

Israeli Government Proposes To Compensate Arabs For Property

JERUSALEM—The government proposed today to compensate Arab residents of East Jerusalem for property they held in the land that became Israel 23 years ago.

The offer was cautious and carefully circumscribed, but it represented a significant victory for those factions in the Israeli Government that have been urging fairer treatment of the Arabs under Israeli rule. At the same time, it will tend to solidify Israeli authority over a united Jerusalem.

The Minister of Justice, Yakov Shimshon Shapiro, introduced legislation that officials said could commit the Government to pay as much as $100-million to 10,000 potential claimants over the next 20 years.

The complex measure has been under discussion and preparation for over a year, Mr. Shapiro said.

In fact, Mayor Teddy Kollek, of Jerusalem and other Israeli leaders close to the Arab population have been urging this step for nearly four years and have repeatedly confessed to their embarrassment that it was not taken long ago.

Its intent is to correct one of the inequities that have existed since the Israeli annexation of the former Jordanian sector of the long-divided city, after it was overrun in the six-day war of 1967. Two weeks after the victory, the Israeli Government unilaterally incorporated East Jerusalem into a united city under Israeli sovereignty.

Yet East Jerusalem residents were not entitled to the compensation for abandoned property that had long since been provided to Arabs who remained in their homes in Israel after the 1948 war of independence and who did not flee to neighboring Arab countries.

Report Palestine Guerrilla Group Purges Communist Elements

BEIRUT, Lebanon—The Palestine Liberation Army has been purged of elements described as Communists or Communist sympathizers, according to reports published in the press here.

Al Hayat, a prominent right-wing daily, published a report saying that the director of the group's intelligence was among those dismissed. The purged elements, the paper continued, had both pro-Moscow and pro-Peking leanings.

There has been no confirmation of the purge from Palestinian sources, but a Lebanese leftist paper with commando connections had talked of such a purge a few days ago. Al Kifah, which backs the radical regime in Baghdad, reported that the Liberation Army's General command in Damascus had instructed its officers to report any member "who may be suspected of being a Communist, preparatory to having him dismissed from services."

A large number of officers of the 8,000 man Liberation Army are known to be leftists, though not necessarily Communists. When the army was created in 1965 as part of the Palestine Liberation Organization under Ahmed Shukairy, about 500 of its officers went to Communist China for six months of training.

In 1969, when the Palestine Liberation Organization was taken over by the commando organizations under Yasir Arafat, the Liberation Army came under the supervision of the guerrillas, even though the leadership under Mr. Arafat has not been able to exercise this control effectively. The Liberation Army commander, Brig. Gen. Abdel Razak al-Yahya, insists that the group should remain above the

The new legislation does not apply to Arabs living in the occupied territories—the west bank of the Jordan and the Gaza Strip—where most of the refugees live. These areas have not been incorporated into Israel. Justice Ministry officials explained, and therefore cannot fall under Israeli law.

The new offer, therefore, is only a limited step toward resolving a long-standing grievance of the refugees, who say that the Jewish settlers deprived them of their homes and land.

The first Arab reaction tonight came from Mahmoud Abu-Zalef, editor of the Palestinian newspaper Al Quds, of East Jerusalem. While calling the move a "step forward," he criticized the basis of determining the money value of the abandoned properties and also the refusal of Israeli authorities to give Arab landowners the right to reclaim their lands as an alternative to selling them.

Mr. Shapiro anticipated both complaints and conceded that he could not predict how many of the East Jerusalem Arabs would like to take up the compensation offer. But he said that about 80 per cent of the Arabs living elsewhere in Israel had accepted cash payments for their old properties, and other officials predicted that a similar proportion of Arabs in Jerusalem would do the same after the first rush of criticism had faded.

The minister explained that the abandoned properties would be paid for at their value as assessed in 1947, plus 25 per cent. This formula was devised for a United Nations conciliation commission in 1961 by a British civil servant, John Burncastle, who had served as chief assessor for the British mandatory government.

commando structure as the regular army of the Palestinian people.

All of the Liberation Army's troops are now stationed in Syria. Contingents that were in Egypt and Jordan joined the ones already in Syria during the Jordanian civil war last September. The army's forces in southern Syria were to help the commandos in fighting the Jordanian Army. The civil war, however, ended with only minor participation by the Liberation Army. Tanks that entered Jordan from Syria were reported by Damascus to be part of the Palestinian forces. The Jordanians, however, said they were Syrian tanks.

Meanwhile, the Lebanese authorities yesterday arrested one of the leaders of the Communist party here on charges of having made abusive remarks about the Lebanese Army in connection with the confrontation with Israel.

The police broke into the house here of George Hawi, a member of the nine-man politburo of the Lebanese Communist party, and arrested him. Mr. Hawi was also wanted on charges of having incited riots that culminated in clashes between the Lebanese Army and Palestinian guerrillas in 1969.

There has been an increase in Communist activity here since the then Interior Minister Kamal Jumblatt lifted the ban on the Communist party last year.

Legalizing the Communist party led also to legalization of other leftist groups, such as the Baath Socialist party and branches of the Arab National Movement, which was created by Dr. George Habash, now the leader of a Marxist commando group, the Popular Front for Liberation of Palestine.

Money Offered To South Africans By Israel Causes Strains On Country's Jewish Community

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa—A $2,850 gift offered recently by Israel to the Organization of African Unity has irked the South African Government and has caused strains within this country's Jewish community.

The controversy here has touched on the status of the 120,000 Jews in this country's white-dominated society and on their relations with black Africans.

"My phone has never rung so often as these days," said Gustav Saron, Central Secretary of the South African Jewish Board of Deputies, an organization representing most Jewish community groups.

The emotion was generated mainly by initial reports in the South African press representing the Israeli grant as aid for African terrorists. This is the official label here for black movements against white rulers in the Portuguese territories and in Rhodesia and in South Africa.

Israeli Government spokesmen have said that the grant was meant as a humanitarian gesture and was to be for tents, blankets, food and medicines rather than arms and explosives. In Addis Ababa, where the Organization of African Unity recently met, representatives of seven black liberation movements reportedly rejected the Israeli offer, suggesting that if the grant was received it should be passed on to Arab guerrilla groups. The organization made no official reply to Israel regarding the aid, and, according to unofficial reports from Jerusalem, Israel has decided to withdraw the offer.

Prime Minister John Vorster in a statement, voiced dissatisfaction at the Israeli grant. "I certainly do not understand how Israel, which itself has a terrorist problem, can justify contributions to other terrorists," Mr. Vorster said.

Some Jewish South Africans were reported by the press to have canceled contributions for Israel in protest against the grant.

Finance Minister Nico Diederichs announced that the transfer of funds for Israel would be suspended, except small personal sums, until the Government has obtained "greater clarity" about Israeli policies.

A well-informed Jewish official here said that the Israeli United Appeal had collected about $25-million in South Africa last year and hoped "to do even better this year."

The official said he was confident that the Government would unfreeze funds for Israel following clarifications.

The Jewish Board of Deputies and the South African Zionist Federation declared in a joint statement that the country's Jews condemn "support for terrorism from whatever source" and were "confident that the Government of Israel shares this view."

The South African press was critical of Israel and many newspapers printed letters purporting to come from Jewish readers and expressing harshly conflicting views and loyalties.

Itzhak Unna, the Israeli Consul General here, said that Jewish South Africans held widely divergent opinions on many issues including apartheid, or racial segregation. Gideon Simoni, a Jew who was born in South Africa, said that the Jewish community "has evolved a formula of collective neutrality" on racial and social problems here.

"The special moral dilemmas of South African Jewry," he said, "stem from the caste structure of South African society as a whole." He asserted that, "as an integral part of the white privileged caste, Jews find themselves in a position, so unusual in Jewish history, of a privileged group, thriving at the expense of a severely underprivileged nonwhite majority."

In a rebuttal, Mr. Saron of the Jewish Board of Deputies, who is a historian, said that the board did not advocate political neutrality but "collective nonintervention." In an interview, he said that, unlike some Christian church leaders here, the South African rabbi had not spoken out publicly on apartheid because the issue "just hasn't come their way." Mr. Saron said that it was maligning the Jewish community to say that it was neutral on apartheid.

Observe Anniversary Of Release Of Lubavitcher Rabbi From USSR

NEW YORK—More than 3,000 Hasidic Jews filled the synagogue and headquarters of the Lubavitcher Movement in Brooklyn recently to observe the 44th anniversary of the release of a famed Lubavitch rabbi from a prison in the Soviet Union.

Through the afternoon and into the late evening, black-coated Orthodox Jews, young students and followers of the movement heard their spiritual leader, Rabbi Menachem M. Schneerson, speak in Yiddish on problems confronting Jews and on the liberation of his predecessor and father-in-law, the late Joseph I. Schneersohn.

The ceremony, held at 770 Eastern Parkway in the Crown Heights section, was titled "The Twelfth Day of Tammuz"—the Hebrew month and day on which the late rabbi was released from the Soviet prison in Leningrad. He was facing a death sentence for activities in behalf of Judaism and strengthening Jewish life.

It was through the intervention of Herbert Hoover and other diplomats that he was released. He died in this country in 1950. The occasion also marked his 91st birthday.

An almost pin-drop silence permeated the synagogue as Rabbi Schneerson, a Talmudic scholar and a graduate of the Sorbonne and the University of Berlin, spoke.

Sitting upright on the dais as the Hasidim crowded closer to hear him, Rabbi Schneerson told of the courage of his predecessor.

"We find the rebbe in a prison, in danger of his life, the death penalty still upon him, issuing directives to his followers to strengthen Yiddishkeit (Jewish life)," the rabbi said.

Time and again in the solemn ceremony there were quotations from the Talmud to emphasize the Jewish religious experience. There was also Rabbi Schneerson's stress on the Torah, the all-embracing document for the Jewish religious community.

He touched on the nettling question of "Who is a Jew?" —and scored the Israeli parliament for its recent passage of a bill that modified the definition. Rabbi Schneerson said that a Jew was one born of a Jewish mother in strict accordance with the Halacha (Jewish religious laws) and that only one who desired conversion through a rigorous process could become a Jew.

One listener was Harvey Sack, who is studying at a Lubavitcher school here.

"I don't understand a word of Yiddish but what a wonderful experience to sit here, listen, hear translations from a fellow student, and have a deep sense of spirituality," he remarked.

The worldwide Lubavitcher Movement was founded by Rabbi Schneur Zalman, who was born in 1745 and who, up to his death in 1812, exercised a strong influence with his Hasidic teachings among the Jewish masses in Russia, Poland and Lithuania. The movement derives its name from the Russian town of Lubavitch, where it was established.

URGES PARTICIPATION
NEW YORK — Rabbi Bernard L. Berzon, president of the Rabbinical Council of America, has urged the "fullest participation" by Orthodox rabbis and their congregations in this year's $400 million Israel Bond campaign. Rabbi Berzon urged the rabbis to arrange Israel Bond functions in their congregations in addition to the annual High Holiday efforts in behalf of Israel bonds.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By Roger E. Spear

Thiokol Better Suited To The Aggressive Investor

Q: I bought 100 shares of Thiokol Chemical in 1967. My broker says that I should hold but I wonder if it would be wiser to take the loss and buy something better. I am 76 years old.—K.F.

A: Downtrending sales and earnings amidst a weak aerospace market have served to severely depress Thiokol shares. Company derives the bulk of its sales and earnings from aerospace/defense business, with chemical products, industrial activities and education (Job Corps) accounting for the remainder.

In 1970 sales fell 16%, while earnings per share dropped 40%. Reduced involvement in Southeast Asia led to sharply lower billings for ordnance products (military supplies), while a sluggish economy, nationwide strikes and plant consolidation costs restricted operations in other areas. Although sales in 1971's first quarter slipped 1.5%, profits per share managed to rise 7.3% aided by benefits from past consolidations.

Thiokol has been expanding its commercial and industrial lines in an effort to replace its reduced defense business. Recent emphasis has been placed on chemical polymers and on acquisition of firms producing polypropylene fibers, the outlook for which is favorable. Although shares have speculative merit for high-risk accounts, Thiokol is ill-advised in your portfolio.

Q: Please name a few A-rated bonds suitable for an older in need of high income?—F.E.

A: There are a number of A-rated utility bonds selling to yield more than 8% to maturity in 13 to 25 years which would be suitable for you. However, bond yields are subject to some variations when money rates are in a state of flux as they are at the present time.

Columbia Gas Debentures 8 3/8s of 1996, Northern Natural Gas Debentures 8 3/4s of 1990 and Panhandle Eastern Pipeline 8 5/8s Debts of 1989 would provide generous income with minimal risk. An equally suitable, but shorter term issue, Southern Natural Gas 9 1/8s of 1976, is rated A and yields 7% to maturity.

Rate Hikes Enhance So. Cal. Edison's Outlook

Q: I am retired and would like to invest for income and the future. Among other issues, I have been thinking about Southern California Edison stock. I would appreciate your opinion and information on this stock.—F.B.

A: Growth prospects of this electric utility have brightened considerably with the recent rate hike granted Southern California Edison by the California Public Utility Commission. The overall 13.4% increase in rates amounts to $105.5 million annually and substantially enhances the company's profit potential. Not only should this reverse the downturn in earnings experienced thus far in 1971, but it should significantly add results in 1972 and beyond. On a 5.3% gain in total revenues, earnings per share for the initial quarter of 1971 ended March 31 fell 12% to 59 cents (on a fully diluted basis) from 67 cents in the like year earlier period.

Southern California Edison supplies electric power to a population of about 7.6 million in central and southern California. Revenues in 1970 were derived primarily from: 38% residential, 25% commercial, 21% industrial, 9% public authorities and 2% agricultural customers.

Dividends have been paid in every year since 1907, and have been increased in each year of the past ten with the exception of 1969. At current quotes, the common yields about 4.6% and is a suitable commitment for income and moderate growth over the long pull.

Q: U.S. Filter recently bought out a company in my community. Please inform me whether you think U.S. Filter would be a worthwhile investment.—L.C.

A: The acquisition to which you refer is one of several completed or proposed in recent months by U.S. Filter. As a result, company's product base in air and water pollution control has been and will be substantially broadened.

In the 9 months through Mar. 31, 1971 earnings reached 51 cents a share, up from 42 cents, while sales were $19.55 million for the period. Although trading at a comparatively steep multiple of earnings, shares have merit for high risk accounts.

Simplicity Pattern Sewing Up Profits

Q: I purchased Simplicity Pattern at 73 1/2 after you wrote about it in 1969. Now I have additional funds for investment and would like to buy more but wonder if that is wise at these high prices. Would you advise?—G.R.

A: The home sewing market which is growing at around 15% annually, is estimated to total $2.7 billion currently. More than half the 82 million U.S. females between the ages of 12 and 65 sew, with the largest segment of those in the under-30 group. These figures would seem to assure a continuation of the market's past strong growth trend.

Among the factors contributing to the surge in home sewing are: high prices for ready-made garments—more than 60% of cost can be saved by creating clothes at home—the trend to simpler style lines, the wider selection of attractive patterns and fabrics, and women's growing refusal to be dictated to by the fashion industry.

Simplicity is the dominant U.S. patternmaker, accounting for 50% of the market. Furthermore it is the only one of the three major pattern printers whose sales and earnings are derived wholly from the home sewing industry. Butterick and Vogue are owned by American Can and McCall by Norton Simon. Whether Simplicity's dependence on this one area is good or bad can be argued either way but there is no arguing with the company's record.

Sales have moved up 270% and earnings 460% in the last decade. For the March 1971 quarter, sales and earnings gains of 15% and 26%, respectively were reported in spite of an 11-day strike at one plant. Full year earnings estimates of $2.90 a share would appear to be reasonable. On that basis shares are selling at a rich 45x multiple, somewhat more than the 37x multiple at the time of your original purchase. Investments for long-term growth would be justified on any 15 to 20 point correction.

REVIVAL

LONDON—"The miraculous revival of religious faith within Soviet Jewry is matched only by the wondrous rise of the State of Israel out of the ashes of the Holocaust," British Chief Rabbi Dr. Immanuel Jakobovits declared at a celebration of the 25th anniversary of the London Board of Jewish Religious Education. "After half a century of spiritual desolation," he continued, "religious weddings are again taking place in Russian synagogues. Teenagers are undergoing the rite of circumcision to affirm their Jewish identity. Underground study of the language of the Bible has made large numbers of young Russian Jews amazingly fluent in Hebrew."

Beryl Segal Answers Criticism

In every generation there arise great men and women who leave their mark on their community. Providence is no exception. Among the men of eminence about 50 years ago was Rev. David Orlansky. He was Shohet and Mohel and a great scholar.

He was among the founders of the Providence Hebrew Sheltering Association in 1915, and the Vaad Hakashruh in 1916.

Though I did not know him, I have heard of his fame. Particularly known was Rev. David Orlansky for his teaching activities among students of Brown. Among his famous students was Rabbi Meir Lasker, Professor Israel Kapstein, Paul Chernov and Sidney J. Perelman, who later became known as the great humorist.

But Rev. Orlansky belonged to the community. When we think of him, we consider him as the SHOHET, the MOHEL, the TEACHER, the GREAT TALMUDIST, and not as the Cantor of one particular Synagogue.

And that is why when I wrote about Beth David merging with Anshei Kovno, I did not mention his name. Rev. Orlansky is a chapter by himself, a chapter that will tell of the spiritual giants of Providence.

Mrs. Mary O. Coken, daughter of Rev. Orlansky, is therefore accusing me unfairly of not "looking into the facts." The facts are that in the "pinkos" of Beth David, Rev. Orlansky is not mentioned, and people who knew him did not advise me of his activities in that Synagogue.

As for the other who "Disagrees with Segal's Column," I can only quote from a speech by Mr. Philip Klutznik, former Ambassador of the United States to the United Nations, which he recently gave in Cincinnati:

"The rights of the Soviet Jews will never be won by making noise and by appointing committees..."

Rustin: Negroes Should Object To Soviet Treatment Of Jews

(The following is a column written by Bayard Rustin, executive director of the A. Philip Randolph Institute of New York City, on Soviet Jewry. It will be printed in more than 100 Negro and Labor newspapers.)

When I am asked why I, as a black American, speak out against the oppression of Soviet Jewry, my reply is that as a black person how can I not speak out, how can I not be sensitive to the oppression of a national minority.

Having experienced during slavery brutal attempt to stamp out our freedom, our history, our language, and our identity, we can well understand the meaning of the spiritual death that accompanies oppression, and we can appreciate the overwhelming power of the rebirth of spirit that is part of the struggle against oppression. Black Americans, therefore, ought to be among the first to be concerned with the effort of the Soviet Union to destroy the identity of Soviet Jews and to crush their struggle for freedom.

It will be said, quite rightly, that there are other oppressed peoples (especially in the Soviet Union) besides Jews, and as a recent report on "Dissent in the Soviet Union" pointed out, "The problems with which Soviet Jews are faced are regarded . . . not as a question of A people, but rather as a question of ALL people who are deprived of their individual rights." But there is a special urgency to the problems of Soviet Jews which is the result of several factors.

One of these factors is the Soviet Union's policy in the Middle East. The Soviet Union is completely committed to the enemies of Israel. It has already made an enormous investment in military and economic aid, personnel, and political prestige in the Arab world, and it now must justify that investment to the Soviet people. It does this by painting a grotesque picture of tiny Israel as a giant enemy and also by playing upon anti-Semitic prejudice in order to make Soviet Jews who want to go to Israel seem the most dangerous enemies of the Soviet Union. This is the main reason behind the massive anti-Semitic campaign which the Moscow government is now sponsoring in Russia. A second factor which makes the problems of the Soviet Jew especially urgent has to do with the increasing internal instability within the Soviet Union and also in the satellite nations dominated by Moscow. We have seen signs of this instability over the past few years in the protests of Russian intellectuals, nationality groups, and religious minorities and in the rebellions in Czechoslovakia and Poland which were so brutally put down. When the Soviet government branded the leaders of these rebellions "Zionists," it was not simply looking for a scapegoat on which to blame its troubles. It was very clearly trying to direct the resentments of the people away from itself and onto a small minority which has traditionally been the object of scorn and persecution.

The greatest danger is that the anti-Semitic campaign now underway in the Soviet Union will get out of hand and the world will be confronted with a repetition of Hitler's crimes. This possibility makes more compelling than ever the desire of the Soviet Jews to leave the Soviet Union.

Just as the white abolitionists fought for the liberation of black slaves before the civil war, people in the United States, Jewish and non-Jewish, white and black, should fight for the liberation of the Jews in the Soviet Union. The Soviet Jews have their own Frederick Douglass' and Harriet Tubman's. What they need are more people like Wendell Phillips and William Lloyd Garrison—a new breed of abolitionists. The issue is not black or white, Jew or gentile, but man's responsibility to fight injustice, a fight in which blacks are in a unique position. As a result of the injustices that have been committed against us and our struggle against these injustices, we have gained a certain moral authority which can be effectively used to assist other oppressed groups in their own struggle for liberation. What we must do is to clearly and unequivocally make known our position on this issue. Far from detracting from our fight for racial equality, any efforts we make on behalf of Soviet Jewry will strengthen our movement by giving it a universal dimension. Nothing we could do would be more in keeping with the spirit of Martin Luther King who raised his voice on all issues involving basic human rights.

ELECT SONNEBORN

NEW YORK — The American Friends of the Hebrew University elected Dr. Henry Sonneborn as national president at its annual meeting here. He succeeds Samuel Rothberg, international chairman of the Hebrew University's Board of Governors. In accepting the presidency, Dr. Sonneborn pledged that he would work to increase the facilities of the Hebrew University campus in Jerusalem so that it can continue to provide Israel with leaders in the arts, sciences and government.

Your Money's Worth

By Sylvia Porter

What's YOUR Pet Peeve?

In the past few weeks, I have personally thrown away:

An aerosol can of hair spray for which I paid $1.29 but which fizzled out half way through its contents. Thus, I paid the equivalent of $2.58 for the total contents.

A full can of sardines with a key so insecurely attached that it fell off somewhere between the supermarket and home. The can was rimless and all I achieved with my manual opener was mutilation of the can and its contents.

Brand new panty hose which sprang a big hole before I got them over my hips for the first wearing.

"Little complaints" such as these involve only little sums of money. But the losses add up to tens of millions of dollars—on top of the splitting headaches they cause consumers the nation over.

The complaints cover a never-ending and, in fact, ever-lengthening range: the unanswered letter about undelivered merchandise; repeated billings for goods you never received; charges for repair calls which do not result in repairs.

They include drippy meat packages; bacon packages which hide how lean or fat the bacon is; "push here" openings which break your fingernails and do not open. What's your favorite addition?

This smattering of little consumer complaints represents a consumer problem category all by itself, and it too has inspired moves in Washington and in state legislatures to protect you against them.

As one illustration, now before Congress is a bill sponsored by Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., which would clamp down on department stores and credit card plans which permit customers to pay for goods they have bought within a given period of time, say 25 days, without service charges—but whose statements are postmarked five to 10 days after the date of the statement, leaving the customer not with three-plus weeks but less than two weeks to pay.

Although I have no solid proof, I would nevertheless guess little complaints are soaring—just because of these forces:

In many cases, factory workers producing consumer products are becoming less experienced and less motivated to maintain quality standards;

In many cases, sales clerks are inadequately trained and customer complaint departments are relatively apathetic;

Consumer demands continue to put pressure on manufacturers to produce, even at reduced quality control standards;

The U.S. consumer has become increasingly conscious of safety and quality considerations and thus is disappointed when his purchases do not live up to his expectations.

What are possible solutions?

One that Dr. George Katona of the University of Michigan recommends is more consumer polling to find our real gripes and real opinions of consumer products.

Another suggested by John Gardner, head of the Common Cause citizens' lobby, is an "ombudsman" in every large corporation or other institution dealing with consumers. It would be this person's job to see that you got satisfaction when you complained. The ombudsman would work for YOU and uphold YOUR interests.

The ombudsman could pile up real profits for a company—not just in customer good will, but in the balance sheet as well.

The National Bureau of Standards' Lewis M. Branscomb concurs: "It is hard to estimate the magnitude of disappointment in the marketplace—of frauds, wrong repairs, excessive interest paid, wrong products delivered, products that fail while new—all things that might not have occurred if consumers were always in a position to make a well-informed choice among offered products and services."

Only In America

By Harry Golden

The advertising slogans which I cannot erase from my memory are for those products I never bought nor does it seem to me I ever needed.

I do not think there is any doubt that the greatest ad ever written was "Do You Make This Mistake in English?" It seems to me it must have been one of the first ads I ever read and it seems to me I re-read it not so long ago.

Look what the ad promised: It promised there were Pygmals who could turn stone into beautiful Galateas. It was a myth good enough for the Greeks and good for Lerner and Lowe.

There are still correspondence schools, indeed there are more than ever before. But now they promise to turn their customers into writers and they entice business by asking, "Are You the Introspective One?" which is another way of asking, "Are You the Dumbbell at the Party?"

I remember, too, "Good Morning. Have you used Pear's Soap?" These ads were pasted above every step on the staircase that led to the New York City Elevated stops. Millions of working New Yorkers read that salutation before they bought their paper at the elevated newsstand.

In the beginning, I understood the auto manufacturers used to try through the advertising to instruct the public on the virtues of the engine and the technical expertise that produced a car which for a couple of years produced ho-hums from the potential buyers. Then Packard began advertising, "Ask the man who owns one."

There were posters all over New York City advertising the services of Painless Parker, a dentist who specialized in laughing gas. I went to the dentist (Continued on page 12)

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

A normal Duplicate Tournament lasts a little over three hours and is quite grueling and exhausting. Therefore, you would think that all of the players would head for the exit as soon as the scores came out. Of course, some do but many never seem to have enough. Many evenings, even while the scoring is being done, you can see eight players forming two L.M.P. Teams of Four and playing more hands. L.M.P. Bridge has been discussed several times here and is probably the most interesting form of Tournament Bridge. It is certainly the fairest and furthermore, all you need to have a good match is eight players. Match point Duplicate must have many more.

One of the biggest differences between the two is the value of an overtrick. In Match-Point one trick can be a fantastic differential whereas in L.M.P. the most it can mean is one L.M.P., and sometimes not even that. For that reason the safety of a contract, especially a game or slam, must be insured, even at the cost of a trick that might percentage-wise be there for the taking. Safety plays are common if good players are involved. Today's hand is a good example for the care taken paid off when the other side failed to insure their contract and went down. Granted, all the cards were wrong but that is just the point we are discussing.

Dr. Edward Doherty and Alan Gertsacov were North and South, vulnerable, South Dealer with this bidding:

1	P	1	P
4	P	P	P

Another difference between I.M.P. Bridge and regular Duplicate is one bids the close games or just about any game that might have a chance. Missing one that's there is much worse than going down one when it isn't. That is the reason for the bidding sequence above. South felt that with his solid suit and Spade help he should be close to the game so he bid it.

With bidding like that, West decided a Trump lead would do less harm than anything else, South winning and drawing the remaining Trumps. He now could count nine sure tricks. Five Trumps, and after cashing the two high Spades in his hand he could go to Dummy's Diamond Ace and make the Spade Ace. But where could the tenth trick be found? If the Spades broke three-three or the Jack dropped, eleven tricks were there, for the whole suit would now run. But if both failed and as you can see, they do, he would go down that way.

SIGN PETITION

NEW YORK — A petition containing the names of 8,300 American Christian clergy and lay church officials appealing for an end to the discriminatory treatment of Jews in the U.S.S.R. was given to American U.N. Ambassador George Bush last week. He was urged to bring the petition to the attention of the Soviet representative to the U.N. and to the Human Rights Commission of the United Nations. The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith drafted the resolution and collected the signatures.

He could take the Diamond finesse after cashing those Spades. If that worked he not only would get the tenth trick but could have another entry to set up the Spades even if they split 4-2. But as you can see, that doesn't worth either. Furthermore, as the cards are, if he tried that he would go down also if a Diamond was returned and that Ace knocked out.

What did he do to insure his contract? Something that at first seems like a complete waste. He played one high Spade from his hand and then OVERTOOK the second with the Ace in Dummy. Now while that Diamond Ace was still there he played the Spade 10 and even though East showed out he discarded one of his losing Clubs giving that trick to West. West could now cash one Club but Declarer still had a trump left for the next one and now, disdaining again that Diamond finesse, he went to Ace and cashed the rest of the Spades to make his game. At the other table the hand went down when that Declarer was not as careful.

Moral: In Rubber Bridge or L.M.P. the safety of the contract comes first. The same applies to Duplicate if you are in a terrific contract that not many pairs are going to reach.

Leaders Affirm Opposition To Government Funding Of Any Sectarian Education

ATLANTA — A conference of Jewish community relations leaders affirmed last week its continued opposition to any Government funding of sectarian sponsored education. Representatives of Orthodox Judaism dissented.

The conference acknowledged "considerable erosion" in the American society of the support once accorded its view and said that the erosion was now reflected "from time to time" within the Jewish community.

A policy declaration dealing with this theme was adopted by eight of the nine national Jewish organizations and the 90 local Jewish community councils affiliated with the National Jewish Community Relations Advisory Council. The council, a coordinating body of Jewish groups engaged in intergroup relations, is holding its annual meeting at the Regency Hyatt House.

The conference majority urged opposition to the use, "directly or indirectly," of public funds to assist religious-controlled schools. It questioned the constitutionality of such

NEW CHAIRMAN: Dr. Joslin Berry has been named the new chairman of the Jewish Committee on Scouting for the Narragansett Council of Boy Scouts of America, it has been announced by Max Alperin, president of the Jewish Federation of Rhode Island. Dr. Berry will be responsible for the chapel and religious program at Camp Yawgoog. Rabbi Marc Jagolinzer of Temple Beth Shalom will be the chaplain at the camp for the 1971 season.

Robert F. Parkinson, Scout executive of the Narragansett Council, expressed praise for the work of Abbott Lieberman who had been chairman for the past three years. Mr. Lieberman succeeded the late Jacob S. Temkin who had been chairman for 20 years prior to this.

Dr. Berry will be assisted by Howard Schneider in the Board of Review for the Ner Tamid Award which is given for special study of Judaism.

methods as "purchase of services," in which state funds are allocated to finance the secular aspects of parochial education; the "voucher system," which allows parents to select a non-public school to which the state provides payment, and similar forms of "parochialism."

In dissenting from the majority view, the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, a constituent of the council, said that it did not regard governmental funding of secular subjects in religious schools as a contravention of the separation principle.

The Orthodox movement maintains a growing network of all-day schools with an enrollment of more than 50,000 pupils.

The use of tax funds for parochial school transportation and textbooks was also opposed by the majority.

On the other hand, it endorsed public funding of free lunches, medical and dental services and other "noneducational" health and welfare aids to parochial schools, as well as for remedial reading and speech therapy in facilities under public control.

HOOKS UP WITH SATELLITE

JERUSALEM — Israel has taken its first step toward hooking up with the international satellite communications system. The $14 million, 15-story ground-tracking station is being constructed by the General Telephone and Electronics International Systems Corp. The Export-Import Bank loaned Israel $1.575 million for the project. The new facility will add 400 international phone lines to Israel's communications system, which now has 128 lines carried by undersea cable from Marseilles.

Hello Again!

News of the Sports World by Warren Walden

TIME WILL TELL: Eddie Dowling, the great playwright, producer and actor for whom Route 146 in Rhode Island is named, although there are no signs indicating it, once sang a song titled "Time Will Tell." The title applies to the baseball races that are hotter than the weather. Opinions of the experts down through the years have been and are that the pennant races are pretty well determined by the time Independence Day rolls around; that the team on top on July 4th usually winds up in the World Series. In the case of modern day baseball with the "split leagues," it would indicate a choice playoff spot.

IF SO AND HOWEVER: On July 4th, 1914, the Boston Braves were in last place with a record of only 33 victories in 76 games. But — then began one of the most phenomenal climbs man has known since he first started looking up at Mount Everest and the Moon. AMAZING — The Boston Braves were still in last place on July 19th — BUT — on September 8th, they were in undisputed possession of the National League's first place after breaking a tie of several days with the New York Giants. They ended the season 10-1/2 games in front of the New Yorkers, having won 61 of their last 77 games.

MIRACLE MAN: Sports fans throughout the country had followed the spectacular rise of the Braves, hailing George Tweedy Stallings, the driving manager of the Boston team, as a "Miracle Man." However, the miraculous part of the winning campaign centered around the pitching of an outstanding trio that was used exclusively from mid-July through September. Dick Rudolph, Bill James and Lefty George Tyler worked tirelessly in rotation all the way.

***

"A'S WERE GIANTS:" Although the Braves had beaten the New York Giants for the National League Flag, they faced a team considered by the whole baseball world as giants of the game when they were pitted against the Philadelphia Athletics in the World Series. The Athletics were one of a number of great teams molded by Connie Mack, one of baseball's immortal managers. They had won four pennants and three World Series in five years. Against such a feared team, the Braves were given little chance of winning, especially when their third-base man, Smith, broke his leg on the eve of the big series. "Miracle-man" Stallings disregarded the odds against his team, predicting that the Braves would win in four straight or four out of five. When the Boston team won the series, it became the first team to capture it in four straight.

***

W H O L E I N F I E L D: $100,000 — That 1914 Philadelphia team, regarded as invincible, established itself as one of the greatest of all time. Its "all star" infield was valued at the "fabulous" figure of $100,000. Anyone of the quarter would be worth that amount today. John "Stuffy" McInnis, Eddie Collins, Jack Barry and Frank "Home Run" Baker are still considered one of the best combinations ever put together. Barry later coached at Holy Cross and McInnis was the Harvard mentor. Despite their reputed power, the "A's" bit the dust when they faced the Braves.

***

ALL AFTER THE GLORIOUS FOURTH: During the regular season as the Braves moved from last to first, Rudolph pitched 31 complete games, 336 innings, winning 27 and losing ten. James pitched 30 full games and 332 innings, winning 26 and losing 7. And Tyler pitched 21 full games and 271 innings, winning 16 and losing 14. And it all happened after July 4th when the Braves of Boston became a miracle team. So, baseball fans, as you know, anything can happen. The late Leo Connors wrote, "It's the beauty of the game and there's many a slip twixt cup and lip 'till we have the winner's name." Quoting Eddie Dowling again, "On these fortune cards you'll find your future written there—but Only Time Will Tell!"

***

A LOCAL LINE: Have you been on Middle Street in Providence? Orlando Savastano, Ledgemont Tonsorial Artist, provided the quip of the week with, "With the Steak House on one side and with my Parlor par excellence on the other, please don't refer to it as 'street' or 'alley' any more. I want it known as 'Middle Boulevard!' — and with that, please CARRY ON!"

Fall Publication Set For 'Chagall At Met'

NEW YORK — "Chagall at the Met," a critical appreciation of Marc Chagall's two murals at the Metropolitan Opera House and of his designs for the company's production of "The Magic Flute," will be published this fall.

Conceived by the painter and Herman Krawitz, a Met assistant manager, the volume will have text by Emily Genauer, the art critic, an introduction by Rudolf Bing, 52 color reproductions and observations by Mr. Chagall.

The book, printed and bound in Paris by Mourlot with the collaboration of Leon Amiel of the Tudor Publishing Company here, will cost $37.50. Orders are being taken by the Gift Shop, Metropolitan Opera, Lincoln Center, New York, N.Y. 10023.

Lebanese Fights With Israeli Forces

BEIRUT, Lebanon.—A military spokesman said last week that the Lebanese Army fought a two-and-a-half hour artillery battle with Israeli armored forces that had entered southern Lebanon this morning.

The spokesman said that the enemy had suffered two casualties and that a half-track had been put out of action. He reported no Lebanese casualties.

According to the brief communiqué, at 7 A.M., Israeli troops in half-tracks, backed by armor, crossed about a mile into Lebanese territory to attack the villages of Taybeh. Al Adassiya in the Marjoun District.

"Our forces engaged them with artillery and other weapons, forcing them to retreat," it stated. "The enemy was seen removing two casualties and one half-track, which had been put out of action."

The statement did not say what the purpose of the incursion was, but informed sources here asserted that the Israelis were seeking Palestinian commandos operating in the region, which is close to Mount Hermon, where the guerrillas have their bases.

Yesterday, about 200 Israeli soldiers were reported to have blown up three houses at Blida, a village close to the Israeli border.

Altogether, five Israeli attacks on southern Lebanese villages have been reported this month. In all cases, the Israelis were said to have blown up civilian houses.

Lebanon has submitted two complaints this month to the United Nations Security Council, but has not called for a Council meeting.

Yesterday, President Suleiman Franjeh held a meeting of civilian and military leaders on the situation.

The Government has already allocated $60-million to purchase new arms and military equipment for the 20,000-man Lebanese Army. Defense Minister Elias Saba visited a number of Western capitals this month seeking weapons, and is due to go to Moscow soon.

He said in an interview here recently the weapons might be bought from several countries. According to press speculation, ground-to-air and ground-to-ground missiles will be bought from France, tanks from Britain, and artillery from the Soviet Union.

One purpose of spreading the purchases might be to satisfy rival political factions here. Right-wingers insist Lebanon must get all of her arms from the West, as she has been for many years, while leftist elements demand that the weapons should be obtained from the Soviet bloc.

Bush Denies UN Has Been Failure

UNITED NATIONS—United States Ambassador George Bush denied that the United Nations has been an "abysmal failure" on the Middle East crisis, but conceded that the Mid-East situation has been "made more terrible by the presence of the superpowers looking over the shoulders of the Israelis and the Arabs."

Over-all, he advised a UN Day dinner audience, "there is room not for complacency, but for some hope." Bush noted that "It's some comfort to say 'Well, at least they're not shooting at one another,' but he declared that "if the countries out there are to grab hold of peace, more must happen."

He recommended, in that connection, the acceptance by the Mid-East parties of an interim solution reopening the Suez Canal and mutual endorsement of the peace mission of UN intermediary Dr. Gunnar V. Jarring. He added that only with "support from the parties" could the UN "win a major victory" in the Mid-East.

20,000 TOURISTS

TEL AVIV—More than 200,000 tourists visited Israel during the first five months of this year representing a 35 percent increase over the same period in 1970.

HERB ARONSON appears in the hit Broadway musical "Fiddler on the Roof," which has been held over for an additional week at the Theatre-by-the-Sea at Matunuck. The extension of "Fiddler," due to an unprecedented demand and advance sale, has caused the cancellation of "The Apple Tree." The revised schedule through August will include "Fiddler on the Roof" through July 18; "The Boy Friend," July 20 to August 1; "Plaza Suite," August 3 to August 15; and "Play It Again, Sam," from August 17 through August 22.

Zionist Issues Criticism Of Israel For Apathy Toward Poverty

JERUSALEM—A leading American Zionist, Dr. Arthur Hertzberg, has issued a sweeping criticism of Israel's political and religious leadership for what he called "apathy and insensitivity" toward the existence of poverty in Israel.

Dr. Hertzberg, who lectures on Jewish history at Columbia University, warned that Israel is in danger of compounding the South African experience with a minority group or the mistake made by American society on its black and underprivileged citizens. He firmly rejected the conventional argument of the Israeli leadership that the country's resources have had to be diverted from social welfare to defense expenditures.

Dr. Hertzberg, rabbi of Temple Emanu-El of Englewood, N.J., is one of the seven American members of the executive board of the Jewish Agency. He had been visiting professor of Jewish history at Jerusalem's Hebrew University for the last semester.

His outspoken speech last night at a meeting organized by the American Jewish Committee seems bound to provoke further the controversy over fiscal and political priorities already building up for next week's Jewish Agency assembly of Israeli and overseas Jewish leaders.

"What is most incomprehensible to someone who looks at contemporary Israel with love and deep involvement from the perspective of contemporary American experience is the lack of sympathy, comprehension and identification of Israeli religious leadership, intellectuals and the middle class as a whole with the outcry of the Israeli poor," Dr. Hertzberg said.

In the United States, Martin Luther King did not walk alone, for the most morally sensitive circles in white America were

CONSIDER REPORT

UNITED NATIONS.—An Israeli spokesman denied published reports that Israel was thinking of requesting a special Security Council meeting on the June 11 attack—presumably by Palestinian terrorists—on a Liberian tanker bound for Eilat. (In Jerusalem, the Foreign Ministry stated that while Israel is not considering asking for any meeting of the Security Council, it is considering submitting a report to the Council on the attack on the tanker for circulation to member countries as is often done in similar cases.)

shaken and they identified. As of this moment, there is not a single rabbinic figure of public consequence in all of Israel who is publicly pleading for that one-fifth of its population which is abysmally and well-nigh hopelessly poor.

"There are few professors to make the point that a country in which 70 percent of those who start elementary school are of Oriental origin and only 16 percent who finish high school come from the same background has something radically wrong with it.

This society was created from the beginning with a passion for human dignity and social justice. That remains its essential commitment. Yet if it condones even the beginnings of two societies coexisting in tension, it is untrue to its own deepest meaning," Dr. Hertzberg said.

Parades of the so-called Israeli "Black Panther" organization were scheduled for today in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv, underlining Dr. Hertzberg's points. The Black Panthers, a group of activists, are largely of Oriental origin—that is Jews who emigrated from Moslem countries of North Africa and the Middle East. They have brought public attention to the problems of the poor in Israel.

In Jerusalem, the Black Panthers supplied their own marshals to avoid a repetition of the violence that occurred when police intervened at a demonstration last month. In Tel Aviv, residents of the poor, and largely Oriental, Hatikvar district prevented the parade from taking place. They seemed opposed to permitting any public unrest.

Later, in an interview, Dr. Hertzberg dealt with the explanation often given by Israeli leaders for their inability to cope with social problems within their society—the threat of war from a ring of hostile Arab neighbors.

"We American Jews are being told that Israel is a country under siege, and so it is, and so we want to help keep it strong enough to survive," he said.

"But during the four years from 1967 when the country was under siege, the standard of living of the middle class has doubled; the numbers of cars on the roads of the country have doubled, and so has the rate of travel abroad by prosperous Israelis."

"It seems the country is only under siege when it comes to the needs of the 20 percent of the population who are below the poverty line," he said.

Home Vandaled By Biased Men, Boys

NEW YORK—The Rosedale community in the Borough of Queens, an Irish-Italian-Jewish section, was the scene June 9 of mass vandalism of a $53,000 home by more than 30 men and teenaged boys. They smashed windows, twisted frames and railings, and scrawled "Stamp" on windows, twisted frames and railings, and scrawled "Stamp" a rumored sale of the house to a black family. (The community is all-white and has four public schools, two Catholic schools and one Hebrew day school.)

As it turned out, the prospective buyers were two Chinese brothers, one of them married to a white woman. The brothers said after the vandalism that they were no longer interested in the property.

Two Reform Rabbis Blast Conference Of Jewish Presidents

ST. LOUIS — The leadership of the Reform movement blasted the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations as cowardly and servile, and called instead for "a structure in which decision-making would be shared by the Presidents with communities from which the richest resources from our academic disciplines, from our communal leaders, from our youth would be drawn."

In a message to the convention of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, President Roland B. Gittelson of Temple Israel, Boston, and Vice-President David Polish declared that such a new structure would be "expanded beyond the consultation of Presidents alone and the calling of emergency meetings in Washington," and would also "emancipate itself from the discredited postures of rabid servility."

Rabbi Gittelson and Rabbi Polish said that despite the "objectionable tactics" of the Jewish Defense League, "the denunciation of the (JDL) to the President of the United States by some leaders of the Jewish establishment was craven and obsequious." If denunciation of the JDL was thought necessary, the Reform leaders continued, "the addressee should have been American Jewry, not the offices of the President whose earlier apology to (France's President Georges) Pompidou for American Jews compounds our pain and chagrin."

The first reference was to a Washington meeting last December at which Dr. William A. Weixel, president of B'nai B'rith and chairman of the Conference of Presidents; Max M. Fisher, chairman of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds, and Rabbi Herschel Schacter, chairman of the American Jewish Conference on Soviet Jewry, advised high administration officials that they dissociated themselves from JDL activities. The second reference was to President Nixon's personal apology early last year to Pompidou after peaceful Jewish demonstrators in American cities protested Pompidou's embargo on Mirage jets already paid for by Israel.

Rabbis Gittelson and Polish commented: "No American Bishops have been constrained to apologize to the White House for the Berrigans (anti-war activists), nor has the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People apologized for Eldridge Cleaver (expatriate Black Panther official), and therein lies the surest proof that American Jewry, which has presumably made it, feels more insecure than does the alienated black community." Summing up, the CCAR leaders wrote that while the Presidents Conference "has striven to expand its scope and its influence," it "must yet realize its full potential" and "measure up to the rapidly escalating demands which history imposes on us . . . It has not achieved the influence it deserves to exercise."

The solution they said, is for the Presidents Conference to "undertake a program aimed at reinforcing its work and stimulating the involvement of communities and qualified individuals in its activities"; to "achieve an equilibrium between responding to official voices from Israel and making the deepest soundings of Jewish opinion in America," and to "achieve equilibrium between making unilateral policy and encouraging participatory democracy in Jewish life."

Rabbis Gittelson and Polish recommended that the convention approve CCAR affiliation with the World Jewish Congress, "whose constitution guarantees the autonomy of all of its respective member organizations."

N.Y. Court Bars Apartment Sale Pending Hearing On Anti-Semitism

NEW YORK—The State Supreme Court this week barred the sale of a $150,000 East Side cooperative apartment pending a further hearing into charges that a prospective buyer was rejected because he is a Jew.

Ruling on a suit filed last month by the City Commission on Human Rights, Justice Isidore Dollinger gave the commission until August 6 to complete an investigation into charges by Kent M. Klineman of 20 East 35th Street.

Mr. Klineman, a partner in the investment concern of J. M. Dryfoos & Co., contended that he had negotiated a contract to buy the apartment at 4 East 72d Street for the $150,000 figure from its owners, the estate of Marian H. Wickes. But the apartment corporation vetoed the transaction without explanation, he said, and then prepared to sell the apartment to another prospect.

Mr. Klineman stated in an affidavit that an employee of his broker had warned him that he would have difficulty buying the apartment "because he was Jewish" and that the president of the corporation's board of directors "virtually acknowledged" in a telephone conversation that "anti-Semitism was a consideration" in the rejection of the sale.

The complaint named as defendants the Six East 72d Street Corporation, several of its directors and Brown Harris Stevens, Inc., the building's management agent. Justice Dollinger noted that the executor of the estate owning the apartment and Whitbread-Nolan, Mr. Klineman's broker, had not been charged with discrimination.

The apartment corporation, its directors and Brown Harris Stevens, Inc., denied in a hearing before Justice Dollinger on May 27 that they had discriminated against Mr. Klineman because he is a Jew.

In a later session, the Conference expressed "shock" at the Federal Government's attempt to ban publication of a classified pentagon report on the Vietnam war and thus to "abrogate the basic principle of the First Amendment, jeopardizing freedom of the press."

The reform Rabbis agreed that the study is "part of our nation's history" in that it detailed growing American involvement in the "infamous war in Vietnam." The American people, said the Rabbis, "have a right to know what their government is doing." They added that "the only way to end the war" —which they called a useless wasteful, bloody conflict —"is to end it quickly." They suggested a Dec. 31 deadline for an American pullout.

They contended that three of the 18 apartments in the building were owned by Jews and that two were owned by families with a Jewish spouse, although in both instances the Jewish spouse had died. The defense also said that the sale of an apartment to a Jewish family had been approved at about the same time Mr. Klineman had been rejected.

Noting the "considerable financial burden" to the owners of the apartment while the investigation of possible discrimination continued, Justice Dollinger ruled that the Human Rights Commission would be liable for up to $10,000 in damages "if unlawful discrimination is not established."

Although declining to rule on the "specified charges" of discrimination against Mr. Klineman alleged by the Human Rights Commission, Justice Dollinger noted that, if the defendants "have engaged in discriminatory practices . . . they have done so in a subtle manner, so much so that even if the alleged discriminatory acts actually occurred, it may ultimately be impossible to prove that fact."

"This is not to suggest, however, that subtle discrimination is an improper subject for investigation," he continued, "for such discrimination is more prevalent and as insidious as overt discrimination."

NEW COMMISSION

NEW YORK—Joseph Kruger of South Orange, N.J., has been named chairman of the National Jewish Welfare Board's new Commission on Jewish Communal Camping. The objectives of the Commission are to examine the current and future needs of the Jewish community which camping can help meet. Dr. Daniel Isaacman of Philadelphia will serve as a member of the Commission.

15 Arrested In Protest Against State Department

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Twelve rabbis, two Jewish professors and the national coordinator of the Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry were arrested and charged with criminal trespass after they handcuffed themselves to the United States Mission for two hours to protest the State Department's alleged failure to take "meaningful" action to aid Soviet Jewry. Five of the rabbis had sat in at the Mission for three and a half hours June 9 following a larger, interfaith demonstration outside the building June 3.

"We have not seen in this interval," the group said, "any meaningful intent by our federal government for concrete action for Soviet Jews." It added: "Our handcuffs represent chained Soviet Jewry. It is our moral duty to cry out. If this can be in no other way than by civil disobedience, then we accept the consequences." A Police Department spokesman said penalties in such a case were at the judge's discretion, but added that in this particular case—with all the demonstrators first offenders—the charges would likely be dropped.

The demonstrators were demanding, as were the two previous demonstrating delegations, that President Nixon issue a "strong statement" on the plight of Soviet Jews and on the upcoming Kishinev trial of nine Jews; Yiddish and Hebrew broadcasts into Russia on the Voice of America facilities, and White House support for Rep.

Edward L. Koch's bill for 30,000 emergency visas for Soviet Jews. "This was the not the first time the request had been made," Glenn Richter, SSSJ leader noted before the police cut the 15 sets of handcuffs. "The State Department forced us into it," he said of today's action. "What ever we have done in no way matches the courage of Soviet Jews. A Mission official told the JTA: "We deplore this kind of demonstration. It doesn't help the cause of Soviet Jewry or the democratic process." He said "nothing can be done by the State Department" on the various demands by the protesters, except to participate in a consideration of changes in VOA broadcasts. "Extensive consideration" of that matter for more than 20 years, he said, has convinced the Department that Soviet Jews do not constitute a national group within the USSR and thus are not automatically entitled to Yiddish or Hebrew broadcasts.

MARKS ANNIVERSARY

BUCHAREST — The Jewish community of Timisoara marked the 30th anniversary of the service of their rabbi, Dr. Ernest Neumann. A festive service took place in the local synagogue. A memorial service for Rumanian rabbis, communal leaders and community officials who perished in the Nazi era took place at the Choral Synagogue in Bucharest. In accordance with an established tradition, the names of the martyrs were read during the service.

ENGAGED: Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Russo of 16 Willis Avenue, Lake Ronkonkoma, New York, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Kathleen Russo, to Richard S. Seigle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Saul Seigle of 21 Bedford Road, Pawtucket.

Miss Russo is a graduate of Sachem High School and will be graduated from Upstate Medical Center School of Nursing in June 1972.

Mr. Seigle, who was graduated from Pawtucket West High School, will receive his bachelor of arts degree from Syracuse University in January of 1972.

An August 5, 1972 wedding is planned.

Mr. Seigle is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rosen of Providence and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Seigle of Brooklyn, New York. Miss Russo's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Victor Glamisso of Flushing, New York, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Paul Russo.

Use Of Violence Keeps Down JDL Membership In Many Areas

NEW YORK — They gather in private homes in Greenwich, Conn., in a meeting hall in Chicago's North Side and in an office in Los Angeles. There is talk of guns and karate and the emphatic conviction that "if the Jew is kicked, he will kick back."

They are the members of the Jewish Defense League, the New York based organization whose motto of "Never Again" has found adherents—with varying success—in several cities.

While their purpose is essentially the same across the country—"to protect Jewish interests"—their methods vary from the benign policies of the group in Fairfield County to the militancy of the Philadelphia chapter, which regards violence as a viable tactic.

And while violence and disruption have been a mainstay of the league, in New York and a major factor in building a national reputation for the group those tactics have scared off as well as attracted disciples elsewhere in the country.

The Boston chapter, with a membership of 1,500 over a year ago, second only in size to the New York group, has shrunk to around 200, largely because of disputes over the use of violence.

It was three years ago this month, after the school crisis in Ocean Hill and Harlem, that Rabbi Meir Kahane founded the league on the conviction that an aggressive organization was needed to combat anti-semitism.

Some of the first publicity the group received occurred after members engaged in fights with blacks at Brooklyn College and elsewhere.

But the emphasis of the group here and elsewhere soon turned to what was regarded as the problems of Soviet Jews, their inability to migrate or to freely practice their religion.

Harassment of Russians visiting this country, diplomats, artists and athletes, became the hallmark of the organization.

Harold L. Novoseller, an Orthodox Rabbi who is leader of the league in Philadelphia, is probably the most militant figure in the league aside from Rabbi Kahane.

"Sometimes, if necessary, we use physical force to help Jews," he said in a recent interview.

Karate and instruction in the use of firearms are part of the group's program in Philadelphia. The Philadelphia chapter says it has 800 members, second only to the New York group which has a few thousand members. (Many of the branches are evasive when asked about their membership.)

Last year the Philadelphia members disrupted a performance by the Molseyev Dance Company by releasing a dozen mice in the audience. They followed this tactic also in the Amtag offices.

The disruption so pleased the league that it was later repeated in a store in Providence, R.I., that sold Russian goods.

The Philadelphia group also threw marbles on the ice during a performance by Russian skaters at the Spectrum sports arena. Later, league members had a fist fight with some of the Russian performers.

While the Philadelphia group makes disruption an often-used tactic, the Fairfield County chapter, whose 100 to 200 members live in the Greenwich-Bridgeport, Connecticut, area, has participated in no demonstrations.

The principal activity of the chapter, says Samuel Shoshan, a member of the executive board who is also active in the national organization, "is to make opinions felt within the Jewish community and act as a watchdog to protect Jewish interests."

Some observers of the league contend that the strength of the various chapters is contingent on the amount of racial antagonism in the community.

"Jews and blacks in St. Louis have managed to maintain a pretty good dialogue," said Norman Stack, executive director of the Jewish Community Relations Council in explaining why the league has not gotten a foothold in the city.

And in Chicago, Abbott Rosen, Midwest Director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'Rith, said that the branch there, with 160 members, "really is nothing," "there have not been the direct confrontations between Jews and other minority groups such as there have been in Brooklyn," he said.

As the violence issue split the Boston chapter when Rabbi Marvin S. Antelman led a breakaway group, later called the Jewish Survival Legion, it has also thwarted recruiting efforts elsewhere.

Accounts of violence, a recurring theme in the group's newsletter from New York is believed to be one reason for failures to establish chapters in the Milwaukee area and on some college campuses.

Another unsettling issue for the league came with the announcement last month by Rabbi Kahane and Joseph Columbo of an alliance between the league and the Italian-American Civil Rights League, which has been active in protesting the alleged persecution of Mr. Columbo and other Italian-Americans as so-called Mafia leaders.

In Boston, Rabbi Antelman said of the alliance that the league "can have it," charging that the Italian group had ties to the Mafia.

In Philadelphia, the chapter said that while it had not formed an alliance with the Italian league, "We'd be honored to affiliate." And last May, Jews and Italians from the two leagues picketed a tool builders association in Providence for sending a trade mission to Russia.

The Jewish group is not specific, at least publicly, about its future plans. Some critics, especially in the larger Jewish organizations, contend this is because the league has no overall program aside from the shock and disruption it can cause.

The league has asserted that some of its plans must be kept secret to insure success and avoid counter measures by the police.

Joe Silver, featured in "Lenny," was cut from the new film, "Klute." He played Jane Fonda's psychiatrist until the actress, a Women's Lib advocate, insisted they use a female psychiatrist in the role. Her co-star, Donald Sutherland, didn't object and Silver's role went to a woman.

in my youth and middle years as often as they could yoke wild Caspian mares to drag me. Whether Painless Parker delivered or not, I do not know.

When it comes to the advertising dollars, the tobacco companies are no slouches. I cannot, however, remember the last ad I saw on television in December of 1970, but I do remember these:

"Be Nonchalant. Light a Murad."

"I'd Walk a Mile for a Camel."

"Lucky Strike Green Has Gone to War."

I must confess that I remember Charles Atlas's ad, "I Was a 98-pound Weakling." I understand Atlas made a million dollars on this ad which amazes. I would never for a moment have believed there was that much money to be made from fellows who wanted to beat up bullies on the beach.

An ad for surgical appliances on the East Side is unforgettable: "Your killa is my galla" (your rupture is my rapture).

The other two deathless advertisements I shall describe both appeared in the pages of the Carolina Israelite. Katz's Delicatessen on Houston Street in New York was the first national advertiser to place an ad with the Israelite. Katz's is a famous restaurant world-famous for its cold cuts. The ad read, for every issue of the Israelite, 20¢ in all, "Send a Salami to Your Boy in the Army."

The other ad I wrote myself. Somehow in my travels I had purchased a gross of mezzuzahs, the little Jewish plaque installed on the door lintel inside of which is a prayer. Wanting to rid myself of 143 of these, I devoted a half page to the message, "No Home Should be Without a Mezzuzah."

My friends in Charlotte still call me the "Mezzuzah King." I still have 142 of them and will mail them anywhere in the world to get them out of my attic.
