interior for the civil war.

The fields lay empty for weeks. Then, gradually, the local farmers who had long before fled to nearby towns began returning to the river banks they had abandoned when the guerrillas took over.

"More than all the talk of cease-fire we hear on the radio," said one of Kfar Ruppim's founding members, Jacob Noy, "this sight is what we think of when we think of peace." He stood with his visitors on a high bluff just outside the Kibbutz, looking down at the meandering river and the pastures only a hundred yards or so away, across the Israel-Jordan cease-fire line.

About 90,000 Jordanians used to live in this rich farming area of the northern Jordan valley; until the six day war of 1967 the frontier a mile east of Kfar Ruppim was peaceful.

When the newly militant guerrillas started their hit-and-run operations against Israeli settlements in 1968, about 80 per cent of the local Jordanians fled from the tense border zone, leaving the fields to the guerrillas. At first the guerrillas tried to disguise themselves as the ordinary people.

"We used to watch how they worked," Mr. Noy said. "Say eight shepherds would come down to the fields, then at the end of the day, we would see that only five shepherds wandered home — so we would know that three saboteurs were staying there in hiding waiting for dark to attack us."

As the war on the cease-fire line became more tense the innocent farmers disappeared from the other bank. The fields and orchards became a no-man's land, except for guerrillas. The people of Kfar Ruppim would not go out onto the bluffs over the river for fear of sniping from the opposite bank.

There have been no incidents around Kfar Ruppim since late July. The official cease-fire began in August, and the tensions in Jordan began building up the same month.

Now, according to people here, there are roadblocks along

JWV Announces Establishment Of Special Synagogue Corps

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Jewish War Veterans of the U.S.A. has announced the establishment of a JWV Synagogue Corps to provide security for Jews who still live in the inner cities of major urban areas.

According to Albert Schlossberg of Milton, Massachusetts, JWV National Commander, formation of the new Corps was prompted by "the increasing number of attacks on Jews and synagogue properties in those areas of the inner city where there are no longer young and middle class Jewish families."

"Today in most inner cities of large urban areas, all that is left of the Jewish community are aged orthodox Jews whose life revolves around their synagogue and who have neither the funds nor the inclination to leave lifetime homes. These people have often been subject to brutal attacks by hoodlums who prey on their weakness. Often, their synagogues are vandalized and their homes terrorized," Commander Schlossberg pointed out.

Part of the responsibilities of the Corps, according to the JWV Commander, will be to attend Saturday and holiday services and "by their presence afford a feeling of security to the older people who make up these congregations."

JWV Posts will be urged to adopt a synagogue and set up a duty roster for their membership. In addition, members will be prepared to assist in any manner that "will contribute to the well being and security of the people in the inner city."
