Guerrilla Leader, Yassir Arafat, Threatens 'Big Vengeance' For Raid

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Yassir Arafat, the Palestinian guerrilla leader, was quoted by two Lebanese newspapers as threatening "big vengeance" for what he charged was United States collaboration with Israel in the killing of three Palestinian leaders here.

Mr. Arafat reportedly asserted that a station wagon with diplomatic license plates belonging to the United States Embassy was parked at a gasoline station near the building where the guerrilla leaders were killed.

(In Washington the State Department said the "irresponsible behavior" and "extremist tactics" of Arab guerrilla leaders were likely to be damaging to the interests of the Palestinian people. The department also again denied that the United States was involved in the Israeli commando raid in Beirut.)

Mr. Arafat, who has been receiving visits from many political figures expressing that the same station wagon was later seen transporting four people, one of whom had "broken left shoulder," according to the newspapers. He also asserted that some of the arms used by the Israeli raiders, which were found here, had been manufactured in the United States, such as Mossberg & Sons model 152-K .22 caliber pistol using long rifle cartridges.

Mr. Arafat's reported views were published in the newspapers Al Bairaq and As Safa. The two accounts were essentially similar.

The version in Al Bairaq included an accusation by Mr. Arafat that a former United States Ambassador to Lebanon, Armin H. Meyer, who is now with the State Department in Washington, was recently appointed the head of an American intelligence team to "coordinate with Israeli intelligence against Palestinian guerrillas."

Role in Paris Killing
The paper added that Mr.

Arafat said Mr. Meyer had coordinated with Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv, a top-level security adviser to Premier Golda Meir of Israel, in the killing in Paris in January of Mahmoud al-Hamshari, a representative in France of the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

Mr. Arafat was also said to have commented on reports in the American press that another guerrilla leader, Salah Khalaf, had given orders by telephone to Black September terrorists in Khartoum, the capital of the Sudan, to kill two American diplomats and a Belgian diplomat last month.

The purpose of those reports, Mr. Arafat was quoted as saying, were to justify his murder by the United States Central Intelligence Agency.

The guerrilla leader's reported remarks have contributed to a press and radio campaign that the Palestinian and left-wing Arab countries such as Iraq, Syria and to link the United States to the Israeli raid.

Charge Denied by U.S.

The charge has been denied by the United States, which has said that the campaign was an attempt to provoke violence against the American Embassy here, and perhaps against American interests in other Arab countries.

In the article in As Safa, Mr. Arafat was quoted as saying: "The commando movement will take its time, but when vengeance comes it will be big."

The United States Embassy here is now protected by a strengthened guard of Lebanese troops. A protest march by students following the Israeli raid was turned away from the streets leading to the embassy.

The attempt by the Palestinian commando movement to involve the United States in the Israeli raid is based on reported movements of automobiles to and from the embassy on the night of

Saboteurs Fail In New Attempt To Blow Up Aramco Pipeline

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Unknown saboteurs tried to blow up the Arabian-American Oil Company's pipeline last week, Government sources in southern Lebanon reported.

Explosive charges went off under the pipeline four miles from the Zahrani terminal, which is five miles south of Saida, the informants added. They caused only dents and the flow of oil was not affected.

Army patrols were reported guarding the Lebanese section of the 850-mile pipeline, which can carry 440,000 barrels of oil daily from Saudi Arabian oilfields through Jordan and Syria to the oil terminal port of Saida.

The pipeline is owned by the Trans-Arabian Pipeline Company — known here as Tapline — which in turn is owned by Arabian-American, or Aramco.

And Aramco is itself owned by Standard Oil of California, Exxon, Mobil and Texaco.

Explosives planted by armed raiders early last Saturday at Zahrani destroyed one Tapline storage tank, badly damaged two others and slightly damaged a fourth. The ensuing 14-hour fire consumed 30,000 barrels of oil.

The blowing up of the storage tanks came a few hours after Yasir Arafat, the Palestinian guerrilla leader, reportedly vowed "big vengeance" for what he charged was United States collaboration in the Israeli commando attack in Beirut and Saida in which three guerrilla leaders were assassinated.

The guerrillas denied responsibility for the sabotage of the oil terminal and charged that it was the work of Israeli raiders coming by sea; Israel has denied that charge. A group calling itself the Lebanese Revolutionary Guard took responsibility for the sabotage.

Pumping of Oil Resumed

BEIRUT — Pumping of crude oil resumed at the Tapline refinery near Saida only 16 hours after the explosions that burned out one of its storage tanks, a company spokesman said here.

Some of the oil is refined for use in Lebanon and the rest is shipped out for Western consumers.

Investigations into the sabotage of the storage tanks last Saturday is continuing, according to Beirut newspapers. A man detained then has been released after questioning.

The Beirut newspaper An Nahar said that military investigators were now almost completely sure that the sabotage had not been carried out either by Israelis or by Palestinian guerrillas.

A SEDER SERVICE was held at The Miriam Hospital on Monday, April 16. The service, which was attended by patients, visitors and hospital staff, was conducted by Rabbi Emanuel Lazar of Congregation Mishkon Tfiloh. He was assisted by Philip, Henry and Elizabeth Spencer.

Report Israel Faces Water Shortage

TEL AVIV — Israel faces a severe water shortage and Israel's largest fresh water body, Lake Tiberias, can be considered "empty" from the point of view of water supply, according to an official of the Ministry of Agriculture. Lake Tiberias, also known as the Sea of Galilee, serves as a national reservoir.

Ephraim Shilo of the Agricultural Planning Division at the Ministry, said that because of Israel's increased population, primarily in the cities, and anticipated industrial expansion, large agricultural areas would have to be "dried out" and water diverted to the cities and to industry. This year's drought dangerously lowered the water level of Lake Tiberias, Shilo said, adding that foreseeable water resources would not meet increased consumption and that Israel would have to revert to desalinated water earlier than planned — within 10 years instead of 15 to 20 years.

C. HOWARD SHORE

Funeral services for C. Howard Shore, 46, of New York, a retailing executive with the Elizabeth Arden Company of New York City, and former president of Shore Motor Hotels, Inc., who died April 10, were held April 12 at the Weinstein Mortuary Chapel in Hartford, Connecticut. Burial was in Beth Israel Cemetery in that city.

Mr. Shore was also former president and board chairman of Pancake Kitchen Inc. He was a New York City resident for three years, having lived in the Hartford area for most of his life. He was born in Providence, a son of C. Howard Shore and the late Rebecca (Preblod) Shore.

Mr. Shore was graduated from Moses Brown School in 1943, Brown University in 1947, and received his law degree in 1950 from New York Law School. He was a member of the New York State Bar and worked for the U.S. Department of Justice in 1950 and 1951. He was a member of Tumble Brook Country Club in Bloomfield, Connecticut.

Survivors include his wife, Dorothy (Cohen) Shore of New York City; his father, now of Bloomfield; a son, Peter S. Shore of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; a daughter, Kathy Shore of Minneapolis, Minnesota; and two sisters, Mrs. Gerald Berson of Rocky Hill, Connecticut, and Mrs. Donald Buchanan of Hamden, Connecticut.

MRS. SAMUEL GOLDBERG

Funeral services for Sadie Goldberg of the Jewish Rehabilitation Center for the Aged, 1200 Centre Street, Roslindale, Massachusetts, a former Providence resident, who died April 14 after an illness of four months, were held the following day at the Sugarman Memorial Chapel. ### MRS. SAMUEL M. COHEN

Jennie Cohen of Miami, Florida, a former Providence resident, died April 14. She was the widow of Samuel M. Cohen.

She was born in Palestine, a daughter of the late Rabbi and Mrs. Loeb Freedman. She had lived in Providence for 15 years, and in Detroit, Michigan, for 10 years, before moving to Florida in 1943.

She is survived by five daughters, Sarah L. Honigblum of Providence, Miss Barbara Conn and Rose Kaufman, both of Detroit, Miss Muriel Conn and Irene Birdman, both of Los Angeles, California; four grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

SAMUEL KORNSTEIN

Funeral services for Samuel Kornstein, 77, president and founder of Kornstein's Department Store in Woonsocket, who died Sunday after being stricken at his home, were held the following day at B'nai Israel Synagogue. Burial was in B'nai Israel Cemetery in Woonsocket.

The husband of Hattie (Levy) Kornstein, he lived at 49 Smithfield Road, North Smithfield.

He founded the department store 50 years ago and remained active in the business and in a number of organizations until his death.

He was a director of the Greater Woonsocket Chamber of Commerce, a past president of the Lions Club in Woonsocket and a past president of the Woonsocket Retail Trade Board. He was chairman of the Municipal Downtown Development Commission, the forerunner of urban renewal in Woonsocket.

Vice president of Congregation B'nai Israel in Woonsocket, he was also a member of B'nai Brith in that city and a member of the Roosevelt Lodge of Masons in Providence. He was an Army veteran of World War I.

Born in Woonsocket on January 1, 1896, he was a son of the late Moses and Clara (Turkel) Kornstein.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, Arnold Kornstein of Woonsocket who was associated with him in the family business; a daughter, Ruth Horelik of Pawtucket; two brothers, Arthur Kornstein of Woonsocket and Philip Kornstein of North Smithfield; three sisters, Miss Mary Kornstein, Ann Cohen and Martha Birenbaum, all of North Smithfield, and four grandchildren.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

Passover
Reminiscences of a Childhood
By BERYL SEGAL

The week of Passover was Ben Hazanim in the little town of my birth on the Ukraine. It was "Between Semesters" in all the towns and cities in Eastern Europe. During that week the children graduated from one Heder and were to be admitted in a higher Heder. The Rebbe, the teacher, during that week would dress in his best clothes and come to visit the houses where boys of his school level were to be found. You see, we studied not in a school where teachers stay in their rooms and wait for the pupils to come in, but rather we went from Rebbe to Rebbe in their own houses as we progressed through our appointed courses. Thus we had a Dardeke Melamed, a teacher for beginners, who taught us the Aleph Beth and the rudiments of reading. After him we went to a Rebbe who taught Humash and selected parts of the Bible. Then we went to a Rebbe who took in the entire Scriptures and the Midrashim. The highest Rebbe was the Ge-moro Melamed, he who taught us the Talmud. All these teachers had a room in their own home where we sat around a table and studied from early in the morning till late at night. Hence the name Heder, a Room. Each Rebbe with his Room.

Usually it was a tradition that boys of the same houses went through the same Heder teachers. The four of my brothers went to the same Heder each in his own turn. But the Rebbe nevertheless came to drink tea and, by the way, during the conversation, called for the boy who was to be in his Heder and examined him briefly.

But in the meantime we were free from Heder during Passover and these were, I am ashamed to say, the happiest days of the year.

The day before Passover we, the Heder boys, were busy with the burning of the Hometz, the leaven that had to be kept out of the homes during the holiday. The night earlier father went from windowsill to windowsill and removed crumbs of bread put there by mother intentionally. Though the house was cleaned and any piece of food that was suspected of having in it a trace of Hometz, was removed from the house, the ceremony of Bedias Hometz, the search for leaven, was performed by father. It was merely a pretext for performing still another Mitzvah and saying yet another blessing.

The crumbs of bread found on the windowsills and in other corners of the house were swept into a wooden spoon with the aid of a feather and tied in a piece of white cloth. On the morning before Pesach all the boys in town gathered around a bonfire and the spoons containing the symbolic Hometz were burned with shouts of joy and merriment.

During the week of Passover the boys walked around with their pockets bulging with walnuts. They were looking for children to play "nuts". Playing nuts was the only amusement allowed us during the holiday.

One of the games was called "Busting the Pyramid." Each child contributed several nuts. With these we laid out the foundation of the pyramid. Then we piled on this foundation three more nuts, then two, and finally one to top the structure. The player stood over the pyramid and, with one eye closed, tried to aim a "lucky nut" at the apex. When his aim was good, the apex was hit and the entire pyramid fell apart. The player won all the nuts. A "Lucky Nut" was a large walnut, perfect in form, and easy to hold near the eye for a good sight of the pyramid.

Another game was "Hitting the Hat." The players each contributed an equal number of nuts which were placed in an old old hat or a yarmulke. The idea was to sit on the ground and to "tease" out of the hat or yarmulke enough nuts to make the number agreed upon at the beginning of the game. When more nuts than those agreed upon rolled out of the hat, the player lost and the game continued. In contrast to the game called "hit the Pyramid" no skill was involved here. It was merely "luck" that as we held the hat in both hands and "teased" nuts out of it, the proper number fell out. No amount of turning the hat or yarmelke this way and that way was of help.

The next game however required skill. That game was called Trefen "Collision." A nut was put on the floor and the players measured three paces away from it. There each had to hit a nut with his thumb and forefinger. The nut started to roll and, if the player was good at it, it collided with the stationary nut. Few collided. Usually we either were to the left or the right of our goal. It was a very slow game and we had to be perfectly quiet, and we watched the nut rolling toward its destination, which it usually never reached.

The girls had games of their own. They never played with boys unless it was with brothers and cousins. But even they avoided being snared in for a game of walnuts with the girls. It was considered unseemly.

The week of Pesach was also a time for visits. Uncles and aunts, cousins and distant relatives exchanged visits with each other, and everywhere we went we were given walnuts and Passover goodies.

The happy Pesach days that are gone never to return.

NEW YORK: Sidney Glazier is the first American producer to be invited to the People's Republic of China to discuss movie making in that country. Author Han Suyin will accompany Glazier as consultant... Trevor Howard has been signed by Glazier to star in the movie version of Brian Moore's best seller, Catholics, which begins showing in western Ireland April 27... Chi Peng-fei, China's foreign minister, plays Scrabble daily in Peking to improve his English.

Producers Robert Whitehead and Roger L. Stevens are adding extra matinees to Finishing Touches starting Easter Sunday... Paul Littlefield and the Uprising, a group at Las Vegas' Union Plaza, is recording an album called Wounded Knee... Aris San, who stars at Sirocco, the Greek-Israeli nightclub, will give 12 concerts in Israel next month, as part of its 25th anniversary celebrations.

LaMont McLemore, a bachelor member of the Fifth Dimension now in Turkey on tour for the State Department, was asked at an Ankara press conference if he approved of the Islamic custom of having several wives. "I don't believe in any wives — at any time," he replied, "but I can appreciate variety." McLemore said he was anxious to meet a harem owner. "I want to find out how he manages," the singer explained, "because everyone I know has so much trouble with one wife."

Actor-playwright Joe Julian received a residual check for Gang Busters, the radio series now being replayed on cable TV. "It's been 30 years since I did these shows," he said, "and I haven't the faintest idea of what part I played. I don't know if I was the good guy or the bad guy..." Your

Money's

Worth

By Sylvia Porter

Now That You've Turned It In

Okay, you've turned it in. You tried hard to get away with as much as you could think of. You gave yourself every break on deductions that you dared. On some of your claims, you stretched credulity to the limit. Now you're hoping the Internal Revenue Service will skip by your 1972 income tax return so you won't have to prove every deduction and produce expense documents you simply do not have.

What are the odds for and against an audit of your return? What taxpayers are most vulnerable? In what cities? Are you identified as in a group of taxpayers with, according to the IRS, a high degree of "noncompliance"?

And if you're determined this year to fight to the top any agent who disallows your claims, what is the outlook for your appeal to higher levels of the IRS?

From the very latest fiscal '72 report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to the Secretary of the Treasury and from other scattered sources, the Research Institute of America has dug out these significant facts for YOU:

* If you have filed an individual return with an adjusted gross income of $50,000 or more, set your chin. The odds are an overwhelming one in eight that your return will be plucked.

And the chances are 86 per cent that the IRS agent will come to your home or place of business and really dig in. There's only a 14 per cent chance that you'll get a less intensive scrutiny at an IRS office.

* If you have filed a business return with an adjusted gross income of $30,000 or more, the odds that your return will be audited also are a huge one in eight. And there's a 93 per cent chance that the agent will come to your place of business or home to do the job, only 7 per cent that you'll be called to an IRS office.

* If you have filed a corporation return, the odds on an audit of your return — at any income level — are 1 in 14. And the chances are 100 per cent that the audit will take place at your corporation's office.

* If you're just typical of all individual and fiduciary returns, your odds on an audit go up to one in 57 — with the chances that you'll be called to an IRS office for the examination 80 per cent and only 20 per cent that you'll be visited at home by an agent.

Jews In Canada Object To Letter J On Tax Bills

MONTREAL — The use of the letter J on tax bills sent to Jewish taxpayers by the Montreal Urban Council has revived bitter memories among Jews of Cote-St. Luc, a 95 percent Jewish-populated suburb of Montreal. They say it smacks of the J many of them were forced to wear while inmates of Nazi concentration camps.

The J began to appear on tax bills after a new law that went into effect in January abolished the old system of separate tax lists for Jews, Catholics and Protestants. The assessment bills of Catholics and Protestants are marked C and P in the "religious code" box.

But Jews are more sensitive "because they have been persecuted in my own time, not hundreds of years ago," Mrs. Celine Polak, spokesman for a group of irate Jewish taxpayers, said at a meeting of the Cote-St. Luc City Council. Mrs. Polak, who was born in Amsterdam and was forced to wear the J during the Nazi occupation, asked why the MUC needs to know a taxpayer's religion. "The Germans wanted the same information. We later regretted that we gave it to them. Many Jews aren't alive to regret it," she said.

Mrs. Polak's 25-member delegation met with Mayor Samuel Moskovitch of Cote-St. Luc. He said the Council would send a protest resolution to the MUC with copies to the 27 other member municipalities, Minister of Municipal Affairs, Premier Robert Bourassa and federal authorities. Nathan Bruker, another member of the delegation, suggested notifying the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith. "That's an American organization, let's try to keep this in Canada," the Mayor replied.

Newspapers deliver massive coverage of all age groups.

PLAN FOR DONOR LUNCHEON: A meeting was held recently at the home of Mrs. Charles Lappin of the committee which is making plans for the Donor Luncheon of the Pioneer Women to be held on Tuesday, May 15, at Temple Beth El. Mrs. Samuel Goldman is chairman of the event, and cochairmen are Mrs. Lappin and Mrs. Abraham Grebstain. Mrs. Samuel Solkoff is general secretary.

Orthodox Group Sues Newsday For Refusing To Accept Ad

NEW YORK — An Orthodox Jewish group sued in Federal Court in Brooklyn Monday to enjoin Newsday, the Long Island newspaper, from refusing to accept an advertisement that condemned intermarriage as "suicide, national and personal."

In a complaint filed by the Committee for the Furtherance of Jewish Education, Newsday was charged with having violated the group's constitutional rights of freedom of speech and religion.

The committee, with headquarters at 824 Eastern Parkway, in the Crown Heights section of Brooklyn, demanded that the newspaper's preferential mailing rate treatment be vacated and that the Post Office be enjoined from allowing the publication to use the mails. It also asked $20,000 in compensatory damages.

Publication of the ad, which ran in The New York Times and The

New York Post, was rejected on February 1, by Newsday according to the complaint. Rabbi Jacob J. Hecht, the executive vice president of the committee, called Newsday's action a denial of freedom of speech and the freedom of the press and an abridgement of its right "to proselytize a basic tenet of the Jewish faith."

A spokesman for Newsday said that the paper had not refused the ad but that it had been withdrawn by the complainant after Newsday "made some recommendations about the content."

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

Today's hand is interesting for many reasons but the most is that after the Dummy comes down each of the other players knows within one point exactly what every hand contains and also just about what the distribution is. After that it should have been quite easy to both play the hand well and defend it the best way. However, some Declarers did not take advantage of the knowledge they might have had because many of them just do not think that way. As for the defense, none of the Defenders made the play they might have but really cannot be blamed.

No one was vulnerable, East Dealer with this bidding:

E	S	W	N
1♦	INT	P	2♦
P	3♦	P	3NT

I didn't see this hand until it was played at my Wednesday morning clinic. At that time the bidding did go as above. After East opened the bidding, South's best action was the No Trump overcall. North took one chance that South did happen to have four Hearts and used the Stayman Two Club bid to find out although the fact that South did not make a Take-out Double inferred that he did not have four Hearts. South's response was automatic, all No Trump bidders are pawns in the hands of their partners. He showed a maximum No Trump of at least 18 points with a four card Spade suit.

Now North had to decide whether to play in Hearts or No Trump and wisely settled on the latter for he knew from the bidding that West had to have a singleton Spade and ruffs in that suit were likely which, as you can see, they are.

For lack of anything better West led his Spade and Dummy came down. Remember, there are only 40 points in the deck. See if you can figure by looking at one hand only what each of the others have as soon as you see the Dummy. Declarer adds his own 18 to Dummy's 9 and equals 27. East opened so must have at least 12 so West at the most has 1 point. East can do the same. He knows by the bidding that South has at least 18, when he asked what the bid of three Spades meant they told him that so he can use simple arithmetic and also know that West has no more than one point. West can use his school-learnin' too and adding Declarer's known 18 points to Dummy's 9 and his own 1 learns that his partner has exactly the 12 points he opened the bid.

Israelis Hold Arabs For Bombings Last Year

TEL AVIV — Israeli security forces have detained several Arabs in Israel and the occupied Arab territories, charging them with responsibility for a series of bomb attacks last year, the military command reported here.

All are suspected of membership in Al Fatah, the largest Arab guerrilla organization and the main target of an Israeli raid in Beirut last week, a statement said.

A military spokesman said that there was no connection with the arrests and a set of documents captured during the raid on the

Hello Again!

News of the Sports World by Warren Walden

ADD MORE: Hockey Playoffs and Basketball, too. Football stories commanding space in a season that belonged to baseball alone at one time. In Boston, THE Marathon and also a big wrestling attraction that, oddly, features a Tag-team match on a card that includes the World Champion in an underneath spot. Golf growing and growing and Tennis achieving a new high in popularity. Dog, Racing, Horse Racing and Automobile Racing; and radio and television broadcasts and the theatre and restaurants and shopping centers open until late at night. My goodness! There's scarcely time to wash the dishes. ***

ROOM FOR ANOTHER: Bicycle riding has become tremendously popular, probably numbering more riders at present than at any time since the turn of the century. And so, is there room for the revival of an old sport? Bicycle racing on banked wooden tracks? Motor-paced bicycle racing? It would involve the motor-maniacs as well as the pedalers. ***

MISSING THE BOAT: It seems that someone, with the necessary cabbage and vitality; enterprising spirit, too; could be picking up a lot of television money — if — that someone could build a bicycle-racing track. Programs like those offered back when Cyclodromes were popular sports arenas would be ideal for the TV cameras. With the many cyclists riding today, it would seem that there is plenty of talent available. ***

FAMED FOOTBALL HOME: The last Cyclodrome built in this section was constructed with a dual purpose in mind when the infield was made big en' gh for a professional football field. It was the home of the much-discussed, never-to-be-forgotten-greatest-of-World Champion Providence Steamroller Football team. The games were played inside the oval formed by the wooden bicycle track. Spectators sat all around the track and it was said that the unusual stadium could hold 15-thousand fans. It wasn't called by any name other than "The Cyclodrome" although it could have been called the "Turville Oval" in honor of Charles Turville who had so much to do with bike racing. It could have been named "Dooley Stadium" in honor of the late and great Judge James E. Dooley who was the spark — yes the fire — behind so many promotions in Rhode Island. And it might have been named the "Laudati Oval" in recognition of another great sportsman and associate with Dooley and Turville in Cyclodrome promotions, Peter Laudati. ***

BY ANY OTHER NAME: When someone builds a new cyclodrome, those are some names for consideration. However, by any name, bicycle racing could again be a top attraction. And with TV! There's no limit. Picture, if you can, a motorcycle rider setting the pace for a pedaling bike rider. There was a roller across the back of the motorcycle and the front wheel of the bicycle was smaller than the big power wheel in the rear. When the bike-rider wanted more speed from his pacer, he would nudge the roller on the back of the motorbike. ***

GREAT NAMES! GREAT ATHLETES! There isn't an athlete today who attained the heights of popularity enjoyed by Vincent "Poosha" Madonna. Riding at 50 miles an hour behind the motor pacer — sometimes at SIXTY! — Madonna would be almost horizontal at times going around a steeply banked turn and passing two others, three abreast! Clarence Carmen, George Chapman, Charles Verkyn, Frankie DiPanni, Lew Hall and others were names sports followers knew well. Pacers were an accomplished group of their own. Art Lessieur, who later played hockey for the R.I. Reds, was one of the daring fellows. And there was Stein and Gaethoffs and Pat Lombari. All great; all artists in their own right. ***

WHAT A SPOT: The last Cyclodrome was located just off North Main Street at the Providence-Pawtucket line. It was built there to serve both cities. Pat Lombari was telling about it the other day. "It had only four laps to a mile," said Pat. "We had another one before that and it was located near the corner of Reservoir and Park Avenues. That one was a seven lap to the mile." Someone remarked, "There were some great football players who performed in the Cyclodrome off North Main Street." To which Mr. Lombari quickly retorted, "None greater than those bicycle racers." He thought a minute and added, "And the motor-pacers, too." He was one of the latter. Why doesn't someone build a track? — CARY ON!

Kurdish Trace Ancestry To One Of 10 Lost Tribes

JERUSALEM — The Kurdish Jews in Israel, numbering some 90,000 and originating from Iraq's mountain country, from Iran, Syria and Turkey, trace their ancestry to one of the 10 lost tribes of Israel who had been exiled in 721 B.C.E.

This fact was disclosed by Haim Shimon, chairman of the National Organization of Kurdish Jews in Israel, during a recent 10-day festival held in the Jerusalem Forest Recreation Center.

Researchers from the Hebrew University attended the festival at which there was dancing, singing and tale-telling. Dr. Issachar Ben-Ami, Director of the Hebrew U. Folklore Research Center, was deeply impressed with the facts he learned about the rich Kurdish-Jewish folklore from the leaders of the unique Jewish community.

"We have learned more in a day here than in a year's ordinary research," he told a correspondent. "This is the first time that anything like this has been done in the country, and I don't know of examples anywhere else in the world."

Large-scale immigration of Kurdish Jews to Israel began in the 1920's and by the early 1950's virtually the last of them had reached the country. A hardy people, they are active in their traditional occupations of stonework, transportation and farming.

Pro-Arab Propaganda Spreads In Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO — Pro-Arab propaganda is making steady inroads in Brazil in the form of articles in small town newspapers and inexpensive pamphlets sold in bookstores and in university bookstores.

Articles in the newspapers are subtle, without the cliches and verbal paroxysms that mark similar articles in the American and European press.

The articles deal with issues such as the role of women in Arab society, the contributions of Arabs to the Brazilian economy and intellectual life, the political and economic development of Arab workers.

These stories, written in a simple and straightforward manner, are geared toward a working class readership.

Pamphlets, equally well-written, deal with the aspirations of the Palestine people, the aims of Arab liberation, and depict Israel and Zionists as oppressors and Gestapo-like individuals.

These pamphlets are sold at prices ranging from three to six cruzeiros (fifty cents to one dollar), almost free of charge compared to other pamphlets of comparable numbers of pages, quality of printing and layout.

They are evidently subsidized and thus are almost being given away.

Young Jews, especially on the campuses, are exposed to them, especially as there are no comparable pro-Israel or pro-Zionist pamphlets. The Zionist material available is written in a heavy style and is usually too expensive for the students.

Incendiary Devices Set Off In Home

WASHINGTON — Eight incendiary devices were set off inside the Hebrew Home for the Aged in nearby Rockville, Maryland, shortly before dawn on April 5 but none of the 200 residents averaging about 82 years of age was reported injured.

Montgomery County Police Lt. Charles Federline said a recent trainee at the institution's practical nursing education class is being sought for questioning. Police would not give the suspect's name.

Only 45 minutes before police were notified of the fire-bombing Lt. Federline said, three similar fires were started in the laundry room of the Home for Incurables in Washington's Northwest section. Police believe the two incidents are connected, he said.

Alvin J. Steinberg, chairman of the District of Columbia-Maryland Regional Board of the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League, declared after an ADL investigation that "there is no reason to believe" that the bombing at the Hebrew Home "was motivated by organized anti-Semitism."

Start Publication In Israel Of Russian Language Mag

JERUSALEM — A new Russian-language magazine called Menorah, aimed at the growing number of Jewish emigres from the Soviet Union, is being published here with the backing of the Ministry of Religious Affairs, its editors announced.

The magazine will appear quarterly, will sell for IL 5 per copy and the publishers hope to distribute it eventually to Russian-speaking Jews overseas, its editor, Moshe Bar Sela, said. Bar Sela, the Russian-born executive director of the Yad Maimon Research Institute, said that the magazine is designed to bridge the cultural gap felt by Jewish immigrants arriving from the USSR who have few publications to which they can turn for information about Judaism and life in Israel.

Scientists Grow Bacteria Which Eat Up Oil Slick

TEL AVIV — American-born microbiologists experimenting aboard an Israeli supertanker off Elath grew bacteria that ate more than half the sludge, tar and oil in ballast water during a four-day sailing, it was reported here.

The process reduced the rest of the oil in the experimental tank to tiny droplets that the scientists said were not toxic and when discharged into the sea became a source of food for marine life.

They said their process could reduce pollution since residual oil emptied into the sea with ballast water was a prime source of the oil slicks that have fouled up beaches and harmed marine life.

The scientists are faculty members of Tel Aviv University who immigrated from the United States a few years ago. Prof. Eugene Rosenberg, 37 years old, who obtained his Ph.D. from Columbia and later taught at the University of California, is chairman of the department of microbiology. Dr. David Gutnick, 33, obtained his Ph.D. at the University of Southern California and worked as a senior scientist at the National Institutes of Health in Washington before joining Tel Aviv University in 1969.

Quick Bacteria Growth

Professor Rosenberg said that a cupful of bacteria cultivated from a strain that had been found feeding on tar from oil slicks on the Tel Aviv beach had been poured into a tank containing 120,000 liters (31,000 United States gallons) of ballast water. The bacteria multiplied a thousandfold in four days.

He said the scientists hoped to develop a process to collect the oil-consuming bacteria as animal feed protein before the ballast was emptied into the sea.

Tanker operators who cooperated in the experiment were concerned primarily with the efficacy of the process in cleaning tanks.

Dr. Gutnick said the area of the experimental tank that had been covered by bacteria was clean. "There weren't even oil stains," he said. "We could see the paint on the bottom of the floor."

Elsewhere, he said, there was sludge a few centimeters thick on pipes, ladders, walls and all sorts of hidden corners.

The scientists said they had taken their experiment aboard the tanker after laboratory tests here had shown that to get microbes to eat carbon in the oil it was necessary to add sources of nitrogen and phosphate as well as air. This could not be done in the sea itself because of dilution, so they decided to go to the original source of most of the pollution, Professor Rosenberg said.

He calculated that nearly 1 percent of the cargo remained in the tank as residue after tankers discharged oil. The residue mixes with water taken on as ballast for the return journey. When the tankers prepare to pick up their next cargo, the ballast with oil floating on top is discharged, often being dumped into the sea, he said.

Israeli Government Forbids Individuals To Buy Arab Land

JERUSALEM — Israel has decided not to permit individual Israelis or Israeli concerns to buy land in the Arab territories occupied since the 1967 war.

Bowing to heavy domestic and international criticism, Defense Minister Moshe Dayan withdrew his proposal to authorize such purchases. He acted shortly before the Cabinet held its weekly session.

Instead, the Government reaffirmed the existing policy, which permits transfers of land only among residents of the occupied territories and transfers to the official Israel Lands Authority for Government-approved settlement. Israeli citizens — Jewish or Arab — as well as foreigners are specifically forbidden to acquire such land.

The decision was seen here as a major victory for the so-called doves in the Israeli Government who are led by Foreign Minister Abba Eban. They fought the authorization of individual land purchases by Israelis on the argument that it would indiscriminately foreclose the Government's options in any peace negotiation with Arab nations.

Criticism From Abroad

In addition to the vigorous domestic opposition, a number of foreign governments had been critical of the idea. In Washington, Assistant Secretary of State Joseph J. Sisco telephoned Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz to get a clarification of the Israeli Government position on the matter.

At the United Nations, Secretary General Waldheim summoned the Israeli representative, Yosef Tekoa, to a meeting, apparently to advise him of the protests he received from the representatives of Jordan, Syria and Egypt. The three Arab representatives had asked Mr. Waldheim to intercede with the Israelis to halt what they called a "large-scale expropriation of Arab land and property" in the occupied areas.

As a result of the foreign and domestic opposition, a majority of the 18-member Cabinet had apparently decided against the Dayan proposal. But, as is often the case, it was the view of Premier Golda Meir that decided the issue.

Dayan Is Persuaded

After withholding her opinion until the last minute, Mrs. Meir held separate meetings before the Cabinet session with Mr. Dayan and Justice Minister Yakov S. Shapiro, who had drafted a similar proposal. According to Mr. Shapiro, Mrs. Meir expressed her reluctant opposition to the idea and persuaded both Ministers to withdraw their proposals rather than create a Cabinet crisis over the issue at this time.

Sources close to Mr. Dayan said that he had agreed to this request, although he still believes that the Government should permit Israelis to make such purchases, particularly in the West Bank of the Jordan River.

A close aide to Mr. Dayan predicted that, on the basis of past performance, the Government would ultimately adopt the Defense Minister's policy. "Remember that a lot of Dayan's ideas on the territories were opposed when he first raised them," the aide said. "But eventually he gets his way."

Many Purchases in Works

Still, the Government's action was a significant setback for Mr. Dayan, who has been actively campaigning in recent weeks to get the governing Labor party to adopt a more vigorous settlement policy in the occupied territories.

The Government move also came as a setback to the scores of individual Israelis and land speculators who have reportedly made numerous land deals on the West Bank in recent months. Most of these have been conditioned on Government approval of the transactions.

The details of several conditional sales have emerged in the Israeli press in recent days. In one case, Yechezkel Sahar, a former inspector general of the national police, acknowledged that he had been seeking to buy a choice 25-acre plot on the outskirts of Jerusalem on behalf of a construction company of which he is now a director. The company had planned to build and sell a number of one-family villas.

In another case, a group of 200 Israelis formed a company to acquire land for homes north of Jerusalem. The group persuaded Yigal Horowitz, a member of the Israeli Parliament, to help them win Government approval.

Copilot Confirms Israeli Claims

JERUSALEM — The Libyan copilot of an airliner downed by Israeli jets February 21 in the Sinai Peninsula said last week that the plane's captain heard the warning shots fired by the interceptors and planned to land, "but at the last moment he changed his mind" and tried to escape back to Egypt.

The copilot, El Kidifi el Mahadi said the crew had lost its way when the plane accidentally intruded into Israeli-held air space.

His version of events leading to the disaster in which 108 persons died appeared to tally with Israel's claim that the interceptors warned the jetliner's crew to land, and fired when it refused.

Black Panthers Take Over Supermarket; Lower Prices

JERUSALEM — Eighteen Black Panthers protesting the recent price rises were arrested recently after they took over a supermarket in the Kiryat Yovel suburb and started selling items at 20 percent below the marked prices. Police Deputy Commander Avraham Turjeman said that the Panthers would be charged with illegal assembly.

He said the police intended to press the charges even though the invasion was, in Turjeman's words, a "stunt." He claimed it could have led to a serious breach of the peace. When police arrived some Panthers were picketing outside the supermarket while those inside were busily stamping lower prices on items from the shelves and checking out delighted customers

Martin Bormann Declared Officially Dead

BERLIN — Martin Bormann, Hitler's aide, was officially declared dead on the basis of identification of a skeleton uncovered during construction work in West Berlin last December.

The Hess state prosecutor, Dr. Horst Gauff, said at a news conference in Frankfurt that the justice authorities had set as the time and place of death the night of May 2, 1945, at a bridge crossing the Invalidenstrasse in Berlin's Tiergarten district. Among the points described as corroborating the identification was a gold dental bridge.

The prosecutor said that, according to his findings, Bormann died between 1 and 3 a.m. that day "just a few hours after the death of his accomplice, Hitler." The Nazi aide was a suicide, the prosecutor added.

By officially declaring Bormann dead, the German authorities sought to put an end to the international hunt for the infamous Nazi leader whose whereabouts had remained a mystery and an object of worldwide speculation since his disappearance during the last days of World War II.

However, doubts were immediately voiced by Simon Wiesenthal, head of the Jewish Documentation Center in Vienna, who was instrumental in tracing Adolf Eichmann, the SS (elite corps) leader, in Argentina in 1960 and in bringing him to justice in Israel.

Mr. Wiesenthal, who was present in Frankfurt at the news conference held by the prosecutor's office, acknowledged that the justice authorities had worked "with great seriousness" in their investigations. "However,

Time Magazine Reports Few Jews Taken Into FBI

NEW YORK — Time magazine, in a recent article on the FBI, makes the point that only a handful of Jews are to be found in its ranks. Veteran supporters of the late J. Edgar Hoover say that he "distrusted" Jews, not because of their religion but because of their supposed "liberalism."

The overwhelming majority of the 8,500 agents employed by the FBI are said to be Protestant college graduates from universities, mostly in the South, Midwest and West. Only 12 percent of FBI agents are black, Spanish-surnamed, or Oriental; and only 2 are women.

To qualify for the FBI, prospective agents must be college graduates between the ages of 23 and 40 and at least 5 ft. 7 in. tall. Starting pay for agents is just under $13,000 per annum. Veteran agents with 10 years in the field receive salaries of from $25,000 to $30,000.

some doubts must remain whether the bones found in Berlin are really those of Bormann," he said.

Dr. Gauff and his aides, Joachim Richter and Wilhelm Metzner, responded that for them it was "absolutely certain that Bormann is dead."

Bormann, who succeeded Rudolf Hess as Hitler's deputy after Hess escaped to England in 1941, was known as a fanatical Nazi, responsible for the mass murder of Jews and Poles during the war. The Nuremberg tribunal sentenced him to death in 73 by now.

In a 28-year-old search, traces of the missing Nazi were reported from as far away parts of the world as the Soviet Union and Latin America, the latter a favorite haven for Nazi refugees. Only last fall a writer, Ladislas Farago, asserted that Bormann was running a prosperous business in Argentina. Born in June, 1900, the Hitler aide would be close to 73 by now.

Special Shabbat To Be Observed

A special Twenty-Fifth Shabbat will be observed in every temple and synagogue throughout Rhode Island on Friday evening, May 4, or Saturday morning, May 5. This service will be followed, in most cases, by an Oneg Shabbat in honor of Israel's 25th anniversary.

This religious event is sponsored by the Rhode Island Committee for Israel's 25th Celebration in cooperation with the Rhode Island Board of Rabbis as part of Israel's 25th anniversary weekend in Rhode Island and throughout the United States. Dr. Joseph G. Fishbein, chairman for the anniversary Shabbat, announced that the special service will be dedicated to Israel's 25th year of statehood, with sermons devoted to this topic.

The Jewish youth groups of Rhode Island on Saturday, May 5, at 6 p.m. will sponsor three simultaneous Shalosh Se'udot (third Shabbat meal) programs for all Rhode Island Jewish youth at Temple Emanu-El, Congregation B'nai Israel in Woonsocket, and a third temple. Touro Synagogue in Newport will hold a similar youth program on Saturday morning.

Manny Perlman, coordinator for this state-wide youth activity, reported that the program will include a special Havdalah service in honor of Israel's anniversary, plus skits, singing and dancing. All Jewish youth are invited to participate.

On Thursday, May 3, the Rhode Island Board of Rabbis will sponsor a "Christian-Jewish Dialogue on the Meaning of Israel," at Temple Beth El according to plans announced by Rabbi Jacob Handler, chairman of the Board of Rabbis.

Designed as an all-day institute for Christian clergy, the dialogue will feature Dr. David Neiman, professor of religion at Boston College, and Father Edward Flannery, executive secretary of the Secretariat for Catholic-Jewish relations. The Honorable Arie Bilar, vice-consul of Israel in New England, will bring official greetings from the state of Israel.

Thieves Attack Franciscan Monk

JERUSALEM — The police reported that three thieves disguised as priests attacked a Franciscan monk in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre early last week and made off with a plaque proclaiming Jesus king of the Jews.

The monk, Francis Kurza, an American, was on guard duty at the church, the traditional site of Jesus's burial and resurrection, when the three men appeared at 2:45 pushed the monk down a flight of stairs and struck him.

The men then climbed on an altar of the Greek Orthodox section of the church and took the plaque.

FORM ORGANIZATION

TEL AVIV — Members of the Zionist Organization of America who have settled in Israel have formed an organization, based at the ZOA House here, to undertake aliyah, absorption, tourist and other assistance programs for ZOA visitors and olim.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

ROGER E. SPEAR

FNMA OK FOR RISK ACCOUNTS

Q: Do you think I should continue to hold Federal National Mortgage Association (NYSE) shares acquired in the low twenties? P.C.

A: The 18-month freeze on subsidized housing announced in January by the Administration was quickly reflected in FNMA share price. However, the drop in trading levels may prove to be precipitous since FNMA has enough HUD-subsidized mortgage commitments ahead to sustain its normal financing activity rate through the freeze. Furthermore, if interest rates rise and money supply dries up as anticipated FNMA will probably get a bigger slice of the conventional mortgage market.

As a result of a strong gain in earnings from $1.43 to $2.17 a share in 1972, the dividend rate was increased for the second time in 12 months. Earnings this year should also move ahead, despite higher money costs. The corporation is in a relatively good position in this respect with more than 80% of its debt low-cost long-term debentures. Shares have an above-average risk factor in view of their highly leveraged position. Nonetheless, I would recommend retention.

Q: My wife and I have $55,000 in savings at 5%. We would like more income on this money but do not want to have the money tied down for a long period. We need maximum safety as we wish to retire in the near future. P.S.

A: Your capital should be earning more for you. Passbook savings accounts in this area (Northeast) are paying 5 1/4% from day of deposit to day of withdrawal, which is a 5.47% effective yield on one-year deposits. One-year certificate accounts pay 5 3/4%. A few hours of investigation should turn up banks offering insured accounts with more satisfactory interest rates than you are now receiving.

A second possibility is six-month Treasury bills currently paying approximately 5.8%. Information on how to purchase these government debt obligations may be secured from the Federal Reserve Bank branch office located in your city.

Transfer of Fund Shares Suggested

Q: I accumulated several thousand shares of Affiliated Fund in a periodic purchase plan. The present price is well below my cost. Should I continue to hold for income? R.D.

A: This industry giant with assets of about $1.7 billion has only an average performance record in the last 5 years. In view of the fund's investment goal of long-term growth, my advice would be to switch. The same management group sponsors the Lord Abbett Bond-Debenture Fund, an income issue. For a $5 fee you may transfer your present holdings to the bond fund, which currently yields a generous 7.3%.

Q: I hold 6 American Telephone warrants (NYSE) and 10 shares of the $4.00 convertible preferred (NYSE). Should I exercise, sell or hold these two issues? H.C.

A: The Telephone warrants are trading at close to $8 currently. Exercising these now would result in your paying a 15.0% premium to acquire the common shares. Thus I would not recommend your choosing that option. In the last six months while the common shares moved ahead 21% the warrants rose 32%, a not uncommon pattern for this type of security. With earnings setting records continued improvement in common and warrant trading levels is not unlikely. I would not anticipate that the gains in warrant price would continue to outpace the gains in common at the 1.5 to 1 rate of the last six months. More likely the premium between them will narrow somewhat. Nonetheless, I would favor retaining the warrants for the present.

The preferred shares have failed to participate in the price rise enjoyed by the common shares and warrants. Thus in the 6 months past, the trading premium over conversion value has narrowed from 31% to 13%. While this security trades partially on a yield basis, its price action is also influenced by the price action of the common. As the price of the common approaches that of the preferred, this issue will move more in line with the common. Hold.

Q: When Alexander's, Inc. (NYSE) went public I bought 50 shares. It is now down to about $7 a share. Would it be wise to buy another 100 shares now? F.H.

A: Until evidence of a turnaround becomes more clear-cut, I would not recommend adding to your holdings. Deficits were reported in the April and July 1972 fiscal quarters reflecting intensified competition, which forced heavy markdowns. The October quarter — first of the current fiscal year — saw a return to profitability on a 9% gain in sales. Newer stores, located in several large shopping plazas, have not yet reached the same high rate of sales per square foot enjoyed by older Alexander's units. As a result, margins have narrowed.

Recently the company acquired a 51% interest in Catalog Showroom Sales. The field is intensely competitive and the firm newly organized. One showroom has been opened, two more should be operating within the year. Hold but do not add to shares.

TO HEBRON

HEBROW — Israel's Sephardi Chief Rabbi, Ovadia Yosef, took the occasion of a visit to Hebron to urge the government and the Jewish Agency to send new immigrants to Hebron and other settlements in the administered areas. Rabbi Yosef asked for this to be undertaken so that the immigrants "may be truly absorbed in the land." The Chief Rabbi was the guest of the border police and the Hebron Jewish settlers.

Arab Labor Force Becomes Focus For Political Arguments In Israel

JERUSALEM — They come in the early morning, before most Israelis are awake, from the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip. Wearing Arab headdresses and workboots, they commute each day in overcrowded buses and taxis to construction sites and factories all over Israel.

They are Israel's migrant workers — about 50,000 to 60,000 Arab laborers from the occupied territories who have come in steadily increasing numbers since the 1967 war to find jobs in Israel's overheated economy.

In the last few years they have become an indispensable ingredient in Israel's economic boom — the cheap labor on which the economy has vaulted forward since the six-day war. Without them, the vital construction industry would grind to a stop, the vast citrus crops could not be harvested in time, important factories would have to cut their production schedules.

Benefits and Drawbacks

In recent months they have also become the focus of one of the most fundamental political arguments in Israel during this election year: The issue of the impact these workers have on the Israeli way of life.

In general, most Israelis seem to support the views of either Defense Minister Moshe Dayan or Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir, the men considered most likely to succeed Premier Golda Meir should she step down. Their views could not be further apart.

To Mr. Dayan, the daily stream of workers across the old armistice lines is one of the major bonuses of Israel's prolonged occupation of territories with nearly million Arabs. He sees it as a help to the Israeli economy and the Arabs themselves, and as tangible proof of his argument that Arabs and Israelis can live and work side by side.

To Mr. Sapir, the growing dependency on this labor is a social, political and moral evil that threatens to undermine the labor-Zionist principles on which the nation was founded. He sees it as a corruption of the first of the Zionist goals: the return to the land by Jewish manual labor. He also sees it as a long-term demographic threat to the Jewishness of the Israeli.

The moral aspect of the issue was first thrust into the public consciousness by a letter written to Mr. Dayan by a mother living in a moshav, a communal settlement similar to the kibbutz. In the letter, published widely, she said that since the 1967 war her husband, a farmer had become a labor contractor, providing Arab workers for various agricultural jobs in Israel.

"Today we have five workers," she wrote. "We've gotten to the point where we don't lift a finger on the farm. My son refuses even to mow the lawn — 'Mohammed will mow it' — much less irrigate the fields or do other such dirty work."

The woman said that recently her husband and most men on the moshav had built small huts on the edge of the settlement to accommodate their Arab workers despite the regulation that the Arabs must return to their villages in the occupied territories each night.

"The Arabs sleep in a grove a few meters from our house," she wrote, "and our life-style has become that of the effendis," or Arab feudal landowners.

Arguing that the country has been "flooded" with these workers the woman urged Mr. Dayan to bar them from entering Israel. She said: "If the situation is this appalling after five years, what will happen in another 10 or more? Each passing year will make the problem worse and turn the contractors, who today are getting rich with slight pangs of conscience, into pressure groups that will lock all change tomorrow."

The letter caused a furor, partly because of the life-style the woman described and partly because of the disclosure that Arabs were spending the night in the moshav.

At Mrs. Meir's personal instructions, the police were ordered to enforce the requirement that the Arabs go home at night. But police officials concede that that is a difficult, if not impossible, task and that at least several thousand Arabs customarily sleep near their places of work in Israel four or five nights a week.

In his speeches, Mr. Sapir has picked up the moshav women's theme, arguing that what he termed "master-slave" relationship has been growing between the Israeli employers and their Arab workers.

The problem cannot be solved by administrative orders, the Finance Minister has argued, "since in the course of time we will morally and practically be unable to demand that the workers go back to their villages every night."

In response, Mr. Dayan has argued that the close exposure to the Israeli way of life had fundamentally altered the Arabs' view of Israel and diminished their hostility towards her. He has also contended that the higher pay that the Arabs had been receiving in Israel had lifted many of them from the dependent status of refugee to that of ordinary citizen.

Israelis Startled

This sudden and conspicuous display of identification with the guerrilla movement has startled many Israelis and has forced them to question the apparent goodwill toward Israel that seemed to have developed among West Bank Arabs since 1967.

Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir expressed disappointment in a weekend interview with Maariv, an Israeli daily. He said that the fiction of a gradual approachment between Israelis and the West Bank Arabs "has crashed up against the wall of cruel reality."

Although violations of the censorship law are frequent, and journalists in past cases have lost their credentials as a result, none had been arrested.

Emotional Editorial

In addition to the news report, the paper ran an emotional front-page editorial mourning the death of the three guerrilla leaders assassinated during the Beirut raid.

The editorial said that the funeral for these "martyrs" should be the occasion for a national procession in which we celebrate the birth of a thousand more Abu Yussefs and Kamal Nasses."

Abu Yussef — the code name for Mohammed Yussef Najjar — was one of the three guerrillas. He was chairman of the political department of the Palestine Liberation Organization. Kamal Nasser was spokesman for the

BRISCOE ELECTED

DUBLIN — Ben Briscoe of the Fianna Fail, the ruling party of President De Valera and Premier Jack Lynch was re-elected to the Irish Parliament for South Central Dublin. He is the only Jew among the new Irish MPs. Another Jewish candidate, Mervin Taylor, Labor, was defeated. Briscoe is the son of the late Robert Briscoe, one of the leaders of the Irish Republican Army, a member of the Irish Parliament for many years and a Lord Mayor of Dublin. South Central Dublin is a two-member constituency.

The Arbab-labor issue has posed a dilemma for the Government that is especially difficult in an election year.

Disturbed by the moral consequences of the migration but anxious to sustain the economic boom, the Cabinet has thus far tried to control the problem by setting arbitrary limits on the number of Arab workers permitted to enter Israel at any given time.

A bolder and more far-reaching solution will have to wait at least until the fall elections, if not a final peace agreement with the Arabs.

The new work-with-music, written by Adrian Hall and Richard Cumming, is slated to run through May 19 when the Trinity season will close.

Israelis Stunned By Rise In Frozen Meat, Other Basics

JERUSALEM — A stunned public was informed here that the price of frozen meat will rise by nearly 50 percent along with sharp increases in the prices of other basic commodities including sugar, fuel and tobacco. The prices soared after Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir introduced new subsidy policies.

The government's refusal to raise its price supports was expected to inflate prices but Israelis apparently were not prepared for the steep increase in meat prices and the 38 percent rise in the price of sugar. Sapir also signed regulations raising the price of gasoline by 12 percent, cigarettes by 15 percent, cooking gas, heating fuel and paraffin by 17 percent. The price of flour was also on the way up though the exact percentage remained undecided. On the other hand, Sapir apparently bowed to pressure from Histadrut, agreed not to raise the prices of milk, dairy products, eggs and poultry.

Price supports on those items are expected to be increased. Sapir told the Cabinet that the present subsidies the government pays to keep prices stable are no longer adequate and would have to be increased from IL 600 million a year to nearly IL 1 billion, something the government cannot do. He said the consumer will have to foot part of the bill.

Histradut representatives who sat in on a meeting of the ministerial economic committee were unable to agree to the government's moves.

At a briefing for newsmen, Finance Ministry officials provided details of the various types of extra compensation that will be paid to low income families to counter the effect of the price increases. A family of four that earns IL 500 will receive an additional IL 14 per month. Their costs will probably go up IL 8.7 a month, the officials said. A family of five which earns IL 700 a month will receive an additional IL 17.5 per month. Its costs are expected to increase by IL 11.6.

Ministry officials noted that the average price increase amounted to six percent, which compared with other countries suffering from inflationary problems, is relatively small. The prices of many staples will remain steady. These include fish, tea, coffee, potatoes, bread, cocoa and edible oils. But the sharply increased price of sugar is expected to affect the prices of such foods as cake, noodles, breakfast cereals, jams, confectionary fruits and fruit juices.

Denies Establishing Foothold In Ethiopia, Red Sea Islands

JERUSALEM — The Israeli government denied two claims by Southern Yemen that Israel has established a presence on the Ethiopian coast and on several islands in the Red Sea which command the shipping lanes to and from the Indian Ocean. The Southern Yemeni Embassy in Beirut claimed that Israel has leased Ras (Cape) Sintian from Ethiopia where it was allegedly building an air and naval base some 30 kilometers from the Yemeni island of Perim that controls the southern entrance to the Red Sea.

Perim was the base for a rocket attack on the Israel-bound tanker Coral Sea in June, 1971. The Southern Yemeni Embassy in Baghdad claimed that Israeli forces had occupied five islands in the Straits of Bab el Mandab. The islands were not identified but the Beirut Embassy indicated that they included Zugor Island and the Hanish group. A similar report that appeared in Time magazine a week ago, was denied by Israeli authorities at the time.

According to the Yemeni Embassy in Beirut, the islands belong to Southern Yemen but were turned over to Ethiopia by the British before the Aden Protectorate, which became Southern Yemen, achieved independence in November, 1967. The Embassy charged that Israel was coordinating its "serious penetration" of the Red Sea with the United States, and that Israel wanted to control navigation in the area.

Israelis, Arabs Carry On Underground Warfare

ROME — The recent spectacular actions by Arab and Israeli commandos have been accompanied by a chain of deadly but obscure duels among secret networks all over Europe and elsewhere, intelligence specialists here say.

Between the attack on Israeli athletes by Black September guerrillas at the Olympic Games in Munich last September and the Israeli attack on Arab guerrillas in Lebanon, at least four Arabs believed to have played undercover roles were killed in Rome, Paris, and Nicosia, Cyprus, and an Israeli security agent was shot to death in Madrid.

Security experts here say they are convinced that Arab and Israeli clandestine organizations have contributed to the rash of letter bombs since last September that killed an Israeli diplomat in London and caused injuries to other people in various places.

The assassination of an Iraqi in Paris is believed here to have been yet another episode in Arab-Israeli underground warfare. The victim was Basil el-Kubaisi, 40, who was identified as a teacher at the American University in Beirut, but the university denied that he was on the faculty. The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a leftist guerrilla organization, said in Beirut that the slain man was a member on a mission in Paris.

Mr. Kubaisi had been traveling extensively in Europe, and security sources here say that he was probably trailed by Israeli agents for some time. He was walking in the Madeleine district of Paris late at night when, according to a witness, he was shot by two young men who escaped.

Several similar attacks have been reported in West Germany in recent months. Since the beginning of 1972 at least seven Palestinians, all believed to have been connected with secret organizations, are said to have been killed or to have disappeared in West Germany.

In Rome, gunmen who remain unidentified killed a presumed agent of Al Fatah, the main Palestinian guerrilla organization last October. The dead man, Abdel Weil Zuaiter, had ostensibly been a clerk in the heavily staffed Libyan Embassy here.

In Beirut, Fatah headquarters accused pro-Israel operatives of having murdered its Rome representative in what it termed a part of a "worldwide terrorist campaign."

A European military attaché here observed: "The combination of strong motivation and high professionalism on both sides — the Israelis and Arab commandos — makes for a lethal formula. No holds are barred in their secret war, and no frontiers are a hindrance. I'm afraid insecurity and fear will spread to many more world capitals and other sensitive points unless Israel and the Arab states start a reasonable dialogue soon."

Another intelligence officer, discussing Arab-Israeli undercover warfare, observed: "Both sides are resorting to dirty-trick business — espionage, sabotage, infiltration, 'intoxication' with misleading information, agents provocateurs, kidnappings, murder and, I suspect, torture now and then."

Various sources in the multitude of intelligence operations going on in this Mediterranean crossroads suggest that relatively small groups of Arab and Israeli men and a few women trained in all techniques of unconventional warfare were backed by vast support teams throughout Europe.

"Some of the support networks undoubtedly are using diplomatic cover," an expert said. "Others work with different disguises. There is more than just a suspicion that local freelance cells are providing information and assistance, either out of political-ideological sympathies, or just for money."

For the last two years rumors have circulated in Rome that Libyan secret agents with extensive funds had been farming out "jobs" to Mafia-type local gangs. One assignment was said to have called for the kidnapping of the deposed King of Libya, Idris I, but was reportedly foiled by the police in a routine raid on suspected Mafiosi.

The magazine Paris-Match published an article purporting to disclose details of assistance that a clandestine French organization was said to have given the Arab terrorists whose attack on the Israeli Olympic team in Munich led to the death of 11 Israelis.

An Italian investigating magistrate has formally charged alleged agents of a French underground network with having conspired with Italian ultra-leftists to blow up oil tanks at the Trieste terminal of an oil pipeline from the Adriatic Sea to West Germany last August. Black September said it had organized the sabotage.

Judicial authorities here recently permitted two Arabs facing charges of attempted multiple murder in the bombing of an Israeli airliner to go into hiding, on the ground that they were being hunted by Israeli agents. It is doubtful whether the men, released from prison without bail pending a trial, are still in Italy.

A European diplomat with long experience in the Mediterranean and the Middle East says that oil interests are implicated in hit-and-run warfare between Arab underground organizations.

"Refineries, pipelines, tank farms have become sabotage targets," he said the other day.

On the seventh day of Passover, Sunday, April 22, the annual memorials dedication service will be held at 8:30 p.m. The sermon will be "The Ethics in Death."

A festival morning and Yizkor service will be held on Monday, April 23, at 10:30 a.m.

At the ninth annual memorials dedication service on Sunday, all of the gifts received by the congregation in memory of those who died since last Passover will be formally dedicated. In addition, plaques in memory of 15 persons will be dedicated.

They are Louis Berger, Maurice Dressler, Joseph Fogel, Donald Grant, Joseph Kaplan, Samuel Kaplan, Ethel Kaufman, Harry Kaufman, Arthur Rothstein, Ethel Schreiber, Jack Schreiber, David Silverman, Lillian Teath and Rose Turco.

Deny Dismissal Of Payil Due To His Leftist Views

TEL AVIV — The administration of Tel Aviv University has denied that the dismissal of reserves Col. Meir Payil, a senior lecturer on military history, had anything to do with his leftist views. Col. Payil was advised by letter that his contract with the university will not be renewed for the next academic year.

The military scholar was regarded as close to the "Movement for Peace and Security," a group which its critics charge advocates peace at any price. Some lecturers claimed that Payil's dismissal was connected with his political associations. But the rector, Prof. Simonson, said, "We knew of his views before he started to lecture here four years ago." He said the decision to terminate Col. Payil's tenure was based on a confidential evaluation of his work and on the determination that military history studies did not warrant a full-time job.

NEXT IN BULGARIA

NEW YORK — The International Philosophical Congress, which convenes every fifth year, is next scheduled to be held in Varna, Bulgaria, in September 1974. It has been a rule that the host country must commit itself in advance to allow all qualified participants into the country.

Japanese Firms Accused Of Aiding Arab Boycott

companies "have given in to the boycott."

Lawrence Peirez, chairman of the league's national civil rights committee, charged that the three companies were answering American inquiries with "patently false" statements denying their participation in the Arab effort to strangle Israel economically.

"They are obviously afraid of American reaction," he declared.

The league official said that the three companies had engaged in "misrepresentation and doubletalk for years." He traced Toyota's compliance with the boycott to 1964, Hitachi's to 1965, and Nissan's to 1967.

Spokesmen for Toyota and Nissan asserted that their companies had declined Israeli requests for car shipments because of a "shortage of production." The two companies have each exported 20,000 to 30,000 automobiles a year to the Arab nations in the last 15 years.

Hitachi also denied the accusation, but did not comment on it.
