Henrietta Jacobson, Julius Adler Appear In 'Come Blow Your Horn'

By CELIA ZUCKERBERG

Interviewing Henrietta Jacobson and Julius Adler (actually, they are Mr. and Mrs. Adler) was like visiting with a favorite aunt and uncle. They were interesting to talk to and they were entertaining; they also seemed like family.

As do all married couples, they occasionally have minor disagreements (we'd ask one a question and the other would answer or contradict the statement), but before we had a chance to say anything, Mr. Adler said that that was the way they lived when they weren't working — they argued.

But he added, when friends asked if they had considered divorce, he answered, "I've thought of murder, not a divorce." Actually, we're sure they enjoy their arguments and would feel completely lost if they couldn't continue having them.

Mr. and Mrs. Adler who are appearing in "Come Blow Your Horn," which is now at the Chateau de Ville in Warwick, were brought up in the theater, both coming from families with a long tradition of theater. In the Neil Simon comedy, they appear as the Jewish parents of two children who don't follow the expected Jewish life style. Mr. Baker gives Mrs. Baker fits over his two wayward sons. The parts seem to be tailor-made for the Adlers.

The two of them have appeared on both the Yiddish stage and the English stage, they have appeared in night clubs and in vaudeville. They have played in every form of the theater, and they still love it.

Mr. Adler, for 14 years, produced and directed Jewish plays in his own theater in New York. But as the Yiddish theater declined, they decided it would be better to go back to acting in the English theater. However, he insists, that even if there is only one Jew left who understands the Yiddish language, there will be a Yiddish theater. The Adlers are making the best of both worlds.

Henrietta Jacobson started on the stage at the age of three, as a little girl tied up in a "thack" (she couldn't pronounce her eses at that time). Mr. Adler started in theater at an older age; he was nine years old. They have enjoyed every minute of their lives in the theater, and speak as though they will probably go on acting for the next 50 or 60 years. They probably would get bored in their New York apartment if they stayed there too long.

The Broadway debut of Mrs. Adler was in the musical, "Go Fight City Hall." She has appeared in "Chu-Chem," "Come Blow Your Horn" and, recently, "70 Girls 70" which won her a nomination for the New York Drama Critics award for best supporting actress. Both she and Mr. Adler toured with Woody Allen's "Don't Drink the Water."

Mr. Adler has worked with

MRS. BAKER (Henrietta Jacobson) and Mr. Baker (Julius Adler) in one of a series of comic conflicts and confrontations that take place in Neil Simon's "Come Blow Your Horn." The comedy opened at the Chateau de Ville Dinner Theatre in Warwick last Saturday.

some of the best and most famous of the Yiddish and English theater. These include actors Paul Muni, Joseph Schildkraut, Maurice Schwartz, Boris Tomashevsky, Mollie Picon and Aaron Lebedeff.

Continuing in the family tradition is their son, Bruce Adler, 28, (the "baby") who is presently appearing at the Eden Theater which is located at the corner of 12th Street and 2nd Avenue in New York City, in the Yiddish play, "Shver zu Sein a Yid," (which, loosely translated, means "It's Tough to be a Jew").

Mr. and Mrs. Adler feel that Neil Simon's play is just as timely now as when it first was produced 12 or 13 years ago. "It never can be out of date," they say. "It has warmth . . . beauty." They also have only praise for the director at the Chateau de Ville, John Bowab (a native of Pawtucket). They say he is a good director and he knows actors (which is probably why he is a good director).

They don't worry about bookings. At the present, in "Come Blow Your Horn" they have a play in which they will appear in a circuit of theaters which will last for several months. Meanwhile, they say, their agent will be taking calls and setting up other jobs for them. They're not worrying. They'll rest for a while and in five weeks or maybe only five days, they'll go back to work.

According to Mrs. Adler, her grandchild calls her "My grandmother, the tap dancer." After all, this is the way Mr. and Mrs. Adler started, as a soft shoe dance act.

JFCS Plans Meeting On Tay-Sachs Disease

On Sunday, December 2, the Jewish Family and Children's Service of Rhode Island will present an educational program on Tay-Sachs disease. The program is the first in a series planned by the group for education and screening of Tay-Sachs disease. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Jewish Community Center.

The panel for the meeting consists of Dr. Edwin H. Kolodny from Waltham, Massachusetts, Dr. Robert S. Zeiger from Beth Israel Hospital, Dr. Andrew Blazar, Dr. Nathan A. Bolotow, Dr. Jay Orson, and Dr. Daniel Perl, a clinical pathologist.

Tay-Sachs is a disease which strikes infants and is always fatal. It is estimated that there are 1200 unknown Jewish carriers of Tay-Sachs disease in the Rhode Island area. The Jewish Family and Children's Service hopes to begin screening operations in the fall.

Further information may be obtained about the planned programs or about the disease by calling Paul L. Segal, ACSW, Jewish Family and Children's Service at 331-1244 or Mrs. Beryl Meyer, chairman, at 72-8428.

FORCED RESIGNATION

TEL AVIV — Yitzhak Ben Aharon has accused his colleagues in the Labor Party of conspiring with "hostile elements, outside Histadrut" to force his resignation, which he announced, as secretary general of Israel's powerful trade union federation. The charge was contained in an 800-word letter of resignation which Ben Aharon submitted to the Histadrut Executive.

Egyptian Leader Says Dayan Is Speaking For Political Reasons

CAIRO — Despite tensions over stalled negotiations with Israel on the Cairo-Suez road, Egypt affirmed respect for the cease-fire.

"Egypt is for a just and permanent peace," Cairo's foreign-affairs spokesman, Ahmed Anis, said at a news conference.

Asked about a warning by Moshe Dayan, the Israeli defense minister, that new fighting might erupt with the Arabs, the spokesman replied:

"We have declared our genuine desire to re-establish peace. It is for Israel to bear the consequences for what it says and what it does."

Mr. Anis remarked that it was possible that Mr. Dayan was speaking of war for political purposes linked to the coming Israeli elections. If the warning of new warfare was not for electioneering reasons, Mr. Anis continued, then it would be "a return to an old campaign that has ceased to intimidate anyone in the Arab world."

"The Government of Egypt is true to its tradition of showing deference and respect for the United Nations and has diligently carried out the provisions of the United Nations cease-fire document," the spokesman declared. He spoke a few hours after it was announced that a meeting of Israeli and Egyptian generals on the Cairo-Suez road had been postponed.

The United Nations spokesman here, Rudolf Stajduhar of Yugoslavia, declined to say whether Egypt or Israel had requested the postponement.

A meeting of the Israeli and Egyptian representatives broke up in uncertainty, though the two sides had been reported near an accord on separation and disengagement of troops, as stipulated in the cease-fire agreement.

Officials here say that the meeting between Major General Mohammed Abdel Ghany el-Gamasy, the chief Egyptian delegate at the Kilometer 101 talks, and Major General Aharon Yariv, the Israeli, will be "crucial" in full enforcement of the cease-fire.

And knowledgeable sources in Cairo reported that intense, behind-the-scenes diplomatic activity, involving Secretary of State Kissinger, was expected to produce momentum toward an accord at the generals' meeting.

Amid the uncertainty, President Anwar el-Sadat left by plane for Algiers, where a three-day strategy conference of Arab leaders opened. The Minister of War, General Ahmed Ismail, is said to be remaining in Cairo, but it was doubted that Egypt would start serious military action while President Sadat was out of the country.

Mr. Anis, said the Government spokesman, said that the Egyptian leadership was taking note of talk in Israel of new fighting, but he implied that the Egyptians saw major deterrents to any Israeli action. Israel is under pressure from the world community, he said, and bellicose statements "only aggravate the situation and the economic difficulties facing the world." The implication was that the Arab oil-producing countries would further curb output if new fighting erupted.

300 New York Jews Demonstrate In Front Of Burned Out Synagogue

NEW YORK — About 300 Jews, including yeshiva students, rabbis and a contingent of the Jewish Defense League, demonstrated in front of a Brooklyn yeshiva and synagogue that was destroyed by two fires in a 12-hour period.

A painter working in the building, the Sephardic Institute for Advanced Learning, 511 Avenue R, in Flatbush, was killed in the first blaze. Officials at the yeshiva said that the loss would run close to $1-million.

The demonstrators were protesting what they said was a lack of police protection after numerous threatening phone calls had been received at the school, near Kings Highway and Ocean Avenue.

Since the start of the war in the Middle East last Yom Kippur, four synagogues and yeshivas in the area had been vandalized before the recent fires. They were Shaare Zion, Avenue T and Ocean Parkway; B'nai Akiva, Kings Highway and East Second Street; Ahavath Achim, 1750 East Fourth Street and the Mirror Yeshiva, 1795 Ocean Parkway.

The Sephardic Institute began receiving telephone threats about a month ago, when it started a fund-raising drive for Israel. Rabbi Moshe Shama, the chief rabbi of the school, said that some police protection had been provided for a short time but that it had been withdrawn. According to the rabbi, the callers spoke in unintelligible English and in Arabic. As the protest went on, about 20 students of the Yeshiva, assisted by neighborhood residents, tried to salvage books from the burned-out building.

Jewish Defense League members who were present said that they had instituted a security patrol of the area.

Says New Aid Station Will Be Security Risk

VIENNA. — The decision to set up an aid station for Soviet Jews at Wollersdorf endangers the lives of the village's 2,500 inhabitants, Otto Mayr, secretary of the Wollersdorf village council said.

"We have sent six telegrams protesting the decision because the aid station will be a security risk for our population," Mr. Mayr said.

Chancellor Bruno Kreisky announced that the Austrian Government was closing a special transit camp for Soviet Emigrants to Israel at Schönaun castle and setting up an aid station at Wollersdorf for those needing rest and medical attention.

Chancellor Kreisky had promised to close Schönaun in exchange for the release of four hostages, including three Soviet Jews seized by Arab gunmen September 28 from a train bringing them from Moscow.

Special treatment for Soviet emigrants crossing Austria will end November 30.

NO ARMS

BONN — West Germany will not supply either arms or military advisors to Libya, government spokesman Armin Gruenewald said after Libyan Prime Minister Abdessalam Yalloud told a newspaper his country would be ready to exchange oil for arms.

MONUMENTS OF DISTINCTION

Temple Emanu-El was the setting on November 23 for the wedding of Miss Lori Michele Silver, daughter of Mollie Silver of 900 Post Road, Warwick and Benjamin Silver of Germany to Robert Alan Bomes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bomes of 10 Lafayette Street, Pawtucket, and Aciero Court, Narragansett. Rabbi Joel Zaiman and Cantor Ivan E. Perlman officiated.

Given in marriage by her brothers, Jack Michael Silver and Lee Richard Silver, the bride wore an ivory imported Italian knitted dress. The neckline was accented by a crocheted ruffle which also adorned the wrist. Pearls accented the front panel of ruffles and the hat was custom designed to go with the dress. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis and phalaenopsis orchids accented with godsfraia foliage.

Mrs. Arthur Sausmer, sister of the bridegroom, was the maid of honor and Samuel Bomes was best man for his son.

Following a family reception in the Fireside Room of the Colonial Hilton Inn the couple left for a wedding trip to Martinique. When they return they will live in Cowesett.

The bridegroom is a member of the Rhode Island Advisory Commission for Vocational Education, the Advisory Commission for the Rhode Island Development Council and is past master of the Redwood Masonic Lodge. He is vice-president of the Monal Manufacturing Company.

The bride attended Roger Williams College and the University of Rhode Island. She is currently a consumer relations representative for Copy Products, Incorporated.

Return Of Israel To 67 Borders Would Not Bring Stable Peace

A stable peace in the Middle East cannot be achieved by requiring Israel to pull back to the 1967 boundaries, but only by balancing the increasing economic and military power of the Arabs by a strong Israel that is economically and militarily self-sufficient.

The return of Israel to the 1967 boundaries would increase both the likelihood that the Arabs will be tempted into another war and the likelihood of the Arabs winning the war. It is therefore an unstable solution, and no American treaty or guarantee could possibly alter this fact. It is in the long-term interest of the United States to guarantee a strong Israel capable of defending herself against aggression rather than a vulnerable Israel which might involve the United States in another Vietnam.

Egypt has a legitimate economic interest in controlling both sides of the Suez Canal and may reasonably expect Israel to return this territory in exchange for a peace treaty. But Israel has an overriding military need to retain control of the bulk of Sinai as a buffer zone. Since this territory is of marginal economic importance to Egypt, it is reasonable to expect Egypt to sign a peace treaty which gives Israel military control of Sinai. A peace treaty which returns the Suez Canal to Egypt and allows Israel to retain most of Sinai satisfies both the economic needs of Egypt and the security needs of Israel, and would therefore contribute to stability.

Short-term energy considerations should not be allowed to obscure the long-term advantages of achieving a stable Middle East peace with a "balance of power" between Israel and the Arab states. The irresponsible use of oil as a political weapon during the current energy crisis underlines the long-term importance of achieving such a balance of power. Oil-importing nations must unite now to develop a common policy which includes a strong Israel as one of its components. Failure to do so may have an economic domino effect on the power of oil-importing nations far graver in its consequences than the domino effect that provided the rationale for military involvement in South-East Asia. There is an opportunity now to stabilize the Middle East situation so as to provide militarily secure boundaries for Israel at very little economic cost to her Arab neighbors. This opportunity should not be allowed to slip away.

If you support the views expressed above, please send a copy of this letter to your Congressman and write to the following address: "Stable Peace in the Middle East," Box 6686, Providence, Rhode Island 02940.

Feels There Is Little Hope For True Peace In Mid-East

By this time, many of you think that the war is over in the Middle East and the dove of peace is circling in wide sweeps over Sinai, the Syrian front and Suez borders — thanks to Mr. Kissinger. Far be it from the truth. For the Soviet planners — this has been Phase I.

I am writing this piece now because I have to dedicate, with words, to some young people I knew here who are now dead — and to one young girl from Ashkelon who was wounded while on duty in Gaza. My words are to clarify and point out what you don't read in the news — and so far, not Mr. Kissinger or anyone from any power seems to want to discuss it openly.

We here are like wounded prey and the international buzzards are preparing for a feast. Not one person has stood up in the United Nations and demanded that England give up Northern Ireland. No one has asked Russia to give up islands she took from Japan. No one has told India that she must give up Kashmir. Not one person who knows the history of the Middle East has opened his mouth to say, "The so-called Egyptian Sinai was Turkish and the British allowed Egypt to act as Governor after World War I." Has one person ever asked "when and how did this Jordan come into this world — and who was our other Jewish peacemaker — Sir Samuel — or let us give him his full title — Lord Samuel — who came to Palestine and proceeded to cut it up and created a kingdom that was pro-British?" He also was a peacemaker — and peacemaker. He gouged out quite a piece to give away to the new Jordan. This land was ours in our history and foolish though it may seem to some, if we have to give up land that wasn't Egyptian before WWI, then we have a right to ask for the land that Sir Samuel took from us. No one has the backbone to force this and no one even wants to talk about it. Even Gaza was Turkish and not Egyptian.

As for Mr. Kissinger and his promises of secure borders, who will guarantee the survival of Israel, some day? There is always a some day — and it includes change of attitude. I can see the change in the US attitude towards the two Chinas. Now the toasts are for one China — and to hell with the freedom loving Chinese who live away from the mainland. No one guarantees anything in this world of politics. I fear Mr. Kissinger is another piece maker. A jet-propelled Mr. Chamberlain who one day will shake hands with a different Mr. Mao and find his own fingers are missing. This is the tragedy of humanity — false

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

Lighting the Way In the Streets of Orinin

By BERYL SEGAL

There is really nothing mysterious about the Heder. Heder means room in Hebrew. Yiddish took that word and applied it to an education system. Instead of the children coming to one large building and going from room to room as their education progressed, they went to the melamed's house where the various grades were taught in the Rebbe's room, the Heder.

At the Dardeki melamed, the teacher for little children, we learned Ivri, that is, reading the prayers fluently. The fluency was acquired by means of repetition, imitation, chanting and Kanchik, the leather tongue that is so memorable to anyone who felt its lashes on his back and shoulders. And the "teitl." The Rebbe would come round to a boy, stand over him and point with the bone pointer to a passage. Woe to the boy who was caught daydreaming. Down came the Kanchik, and the boy would start reading from the Siddur, through tears, following the bone pointer, the Teitl.

But soon the boy was sent to another Heder, another Rebbe, and to another subject. That was the Humosh melamed, the teacher who taught the Scriptures with the commentary of Rashi. Rashi was an eleventh century scholar, living in Germany and France, who singlehandedly wrote commentaries on the entire Bible and the Talmud, and made them understood by millions of Jews and non-Jews who lived centuries removed from the times these commentaries were written. Rashi is still used in our day. The name Rashi is derived from the initials of the scholar's name, Reb Shlomo Itzhaki. Many commentaries have been written on the Humosh (the Pentateuch) but the Rashi commentary was, and is, printed side by side with the Hebrew text in almost every printing of the Scripture and Talmud.

The Humosh and Rashi teacher put aside the Kanchik and spoke to us as if we were grown men. From the Rebbe we learned Philosophy and Ethics in the Books of Ecclesiastes and Proverbs. True, we did not know that we learned Philosophy and Ethics. That we found out later, but we had the bases of these disciplines. Poetry we learned in the Books of Shir Hashirim, the Song of Songs, and from reading chapters of the Psalms of David, the source of solace and ecstasy to Jews all over the world.

We got a glimpse of the short story from the Book of Ruth, which we read before Shevuot, and from the Book of Esther, for whom the holiday of Purim is celebrated. There was music too in the Heder. We learned the cantillations of the Sidrah of the week and chanted the entire Sidrah on Friday afternoon. We sang the Haggadah of Passover. We sang anything we learned in Heder. Chanting was as much a part of learning as the text itself. In time we were so used to chanting that we could not read a phrase from the Torah without its special chant. We learned legends and history, the two being inseparable, when the holidays came around. We knew all the wars of the Jews with the Romans, and we cried over the cruelties of the Babylonian generals. We were particularly broken up when the Rebbe told us of the anguish of Jewish mothers seeing their children die of hunger in the streets of Jerusalem. The days of Tisha B'Av, the ninth day of the month of Av, the Fast Day over the destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem, were sad days for us in the Heder.

We also learned from this Rebbe the Shlan Aruk, the set table of laws and traditions of a Jewish life.

During the years of the Humosh and Rashi Heder we began to go "at night." "Going at Night" was the high point of Heder life. We came early in the morning and stayed till late at night, and for that we each brought a lantern to light the way. The lanterns were made by the local tinsmith, and consisted of a square box of sheet metal with panels of glass on the four sides. The bottom of the box had a place for a candle, and the top of the lantern was closed and had a handle for carrying the box. When the time came for going home we broke into song and walked in the middle of the street of the Shtetl, holding on to one another to draw comfort and strength from each other in the dark. As soon as we reached our home, each of us started to run and disappeared through the door. We feared to be out at night, but we were also elated at the fact that we were big, we were out at night, we were no longer babies.

The Humosh and Rashi Heder was the end of the road for most boys. They went to learn a trade, where they underwent an apprenticeship as rigorous as the Heder. Some boys were needed at home to help out in the business. A few of us, very few, went on to the Gemoro melamed. The Gemoro melamed never repeated what the Humosh melamed had taught us. His was the rarefied atmosphere of the Talmud. We were studying by ourselves and the Rebbe was only there to act as, what we call today, an advisor, a resource man. But at night, in the quiet of the house, the Rebbe would sway his thin body back and forth and expound to us a page in the large folio of the Gemoro, and we chanted after him. These were unforgettable nights.

After the Gemoro melamed, some of us, still fewer than those who had come to this Heder, went to a Yeshiva. The Yeshiva was in a big city, miles away from Orinin. Some boys wandered off to Lithuania to sit at the feet of some famous Rosh Yeshiva. Such names as Volozhin, Swentzia, Slobodka, were magic names in our Shtetl. But by the time we were ready for the Yeshiva, they founded such an Academy in the nearby city of Kamenetz-Podolsk, some ten or twelve miles away from our Shtetl. To this Yeshiva we were sent.

But this is another story.

Your Money's Worth

If You Drive After Dark

A young daughter of friends, a recent college graduate has just started her first serious job in the field of social service. She will be working a flexible schedule of hours — sometimes from mid-afternoon to midnight, sometimes from mid-morning to late evening — and temporarily she has to drive 35 miles to and from her job. She is, of course, eager and excited about the work, but her parents, pleased though they are for her, are more concerned about her driving alone at night.

"What can she do to protect herself?" they asked a few of us visiting their home the other evening. "What do you think about her taking her dog along to sit next to her in the car? What should she do if her car breaks down on the highway after dark?"

There must be hundred of thousands of women workers in similar positions throughout the country — nurses, other hospital employees, waitresses come quickly to mind. And surely, men are not immune to attacks by night-time criminals. Surely the commonsense precautions for night-time driving cross any sex lines.

By lucky coincidence, shortly after our friends had asked for advice, I found a safe-driving program put together by C.I.T. Leasing Corp. for users of its car fleet leasing services. It answers our friends' questions — and it could be of incalculable help to all of you who must drive at night, man or woman, young or old.

● Yes, take your dog along if you can. Even if your pet is ridiculously friendly, a would-be attacker won't know that in advance. And if your dog is big and looks ferocious, just the animal's presence on the front seat next to you will be important protection.

● If you get a flat tire or your car breaks down, stay inside and wait for a policeman to come to you. If a stranger comes along and offers assistance, ask him to send help from the nearest service

Your Tire Prints May Be Talking To You

Every detective deserving of that name knows about fingerprints. The presence of a clear set of prints can identify the culprit every time and solve the crime.

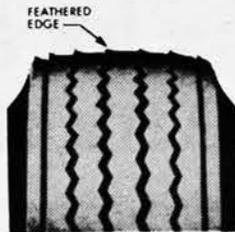

Tires also have their own brand of tell-tale prints. In fact, many a tough case has been cracked by the presence of a good set of tire prints identified at the scene of the crime.

On a more prosaic level, the appearance of the tire itself can identify another kind of culprit. From examining the tire, it is possible to learn about the malfunction of some component of your car, such as bad shock absorbers or front end alignment.

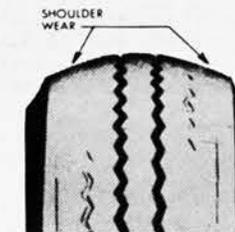

See what kind of tire detective you are and try to match the damage of these tires with the cause of the damage. (Then try it on your own car.)

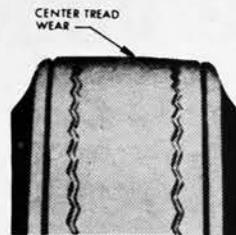

MULTI-PROBLEM WEAR: These cupped or slightly crater-like depressions on a tire's tread could be the result of tire unbalance, worn shock absorbers, worn ball joints or other deteriorated parts.

TOE-IN OR TOE-OUT WEAR: If tires start to show feathered edges, call your front-end alignment man. You can't cure the problem yourself, but he can see that the problem is cured by means of a front-end alignment job.

UNDERINFLATION WEAR: Tire shoulder wear is caused by too-low tire pressures. This is a common cause of tire wear problems. Check all tire pressures periodically and don't forget the spare.

OVERINFLATION WEAR: This is center tread wear. It is a sure sign you're overinflating your tires by at least 5 to 10 lbs. Check the manufacturer's suggested tire pressure range and reduce those pressures.

Tired, Long Distance Driver Prove To Be Dangerous In Dept. Of Transportation Tests

Tests conducted in the U.S. have come out with some facts on how a motorist's ability to drive is impaired by long stretches behind the wheel.

On the average, after four hours of driving, a motorist takes 20 per cent longer between corrections of the steering wheel.

The automobile with a fatigued driver drifts more than twice as far from the center of the lane.

If there is a blow-out-before the driver regains control, the car will swerve three times as far as when he is fresh and alert.

Tests were made in a Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory (CAL)

Inc. simulator in Buffalo, and are being followed up by over-the-road driving in actual vehicles. Both sets of tests are for the U.S. Department of Transportation.

The simulator puts the "driver" into conditions he'd actually find on the road with these conditions being controlled and set up by a computer. He "drives" by means of a steering wheel and accelerator and brake pedals.

The value of rest pauses in long distance driving also acquired some support from the tests, says CAL's magazine, Research Trends. Each driver, after completing the four-hour stint, took a four-minute break, then returned to the driving simulator for a brief additional run.

After the rest, drivers had accuracy equal to that at the end of their first hour of driving.

BLACK NEXT
NEW YORK — A major Black weekly newspaper, the Amsterdam News, said that the election of Abraham Beame as mayor of N.Y. could pave the way for a Black mayor the next time. "In some circles," Simon Anekwe wrote, "the Beame victory, heavily backed by Blacks, was seen as ultimately paving the way for a Black man to become mayor of New York."

Hello Again!

News of the Sports World by Warren Walden

THE GOOD NEWS: Baseball draft meetings coming up which brings to mind the words of the bard Shelley, "O wind if Winter comes, can Spring be far behind?" That's nice to think about during the energy crisis. But, there's bad news, too. What's going to happen to the floodlight baseball games? Will the major league teams be forced to go back to the sunshine? And, if they are, will the afternoon gate receipts be enough for paying some of the fabulous salaries? In the meantime, there's time for thinking it over while enjoying the different "bowls" which now means football and which once meant porridge.

CONGRATULATIONS: (Lots of them in order.) Congrats to those URI Rams who went all the way to Frankfurt and won; also to the Brown football team that has rekindled interest in the collegiate game hereabouts; and to the Brown U. Soccer team that captured the Ivy League Championship; and to the Providence Steamrollers who captured the Interstate League Senior Bowl Championship; and also to the Edgewood Eagles who won the Rhode Island Pre-Teen Football League Championship. (Big interest all season in that one, according to Dick Davey, custodian of the gate who knows how many people attend.) And so it goes all along the line — the king is dead, long live the king.

LUCKY 13: It was the first time in 13 games that the R.I. Reds of hockey were able to defeat the Cincinnati Swords when those teams played before 7,344 fans at Prov. Civic Center last Sun. — But, these are different Reds! They're up on top and look good for a first-place playoff spot.

CROWDS: The largest ever to attend a regular season college football game, tiz said of the 105,223 crowd that watched Michigan and Ohio State at Ann Arbor... Biggest Rhode Island football crowd? It must have been the gathering that watched LaSalle and Cranston in a floodlight game at the old Lonsdale Arena, built originally for automobile racing. The crowd that night? Estimated at 35,000.

A FORUM: That's what John Praegner called it when suggesting a pre-game "Forum" for hockey fans. "It might prove an interesting feature to schedule one or two demonstration sessions before the game," says Mr. Praegner. "Have players go through some of the plays including 'Off Side,' 'On Side,' 'icing,' etc.," John suggests. And he adds, "Maybe the officials could explain some of the penalties." Good idea, Mr. Praegner. No harm in trying.

INTERESTING: The "no tie" games in Class A and Class B schoolboy football championships coming up at McCoy Stadium. Once pro hockey teams battled in overtime periods producing some of the greatest excitement that game offered.

GOOD START: The Friars of hockey opened their new arena with a win over Pennsylvania. With that brand new facility, the "skating Friars" may rival the "basket shooting Friars" who will soon be proving their right to greatness and to a higher spot than the No. 6 allotted them by the Associated Press Poll.

GUNS: The "fastest draw" from a holster with the hand four inches away was registered by Jim Dillon of Denver who did it in 12-hundredths of a second. Carol Hall holds the walk and draw record for women. She did it in 35-hundredths of a second. AND, "The Incomparable Lee Ann," outstanding virtuoso at the electronic organ, recently scored higher than a group of male marksmen with a pistol. She has also fired a "22" from a pistol through the hole in a phonograph record! It's the truth, believe it or not, and apologies to Ripley. Lee Ann will be seen and heard playing Christmas and Hanukkah music on the only instrument of its kind in this second, "The Incredible Yamaha," in the Providence Outlet store. That's news.

PORRINGER: While we're on the subject of "championship bowls" and other competition, America's first sports trophy was given to the winner of a horse race in 1668. It's bowl-shaped, was wrought by Pieter van Inburg, and is America's oldest piece of silver, manufactured here. Whew — and CARRY ON!

Winter Is Also Time To Have Brake And Wheel Check

Dependable brakes on a car are a year-round necessity — but, in many areas, winter brings more frequent split-second demands on the brakes.

Like other automotive parts, brakes can be affected by temperature changes. Pre-winter inspection may reveal a need for brake adjustment.

A thorough brake and wheel inspection may also reveal that wheels are out of alignment, which causes excessive tire wear.

Brakes, as well as wheels, may be out of balance after long trips on hot pavement and bumpy side roads during the summer. If your car pulls to the right or left when stopped from a slow speed — less than 10 miles per hour — the brakes are out of balance and your car is unsafe. On wet pavement, unbalanced brakes can cause a car to skid.

Brake balancing, and a good alignment job provides the motorist with extra protection for winter driving, because the car will respond better in unfavorable driving conditions.

Brake systems should be inspected every 10,000 miles, if dependable stopping efficiency is to be maintained. If frequent braking and fast stops are required in your driving, earlier inspections are a wise practice.

Many otherwise cautious drivers will delay brake service until brakes signal their distress with grinding, squealing or slapping noises. At this point, drums or discs probably are scored too deeply for refinishing — and new ones will have to be installed, which increases repair cost.

When having brakes inspected, be sure the shop has capable personnel and the right equipment to do the job thoroughly. The importance of describing any symptoms of brake wear to your mechanic, and giving him a chance to explain to you what may be required to correct it, is a necessary part of good service.

Motorists can protect their cars from the serious brake malfunctions that cause accidents and major expense — with regular brake inspections, simple adjustments and repairs.

If you have not already taken your car in for its winter brake checkup, the time to do it is now.

If adjustments are not needed, you're money ahead — if they are, the repair cost will be small, compared to the loss that could be suffered due to brake failure.

TAKE A LOOK at these brake shoes from a car that... "seemed to be stopping okay... just pulling a little bit to one side." Brake linings worn to this extreme are not only a safety hazard, they also damage the brake drums. The result: a higher than normal repair bill. Note, too, that the wear on the left side is much greater than on the right, a good case in point for having all four brakes checked. Car Care Council asks, how long is it since you've had your brakes checked?

REMEMBER WASHERS
When putting anti-freeze into your car, don't forget the windshield washer fluid.

SPACE BETWEEN CARS
Always remember to allow plenty of room between you and the car ahead during the slippery season.

BRIDGE

The opening lead often has a great bearing on the making of a hand. Such should have been the case in today's hand, a Slam. The lead of one suit would have given Declarer no chance at all but any of the other three gave a sharp Declarer time to make sure of his contract. Unfortunately, not many of the Declarers took that opportunity, seemingly being able to see one thing to do when actually they could have given themselves two chances. Because the contract was a good one, a bit of insurance would have been a wise investment.

Some Souths, with two losers in each of two suits, decided against going to Slam even after hearing North's strong Three Heart bid. True, there was no good way of knowing whether there might not be two quick losers in one of those suits if partner shows there is an Ace missing when the Blackwood Convention is used. Other Souths just made their minds up that their hand opposite the jump had to give them a reasonable play for the Slam. They checked for Aces and simply crashed into it.

In six, some Wests led their Ace. This turned out to be disastrous for it made a gentleman out of North's King for the twelfth and fulfilling trick. Two led a Dpade which automatically doomed the Declarer. At that time he had to take the Spade finesse. When it lost a Diamond had to also be lost and the hand was set. There was nothing Declarer could do with a Spade lead. Should the Slam have been bid? Certainly it should. Any small Slam that depends on a finesse should be tried. In this hand the Slam can be made despite the fact that the

Recover Bodies Of Observers

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The United Nations said that the bodies of two military observers killed while serving with its truce supervision organization in the Middle East had been recovered.

The officers were identified as Captain George Banse of the French Army and Captain C.R. Olivieri of the Italian Army. They were at an observation post on the east bank of the Suez Canal when hostilities broke out on October 6. The United Nations also recovered the body of an unidentified Israeli liaison officer who was assigned to the post.

No details were given here on how the three were killed. Their post was taken by Egyptian forces and remains in Egyptian hands. The officers were last heard from on the opening day of the war when they reported by radio. Communications then were broken off.

Spade finesse loses if a Spade is not opened. Unfortunately, most of the Declarers took that finesse anyhow even when another suit was led. These are the ones who failed to see what they might have done to give themselves a better chance.

With a Trump or Club lead, both reasonable, Declarer wins and pulls the Trumps. Now he examines the hand and sees that he can get one discard on the fourth Club. But they failed to see which was the best discard by far. Almost every one took the Spade finesse and went down when it lost. Can you see what can be done to give two chances without losing if the first is unsuccessful.

Mr. Rothman saw his chance. He was going to take both finesses without automatically going down if either lost. By the way, leading toward a King is a finesse hoping the Ace is in the right place. He played all the Clubs, discarding one of his Diamonds on the fourth. Now he came to his hand with a Trump and led his now singleton Diamond toward the King. Even if the Ace were offside the Slam could never have been made anyhow but this way if either were right the Slam would be assured. As the cards were, when he led to that Diamond King the Ace came up and now he was able to discard a Spade on the Diamond King. The Spade finesse was no longer needed. Had the Diamond Ace been in the other hand, the King would have lost but now the Spade finesse could still be tried.

Moral: Most insurance policies cost money. In Bridge, most of them cost nothing. When that is the case it is foolish not to give yourself as many chances as possible.

TO SPEAK: Allan Pakes, a Canadian lawyer, is in charge of professional guidance at the Israel Aliyah Center in New York City. He will address the Chug Aliyah of Rhode Island on Sunday, December 9, at 8 p.m. at the Jewish Community Center.

Prior to joining the Aliyah Center he was director of the Overseas department of the Bureau for Placement of Professionals of the Ministry of Labor in Israel.

A coffee hour will follow his talk at the Center.

LOSES DAUGHTER
 LONDON — According to information reaching here, the Supreme Court of the Russian-Soviet Republic has ruled that Professor Alexander Temkin loses custody of his daughter, Marina, 14, who was forcibly taken to a Komsomol camp last February in order to prevent her father taking her to Israel. Marina had been on a hunger strike in the camp in protest against an order that she must wear a Komsomol tie. The professor was permitted to visit his daughter, but she had to remain in the camp. The estranged wife of the professor had never claimed custody of the child.

PREMATURE BIRTHS
TEL AVIV — One of the lesser-publicized traumas of the Yom Kippur War is the higher incidence of premature births directly related to the conflict.

Many mothers gave birth in hospital air raid shelters during an alert. The first sounds heard by the newly-born infants were the wail of sirens and the thunder of cannons.

PARKING FACILITIES

Three timely reasons why your car should be tuned regularly.

To save gasoline.

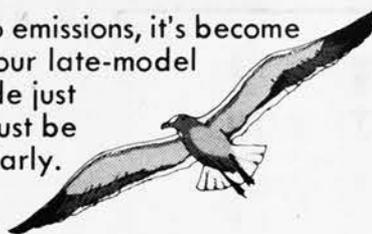

During the current gasoline shortage, it's important for us all to conserve the amount of gas we use.

Yet tests have shown an untuned car uses 8.2% more gasoline than a tuned car on the average. And that's more than a gallon in every tankful.

To save our environment.

In recent tests and talk about auto emissions, it's become clear that the pollution controls on our late-model cars are working. And it's been made just as clear that the pollution devices must be maintained and the cars tuned regularly. To keep harmful emissions down.

To save yourself from winter weather worries.

Other tests by Champion Spark Plug Company have shown that an untuned car is especially troublesome during winter. Cars needing tune-ups had twice as many "won't starts" as tuned cars. And the untuned cars took an average of 15% longer to start.

More gasoline. Cleaner air. Trouble-free driving. They all can be yours if you take your car in for a tune-up. Once each year or every 10,000 miles. With the spark plug brand 22 million people have switched to. Champion.

THREE NEW PROJECTS

The Providence Chapter of Brandeis University National Women's Committee has announced three new programs open to its members.

A new project in Living History which enables members to make an academic contribution to the Brandeis Libraries, aims to capture on tape and preserve for historians the experiences of people uprooted during the Hitler era who have reestablished themselves in the United States. Further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Joel Zaiman at 331-1136.

Subscribers to the American Film Theatre Series are invited to the Rochambeau Library, 708 Hope Street, on the Tuesday following each film for a discussion. The meetings will begin on December 18 at 10 a.m.

The third project is being offered by Theatre Workshops. It will be a special program for high school students whose mothers belong to the organization. The series will meet for ten weeks starting Saturday, December 1, from 10 a.m. to noon at the Rochambeau Library. Marian Strauss, former drama coach at Hope High School, and Geraldine Capece will lead the sessions. More information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Burton I. Samors at 272-0661.

MERKIN TO SPEAK

The fall meeting of the Brandeis University National Women's Committee, Providence Chapter on Friday, December 7, will hear Richard Merkin, a well known artist at Ledgemont Country Club.

Luncheonette will be served at 11:45 followed by the meeting at 1 and Mr. Merkin's talk at 1:30.

KORFF TO SPEAK

Rabbi Baruch Korff, the general chairman of the National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the President, will speak to the Young Jewish Couples Study Group on Sunday, December 9 at Temple Sinai at 8 p.m.

Rabbi Korff's topic of discussion will be "Can We Survive the Third Generation of our Nationhood?"

Further information may be obtained by calling Barry and Maureen Doreas at 942-0938.

More people attend the event that is advertised. Call the Herald office, 724-0200 or 724-0202.

WRITERS DISAPPOINTED
TEL AVIV — Israeli writers — authors and poets — are bitterly disappointed over the lack of response by any internationally known writer or poets to express support of Israel. A few days after the war began the Israeli Writers

Association sent letters to hundred of writers, poets and associations of writers throughout the world asking that they support Israel in her difficult days. Till now not a single word has been heard, not a single reply given, not a single letter received.

If Israel reverts back to 1948 borders, you who read this will witness a slaughter of our people a second time in this century. Do not think that the world of nations will act differently from the 1940s.

Jews must become angry — all decent people must become angry. The United Nations today is a playground for madness. If you think my concern is for Israel alone, you are wrong. Aside from the charming smiles of Soviet representatives — and the fraud of the wheat deals — the Soviets are using space for more than exploration. This earth is being ringed by Russian satellites that not only pinpoint targets but will carry atomic missiles to destroy. The wheat the Soviets want is not to feed their own people, as their own crop is the greatest they have ever had, but to buy off the hungry nations. The United States is making a noose for itself. Mr. Kissinger cannot guarantee that some day the US may stand as alone as Israel does today. Only one man knows this, it appears: Sen. Henry Jackson — and I hope people will help this man in the States. Can you imagine a state of affairs with a Sen. Fulbright who has been elected President? Try that for size, if you are unconcerned at present.

I have heard from the States that Jews are concerned that they will be blamed for the energy crisis. Not a surprise to me — Jews are blamed for all things.

The true story of Middle Eastern nations and their energy resources and their worry about depletion has been known for some time and long before we became what the Arabs would like to pin on us — Reason #1. Israel is an excuse for what the Arabs, and I might add, the Russians, would want the world to think is the reason for the drop in oil production. This was thought about a couple of years back. The US Govt. knew this and only now is the Alaska pipeline being built. Just think of our better US position today, if we had pushed through this measure when people in the know knew what was coming. But conservatism didn't, I guess. We Jews must answer to our new Jewish friends that they should contact Senator Pastore or anyone else involved with energy, and they will get an answer. The people who will be cold this winter can thank the shrewd Arab trader who jacked up the price of fuel on top of less production and can also offer thanks to the misery makers of the Soviet Union. Jews did not cause an energy crisis.

To those culture-minded Jews in RI, including some rabbis and "machers" who thought Charlie Garber, Edith Goldman, Don Shein and others were tainting the image of Jewry by picketing and raising hell about attending Russian ballet or symphony orchestra presentations, you better realize it now — anything that comes out of the Soviet Union is a well oiled piece of machinery that has some sort of destructive function. Don't try to separate culture and murder with what the Soviets export. My young and very dead Israeli friends could, if they were able to, tell you that everything that killed them had a Russian label or stamp on it. For God's sake — Jews, wake up.

I know that most of you have done a fine job to help Israel and shared the agony of this war in your hearts. But you have to be here, to meet some things face to face. You just can't imagine the horror that has been distributed to the people here. If any of you plan a trip soon — group or otherwise — skip something — and use the time to visit the wounded in the hospitals. Bring cigarettes or candy to the boys and girls who will be recuperating for a long time. A small gesture — but think of what theirs has been.

station. But you — you stay inside the car!

- Despite gas rationing and shortages, try hard to keep your gas tank full and have your car checked often to make sure it is in top shape. "This won't guarantee that you won't be forced to stop in the middle of nowhere," says George E. Wilson, vice president of C.I.T. Service Leasing, "but it will minimize your risks."

- While it may mean going out of your way, stick to well-lighted roads in familiar neighborhoods. Avoid being caught in a situation where you have to get out of the car and ask for directions. Another precaution for night-time drivers: pick roads that have divided lanes separated by foliage to block out headlight glare from oncoming vehicles. Fatigue and reduced visibility are a perfect combination for an accident.

- Always drive with all your car doors locked and always keep your windows closed enough to prevent a criminal from getting his hand in.

- Since you're particularly vulnerable when you're getting out of or into your car, park on a well-lighted street or in a parking lot that has an attendant. If you're parking in a company lot, choose a spot close to a lighted entrance and try to get into or out of your car when some of your fellow workers are around.

- Always look inside your car before you get into it to make sure no one is hiding on the back-seat floor.

- If you have a choice of two routes of equal quality, take the more scenic road. "A recent study shows that scenic roads are far sa-

MISS ROSE LEBOW

Graveside services for Miss Rose Lebow, 92, of 109 Eleventh Street, who died Sunday, were held the following day at Lincoln Park Cemetery.

Born in Russia, she was the daughter of the late David and Rebecca (Davidson) Lebow. She had lived in Providence for many years.

She is survived by a brother, Dr. Morris Lebow of Providence.

STANLEY TOLCHINSKY

Funeral services for Stanley A. Tolchinsky, 42, of 11 Concord Avenue, Cranston, who died unexpectedly on November 22, were held the next day from the Sugarman Memorial Chapel. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery. He was the husband of Shirley (Snyder) Tolchinsky.

Mr. Tolchinsky was a salesman for Tolchinsky Furs, a firm he was with for 27 years. He had lived in Cranston for 28 years and was a member of Temple Beth Torah.

Born in Providence, he was the son of Harry and Minnie (Cardon) Tolchinsky, now of Warwick.

Besides his wife and parents, he is survived by two sons, Jon and Howard Tolchinsky, and a daughter, Marjorie Madden, all of Cranston; a sister, Bessie Ellman of Warwick, and his maternal grandmother, Sadie Cardon of Cranston.

were held the following day from the Sugarman Memorial Chapel. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery. He was the husband of Alice (Monzack) Glantz.

He was the owner and operator of the Acme Furniture Company on Westminster Street for 30 years before he retired seven years ago.

He was a member of Congregation Shaare Zedek.

Mr. Glantz was born in Russia, a son of the late Samuel and Jennie (Gobsol) Glantz, and had lived in Providence for more than 50 years, having moved to Warwick less than a year ago.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two sons, Seymour Glantz of Barrington, and Everett Glantz of West Hartford, Connecticut; a daughter, Sheila Land of Warwick; three sisters, Anna Hecker of Providence, Ida Buckler of Warwick and Eva Tanger of Miami Beach, Florida, and seven grandchildren.

BEN KAUFMAN

Funeral services for Ben Kaufman, of 107 Elm Grove Avenue, who died November 20 after a three month illness, were held the next day from the Sugarman Memorial Chapel. Burial was in Sinai Memorial Park.

Mr. Kaufman was a violinist and orchestra leader, whose conversion from classical to contemporary music evolved soon after his big band experience in the 1940's.

The New York native, who had attended New York University, was a graduate of both New York Conservatory of Music and the Walter Damrosch School.

Known professionally as Ben Kauff, his early career was with the Manhattan Symphony Orchestra and the New York Philharmonic. He also traveled extensively, here and abroad, with musical groups engaged in classical performances.

Before forming his own orchestra, which primarily furnished listening and dancing music for private functions, he had played violin in several similar groups, including those of Myer Davis and Eddie Duchin.

His parents were the late David and Rose Kaufman. He came to Providence about 26 years ago.

He is survived by his wife, Marion (Fink) Kaufman; a son, Mel Kaufman, also of Providence; and a brother, Paul Kaufman of New York City.

Children's Theatre Schedule Announced

The Jewish Community Center has announced the program for their season of the Children's Theatre.

"Lunar Leap," by the Merry-Go-Rounders will be presented on Sunday, December 9. "Sam Stiller: Private Eye," by Maximillion Productions will be on Sunday, January 20, and "Mowgli: Boy of the Jungle," by the Nicolo Marionettes will be on Sunday, March 17.

"Lunar Leap," is about a boy who finds himself on a rocket to the moon. It will be presented by the Merry-Go-Rounders, a professional dance-theatre group for children.

"Sam Stiller: Private Eye," is about a young New York City detective and how he solves his first case. The comedy will be presented by the Maximillion Productions.

"Mowgli: Boy of the Jungle," the last play to be presented, is based on Rudyard Kipling's classic, "The Jungle Book." The Nicolo Marionettes, who will present the production, will talk about the history of the marionette and explain how it is made and how it works after the performance.

All performances will begin at 2:30 p.m. on the scheduled day and will take place at the Jewish Community Center on Elm Grove Avenue.

Only season tickets are available for the Children's Theatre and they may be purchased at the Jewish Community Center.

Festival Opens In New York; Will Appear Here December 8

The 1973 Hasidic Song Festival had its delayed opening in New York at the Manhattan Center last Saturday night. The show was to have played in places like Carnegie Hall but the Yom Kippur war delayed the start.

The delay was primarily because most of the male singers in the group were called into service when the war broke out. Yitzchak Rabin, a former ambassador to the U. S., who is currently on the staff of Moshe Dayan, saw the importance of a goodwill tour at this time and personally arranged for the release of the performers.

The next problem was where to hold the show in Israel. The songs, all of which have to be some form of the words of the Bible, had been picked and the performers were now secured. The producers decided that the winning songs should be picked by the people and it should take place in the army camps.

Songs for the contest may be in any style but must have their origin from the text of the Bible. The contest has become an annual event with songs entered by both song writers and the general public. It has become a kind of Israeli Grammy Awards.

Tzvika Pik is one of the performers in the show. He was born in Poland in 1949 and according to Cantor Karl S. Kritz, the local sponsor of the festival, he does not know the whereabouts of his family. Cantor Kritz says that Mr. Pik would be interested if any of the local people could give him any information which could help him find his family.

When Tzvika Pik was 19 he was picked to be in the Israeli production of "Hair." Following his fame from the show performance he became one of Israel's best known song writers.

Dalia Cohen is a sabra who is also in the Festival. She is a popular Israeli movie star and singer who has been featured in "The Festival of the Year," in Israel. She is returning with the 1973 Song Festival.

The Festival will be appearing at the Veteran's Memorial Auditorium in Providence on Saturday, December 8 at 8:30 p.m. Further information may be obtained by calling 751-2800.

Boston Group To Discuss Human Rights Soviet Jews

The Leadership Conference of the National Jewish Women's Organizations is sponsoring a Women's Plea for Human Rights for Soviet Jews on Monday, December 10, Human Rights Day, from 10 a.m. to noon at the Murray Conference Room in Boston College's McElroy Building.

The symposium marks the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights which guaranteed Soviet Jews the "right to leave" according to Maxine Rubin, cochairman of the conference.

A panel of experts on Soviet Jewry will discuss this at the December 10 women's plea. Among them are Congresswoman Margaret Heckler, who has traveled to the Soviet Union; Betsy Gidwitz, research affiliate at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Center for International Studies; Lisa Rubin, a pre-med student from Wellesley College who recently returned from the Soviet Union; and Dr. Rashi Feln of Harvard Medical School who will act as moderator.

The Women's Plea is part of a national effort in which women from more than 50 other cities will be participating on December 10. Locally, it is being coordinated by the New England Region of the American Jewish Congress and the Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Boston. Further information may be obtained by calling 542-7525 or 542-0266.
