General Jewish Committee Raises $903,000 At Initial Gifts Dinner

"Nobody raised money last year, you just poured it out," said Rabbi Herbert A. Friedman at the General Jewish Committee Initial Gifts dinner held Wednesday evening at the home of Max Alperin.

This year, Rabbi Friedman continued, Israel is still at war and the same emergency exists as did last year during the Six-Day conflict.

$903,000 has been raised thus far by the General Jewish Committee in its 1968 campaign. A mass meeting will be held by the GJC at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel on Thursday, June 6.

"Logically," continued Rabbi Friedman, executive vice chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, "you should pour out more money; emotionally, no. . . But one year later there is no peace whatsoever, nor any sign of peace. . . The total Arab strength is now higher than it was last May," he said, "and Israel is much weaker than it was last June. . . Israel is stronger in conviction and support, and it has better borders, but in terms of hardware, it is much less prepared."

Thus far, according to Rabbi Friedman, "Israel has had 19 years of armistice and one year of cease fire. . . The casualty rate keeps mounting; there have been half as many casualties since the war as there were during it — most of them military, some civilian. We have lost 10 aircraft in fighting. Do you call that peace?" And he added, firing on the Suez Canal had started just the night before."

The Russians, the rabbi said, are supplying more and more arms, personnel and equipment to Egypt.

Rabbi Friedman ended by saying, "You stretched in 1967. This year the same is required. All the regular money is needed and a few million dollars more."

A major announcement was made at the meeting by Judge Frank Licht, GJC president, that the United Jewish Appeal agencies of Pawtucket, Woonsocket and Newport had merged with the General Jewish Committee of Providence to form "a total united committee for the State of Rhode Island." Newport, which has already run its campaign, will run its next year's campaign with the other cities.

Also speaking at the dinner were Robert A. Riesman, general chairman of the campaign; Joe Thaler, Initial Gifts chairman, and Merrill L. Hassenfeld, honorary president of the GJC.

AJC Asks End Of Military Chaplaincy; Replacement By Civilian Chaplains

MIAMI — The American Jewish Congress, an advocate of church-state separation, called today for termination of the military chaplaincy system and its replacement by civilian chaplains paid by their respective faiths.

Five hundred delegates unanimously approved a resolution on this issue at the organization's national biennial convention, at the Doral Country Club.

The resolution asked the National Council of Churches, the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and the Synagogue Council of America — the representative body of the rabbinic and congregational arms of the three branches of Judaism — to ask the Administration for "an orderly termination" of the present chaplaincy system.

"Religion," the resolution said, "must always remain the guardian of the nation's conscience and the moral judge of its actions. It cannot fulfill that sacred responsibility if it is at the same time the handmaiden of government."

The action reflected an increasing discontent among religious groups with the idea of spiritual leaders serving in uniform in the Vietnam war, which many clergymen oppose on moral grounds. The Christian Century, a leading Protestant weekly, has urged church groups to reconsider their position on the chaplaincy question.

Recently the student bodies of the rabbinic training school at Yeshiva University, which is Orthodox, and the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, Conservative, ended their self-imposed draft of newly ordained rabbis into the chaplaincy service. They replaced it with a voluntary program of military service as chaplains.

On the other hand, some Jewish spiritual leaders have called it a "moral imperative" for newly ordained rabbis to serve as counselors to Jews in the armed forces.

In their resolution, the delegates said the nation's newspapers "can be conscientious and truthful reporters of military events and effective critics of military policy because they are not financed by the Government and their reporters neither bear military rank nor are paid by the Government."

"Religion and chaplains, we believe must certainly be no less independent," the resolution added.

In an interview, Leo Pfeffer, the organization's special counsel and an authority on church-state law, said the Supreme Court had never decided the question of the constitutionality of military chaplains. The reason for this, he said, is that taxpayers seeking to challenge the practice in the courts have been held to be without legal standing to sue.

He noted that the Supreme Court was now considering whether taxpayers had the legal right to challenge an expenditure of Federal funds on the ground that such spending violated the principle of church-state separation.

Mr. Pfeffer, a professor of constitutional law at Long Island University, said the use by the state of priests to bolster the moral of soldiers in war went back to ancient times. He noted that the Book of Deuteronomy contained a reference to it. He noted also that the Biblical prophets Isaiah and Jeremiah had strongly opposed the military policies of the state.

"It is this conflict between support of the state and adherence to conscience that represents the dilemma of many military chaplains," Mr. Pfeffer said. "They feel a sacred obligation to minister to the religious needs of soldiers engaged in battle. But they can effect this only by accepting a military rank, military pay and military discipline from the political state. Implicit in this is the obligation to support the military policies of that state."

Claim Desecration Of Moslem Shrines

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — A document containing photographs purporting to show evidence of Israeli desecration of Moslem shrines and Christian churches and cemeteries in the Israel sector of Jerusalem since 1948 was made public recently.

The document, submitted by Jordan to Secretary General U Thant on April 19, was prepared by "The Institute for Palestine Studies."

The Institute describes itself as "an independent non-profit Arab research organization not affiliated to any government, political party or group, devoted to a better understanding of the Palestine problem."

AT TEMPLE SINAI

By CELIA ZUCKERBERG

There are about 70 of them, ranging in age from 6 up through the teens. There is noise, there seems to be utter confusion. The adults shake their heads. . . it doesn't look like anything other than maybe a teen-age sit-in. Particularly with some of the costumes they're wearing.

But on Saturday, May 25 at 7:30 p.m., and Sunday, May 26, at 2:30 p.m., at Pilgrim High School in Warwick, members of Temple Sinai's youth groups (the Rebels and Crafty), the members of the temple Sunday school, and the adults of Temple Sinai, under the direction of Edward Davidson will present what undoubtedly will be an extremely well-done and pleasant version of the Wizard of Oz . . . with changes.

According to Mr. Davidson, this Wizard of Oz is different than the ordinary production. New songs and dances have been added as well as a corps de ballet. The Cranston East High School 20-piece orchestra will play for the production.

Members of the cast include Joan Segal, announcer; Janet Roseman, Dorothy; Phil Sadler, Strawman; Scott Bander, Tin Man; Peter Fellman, Lion; Robert Morse, Wizard; Nancy White, Good Witch; Lori Solinger, Bad Witch; Andy Segal, Mayor; Marc Berkowitz, Coroner. The leaders of the Munchkins are Sue Wexler, Sue Gertz, Michael Abrams and Alan Sadler.

In charge of the dance arrangements is Janice Abrams. The dancers are Janice, Ann Bender, Margie Berko, Stu Blazer, Ellen Block, Sharon Jacobs, Ellen Halperin, Michael Nathans, Robert Morse and Lois Roth. Jerry Gorden arranged the character dances and Mrs. Wendy Billig was the musical director for the Munchkins.

Those who worked behind the scenes include Richard Davidson,

Purge Of Jews In Polish Industries Spreads To Provincial Cities

WASHINGTON — The purge of Jews from Poland's communications and film industries has spread to newspapers in provincial cities, according to reports from Warsaw received here. In the capital itself, Jewish editors and non-Jews opposed to the regime's increasingly repressive measures and its continuing anti-Jewish campaign, have resigned from their jobs.

Szymon Jakubowicz, a senior Jewish editor of the Government newspaper, Zycie Warszawy (Warsaw Life), quit his job in protest against the paper's policies, particularly its vociferous anti-Zionist line. Arthur Hajnicz, another Jew who is foreign editor, asked the Government press commissars for a transfer to a small, intellectual magazine. Mrs. Kamila Chylinska, a non-Jewish intellectual, and several other editors have submitted resignations.

According to Warsaw sources, changes — apparently the removal of Jewish staff members — are expected on two weekly magazines. One of them, the satirical journal, Szpilki, has been attacked in official quarters for its handling of "current issues." In the textile city of Lodz, 10 employees of newspaper or information media were expelled from the Communist Party, which demanded their dismissal from their jobs. Four are Jews and the others are believed to be intellectuals opposed to the Government's anti-Jewish campaign.

Mrs. Jerald P. Chorney

Miss Cheryl Sue Weinberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George K. Weinberg of 77 Sunset Terrace, Cranston, became the bride on Sunday, May 19, of Jerald Paul Chorney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Chorney of 249 Rochambeau Avenue. Rabbi Jacob Handler and Cantor Jack Smith officiated at the 6 p.m. candlelight ceremony which was held at Temple Beth Torah in Cranston. A reception followed at the temple.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a sleeveless gown of white organza fashioned with a pearl jeweled neckline with lace appliques. The fitted bodice fell into a skimmer fitted cage covering an A-line skirt. A cathedral length train, styled with matching lace, fell from her shoulders. An open pillbox of matching lace and pearls held her short, tiered veil. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis and ugris lilies cascading from a white, lace-covered Bible.

Miss Marsha Lee Weinberg served as maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Miss Virginia Koehler, Miss Kathleen Pella and Miss Linda Wachtenheim.

Everett Lee Chorney was best man for his brother. Ushers were Gerald Bedrick, William Bromberg, Robert Gustanian and Steven Perlow. Junior ushers were Ronald Chorney, brother of the bridegroom, and Richard Weinberg, brother of the bride.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will reside at the Warwick Arms, Warwick.

The bride was graduated from Our Lady of Fatima Hospital and Northeastern University School of X-Ray Technology. A graduate of Roger Williams College, Mr. Chorney is a division merchandiser at W. T. Grant's.

The David T. Schiffs of Kuhn, Loeb admire the Delacortes carousel clock in Central Park's Zoo. When Schiff asked his wife what she'd like for her birthday, she said she'd like that clock. He had a miniature — made of lapis, gold and diamonds — created by those who'd made the carousel clock. It's now in Knoedler's "Art and the Animals" charity exhibit.

Schiff believes this is the art that will interest his offspring for generations.

The people of Israel can't help clothe, feed and house immigrants anymore. They have their hands full protecting themselves.

There's no time to beat around the bush.

Look at today's headlines.

The story has not changed since last June.

That desperate fight for existence saved Israel from obliteration but drained her funds. In the meantime, thousands of immigrants are flooding in from all over the world.

These immigrants have escaped from persecution and deprivation
for a new life in Israel.
They need food, shelter, medicine, clothing, education, rehabilitation.

But now, in the aftermath of war, the people of Israel can no longer
help provide everything necessary.

The people of Israel are struggling to build a nation and they're struggling to keep it from being torn down.

The Six-Day War is over. But the emergency is not.

Yes, we know you gave the need is greater than

And the immigrants are our responsibility.

A Step Toward Peace?

Egypt's declaration that she is prepared to move toward a Middle East settlement in which Arab concessions might precede the withdrawal of Israeli troops from Arab lands is, on the face of it, a positive step toward peace. Heretofore, the Arabs have insisted on prior withdrawal of Israeli forces.

But the sincerity of Egypt's gesture toward peace is cast into doubt by the manner in which Cairo chose simultaneously to publicize an alleged agreement to open discussions with Ambassador Jarring at the United Nations. The Egyptians have irritated Israel and embarrassed the UN envoy by releasing what they said was the text of a Jarring letter to U Thant. The letter reports that Israel and the United Arab Republic have "accepted" the Security Council resolution of last Nov. 22 and intend "to make arrangements under my supervision to implement the provisions of this resolution."

Even if this is a true text, it was Mr. Jarring's prerogative to determine the timing and nature of its release after consultations with both sides.

Remembering Cairo's past performance in announcing and then rejecting an agreement to negotiate, at the same time attempting to shift the blame to Israel, there are grounds for wondering whether Cairo may not be preparing once more to try, as an observer put it, "to put the monkey on Israel's back."

Israel can best avert such a ploy by avoiding provocative actions and cooperating fully with Ambassador Jarring's discreet effort to promote fruitful discussions. The best place to put the true intentions of both sides to the test is in the arena of quiet diplomacy offered by Mr. Jarring, not in public declamation.

Irving Berlin At 80

It happened the day after the Americans entered Rome. Berlin and his troupe of GI performers arranged a show to which hundreds of Italian citizens were invited.

This was the first free theatrical performance these Italians had seen in 20 years. Under Mussolini their culture had been regulated. But no matter how hard Irving and his troupe tried they received very little response from the audience.

Finally Irving thought of the Lower East Side of New York where he had been raised, and he had an inspiration. He went to the center of the stage and in his high-pitched voice sang that old Italian folk song: "Oi Marie."

The Italians rose in their seats, first they cheered, then they wept for joy. Here in Rome, the capital of the operatic world, the Italians poured their hearts out to a simple little song, "Oi Marie," to bring them closer home.

On May 11, 1968, Irving Berlin celebrated his 80th anniversary. Two years before Berlin added a new song to his musical, "Annie Get Your Gun." The song was a sensation and had the audience standing at their seats cheering. Said Irv: "It's wonderful at the age of 78 to reach up and find it's still there."

And I wanted to see where it all started. I walked over to Pell Street in the heart of Chinatown, and stood in front of Number 20. The glass in the window was black with the dust and grime of years, but after a few moments the door opened and I was able to peek. Inside were a group of ragged old men, including a Chinese, picking over some rags and paper. It looked like some sort of salvage business.

This is where Irving Berlin wrote his first song. It was a saloon in those days known as the Pelham Cafe, run by a Roumanian Jew, Mike Salter.

Irving Berlin, the young immigrant boy from Russia, as Izzy Baline, got his first job at the Pelham Cafe as a singing waiter. Nick Schenk, later the movie mogul, was the bartender. While working for Mike Salter Berlin wrote his first song, "Marie from Sunny Italy."

A few years later Berlin got a job at a cafe owned by Jimmy Kelly, a famous prize fighter. Soon thereafter the entire country was humming "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and Irving Berlin was on his way.

Millions of American boys have marched off to three wars singing Irving Berlin's tunes: "Oh How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning," "A Pretty Girl is Like a Melody," "Remember," "White Christmas," "There's No Business Like Show Business," "This is the Army, Mr. Jones," "God Bless America," and dozens of others.

From a singing waiter on the Bowery to the position where he earned $15 million for Army Relief with his show, "This is the Army," all within the lifetime of an immigrant boy.

You can say it again: "God Bless America."

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

R.I. Jewish Historical Association

By Beryl Segal

The first president of the Rhode Island Jewish Historical Association, David C. Adelman, died during the year. His image will stand in front of every one who knew him at the Annual Meeting of the association.

David C. Adelman was not only one of the founders of this society which collects and preserves and records the events of Jewish interest in the state, but he also gave direction to the Historical Association and he set a pattern for the publication of Historical Notes.

This pattern is:

Nothing that is of historical value to the Jews of the state is to be left out of the library or the Notes.

Every event must be substantiated by careful research and study before it may be printed in the Notes.

History must not be colored by personal opinions, nor biased by prejudices.

The present editor of the Historical Notes adheres to these three principles. Dr. Seibert J. Goldowsky has brought out three volumes of the Jewish Historical Notes with the meticulous care and concern of a surgeon, which is his profession. Each Volume is a book you would want to keep in your library. Each Volume is sought by Universities and Historical libraries of the country.

Now the Jewish Historical Association is preparing Volume Five of the Historical Notes. The content of this volume is typical of the kind of material published in the Notes.

Miss Freda Egnal and Mrs. Gertrude Nisson Goldowsky are publishing their exhaustive study of the names of any Rhode Island Jews ever mentioned in the state depositories. This is besides the 500 page compilation and bibliography published in the previous Volume. With these two studies we have a complete document of Jews who have written anything and who are mentioned anywhere in Rhode Island.

Mr. Benton Rosen is writing about the First Conservative Synagogue in Providence — Temple Beth Israel. The Congregation has been the subject of several articles by Harry Rosen. That was in the 1920's. They appeared in the "Herald" of those days. Harry Rosen wrote mainly of the early days of Beth Israel. Now Benton Rosen brings the Congregation up to date. It is the irony of fate that just as Mr. Rosen's article was handed to the printers the Temple was all but destroyed by fire. What will happen to the Congregation after the fire will have to await a future historian.

A teacher who is remembered, nostalgically remembered, some thirty years after his death must have given to his pupils something to carry with them all the days of their life. This was the case of the man who was the Director of Education at Sons of Zion, Hyman Lasker. His life and his work is remembered by Rabbi Meir Lasker, of Philadelphia, a son of the teacher, and Beryl Segal. The many students of Reb Hyman Lasker will want to read this article and reminisce.

Rabbi William G. Braude writes in his inimitable way about the three Synagogues which Temple Beth El has built in Providence since 1877. It is impossible to impart the essence of his paper called "We Look Back." You have to read it.

The volume also carries pictures of Adelman, of the New Providence Conservative Synagogue in 1921, of the Home of the Congregation Sons of Israel and David (Temple Beth El) between the years 1877 - 1883, and of Hyman Lasker and his wife.

A Volume of Historical Notes to read and to keep on the shelves of the home library.

We never get tired of reminding every secretary of an organization, every director of an institution, to keep records of all that is going on in the organization and to preserve all the proceedings. It is of these

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

Less than four weeks from today, on June 12, the new Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 goes into effect. The law, passed by Congress late last year, could turn out to be a surprisingly important "sleeper" legislation.

Here are the basic provisions:
Employers of 25 or more persons, involved in interstate commerce, may no longer refuse to hire workers aged 40-65.

Employers may no longer fire employees in this age group because of age alone, or discriminate against them in terms of salary, seniority and other job conditions.

Employment agencies may no longer refuse to refer workers in this age group to prospective employers, or no longer may even try to classify them on the basis of age.

Labor unions may no longer exclude those in the 40-to-65 age bracket from membership or refuse to refer older members to employers simply because of their age.

Help wanted ads may no longer contain age specifications.

In essence, only where age is "a bona fide occupational qualification reasonably necessary to the normal operation of the particular business" may employers continue to bar the older worker.

If you are the typical middle-aged employee in this country materials that history is being made. The events may be ordinary in our own eyes today, but they will assume tremendous significance to those who will read about them twenty-five years or fifty years later.

And if you have material relating to organizations now extinct, any papers of man no longer with us, any newspaper clippings of events of Jewish interest that took place anywhere in Rhode Island, please send them to the Historical Association. The Library will preserve all of them for future studies.

The Annual Meeting of the Historical Association this year will take place on the afternoon of Sunday, May 26, at the John Brown House. As at previous Annual Meetings the Association will hear this year Dr. Malcolm H. Stern of Philadelphia. He will speak on the Genealogy of a Jewish Family in Old Newport.

Rabbi Malcolm Stern is the author of many articles and books on American Jewish History. He is not only a member of the American Historical Society, but also of the Society in England.

Recently he was made a Fellow of the American Society of Genealogists.

We hope you can come on Sunday afternoon and listen to Rabbi Stern as well as to the plans of the Historical Association for the future.

(Mr. Segal's opinions are not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

today, you probably have not experienced the bitter frustrations of job discrimination against those in your age group. You've lived mostly in "good times" and during an era of great and growing demands for workers.

But the fact is that employers across the U.S. are still practicing the cruelest type of job discrimination against many workers in their 40's, 50's and 60's. Over and above the personal agony, the fact is this is costing the U.S. economy an estimated $4 billion-plus a year in unemployment compensation and lost production.

Today, more than one in four job openings are closed to those over age 45 and two in four job openings are barred to those over 55. Workers aged 45 and over now constitute a disproportionate 40 per cent of the nation's long-term unemployed, and two out of five unemployed workers aged 45-65 have been out of work for 15 weeks or more. This type of job discrimination is a key reason why so many Americans are now choosing early retirement at greatly reduced pension benefits — all the more significant when you consider that the average 55-year-old worker has 12 more years of work ahead of him, more than one-fourth of his working lifetime.

For years, employers have been shunning the older worker on the basis that he is physically weaker, has a high rate of absenteeism and isn't adaptable to change. But also for years, I've been submitting study after study to show that older workers actually have lower absenteeism rates, change jobs less frequently, and perform their jobs more enthusiastically than do younger workers.

The ban on age discrimination is a vitally important addition to the national prohibition, under the 1964 Civil Rights Act, against job discrimination because of race, creed, color, sex or national origin. But as far as age is concerned, this should be just a starter.

Our corporation mandatory retirement rules are a hangover from a period when life expectancy was much shorter and their was a surplus — in contrast to today's shortage — of skilled workers.

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

One of the best features of running a Bridge Club and directing the Tournaments there is the opportunity to follow the interesting hands from table to table. Sometimes, however, the crowd is so large I am too busy to do this and have to wait until the end of the evening to hear about the better problems. Naturally, slams create the most interest even though they usually are easier to play than the part-score hands. Only one Declarer was able to make today's hand because this Declarer gave himself every possible chance whereas the others relied on a finesse. The good player will not take a finesse unless it is the last resort.

South

♦ A Q 5

Mr. and Mrs. Saul Breslow, of Providence were North and South, all vulnerable, South dealer. The bidding:

1H	P	3H	P
4NT	P	5H	P
6H	P	P	P

The only comment I can make on the bidding is that South had no thoughts whatever to go to seven even though all the Aces were accounted for. North's Three Heart bid was a limit bid showing no more than 15 points so South knew that many high cards were out against him. The problem soon arose to make six.

West led the Spade 10 won by Dummy's Ace. Declarer could see that he had one sure Diamond loser and that if he took a losing finesse in that suit he could lose a second trick and go down. All of the other Declarers did exactly that and failed to make the hand. But our hero was not going to gamble everything on one card, at least not yet. He ruffed a Spade, drew the Trumps in two rounds, played the Ace and King of Clubs and ruffed a Club. He then ruffed Dummy's last Spade.

At this point he was going to do what the others did but in the meantime he was carefully watching the cards played by the defenders. He then realized that he had an additional chance that was actually foolproof depending on who showed up with a certain seemingly insignificant card. He played his last Club ready to ruff it in Dummy if he had to but first he awaited West's play. If West showed out of Clubs then he would indeed ruff and would now have to rely on that Diamond finesse but if West was the defender holding that remaining Club as he actually is then a better line of play has just presented itself. It was actually there for all the Declarers but only this one availed himself of it.

When West played that Club Jack, instead of ruffing, Declarer discarded one of the losing Diamonds in Dummy. He was now certain of his contract no matter who held that Diamond King for West was now on lead and what was he to do? He was now out of both Hearts and Clubs. A Spade lead would provide a sluff and ruff while a Diamond lead would be donating a free finesse right into the Ace, Queen. He did lead a Diamond taking the one chance that his partner held the Queen. At least that did have a possibility whereas the Spade lead would automatically concede the contract. This defender was counting, too.

So the contract was made and deservedly so. I only pity the poor opponents who received a bottom through no fault of their own. This is one of the few faults to find with the fairness of Duplicate Bridge when one plays the wrong hand against a certain opponent and to use the applicable term, they are "Fixed". These do tend to even up, however, when one gets a gift from an inferior pair. At times, no matter how bad a pair may be they can do no wrong on some hands.

Moral: This has to do with attitude. No matter what may happen to you in any one particular hand, forget it and play the next one as if it is the only hand you are going to play. This goes for rubber Bridge as well as Duplicate.

SAYS TO FORGET

SALONIKA, Greece — Nazi crimes against humanity must be exempted from the injunction to "forgive and forget," a leader of the Greek-Jewish community declared in an address at a memorial meeting here honoring those who perished in the Nazi Holocaust.

Prof. C. Azarias of Salonika University said "Of course we must forget and forgive and try to eradicate hatred from our hearts. But there are some events, like the crimes of the Nazi era, the memory of which must be kept undimmed throughout the ages."

"This must be done as a sacred duty to the memory of the victims and to mankind as a whole. We must remember and remind future generations so that they are forewarned against a repetition of such crimes against any group of exposed human beings."

Women's Association At The Miriam
Presents $20,000 Check To Hospital

A check for $20,000, representing the fund-raising efforts of The Miriam Hospital Women's Association, was presented to Paul Levinger, hospital president, on Monday afternoon at the annual luncheon-meeting of the group.

Mrs. Eugene M. Nelson, retiring president of the women's association, said that the bulk of the money is for the new emergency unit, now nearing completion at the hospital.

Mr. Levinger discussed the hospital's affiliation with the Brown University medical science program and said ground would be broken during the summer for the recently announced $1,600,000 research building at The Miriam.

Mrs. Nelson was succeeded as women's association president by Mrs. Sidney Weinstein. Associate Justice Alfred Joslin of the Rhode Island Supreme Court, a Miriam trustee, installed the officers.

These included Mesdames Leonard Friedman, first vice-president; Joseph Thaler, second vice-president; Abraham Schwartz, third vice-president; Ben Sinel, treasurer; Robert Sholler, recording secretary; and Jason Siegel, corresponding secretary.

Also, Mesdames George B. Botvin, mailing secretary; Robert Kingsbury and Geoffrey O'Brien, assistants; Ephraim Feingold, financial secretary; Eli Adelman and David Pollock, assistants, and Louis Fain and Robert Sauber, auditors.

Elected to the board of directors for two years are Mesdames Joseph Adelson, Irving Baker, Donald Barrengos, Herman Bennett, Robert Bernstein, Leonard Chaset, Samuel Fabricant, A. Henry Fox, Arnold Goldman, Seebert J. Goldowsky and Robert N. Greene. Also, Mesdames Howard Lampal, A. Budner Lewis, Howard R. Lewis, Milton Lewis, Aaron Mittleman, Samuel Rapaport, Jr., Herbert Rosen, Jules Sorgman, Herbert Friedman and Banice Webber.

Outgoing officers who automatically serve on the board for one year are Mesdames Milton I. Brier, Henry Husserl, Joseph Schwartz, Henry Mason and Sidney Nulman.

Mrs. Howard R. Lewis was chairman of the nominating committee. Mrs. William P. Weinstein, a past president of the Women's Association, was chairman of the day's program.

Nurse Remembers Miriam
As Mr. Segal Wrote Of It

Each week I enjoy Beryl Segal's column in the Herald, but this last week's tribute to Ann Corey and Mollie Fulton really brought back fond memories. As a recent graduate nurse embarking upon private duty nursing, Ann Corey, Mollie Fulton and Beryl himself were of great help to me nearly 30 years ago on my first trip into the old Miriam Hospital.

As Mr. Segal noted in his story, Mollie was one of the greatest nurses I have known. Ann Corey did more than just run the switchboard for 10-12 hours at a stretch. She was and still is ever ready to give a helping hand or just be a good listener when we had something to get off our chest.

Mr. Segal always had time to brief us on the medications we were using and could and still can take time out to answer any of the many questions we might have.

The Miriam Hospital is indeed fortunate in having such loyal and qualified people on its staff.

Hello Again!

Sports News By Warren Walden

SO WHAT? SO THIS — I'm protesting! I'm objecting vehemently! And that's really objecting. I'm batting for the people who do good and I want the world to know when someone does something commendable. And, I'm suggesting that good deeds get at least as much recognition as bad things get when the news media is making up its pages or programs.

THE TIME IS NOW — It's time that the good guys receive praise. The news media, it seems, jumps at the opportunity for headlining something bad and, if one didn't know different, one might think that the bad outweighs the good. It doesn't. If it did, there just wouldn't be any charitable funds for the purpose of helping those less fortunate than others. Thousands of good people contribute to charities unheard, unsung and unheralded.

CAPPY SAID SO — I was talking with president-elect Louis Capobianco of Providence Central Lions Club to other night. Louis is the entrepreneur, connoisseur, gourmet and gourmand at Johnson's Hummocks when not attending to Lions Club charities. He was modestly mentioning that "We gave a thousand dollars to this — and a thousand dollars to help that — etc. and no one ever knows about it." And now the Lions are sponsoring a boxing show that will be held at Rhodes-On-The-Pawtuxet on Monday night for the purpose of enriching the funds that enable them to give to this and that. I want everyone to know about it; about the effort by the Central Lions; and I want everyone to attend.

GOOD SHOW - GOOD CAUSE — This isn't just another "smoker-type" charity show. It's a real one. The Lions asked Manny Almeida, well versed in boxing lingo and well known in ring circles, to be their match-maker. Manny agreed and he has lined up an attractive card. His main event lists a pair of heavyweights in Dennis Swears of Worcester and Barry O'Neil of Cranston. It's scheduled for ten rounds but could explode in less due to the pulverizing powers and devastating punching potentialities of those big fellows. Almeida has an eight rounder scheduled as a semi-final, bringing together a pair of lightweights in Hector Rodriguez of Providence and Marcelino Alicia of Worcester. They are a pair that provided fistic fireworks when they met several weeks ago at R.I. Auditorium and, in continuing their feud, have what it takes for spelling lightning action from the open bell. Two six round bouts and a four round preliminary round out the card which should give you fans an idea of the type of show the Lions are sponsoring. One more thing: Harry Devoe, who has generally been known as a track and field authority, is chairman of the boxing committee for the Lions. And so, those Lions are trying and are deserving of recognition and help in their efforts. Who can tell? You might need the help of their charities sometime. I might, too.

WEEB'LL BE THERE — It's Weeb Ewbank, the successful head coach and general manager of the New York Jets of The American Football League. Weeb is going to be the principal speaker at the 16th annual banquet and sports awards night of the R. I. Jewish Bowling Congress on June 3rd at Colony Motor Hotel. Ewbank was backfield coach and basketball coach at Brown U. after World War II. Since then he has developed some great pro football stars including Johnny Unitas. And, if you encounter Joe Postar,

FIRST BORN

The first born, according to Hebrew tradition, receives special privileges and a double share of the father's inheritance. But modern Israeli law does not recognize special privileges for the first-born.

his excitement and enthusiasm will sweep you right into the banquet. Joe will tell you that Russ Gray is going to be honored and that Ambrose Smith is going to be toastmaster and more and more too. Looks like a big night, eh ... A good one - and stop, RATED SIXTH - (Not bad) — Jim Lonborg of the Red Sox is rated sixth by "Sport World Magazine." Juan Marichal is listed as No. 1 in the top ten ... The same mag says, "Dark must light fire to keep Indian Teepee in Cleveland" and it calls Sam McDowell a "flamethrowing southpaw".

Well that's it - and - this is too: If you can't say something good, don't say a thing! - CARRY ON!

Robert Riesman Named Congress 'Man Of Year'

Robert A. Riesman, executive vice-president of Carol Cable Company of Pawtucket, Division of Avnet, Inc., and civilian aide to the Secretary of the Army for Rhode Island, has been selected as Rhode Island Jewish Man of the Year by the R. I. Jewish Bowling Congress. He will receive the Joseph Dressler Memorial Award at the 16th Annual Banquet of the Congress on June 3 at the Colony Motor Hotel. Leonard Waldman, Congress president, made the announcement today.

Major-General Leonard Holland, adjutant general of the state and recipient of the same honor in 1963, will present the award to Mr. Riesman.

Mr. Riesman, a 1940 graduate of Harvard University, served in the field artillery during World War II, and was demobilized as a lieutenant-colonel. A member of the board of directors of the Development Corporation of Israel, he has been campaign chairman of the General Jewish Committee for the past two years. He is a trustee of the Miriam Hospital, Rhode Island Jewish Home for the Aged, Temple Emanu-El and Lincoln School, and is a member of the President's Council of Providence College.

Serves As Liaison Between Egypt, Israel

JERUSALEM — A prominent West Banker who was once a member of the Jordanian Cabinet and speaker of the Parliament in Amman, is serving as a voluntary, unofficial liaison between Israeli leaders and leaders of Egypt and Jordan.

According to reports, Hikmat Al Masri has conferred with Prime Minister Levi Eshkol, Foreign Minister Abba Eban and other high-ranking Israelis prior to visiting Cairo and Amman.

According to reports last week, he had little new information to convey except that in his opinion, both President Gamal Abdel Nasser and King Hussein are seeking to keep the mission of United Nations Envoy Dr. Gunnar Jarring alive.

N. Y. Archbishop Vows To Continue To Seek Closer Ties With Jews

NEW YORK — The Most Rev. Terence J. Cooke, the new Archbishop of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York, pledged to continue to seek closer relationships between Catholic and Jewish organizations here.

"In 1968 we Catholic people are anxious to salute our Jewish brothers anew," Archbishop Cooke said. "Conscious of our common heritage of salvation in the covenant made between God and Abraham and his descendants, we pledge ourselves to continue fostering stronger and more extensive bonds of mutual respect, concern and cooperation."

Archbishop Cooke spoke at a luncheon held in his honor by the American Jewish Committee at its national headquarters. About 60 leaders of the human relations agency attended the luncheon, which the committee said was the first public event arranged by a Jewish group for Archbishop Cooke since his investiture on April 4.

Stressing an ecumenical theme, Archbishop Cooke called New York "a great Jewish city and a great Christian city" and said opportunities were extraordinary for the two faiths to work together. Referring to such areas, the Archbishop said:

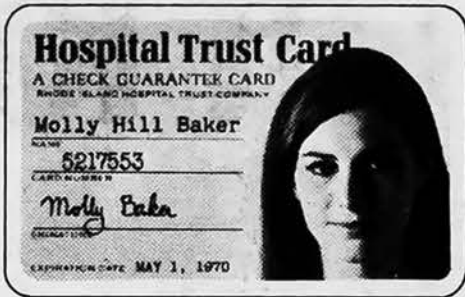

"The pursuit of justice in civil rights and the resolution of our serious urban problems are surely areas in which our cooperation can bear rich fruit."

Archbishop Cooke noted that the Ecumenical Council Vatican II, adopted a document absolving the Jewish people of blame for the death of Christ.

BARNEY GLAZER

In Hollywood

Jackie Cooper, West Coast chief of Screen Gems, and his charming wife, Barbara, recently hosted a party at their Beverly Hills home in honor of Renee Valente, transferred here from New York as the studio's new talent director.

While I was telling Miss Valente that I had thought she is Italian but had just learned she is Jewish, actress Jan Sterling overheard and said, "Did you two know that I'm now one of you? I just converted to Judaism."

I told Jan, "Yes, I mentioned it in my column recently and I'm delighted."

She repeated Sammy Davis' original statement that she too had studied many religions before deciding that Judaism offered what she could not find elsewhere.

Also at the party, Shari Lewis, without Lamb Chop, Charley Horse and Hush Puppy, discussed her new book, "The Truth about Golf and Other Lies." You can't get much cuter than Shari or her book title. Her husband, Jerry Tarcher, is a prominent book publisher.

Bob Claver, executive producer of Screen Gems' new series for the coming season, Here Come the Brides, told me an interesting fact about Occasional Wife, another show he once produced for the same studio.

Although the canceled series costars, Michael Callan and Patricia Harty, soon will be married, Claver said they started out in complete disagreement. At the time, both were married to others and they argued constantly during production.

Not until their respective marriage had started to melt at the seams did Callan and Patricia find solace in each other's company. That changed to friendship then admiration, and, in time, to love - shall we say? - at last sight.

Also at the Coopers' house party for Miss Valente, former TV star Burt Metcalf advised he is now casting director at Screen Gems for Here Come the Brides and Bewitched. Burt once played with Jackie Cooper in Hennessey and later portrayed the bridegroom costar role in the TV series, Father of the Bride.

Metcalf said he gave up the acting ghost because "I had it up to here with an actor's problems." He claims he found his true happiness behind the camera. Burt's parents lived in Montreal and he later lived for a few years in Winnipeg, where many of his family still reside.

Michael Ansara, husband of I Dream of Jeannie's Barbara Eden, highly praised Irwin Allen's new science-fiction series, Land of Giants, in which Ansara played a guest role. The actor predicts the series will be one of the new season's hits. Irwin Allen has come a long way with many successful TV series since he first communicated with this column as a press agent.

Jackie Cooper announced that Screen Gems has scheduled a junket to Mexico City and Acapulco at the end of May. During the trip, arranged by Publicity Director James Hardiman, assisted by Len Weissman, TV editors and columnists of major national newspapers will interview stars of the studio's new series including: Here Come the Brides, The Outcasts, and The Ugliest Girl in Town; also stars of renewed series including: Bewitched, I Dream of Jeannie, Days of Our Lives and The Flying Nun, the latter oddly enough produced by my good Jewish friend Harry Ackerman and costarring that wonderful Sephardic Jewish actress, Shelly Morrison, as Sister Sixto.

News about these series and interviews with their stars may be read in this column following my return from Mexico, where I'm anxious to seek out and visit with the country's Jewish citizens.

A NEW LINK
NEW YORK — The Israel Government has realigned its economic offices in this country to incorporate export promotional activity with the functions of its Investment Authority office here, it was announced. The combined operation will be known as the Israel Government Investment and Export Authority and will be under the direction of Baruch Barak, who recently assumed direction of the American office of the Investment Authority.

BARNEY GLAZER

In Hollywood

Jackie Cooper, West Coast chief of Screen Gems, and his charming wife, Barbara, recently hosted a party at their Beverly Hills home in honor of Renee Valente, transferred here from New York as the studio's new talent director.

While I was telling Miss Valente that I had thought she is Italian but had just learned she is Jewish, actress Jan Sterling overheard and said, "Did you two know that I'm now one of you? I just converted to Judaism."

I told Jan, "Yes, I mentioned it in my column recently and I'm delighted."

She repeated Sammy Davis' original statement that she too had studied many religions before deciding that Judaism offered what she could not find elsewhere.

Also at the party, Shari Lewis, without Lamb Chop, Charley Horse and Hush Puppy, discussed her new book, "The Truth about Golf and Other Lies." You can't get much cuter than Shari or her book title. Her husband, Jerry Tarcher, is a prominent book publisher.

Bob Claver, executive producer of Screen Gems' new series for the coming season, Here Come the Brides, told me an interesting fact about Occasional Wife, another show he once produced for the same studio.

Although the canceled series costars, Michael Callan and Patricia Harty, soon will be married, Claver said they started out in complete disagreement. At the time, both were married to others and they argued constantly during production.

Not until their respective marriage had started to melt at the seams did Callan and Patricia find solace in each other's company. That changed to friendship then admiration, and, in time, to love - shall we say? - at last sight.

Also at the Coopers' house party for Miss Valente, former

TV star Burt Metcalf advised he is now casting director at Screen Gems for Here Come the Brides and Bewitched. Burt once played with Jackie Cooper in Hennesey and later portrayed the bridegroom costar role in the TV series, Father of the Bride.

Metcalf said he gave up the acting ghost because "I had it up to here with an actor's problems." He claims he found his true happiness behind the camera. Burt's parents lived in Montreal and he later lived for a few years in Winnipeg, where many of his family still reside.

Michael Ansara, husband of I Dream of Jeannie's Barbara Eden, highly praised Irwin Allen's new science-fiction series, Land of Giants, in which Ansara played a guest role. The actor predicts the series will be one of the new season's hits. Irwin Allen has come a long way with many successful TV series since he first communicated with this column as a press agent.

Jackie Cooper announced that Screen Gems has scheduled a junket to Mexico City and Acapulco at the end of May. During the trip, arranged by Publicity Director James Hardiman, assisted by Len Weissman, TV editors and columnists of major national newspapers will interview stars of the studio's new series including: Here Come the Brides, The Outcasts, and The Ugliest Girl in Town; also stars of renewed series including: Bewitched, I Dream of Jeannie, Days of Our Lives and The Flying Nun, the latter oddly enough produced by my good Jewish friend Harry Ackerman and costarring that wonderful Sephardic Jewish actress, Shelly Morrison, as Sister Sixto.

News about these series and interviews with their stars may be read in this column following my return from Mexico, where I'm anxious to seek out and visit with the country's Jewish citizens.

Israel and the Arabs

The Arabs insisted that the recent Israeli parade in Jerusalem was a provocative affront. The Israelis insist that President Nasser's speeches are not just provocative but menacing. In fact, neither the parade nor the speeches make much difference to the realities of the Middle Eastern situation. The parade, celebrating 20 years of independence, has meant a great deal to the Israeli nation but it does not mean that they are about to invade an Arab country. Nor does President Nasser's persistently warlike talk mean that Egypt is ready to start again. The obvious deduction to be drawn from Nasser's flow of fierce oratory is that he wants to keep control of his people. If he stopped saying warlike things someone else would take up the thread of his discourse and (perhaps) outbid him.

In practice, of course, there is no reason, military or other, why Israel should withdraw from the lands that she won last summer except in return for a guaranteed settlement. A voluntary Israeli withdrawal would be a "miracle," as the editor of "Al Ahram," Mr. Haykal, candidly observed in his newspaper in December. The Israeli Foreign Minister, Mr. Eban, has told the UN that Israel's determination never to return to the vulnerable position of a year ago must "prevail over every other consideration." This is a justifiable demand.

The Security Council resolution, sponsored by Great Britain, and accepted unanimously in November might seem a solution. This resolution still enjoys the support of all the Great Powers, France and Russia included. This resolution calls for Israeli withdrawal from the occupied territories but it equally insists on Arab recognition of Israel's "sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence." It calls for free navigation through international waterways, a settlement of the refugee problem, and the creation of demilitarized zones. The only problem here is would the Arabs, even if they agreed, keep to their agreement? We doubt it.

Israel has quarrels with three neighbors—Syria, Jordan and Egypt—and the quarrel that can be settled most easily is the one with Egypt. In practice Israel wants freedom of passage for Israeli cargoes (not even necessarily for the Israeli flag) through the Suez Canal and the Straits of Tiran. Israel also wants to be recognized de facto by Egypt, and, above all, Israel wants the security insisted on by Mr. Eban. President Nasser could afford to concede all this in return for a really massive internationally financed resettlement program for the refugees, a program that could bring to the Sinai Desert the kind of development that both Israeli and Egyptian experts have already proved possible. And along with the aid President Nasser could afford to accept the demilitarization of Sinai. But how adequate guarantees could be given to Israel is hard to resolve.

The other problems are even more difficult. Israel, of course, will not give up Jerusalem. Nor will Israel retreat from the Syrian heights. The reason for this can easily be understood. But the future of the Gaza strip and the west bank of Jordan must surely be negotiable. Not to negotiate is, for both sides, shortsighted: for ultimately it makes another war more likely with grievous loss and suffering to both where instead there could be peace and new prosperity. The only problem has been that the Arabs, in Egypt or elsewhere, will not agree to talk with the Israelis. Unilateral negotiation is quite impossible.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

Ann and I and the Pin

If you are a diligent reader of the Herald you may remember this picture of the Miriam Hospital. Her is Ann Corey being pinned by Miss Catherine Gergora. Mr. Jerome Sapolsky, the Executive Director of the Miriam Hospital, looks on, while I am standing and laughing at some remarks made by the photographer.

What was the occasion? Ann Corey completed thirty years while I worked twenty-five years at the Miriam Hospital.

When the pinning and the picture taking was over, Ann said to me:

"Where did the thirty years go?"

I remember the first day I came to work at the hospital some twenty-six years ago.

It was a crisp September day and I entered timidly into the Laboratory. I was to work with Miss Rose Duggan, a lady who came to the Miriam on graduation from Rhode Island University, and stayed here until she retired about three years ago. The Laboratory, X-Ray and the Pharmacy were all combined and shared between the two of us. In the morning I was to do Blood Analysis in the Laboratory while Miss Duggan took X-Ray pictures and did Electro-cardiographs. In the afternoon I was busy preparing medication at the Pharmacy while Miss Duggan worked in the Laboratory.

In addition to all this the two of us gave Intravenous Solution to patients, there being no Interns at the Hospital, and gave Blood Transfusions.

Today there are 28 technicians in the Miriam Laboratory and 18 assistants in X-Ray, besides the two Pathologists and the two Radiologists.

But then, the Miriam of those days was a small hospital of 64 beds, twelve of them were Obstetric cases which required no Laboratory or X-Ray work.

But we were to come in at night on alternate weeks, when called, which was most of the time.

And this is where I met Ann and Molly.

Molly would have been in the picture with Ann and me had not fate decreed otherwise.

Molly Haskins was the Night Supervisor at the Hospital. She was a heavy woman and she was a skillful nurse, and she worked with competence and compassion. Doctors knew that when Molly was in the house they could rest in peace at home. Molly did not leave the bedside of a sick person. She always hovered around the room and kept the doctor informed about any change in the condition of the patient.

And Ann Corey was always beside her. Many a child was born at the Miriam before the doctor arrived. It was delivered by Molly, assisted by Ann.

I remember the first day we moved into the New Miriam. The excitement. The inevitable confusion. The elation with the new surroundings. The Old Miriam was only a remodeled boarding and convalescent home. Now we were like all the hospitals, with a building of our own, and departments that looked imposing.

Then at night it happened. Molly was on the floors instructing the nurses and orienting herself in the new hospital, when suddenly she dropped to the ground and died.

She was the first person to die in the new hospital.

I remember Billy as he stood stunned and wiped tears from his eyes, as he told me how Molly had died.

Little Billy. He, too, would have been in the picture with Ann and me.

We called him Little Billy because there were other Bills working at the hospital. There was Big Bill, and Skinny Bill, and he, the smallest of the three, was called Little Billy.

What did Little Bill do? What didn't he do?

He was the Plumber, the Electrician, the Carpenter, the Furnace Man, and the Driver of the Hospital Car.

Little Bill was an English sailor who was stranded in America. He came to work in the Jewish Orphanage as the Maintenance Man and the All-Around-Handyman. But he was like one of the Orphan family. He taught the boys all kinds of tricks. He worked with them in the Orphanage garden. And he took them for walks in the parks of the city.

When the Orphanage was liquidated, Billy came over to the hospital. There he delighted everyone with his rich vocabulary. He hardly ever opened his mouth without a choice profanity coming out of his lips.

But Billy was the mainstay of the hospital. He had a room above the laundry and the supply room, and he was on call every minute of the day and night. He knew that everybody loved to hear his swear words and he obliged us while he went about his work.

When Billy died during the first two or three years in the New Miriam he left all his possessions to the hospital, and we put up a Memorial Fund in the name of William Patton.

That was the only time when we referred to him by his full name, William Patton.

Where did the years go, Ann? Let me quote from the book, "Sayings of the Fathers:"

"Rabbi Duso said:
"Sleeping away in the morning,
"Carousing around at noontime,
"Listening to the babbling of the vulgar,
"Waste the days of man."

We could not sleep late in the morning. We had to be at work at seven. You, Ann, for thirty-odd years and I for over twenty-five.

We did not carouse in the noontime. We had to rush back to our duties.

We did not listen to the babbling of the vulgar. We had our work to do. Hospital work is serious business.

Our years were not wasted. And it is good that someone kept the count of the years and is rewarding us for endurance and perseverance in the service of the Miriam Hospital.

Ghetto dwellers also are easy prey to dishonest encyclopedia and magazine subscription "salesmen." A may pose as a school official, then attempt to convince parents that their children will not be able to pass examinations or even get through school unless they buy this-or-that reference book. Psychiatrists have reported slum parents having nervous breakdowns due to guilt about being unable to afford to buy the books.

Slum stores will advertise apparently low-cost products strictly to get the customer into the store so he can be the target of pressure sales tactics. In one recent case, a New York victim responded to an offer of a complete kitchen for $250; he was talked into a $1,629 contract, and even then, the promised work was partially finished. In another case, a patio was advertised for $275; the victim ended up signing a contract for more than $1,000 and the patio caved in soon after it was installed.

Consumer goods of many types are routinely sold at outrageous prices in the slums. In Washington, D.C., a portable TV costing the retailer $109 was sold, on time, for $255 — although downtown stores offered the same set for $159.

Ghetto Gyps

The American Insurance Association has just reported that the nation's cities suffered a $51 million loss in property damage during the riots set off by the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King — and these are losses on insured property alone. It's also widely predicted that U.S. cities this summer may suffer property damage losses exceeding $150 million (the estimate for the 1967 riots.)

Why, millions are asking, do people living in the ghettos, burn and loot their own stores and businesses?

Surely, the biggest single factor is the Negro American's deep resentment over his inability to find a decent job or decent housing, or to earn an adequate income to support his family.

But this does not explain why the slum Negro loots and burns one store but leaves the next one untouched.

Could there be an answer in the evidence that hardest hit by the riots has been the ghetto gypster who charges exorbitant prices and exorbitant interest rates, and generally spared has been the merchant who sells his goods at fair prices on fair terms?

Although there are few hard facts on the subject, I suspect the connection is strong. To back up my hunch, here is a partial list of the gyps and excesses now being widely perpetrated by unscrupulous ghetto merchants:

When a poor-risk ghetto dweller buys a car, he easily can end up paying double the actual value of the car because of fantastic interest charges, although ads may imply big bargains. In one version, cars are advertised "repossession-take over payments," implying that the buyer will have to pay only the remaining debt on the car. As it turns out, he is forced to sign a completely new contract bearing no relation to the

There is a common saying that is so often true, "A little knowledge is a dangerous thing." This certainly does apply in today's hand. All the declarers knew that proper technique is to lead up to honors, so they all did to their dismay. This does not mean not to lead up to honors for normally that statement is correct. It only applies to this hand and others exactly like it when the outstanding honor cannot possibly be in the desired place.

North - South were vulnerable, East was dealer. The bidding:

E	S	W	N
1H	1S	P	2S
Dbl	4S	End

You will notice that no names are mentioned as having played the hand correctly. The reason is that no one made the hand except the writer which was very unfortunate for my opponents. In the parlance of tournament Bridge, they were "fixed", a term meaning that through no fault of their own they received a bad score because of something done to them by the opponents. If all the other Declarers had taken advantage of the bidding as I did they would have done the same as I.

Reviewing the bidding, after East had opened, many players would make a take-out double with the South hand to show strength. An overcall does not necessarily show as much in point count but does show a good suit and could be as strong or even stronger pointwise than a double. A vulnerable overcall has to be a good hand but I would have made the same bid without the two side Aces. North, my partner, fortunately did not take the attitude so many people do take. They pass saying "You only made an overcall". She raised feeling that we should be close to making two and if I had a good overcall I could go on as far as I liked. If I had the minimum, the opponents could make something and maybe she could keep them out. With my two Aces, I jumped right to game.

No matter how the bidding went most pairs reached the same contract and all received the same lead, the Heart 7. East won the 10 and played two more high Hearts, all Declarers ruffing the last one high knowing West had no more either. Nine tricks were certain but how to get the tenth was the problem. All the other Declarers drew Trump and then did what apparently came naturally, they played the Club Ace and then led toward the Queen hoping that West would have the King and that subsequently they could play to the Diamond King and use that now good Queen. When East pounced on the Queen with his King they could no longer make the contract.

I had no intention of playing the hand that way for I was well aware of what would happen if I ever did lead to that Club Queen. I realized that my only hope was to make East lead Clubs to me at some time so I set the stage for that happening. I drew the Trumps but did not stop there, instead playing out all of my Trumps. Remember I was confident from East's bidding that he probably held all the outstanding high cards.

From the Dummy I discarded a Club and a Diamond while East had to make three discards which I watched carefully. He threw one Heart for he had to guard against Dummy's Jack and then a Club and a Diamond. Now I had him. I simply played the Diamond Ace and King exhausting East of that suit and then let him have the Heart Jack on which I discarded a Diamond. All he had left now were the two Club honors. He led the Jack which I allowed to run around to the Queen in Dummy. That was the tenth trick.

Moral: Normally, leading up to an honor has an even chance of working, depending on where a certain other honor is but when it is impossible to work because of knowledge gained by the bidding or preceding cards played, try some other way to get the job done.

New Research Report answers today's questions about TRUNK AIRLINES STOCKS

This study concentrates on industry problems and prospects that every long-term investor should consider.

It explains why currently depressed airline stocks should represent outstanding value at some point. And, it presents our opinions about four assumptions which today's investor need make to take a favorable long-term view of airline stocks. Reasons are given for the conclusion that these stocks have a great deal of appeal on a work-out basis for long-term investors.

LIKE GUNGA DIN - It could be said of boxing as it was written of Gunga Din that, "Though you've belted me and flayed me etc. etc." Ah yes, the game may be down but never really out. At one time weekly shows were held at R.I. Auditorium and sometimes it was even difficult to get a ticket. That's when Manny Almeida was setting records for attendance and the accompanying financial receipts. It was when Rocky Marciano and Ralph Zannelli were the magnets of attraction while wearing the padded mittens. AND THEN - Suddenly the game of boxing almost evaporated. It went into discard and it disappeared from the sports scene. Some said that television helped to put the small boxing clubs out of business. They said that the very thing that built the game to its highest pinnacle also sent it skidding. Others said other things.

AND NOW - Here in these plantations and environs, we now find ourselves being offered a choice in the boxing menu. We find something to arouse interest in a new setting with two ring shows scheduled on successive weeks at Rhodes-On-The-Pawtuxet where once the sounds of tingling, rhythmic music kept the dancers in step. Now the rhythmic tapping of leather resounding off the chins and noses of the leather pushers will take over.

A NEW NAME, TOO - Next Wednesday, May 22nd, is the date for a presentation by Dario Enterprises, a new name in boxing promotions. Paddy Reed, a former boxer himself, is spreading the word concerning the program of four eight rounders and a couple of "fours." In the eights: Dave Hilton of Canada and the No. 7 contender for the British Empire Championship, is paired with Italian Billy Wallace; Dick Gambino of Providence will meet Julio Cruz of Puerto Rico; Tony Smith and Jimmy Cherico are listed for another eight; and Hank Giorgio is bracketed with Frank Smockvitch in another.

COLORFUL LIST - Several outstanding names in the world of boxing are being invited to attend and be presented. First of all, that "will-o-the-wisp," Willie Pep, is listed as referee. And it is reported that Rocky Marciano, Rocky Graziano, Tom McNeely, Jake LaMotta, Ralph Zannelli, Gil Turner and Harold Gomes are among a group of former champions who are being urged to attend. The brilliance of the past records of that group is enough to outshine the actual performers in the show.

AND MORE - Also at Rhodes on Monday the 27th is another boxing show that will be sponsored by Providence Lions Club and directed by the great Manny Almeida. This one will feature a couple of the bigger fellows in the main event when Barry O'Neil and Danny Swears test the strength of the ring structure in a scheduled 10-round. There'll be an eight rounder that should attract attention when Hector Rodriguez and Marshall Alicia tangle in the resumption of a feud that started at R.I. Auditorium when the last boxing show was there.

AND SO - Here we find ourselves being served two dishes of boxing warfare all of a sudden. And here we find the game being tried in new surroundings. And while on the boxing subject, that perennial promoter of the game, Joe Celletti says he is not going to allow Gene Palmer to enter the Eastern Division competition for the Olympics and he is also scratching the name of James Brown from the listings in that competition that will be held at Trenton. "They'll be ready next year," says Joe who adds, "Anyway, Eugene Palmer has a bad right thumb at the present time."

HE'LL PROVE IT - Ask Joe Langton, who is an all-time great as a punter at LaSalle Academy, to prove that he can still kick higher than his head. He can do it with ease. And remember, if you can't say something good, don't say anything. - Carry On!

Orthodox Establish New College

NEW YORK — A new Orthodox Jewish college has been established here in an attempt to cope with a "serious decline" of skilled teachers in Jewish educational institutions.

The school, the College for Torah Educators, will begin classes with an initial enrollment of about 45 students at 200 Park Avenue South, the headquarters of the National Council for Torah Education of Mizrahi-Hapoel Hamizrachi.

Heading the new institution is Dr. Rabbi Bernard Bergman, who outlined the new institution's functions and its major purposes.

Dr. Bergman, a graduate of both New York and Yeshiva Universities, cited a recent study by the National Council for Torah Education that cited whole structure of learning in a "serious breakdown in the Jewish day schools, afternoon schools and general Hebrew centers."

He pointed out that there are about 300 all-day Jewish schools, combining secular and religious studies, with an enrollment of 68,000 pupils. Dr. Bergman stressed that the lack of "competent teachers for the schools is so great that it is threatening their breakdown as well as that of afternoon and evening religious and educational institutions."

The new college will seek students from four major sources: those in the higher classes of rabbinical seminaries who do not intend to become rabbis, ordained rabbis who prefer to enter the teaching profession, Orthodox college students and Orthodox public school teachers—who are interested in teaching in afternoon religious schools to get extra income.

Rabbi Bergman said the new college would offer a two-year-intensive course with 800 hours of instruction in Judaic studies and professional training.

Classes are scheduled for four days a week — four periods on Sunday afternoons, and three periods each on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. Rabbi Bergman said that in addition, 75 hours of practice teaching under expert guidance and supervision would be provided.

The spiritual leader emphasized that the new college would adhere to strict Orthodox principles.

Instruction will be given in the Hebrew language, Bible, Jewish history, the Talmud, the Codes, and the history and problems of Jewish education, as well as methods of teaching, classroom management, general education and psychology to be taken at a recognized college.

The chairman of the college's executive committee is Joseph Straus, with Charles Bick, chairman of the board of governors. Both are lay leaders in American Orthodox Judaism.

of work-at-home schemes in which the advertised lure is high-paying employment, but the actual purpose of the ads is solely to sell "instructions" at excessive prices. In other instances, the victim is told he will receive, say, a free freezer if he can supply the names of X number of potential customers; he soon finds he is stuck with an ironclad installment contract. And slum dwellers are lured by unethical druggists into buying quantities of useless patent medicines at fantastic prices.

No report of the riots which I have read says anything about the gyps being peddled in our slums. But they are, I am convinced, explosive fuel for rioting, looting and arson.

Jewish Groups Join Others In Protesting Welfare Requirements

WASHINGTON — Two major Jewish organizations joined recently with national Protestant and Catholic groups in a petition to the Supreme Court to outlaw state residency requirements for welfare recipients for whom federally sponsored relief help is sought.

The five organizations filed a joint brief supporting lower court decisions which invalidated such residency requirements enacted by Connecticut, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia.

Joining with the American Jewish Congress and the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds, were the National Conference of Catholic Charities, the National Council of Churches, and the Scholarship, Education and Defense Fund for Racial Equality Inc., among others.

Federal aid is provided under the aid to families with dependent children law.

The brief argued that residency requirements placed an "unconstitutional burden" on the right to travel between states and that the requirements punished not only persons who might move for higher welfare payments "but also the family looking for work."

HARRY GOLDEN*The Vanishing Jew?

I recall reading a dispatch from Delray Beach, Fla., several years ago which described a nudist wedding ceremony. "A shapely brunette who wore only a veil, the 23-year-old sailor, her groom, clad only in a sun tan, were married Saturday under the palms," it said.

The dispatch, I remember, said the 200 guests were also nude. But the socko sentence read: "Besides the veil, which hung to a strategic length down her back, the bride, Sissy Dawson, 16, also wore white patent leather pumps and a Star of David hung on a long silver chain around her neck."

The Jews of my father's generation pondered each event in the world, asking themselves, "Is this good for the Jews or bad for the Jews?" I, too, shall ask, "Is a nudist wedding good for the Jews or bad for the Jews if the bride is Jewish?"

My answer is that it is good for the Jews. It shows everyone that we are as normal as everyone else. We are no enigma. We are part of the grand design, like everybody else.

I am not sure my liberal convictions extend wholeheartedly to nudism. It is true that I will fight to the death for someone's right to say what displeases me, but if you want to go around without clothes on, you'll have to go around alone as far as I am concerned. I admit the prejudice is very deep.

The Orthodox Jewish home was strict about the uncovered body. My mother made me turn my back whenever she adjusted one of her four petticoats, even when I was only ten years old. I was a son but also a male. Despite the cramped quarters of our tenement, and by cramped I mean seven members of a family occupying four rooms, we only presented ourselves to each other completely clothed.

There is in fact an apocryphal story about this law of the Jewish religion. It is told of the Jewish girl condemned to the stake by the Inquisition. When asked for her last request she begged her judges for some pins to pull together her skirts so that when she was dragged to the stake her lower limbs would not be uncovered.

Nakedness is contrary to our religion. During the Hellenistic period, when the Jews turned their back on their religion and tried to adopt the Greek culture, the symbolic rejection for the young men of the day consisted of appearing in the arena in sacerdotal nakedness.

But Judaism won over the Greek "invasion." It returned in time to an even greater austerity with regards to the clothed body. The Jews celebrate Chanukah to commemorate this victory.

But Sissy the fair in the bloom of 16 was another story. Married in the nude, wearing a Star of David around her neck, she proves that in America the Jews can do everything everybody else can do.

Israel's Merchant Marine Modern, Growing Rapidly

TEL AVIV — Israel is entering the third decade of her existence with a modern, rapidly growing merchant marine. Her fleet was described recently by two of her shipping executives as not only capable of fulfilling its basic economic obligations but also of becoming an increasingly important factor in world shipping.

The executives, Avner Manor, president of the American-Israeli Shipping Co., Inc., and Raphael Recanat, head of Cargo Ships El-Yam Ltd., expressed gratification that it was their country's announced policy to make freedom of navigation through the Suez Canal one of the conditions of a peace settlement.

Mr. Manor, whose company is owners' representative in North American for Zim Lines, Israeli's largest steamship company, said that free navigation through the waterway might prompt his company to establish round-the-world cargo services.

During the last decade the size of the Israeli merchant marine had tripled from 500,000 dead weight tons to about 1.5 million tons. Mr. Recanat noted that there had been a number of growth problems, among them the country's inability to train enough merchant seamen.

"One third of our seagoing manpower," he said, "are foreigners, but then again we are in the same boat as Norway, which also has to recruit one third of her seamen from abroad."

Israeli Army Plans To Remain On Present Cease-Fire Lines

TEL AVIV — Israeli Army planning for the current year is based on the assumption that the Army will remain on present cease-fire lines which will require an increased use of troops, Brig. Gen. Ezer Weizmann, chief of the Army's headquarters branch, reported last week.

He said the planning will take into account the lessons of last June's Six-Day War and will include an increase in armor and reorganization of artillery which will incorporate a "significant" amount of war booty.

Israel seized scores of Soviet-made tanks, guns and other equipment in its smashing victory in the Sinai Desert.

He reported that United States Skyhawk bombers and Bell-250 helicopters would be used in expansion of the Air Force but he stressed that the Army will always be ready to absorb the French-made Mirage-V supersonic jet plans if and when France ends its embargo on their shipment to Israel.
